Harlow Ulm has been under the weather for the past week. He is working for Ross Abel and was due probably to the extreme hot weather.

Mrs. Elias Kline, of west of here, made our office a pleasant call Tuesday and ordered THE NEWS sent to her home each week. She read one copy and liked it so well that she made up her mind to order it. She says it will be a welcome visitor in their home. Thanks.

Morris Curie of Harlan, had a stroke of paralysis last Wednesday. Since leaving St. Joe he has been employed by Hood & Co., butchers. Mr. Curie had been feeling bad for a few days and was not working at this time. The right side was affected. Soon after it occured he made his way to the physician where an examination was made. His speech was affected slightly but is better at this time. It is hoped that he will recover without any further attack.

The item concerning the Lutheran Childrens exercises on Sunday evening of last week, was overlooked by us and on account of its excellence we feel as though some mention is due although a little late. Nearly every child of the school had some part in the program and it was rendered to a fair sized congregation. A liberal offering was received at the close of the exercises. A new feature was introduced in the latter part of the program, that of living statuary, which showed considerable preparation.

Free Attractions at

ROBISON PARK July 4-10.

The Circus Thriller

Dare-Devil Chefalo in his death, defying Looping the Loop! He rides down a 60 foot incline, then with one tremendous whirl he loops the loop and with a mighty leap into space, he loops the flume. All in one amazing hair raising act. You will want to see him more than once. He was the expensive treasure at the Indiana State Fair in 1909. Chefalo will be at Robison Park July 4th and all the following week including Sunday July 10th. You will want to see him more than once.

A Good Commencement Exercise

The Concord township commencement exercises were held in Widney's opera house, Tuesday evening, to which a fair crowd attended. The orchestra failed to appear and Chastine Johnston was called upon to fill their place on the program. The solos by C. A. Woodcox and Little Miss Pauline Barney received hearty applause, and Mrs. Lora Leighty and Miss Flossie Copp rendered a piano duet in their usual pleasing manner. The four young graduates did excellent in delivering their orations which showed careful thought and lots of hard work. The graduates were all from St. Joe, namely:

Flossie Sechler
Opal Koch
Gray Woodcox
Marie Leighty.

The decorations were quite novel, representing a woods scene with ferns and potted plants. Superintendent Coe made a few remarks at the close of the program before presenting the diplomas. The subjects of the orations were:

"The Temple of the Soul"
Flossie Sechler.
"Modern Improvements"
Opal Koch.
"Getting a Right Start"
Gray Woodcox.
"Progress of Humanity"
Marie Leighty.

Lost a Horse.

Frank Johnson, of west of Fairview, had the misfortune to loose one of his best work horses, last week one day, caused by indigestion. Mr. Johnson has been on the hunt for several days but has not found a horse suitable. He doesn't mind the price but he wants one that is sound. It is quite inconvenient for him now as his farm work is very heavy. Mr Johnson now has an orphan colt to care for.

Local Items

We have a display in our window of two specimens of wheat, beardy and smooth, the beardy having attained a length of seven inches and well filled. The specimen was presented by John Y. Davis and is an excellent one.

C. S. Saylor and family have returned from South Houston, Texas, and will occupy their home as soon as vacated by Roy Kinsey. His family is at Harlan.

A STITCH in TIME

may save 9 lives and even more this hot weather. Keep looking after your drain pipes, well plugs, out houses, etc. As soon as you discover impure conditions use disinfectants we have all kinds and they are cheap, such as Chloride of Lime, Carbolic Acid, Formaldehyde, Zenolium, Creolin and Septicides of different make, use them freely it is cheaper than the deadly summer diseases.

After disinfecting thoroughly and have pure air get one of those nice Hammocks, lay in the shade and say get away troubles. Go to and you will always do better than elsewhere.

Dunkle's Drug Store

Culture Club

On last Friday evening the ladies of the Culture Club held their mid summer meeting at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Bowman. After a piano solo by Miss Flossie Copp, the usual business associated with these meetings was discussed. A vote of thanks was given the retiring president, Mrs. Bowman and the other officers of the club for their excellent service rendered during the year. Delicious refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake and Frou frous were served by the hostess.

LUTHERAN CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Weekly prayer meeting Thursday evening. Sunday School Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. C. E. in the evening, led by the pastor. The Sunday evening service will be of the nature of a patriotic service. Special music, and the pastor will give a talk of a nature befitting the occasion. You are cordially welcomed to these services.

Rev. Hitchner, Pastor.

ST. JOE NEWS.

Read the ads and be posted.

Band concert Saturday evening.

Elmer Hart is at South Bend working.

A copy of the official program book of the Indiana Music Teacher's Association is in our hands, giving the full program of the 33rd. convention at Princeton, Ind., June 28th. to July 1st. inclusive. The program is the best yet and every teacher should attend the meeting. Miss Allie Goldsmith favored us with the program. The best of musicians have been engaged.

Phone us the news or use our item box at the post office. We want all the news, but it is impossible to get it without your help.

The second annual picnic and field day of the union Sunday Schools of Hicksville and vicinity will take place at the county fair grounds, on Monday, July 4, which will be a day of interest to old and young. All kinds of contests will be entered into by the different schools. Coburntown Farmers Band will celebrate in Hamilton's grove just east of town, an ideal place for a picnic. There will also be celebrations at Cold Springs and Grabill.

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST. JOE, IND.

THE HOME STORE.

Oh for the joy of a Cool Summer Gown!

Sheer Summer Dress Fabrics

Summer comfort demands thin dresses. In fact, the well-dressed woman on a hot day is the one in a neat gown made of some sheer material. She not only looks cool but she is as cool as can possibly be. The first days of summer have been real ones and there has been a considerable demand for light weight dress materials. We are showing now, just in advance of the Fourth, an assortment of Summer Dress Fabrics in alluring variety—fabrics appealing to every warm weather mood. You will find it worth while to secure enough for a dress or two, just as soon as you can get to town and into the store. The first choice offers the big opportunity.

Lotus Lawns These come in light and dark fast colors, neat figures and stripes and will make a good cool dress. The price is only 5c. yard.

Floretta Organdi A nice sheer goods, comes in all desirable shades and in well assorted figures and stripes. Price is only 8c. the yard.

Regina Batiste A very fine sheer goods in plain and figured effects. In this assortment you will find the popular shades such as light Lavenders, Tans, Blues, etc. Specially priced for hot weather at.....12 1-2 and 15c.

Shimmer Silks A very desirable cloth for summer dresses, a little heavier than the Batiste and yet not too heavy for the warmest days. These come in light blues, tan, etc. Our price is only.....21c. the yard

Minora Shantungs These come in the rough weave and are our very best summery weights of wash silks, they are in beautiful shades of Blue, Pink, Old Rose, Tans, Greens, etc. Hot weather prices at.....37c. yard

Linweave This is the sheerest of sheer white goods, nothing on the market today that equals this popular goods Plain and fancy weaves. Priced at .....20, 25 and 30c.

Laces and embroideries to trim your summer gowns 5 to 25c	Ladies Neckwear very choice offerings. Be sure to see the line.	BELTS select one to match your Summer Outfit 25 to 50c.	Buttons and Thread any kind any size and in any quantity	Ribbons a choice assortment of the seasons best colors 5 to 50c.

JUNE

0425

L 904

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

1910. JUNE. 1910.

Sun	Mon	Tue	We	Thu	Fri	Sat
*	*	*	1	2	3	4
5	6	7	8	9	10	11
12	13	14	15	16	17	18
19	20	21	22	23	24	25
26	27	28	29	30	*	*

N. M. 7th. F. Q. 14th. F. M. 22nd. L. Q. 29th.

PAST AND PRESENT

AS IT COMES TO US FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE EARTH.

Telegraphic Information Gathered by the Few for the Enlightenment of the Many.

First Passenger Airship Service.

The first regular ship passenger service was inaugurated recently when Count Zeppelin's great craft, the Deutschland, carrying twenty passengers, successfully made the trip from Friedrichshafen to Dusseldorf, a distance of 300 miles, in nine hours. The weather was perfect and the motors worked faultlessly. The average time maintained for the complete course was approximately 33 miles an hour, but between Friedrichshafen and Stuttgart the 124 miles was covered at an average rate of speed of 41 miles an hour. The best speed for a single hour was 43½ miles. Regular trips will be made, many tickets were sold for the first days at from $25 to $50 each. The airship is provided with a restaurant, which will supply the passengers with a buffet service such as is afforded on parlor car railroad trains. The dimensions of the Deutschland are: Length, 485 feet; width, 46 feet. Its gas capacity is 24,852 cubic yards and it carries three motors having a total of 330 horse power. It was designed to maintain a speed of 35 miles an hour. Its lifting capacity is 44,000 pounds, of which 11,000 pounds cover the crew, passengers and express. It is expected to be able to accomplish a continuous trip of 700 miles.

Presents $100,000 to Loyola College.

Loyola University of Chicago, one of the leading educational institutions of the country conducted by the Jesuits, for the third time in a month announced a large donation to the school. This gift, amounting to $130,000, is from Michael Cudahy, the Chicago packing millionaire and philanthropist, to be used for a science hall. The announcement was made by the Very Rev. Alexander J. Burrows, S. J., president of the university, at the commencement exercises of Loyola university, held in Orchestra hall. Three weeks ago Mrs. Henry F. De Jonghe gave the university $135,000, and the faculty of Bennett Medical college followed with a donation of $60,000.

Scenic Railway Car Jumps Track.

At least four persons were fatally injured and a dozen others seriously hurt in New York City when the crowded cars of a scenic railway on the Bowery at Coney Island, running at terrific speed, jumped the track and dropped a sheer 60 feet to the ground. Ten of the occupants were hurled from the cars and went crashing down amongst the scenery, falling to the ground, where they lay unconscious. Six went down with the first car and were pinned fast beneath the wreckage. These last were the ones most seriously injured. The man in charge of the diving cars escaped injury. He could not explain the accident, but declared it was unavoidable.

Girl Killed in Auto Accident.

Miss Cloe Schafer, aged 14 years, of near Huntington, Ind., was almost instantly killed and seven other young people were seriously injured when a pin dropped from the steering gear of an automobile driven by Russell Dray, son of James Dray, of Plumtree, nine miles south of Huntington, causing the car to turn completely over. The machine was traveling at a rapid pace when the gear became impaired and the car was whirled over in a twinkling. The Schafer girl was in the front seat and was hurled high into the air, alighting on her head and shoulders. Her skull was fractured and death came within a few minutes.

Two Die in Wreck.

Meeting head-on at a sharp curve between Paint Creek and Southville, Pa., on the Somerset & Cambria branch of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, two freight trains crashed together, killing two men and injuring ten others. The injured were taken to Johnstown, Pa.

Played with Matches.

Playing with matches resulted in the death of two little sons of J. O. Taylor, aged 3 and 4 respectively, in Iredell, Texas. The little boys were starting a fire when their clothing became ignited and they were burned to death.

Steamer Sinks; Ten Drown.

The French freight steamer Larochelle, from Bordeaux for Liverpool, Eng., was sunk through collision with the British freight steamer Yews, off Skerries, Ireland. Ten members of the French vessel's crew were drowned.

Brewery King Killed in Auto Wreck.

William Krug, vice president and general manager of the Fred Krug Brewing Company, Omaha, Neb., was killed in an automobile accident.

MISSOURI SUITS ASK OUSTER OF PACKERS

Attorney General Begins Quo Warranto Proceedings Against Leading Meat Concerns.

TRUST CHARGE IS THE BASIS

Armour, Morris and Swift Co.'s Accused as Principals in Trade Conspiracy.

Attorney General Elliott W. Major of Missouri began ouster proceedings against five meat packing companies Monday by filing quo warranto informations in the Supreme Court at Jefferson City. The corporations attacked are the Armour Packing Company, Morris & Co., Swift & Co., Hammond Packing Company and the St. Louis Dressed Beef and Provision Company. The Armour, Swift and Morris companies are accused of violating the anti-trust law, and, with the Hammond and St. Louis companies, as subsidiary concerns of the National Packing Company, of conspiracy to control the business in Missouri.

The five companies are named in two petitions which ask that the corporations be excluded from all corporate rights, that their licenses be forfeited and that all or such portion of their property as the court may deem proper be confiscated, or in lieu thereof a fine be imposed. Armour, Swift and Morris are charged with having entered into a conspiracy in 1909 to control the prices to be paid by retail and wholesale dealers in live stock, poultry, butter, eggs, dairy and agricultural products, dressed meats and by-products from the business of slaughtering live stock.

THEODORE JR. WEDS.

Colonel Roosevelt Present at Marriage of His Son.

Weather typical of the month of brides and roses attended the wedding of Miss Eleanor Butler Alexander and Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., whose nuptials at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York furnish one of the most notable society events of the season.

The capacity of the spacious edifice where the wedding took place was taxed to accommodate the guests. Then attendance of the groom's distinguished father so stimulated popular interest in the function that there were record throngs in the vicinity of the church edifice long before the hour set for the ceremony.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Henry M. Sanders, a great uncle of the bride, assisted by Rev. Gordon Russell of Cranford, N. J. A musical program was given while the guests were assembling. The bride was given away in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Henry Addison Alexander.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Alexander, the bride's uncle and aunt. The young couple go on their honeymoon to California, and will spend some time there. The bridal gifts were many and valuable.

The engagement of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Miss Alexander was announced last February. The groom is 22 years of age and his bride 21.

STATEHOOD MEASURE SIGNED.

President Uses Two Pens in Converting Historical Bill Into Law.

The bill admitting Arizona and New Mexico to statehood was signed at 1:40 o'clock Monday afternoon by President Taft. Two pens were used in affixing the signature. "Approved, William H.," was signed with a solid gold pen, made to order of Postmaster General Hitchcock, who has done much hard work in putting the bill through. "Taft" was written with a big eagle feather pen, presented by Delegate Andrews, and "June 20, 1910," was written with the gold pen. The eagle feather was carried to the White House in a big leather case. After the President had affixed his signature, Secretary Norton used a blotter and gave it to Delegate Andrews, who wanted it for a souvenir. After signing the bill the President congratulated the citizens of the territories who were present and was heartily congratulated by them.

MINE DEATHS ARE ON DECREASE

Including Cherry Disaster Only 2,412 Persons Lost Lives in 1909.

Notwithstanding the Cherry mine disaster and the fact that the amount of coal mined in the United States in 1909 was 10 per cent greater than in the previous years, coal mine fatalities in the United States were fewer in 1909 than in the year 1908.

The figures compiled by Edward W. Parker, statistician of the division of mineral resources of the United States geological survey, show the total number of deaths from coal mine accidents in 1909, including the Cherry mine disaster, to have been 2,412, as compared with 2,450 in the preceding year.

Statistics upon which the report of the bureau was based came from statements furnished by State mine inspectors. In the future all such statistics, it is expected, will be compiled by the new bureau of mines.

FLY TIME.

—Minneapolis Journal.

STATEHOOD BILL PASSES SENATE

Action Insures Admission of Arizona and New Mexico Union.

Two more stars, making forty-eight in all, will be added to the American flag as a result of the action of the United States Senate in unanimously passing the bill granting statehood to Arizona and New Mexico.

The House having already acted, the measure went to a conference committee, which will arrange the differences in the two measures adopted, and submit for the approval of Congress and the President the act under which the territories will be admitted into the Union.

The Democrats had feared the Republicans would endeavor to postpone the report of the committee, thus killing statehood for this session. But they received positive assurances that delay would not be attempted and that Congress would not adjourn without action.

Thus has ended victoriously a struggle of years on the part of Arizona and New Mexico to be admitted as separate States. United, they could have received statehood at the time this high privilege was accorded to Oklahoma. But the Arizonians objected to amalgamation with the New Mexicans and strenuously opposed the plan.

The terms upon which the grant is made may not meet with the full approval of the residents of the territories. They may feel that onerous conditions have been imposed in some respects, but there is not the slightest doubt but that they will accept them and lose no time in qualifying for the improved status which has been offered.

FIRST TO SEW ON MACHINE.

Woman Who Tested Howe's Invention Celebrates 80th Birthday.

The first woman who ever took a stitch on a sewing machine has just celebrated her eightieth birthday at Winsted, Conn. She is Miss Elizabeth M. Kilbourn, and was a school teacher in New Hartford when Howe, inventor of the sewing machine, lived there. She visited his workshop one day when he had finished his first machine. He had her take stitches in a piece of cloth, and then told her she was the first woman to operate the machine.

It won't be long before you'll have to begin shopping for Christmas.

The Nicaraguan insurgents were just hungry enough to eat up the enemy.

Part of the tangle in Tennessee politics is over the question of tanglefoot.

Mr. Halley's comet was one star that got along without employing a press agent.

That carmine patch which suddenly appeared on the map is the State of Nevada.

From the slow, toiling prairie schooner to the mile-a-minute flying machine is a far cry.

Persons who wish to attain immortal fame by doing stunts with aeroplanes will have to start early in order to avoid the rush.

PATTEN IS INDICTED.

Chicago Trader and Seven Others Held for Conspiracy.

James A. Patten and seven others were indicted in New York by a special Federal grand jury, charged with conspiracy in restraint of trade under the Sherman anti-trust law. This is the first fruit of the government's attempt to prove that manipulating the cotton market is against the law. It is alleged that the accused men formed a pool for the purpose of cornering and arbitrarily fixing the price of cotton. Those indicted are: James A. Patten, Eugene B. Scales, Frank B. Hayne, William P. Brown, M. H. Rothschild, Sydney J. Herman, Robert M. Thompson, Charles A. Kittle.

The first five gave bail of $5,000, as required, through counsel. For the other three, who were neither present in court nor represented by lawyers, bench warrants were issued.

Patten has been known for years as a corn and wheat speculator, and more latterly as the "cotton king." Frank B. Hayne and William P. Brown are well known cotton operators of New Orleans, and Eugene B. Scales is a leader in the same line in Texas.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

Progress of the Pennant Race in Base Ball Leagues.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Chicago	34	16	St. Louis	25	28
New York	30	21	Philadel'a	23	26
Pittsburg	25	23	Brooklyn	23	28
Cincinnati	25	25	Boston	18	36

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Philadel'a	33	17	Cleveland	20	25
Detroit	36	21	Wash'gton	23	30
New York	30	18	Chicago	21	28
Boston	26	24	St. Louis	12	38

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Minn'polis	45	19	Kan City	23	33
Toledo	39	28	Milwaukee	24	36
St. Paul	39	24	Columbus	24	36
Ind'polis	28	35	Louisville	33	10

WESTERN LEAGUE.

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Denver	32	24	Omaha	28	27
Sioux City	31	23	Des Moines	25	32
Wichita	31	24	Topeka	21	29
Lincoln	28	26	St. Joseph	20	31

HARMON URGED FOR PRESIDENT

Ohio Executive Indorsed as Party's Standard Bearer.

Judson Harmon was renominated for Governor of Ohio by the Democratic State convention at Dayton. In his address to the delegates Governor Harmon made a scathing attack on the tariff and grilled the Republican party and administration for permitting the Payne-Aldrich bill to become a law. A plank was placed in the platform indorsing the Governor as the Democratic candidate for President in 1912. The platform declares that the present campaign must be fought on State issues, indorses the administration of Harmon and calls for the election of a full Democratic ticket, on the ground that a hostile legislature and Republican State officers have seriously hampered the Governor. A full State ticket was named.

BROWNE PROSECUTION CLOSES.

Summary of Evidence Introduced to Support Bribery Charges.

As an unexpected climax to the most dramatic session of court since the beginning of the Browne bribery trial in Chicago—a session fairly crammed with tense situations—State's Attorney Wayman the other day announced that the prosecution had completed its case.

The entire day's session had been one succession of victories for the State in the tangle of legal technicalities that were injected into the trial by Representative Lee O'Neil Browne's lawyers.

The evidence introduced to support the charges of bribery against Browne may be summed up as follows:

Representative Charles A. White's story told of three payments, the last of which was $850, given him at the Briggs House, amounting to $1,000, which Browne made to him to vote for Lorimer.

Representative H. J. C. Beckemeyer told of a similar cash payment, but said that there was no previous understanding.

Representative Link told that he received $1,000 of "Lorimer money," but without previous agreement.

The register of the Southern Hotel, St. Louis, was introduced to prove that Browne was there on the date named by White.

References to the "jack pot" corruption fund declared to have been distributed by Representative Wilson at the Southern Hotel were made in the presence of the jury three times, but were stricken from the records.

France, one of the most prosperous of nations, has the largest public debt, more than $7,000,000,000.

Japan has now more than 200 telephone exchanges, more than twice the number it had two years ago.

Spanish telephone companies make their charges according to the occupation of the patron. Social clubs pay the highest rate.

The new Sultan of Turkey has celebrated the first anniversary of his ascent to the throne by pardoning a large number of prisoners.

It is denied in Vienna that there is any agreement with Germany under which that power may buy the Austrian Dreadnaughts in case she needs them.

England's birth rate last year was the lowest on record—25.58 a thousand of population. This is nearly 1.0 below the rate for 1908, which showed a slight increase over 1907, the first for many years.

Not content with being the gayest city in the world and the most beautiful, in the minds of all true Parisians, Paris is preparing to spend some $300,000,000 in the improvement and embellishment of the city.

In order to reduce the amount of flying dust on the line between Fort William and Winnipeg, the Canadian Pacific has made a special appropriation of $350,000. This sum will be expended in spreading selected gravel and broken stone over the grade.

ROUSING WELCOME IS GIVEN COL. ROOSEVELT

New York Makes Remarkable Demonstration When Ex-President Reaches American Shore.

THOUSANDS GO TO GREET HIM

Greatest and Most Enthusiastic Reception Ever Given a Private Citizen in United States.

The homecoming of former President Roosevelt, Saturday, was one of the great events of the year and was marked by the biggest and most enthusiastic public demonstration that has ever been given to a private citizen in America. He was met down the bay at New York by a reception committee of 300, appointed by Mayor Gaynor, by members of President Taft's cabinet, by Governors of States and other distinguished men. Capt. Archibald Butt, the President's aide, carried a letter of welcome, and several hundreds of thousands of citizens from all over the country joined in the roar that started at the Battery and continued to 59th street as the colonel rode along.

Made a Stir Abroad.

No man in private life ever made such a stir abroad or is likely to cause so much noise at home as Col. Roosevelt. He embarked for Africa shortly after his successor took office, a little more than a year ago. While in the wilds of the Dark Continent his movements were noted in the newspapers of the world quite as continuously as they were during the brief interval that he tarried at Oyster Bay. Scores of places with strange names—native villages in the African jungle that no one had heard of before—became for the time being as familiar to the public as Schenectady or Skaneateles.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT.

Since he emerged from Africa the former President has been hurrying homeward by easy stages. He has left a trail of excitement behind him everywhere in the staid Old World. Even the German Kaiser, when he was running in his best form, never came within a block of him. In Egypt Col. Roosevelt told the British and the Egyptians a few startling things. In Rome he and the Pope turned their backs on each other. His enthusiastic desire to set people right, according to his own personal views, did not make such a stir in France or Holland or Germany, but it reached its climax in England, where he hoarsely told the big British Empire just where to "head in." In New York and in America generally innumerable people either have been figuratively on tiptoe or else have their ears to the ground trying to figure out in advance just what game the mighty hunter will go after now that he is on his native shore.

New York's Demonstration.

The German steamer, with Mr. Roosevelt and party aboard, was met at quarantine by the revenue cutter Androscoggin, carrying the committee of 300, and by three other boats, with distinguished welcomers aboard. Hundreds of other vessels carrying thousands of sightseers joined in the welcome and then falling in line the naval parade proceeded up the Hudson River to 59th street and then back to the Battery, where at 11 o'clock Mr. Roosevelt and those invited to attend the subsequent exercises disembark.

After these exercises a land parade formed, Col. Roosevelt riding in the first carriage, and proceeded to 59th street, where it was dismissed. This procession was made up of distinguished guests in carriages, a large force of mounted police, civil war veterans, Spanish war veterans, Rough Riders and various civilian and uniformed organizations. Along 5th avenue for two miles organizations were lined up on both sides and between these living walls Col. Roosevelt rode in a blaze of glory. Hundreds of thousands of people came to New York from places as far west as Pittsburg and Buffalo, while many were there from points in the Middle West and Far West.

Arctic Expedition Sails.

Carrying a bountiful supply of trinkets and gumdrops for the Igloo, the steamship Beothic, chartered by Harry Whitney of New Haven, Conn., and Paul J. Rainey of New York, for a hunting expedition in the arctic, sailed from South Boston.

JUNE

U426
L904

MRS. FENTON

BY

W. E. NORRIS

CHAPTER V.

It was still early morning when Fred Musgrave reached Oxford, and walked up from the station to the venerable college in which for so many years his uncle had been more feared than loved. The ancient buildings looked grim and mournful under the leaden March sky; the soft stone of which, like all except the most modern Oxford edifices, they had been constructed, was peeling and crumbling away, and to a fanciful spectator they might have worn an ominously suggestive aspect of death and decay. Fred Musgrave, however, was not at all a fanciful person, and he only thought that it was a horrid raw morning, and that he would be glad to warm himself before the dining-room fire. Nor did he dray any gloomy deduction from the circumstance that all the blinds in the Dean's residence were drawn down: most people's blinds are down before 8 o'clock on a wintry morning.

It was, therefore, a great shock to him when Williams, the butler, appeared with a very long face, and, in answer to his inquiry, said: "It's all over, sir, I am sorry to tell you. The Dean expired peacefully shortly after 11 o'clock last night, sir."

The housekeeper followed, with confirmatory sighs and shakings of the head. As for Fred, his distress was genuine, though he could not for the moment find any words in which to express it.

"How awfully sudden!" he exclaimed.

"Well, I don't know as we can call it that, sir," answered the housekeeper, twisting her capstrings between her fingers. "For three days past I 'aven't 'ad no 'opes myself, and when the doctor come yesterday he give me to understand as nothing more could be done."

"And yet you never sent for me!"

"We dursn't do it, sir, without orders. Day before yesterday I says to Mr. Williams—which he can bear me out in that—Didn't somebody ought to telegraph for Mr. Frederick?' I says; and Mr. Williams he quite agrees. But I couldn't take upon me to mention it, you see, sir; and when Mr. Breffit was here yesterday I spoke to him; but he couldn't give me no authority to hact."

"It doesn't much signify what Mr. Breffit said," interrupted Fred, who perhaps was not particularly anxious to hear the circumstances in question dilated upon; "the upshot of it is that, among you, you have managed to prevent me from saying good-by to my uncle."

Later in the morning Fred went upstairs and looked for the last time upon the stern, calm features which had never been quite so terrible to him as they had been to the rest of the world. His uncle had not been his friend, nor anything approaching to his friend; no confidences had ever been exchanged between them, nor had the severity meted out to him been even tempered by justice. Yet he could not but remember, and had no wish to forget, that he owed everything to his uncle. He well recollected the day when, as a boy of 15, he had been sent to Oxford, had been introduced into the presence of his alarming relative, and had been coldly informed that henceforth he would be provided for and "educated in the manner customary amongst English gentlemen"—always supposing that he did not grossly misconduct himself. He had since often wondered what would have become of him if he had not been adopted by the old Dean. He had at that time been an orphan, absolutely alone in the world, and absolutely without means of subsistence. His father, after having amassed a large fortune as a China merchant, had lost everything through some unfortunate speculations, and had dropped down dead on the very day that his bankruptcy was announced. Then the Dean of St. Cyprian's, who had broken off all relations with his brother from the moment that the latter had engaged in trade (an avocation which, according to the Dean's ideas, was utterly disgraceful and degrading to a Musgrave), thought fit to take charge of his brother's only child; and it is but fair to add that he behaved quite as generously to Fred as he would have done to a son of his own. He was not tender; he made no allowances for the young fellow (except, in due season, a pecuniary one, which was sufficiently liberal); he took very little interest in his pursuits or tastes; but he tolerated him, and that was more than he had been able to accomplish in the case of any other living mortal, with the solitary exception of the Master of All Saints.

Fred had not distinguished himself at the University, save in the matter of athletics; but he had been steady and sensible, and had not run up bills. Such differences as he had with his uncle, until that rather serious one arose about the question of his career, had for the most part had their origin in mere trifles, and the younger man had always given in—or at any rate appeared to give in—with a grace and good humor which the elder had been unable to resist. To Fred these needless quarrels and reconciliations had seemed more comical than provoking; he had taken a very indulgent view of the perversity which had brought them about; probably he had to some extent understood his uncle, though it is doubtful whether his uncle had ever understood him.

Well, it was all over now; and henceforth this once destitute orphan would not only be his own master but the master of considerable wealth. He could not help thinking a little about that, though he was rather ashamed of admitting the thought at such a time. That he would be the sole inheritor of his uncle's fortune he did not doubt for a moment: who else was there to inherit it?

CHAPTER VI.

The moment that the breath is out of the body of a king his successor seizes pen and paper and indites a manifesto to the nation. Custom requires of him that he should do this, and also that, in doing it, he should use certain conventional expressions of grief; but it will be observed that these manifestoes, when stripped of conventionalisms, usually amount to nothing more nor less than: "I beg to inform you that I have ascended the throne. Three cheers for me!" In private life something of the same sort is very apt to occur; and indeed there is no help for it. The world is for the living; a man must needs face his new duties and responsibilities and privileges; one should not be too hard upon an heir who finds that his sorrow is mingled with an excitement which is not very far removed from joy. But Fred did his best to choke down any such sentiment, and he received some help in doing so from the Master of All Saints, who called later in the day and who asked to see him.

"My dear fellow," exclaimed the old man, "I'm dreadfully distressed about this—dreadfully distressed to hear that you did not arrive in time! I blame myself for it; though I assure you I had no idea that my poor friend's life was in danger until yesterday afternoon. As soon as I knew that I telegraphed; but unhappily it was too late. If only you could have met, he would doubtless have forgiven you. Not that you have much to reproach yourself with; for, after all, it is no crime to write a play. Still——"

"I don't think my uncle was really very angry with me," said the young man, somewhat surprised. "And even if he was, I am sure he forgave me before he died."

"Yes; well—perhaps. Let us hope so," answered Dr. Drysdale, who had been going to say a little more, but who had changed his intention. Perhaps the best plan was to keep his own counsel for the present, since the truth must so soon be known. He contented himself, therefore, with a few oracular utterances upon the uncertainty of all earthly things and with making some excuses which seemed a little unnecessary for his dead friend.

Fred quite mistook his meaning. He thought he was receiving a mild lecture for his selfishness and willfulness, and he was not at all sure that he didn't deserve it. Certainly there is no crime in writing a play, but perhaps he might have shown a little more deference to the wishes of his benefactor, whose wishes could never be enforced again.

He had, of course, a good deal to occupy him during the next few days. Every morning the post brought him instructions from Mr. Breffit, who appeared in person to attend the funeral, accompanied by one Sir James Le Breton, an ex-Indian judge and a brother of the late Dean's wife. With this gentleman the Dean had remained on terms of amity, although—or more probably because—they had never met, and he had, therefore, at Mr. Breffit's suggestion, been requested to pay the last tribute of respect that could be paid to his kinsman.

Fred and he represented the family of the deceased between them; there was absolutely no one else who could have been asked to figure in that capacity, although the ceremony was attended by a large number of ecclesiastical dignitaries, and some distinguished literary and scientific men came down from London in order to be present at it. The majority of the visitors, having borne their part in a rite which was rather imposing than touching, hurried away; a few returned to luncheon at the late Dean's residence, and after these had departed, Mr. Breffit stated, not without a certain mournful solemnity, that it would now be his duty to read the will.

From this it appeared, first of all, that the Master of All Saints and Sir James Le Breton were nominated as executors, and that to each of them was bequeathed a sum of £100 as a small token of regard. The valuable library of the testator was left to the College of St. Cyprian's; the servants took substantial legacies; then, after a pause and with something of a sigh, Mr. Breffit announced that a sum of £10,000 was to go to "my nephew Frederick Musgrave," and that the residue of the estate, real and personal, went to "my daughter, Laura Fenton," whom failing, the next of kin was to inherit in her place.

Sir James Le Breton, a thin, white-haired old gentleman, who had been rather annoyed to find that he was to be saddled with the duties of an executor, and somewhat consoled on hearing that he was to have a hundred pounds for his trouble, started up, exclaiming, "Bless my soul!—his daughter, Laura Fenton! Why, I always understood that she had died long ago."

Fred's amazement was even more profound, since he had not until now been aware that such a person had ever existed. He sat with his mouth open and made no remark.

"I am almost entirely without information upon the subject," Mr. Breffit said. "When Dean Musgrave first did us the honor to intrust us with the management of his affairs his daughter was already married, and the references which he has instructed me to make to her in previous wills have been unimportant, and—and I may say hypothetical. From other sources, however, I have learned that about a dozen years ago this lady contracted an alliance of which her father disapproved, that she has not since then held any communication with him, and that she and her husband emigrated to New Zealand immediately after their marriage. If living, she is probably in New Zealand now."

The Master of All Saints, who was also present, but who had not opened his lips up to now, observed in an apologetic tone that nobody would quite like his daughter to run away with the music-master, and that one could easily understand how a man upon the threshold of death might hesitate between the conflicting claims of paternity and—and—and, in short, other claims.

CHAPTER VII.

Mr. Breffit regretted that he did not possess the same facility of comprehension. It was not for him to express any opinion as to the action of his late client; but he was bound to say that in all his experience he had never met with a man less given to hesitation. This appeared to exhaust all that there was to be said about the matter. A short period of silence supervened, and shortly afterwards the conclave broke up. The Master of All Saints, before leaving the room, patted Fred on the shoulder and looked sympathetic, but as he could not think of anything consolatory to say he adopted the wise course of saying nothing.

Mr. Breffit was more outspoken. Mr. Breffit knew Fred well, and liked him. The late Dean, who had been a most litigious person and had kept his legal advisers pretty constantly employed, had often invited Mr. Breffit down to Oxford for a day or two at a time, and thus an acquaintanceship, which was almost a friendship, had sprung up between the lawyer and the young man who had always been understood to be his uncle's heir. When, therefore, these two were left together, the former did not allow professional reticence to deter him from exclaiming, "Upon my word it's a confounded shame! And so I would have told him if it would have been of the slightest use. But you are as well aware as anybody that your uncle was not the man to brook interference."

"Oh, I don't know about it's being a shame," said Fred; "it seems to me quite right that he should have provided for his daughter, since he had a daughter. The extraordinary thing is that neither he nor anybody else should have breathed a word about her to me in all these years."

The lawyer shrugged his shoulders. "In my opinion, and in everybody else's opinion, she was virtually, if not actually, dead; and your uncle did not like his family affairs to be talked about."

"It's all quite as it should be," Fred declared.

"Oh, you think so, so you? You imagine that you will be able to live upon the interest of £10,000? You imagine, perhaps, that you have hitherto been living upon such an income?"

"There's no imagination about it. My uncle allowed me three hundred a year."

"And paid the greater part of your expenses into the bargain."

"Well, he helped me out with a check from time to time; but if I can get 5 per cent for my money——"

"You can't get 5 per cent for your money—nobody can. And you have no profession worth speaking of. I confess I should look upon it as a bad business if I didn't feel tolerably certain that your cousin, Mrs. Fenton, is no more."

"Why shouldn't she be alive and well?"

"Simply because she has given no signs of life for twelve years. Just consider what the position of affairs is. She is the only child of a rich man—for, mind you, the Dean inherited from more than one relation, and he held house property which has greatly increased in value. I shall be very much surprised if his estate realises a penny less than £200,000. Well, now, I ask you, is it likely that a woman so circumstanced would have allowed all this time to elapse without so much as trying the effect of saying, 'I beg your pardon'?"

"It doesn't strike me as impossible. I wonder whether you will succeed in unearthing her?"

"I hope that she is a little too far beneath the surface of the earth for that; but of course every inquiry will be made, and I trust that our labors may be rewarded by the discovery of her burial certificate."

"Thanks; but it seems rather shabby to wish her dead, poor thing! Anyhow, I had better assume that she is alive."

"Oh, yes, you had better assume that in the meantime. And if I were you, I should abandon all thought of a literary career. A barrister may not make his fortune while he is young; but he has always the prospect of dropping into some snug berth or other by the time that he is growing old."

(To be continued.)

Major Pond and Bill Nye.

More than one successful lecture star had to thank Major Pond for his start. He had keen discrimination and not infrequently sought out and dragged upon the lecture platform an obscure genius who never thought to see himself before the footlights. Such a genius was Bill Nye. When the major found him he was acting as postmaster and editing the Laramie Boomerang over a livery stable. ("Walk down the alley, twist the gray mule's tail, take the elevator immediately!")

Pond persuaded him to try lecturing, and as there proved to be both money and useful publicity in it Nye was grateful and used for years to remember the major with characteristic notes, one of which had the following exhaustive signature:

Yours with a heart full of gratitude and a system full of drugs, paints, oil, turpentine, glass, putty and everything usually kept in a first-class drug store.

BILL NYE.

Procrastinate.

Teacher—What is the meaning of the word "procrastinate?"

Pupil—To put off.

Teacher—Right. Illustrate it in a sentence.

Pupil—I tried to steal a ride on a street car yesterday, but I was procrastinated.—Toledo Blade.

The true overcoming is not in shaping outward things to suit our will, but in living out our life patiently, trustfully, and kindly, through whatever the outward things may be.—Brooke Herford.

REVIEW OF INDIANA

During a show at Rumbletown a section of elevated seats fell, throwing about 100 persons to the ground. Miss Flora Cox and Prentice Warren were seriously injured.

The home of Homer Wilson, a farmer near Anderson, was destroyed by fire last week while the family was absent from home. Returning home they saw their house on fire and neighbors trying to save it. The loss is $3,000, covered by insurance.

Horace Marble, former County Auditor, prominent Republican politician and ranchman, worth $50,000, died at his home in Wheatfield last week, aged seventy years, at exactly the same time that his daughter Ruth, wife of Dr. Allen Salisbury, of Crownpoint, gave birth to a son.

Announcement was made at Earlham College of the appointment of Miss Laura Gatson as head of the music department, succeeding Miss Lucy Francisco, resigned. R. B. Robbins, Indiana University, was chosen instructor in mathematics. Benjamin Grave, formerly of Earlham, has been elected to the faculty of Wyoming University.

While hoeing corn, Frank Crowe, an almost blind man, of Hazleton, seriously injured his wife by striking her with the hoe. A rabbit was scared up by Mr. Crowe, who, after being told by his wife to hit it, struck, with the result that instead of hitting the rabbit he hit his wife in the head, making a serious wound. Mrs. Crowe may die from the blow.

Mrs. Jennie Utz, after shooting Ralph Miller, a blacksmith, swallowed laudanum and is in a critical condition. The deed was committeed at Georgetow, nine miles west of New Albany, where the parties live, and is the termination of a love affair. Miller's wound is not a dangerous one. Mrs. Utz is a widow and formerly lived in New Albany.

Mrs. Amy Carroll and her two daughters, Mabel and Celia, are among the graduates at the University of Michigan this year. Mrs. Carroll and Miss Mabel will receive a degree of A. B. on June 30, and on June 29 Miss Celia will receive a diploma. The Carrols, who are from Richmond, Ind., each spent two years in the Indiana University before entering Michigan.

Workmen engaged in excavations at the home of Steven Stalcup, of Elnora, Daviess County, found a petrified tom cat. It is as perfect in shape, except for the eyes, as a living cat. Legs with all joints, and tail are present, showing every ring and stripe. It was found under the old part of the dwelling and how long the cat had been dead no one knows. Marble eyes will be supplied and the cat put on exhibition.

Jacob Dahn, a young resident of Columbus, found a trestle on the Louisville division of the Pennsylvania lines on fire south of the city and there was no time to give an alarm, because the fire was burning fiercely. A barrel of water is situated at either end of the trestle for use in case of fire and he emptied both barrels fighting the blaze. The boy finally extinguished the fire after several ties had been burned in two.

George I. Burton, of Mitchell, has several lots of ginseng which he has been growing for five or six years. The other day he turned over fifteen square feet of soil and obtained enough roots to net him $72. He has enough ready to harvest that will bring in several hundred dollars. He grows the ginseng in beds six feet wide and shades them with an arbor covered with brush. He believed it more profitable than small fruit, as a crop is assured after the fifth year.

The latest addition to the artist colony of Brown County is Gustave W. Baumann, of Chicago. He was attracted by the glowing accounts given by fellow-artists of that city, and is the first Chicago artist to arrive this season. Mr. Baumann is especially interested in wood engraving and etching, both in color, and is delighted with the numerous subjects the county offers for this kind of work. Mr. Baumann is an American, but is comparatively fresh from two years of study in Munich, where the art of color printing is highly developed.

Barbara Pring, aged nineteen, who who for five years worked as a day laborer, dressed in male attire, recently married Charles Paul, a well-to-do farmer. The bride's father, William Pring, owns some land at Flint, near Lafayette, and makes a living by blasting flint rock and selling it to road contractors. The work is arduous, even for a muscular man. Barbara, when fourteen years old, was put to work in the flint bed. She was dressed in overalls and blouse and could scarcely be told from a man. While cared for at a rescue mission in Lafayette she fell in love, just as other girls do.

Simon Conn, aged fifty, married, a farmer in Washington Township, Marion county, was killed when he was struck by lightning while at work in the field. His wife witnessed his death.

Survivors of the old Fort Wayne volunteer fire fighting organizations are being rallied together to participate in the fifth annual tournament of the Northeastern Firemen's Association, which will be held in Fort Wayne June 30.

The potato crop in the vicinity of Clay City, notwithstanding the protracted unfavorable weather, will be equal, if not larger, than the average. There is a decline in the Colorado beetle pest, which has been the bane of potato culture in this county for forty-two years.

"Yeggs" cracked a safe in the postoffice at Brewersville and escaped with $400 in cash and checks. Joe Stearns, the postmaster, was not at home. The safe was ruined and a hole was made in the roof of the postoffice building. A few months ago the safe withstood an attempt to crack it.

The Wabash Railroad Company is experiencing a rush in through freight business by the way of Peru and in consequence there is a shortage of freight engineers. Superintendent J. C. Sullivan has announced that there will be six more engineers, as he has promoted six firemen on this division.

Muncie canning companies have begun to can peas and will operate their plants night and day until the season closes. The companies say that there is an unusually good yield in eastern Indiana, from which the local supply as drawn. In spite of the unfavorable early season, canners say that there will likely be a good crop of tomatoes.

Clarence Woolbright is operating one of the largest bee ranches in Indiana. The farm now has working more than two hundred stands of bees. The ground covering is blue grass and clover, which in the immediate neighborhood of the stands is kept closely trimmed. He says the bee industry is many times more profitable than farming.

An elevator in the Claypool building fell in Indianapolis with five passengers. It went down three floors like a shot, injuring Dr. H. A. Koss, Miss Leonie Scott and Miss Leo Rose, Chas. Hendricks and Cornelius Wilson, the colored operator. None of them is thought to be seriously hurt. A bolt holding the cable gave way, and the emergency brake failed to work.

The first premature Fourth of July celebration accident occurred Monday, when eleven-year-old George Heighway, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Heighway, of Ladoga, was injured in a gunpowder explosion. With some playmates Young Heighway placed the gunpowder in the back yard and touched a match to a short fuse. Young Heighway's right hand was badly burned in the flash that followed.

Two Terre Haute men, Frank Cannon and Albert Walker, employed in Laporte on Sewer work, went to sleep in the Lake Shore yards. At 3 o'clock in the morning both men were run over by a Lake Shore freight train. Cannon died in a hospital, bleeding to death. Walker's condition is serious and may prove fatal. Cannon was twenty-eight years old and single; Walker is married and thirty-five years old.

Several negro workmen employed on the new plant of the Evansville Public Service Company, at Fifth and Mulberry streets, threw down their tools and quit work as soon as they learned the site was formerly the old city cemetery and that hundreds of bodies were beneath the earth at that spot. They fled from the place panic stricken and say that they will not return, as they do not wish to work "where ghosts are liable to show up at any time."

At the meeting of the trustees of the Southern Indiana Hospital for the Insane, held in Evansville, plans submitted by the architect for the new building for the sick were approved and bids will be asked for soon. The trustees and Superintendent Laughlin have gone to Newcastle to inspect a dairy farm, said to be one of the best in the state. The Newcatle dairy farm will likely be used as a model for the equipment of the dairy farm to be started at the insane hospital.

Oil has been struck at a depth of less than one thousand feet on the Kirper farm, about two miles east of Huntingburg. The well is now flowing at the rate of twenty-five barrels a day and is covering Hunley creek and other small streams in the neighborhood. Oil men estimate that the well will produce five hundred barrels a day. Several oil wells will be drilled between Huntingburg and Birdseye, Ind. Several oil leases on land around Huntingburg have been signed.

Ethel, the thirteen-year-old daughter of Henry Krause, a farmer, living west of Columbus, was playing with the family cat when the animal suddenly bit her on the leg and then had a fit on the floor. The cat continued in convulsions until it was killed. The child was brought to a physician in Columbus, who said he did not think the wound would prove serious, but the parents of the girl are alarmed and have sent the head of the cat to Indianapolis to have it examined to see if it was suffering from rabies.

To keep from running into a boy on a bicycle, Cary Crozier, an automobile salesman of Muncie, guided a big touring car into Patrolmen Curtis and Furr, at Main and Walnut streets, yesterday. Neither was badly hurt.

Farmers gathered at the corn crib of John Zorm, southwest of Columbus, to kill rats. One dog and one shotgun were used and at the end of the rat killing the total was 128 at one small corn crib. This is held to be the local record

The Week in Congress

After two and a half hours of consideration the Senate Thursday passed the bill granting statehood to Arizona and New Mexico. Upon the final passage of the bill a roll call developed a unanimous vote of sixty-five Senators in favor of the measure. The conference report on the railroad bill was taken up, but action was postponed. A number of minor bills, including many public building measures, were passed. The consideration of the deficiency bill occupied the House. General debate was concluded and it was partly read for amendments. Mr. Humphrey, of Washington, spoke upon combinations by foreign steamship lines for the purpose of keeping up rates upon goods shipped from ports of the United States. He said the Standard Oil Company, the steel corporation and the harvester combine received preferential rates which destroyed competition with them.

By a vote of 50 to 11 the Senate Friday agreed to the conference report on the railroad bill. Before adjourning, the motion to concur in the House amendments to the postal savings bank bill was made the unfinished business. The House concluded its session by adopting a new rule by which a majority of its membership may at any time recall from a committee any bill or resolution referred to it and place the measure upon the calendar for consideration. Advocates of this new rule claim that it will effectually prevent the pigeon-holing of any proposed legislation which has the approval of a majority of the House. The adoption of the new rule was by a unanimous vote. The deficiency appropriation bill was under consideration during most of the session, but was not disposed of.

The Senate Saturday discussed a motion by Senator Bristow to discharge the committee on the judiciary from the further consideration of the resolution providing for the election of United States Senators by direct vote and a motion by Senator Carter to concur in the House amendments to the postal savings bank bill. Neither motion was acted on. The resolution authorizing an investigation of the charges made against Senator Lorimer of Illinois in connection with his election was reported favorably from the committee on privileges and elections and was referred to the committee on contingent expenses. The House finally disposed of the railroad bill and the bill granting statehood to Arizona and New Mexico, only the approval of the President being required to make them laws. Both of these administration measures received a practically unanimous vote. The general deficiency bill, appropriating nearly $6,000,000, was also passed

The Senate on Monday adopted the resolution directing the committee on privileges and elections to investigate the charges of bribery in connection with the election of Senator Lorimer. Senator Carter's motion to concur in the House amendments to the postal savings bank bill was considered, but not disposed of. Senator Borah delivered an extended speech on the West's attitude toward conservation. A commission to consider means for the promotion of international peace was provided for by a resolution passed by the House. Among many other measures passed were bills providing for the retirement of Justice Moody of the United States Supreme Court on full pay; requiring all ocean-going vessels leaving ports of the United States and carrying more than fifty passengers to be equipped for wireless telegraphy; and providing for a commission to attend the centennial anniversary of the Republic of Mexico. At a night session the public buildings bill and numerous minor measures were passed.

After passing the general deficiency appropriation bill, the last of the great supply measures, and the bill to retire Justice Moody, the Senate Tuesday again took up the postal savings bank bill and spent about four hours in discussing the motion of Senator Carter to concur in the House bill. The motion was strenuously resisted by Senators Cummins, Bristow, Bacon and Newlands, and supported by Senators Carter and Burton. The House held a night session, and passed the arid land reclamation bill in the form in which it had been reported from the committee on public lands. The bill provides for the issuance of certificates of indebtedness to provide a fund of $20,000,000 for the reclamation of arid lands.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

Reuben S. Crohn, former public administrator at Kansas City, shot himself when confronted with exposure of his alleged thefts of $50,000 from the estate of Adolph Huntemann, of which he was administrator. He died.

An increase in wages ranging on a graduated scale of from 1 to 3 cents per hour was granted to the employes of the Cincinnati Traction Company, operating the street car lines in that city. More than 3,000 men will be affected.

The cost to English employers of insuring their workmen against accidents in 1908 amounted to $10,000,000. Under the compensation acts the employers do not themselves pay out the money to their men in case of accident. That is done by accident insurance companies that bond the employers.

JUNE

0427

L 904

The St. Joe News.

One Year - - $1.00
Six Month - - 50c
Three Months - - 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES — AN INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

Big Circus at Wayne.

Barnum & Bailey Show to be Seen There on Wednesday, July 13.

Announcement is made that on Wednesday, July 13, the Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth will visit Ft. Wayne. This is the best news of the day to those who are fond of the circus form of amusement. For fifty-five years this has been the leading show of the world. This year it comes forth with an entire new equipment which cost the management $3,500,000.

The main performance is given in three rings, on two stages, on an immense Roman race track and in the dome. The climax of the program is the appalling performance of Desperado, a mad Frenchman, who leaps from the dome of the tent and lands on his bare chest. Additional thrills are given by Jupiter, a pure-white Arabian horse. It rides to the dome of the tent in a balloon and descends amid a Niagara of exploding rockets and fireworks. Then there is Charlie the First, beyond all question the most remarkable animal that ever came to the notice of scientists. Charlie the First is merely a chimpanzee, but he has become the greatest bicycle rider and acrobat in the world. He does an act on one of the stages that is the wonder of the age.

In the menagerie is found the most remarkable zoological exhibit ever seen outside of the interior of the Africal jungle. It is Bumbino, the first and only baby giraffe ever born or exhibited in America. Only once before in history has the stork visited the giraffe pen of a captive zoo of animals. That event happened over fifty years ago in London, England. The youngster died before it could be placed on exhibition. Bumbino is only three feet tall, less than one-seventh of its mother's height. The youngster is worth its weight in gold.

On the list of performers are the names of 400 of the world's most talented performers. The new parade is a marvel of interest. It is a panorama of a thousand wonders. There are three miles of it. Here is an opportunity for the people of St. Joe and vicinity to see the greatest circus ever organized. The railroads will lower the rates of fare and special excursions will be run.

Band Concert Saturday evening.

Get one of those shirts at Sol Barney's. Just a new arrival.

Hot Weather Advice.

In warm weather you can cut your food down one-half and be better for it. If you do not need it, why take it?

Let the meat and greasy things alone and live on fruits, vegetables, salads, milk and the cereals.

Drink an abundance of water and, for the next best thing, take buttermilk.

There is no such thing as sunstroke. The sun does not hit you, but wrong living does.

Cut out the liquor, cut down your food, and guzzle water to a fare ye well, and you can stand all the sun and heat that can be handed out.

"Rushing the growler" causes more sunstroke in a week than the sun causes in a year.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Read THE NEWS.

The biggest line of Neckties ever carried in St. Joe at Barney's

Next Monday is the Fourth. Arrange to lay off that day and enjoy yourself. Come to St. Joe in the evening and have a good time.

The Ohio Riding Corn Plow is the best on the market. Makes your work easier and better. Get one. Wm. Curie, St. Joe.

The wagon bridge east of Coburn town church is torn out and a cement one will take its place. The improvement is a necessary one and the people are not getteng it too soon.

A WOMAN'S GREAT IDEA

is how to make herself attractive. But, without health, it is hard for her to be lovely in face, form or temper. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion, good health. Try them. 50c at H. L. Dunkle.

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at ..... 10:32 a. m.
No. 3 ..... 8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at ..... 6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at ..... 4:57 p.m.

J D Fetters

TRUSTEE
of Concord Township.

OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK
at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank; you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

News Items

James Sechler is in very poor health.

The people of St. Joe were frightened Sunday with a fire scare. The trains had set the grass on fire along the track and it spread rapidly toward the houses in the west part of town. People were seen running with buckets and an alarm was soon given, but upon reaching the scene of action the fire had been succumed. We are glad that it was no worse.

Japanese Buckwheat Seed. Leave orders at Dunkle's Drug Store, St. Joe, or 'phone 62-5.

Mrs. Eugene Wyatt was given a post card shower on the 18th., the date of her birthday. It was a complete surprise and received 77 beautiful cards for which she feels very thankful.

The ladies of the M. P. church are well pleased with the patronage at their supper Saturday night. The same freeheartedness prevails with these ladies as with others, they always give you more than you pay for.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is sold on a guarantee that if you are not satisfied after using two-thirds of a bottle according to directions, your money will be refunded. It is up to you to try. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe, and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Band Concert.

Saturday Night.

Mr. Jesse Watson of Corunna has purchased the Eugene Wyatt farm of Jackson township and then Mr. Wyatt buys the Miles Emery 50 acre farm, west of Concord. Mr. Wyatt had an excellent farm in Jackson Tp., and sold it for $72.50 per acre.

Counterfeit money in the denomination of five and ten cent pieces is being exchanged considerably, and the supposition is that some one is working his graft to a good advantage. The money is manufactured from what must be perfect molds, as the pieces are perfect in form and impression and the only possible way of detection is when the coin is dropped to the surface and gives a dull sound.

"It cured me," or "It saved the life of my child," are the expressions you hear every day about Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This is true the world over where this valuable remedy has been introduced. No other medicine in use for diarrhoea or bowel complaints has received such general approval. The secret of the success of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is that it cures. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe, and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Last week the small dog of Isiah Davis east of here, became mad, and at once began to bite everything it came in contact with. A neighbor was passing and received injuries in the hand besides a couple of other boys were bitten also a cow and a hog. We also learned that the man and boy who were bitten, left on Thursday for Indianapolis to be treated. The brains of the dog were sent to Indianapolis, but word came back that they were not prepared sufficient to keep so long a time during the hot weather. What the results will be is yet to be seen.

MARVELOUS DISCOVERIES

mark the wonderful progress of the age. Air flights on heavy machines, telegrams without wires, terrible war inventions to kill men, and that wonder of wonders—Dr. King's New Discovery—to save life when threatened by coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup, bronchitis, hemorrhages, hay fever and whooping cough or lung trouble. For all bronchial affections it has no equal. It relieves instantly. Its the surest cure. James M. Black, of Asheville, N. C., R. R. No. 4, writes it cured him of an obstinate cough after all other remedies failed. 50c and $1. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

— alls answered day or night.

Phone No. 82.

St. Joe, - Indiana.

Summer Is Here

which brings flies, bugs and mosquitoes. Why be pested with them when Kinsey has a full line of Screen Doors, Windows, Wire screen and Hinges. All sizes at right prices. That nice lawn needs a mower to keep it mowed. When that building needs painting, don't forget we have a full line of Paint and Oil guaranteed strictly pure. The hot weather will make you wonder where you can secure a Gasoline or Oil Stove, remember we have a full line. When you need anything in Hardware remember we are complete. We show the biggest line of Graniteware ever shown in town and prices are such as have never been known. We have the Automatic Schrams Fruit Jars. Come in and we will be glad to show them. Always bear in mind that Kinsey's is where you get value received or in other words, dollar for dollar.

At your Service,

H. V. KINSEY — E. R. KINSEY

H. V. Kinsey & Son

Furniture Hardware Undertaking

Office Phone No. 37-2 — Residence No. 37-3

You will also find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Especially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 — Residence No. 37-4

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Ice! Ice! Ice!
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

Big Blue Racer Milks Cow.

A blue racer was killed Saturday on the farm of Joseph Gerber under most extraordinary conditions. The snake, which measured five feet, was killed while its jaws were locked over a teat of one of the best cows in the herd. Jacob DeKuipers, who manages the farm, had observed a sudden falling off in the yield of milk by one of the cows. Part of the udder was found to be dry when the cow was milked. Saturday the cow entered the hay field where the men were at work and her peculiar manner attracted the attention of Henry Badeau, who saw the dangling snake and killed it. The teat to which the snake attached itself was marked by the teeth of the reptile, but no further injury was inflicted.--Fremont Mich., News-Indicator.

A DREADFUL WOUND

from a knife, gun, tin can, rusty nail, fireworks, or of any other nature, demands prompt treatment with Bucklen's Arnica Salve to prevent blood poison or gangrene. It's the quickest, surest healer for all such wounds as also for Burns, Boils, Sores, Skin Eruptions, Eczema, Chapped Hands, Corns or Piles. 25c at H. L. Dunkle.

"Vonce More".

After defeating the Leo team at this place two weeks ago, they were invited to return the game Saturday. The local team went down with a strong bunch with Esq., Allen, Treech and Beams for the batteries. In no stage of the game was the game in danger for the Spencervillians. Four scores crossed the plate the first inning which set the ball a rolling and 33 scores were put over the plate to the opponents 3. John Steward, an ancient fan of Spencerville, was in the game and he started the noise of the rooters on the hill by dropping a long one over the fence. Leo had a few errors but all scores were made mostly by clean hits. Many of our fans accompanied the team who furnished the combustion. In the latter part of the game Hurshie happened to fall onto one and put it over the fence and made the circuit. We dislike to boast but we have not been beaten this year. The team will play Butler and some of the minor teams of Ft. Wayne soon.

KEPT THE KING AT HOME.

For the past year we have kept the King of all laxatives—Dr. King's New Life Pills—in our home and they have proved a blessing to all our family," writes Paul Mathulka, of Buffalo, N. Y. Easy, but sure remedy for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 25c at H. L. Dunkle.

SPENCERVILLE

Wm. Rhoads is not quite so well at this time.

L. C. Sechler is doing some carpenter work for Ross Able.

Miss Inez Rhoads is working for H. M. Widney and wife.

Celebrate the fourth at Hamilton's grove.

R. F. Moffett and Baltz were over to see James Sechler, last week.

Mrs. J. B. Sommers spent Sunday with W. A. Sommers and wife.

Reason Chaney is improving the looks of his house with a coat of paint.

J. A. Provinet, Jr., will be home from Covington to spend the Fourth.

Mrs. Moffett and daughters, Pauline and Jessie, visited W. A. Sommers and wife, and Frank Baltz and wife, last week.

The best advice we can give you is to buy an Ohio Corn Cultivator. Curie, St. Joe.

Mr. J. F. Baltz took Mr. and Mrs. Moffett and daughters home last Sunday after a three weeks visit with friends and relatives.

On last Saturday evening a "Sheep Skin" band from the vicinity of Grabill and Leo, joined by a remnant of the old veteran sheep skin band of this place, Clint Wearley, Harvey Beam and John Bowman, tore up the old town in general. Quite a crowd was in town. Commodore Wearley furnished the air for the fife.

M. E. CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Prayer meeting Thursday eve at 8:00. Young peopics prayer meeting Friday eve at 8:00 followed by bible study. Next Sunday morning Sunday School at 9:30, Epworth League 7:00 P. M., preaching at 8:00 P. M. All are invited.

REV. C. A. BYRT,
Pastor.

DENTIST.

C. R. PRICE,

ST. JOE, IND.

Office in Case building.

Bell Phone No. 44.

D. F. BROWN,

.....SHOE SHOP.....

My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite the Postoffice. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.

St. Joe, - Ind.

S. S. Kimes

—M. D.—

Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.

Phone No. 10.
Spencerville, Ind.

Geo. Wade and wife returned home Monday from a few weeks visit with Michigan relatives.

5% FARM LOANS 5%

See

Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.

Bell 347k — Home 346

Office:
Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Eliz Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son,

Phone No. Office 37-2. — Residence 37 3

JUNE

0428

L 904

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

Summer Weather

Makes a demand for something from the drug store.

Drugs
Paints
Oils
Varnishes
Wall Paper

POST CARDS

We are showing the best line of one cent post cards of anyone and invite you to see them.

Wernert.

THE NEWS $1.00 par year.

The delegates from the Epworth League convention report an enjoyable time and season of spiritual refreshing.

Childrens day was observed at Wesley Chapel on the Spencerville circuit Sunday eve June 26. An excellent program was rendered and the meeting was a success in every way.

The Winner overalls and shirts are the best. Beams & Co., sell them.

Chas. A. Rhoades and wife of the County Line, left Friday morning for Brunson, Michigan, for a visit with relatives. Mrs. Walter Newman and daughter of Garrett are keeping house for them.

Trustee Burchner and wife of Butler township came last Tuesday night to attend the commencement and spent a few days with their old friends and neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Steward.

House cleaning time demands new Furniture. We have some excellent values. Beams & Co.

Mrs. I. N. Charple and son, of New Paris, Ind.; Frank Rhoads of Concord; Chas. and F. E. Rhoads, W. A. Lake, Greeley Wearley and their families, and Frank Emrick and family of Huntertown, were entertained Sunday at the home of Wm. Rhoads and family, east of town. A jolly good time was had and ice cream was made.

Misses O'Brien, Josephine Carnes and Mr. Murray Erick spent Sunday with Mr. Robert Beams.

Miss O'Brien was entertained to supper Monday evening by Master Fred Steward and sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hensel are the proud parents of a baby girl, who came to brighten their home last Tuesday.

A good Jap rice at 5 cents per lb. at Erick's Store. It's a new one.

Miss Winifred Kimes and Mr. Herman Kandy of Ft. Wayne, attended the commencement and spent Tuesday night with Dr. Shook's.

Mr. Claude Tarney and family, of Newville, spent Sunday with the former's aunt, Mrs. Lydia J. Steward and with L. W. Steward and family.

Take your wool to Erick's and receive the highest market price.

The president of the Epworth League desires the attendance of all the members and young people next Sunday eve, as the delegates will give their report of the convention which will be helpful as well as interesting.

Miss Blanche O'Brien of Churubusco came to attend the commencement and is visiting among her friends and pupils for a week or two. She has had poor health since she left after her school closed and we hope that she will be much benefited by coming back to Spencerville again.

FRED THOMAS

I have moved my blacksmith shop across the street to the Geo. Wilson property recently purchased by me. All customers will find me here at all times ready to attend to all work.

The Blacksmith.

HAY TOOLS and CORN CULTIVATORS

NOW IN SEASON.

We have them and just what you are looking for. Myers Sure Grip Hay Car and Track, the best money can buy. We have a limited number of Oliver Corn Cultivators on hand. When these are sold we will not be able to get any more this season.

PerfeCtion Oil Stoves, 2 and 3 burners, Range tops, Sherwin Williams Paint, Pure Linseed oil at 85 cents per gallon, Cannon ball and Richards barn door Track and Hangers, Roofing, Spouting, Wire fence, Barb Wire, at prices lower than the lowest.

Give us a trial.

J. Beams
SPENCERVILLE, IND.

Lutheran S. S., 110 attendance $2.77 collection.

Mrs. Mariah Oberholtzer is at Ft. Wayne on a visit.

Mrs. Rena Chapman returned from Auburn Sunday, where she had spent the week visiting friends.

Edward Hull, who has been working at Auburn, is home for sometime.

Erick & Co., pays the highest market price for wool. See them.

W. W. Fisher, Ort Wearley and Wm. Allen will resume work with the Robert Johns Co., of Chicago, after the Fourth.

H. G Hursh returned to Springfield, Ohio, Sunday after a month's vacation He expects to take a twelve weeks course in summer school at Wittenberg College.

Lame shoulder is almost invariably caused by rheumatism of the muscles and yields quickly to the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment is not only prompt and effectual, but in no way disagreeable to use. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe, and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Miss Maude Kline, who was at Butler a few days, has returned.

Messrs. Con Davis, H. G. Hursh and Robert Beams were at Hicksville, Friday eve.

Mr. and Mrs. John Herdman and son Allen, came from South Bend, Wednesday, and called on Mr. and Mrs J. Beams. Mrs. Beams accompanied them to Ft. Wayne, Wednesday afternoon in their new automobile returning Thursday noon, in the afternoon they returned to their home in South Bend.

The report is that an Electric Light Company has purchased the old Hursh dam and will repair it. A lighting plant will be installed which will light the homes of people in the surrounding community for one dollar per month, as cheap as the old oil lamp. The true report of the enterprise has not been learned for certain.

A Lunch
PURCHASED
AT TREECE'S

RESTAURANT is always pleasing to the stomach as well as to the EYE and is clean and wholesome.

LUNCH
SOFT DRINKS
CIGARS-TOBACCO.

Ad Kline was at Wayne, Monday.

BUY A HOME
In The Fertile St. Joe Valley.

Below is a partial list of farms in DeKalb and adjoining counties. Have a fine list of city properties. Prices made to buyers upon application. FARM LOANS

2 Acres

No. 1. 2 miles from St. Joe, a fair house and barn, close to school and church.....PRICE $500.00

4-4 Acres

No. 2. ¾ mile from town, fine poultry farm, fair buildings, good soil.....PRICE $1,000

5 Acres

No. 3. In suburbs of Auburn, splendid buildings, will sell or trade for a small farm. Terms upon application.

No. 4. A good livery stock, will sell right. Invoice about $1,500

No. 5. Stock of general merchandise for sale or trade for farm. Invoice about $6,000. Will rent or sell building.

13 Acres

No. 6. A fine home on bank of St. Joe river, 2 miles from town. A good seven room house with cellar and plenty of out buildings. Lots of fruit. An ideal poultry farm. $1,700

20 Acres

No. 7. 4 miles from St. Joe, a fair house and barn. Lots of fruit. A fine soil.....PRICE $70 per acre.

No. 8. A fine truck farm, ½ muck an ideal potato and onion farm. 5 room house, good barn, young orchard, thoroughly tiled.....PRICE $85 per acre.

25 Acres

No. 9. A fine farm 4 miles from town, 8 acres good timber, soil a sandy loam. A fine 6 room cottage house, large cellar, good barn. Lots of fruit.....PRICE $100 per acre.

32 Acres

No. 10. One of the finest small farms in DeKalb county. An elegant 8 room house, summer kitchen, a fine celler. A new bank barn 40x50, other out buildings, all in fine condition. Plenty of fruit. Soil a sandy loam. 3 miles from the city. Price upon application.

40 Acres

No. 11. 4 miles from St. Joe. A good house, fair barn and other out buildings. A fine black soil.....PRICE $2500

No. 12 4 miles east of Auburn on a good gravel road. One of the finest 8 room cottage houses in the county. A fair barn, good hog house, granary, etc. A fine black soil. $3500

No. 13. Located in Jackson township. A fine country home, good buildings. Plenty of fruit. Good fences. $75 per acre.

No. 14. This farm has about 14 acres of onion and potato muck balance high land. Fair buildings. Will sell or trade for 80 acres.....PRICE $70 per acre.

49 Acres

No. 15. A fine fruit farm, 8 room house, bank barn, two chicken houses, other out buildings. Windmill and elevated steel tank for waterworks. 400 apple trees, 300 peach trees, 250 pear trees, 50 cherry trees, 50 plum trees, and all kinds of small fruits in abundance.....PRICE $6500.

54 Acres

No. 16. 2½ miles from town, 7 room house, a new bank barn, orchard, soil sand, clay and muck.....PRICE $63 per acre

65 Acres

No. 17. ¼ mile from a good town, depot at corner of farm. A fine young apple orchard and other small fruits. A good 8 room house, bank barn 36x50, a small barn, chicken house, granary, wood house, etc .....PRICE $90.

75 Acres

No. 18. 3½ miles from town on a good gravel road. A fine soil, fair orchard, good 8 room house, and 2 fair barns. Several hundred dollars worth of timber.....PRICE $78.

80 Acres

No. 19. 3½ miles from a good town, 6 miles from County seat. Soil, clay loam and 5 acres muck—7 acres of fair timbers, well drained A fine orchard. A good 8 room brick house. A good barn 40x60, and other good out buildings. $5800.

No. 20. 6 miles east of Auburn, a good 5 room house, new barn 24 x 40, new chicken house 12 x 30. This is thoroughly tiled and is one of the best potato and onion farms in DeKalb Co.....PRICE $65 per acre

No. 21. 5 miles from Waterloo, good 7 room house, barn 36 x 50 20ft. posts, other out buildings, soil muck and black loam .....PRICE $70

No. 22. 1 mile from St. Joe, good 7 room house, small barn and other out buildings, soil mostly a sand loam, some timber .....PRICE $70

No. 23. A fine 80 acre farm 3 miles from town, thoroughly tiled, 5 room cottage house, a large new barn, granary and other buildings.....PRICE $75 per acre.

No. 24. 2½ miles from town, a 6 room house with cellar. A large new barn and other buildings. Soil a sandy loam. .....PRICE $70 per acre.

No. 25. A well improved farm, 1 mile from Mongo....PRICE $40.

85 acres

No. 26. 2½ miles from a good town, this is a fine stock and grain farm, 10 acres good timber, fine large house with a good cellar, bank barn, orchard, good fences, well tiled.....PRICE $75 per Acre

91 Acres

No. 27. 2½ miles from Hicksville, O., on a fine gravel road, well improved, a snap bargain at .....$75 per acre.

93 Acres

No. 28. 3½ miles from Butler, fine large house, barn 36 x 80, other out buildings, plenty of fruit, good soil, 20 acres timber .....PRICE $70 per acre.

100 Acres

No. 29. A black sand farm almost as level as the floor, 4 miles from town, new 4 room house, fair barn, good drainage, a small down payment, balance on a long time, a snap for someone as the owner lives in the west.....PRICE $70 per acre

101 Acres

No. 30. 3 miles from Hicksville, good stock farm with good improvements, will sell crops in the ground and give immediate possession if desired .....PRICE $77 per acre.

117 1-3 acres

No. 31. 6 miles from Auburn on gravel road, soil a black loam, 8 room house, 2 barns, granary, corn crib, cow sheds, orchards, lays level, fine corn land. No muck.....PRICE $72 per acre.

120 acres

No. 32. 4 miles from a good town in DeKalb County, 1½ mile to Catholic church, 40 rods to school, good 8 room house with cellar, barn 36 x 50, large granary, tool shed, corn crib, hog house, chicken house, soil clay loam and muck, drainage good, plenty of fruit of all kinds.....PRICE $65 per acre.

No. 33. 6 miles from county seat, 2 good new barns each 40 x 60, hog house and corn crib 24 x 36, 2 fine apple orchards and other small fruits, a fine grain and stock farm.....PRICE $90 per acre.

No. 34. 4 miles from St. Joe, good double house, large barn, granary, corneribs, wagon shed, chicken house, a fine soil, bargain for someone as the owner is a non resident, cheap.

130 Acres

No. 35. 4 miles from Hamilton in DeKalb county, a good 8 room house, small barn and other out buildings, good orchard, soil a sandy loam. Terms $1500 down and $150 per year and interest at 5 per cent. The purchaser paying as much more as he desires any interest pay day $65 per acre.

141 Acres

No. 36. 3 miles from Spencerville, elegant 8 room house, good new barn, other out buildings, fine orchard, soil sand loam.....PRICE $80 per acre

160 Acres

No. 37. 6 miles from Auburn on a fine gravel road, a new 8 room house, a large new barn and other out buildings, an ideal grain and stock farm, fine soil, drainage good PRICE $85.

No. 38. 160 acres 2½ miles from town, a good 8 room house with cellar, a fine large bank barn 40 x 60 and other out buildings, $2000 worth of timber, this land is well tiled and is one of the best grain farms in the county, a great bargain.....PRICE $75 per acre.

No. 39. 160 acres 3½ miles from St. Joe, a new modern 9 room house, large new barn, a stream of spring water running through farm making it one of the best stock farms in the county, fine soil.....PRICE $75 per acre.

200 Acres

No. 40. 200 acres at Sta. on valley line near Lake Gage, good land all well fenced, large good house, 2 large good barns, sheep stable, tool house, poultry house, orchard, a beautiful home.....PRICE $80 per acre.

210 Acres

No. 41. Near Lake Gage 1 mile from Sta., fine land and well fenced, a large good house, 3 barns and out buildings of all kinds, this is a great bargain.....PRICE $75 per acre.

240 Acres

No. 42. In Lagrange County. This is a sand loam farm. 2 good houses, a large bank barn and other out buildings. Plenty of fruit, good drainage. Easy terms. $65 per acre.

252 acres

No. 43. A fine dairy farm of 252 acres. Soil, black sand and clay loam. One of the best dwellings in the county. Barn 45 ft. x 108 ft. with basement stalls for 48 cows and 20 horses besides room for calves and colts. Silo and Silo cutter. A stationary 4 horse engine 6 horse boiler. A steam cream separator and churn. This farm is located 9 miles from Ft. Wayne. Good roads. A rare bargain.

320 Acres

No. 44. 2 miles from St. Joe, Ind. This is a level tract of mostly black ground, ¼ mile wide—1 mile long. Has two good house, two barns, lots of tile outlet good, two good orchards. A first class stock and grain farm. Will take city property as part pay.....PRICE $70 per acre.

E. E. BERRY

Both Phones, 98. AGENT St. Joe, Indiana.

JUNE

0429

L 904

FASHION HINTS

The back view of this little dress is so attractive that it deserves a word all by itself.

The jackety tab at the waist, and the cute little knot of the girdle that crushes up to it, are very distinctive.

In front, the overskirt finishes in a deep point.

Caught.

The lawyer for the defense found it necessary to weaken the testimony of the principal witness for the prosecution.

"Mr. Skybo," he said proceeding to cross-examine him, "did you ever live on the seacoast?"

"Yes, sir," responded the witness; "I have lived half my life in a seacoast town."

"You are familiar, then, with salt water fish?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, just as a matter of information, will you please tell me how a flounder swims—whether horizontally or vertically?"

"Why—er——"

"That is all, Mr. Skybo; you may stand aside."—Chicago Tribune.

Pettit's Eye Salve for 25c.

Relieves tired eyes, quickly stops eye aches, congested, inflamed and common sore eyes. All druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Cruel Vengeance.

Napoleon Lajoie, at an Easter banquet of Cleveland baseball men, said of a retired umpire:

"I am glad he is gone. He was too revengeful to do good work. You know, of course, how he got back at his wife when she eloped with that handsome shortstop from the West?"

"No. How was it, Napoleon?"

"Why, he sent the shortstop a letter saying:

"'Dear Sir: Please find under separate cover one full double set of false teeth, which kindly hand to my late wife, requesting her to return my father's, she having taken same by mistake in the hurry of departure.'"

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

Inside Baseball.

The catcher flashed an almost imperceptible signal at the first baseman.

The first baseman glanced at the sun.

The pitcher, who had paid no attention to either, then noticed that the third baseman had changed his quid of tobacco to the other cheek.

Whereupon he sent a straight, fast ball right over the plate, and the batter made a two base hit.

It doesn't always work.

Don't take any chances. Russ bleaching blue does the best work. Leading grocers 10c. Avoid cheap imitations.

A Disappointing Discovery.

Any one who imagines that life is lacking in amenities among the newsboys in the big city should listen occasionally to their talk. When these two—each with his package of newspapers under his arm—met, one appeared somewhat glum and disgruntled; whereupon the other benevolently essayed to cheer him up.

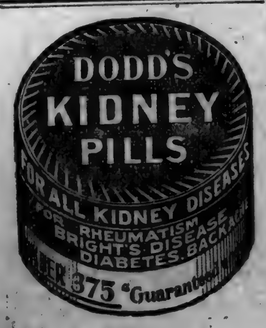
"Say, Bill, you 'member dat dime I t'ought I lost yesterday—de one I was goin' to treat youse wid?"

"Sure," assented Bill, sullenly; then with growing reproachfulness of tone, "I treated youse twicet already, Jim!"

"Well," went on Jim, animatedly, "wot d'youse t'ink I found jus' now? I wuz feelin' round in dis pocket, an' I found, right here in dis pocket, I—" A dramatically timed pause.

"Youse found de dime?" exclaimed Bill, brightening up.

"Say, Bill, youse always in a hurry. I wuz tryin' to tell youse da I found de hole dat dime got t'rough."



INDEPENDENCE BELLES.

THE OLD-TIME FOURTH.

Independence Day Not Now Celebrated as in the Years Agone.

Independence Day is not celebrated as it used to be. No longer do we see the unique street processions with their "horribles," the city firemen, and, in the evening, the Kalathumpians—those grotesquely attired individuals who attracted more attention and caused more undiluted joy to well up in the youthful heart than all the fireworks' demonstrations of to-day. The time has gone by when from the city hall steps or other public meeting place the orators of the day electrify the people of the city and surrounding country with their spread eagle speeches that in the good old-fashioned days were a feature of all Fourth of July celebrations, whether given in the largest city in the land or the smallest town. And with the passing of the quaint street parades and the old-time oratory has gone perhaps forever the holiday occupation of the small boys who used to sell ginger beer and lemonade with more color in it than lemon, and crackers and cheese that were a bit aged. But these old-time celebrations of Independence Day had their charms and their simple, inexpensive peculiarities that the present day observances with their noticeable lack of enthusiasm cannot replace. To the old resident who lived and participated in the events and customs of fifty years ago or more, there is a disagreeable hollowness, a noticeable lack of concerted action in the public demonstrations that are now made each anniversary of the nation's natal day.

"People seem to be more interested in the celebration of some other events than in the anniversary of the day, July 4, 1776, when the thirteen original colonies declared themselves free and independent of Great Britain, and formed the United States of America. When the day was celebrated fifty years or more ago in Detroit," says a contributor to the Free Press, "everybody took part in the doings. Every man, woman and child in the city was enthusiastic and our enthusiasm was genuine. In every cannon that was fired, and in every firecracker that was exploded, the people expressed the patriotic sentiments that dwelt in their hearts. We used to have Fourth of July dinners in those days, and they were good ones, too. Then there were little parades in the streets of whatever military organizations we had and the fire laddies also formed in the procession. We didn't have the facilities in those days for fighting fire that we do now. In fact there was more simplicity in everything we did than now. We cared less for fashions and more for enjoying to the fullest the hours as they came and went. Then, too, some orator used to make his spread eagle speech, usually upon the city hall steps. In the evening we had fireworks, such as they were, and we liked even those crude displays better than we do the new-fangled sky-skippers and whirl-arounds that they have to-day. Of course, a few of the more patriotic ones had their fingers blown off now and then while discharging cannons that were too heavily loaded, but that was only considered an evidence of the generally patriotic feeling that ran rife in those times. Although in the early days the Frenchmen who inhabited Detroit figured principally in the Independence Day celebrations, their commendable example has not been followed by the representatives of other nations who have flocked here since. But, maybe the rapid moving people of to-day have become tired of the simple, but wholesome observances we had fifty years ago."

A Burnt Offering.

Farmer—Here, you little rascal, don't shoot those firecrackers so near my barn. You might set it on fire.

Johnny—Well, ain't you enough of a patriot to sacrifice a dinky old barn fer the glory of yer country?

The Red Men and the Rocket.

An Emporia (Kan.) man recalls an interesting incident of the Fourth of July celebration held in Emporia in 1859. The Kaw Indians, whose reservation reached almost as far south as Americus, heard of the celebration and started to Emporia in order to reach there in time for the big feast at night.

A few fireworks had been secured for the celebration, and when the Indians reached the corner where the First Presbyterian church now stands the people downtown fired a big rocket up north. The Indians saw it coming and gazed in open mouthed wonder till it broke high above their heads. Then the warriors and bucks gave a big yelp, and, turning, fled back toward the reservation, leaving the frightened squaws and papooses to follow as best they could. People at Americus said that when the Indians passed there they were still running.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Usefulness of Skyrockets.

The white stars in the cheap, one ball "candles" are merely balls of cotton soaked with benzine.

Scarcely less indispensable to the Fourth of July celebration is the skyrocket. But hundreds of years before a Fourth of July celebration was thought of the skyrocket was used as a warlike projectile. We are indebted to the Chinese for this also, though all the rockets that are now used in this country are made here.

The rocket was used for purposes of war in China as long ago as the early part of the eighth century. It was soon adopted by the Europeans, who, however, up to the first part of the present century, used it mainly for signaling and as a means of setting fire to besieged cities. Many improvements have been introduced, and rockets have been made which will carry a five pound shot 6,000 yards.

The motive power of the rocket is the pressure against the air of gases generated by the burning of the composition which it contains. The gases escape through holes or vents in the base of the cylinder containing the composition and give thus a forward or upward motion of the rocket, as the case may be. The long stick or tail is added to keep the projectile steady in its course.

Rockets have long been used by the life-saving service as signals, and all ships carry a dozen or more on every voyage, which they send us as signals of distress in case disaster overtakes them. But they are now likely to play a still more important part in the work of saving lives of shipwrecked mariners since a rocket has been invented which bids fair to take the place of the mortar and shot at present used to carry lines from the shore to distressed vessels.

An Object Lesson.

"People are careless," said the man with the big firecracker in his hand. "If they would exercise common sense we would hear less of accidents on the Fourth."

He touched the lighted end of his cigar to the fuse and resumed:

"There is no danger in the use of fireworks if those who handle them think of the risk they are running. I have shot off firecrackers since I was old enough to strike a match and never even got a finger burned."

A smile of recollection came upon his face and he dropped his hand idly to his side while he said:

"I remember once when my Uncle Thomas came to our house on the Fourth. I was a small boy at the time, but I recall distinctly that we had an old toy cannon, and Uncle Thomas insisted upon telling us boys how to fire it. Well, sir, he"—

Whack! Bang! Wow!

Without apologizing for his haste the man, who had held the firecracker, ran to a drug store, leaving his friend musing upon the necessity of being careful.

Vital Facts of Independence.

The Fourth of July is rated a great day in the nation's history, not because the Declaration of Independence was first read to the Continental congress on that day, but because it was adopted on that day. It is true that a resolution declaring the colonies to be free and independent states was adopted July 2, but the declaration, written by Jefferson and afterward amended by the congress, was not adopted until July 4. It was signed the same day by John Hancock, president of the congress, and Charles Thomson, the secretary. August 2 it was signed by all the members of congress present—50 members. Six names were afterward attached. Colonel McKean did not sign it until 1781. Thus the mere fact of signing the declaration is of small importance. The adoption was the vital fact.

If there had been cannon crackers when George Washington was a little boy, this country might never have had a father.

One reason why this country has a population of nearly 80,000,000 is that so many glorious Fourths have been rainy.

THE RULING PASSION STRONG IN—CONVALESCENCE.

FLASHES OF FUN

Mistress—So you want to leave, Mary? With what motive are you leaving? Cook—It ain't a motive, mum; it's a policeman. — Boston Courier.

"It seems to me that I have seen you before." "You have, my lord. I used to give your daughter singing lessons." "Twenty years!"—Cassell's Magazine.

Little Boy—I want a dose of castor-oil. Druggist—Do you want the kind you can't taste? Little Boy (anxious to get even)—No, sir; it's for mother. —San Jose Citizen.

Usher—Ladies, the audience wishes you to keep still during this performance. Ladies—Heavens! Is it possible that the audience hasn't heard this old opera before?—Cleveland Leader.

Marie (embroidering)—I need a new stiletto. Elsie—What is a stiletto? May Bingham—Oh, don't you know? It's a book that tells you all about the grand operas!—Sharps and Flats.

"Well, how's things?" "Fine," replied the author. "The critics pronounced my last novel so worthless that I have six publishers bidding for my next book." — Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Can you tell me how to live 100 years?" The philosopher stroked his beard thoughtfully. "I will try," he said, "if you can give any good reason for wanting to live 100 years."—Stray Stories.

Stranger (mysteriously)—I'd like to get into a gambling game of some sort. Where can I go? Tired Looking Man (whispering)—Over to the office of that justice of the peace. He'll marry you.—St. Louis Star.

Higgins—How were the areoplane races yesterday? Wiggins—Good, only for the fact that the track was too heavy for making records. Higgins—What do you mean? Wiggins—They were pulled off over Pittsburg, you know.—Puck.

"Ah, Mr. Jimsoll," exclaimed the kittenish lady wth the plenitude of powder on her face, "you must remember I am a daughter of Eve." "Well, honestly," replied the blundering man, "you don't look half that old."—Chicago Post.

Mr. Slimpurse (after a decided refusal)—I know what the matter is. It's because I am poor. You would marry me if I were rich. Miss Gaille (thoughtfully)—Perhaps so, but you would have to be very, very rich.—New Orleans Picayune.

Suburbanite—I went out to look at that piece of property you advertised as being a stone's throw from the depot. Real Estate Agent—Well? Suburbanite—All I've got to say is that I'd like to meet the man who threw the stone.—St. Louis Star.

Rural Theater Manager—That fellow Shakespeare must be makin' all kinds of money. Traveling Manager—Why so? Rural Theater Manager—Because every repertory troupe that plays this town puts on one or two pieces by him.—Milwaukee News.

"By the way," continued the nearsport, "who is the lightweight champion of America?" "It is still a matter of doubt," answered the wise guy. "Some claim the title for the coal dealer, while others say the iceman is entitled to it."—Chicago Daily News.

"Pardon me, madam, but the way that man across the aisle is staring at you must be very offensive. Do you wish me to interfere?" "Oh, no, thank you. That's my husband." "Your husband!" "Yes. He's very near-sighted and thinks I'm somebody else."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Do you enjoy hunting?" "No." "Perhaps you have never had favorable opportunities for enjoying the sport. What have you hunted mostly?" "Before I was married I generally hunted for a boarding place. Since then most of my hunting has been for flats."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Life ain't nothin' but disappointment," groaned the Chronic Grouch. "Cheer up!" urged the Cheerful Mutt. "Didn't you git $50 fer puttin' yer picture in the paper as havin' ben cured o' all yer ills by Bunk's Pills?" "Yes, I did. An' now all my relatifs are askin' me why I don't go to work, now th't I'm cured!" — Cleveland Leader.

Good Man—Ah, my poor fellow, I feel sorry for you. Why don't you work? When I was young, for ten years I was never in bed after 5. An hour's work before breakfast, then five hours' work, then dinner, then four hours' more work, then supper, then bed, then up again at 5 next morning——. Loafer—I say, boss, where did ye serve your time—Sing Sing or Joliet?—Columbian Magazine.

Too Lavish.

Mrs. Dobbs was trying to find out the likes and dislikes of her new boarder, and all she learned increased her satisfaction.

"Do you want pie for breakfast?" she asked.

"No, I thank you," said the new boarder, with a smile. "Pie for breakfast seems a little too much."

"That's just the way I look at it," said Mrs. Dobbs, heartily. "I say pie for dinner is a necessity, and pie for supper gives a kind o' finishing touch to the day, but pie for breakfast is what I call putting on airs."—Youth's Companion.

A girl always cries when she loses her job.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

Shake Into Your Shoes

Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder for the feet. It cures painful, swollen, smarting, nervous feet, and instantly takes the sting out of corns and bunions. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Allen's Foot-Ease makes tight-fitting or new shoes feel easy. It is a certain cure for ingrowing nails, sweating, callous and tired, aching feet. We have over 30,000 testimonials. TRY IT TO-DAY. Sold everywhere, 25c. Do not accept any substitute. Sent by mail for 25c. in stamps.

"In a pinch, use Allen's Foot-Ease"

FREE TRIAL PACKAGE sent by mail.

MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS, the best medicine for Feverish, sickly Children. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

Trial Package FREE. Address, ALLEN S. OLMSTED, Le Roy, N. Y.

Snowsheds of Concrete.

"Railways in the West are preparing to build immense snowsheds of concrete this summer, wherever there is any possibility of a repetition of the recent disastrous snowslides on lines in the West, when trains were swept from their tracks, killing scores of passengers," said Henry Gruber, an engineer of the Northern Pacific Railway, according to the Washington Post.

"The Northern Pacific has many dangerous passes in the Cascade and Rocky mountains, where snowslides are a constant menace in winter to the passenger traffic. There are many similar danger spots along the line of the Canadian Pacific. At most of these places the railways have long wooden snowsheds, but these have not proved effective in preventing accidents. In many cases avalanches and immense snowslides have swept these structures completely away, though they were built of the most massive timbers that could be obtained.

"The roads have learned that wooden structures won't do, so this summer all these snowsheds are to be replaced with great concrete structures, which will be built so strong and enduring that even a cyclone would not be able to budge them. People in the East who have never seen one of the snowstorms of the Rocky mountains have no idea of the immense mass of snow that covers everything, and they cannot conceive of the violence of an avalanche."

Simple Truth.

You can only do clean washing with clean soap. You know that cocoanut oil, borax and naphtha are natural cleansers and sterilizers and that they can't harm fabrics. Easy Task soap is the only one that combines these scientifically, and for that reason it cuts washday work in two and does the work better than it ever has been done. Ten cents to test it; money back quickly if it isn't what is claimed for it.

ORIGIN OF METEORIC DUST.

Bombardment of Shooting Stars—A Never Ending Shower.

Meteoric dust particles are infinitely finer than grains of sand. They have an interesting origin. Meteors or shooting stars have been bombarding the world from the beginning at a rate estimated at many thousands an hour, of which, however, an average of only five or six are visible to the naked eye in that time.

Owing to our protecting envelope of air, few of these missiles reach us. In weight meteors vary from a few ounces to many pounds. Occasionally one is of sufficient dimensions to survive the passage of 80 to 100 miles through an atmosphere increasing in density as the earth is approached.

The speed at which they enter the atmosphere, calculated at not less than thirty-five miles a second, generates such intense heat by friction that the iron, of which the meteor principally consists is immediately reduced to an incandescent vapor, which is the luminous train so frequently seen in the heavens on a clear night. The vapor rapidly cools and condenses in the form of these minute particles, which assume the spherical form as does shot during its fall from the top of the tower.

Finally the little spheres are scattered by the winds and currents in the upper air and gradually descend in their millions as an invisible, never ending shower. The perfect condition in which these meteors are found is due to the presence of certain non-corrosive elements, found by analysis to be present in the metal of meteors which have come to earth.—Chicago Tribune.

Post Toasties

with strawberries and cream.

A delightful combination that strongly appeals to the appetite.

The crisp, fluffy bits have a distinctive flavour and are ready to serve from the package without cooking.

Convenient,
Appetizing,
Healthful food.

"The Memory Lingers"

Popular pkg. 10c.
Family size 15c.

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd.
Battle Creek, Mich.

JUNE

L 904

0430

A PACKAGE MAILED FREE ON REQUEST OF

MUNYON'S PAW-PAW PILLS

The best Stomach and Liver Pills known and a positive and speedy cure for Constipation, Indigestion, Jaundice, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Headache, and all ailments arising from a disordered stomach or sluggish liver. They contain in concentrated form all the virtues and values of Munyon's Paw-Paw Tonic and are made from the juice of the Paw-Paw fruit. I unhesitatingly recommend these pills as being the best laxative and cathartic ever compounded. Send us a postal or letter requesting a free package of Munyon's Celebrated Paw-Paw Laxative Pills, and we will mail same free of charge. MUNYON'S HOMOEOPATHIC HOME REMEDY CO., 53d and Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

Libby's Food Products

Libby's Vienna Sausage

is distinctly different from any other sausage you ever tasted. Just try one can and it is sure to become a frequent necessity.

Libby's Vienna Sausage just suits for breakfast, is fine for luncheon and satisfies at dinner or supper. Like all of Libby's Food Products, it is carefully cooked and prepared, ready to serve, in Libby's Great White Kitchen — the cleanest, most scientific kitchen in the world.

Other popular, ready-to-serve Libby Pure Foods are:

Cooked Corned Beef
Peerless Dried Beef Veal Loaf
Evaporated Milk
Baked Beans Chow Chow
Mixed Pickles

Insist on Libby's at your grocer's.

Libby, McNeill & Libby
Chicago

WESTERN CANADA

What L. J. Hill, the Great Railroad Magnate, Says About its Wheat-Producing Powers

"The greatest need of this country [United States] is another generation or two will be the providing of homes for its people and producing sufficient for them. The days of our prominence as a wheat exporting country are gone. Canada is to be the great wheat country."

This great railroad magnate is taking advantage of the situation by extensive railway building to the wheat fields of Western Canada.

Upwards of 125 Million Bushels of Wheat were harvested in 1909. Average of the three provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba will be upwards of 23 bushels per acre.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre), are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured; mixed farming a success. Write us to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application), and other information, to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 3d Floor Traction Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 29, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you).

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

Fort Wayne Lith

The Army of Constipation

Is Growing Smaller Every Day.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are unequaled for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

DAISY FLY KILLER

placed anywhere, attracts, and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal. Cannot spill or tip over, will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Of all dealers or sent prepaid for 25 cents. HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DeKalb ave., Brooklyn, New York

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.

Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

The Delirious Kind.

H. K. Adair, the western detective, was being complimented in Grand Rapids about an absconding banker he had run to earth.

"Oh, the man gave himself away," said Mr. Adair. "He shied too much. Everything seemed, in his morbid mind, to point suspicion at him. He was like the old widdy woman who went to the undertaker's to order a coffin for her deceased husband.

"'He was very, very good to me,' she said, 'and I'll have a coffin of the best yellow pine.'

"'Yes, madam. That'll be $14,' said the undertaker. 'And what kind of trimmings will you have on the coffin?'

"'Trimmins!' cried the widdy woman. 'And right well ye know, ye spalpeen, that I'll have no trimmins at all when it was the trimmins that the poor lad died of, bad luck, to 'em!'"

SAVED HER LIFE.

Newton, Iowa, Woman Restored to Health.

Mrs. Ida Finch, 217 E. Main St., Newton, Ia., says: "I was suddenly taken with pain in my back, so severe the doctor had to inject morphine. My kidneys were in a terrible state, the secretions containing heavy sediment scalding and passing irregularly. My feet and ankles swelled and puffy spots appeared beneath my eyes. I had 25 smothering spells in one day and thought I would die. I doctored with the best local physicians, but they were unable to help me. Then I started taking Doan's Kidney Pills and soon began to improve. They saved my life."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Lively Times Ahead.

Game Beater (to his new associate)—The fat man always aims too high and the thin man too low. Now, when the fat one shoots you'll have to duck and when the thin one pulls the trigger jump.—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

PERRY DAVIS' PAINKILLER is the best, safest and surest remedy for cramps, colic and diarrhœa. As a liniment for wounds and sprains it is unequalled. 25c, 50c and $1.00.

JAPAN IMPORTS CATS.

Rat Nuisance Required Their Aid and Shiploads Were Bought.

Japan has always been almost a catless country. It may have been to Japan that Dick Whittington's famous cat was sent—the cat whose prowess finally made Dick lord mayor of London. Rats have been a great pest throughout Japan; the traveler as he lies on the floor of a Japanese country inn to sleep has to get used to the rats racing over him. This was well enough until science recently proved that the plague is carried by rats, but that discovery has made the Japanese very anxious to get rid of these vermin.

Bounties have been paid for rats' heads and boys have made quite a little money hunting them, the Pathfinder says. Several whole shiploads of cats have been brought over from San Francisco and let loose. So important was the matter considered that the Yokohama officials decided to take a census of the cats in the city each year, so as to see which were gaining, the cats or the rats. Moreover, a bounty of 50 sen (25 cents) was offered for every kitten which should be raised to an age when it could enlist in the anti-rat army.

By this system the number of cats in the city, it seems by a recent official report, is being rapidly increased. The last census makes the cat population of Yokohama about 13,000; about $9,999 was paid out during the last year in cat bounties.

A DETERMINED WOMAN

Finally Found a Food That Cured Her.

"When I first read of the remarkable effects of Grape-Nuts food, I determined to secure some," says a woman of Salisbury, Mo. "At that time there was none kept in this town, but my husband ordered some from a Chicago traveler.

"I had been greatly afflicted with sudden attacks of cramps, nausea, and vomiting. Tried all sorts of remedies and physicians, but obtained only temporary relief. As soon as I began to use the new food the cramps disappeared and have never returned.

"My old attacks of sick stomach were a little slower to yield, but by continuing the food, that trouble has disappeared entirely. I am to-day perfectly well, can eat anything and everything I wish, without paying the penalty that I used to. We would not keep house without Grape-Nuts.

"My husband was so delighted with the benefits I received that he has been recommending Grape-Nuts to his customers and has built up a very large trade on the food. He sells them by the case to many of the leading physicians of the county, who recommend Grape-Nuts very generally. There is some satisfaction in using a really scientifically prepared food."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

THE POPULAR PULPIT

DIVINE FORGIVENESS.

Rev. Charles A. Biley.

"I have blotted out, as a thick cloud, thy transgressions, and as a cloud, thy sins."—Isa. 44:22.

Our best approach to this subject is by way of inquiry into the results of sin. There are two penalties attached to sin, the outward and the inward. One looks to the external consequences; the other points to the inward feelings and affections. One refers to the visible punishment, the pain and suffering that is felt; the other has to do with the guilty conscience, the closed heart of God and the separation from Him. External penalty embraces all the evil consequences that are left behind and make themselves felt in the life; internal or subjective penalty is the alienation of God's affection, a disturbance of the personal relation between God and man. God is grieved and righteously angry with sin and He withdraws His approval. Now, forgiveness is the restoration of this broken personal relation.

We are apt to fall into mistaken notions regarding the consequences of sin, and to grieve more over the punishment than over the loss of God's approval. Yet the worst penalty of sin is to be separated from God by our own sinful desires and actions. To be out of harmony with God is really the death of deaths. To be an agent in the reversion of the moral order of the universe is to be against God and to be separated from Him. This is a terrible status as between Creator and created. Yet it surely follows sin. "Your sins have separated between you and your God."

Children have keener eyes and truer hearts than we have. What is it that makes the child's face fall and tears come to the eyes? Is it the fear of punishment or the look of trouble in the father's face? The child sees the real penalty, dreads the father's closed heart. The slave would fear the rod alone; the child dreads the unhappy relation with its father, counts a moment's chastisement small beside an indefinite period of offended, withdrawn love. The outward consequences of sin may be terrible in which no trace of the divine approval can be found. Recall also the danger, both for this life and the life to come, of alienation from God. The internal penalty is the worst.

Now, which of these penalties does forgiveness do away with? Not the external, for the sufferings in most cases remain. David was forgiven, but that did not exempt him from punishment. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." He will reap it in his memory, in his conscience, in his weakness of will, often in his worldly position, in his reputation, sometimes in his health and in many other ways. To say that God cannot remove these consequences would be an arbitrary statement. Without a doubt, God sometimes removes the penal consequences of sin. But while such remission may accompany forgiveness, it is, not at all, an essential element therein. Forgiveness is the undisturbed communication of the love of God to sinful men; it restores the offender to his former position of acceptance and favor.

Legal pardon contains but a poor analogy to this inward experience. The civil magistrate may grant a pardon, but not forgiveness. He is not required to exercise a personal relation with an offender. The Bible in no instance uses legal analogy in speaking of the Divine forgiveness. It cannot be the mere remission of the penal results of sin. Deeper than that we must look. What, again, is the real penalty? As we have reasoned, it is the closing of the heart. Then the real forgiveness is taking the wanderer back again to the heart.

In other words, it is a father's forgiveness. "Your heavenly Father will forgive you your trespasses." In all the passages of scripture that treat of forgiveness it is either spoken of as the Father's forgiveness, or, if these words are not used, then the fact for which fatherhood stands, namely, the love of God, is emphasized. Now a father closes his heart against and sternly holds an offending child aloof, waiting for an expression of sorrow. Lost without the father's love and earnestly desiring to regain it, the child expresses sorrow. Forgiveness is complete when the father says, "Come, you are my child again." But if one trace of disapproval remains or one fragment of the fault stands like the timbers of a dam to block the stream, the child is not forgiven. He is forgiven when the last thin film of mist between him and his father has faded away. And the heavenly Father seals His pardon to use when He declares, "I have blotted out like a thick cloud thy sins." In the parable of the prodigal son we read: "And he fell on his neck and kissed him." Forgiveness is the open heart of God receiving the returning prodigal.

SERMONETTES.

A jellyfish has no collisions.

No man is brave until he has faced ridicule.

The kingdom waits for everyday kindness and justice.

Many preachers would reform if sentenced to read their own sermons.

There are too many who would rather go over the falls than not seem to be in the swim.

The first thing some folks will want to do in heaven will be to elect a new set of officers.

Many a conscience that works well at the second person notch gets out of gear at the first person singular.

It seems to make some folks wonderfully comfortable to tell the Lord just what they think of one another.

The minister who speaks from a monk's experience would preach a good deal better from a course as a merchant.

No man will have much trouble with his faith if he reserves its problems for the time left over after living its precepts.

Some theology seems to hold that God gave man a reason and then a revelation so that one might keep up a fight with the other.

DON'TS FOR CHURCHMEN.

Don't miss doing great good by refusing to do little kindnesses.

Don't fail to note that a loose tongue often indicates a tight fist.

Don't forget that character is seen in motives, but it never stays there.

Don't forget that the self-satisfied soul may come far short of satisfying God.

Don't overlook the fact that no man is old enough to be another man's conscience.

Don't expect to really love men unless you are making it possible to live with them.

Don't become a twisted sign on the Zion road by making yourself a see-me-suffer saint.

Don't forget that you are not really trusting Providence when you let your muscles get flabby.

Don't fail to learn that without dreams and visions this world knows nothing real or worth while.

Don't overlook the fact that no one can long be content to measure his possessions by the poverty of other people.

Don't make the mistake of thinking that the Almighty has destined you to be happy at the price of another's misery.

Engine Emulates Crab.

Naturally you look for go-headedness in everything new these progressive days, but here is a great locomotive works turning out engines that run backward. The driver of this latest space devourer, however, looks forward, with a clearer view of the track than any "eagle eye" on the usual type of engine.

The new engines, oil burners, have been built for the Southern Pacific and run cab first, the smokestack bringing up the rear, says the Pittsburg Press. Back of the smoke box is the tender. The engines are equipped with two sets of eight-wheel trucks, with the usual small wheels in front and behind the drivers.

In the backward-running engine the cab is entered through side doors by iron ladders and from the height of his seat the engineer has an unobstructed view of the track. The type is the result of experience gained in operating through tunnels and snow sheds. With the old type the smoke and oil fumes were forced down upon the crew, shutting off the view and increasing the danger of collision. This is impossible in the backward-running engine.

The Silks of Samarkand.

The silks and velvets of Samarkand, long famous for the rainbow blending of their colors, have a season, exactly like fruits or garden truck, and can only be purchased at that particular time of the year. When the worms are ready for spinning they are all brought to the silk bazaar and sold. The silk is then spun and dyed, and all that is not used in the maker's family is exported in the form of cloth. Thus, unless you happen to be in Samarkand during the season, it is all but impossible to find any of the native silk for sale except in the form of ready made khalats, which are a sort of glorified dressing gown.—E. A. Powell in Everybody's.

HYMNS AND THEIR AUTHORS

FAITH AND DUTY.

By Norman MacLeod.

[One who has often heard great congregations of men sing this song wonders why it is found in so few of the great hymnals. Written by an active popular preacher, it may perhaps lack that finished polish and literary grace that belongs to some, but it makes up for any such lack with a force and vigor of its own and a message that will sing itself helpfully over and over to those who catch its refrain. It is a good hymn to add to that altogether too small collection of suitable hymns for men. Norman MacLeod (1812-1872) was a Scotch divine, the author of "A Highland Parish" and other stories.]

Courage, brother! do not stumble,
Though thy path be dark as night;
There's a star to guide the humble,
Trust in God, and do the right.
Though the road be long and dreary,
And the end be out of sight,
Tread it bravely, strong or weary,
Trust in God, and do the right.

Perish policy and cunning,
Perish all that fears the light,
Whether losing, whether winning,
Trust in God, and do the right.
Shun all forms of guilty passion,
Fiends can look like angels bright;
Heed no custom, school, or fashion,
Trust in God, and do the right.

Some will hate thee, some will love thee,
Some will flatter, some will slight;
Cease from man, and look above thee,
Trust in God, and do the right.
Simple rule and safest guiding,
Inward peace and shining light,
Star upon our path abiding,
Trust in God, and do the right.

Skin Beauty Promoted.

In the treatment of affections of the skin and scalp which torture, disfigure, itch, burn, scale and destroy the hair, as well as for preserving, purifying and beautifying the complexion, hands and hair, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are well-nigh infallible. Millions of women throughout the world rely on these pure, sweet and gentle emollients for all purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery, and for the sanative, antiseptic cleansing of ulcerated, inflamed mucous surfaces. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, Mass., sole proprietors of the Cuticura Remedies, will mail free, on request, their latest 32-page Cuticura Book on the skin and hair.

Silly Billy from Bolton.

In a certain town in the north of England there is a man known by the name of Silly Billy. Not feeling well one day, he sent for the doctor. After examination the doctor asked him if he would take a note to the Model lodging house and he would give him sixpence. So Billy, not liking to refuse, said he would. But on the way there he came across a street sweeper that he knew. He told the sweeper where he was going, but he said if he would take the note he would give hi mthreepence. So off he went and gave the landlord the note, and he found the following written:

"Give this man a bath and keep him in till to-morrow morning, and I will call and see him."

So the following morning the doctor came and was shown into his room. Looking at the man, he exclaimed:

"This is not the man I sent!"

"No, it's not, and I'll pound Silly Billy's head off when I see him!" the sweeper replied.—London Telegraph.

Is Dirt Good for Boys?

Some folks say: "Oh, let the boy play in the dirt. It is good for him. I wouldn't give a cent for a boy that keeps his clothes clean." That may be all right, but what about the boy's mother? Getting the dirt out of clothes by the use of old-fashioned yellow soap and slow washday methods is hard labor. If the boy's mother uses Easy Task laundry soap, which does half the work for her itself, and which reduces washday labor by fifty per cent., it is different. Easy Task is five cents a cake and is the greatest nickel's worth of soap ever sold.

Slim Chance for Her.

A missionary who was making his way through a backwoods region came upon an old woman sitting outside a cabin. He entered upon a religious talk and finally asked her if she didn't know there was a day of judgment coming.

"Why, no," said the old lady; "I hadn't heerd o' that. Won't there be more than one day?"

"No, my friend; only one day," was replied.

"Well, then," she mused, "I don't reckon I can get to go for we've only got one mule, and John always has to go everywhere first."—New York Sun.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take. Do not gripe.

Short and Sharp.

Urchin—Is this the office of the Bugle? Well, sir, I have come to subscribe for your paper.

Editor (with a genial smile)—Why, sonny, you don't look quite big enough to do such a thing as that.

Urchin—Sir, if a man has to be measured for his subscription at this office I shall subscribe for the Palladium, just across the street. Good day, sir.—Chicago Tribune.

Good housekeepers use the best. That is why they use Russ bleaching blue. Leading grocers 10c.

Administering Comfort.

Prisoner—Yes, sir; I'm serving a term in the penitentiary for a crime I never committed. The real criminal is still at large. I tell you, it's pretty tough!

Philanthropic Visitor—It ought not to be. The joke isn't on you; it's on the jury that convicted you and the judge who sentenced you. The trouble with you, my friend, is that you don't catch the humor of the situation.—Chicago Tribune.

For Red, Itching Eyelids,
Falling Eyelashes and All Eyes That Need Care Try Murine Eye Salve. Aseptic Tubes—Trial Size—25c. Ask Your Druggist or Write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

Between two evils it's better for a woman to marry a man who chews tobacco rather than one who is always chewing the rag.

YOUR BACKACHE WILL YIELD

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bloomdale, Ohio.—"I suffered from terrible headaches, pains in my back and right side, and was tired all the time and nervous. I could not sleep, and every month I could hardly stand the pain. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored me to health again and made me feel like a new woman. I hope this letter will induce other women to avail themselves of this valuable medicine."—Mrs. E. M. FREDERICK, Bloomdale, Ohio.

Backache is a symptom of female weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so safely and surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Cure the cause of these distressing aches and pains and you will become well and strong.

The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has restored health to thousands of women.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES

$5, $4, $3.50, $3, $2.50 & $2

THE STANDARD FOR 30 YEARS.

Millions of men wear W. L. Douglas shoes because they are the lowest prices, quality considered, in the world. Made upon honor, of the best leathers, by the most skilled workmen, in all the latest fashions.

W. L. Douglas $5.00 and $4.00 shoes equal Custom Bench Work costing $6.00 to $8.00.

Boys' Shoes, $3, $2.50 & $2

W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom. Look for it. Take No Substitute. Fast Color Eyelets. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. If not for sale in your town write for Mail Order Catalog, showing how to order by mail. Shoes ordered direct from factory delivered free. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

Pills are wrong—so is every harsh cathartic. They callous the bowels so you must increase the dose. Candy Cascarets bring natural action. They never gripe nor injure. One tablet, taken when you need it, always remains enough.

Vest-pocket box, 10 cents—at drug-stores.
People now use a million boxes monthly

Stockers and Feeders

Choice quality; reds and roans, Whitefaces or Angus, bought on orders. Tens of thousands to select from. Satisfaction guaranteed. Correspondence invited. Come and see for yourself

NATIONAL LIVE STOCK COM. CO.
At either KANSAS CITY, MO.
ST. JOSEPH, MO. SO. OMAHA, NEB.

Boys and Girls—Sell at 10c each, 8 packages each of needles, court plaster, fly paper, receiving Free your choice of camera and outfit, gold chain and locket, or 14-k. fountain pen. Send to STAR SUPPLY COMPANY, Prattville, Wis.

AGENTS—Make $40 weekly, either sex. City or country. No experience necessary. Write quick. Electric Instruction and Supply Co., Canton, Pennsylvania.

F. W. N. U. - - - - No. 26—1910

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Adv. in this paper.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain almost experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

The many and varied symptoms of woman's peculiar ailments are fully set forth in Plain English in the People's Medical Adviser (1008 pages), a newly revised and up-to-date Edition of which, cloth-bound, will be mailed free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Address as above.

MICA AXLE GREASE

is the turning-point to economy in wear and tear of wagons. Try a box. Every dealer, everywhere

STANDARD OIL CO.
(Incorporated)

JUNE

L 904

0431

CORRESPONDENCE

ITEMS FROM DIFFERENT LOCALITIES WRITTEN FOR THE NEWS

COBURNTOWN.

Fannie Milliman spent from Wednesday till Friday in Gaarett.

Clyde Hart and family took Sunday dinner with Nicholas Funk and wife.

Saxe Hadsell and family spent Sunday afternoon in Hicksville with his mother.

Will Goldsmith and wife visited with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Deitrick, Sunday.

Mrs. Vernon Wilmot and children are at Cleveland, Ohio, visiting with relatives for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kimes and Wilmot Coburn and wife called on Wesley Harts', Sunday afternoon.

Miss Shirley Hobart of Toledo, is here visiting with her uncle, Mort Milliman and other relatives.

Albert Alton returned to his home in Eastern Michigan after spending a few pleasant weeks at this place.

Charles Coburn and wife, and Sam Keesler and family of St. Joe, visited Sunday with Fred Hart and wife.

W. H. Northrup and wife visited Sunday with Mrs. Northrup's parents, David Andress and wife of Hicksville.

John Ulm and wife invited several of their neighbors in Sunday afternoon and treated them to ice cream.

Mrs. Shaner kindly remembered Mrs. Wesley Hart, Sunday, by sending her a fine dinner for which she is truly thankful.

Mark Morr and wife of Jackson Tp, visited Sunday with Ross Abel and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Abel with their company spent Sunday evening with Will Hamilton and wife.

Don't forget the grand time the Coburntown band promises to give in the Hamilton grove on July 4. A warm lunch will be served. Come and have the time of your life for there is no prettier grove around to spend a day in than the Hamilton grove.

Ross Abel met with an accident that might have proved serious Friday evening on his way to band practice. An automobile that failed to have any lights burning ran into his buggy, wrenching it up quite bad and completely over turned the auto down the bank breaking off their seat and smashed one of their lights. Such carelessness is not to be tolerated when the law is against such conduct.

A new cement bridge is being put in east of the church, near C. J. Hadsell's home. The gentleman doing the work is Mr. Reynold of Auburn. Mr. Deitrick says he will be glad when it is finished for he is getting tired of being awakened from his peaceful slumbers by people running into the obstruction. Some people are near-sighted if they cannot see the danger signals on either side, plainly visible to anyone that are not asleep.

Mrs. Wesley Hart accompanied by Mr. Hart and Dr. Scudder Hull of Hicksville, went in an automobile to Ft. Wayne, last Thursday to the Lutheran hospital, for the purpose of Mrs. Hart being examined by the doctor at that place. The result of the examination was that she could be treated at home as well as in the hospital, but it would be a slow progress. It has been ten months since her accident and she has the sympathy of the entire community and all wish a speedy recovery. Mrs. McDonald of Hicksville, is doing her work.

Mrs. Wm. Maxwell entertained to dinner Sunday in honor of Mr. Maxwell's birthday anniversary: William Oberholtzer and wife of Butler, James Oberholtzer, wife and son of Harlan, Daniel Oberholtzer and wife, Mrs. Ridgway and daughter Eva, of St. Joe, Mr and Mrs. Freeburn and family and granddaughter, Gatha Coburn, Frank Tustison and family of St. Joe, Benjamin Soule, wife and daughter of Auburn, and Mr. and Mrs. Trostel and daughter. The occasion was the celebration of several of their birthdays, Mrs. Trostel, Mrs. Ridgway, Mr. Maxwell and one of Mr. Tustison's children. A general good time was had, a time long to be remembered. Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell are royal entertainers. Mr. Maxwell wishes to thank those that remembered him with post cards.

WABASH CORNERS.

The correspondent spent Sunday at Roy Whites'.

Mrs. Anna Rickett spent Saturday in Ft. Wayne.

Gene White is putting a cement wall under his barn this week.

Benj. Hamilton and wife of St. Joe, were Sunday guests of O. K. Shulls'.

Mrs. Mollie White and son Earl, called on Mrs. Cora Johnson one afternoon last week.

Rev. Hitchner and family of Spencerville, ate supper Wednesday evening at O. K. Shulls'.

Mrs. J. B. White and Mrs. Ella Gill of St. Joe, ate dinner with the correspondent Wednesday.

Mrs. Jennie Moffett and two daughters Pauline and Jessie of Auburn, spent Wednesday at Orange Herricks'.

Aletha and Mamie White of Hamilton, were the guests of their aunt, Mrs. Angelia Wolff and husband Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Ida Woodcox and son Homer of St. Joe and Mrs. Pearl Pervines and two daughters Waneta and Elaine called on Mrs. Angelia Wolff Wednesday afternoon.

James Rickett, wife and son Jay and daughter Geraldine, of Newville, Mrs. Hannah Ulm, Rozy Ulm and daughter Phyllis of St. Joe, Albert Sherer and wife of Rehobeth, Misses Blanche and Ada Ervin, Orange Herrick and wife and Ray Herrick and wife of this place, spent Sunday at Sherman Ricketts'.

A very pleasant surprise was given Mr. Roy Zimmerman Monday, night thirty four of his friends and neighbors gathered at his home to remind him of his twenty-ninth birthday. Those present were: Mr. Cole and wife, John Bowman, wife and two daughters, Rosa and Martha of Spencerville, Bennie and Albert Zimmerman of Hicksville, John Doll, wife and son George and daughters Esther and Josephine, Mrs. Daisy Hull and two sons Floyd and Ross and daughters Stella and Flossie, Frank Rhoads, wife and son Merwood, Deem Hull and two daughters Marie and Goldie, Gene White, wife and two sons Walter and Clarence and daughter Mary, Sherman Wolff and wife, Martha Lurch, Will Loux and Cecil Shilling. The evening was spent in visiting and music on the organ and violin, after which ice cream and cake was served. He was presented some fine post cards also a boquet of roses. In the wee hours of the morning all returned to their homes wishing Mr. Zimmerman many more happy birthdays like this one.

WISE'S CORNERS.

Burney Rhoads has moved his barn out near the road.

Ira Smith had a track put in his barn, last Saturday.

R. U. Bowser made several business calls in our vicinity, last Tuesday.

The carpenters will soon have Mr. Frank Wertman's house completed.

Charley Moore of Hicksville, did some cement work for Elmer Smith, last week.

George Welch is digging a cellar for his mother-in-law, Mrs. Julia Bice, this week.

Wayne Huges of Hicksville, put up machinery for W. L. Smith a couple days last week.

Joe Spitler and family spent a pleasant evening at James McKinleys', last Wednesday.

Mrs. Hattie Bowman and two children of Leo, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Smith, last Monday.

Lewis and Charlie Markle are hauling large cement tile, this week, for their father, Samuel Markle of Spencerville.

It is the fashion now in our neighborhood to have a new buggy or paint the old one. Who will be the next to fall in line?

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Squier with their phonograph spent a very pleasant evening, last Wednesday, the guests of George Welch and wife, some fine music was rendered.

John Hissong and family spent Sunday near Concord, the guests of Will Scotts'.

Mrs. Allie Spitler is very thankful to those who kindly remembered her on her birthday.

Cormie Kelley was taken very ill while assisting E. Chapman at F. Wertman's house, one day last week.

SPENCERVILLE.

Dr. Shook and Trustee Erick made a business trip to Auburn Tuesday.

Dr. Fred Walker, of Fort Wayne, spent a portion of last week with Dr. S. S. Kimes.

The social given by the Ladies Aid Society of the Lutheran Church was a financial success.

Mr. Treece will soon have his residence completed over his restaurant. The work being finished next week.

Miss Zona Horp, Miss Ethel Metcalf and Miss O'Brien, were entertained to supper at the home of Mrs. Erick Saturday evening.

The Mid-Summer Communion services will be held next Sunday morning at the Spencerville Lutheran church. All members are invited to come,

If you are not satisfied after using according to directions two-thirds of a bottle of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, you can have your money back. The tablets cleanse and invigorate the stomach, improve the digestion, regulate the bowels. Give them a tria land get well. Sold by them a trial and get well. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe, and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

The first annual commencement of the Spencer Township schools was held in the Lutheran church at this place Tuesday evening, June 21. In spite of the intense heat, a large crowd gathered to hear the excellent program. The class consisted of ten boys and four girls and was among the largest ever graduated here. Eight of the graduates participated in the program and rendered their orations in a very creditable manner. The Hamilton Orchestra furnished the music during the evening which was enjoyed by all who heard them. This event closes the school work for the year and too much credit can not be given to Trustee Erick for the excellent manner in which the schools have been conducted under his supervision.

W. G. Erick

TRUSTEE

of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY

TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK

at Store in

SPENCERVILLE, IND

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2.

Clifford Wade and family spent Sunday with Harvey Kimes and family.

Clyde and Glen Emerick spent three days of last week, with Greeley Wearley and family.

Dr. F. C. Walker of Chicago, is spending a few days with Harvey Kimes, sr. and family.

Harvey Kimes's new barn is now completed and is one of the finest in the country for its size.

Grace and Clara Howey of St. Johns, came last Saturday to visit a week or so with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Howey.

John Stafford and family of Scio, Mrs. Frank Walters and daughter Edna, of St. Joe, Mrs. Jennie Wilmot of near Harlan, were Tuesday guests of D. M. Kelleys'.

No Better Flour

MADE IN

DeKalb Co.,

THAN

Daily Bread Flour

Keesler Mg. Co.

ST. JOE, - - - - INDIANA

CONCORD.

Orange Draggoo was at Ft. Wayne a couple of days last week.

D. E. Poorman was at Port Huron, Mich., a couple of days last week.

Miss Grace Dancer of near Norris Chapel, visited her aunt, Mrs. Sherman Funk, last week.

Rev. Ledbetter preached to a large crowd at this place, Sunday. He ate dinner with Henry Bakers'.

John Draggoo and wife spent Saturday evening and Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Grant Keller and family.

Mrs. Delila Draggoo was at Spencerville, Monday afternoon, and called on Grandma Steward, who is quite poorly.

Mable Wyatt and Floyd Morr both of near Rehobeth, spent Saturday evening and Sunday with Lloyd and Ruth Draggoo.

Jay Hart and wife of Coburntown, and Mrs. Ella Hughes and two children were guests of Curtis Hursey and wife, Sunday.

The Gleaners of this place, had a reception for their new member Mrs. Roy Gibford at the home of James Ervin on Friday. Ice cream and cake was served. Everyone reported a nice time.

Mrs. Delila Draggoo and daughters, Mrs. Mary Bartlett, of Ft. Wayne, Mrs. Harriett Johnson and daughter Thelma, and Ruth Draggoo spent last Friday with Grant Keller and wife near Dillon Chapel.

H. Baker and family came home from their fishing, last Friday. They report a fine time. Wm. Baker, Dell Draggoo, Jasper Snyder, wife, son Floyd, and daughter Florence, spent Thursday with them. Mr. Snyders' staying until Friday.

Items of Interest

At Hamilton's Grove on the Fourth.

At 10:30 the battle of wands on the water—don't miss this greatest of modern stunts. First time ever performed in this section The Johnson and Corbet fight for a large purse in a big 16ft. ring—the real thing A baby show. All the popular races—goose pulling, horse shoe, etc. The crowning event of all—the beautiful 16ft. launch "HACO" will make regular trips from her dock every 20 minutes and for a small fee you can enjoy a mile ride and live forever. Capt. Coburn will be his own Cook, Crew, Steward and his own Steambrewer. He will treat you right and will show you a good time. It is the request of the owners of the grove that all teams be hitched to the wire and rope that is stretched for that purpose and not tie to the trees as the young timber is becoming permanently injured by the girdling caused by hitching.

Little Exciting.

Winfield Pervines and Miss Fay Miller had a runaway Wednesday morning while coming to the early train The horse became freightened and unmanageable, jumping over the wire fence near the Burley residence and upsetting the rig, injuring the occupants so they returned home. Noth serious will result although the horse was cut up considerable.

July is a tribute to Ceaser. One day, with some other insurgents, he talked by the Pillar of Pompey on things of political urgence. He was just on the point of explaining the key to some government riddle when a party of regulars jumped him and cut him in two in the middle.

There were Decius Brutus, the speaker, and Cassius, boss of the Senate, together with others insistent upon some political tenent. "The party forever!" they shouted, and what with that terrible slasher Servillius Casca great Caeser as well had been run through a hasher.

At any rate, Anthony found him cut up into fodder for fishes, and begged this request of the Romans, who granted the least of his wishes. And thus it has happened and shall be as long as the Tiber rune by the Pillar of Pompey that Caeser shall live in the name of July.

The Fourth shall return to discover
Us waiting in battle array,
And what with one thing and another
Regretting we won, anyway.
The cannon shall boom and scramble
For things on the medicine shelves
Shall warn inexperienced countries
Aspiring to freedom themselves.

The dynamite cap and the rocket shall remind us of tyranny thwarted, and the valiant forefather shall turn in his coffin to see what he started.
The eagle shall mount on his pinions and circle the North and the South, and the rapid-fire orator stand on the platform and shoot off his mouth.

This latter, however is harmless in a strict pathological way, but remains notwithstanding an evil we must in due season allay. Alas, how deficient is nature that might lay this pest on the shelf with ruling that shooting his mouth off he gave the lockjaw to himself!

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad

VERY LOW FARES TO

BOSTON, MASS.—National Educational Association, June 30-July 2.
MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, MD.—June 28 - July 12.
CHICAGO.—U. S. Army Tournament, July 7, 8, 9.

July Fourth Excursion Fares

CONSULT B. & O. AGENT For PARTICULARS.

Fairview Neighborhood

The drought has seriously injured crop prospects here.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Moudy of Churubusco, are visiting relatives in this vicinity and at St. Joe.

Trustee Fetters has let the contract for placing real black slate blackboards in the days school house; thereby enabling the use of dustless crayons.

The freak spring we have had has done some good anyhow: It has put the potato bug and the tent caterpillar about out of business. Very few of these pests being noticable.

The Auburn Creamery Company have established a dream route in Fairview neighborhood and is taking up about all the cream not taken by the Spencerville route. The Auburn people pay 25 cts. per pound for butterfat which pays better than butter at prevailing prices.

Fairview neighborhood may well claim some prominence as a poultry producing district. It is estimated that within a radius of 1½ miles of Fairview Corners, there are over 5,000 head of chickens trying to "turn something up". Mrs. W. D. and Frank Johnson, Mrs. Coyle, Sherer, Buttermore and Mrs. Dan Baker have over 2,000 head. Great is the American Biddy!

Mr. D. W. Baker and children played the surprise act upon Mrs. Baker, last Wednesday evening, upon the occasion of her 57th. birthday. Their children and grandchildren and a considerable number of their neighbors dropped in to her quite unexpectedly and found her dressed in—oh, pshaw we won't tell it! One of the pleasing features of the evening was the large number of little tads there—about a dozen and a half of them—and how they did enjoy themselves! Ice cream and cake "like mother used to make", and delicious strawberries were served. No formal program was attempted, but it was a go as you please race and the more enjoyable upon that account. Each guest departed wishing many returns to Mrs. Baker of the happy event.

Now glory be! Indiana has a new game and fish commissioner for whose services the people pay about $2,000 a year. He has started out already to instruct farmers how to winter over the Bob White. He says they should stand a few bunches of fodder up against logs and fence corners and make winter quarters for the birds, and supply them with feed. Did anybody under the canopy ever know a quail to roost twice in the same place?

The sportsmen's leagues of the various cities have on foot a movement to coerse the incoming legislature to pass a law compelling all persons over 16 years of age to take out a license to fish and hunt, and pay therefore the sum of $3.00 per annum. The present game and fish laws are an outrage and a nuisance, but these fine haired gentlemen think the Indiana farmer will stand for anything. It wouldn't be a bad idea for farmers to organize and prohibit hunting entirely upon their farms, if these gentlemen should own the incoming legislature.

NOTICE.

The band concert Saturday night drew an excellent crowd and the concert was worth coming miles to hear. The program promises to be better this week. Our merchants were all kept busy and perhaps some of them will feel like giving a little more this week when the collector calls. Don't forget Saturday night.

It's Risky

To neglect your eyes, and it's just as Dangerous to wear Incorrect glasses. Glasses that are wrong do not always feel uncomfortable and your eyesight may be permanently injured before you realize it. By the Hartzog System you don't take any chances and the expenses are reasonable. No charge for Examination.

DR. J. W. HARTZOG

The Eyesight Specialist.

WILL BE IN SPENCERVILLE, AT DR SHOOK'S OFFICE, WEDNESDAY, JULY 6.

Remember Date Call Early

HOME OFFICE
1213 Wells, Cor. Wells and High
Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Sold Out

The D. J. Baker hardware stock is sold to Mr. Burwell and Son of Churubusco, Ind., and the same is being invoiced this week. The postoffice is to be moved into the Case building.

He is Still Missing.

Alvin M. St. Clair, a wealthly farmer residing near Waterloo, has disappeared very mysteriously and his where abouts are unknown. It is feared that his mind became unbalanced and that he took his own life in some way. A large reward has been offered for information concerning him dead, or alive, and large parties have searched the vicinity of his home quite thoroughly.

..Real Estate..

Insurance

NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO

Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and Other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES- - - -SOUTH, SOUTHWEST, WEST, NORTHWEST

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST. LONG LIMITS.

Consult BALTIMORE AND OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stop-over Privileges and other details.

Alcohol to Children

Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely. Children do not need stimulating." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Then ask him about Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla as a tonic for the young. Follow his advice. He knows. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

The first great rule of health—"Daily movement of the bowels." Ask your doctor if this is not so. Then ask him about Ayer's Pills. Sold for nearly sixty years.

L

JULY

JULY

0433

L 904

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1910. NO. 27

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.
Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

Muslin Underwear
FOR LADIES and CHILDREN

This department is showing now a big variety of some good values in this class of merchandise. Taking into consideration the making you can buy these goods here with the satisfaction of making a saving in money to you on every garment. These garments come neatly and handsomely trimmed and are made in good clean factories and are made right in every way.

Pleased to Show you the selection we offer.

"Mens Ease" Shoes

This is the work shoe for men and boys that is built for just what the name implies, "Mens Ease." There's a fit to this shoe that seems to be just what is wanted for comfort. Men wear their shoes about sixteen hours a day now and why spend the other eight in regrets, when you can secure this shoe at the same price that an ill-fitting one costs. Long service in wear goes with this shoe also.

Try a Pair from this Store.

You Can't Regret It.

Read your own NEWS.

Get one of those 5 cent tablets at THE NEWS office. Our own make.

E. L. Jenkins and family of Waterloo, spent the week with St. Joe relatives.

Miss Flossie Copp spent Saturday and Sunday with friends at New Haven.

Craig Sheffer and wife went to Defiance, Saturday to visit over the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs Wm. Leighty spent Sunday with their son, Mack Leighty and family.

J. H. Leighty of Deshler, Ohio, spent Sunday and Monday under the parental roof.

Roscoe and Elmer Hart of South Bend are spending the week here the guests of their parents.

Sam White of Wayne, and Dick White, of south of Spencerville, were St. Joe visitors the Fourth.

Leon Sechler and Walter Bowen of Ft. Wayne, are engaged in the hay field with the former's father.

Several from this way attended the celebration in Hamilton's grove, Monday, and report the usual good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner Copp and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benninghoff attended the band concert at Grabill, Saturday night.

The Misses Grace and Agnes Sechler went to Ft. Wayne, Monday to spend sometime with Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Bowen.

"Say," said an editor's little son as he entered a store, "do you keep knives?" "Oh, yes," replied the storekeeper, "we've kept them for years." "Well," returned the boy starting for the door, just advertise and then you won't keep them so long.

Do Not Suffer this hot weather

We can help you

AMERICAN SILVER TRUSS.

Your money back if you want it.

A short story, if we cannot give you relief and fit you satisfactory, we won't keep your money, you get the benefit of experience and study without extra charge. You will do better with than elsewhere.

DUNKLE

LUTHERAN CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Weekly Prayer meeting Thursday evening. Sunday School, Sunday morning, followed by the regular church services. The communion services will be held at this service. Every member of the church is urged to be present at this communion service.

Rev. Hitchner, Pastor.

M. P. CHURCH ANNOUCEMENTS

Prayer meeting on Thursday evening at 7:30. Sunday School next Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. C. E. in the evening at 6:30 followed by the regular preaching services at 7:30. All are invited to attend these services.

Rev. L. Coomer, Pastor.

Local Briefs

Nobody ever got hurt that took a joy ride on a pair of plow handles.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bowman are spending a week at the Bowman cottage at Hamilton lake.

Miss Pearl Shurtz, Mrs, Adam Shilling and son Howard, spent last Friday afternoon in Ft. Wayne.

FOR SALE:—A 24-inch Wilson Heater stove, burned about 2 months, in good condition. Will sell cheap. Inquire at THE NEWS office.

Call at Kagey's and get your Post Cards. An elegant assortment.

Rolland Bearss and wife, Mrs. Alice Warner and daughter Ruschia, were the guests of Auburn relatives last Sunday.

THE NEWS force celebrated Monday, consequently we are shy our regular amount of reading matter. We need a little rest too.

Uncle Chas. Huffman is in very poor health. He is confined to his bed most of the time. The extreme warm weather seemed to be hard on him.

Little Glen Kinsey received thirty beautiful post cards on his 4th birthday, for which we wish to thank all those who so kindly remembered him. Mrs. Frank Kinsey

The Engineering Record, published in New York, in its current issue says: "It is stated that Price and McLanahan, 1624 Walnut street, Philadelphia, are preparing plans for a union station to be erected in Fort Wayne, Ind., for the Pennsylvania, Wabash and Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroads at a cost of $1,000,000."

L. D. Nelson and wife of Jackson township entertained Sunday, the following to dinner: Arthur Nelson, wife and son Kenneth of Des Moines, Iowa; Ray Nelson, wife and baby of Brunswick, Mo.; Frank Nelson, wife, Dr. Creps and wife of Huntington; Stanley Nelson and lady friend, Miss Leona Madden of Auburn and Chas. Morr and family of near Concord. The day was a pleasant one.

A dentist was visited by a native of the rural district to be treated for an ulcerated tooth. "That's a bad tooth," said the man with the forceps, 'and I should advise you to spare yourself pain by taking gas. It will be only fifty cents more." And the dentist showed his machine to the doubtful visitor, explaining its workings—how he would fall asleep for a minute or two and then awake with the tooth and pain gone. At last the patient consented and took out his wallet. "Never mind paying now," said the dentist patronizingly. "I wasn't thinking of paying," responded the country man, "but I thought if I was going to sleep I'd better count my money first."

Send in your news.

Did you celebrate?

Band Concert Saturday evening.

Big show Friday.
Opposite B. & O. depot. Come.

Mahlon Baker visited at Garrett and Auburn over the Fourth.

Miss Pauline Barney was taken down last Thurday with the measels.

Lafe Bailey and wife of Auburn, were guests of relatives here a few days last week.

Mesdames J. B. Gibford and Frank Wise of Auburn, were Friday guests of Mrs. C. B. Leighty and family.

C. A. Woodcox and family were at Garrett over Sunday visiting Mrs. Woodcox's mother, who is in very poor health.

Mr. Bert Bowman came from Chicago one day last week to spend a few days with his family, they visited over the Fourth with relatives at Hamilton.

O. H. Widney and wife, J. K. Stafford and wife and Mrs. Lafe Bailey of Auburn, were the guests of C. F. Kageys', Monday afternoon.

Mr. H. Rummell and daughter Helen, of Oklahoma City, and Mrs. Rummell of Spencerville, were visitors in the home of Wm. Lucas and wife, and P. A. Shurts', one day last week.

The best line of one-cent Post Cards in town can be seen at Kagey's.

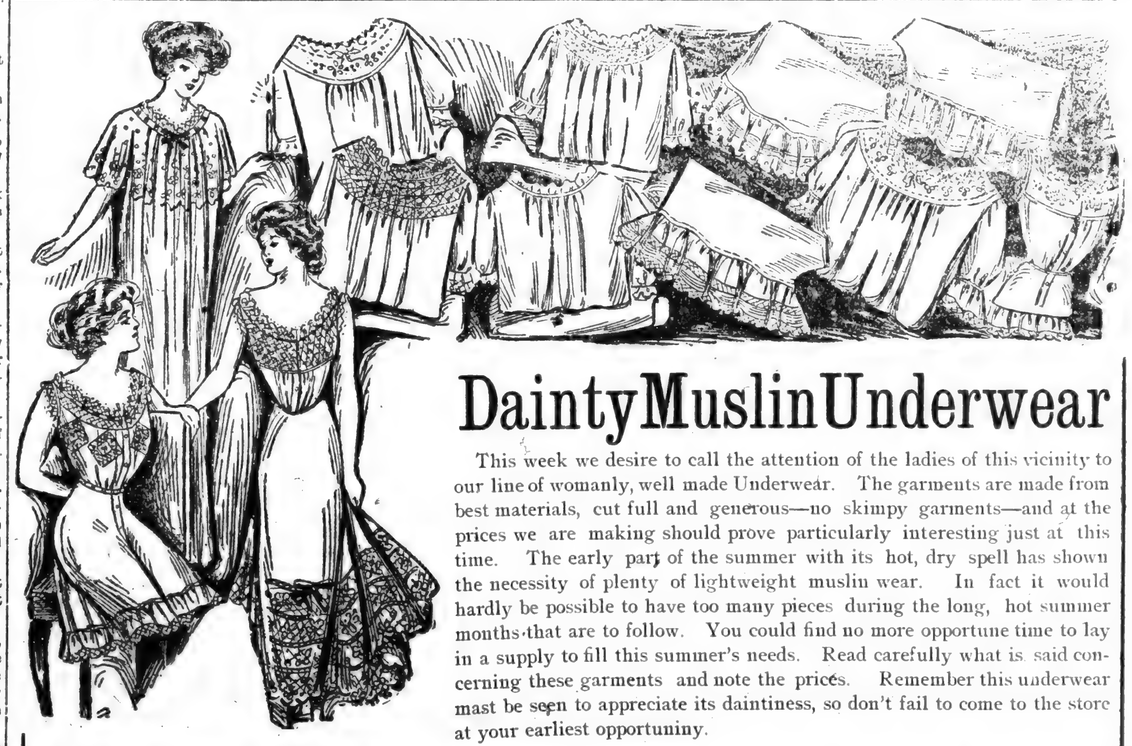
Mr. G. E. Scott of Ashtabula Co., Ohio, and Mrs. Elizabeth Gee, were the guests of Chas. Thayer and wife last Thursday. Mr. Thayer is slowly improving in health and is now able to walk some distance.

M. T. Bishop suffered quite a loss last week, by loosing his 3 year old colt. The animal was taken sick early in the week and medical aid was called immediately but the relief seemed to be very small. Four different veterinary surgeons were called and the complaint was called Hydra Thorax, or in other water on the lungs. The animal was in great misery for several days. The horse was young, full of life, and valued at $175 was not afraid of trains or automobiles and it was indeed an all-around horse.

Obituary.

Mrs. Ellen Huntsman was born in Wayne County, Ohio, April 26, 1830, and departed this life June 28, 1910, age 80 years and 2 months. She was united in marriage to David Huntsman in 1848. He departed this life in 1867. She leaves to mourn her departure 7 children, 5 grandchildren, 7 great grandchildren, besides a large circle of friends. Louis C. proceeded her to that better land in 1884. She united with the Wesley Methodist church in 1850, living a devoted Christian life until her death. Elza Kinsey of St. Joe, funeral director. The funeral services were held Wednesday from the home.

Mr. John Y. Davis was at Fort Wayne, Saturday.



DaintyMuslinUnderwear

This week we desire to call the attention of the ladies of this vicinity to our line of womanly, well made Underwear. The garments are made from best materials, cut full and generous—no skimpy garments—and at the prices we are making should prove particularly interesting just at this time. The early part of the summer with its hot, dry spell has shown the necessity of plenty of lightweight muslin wear. In fact it would hardly be possible to have too many pieces during the long, hot summer months that are to follow. You could find no more opportune time to lay in a supply to fill this summer's needs. Read carefully what is said concerning these garments and note the prices. Remember this underwear mast be seen to appreciate its daintiness, so don't fail to come to the store at your earliest opportuniny.

Ladies Skirts and Drawers.

Ladies' Skirt made of good quality muslin with 9-inch flounce, lace trimmed and set with four rows of small tucks. A good skirt for only..... 50c

Muslin Skirt with 12-inch embroidery trimmed flounce bearing 4 rows of large tucks, 8 additional rows of small tucks and dust ruffle. Price only..... $1.00

Skirt of good quality cambric with dust ruffle and embroidered flounce having 24 rows of fine tucks. An excellent value at only..... $1.39

Cambric Skirt with dust ruffle and embroidered flounce, 2 inch insertion at head of flounce. Price this week..... $1.50

Skirt made of finest quality cambric, deep embroidered flounce bearing 12 rows of fine tucks, 2 rows embroidery insertion and dust ruffle. Our very best..... $1.98

Ladies' Drawers nicely trimmed with embroidery and hemstitched bottoms, priced at only..... 25c

Drawers, better quality than above, neatly trimmed in lace and embroidery or tucked ruffle. A choice value at..... 50c

Gowns and Corset Covers.

Ladies' Gowns made of fair grade of cambric muslin, yoke trimmed with embroidery and insertion, a regulation low-necked gown at a small price..... 50c

Gowns same as above with a better grade of material and more elaborately trimmed..... 89c

Gowns, body made from fine cambric muslin, yoke of embroidery and insertion, neck and cuffs embroidery trimmed, only.. $1.00

Ladies' gowns similar to above but better grade.. $1.39

Ladies' Gowns, made of best fine cambric, embroidery and insertion yoke, embroidery trimmed around neck and cuffs. Our very best at only..... $1.50

Children's Gowns of good quality muslin with all emproidery yoke to fit all ages, priced now at. 50c

Corset Covers in good grade of material, daintily trimmed with lace and embroidery, priced.. ..... 25c

Corset Covers of better material than above, with more elaborate trimmings in lace and insertion priced at 39c and 50c

The J. C. C. Corset
A Corset for every taste for every figure
MILADY. $1 to $1.50.
COLLEGE GIRL long, price $1.00

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST.JOE, IND.

It Pays Others
It will pay you to trade at
The HOME STORE.

JULY

L 904

U434

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

REGULATING THE USE OF ARMS.

That is an interesting and a suggestive proposal which has been made at Albany—to legislate against the common use and even ownership of the ingenious device which has been invented for silencing the noise of firearms, says New York Tribune. That device is said to be so effective as to make the discharge of a rifle or a pistol nearly noiseless, without decreasing the lethal effectiveness of the weapon. It is easily conceivable that such an attachment to military firearms would be of inestimable advantage in warfare, a noiseless rifle using smokeless powder giving practically no information as to the location of its user. But it is obvious that precisely the same thing would make a gun or a pistol a far more dangerous tool for the use of assassins. It may, indeed, be said that there is no legitimate use for the silencing device, save in military doings and in actual war. If we grant that citizens now and then need to use firearms against burglars, highwaymen and others it should be obvious that the most desirable and most effective arm for such purpos his handicap and hurry. People are getting happier, if they are not getting holler, and the former is a goo- omen of the latter. They have plenty of time to work at that that is worth while, or even to play, and it is one of the wholesome indications of a healthy life that people in this country play as hard as they work. But business and pleasure have turned their backs upon the knocker, setting their faces to brighter skies. So if you are at outs with somebody settle the matter with him; do not bother me with it. That is the answer of the world today, a good one, too. Even in sports this wholesome spirit prevails; indeed it dominates there perhaps more than anywhere else. It takes the form of intolerance, it is so pronounced. It is the spirit of a manly age, a big age and fast, too big and fast to slow up for the little fellow.

Practical jokes often are in very bad taste and not at all as funny as their perpetrators seem to think. Sometimes such jokes invite legal punishment. Down in Panama a party of would-be humorists circulated the story that seismologists had predicted that the country would be visited in the night by a great shock and that Colon would be wiped out of existence by a tidal wave. Coming on the heels of the Costa Rican cataclysm, this prophecy threw the ignorant and superstitious into terror, and there was something of a panic. Of course the convulsions did not occur. But the Panama authorities took the matter in hand and the jokers are now in jail awaiting the result of proceedings that will be brought against them. And if these humorists get a round sentence the general verdict will be that it served them right.

The war against the white plague will never be effective while contagion is allowed to be freely and wantonly spread by expectoration in public places, especially on the streets, where all lungs are exposed to infection. Not until measures are taken severe enough to check, if not to abolish, the habit, objectionable both to health and to public decency, will the fight against tuberculosis be taken seriously.

If the grandsons of the late Marshall Field, the Chicago merchant prince, live to be fifty, they will come into possession of their grandfather's residuary estate, which it is estimated by that time will be worth $200,000,000. At the age of fifty the happy heirs will probably have outlived their boyish follies, so that they won't waste the money.

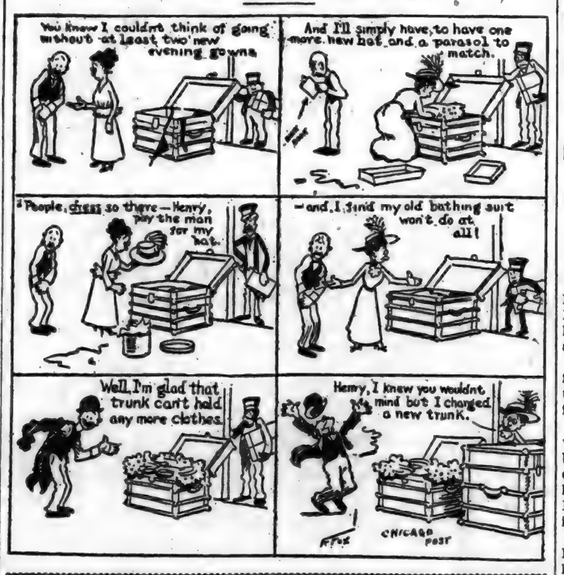
There is in the physiological laboratory of the University of Pennsylvania a machine that measures the mental capabilities of any person to whom it is applied. It would probably register zero if applied to persons who pay money to go to shows that it is necessary for the police to try to suppress.

We are not ready to accept the statement that the kaiser has made elaborate preparations to cut the submarine cables in case Germany is involved in a great war. If the kaiser should cut the cables, how could he let the world know what he has to say?

In order that a physician may treat his patient without visiting him, a London invention permits an examination of heart beats by telephone. Lovers who are not certain of each other's affections should borrow the appliance from some friendly doctor.

Delaware reports the largest strawberry crop in its history. This is encouraging. Perhaps when the berries arrive at market they may be so numerous and large that a quart box of them will be really a quart.

GETTING HER FITTED OUT FOR HER TRIP



TAFT'S SON RUNS DOWN MAN

LABORER IS BADLY HURT BY AUTOMOBILE.

Hospital Reports Say There Is Evidence That Workman Is Seriously Injured.

Beverly, Mass.—One of President Taft's automobiles, driven by his son, Robert T. Taft, ran over and seriously injured a street laborer.

At the hospital it was said there were indications that the workman's skull was fractured.

Robert, with two college friends, Lendall King of Minneapolis, and George Harrison of Washington, started out from the summer White House for a spin along the Massachusetts north shore.

Robert, who has been driving the automobiles about the city considerably since his arrival last week, was at the steering wheel.

At Pride's crossing, about two miles from home, the streets were being oiled by a gang of men. The automobile was slowed down. The horn sounded and most of the men stepped aside.

One of them, however, was not quite quick enough, and the machine struck him, tossing him into the gutter. He was unconscious when picked up by young Taft and his two friends.

CONGRESS COMES TO CLOSE

Adjournment Sees Most of the Taft Program of Legislation Carried Out.

Washington.—With President Taft's legislative program practically carried out in its entirety the first regular session of the Sixty-first congress adjourned sine die Saturday night.

signed the rivers and harbors bill, but sent a message to congress indicating that he had made up his mind to do so practically at the last minute of time at his disposal, so far as that measure was concerned.

Congress was warned that it must change its method of framing river and harbor improvement measures, and announcement is made that unless reforms which he suggests are carried out in future bills the withholding of executive approval will be justified, even though a rivers and harbors bill fail.

The president also signed without comment the postal savings bank bill, the omnibus public building bill, the latter carrying authorization for improvements aggregating $23,000,000, but leaving the items of appropriation to be attended to later, in connection with the regular estimates of the treasury department with respect to work authorized by congress.

GEN. FUNSTON NEAR DEATH

Army Officer Dangerously Ill of Heart Disease at His Home in Kansas.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Gen. Frederick Funston, commandant of the army service schools here, is dangerously ill with an attack of heart disease at his home here.

General Funston's condition is such that the post army physicians and the best-trained nurses in the hospital are in constant attendance upon him. Mrs. Funston, who is in California, was notified of the general's condition Friday.

General Funston is suffering from angina pectoris. It was learned that he has been subject to slight heart trouble for some time, and it is believed that the heat of the last week brought on the present severe attack.

Missouri Rate Law Valid.

Jefferson City, Mo.—The law prohibiting railroads from charging more for hauling freight a short distance than for a longer distance in the same direction was upheld by the supreme court Tuesday.

Phone Company Convicted.

Water Valley, Miss.—The Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph company was found guilty of violating the state anti-trust law by Judge I. T. Blount in the chancery court here and a fine of $175,000 was imposed.

TRIUMPH FOR AMERICANS

German Campaign of Slander Against the Deutsche Vacuum Oil Company Fails.

Berlin.—The long and venomous campaign waged by German newspapers and rival industrial interests against one of the German branches of the Standard Oil company—the Deutsche Vacuum Oil company—has just been brought to a vicorious end for the Americans involved.

A well-known Hamburg newspaper for months printed such a series of attacks on the "American graft methods" alleged to have been practised by the vacuum company in the conduct of its German business that the public prosecutor of Hamburg felt constrained to make an official investigation with a view to eventual indictments. The prosecutor has now concluded his investigation, especially of the work of E. L. Quarles, American manager of the German company's sales department, and announces that no necessity exists for pursuing the inquiry further.

No evidence of anything warranting prosecution was found against Mr. Quarles, and the costs of the entire inquiry will be borne by the state.

The result of the investigation constitutes a notable triumph for American interests in Germany.

It is not the first time that Germans, finding themselves unable to compete with Americans on ordinary terms, have resorted to slander.

ROB PASSENGERS ON TRAIN

Three Bandits Escape After Raid on Oregon Short Line in Ogden, Utah.

Ogden, Utah.—Three masked bandits held up the second section of Oregon Short Line train No. 1, northbound, which left Ogden at 1:30 a. m., in the northern part of this city. All of the passengers were robbed of their valuables and the express messenger was compelled to deliver the contents of the safe. The exact amount the robbers obtained has not been ascertained. Two passengers and two trainmen were injured.

After the train had been robbed the bandits fired into the air to frighten the passengers, got into their buggy and drove away. Sheriff Wilson gathered a small posse and started in pursuit.

PICTURE SHOW RUINS EYE

Omaha Attorney's Frequent Attendance at Nickel Theater Said to Have Affected Optic.

Omaha, Neb.—Over-indulgence in moving picture shows may cost Attorney C. W. Britt of Omaha his eyesight. He went to Clarkson hospital, where an operation was performed on his right eye by Dr. Harold Gifford Sunday.

Flickering of the moving pictures attended almost nightly for two months by Mr. Britt and members of his family is said to have aggravated former eye trouble. A growth under the lid of the right eye resulted. Mr. Britt was totally blind in the right eye before going to the hospital, but hoped that the operation would restore the sight.

Curtiss May Fly Across Lake.

Chicago.—Glenn H. Curtiss, famous aviator and inventor of aeroplanes, while in Chicago said he might be one of the contestants for the Walter Darlington prize of $5,000 for the first successful flight across Lake Michigan from Chicago during the aviation meet July 2, 3 and 4.

Storm Makes Many Homeless.

Whitesburg, Ky.—As the result of the worst storm which has ever visited southeastern Kentucky, over a hundred people were Monday rendered homeless and when a full report is made of the storm it is feared that several persons have lost their lives in the flood. The middle fork of Beaver creek overflowed its banks following the storm and swept away more than a score of homes of the farmers living along its banks. The loss it is estimated will run into millions of dollars.

S. D. M'ENERY DEAD

UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM LOUISIANA EXPIRES IN NEW ORLEANS.

DIES OF ACUTE INDIGESTION

End Comes After Arrival From Washington—Was Serving His Third Term—Governor Sanders Will Probably Be His Successor.

New Orleans.—Samuel Douglas McEnery, United States senator from Louisiana, suddenly expired at his home here Tuesday from an attack of acute indigestion.

The senator arrived here Monday from Washington. He was seventy-three years old, and death was superinduced by old age.

The senator is survived by his wife, who was before marriage Miss Elizabeth Phillips of Monroe, Pa.; his daughter, Mrs. Warren B. Parker, and his two sons, Charles P. McEnery and Dr. Douglas W. McEnery of Washington.

The present term of Senator McEnery, which was his third, would not have expired until March 3, 1915. During his service he was known as an independent Democrat who voted frequently with the Republicans. This was true particularly in tariff legislation.

In conformity with custom the sergeant-at-arms of the United States senate was immediately notified by telegraph of Senator McEnery's death. The funeral will be held Thursday morning.

In all probability Gov. Jared Y. Sanders will be chosen by the Louisiana legislature, now in session, as Senator McEnery's successor. It is thought that the leading figures in state politics have figured upon the aged senator's passing for some time, but it was not anticipated exactly at this juncture.

DEMANDS MILLION DAMAGES

Ida Von Claussen Files Suit Against Roosevelt and Others Charging Slander and Conspiracy.

New York.—Ida Von Claussen, once the wife of Dr. William Francis Honan, whose coming to America to sue Theodore Roosevelt and other notables was announced from Paris a few weeks ago, appeared in the county house Tuesday with a complaint which she insisted on filing in the county clerk's office.

Her complaint charges Theodore Roosevelt, Robert Bacon, ambassador to France; Charles Graves, minister to Sweden, and Mrs. Alice Wright G. Graves, his wife, with slander and conspiracy. She declares that through the machinations of these distinguished persons she was deprived of a royal marriage with Prince Eugene of Sweden as the bridegroom.

Wherefore she demands $1,000,000 damages.

CHARLTON CASE IS HALTED

Arraignment Postponed to Await Exchanges Between Washington and Italian Government.

New York.—Porter Charlton's case now waits upon the result of exchanges between the state department at Washington and the Italian government.

His counsel, in asking that his formal arraignment be postponed, Tuesday promised that no effort would be made under habeas corpus, insanity or other proceedings to take the prisoner out of the hands of the New Jersey authorities, pending the adjourned arraignment, which after some argument, was finally set for July 8.

Meanwhile it is expected that the international aspects of the case will have adjusted themselves and decision be reached as to whether Charlton shall be delivered to the Italian authorities on extradition proceedings.

FOUR KILLED IN GAS BLAST

Acetylene Tank Explodes Injuring Eleven—Saloon and Hotel Is Burned by Resulting Flames.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Four men were killed and 11 injured, two of them fatally, when Edward Bushay's saloon and suburban hotel, five miles north of Minneapolis, was blown up by the explosion of the acetylene gas tank in the basement of the building.

The dead are: Eugene Hamlin, Louis Hammish, Charles Siggelkow, all of Minneapolis, and an unidentified man.

The explosion tore the roof from the building with terrific force. Fire started immediately and in half an hour the entire place was nothing but smoking ruins.

It is believed that more bodies may be in the debris.

Wife of Vice-President Better.

Baltimore, Md.—Mrs. James S. Sherman, wife of the vice-president, who is a patient at Johns Hopkins hospital, was reported Tuesday somewhat improved, since her arrival, and that her case was not considered critical.

Two Hurt in $500,000 Fire.

Paterson, N. J.—Five hundred thousand dollars' worth of property in the business section of Paterson was destroyed by fire Tuesday. Two firemen were seriously injured.

LA FOLLETTE SEES ROOSEVELT

SENATOR LEAVES COLONEL IN JUBILANT MOOD.

Declares Former President Is Greatest American Living and Is in Fighting Trim.

Oyster Bay.—Robert M. La Follette, United States senator from Wisconsin, spent two hours talking politics with Theodore Roosevelt. He left Oyster Bay wearing a broad smile.

Senator LaFollette arrived with G. E. Roe, a New York lawyer, who was formerly his law partner. Colonel Roosevelt's chauffeur was waiting for them, and whisked them away to Sagamore Hill. The senator had pulled his hat down over his eyes and tried to escape unseen. But he was caught fairly at it by a group of newspaper men. They tackled him on suspicion, although nobody recognized him, for his hat hid his famous pompadour.

"Not a word," he said. "I'm going to Sagamore Hill, but I don't want a word said about it."

When he returned, just in time to catch a train for New York, he was smiling his most expansive, persuasive smile. "It's all right, boys, he cried jovially. "The colonel says I may talk with you."

"Did we talk politics?" he replied to the first question. "We did.

"We talked of the legislation of the present session of congress, from the attitude of those members of the Republican party whom the newspapers are pleased to call insurgents."

"Can you go into details?"

"No; I prefer that they come from Sagamore Hill. I am very much pleased with the result of my visit with Colonel Roosevelt, very much pleased, indeed."

The senator paused for a moment. Suddenly the smile left his face for the first time and he said impressively:

"I want to tell you that Colonel Roosevelt is the great living American, and," he added slowly and significantly, "he is in fighting trim."

SAY CHARLTON IS INSANE

Alienists Who Examined Wife Murderer Declare He Is Irresponsible for His Acts.

New York.—Porter Charlton, self-confessed slayer of his wife, Mrs. Mary Castle Charlton, whose body, stuffed in a trunk he tossed into Lake Como, Italy, may escape punishment for his crime.

Powerful influences were put at work Friday to save the prisoner, now locked up in the Hudson county jail at Jersey City, from being extradited to Italy.

Judge Charlton, the murderer's father, consulted with R. Floyd Clarke of this city and former Senator William D. Edwards of Jersey City, whom he retained on Thursday after getting word at Washington of the arrest of his son as he stepped from the steamer Princess Irene at Hoboken. At this conference it was decided to fight the extradition proceedings urged by the Italian charge d'affaires in a cablegram to his government at Rome.

The murderer's counsel have determined upon a defense of insanity to keep him from being removed from this country. Four alienists visited Charlton in his cell and watched him for five hours. When they emerged they said that he is without doubt insane and that his particular species of insanity is incurable.

1,500 IN SHIP FIRE PERIL

Four Dead, Number Seriously Injured and 400 Slightly Hurt—Result of Burning of Excursion Steamer.

La Crosse, Wis.—Four persons are dead, a number seriously injured and about 400 slightly burned in attempting to escape from the burning hulk of the excursion steamer J. S., with 1,500 passengers aboard, which caught fire Saturday night in the Mississippi river 15 miles south of here.

The story of the rescue as told is that the steamer, when it finally reached Bad Ax island, where the passengers were able to escape ashore, was burning so fiercely that only 200 of the 1,500 aboard were able to go ashore on the gangplank. The other 1,200 or 1,300 passengers were forced to leap over the rail into water four or five feet deep and wade ashore, suffering terribly until they were able to reach the main land.

DESPERADO SHOT BY MILITIA

Man Barricaded in His Georgia Home With Six Children Laid Low With Bullets.

Atlanta, Ga.—After being barricaded in his house for many hours and killing two of his besiegers, W. T. Bostwick was killed by soldiers in a rush on his house near Irwinville, Ga. His six children were taken unhurt. Threats were made to burn Bostwick out of his house, but when it was seen that it could accomplish nothing that way the posse began firing. The military company came from Fitzgerald and went to the scene of the battle.

Ship Carrying 119 Is Overdue.

Bombay, India.—There were no tidings Tuesday from the Austrian-Lloyd steamer Trieste, which, with her thirty-four passengers and crew of eighty-five, is eight days overdue from Trieste. Three ships are searching the Arabian coast.

Inventor of Hoopskirt Dying.

New York.—Joseph Thomas, aged eighty-three years, the inventor of the hoopskirt, is dying at his home in Hoboken, N. J., from general breakdown.

INSURANCE MEN HIT

TWENTY-THREE CONVICTED OF CONSPIRING TO FIX RATES.

FINES OF $500 ARE IMPOSED

The Case Is the Outgrowth of the Ten Per Cent. Increase in Insurance Rates.

Newport News, Va.—President Dan B. Harris, General Manager A. B. Andrews and twenty-one members of the Southeastern Underwriters' association were convicted here in a magistrate's court of unlawfully conspiring to control insurance rates in this city and were fined $500 each. The cases were appealed.

The case is the outgrowth of the association act in arbitrarily raising fire insurance rates 10 per cent. to meet a license tax increase of 3½ per cent. levied by the city council. The court held that the increases in rates was retaliatory and demonstrated the power of the association to penalize any city in the state if the tax was regarded too heavy. The cases will come up on appeal in the corporation court next September.

FLOODS IN KENTUCKY

Many People Drown and Crops are Ruined.

Saylersville, Ky.—Caught by the raging waters of Licking river, swollen by recent rains and a cloudburst, six persons are known to have lost their lives by drowning and many others are reported missing, including three entire families. The bodies of two men have been recovered but these have not been identified. The body of a man was seen, but because of the swift current no one was able to reach it. The cloudburst occurred at the headwaters of the stream at 3 o'clock in the morning, catching the people in their beds and affording small chance for escape. Buildings were swept away and crops are ruined. The meagre reports which have been received indicate that the damage will be great. The country is hilly and all of the houses within five miles of the head of Licking river were lifted from their foundations as the waters rushed through the narrow valleys. There are about six miles of the stricken territory that nobody has been able to enter and the work of the searching parties has been delayed on account of the high waters. Eastern Kentucky has been deluged with heavy rainfalls for almost a week and the mountain streams were already swollen. The cloudburst gave Licking river another rise, and it is said rose to a height of over thirty-five feet when the waters began to rush over its banks.

WHEN SPIRIT MOVES SHOUT

Church People Have as Much Right to Yell as Ball Fans.

Battle Creek, Mich.—That church people have as much right to yell when they are moved by religious enthusiasm as baseball enthusiasts have when the home team makes a hit, was argued by Bishop A. Zellow of Jamestown, N. Y., in an address before the Tri-State encampment of Free Methodists here. Bishop Zellow severely criticised the local police for their efforts to check the noisy enthusiasm of the encampment. It was announced that forty cures of physical ailments were effected during twenty-four hours at the encampment by a revival of the olive oil anointing service of biblical days.

Youth Makes Perilous Dive.

New York.—A sharp featured undersized youth in ragged swimming trunks, with a skimpy coat and an old pair of trousers thrown over them, dived successfully from the center span of Brooklyn bridge to the East river, 135 feet below, for $3.50 in cash, two new suits of clothing and whatever fame the world may hold in store for a bridge jumper. He was rescued.

Bishop of Rhode Island Dead.

Beverly, Mass. — William Neilson McVickar, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Rhode Island, died at his summer home at Beverly Cove after a lingering illness. He had been bishop of Rhode Island since 1903. Bishop McVickar was born in New York October 19, 1843.

Five Men Killed on Trestle.

Baltimore, Md.—Five men were killed and three seriously hurt by a freight engine which ran down a gang of carpenters on a trestle on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Twenty-first street and the Belt line tracks here.

Plunges Over High Cliff.

Valdez, Alaska.—While prospecting seven miles from Valdes, Charles A. Oaland fell five hundred feet to death. With a companion he had been prospecting along the edge of a high cliff.

Bad Fire at Paterson, N. J.

Paterson, N. J.—Fire swept a block on Main street from Ward to Market streets in this city and caused a loss estimated at $500,000. Five firemen were injured by a falling wall.

JULY

0435

L 904

ASKS FOR CLOSED SEASON FOR BASS

Game Law Commissioner Seeks to Protect Fish.

WANTS THE LAW REVISED

G. W. Miles Intends to Fill Lakes Until the People of the State Will Take Interest in the Work.

Indianapolis.—A closed season for taking bass from the lakes of the state, from April 1 to May 15, is being proposed by George W. Miles, recently appointed state fish and game commissioner to succeed Z. T. Sweeney. Miles will go before the next legislature and ask for the enactment of a law providing for such a season, basing his arguments on the fact that under the present fish and game laws, lake bass cannot multiply with sufficient rapidity to met the demands of the fishermen. Miles will not ask a closed period for any other fish. His recommendation for legislation in behalf of the bass will also include a proposed amendment to the present law limiting the number of bass for one day's sport to 18 instead of 36, as is now allowed.

"I believe it of the greatest importance that there shall always be a new crop of fish coming on in the natural way," said Mr. Miles. "Then if the old ones are taken more rapidly than they ought to be, or even by unlawful means, there will be assurance against depletion of the waters of the state.

"By the middle of May the various water plants have always grown up in the shallows around the nests of the bass sufficiently to protect them against the manner of fishing I just mentioned, and if we had a law that would give the parent bass protection until that time it would be sufficient, although they do not finish brooding until a somewhat later date. I hope the next legislature will enact a law making such closed season and providing a penalty for having bass in one's possession during that time. I do not deem a closed season for other fishes necessary at this time. If, under such a law, anyone fishing for bluegills or croppies should hook a bass, it should be made his duty under the law to return it to the water as quickly and with as little injury to the fish as possible. I believe the fish and game department could easily enforce such a law, and I believe that all the true sportsmen of the state would help us in its enforcement. In 1905 the general assembly enacted a law making a closed season for all fish in all the lakes of the state, but this proved so unpopular that it was repealed two years later. I will not ask for a law which will prevent the farmers and sportsmen from fishing for any kind of fish during April and the first half of May except in the case of the lake bass.

"With the law I have proposed," said Mr. Miles, "I believe that within a few years I can fill our lakes and streams with fish until the good people of the state will take a kindlier interest in the work of the fish and game department. And in this office, I shall try to see that the laws are enforced in the spirit in which they were intended, for the protection of our fish and game and not to swell the funds of the department by having assessed as many fines as possible."

Municipal League Closes Convention.

Crawfordsville was selected as the next meeting place for the Indiana Municipal league at the closing session and the following officers were chosen:

Mayor Lemuel S. Darrow, Laporte, president; James E. Burke, Jeffersonville, first vice-president; John Thom, Noblesville, second vice-president; Loring W. Melette, Elwood, treasurer; Fred B. Robinson, Crawfordsville, secretary.

Gary was the only city that opposed Crawfordsville in asking for the league's next meeting. It was announced, however, that Gary favored waiting, and the name was withdrawn and Crawfordsville selected by unanimous vote.

Ignorant Corporations.

Frank I. Grubbs, deputy secretary of state, is willing to subscribe to a fund for the instruction of the corporations of the state in the mysteries of the new national corporation tax law. A small oil corporation, operating in the state, sent to the secretary of state a draft for $5.44, explaining that one dollar of the amount was for an automobile license, while the remainder was to pay the current corporation tax. A notice was sent to the corporation by Elam H. Neal, United States internal revenue collector, notifying the corporation that it owed the national government $4.44 in taxes.

Tax Ferret to Be Paid.

After months of controversy and following the first step in a test case before the courts to determine the legality of such procedure, the city council of Richmond withdrew all opposition to the county paying over to W. E. Lowe, a tax ferret, 30 per cent. as fees on the city's part of taxes collected by him. The city had maintained that the county could not enter into a contract which would bind the city to pay 30 per cent. or any percentage of its share of taxes to a ferret.

Doctors Win Suit.

By a vote of six to two the state board of medical examination and registration decided that Dr. W. T. Gott and Dr. M. S. Canfield, members of the board, should not be required to turn back $46.50 each, which they had received as part of their compensation for grading manuscripts following the July examinations last year, and by the same vote re-tendered a like sum to Dr. S. G. Smelser, another member, who, in the January meeting, declined to accept the amount. Doctor Smelser and Dr. John F. Spaunhurst voted no. Following the action of the board Doctor Smelser made a statement declaring that he would not accept the money, since he did not believe it was due him. The sum represented fees for the grading of sophomore manuscripts.

By a rule adopted by the board some time ago members of the board who, in the past, had any manuscripts to grade shared equally in the fees for the examination. In the last July examination among the papers there were 31 sophomore manuscripts, in the grading of which Doctors Smelser, Gott and Canfield had no part. In the distribution of the fees, however, they shared equally with the other members of the board, excepting Doctor Spaunhurst. By a rule long followed, the physicians representing the various schools of medicine on the board grade the papers submitted by applicants from their schools. The osteopathic school, represented by Doctor Spaunhurst, had no applicants in the July examination, and Doctor Spaunhurst was allowed no compensation, although the remaining members shared equally, irrespective of the number of manuscripts graded by the individual members. Immediately after the distribution, which was made in December, Doctor Smelser waived his claim to any part of the fees for the examination of the sophomore manuscripts.

Doctor Spaunhurst took the question before the board by an attempt to introduce a minority committee report providing that Doctors Gott and Canfield should each be required to return $46.50 to the state treasury, but the board declined to permit the report to be filed and to go into the records on the ground that it had not been taken up regularly in a meeting of the committee, which was discharged in the midst of Spaunhurst's arguments, by a majority vote.

Corporation Taxes.

Harry Miesse, secretary of the Indiana Manufacturers' bureau, has been trying to find out whether the members of the bureau have any means of recovering back the money they pay the government under the new corporation tax law in case the law is declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme court. He submitted to John B. Cockrum of this city and H. H. C. Miller of Chicago, corporation attorneys, the question of whether the tax could be paid under protest and whether it could be recovered later on a plea that the payment had been made under legal duress.

These lawyers agreed in their opinion that a protest would not afford the corporations any grounds for relief, unless the payment was made after the federal officers had levied on the property of a corporation or was proposing to do so, thus causing an interruption in the corporation's business. They said that if a levy was made to enforce the collection of the corporation tax the corporation could then pay the tax under protest and probably save its right to recover back the money so paid.

Mine Roofs Must Be Safe.

The appellate court has held that the operator of a coal mine is under an absolute duty to make the roof of the mine safe by removing loose stones and slate before he permits anybody to work there. "The measure of the owner's duty is prescribed by law," said Judge Roby. "He must make the dangerous places safe and exclude his employes therefrom until it is safe, excepting only those who are engaged in doing the work of making it safe. . . . Appellants argue that the averments should be of the practicability of taking down the rock 'without undue interference with the working of the mine.' This would be to abrogate the law and substitute for it the notion of the mine boss or operator as to what is an 'undue interference,' the very subject on which the legislature was convinced they could not be trusted."

Pensions for Indianians.

Pensions have been granted to the following Indianians: Newton Beal, $14; Samuel R. Rolinger, $14; William W. Brant, $14; Ada C. Chittick, $12; Mary J. Deweese, $12; Joseph Frey, $15; Thomas J. Graves, $10; Caroline Hart, $12; Elmer G. Harvey, $20; Samuel R. Herrons, $20; Omer H. Owerton, $20; Asa Huffman, $30; Samuel Jennings, $12; John P. Jessup, $24; Emma Killinger, $12; Henry M. Kochers, $15; Gabriel Miller, $24; Margaret Morss, $12; William E. Pheasant, $15; Sarah Skelton, $12; James W. Sipes, $24; Thomas D. Tharp, $20; Elmore A. Thomas, $12.

Baptists Open Convention.

Two hundred delegates from various parts of Indiana attended the opening meeting of the joint state convention of Baptist Young People's union at Muncie. The convention was opened by Rev. Lewellyn Brown of South Bend, who gave an address on the subject, "The Call of the Times." The speaker said that when a church endeavors to adapt itself too closely to modernity of thought, it loses in influence and power, and though it should pay heed to all modern circumstances,

NOTABLE HONOR TO NORMAL PRESIDENT

State School Celebrates Twenty-Fifth Year.

GOVERNOR MARSHALL TALKS

Parsons' Portrait, by T. C. Steele of Indianapolis, Presented by the Alumni Association Near Close of Commencement Exercises.

Terre Haute.—Governor Marshall, noted educators and alumni paid tribute to William Wood Parsons, president of the Indiana State Normal school, in honor of his 25 years as head of the institution. Governor Marshall spoke in behalf of the state board of education. Other speakers were Dr. Charles H. Judd, school of education, University of Chicago; Dr. Winthrop E. Stone, president of Purdue university; Livingston J. Lord, president of the Eastern Illinois Normal school; Dr. Barton W. Everman, United States fish commissioner; B. F. Moore, superintendent of the Muncie schools, and Howard Sandison, vice-president of the Indiana Normal school.

Dr. Parsons was tendered a great ovation when he arose to speak and thank his friends for the honor shown. Handkerchiefs and hats waved in the air for several minutes and he was kept waiting while the audience arose to its feet to pay further respect. His address was of a reminiscent nature. He told of his earliest connection with the school, first as student, later as instructor and last as president. He recalled much history, and among other points he especially commended the city of Terre Haute and the interest taken in the erection and support of the institution. Old members of the faculty were mentioned, those who served years ago, and came in for their share of praise by the president, who laid at their doors the cause of success accomplished later.

Perhaps the most onteworthy event wherein appreciation was illustrated was the presentation of a portrait of Dr. Parsons given by the alumni association. The painting is the work of T. C. Steels of Indianapolis and it is artistically done. The painting is inclosed in a gold frame and will be hung in the new normal library, its permanent resting place. In addition to the painting a silver loving cup was presented to the president by the alumni.

During the anniversary exercises the auditorium was crowded.

Judge Joshua Jump, secretary o the board of trustees, presided. Judge Jump, as did other speakers, paid high tribute to Dr. Parsons, the center of the day's events.

Governor Marshall followed with an address on behalf of the state board of education. His speech, extemporaneously given, closed with comments on the life of Dr. Parsons and the work he has accomplished.

Dr. Charles H. Judd followed Governor Marshall with an address on "The Training of Teachers." He followed the history of normal schools and said a still greater future was in store for the training of the teacher.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Portland.—A pig weighing about seventy-five pounds, the property of Joseph H. Sell of Pennville, was killed in a peculiar manner. A dynamite cartridge accidentally became mixed in the feed and was discharged by the animal while chewing. The lower jaw of the pig was broken by the explosion of the cap and its death followed instantly.

Booneville.—Mrs. John Ellison died at her home here as the result of being bitten by a copper head nine years ago. The woman gradually declined in health after the snake attacked her and physicians were unable to save her life.

Newcastle.—Edgar and Paul Smith, ten and twelve years old, who ran away from their home in Muncie, were taken to that city by the sheriff. The boys were found near Spiceland.

Laporte.—The telegraphic advices that a woman answering the description of Mrs. Gunness was under surveillance at Moscow, Idaho, caused the offer to be made public of a reward of $1,500 for the finding of the murderess, $500 to be paid by the county, $500 by Sheriff Anstis, $350 by H. W. Worden, attorney for Ray Lamphere, and $250 by William Hutchinson, a wealthy Michigan City citizen.

South Bend.—Ladislaw Kujaw, aka, four years old, lighted a match to find a baseball which he had lost and set fire to kindling and hay in a shed. The flames flashed up and overcame him. The heat licked up the clothing of the child and burned the body to a crisp.

Danville. — The Republicans of Hendricks county will elect 16 delegates to the congressional convention of the Fifth district, to be held at Martinsville. They will go instructed to cast their votes for State Prosecuting Attorney Edgar M. Blessing of this city. Mr. Blessing is a receptive candidate, but is making no campaign.

Washington.—Odus Taylor, son of T. G. Taylor, an Elnora merchant, was attacked and badly bitten by a dog. The animal tore a frightful looking place in the fleshy part of the right leg.

Marjorie and the Moon

By Edith S. Speed

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

"It is no use asking mother. She will not give her consent," whispered Marjorie as they stood together in the summer house. "She insists that I wait at least eight years before I marry."

Philip Drayton smiled down at her earnest little face.

"But your mother was only twenty when she was married," he said.

"Yes, I know, Phil; but she says I am too young."

"Then we shall have to elope."

"Elope! Mother would never forgive me."

"Oh, yes she would; she would be angry for a little while; but would soon make up. I can't wait eight years for a home and you, Marjorie," he pleaded. "Leave it to me and everything will be all right."

"But, Phil, is there no other way?"

"I am afraid not," he answered. "I will have my boat at the landing tomorrow night and we will cross the bay to Willow Point, where the minister will marry us."

"Oh, won't it be romantic!" said Marjorie. "It will be moonlight and I will wear my white dress and my white hat with the pink roses that you like so well."

The moonlight shining through the vines brought out the gold lights in the girl's pretty hair. On the hand that lay in Phil's sparkled a little ring. He reverently kissed her.

"I wish your mother could attend your wedding," he continued after a silence, "but she will not consent, and eight years is too long to wait."

All the next day Marjorie Brant sang as she worked. Upstairs, on her bed, lay the white dress and white hat. In the closet was the suit case with her dainty belongings, packed for the first time without her mother's supervision. Now and then she ran up and tried on the hat, laughing at herself in the mirror and picturing Phil's face when he should see her.

"If you are going upstairs again," her mother called from the kitchen, "will you close the windows? There is a cloud in the west, which means wind."

But Marjorie, excitedly combing out her curls in preparation for the wedding coiffure, forgot the injunction until the flapping of the curtains brought her out of her dreams.

"Did you shut the windows?" her mother called to her.

"No, but I will," answered the girl.

Marjorie could hear the roar of the wind and the lashing of the waves, and knew that they could not cross the bay that night. She slowly continued her dressing, wondering how they would get to Willow Point.

She helped her mother with dinner, but ate little.

"Don't you feel well?" asked her father.

"I am all right, but I am not hungry," she replied.

Marjorie was to meet Phil at eight o'clock. At 7:30 she went upstairs. In the darkness she pressed her face against the window. She could see nothing; the moon was hidden behind the clouds.

Wrappings a shawl about her, she stealthily descended the stairs and went out by the side door. Her light figure bent to the wind as she sped down the path.

"Phil," she called softly.

Then she felt his arms about her. "Where is your hat?" he asked. "We can't go in a boat; so we will drive. I have brought blankets; you won't be cold."

Marjorie slipped out of his arms.

"I haven't any bag. I am not going, Phil."

"Not going!" he exclaimed. "Why not?"

"Oh, I couldn't go on such a night. Who ever heard of running away and getting married on a dark night?"

"What has the weather to do with our happiness?" he asked gently. "Don't you love me, Marjorie?"

"Yes," she whispered, then falteringly continued. "It was all going to be so beautiful, the moonlight and the water—and now there isn't any moon. When it grew so dark and windy, I felt that even the elements were against us and I was not doing the right thing—running away from parents who have been so kind; so I came out to tell you. Oh, Phil," she sobbed. "I don't know what to do."

"My poor little girl," he said. "I don't believe I should run away with you. I am going into the house to ask your father and mother to let me marry you."

"Phil."

"I can't go home without knowing something certain. Come."

As the two young people entered the sitting room Marjorie's father and mother stared at them in astonishment. The girl, cold and wind blown, slipped into a chair. Phil walked up to the table.

"Sit down, won't you?" asked Mr. Brant, hesitating, as he looked at the young man's stern face.

"No," said Phil, "I'll stand. Marjorie and I were going to run away."

"Run away!" exclaimed Mrs. Brant and her husband's fist came down on the table heavily. But as Phil told of his love, the older man gazed at him intently, visions of his own youth and courtship stirring him deeply. When Phil had finished he said:

"I understand that if it had not been windy tonight and Marjorie had not thought it was wrong you would have run away?"

"I think so."

"And what then?"

The young man's gaze met that of the older man's squarely.

"I should have taken care of her and kept her safe. I love her."

He was very earnest. The father seemed stirred by his uprightness and he turned to his wife. "Well, mother?"

"It is out of the question," she flared. "Marjorie is only twenty. I shall not let her get married for eight years."

"Oh, mother!"

"Yes, and by then, Marjorie, you will know your own mind."

"I do know it," pleaded the girl. "You were married when you were twenty."

"Yes; but I was older. You are only a child. Now you run up to your room."

With a despairing glance at Phil, who stood looking stern and determined, she left the room. Her mother turned to the young man.

"I thought when I consented to the engagement that you would be satisfied. Now you are trying to coax the child to run away."

"I might have taken her," was Phil's answer.

The father, noting the set mouth of the young man, perceived the necessity of a compromise.

"Perhaps we had better talk it over, mother," he said.

"No," was the firm response. "I shall not let Marjorie marry until she is twenty-eight. That is young enough."

"But we were married when we were young and have been happy."

"What we did has nothing to do with Marjorie. It is no good your taking their part; I shall not give my consent."

Her husband saw that it was useless to argue, and held out his hand to Phil.

"I guess we shall have to do what mother thinks best. After all, she is right."

He accompanied Phil to the door. The wind had abated and through the scurry of clouds the moon shone brightly. The young man stood looking at it for a moment then stiffly said: "Good-by," and went down the path. The horse's hoofs had died away in the distance when the father returned to the sitting room.

As Phil drove slowly homeward, he moodily gazed out upon the night. The vagrant wind caressed his cheek and the salt air filled his nostrils. The little white spire of the church in Willow Point silently beckoned to him in the moonlight.

Suddenly his horse reared and came to a sudden stop.

"Marjorie!" he exclaimed as the girl stepped to the side of the carriage.

She laughed nervously, as she climbed in beside him.

"Quick!" she urged. "Here is my bag. They are arguing in the sitting room. I took the short cut across the lots. They will not discover that I am gone for awhile, and, oh, Phil, I climbed down the grape arbor!"

He urged the horse to a run with one hand while with the other he tucked the blanket around her.

"I can't believe it!" he said as she nestled close to him. "I can't believe that you are really here."

"Well," said the girl, "father was almost ready to give in and mother will soon make up, she always does, and I wasn't going to wait until I was twenty-eight to get married, Phil—especially after I looked out of my window and saw that glorious moon—our moon."

Following Illustrious Example.

If your best girl will not see you
When you wish to make a call,
Issue then an exhortation
To the human family all.
Say you trust there won't be slaughter
And you deprecate with care
Any war between the sexes
On account of the affair.

If your debtor will not see you
When you call to get your cash,
Hope that creditors and debtors
Will do nothing that is rash.
Trumpet to the earth's four corners
That you pray no ill may bode
And there may not be a class war
From the private episode.
—McLandburgh Wilson, in New York Sun.

Both Spiny.

"So you are a vegetarian now?"

"Yep."

"Don't you miss the flesh pots?"

"Not at all. Every flesh food has its vegetable counterpart. Cactus, for instance, is an excellent substitute for spring shad."

THIRD OPERATION PREVENTED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 1468 Clybourne Ave., Chicago, Ill.

If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Don't Persecute your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal—unnecessary. Try

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, stimulate bile, and soothe the delicate membranes of the bowel. Cure Constipation, Sick Headache and Indigestion, as millions know.

Small Pill. Small Dose. Small Price
GENUINE must bear signature
Brent Good

WESTERN CANADA

What Governor Deneen, of Illinois, Says About It:

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, owns a section of land in Saskatchewan, Canada. He has said in an interview:

"As an American I am delighted to see the remarkable progress of Western Canada. Our people are flocking across the boundary in thousands, and I have not yet met one who admitted he had made a mistake. They are all doing well. There is scarcely a community in the Middle or Western States that has not a representative in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta."

125 Million Bushels of Wheat in 1909

Western Canada field crops for 1909 will easily yield to the farmer $170,000,000.00 in cash.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres, and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Railway and Land Companies have land for sale at reasonable prices. Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop. Splendid climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates, wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Supt of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 2d Floor Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 30, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you.)

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

WANTED An agent in every city and town to sell the only good $25 Vacuum Cleaner on the market. Superior to many of the $35.00 machines. Liberal discounts. Write today for particulars.

THE JUNIOR COMPANY Bradford, Pa.

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts All Season. Made of metal, cannot spill or tip over, will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Of all dealers or sent prepaid for 60c.

HAROLD SOMERS
150 DeKalb Ave.
Brooklyn, New York

STOCKERS & FEEDERS

Choice quality; reds and roans, white faces or angus bought on orders. Tens of Thousands to select from. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Correspondence Invited. Come and see for yourself.

National Live Stock Com. Co.
At either
Kansas City, Mo. St. Joseph, Mo. S. Omaha, Neb.

EULAX The agreeable Laxative Tablet. Sure, safe, pleasant, no nausea or griping. Private formula of a successful physician, not a Patent Medicine. Price 10 and 25 cents a package. Not sold in Drug Stores. Address "EULAX," Box 278 E. Liberty Sta., Pittsburg, Pa.

JULY

0436
L 904

The St. Joe News.

One Year - - $1.00
Six Month - - 50c
Three Months - - 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

Tiger Bill's Wild West.

The Greatest Show Attraction of the Season is Coming.

Tiger Bill's Great Wild West Consolidated Shows, with all of the interesting features of frontier life, including the realistic stage coach robbery, cow boy sports, roping wild horses, riding bucking broncbos, lasso throwing, rifle shooting by the world's greatest marksmen, will exhibit in St. Joe, Ind., on Friday, July 8, afternoon and evening-two performances daily, rain or shine. In addition to the big Wild West features there will be the greatest trained animal exhibit the world has ever produced, showing the almost human intelligence that careful training can bring out of dumb animals when properly handled and educated. The dogs and ponies with the Tiger Bill show do about everything but talk, and are immensely pleasing to the old and young. This show enjoys the distinction of having the only electric lighted arena in the world, and carries its own electric light plant, a full electrical equipment and a competent corps of electricians to operate it. Watch for the parade, headed by the famous cow boy band. Admission, 25 cents; children under ten years, 15 cents.

Election of Officers

On last Wednesday evening the Knights of Pythias elected the following officers:

C. A. Patterson, C. C.
Ray Reasoner, V. C.
N. Funk, Prd.
N. D. Thomas, M. A.
Ira Bone, M. W.
Jos. Hatfley, I. G.
O. S. Hart, O. G.
Ira Bone, Rep.
J. C. Hull, Installing Officer.

The lodge voted to instruct the trustees to forbid pasturing on the new grounds of the cemetery.

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Ice! Ice! Ice!
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

Claims Western Miss.

HAYS—WOODCOX

A very beautiful wedding was solemnized Wednesday June 1st at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hays, when their daughter, Macie Bell Hays was united in marriage to Mr. Elgin L. Woodcox of Willow Island, Neb.

After a vocal solo by Miss Irene Richards of North Platte, and promptly at 6:30 to the strains of Mendelsohn Wedding March played by Miss Florence Wedge, the couple entered the parlor where in the presence of about forty guests they were united by Rev. Hornaday. The lovely and impressive ring ceremony was used. After the ceremony an elaborate supper was served.

The bride was lovely in a dress of chiffon over liberty satin and carried pink roses. The groom wore the conventional black.

The house was beautifully decorated with pink and white roses with smilax.

Many beautiful and useful presents were received by the young couple.

They will be at home at Willow Island in the Ralston house which has been furnished by the groom for the reception of his bride.

Mrs. Woodcox has lived in and near Cozad all her life and by her bright and gracious manner and lovable disposition has won a place in the hearts of all.

The groom is a most estimable young man and is rapidly rising in the business world. May life always be bright for them.

The out of town guests were, Mrs. Burley of St. Joe, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Ed McKee, Charlie McKee and Agnes McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Ralston and Mr. Lyons of Willow Island, Miss Irene Richards and Mr. Chas. Thornburg of North Platte.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Read THE NEWS.

Was it sane enough for you?

The Frank Scholes property in the west part of town, is being improved with a new cement walk.

Herman Brown and family of Auburn, H. O. Hathaways', Mrs. S. W. Tustison and daughter and Mrs. F. H Langley spent the Fourth at Dill's grove.

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at .....10:32 a. m.
No. 3 ....8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at..... .....6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at.....4:57 p. m.

J D Fetters
TRUSTEE
of Concord Township.

OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK
at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank; you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

WITH THE SAGES.

You cannot hurt anybody without receiving a greater hurt yourself.—Cobden.

Absence of occupation is not rest; a mind quite vacant is a mind distressed.—Cowper.

Flattery is turned to good account when used as a guidepost to all one ought to be.—Semple.

The main ingredients of true manliness are a forgetfulness of self and a constant regard for duty.—Butler.

Break one thread in the border of virtue, and you don't know how much you may unravel.—Cunningham Geikie.

To know what you prefer, instead of humbly saying "Amen" to what the world tells you you ought to prefer, is to have kept your soul alive.—R. L. Stevenson.

We are told that the tide of the Thames affects the base of St. Paul's Cathedral. The tide of our life may undermine the character of some man.—J. Douglas Adam.

If you want to be miserable, think about yourself—about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay to you, and what people think of you.—Charles Kingsley.

A man is only happy when he believes himself to be so, in whatever way the proposition is turned, and no man believes himself so happy but what he might be happier.—F. Marion Crawford.

Choose ever the pleasant road, it always answers best. For the same reason choose ever to do and try what is the most just and the most direct. This conduct will save a thousand blushes and a thousand struggles, and will deliver you from secret torments which are never failing attendants of dissimulation.—Molton.

Those Pies of Boyhood.

How delicious were the pies of boyhood No pies now ever taste so good. what's changed? the pies? No, Its you. You've lost the strong, healthy stomach the vigorous liver, the active kidneys, the regular bowels of boyhood. Your digestion is poor and you blame the food. What's needed? A complete toning up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Try them. They will restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c. at H. L. Dunkle's.

SPLINTERS.

Band boxes—Music stands.

While we are sighing over the past we miss the opportunities of the present.

Our good deeds are played on a jewsharp and our faults on a bass drum.

It is easy to kindle the fire of gossip, but hard work to extinguish the flames.

Even after looking at our little weekly salary we cannot help thinking of our greatness.

Mrs. Simpson—Do you have any trouble in keeping your husband home at night? Mrs. Sampson—No, I get out first and he has to stay in the house and take care of the baby.

Borton—How do you know that Mrs. Brown has a commanding presence? I didn't know that you had ever seen her. Morton—I haven't, but I have seen her husband.

Bobbs—Did I understand you to say that Miss Byrd is very headstrong? Dobbs—Well, I should say so; she constantly carries around about five pounds of rat and four pounds of hat.

Band Concert.
Saturday Night.

Mr. Harriman's Ambassador.

"Mr. Harriman for all his wealth was not purse proud," said a New York broker. "Yet he thought a lot of money. He used to tell with a good deal of sympathy a story about the Russian ambassador to the court of Louis XIV. Louis XIV, playing cards at Versailles, dropped a franc on the floor and stooped to look for it. Then Mr. Harriman's Russian ambassador, who was very rich, said with a scornful laugh:

"'Let me assist your majesty.'

"And he took a 1,000-franc note, lighted it, and held it near the ground for a torch."

Did She Mean It?

Hostess—It's beginning to rain. You'll get wet. I think you'd better stay to dinner.

Departing Guest—Oh, dear, no! It's not raining so badly as all that.

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

alls answered day or night.

Phone No. 89.

St. Joe, - Indiana.

Summer Is Here

which brings flies, bugs and mosquitoes. Why be pested with them when Kinsey has a full line of Screen Doors, Windows, Wire screen and Hinges. All sizes at right prices. That nice lawn needs a mower to keep it mowed. When that building needs painting, don't forget we have a full line of Paint and Oil guaranteed strictly pure. The hot weather will make you wonder where you can secure a Gasoline or Oil Stove, remember we have a full line. When you need anything in Hardware remember, we are complete. We show the biggest line of Graniteware ever shown in town and prices are such as have never been known. We have the Automatic Schrams Fruit Jars. Come in and we will be glad to show them. Always bear in mind that Kinsey's is where you get value received or in other words, dollar for dollar.

At your Service,

H. V. KINSEY H. V. Kinsey & Son E. R. KINSEY

Furniture Hardware Undertaking

Office Hhone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37 3

You will also find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Eespecially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37 4

THE HOOKWORM.

Laziness of Many People in the South Is Due to It.

One of the dangerous enemies of man is the hookworm, says a physician. For years it has been supposed that the inertness and general thriftlessness of the poorer people of the South especially were due to climate or their natural laziness, and nothing could be done for them. But certain inquisitive scientists and physicians have discovered that what ails them—it is estimated that there are 2,000,000 of hookworm sufferers in the Southern States—is the hookworm.

This Necator Americanus—American murderer—is a worm about three-quarters of an inch long and like a thread in circumference. It gets into the body from water, from raw fruit and vegetables and from the earth when walked on in bare feet, as most of the Southern poor children and many adults go nine months in the year. The worm fastens its fangs into the mucous membrane of the intestines and sucks the blood from its victims. It moves about from place to place and will live for years. Usually from a dozen to a hundred infect an individual, but the numbers vary, often going into the hundreds and thousands, the limit, as far as recorded, being 4,600 to one person.

Once these people get the hookworms they begin to grow lazy and careless, apparently, and insist that they are sick and need medicine. Thousands of bottles of patent medicines for all kinds of diseases have been taken by them, and doctors have treated them for various ailments, but to no avail. The hookworm was fastened upon their vitals and nobody knew it.

Now, thanks to investigation, the trouble has been discovered and at the same time a remedy has been found.

A Frightful Wreck

of train, automobile or buggy may cause cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains or wounds that demand Bucklen's Arnica Salve—earth's greatest healer. Quick relief and prompt cure results. For burns, boils, sores of all kinds, eczema, chapped hands and lips, sore eyes or corns, its supreme. Surest pile cure. 25c. at H. L. Dunkle's.

The Best He Could Do.

"Explorers hate to take back or amend anything they have written," said F. S. Dallenbaugh, of the American Geographical Society. "They are like the Waldo editor there. A man entered the Waldo editor's office and shouted angrily:

"'You said in yesterday's paper that I'd been hanged. It's false. I've never been condemned, let alone hanged.'

"'Well, my friend,' said the editor, 'it's our policy never to issue direct contradictions. They shake the confidence of the reader. But I'll tell you what we'll do for you. We'll say you were out down before life was extinct.'" was of the unconquerable, never-say-die kind, the kind that you need most when you have a bad cold, cough or lung disease. Suppose troches, cough syrups, cod liver oil or doctors have all failed, don't lose heart or hope. Take Dr. King's New Discovery. Satisfaction is guaranteed when used for any throat or lung trouble. It has saved thousands of hopeless sufferers. It masters stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, hemorrhages, lagrippe, croup, asthma, hay fever and whooping cough and is the most safe and certain remedy for all bronchial affections. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free at H. L. Dunkle's.

Napoleon's Grit

News Items

Base ball is too tame now, let's talk fight.

Mrs. John George left Saturday for a visit with Goshen relatives.

Henry Hathaway and family and Mrs. Langley were at Wayne, Tuesday on business.

Z. T. Kagey and wife of Auburn, were Monday guests in the home of their son Chas. and family.

THE NEWS will go into several new homes this week. We are growing every week. Let us send it to you.

Chas. Hart, wife and Miss Adams; Clarence Coburn and lady friend Miss Mary Armand, all from Indianapolis, visited Sunday and remained over the Fourth with friends and relatives near Coburntown.

Mrs. Rahe and son Wm. of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Ellerman of Indianapolis, and Miss Vera Johnson of Hicksville, spent the Fourth with H. L. Dunkle and family.

Japanese Buckwheat Seed. Leave orders at Dunkle's Drug Store, St. Joe, or 'phone 62-5.

E. E. Berry made a couple of real estate deals last week, that of selling Mahlon Baker's property on West Main street to Mr. Burwell, who is about to move here from Churubusco. Mahlon then buys an Auburn home, located west of the new ward school building. Mr. Baker will vacate his present home within a short time but will remain here until fall as he has rented his Auburn property.

The world's most successful medicine for bowel complaints is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It has relieved more pain and suffering, and saved more lives than any other medicine in use. Invaluable fof children and adults. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE,
ST. JOE, IND.
Office in Case building.
Bell Phone No. 44.

D. F. BROWN,
.....SHOE SHOP.....

My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite the Postoffice. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.

St. Joe, - Ind.

S. S. Kimes
—M. D.—

Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.

Phone No. 10.
Spencerville, Ind.

Miss Rodgers of Albion, visited for the past week with Wm. Koch and family.

5% FARM LOANS 5%

SEE

Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston &, Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.
Bell 347k Home 346
Office:
Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Elza Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son,

Phone No. Office 37-2. Residence 37-3

JULY

0437

L 904

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

SPENCERVILLE

THE NEWS $1.00 per year.

Martin Davis is having his barn repaired.

Ett Walker and wife were Spencerville visitors Wednesday.

Mrs. Walter Wilson visited her mother, Mrs. L. J. Steward, Thursday.

The Winner overalls and shirts are the best. Beams & Co., sell them.

Homer Cook and Cormie Kelley made a business trip to Fort Wayne last Thureday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Keesler, of Antwerp visited Mr. and Mrs. John Shilling Wednesday.

F. L. Beams and wife attended the commencement at St. Joe, Tuesday evening of last week.

Russel Silberg and Samuel Wearley assisted Mr. Daniel Oberholtzer in making hay last week.

Mrs. P. R. Cambray and little son, Kenton, of Payne, Ohio, and Miss Princess Krabill of St Joe, visited Mr. and Mrs. John Shilling the past week.

Nora and Homer Cook wish to thank their friends and neighbors, who so kindly remembered them on their birthday. They received fifty beautiful cards.

Ella Simons and family of Huntertown, attended the funeral of Mrs. Bowman, Sunday and were entertained to dinner at the home of Raymond Rhoads and family. Little Misses Allene and Lucile Rhoads accompanied them home for a few weeks visit.

Men and boys Oxfords at greatly reduced prices.

All $3.50 Oxfords $2.80
Boys $2.25 " $1.90

A few pairs of Ladies and Misses at great reduction in price. Beams & Co.

"Get on your old gray bonnet" and go along with the rest of the folks to the Tiger Bill Wild West show, the only show in America carrying its own electric lighting plant. The Consolidated Wild West and Trained Animal show will exhibit both afternoon and evening, on Friday, July 8 at St. Joe.

Lydia Jane Steward is now confined to her bed. Last Wednesday she accidently fell in the house and injured her hip quite badly. She had been sleeping and upon waking up she arose and started into another room, her cane slipping letting her fall to the floor. A peddler came to the door at this time and she asked him to assist her in getting up, which he did. The hired girl had just stepped to a neighbors house for something and upon seeing the man enter the house she returned and soon found out the trouble. Dr. Shook was soon called and an examination made, showing her hip to be bruised considerable. Mrs. Steward is quite an aged lady and it will be some time before she will be about as usual.

FRED THOMAS

I have moved my blacksmith shop across the street to the Geo. Wilson property recently purchased by me. All customers will find me here at all times ready to attend to all work.

The Blacksmith.

Obituary.

Nettie Beams Bowman, daughter of Jno. W. and Alice Beams was born in Allen County, Ind., March 4th. 1875, departed this life June 30th. 1910. Aged 35 yrs. 3 months, 26 days. Was married to John M. Bowman, Aug. 14th. 1898, to which union was born four children, two preceding her to the Spirit World. She leaves to mourn their loss, a husband, two daughters, father and two brothers also one half-brother. Funeral services were held from the Lutheran church, Sunday conducted by Rev. Hitchner.

Local Items

Rev. Hitchner is a new reader of THE NEWS.

Mrs. Draggoo called on aunt Lydia Steward Monday.

Sam Steward is working at Grabill hauling logs for the mill.

Miss Arminta Steward spent Sunday with Miss Ethel Metcalf.

Mrs. Mary Repp visited with her brother, Lewis Beery, Tuesday.

Mrs. Maud Henderson and children were Auburn visitors Wednesday.

Rev. Byrt and family visited with friends at Ft. Wayne over the Fourth.

Mr. Sam Tarney of Auburn, visited his sister, Mrs. L. J. Steward Thursday.

Mr. Wm. Sommers and Frank Baltz were seen on our streets Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Rachel Horn and Mrs. Mason, spent Tuesday evening with Mrs. L. J. Steward.

Mrs. D. D. Metcalf left Tuesday for a week's visit with Rev. Barton and family at Economy.

Argyl Beams, Bessie Hart and John Provines were home the first of the week enjoying a few days vacation.

Soreness of the muscles, wnether induced by violent exercise or injury, is quickly relieved by the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment is equally valuable for muscular rheumatism, and always afford quick relief. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Frank Kimes and wife of Muskogee, Oklahoma, is the guest of his father, Geo. Kimes and other relatives this week.

Poplin and Soisette silk, a washable dress goods, goes at 21 cents. A regular 25 cent value. Beams & Co.

Word was received by Mrs. L. W. Steward last week, that Jennie, who is attending school at Marion, entertained the mumps last week. Mr. Connie Davis spent the Fourth with her.

When the stomach fails to perform its functions, the bowels become deranged, the liver and the kidneys congested causing numerous diseases. The stomach and liver must be restored to a healthy condition and Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets can be depended upon to do it. Easy to take and most effective. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

An Ingenious Infernal Machine.

Perhaps the most ingenious infernal machine ever devised was that made for the purpose of killing Louis Phillippe. This machine, planned by Fieschi, was calculated to do the work of twenty-five marksmen armed with muskets. The designer succeeded in killing nineteen persons and wounding twenty-four, including himself, but the King escaped.

Fieschi's machine consisted of a heavy oak platform mounted near a window. Upon this platform were fixed twenty gun barrels, side by side, and all depressed to cover the street below. The gun barrels were completely filled with balls and the entire rack fired almost as one by means of a train of powder laid along the back of the platform. This ingenious piece of machinery for the destruction of man, in which may be found the principle of the modern Maxim gun, occurred to Fieschi while he was serving in the army. The idea occurred to him again when he became a member of the secret society known as the Rights of Men and Citizens, by whom he was hired to assassinate the King.

Worked 24 Hours a Day.

The busiest little things ever made are Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar-coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, languor into energy, brain-fag into mental power; curing Constipation, Headache, Chills, Dyspepsia, Malaria. 25c, at H. L. Dunkle's.

Public Sale

OF COMPLETE LIVERY STOCK

Milton Krise will sell at his barn in St Joe, Indiana, at Public Auction his entire Livery Stock, on Saturday, July 9, at 1 o'clock the following to-wit: Eight head of good livery horses, 6 single buggies all in good repair, surrey, sample wagon, one 3 seated rig, Commercial rig, 3 Portland sleighs, set of light bob sleds, set of runners, 2 set light double harness, 7 set single harness, 7 heavy robes, 2 light robes, 3 pair of heavy blankets, 4 single blankets heavy, 9 dusters, will sell storm fronts, whips, bells, foot stones, buggy poles, shafts, office furniture, lanterns, 50 ft. new rubber hose, extra collars, bridles, lines, etc. Stock is all in first-class order and nearly as good as new. Terms made known on day of sale. J. L. Rhodenbaugh, auctioneer; A. D. Brunson, clerk.

Phone us the news or use our item box at the post office. We want all the news, but it is impossible to get it without your help.

A Lunch

PURCHASED AT

TREECE'S

RESTAURANT is always pleasing to the stomach as well as to the EYE and is clean and wholesome.

LUNCH
SOFT DRINKS
CIGARS-TOBACCO.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gently stimulate the liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system, cure constipation and sick headache. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

SPLINTERS.

A man doesn't have to be much of an orator to be a good speaker.

The girl with the pretty ankle never gets mud on the bottom of her skirt.

A man doesn't have to blow his own horn if he has done anything worth blowing about.

Man usually shows his inconsistency by a front seat in a theater and a rear seat in church.

Half the steam wasted in attending to other people's business would keep your own business going.

Boyce—Did Miss Smith really jab the highwayman with her hatpin? Joyce—No, she thumped him over the head with the knob on the end of it.

Mr. Bills—They say that Jones is a recognized authority on all economical questions. Mrs. Bills—Yes, I have seen his wife's clothes.

Bobbs—Smith says he never borrows trouble. Dobbs—That's right; I don't believe there is a man in the town who would take a chance on loaning it to him.

One on the Police.

A former American ambassador to Russia tells of a clever mot by a Russian official.

It appears that a French journalist, traveling in the Muscovite empire, complained bitterly of an extraordinary and suspicious delay in the forwarding of his mail.

To his polite but firm request for redress, the writer received a courteous communication from an official of the Russian postoffice department. Therein the official said:

"This delay is, of course, deplorable; but it must be considered that, with the police, it is as with the stomach—when one is aware of it, it is working badly."

Electric runabouts are popular in Spain.

Teething children have more or less diarrhoea, which can be controlled by giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. All that is necessary is to give the prescribed dose after each operation of the bowels more than natural and then castor oil to cleanse the system. It is safe and sure. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

WABASH CORNERS.

Winfield Pervines spent Saturday forenoon in Butler.

Some from this place attended the celebration at Hamilton's grove, Monday.

Some parties from New Haven carred clam shells at this place, last week.

Miss O'Brien of Churubusco, and Mrs Mabel Erick of Spencerville, spent Tuesday at Wm. Pervines.

Winfield Pervines spent Sunday at Edon, Ohio, and attended the celebration at Cold Spring on Monday.

Fred Reeder, wife and daughter Gertrude, of St. Joe, were Sunday guests of George Pervines and family.

Mrs. Minnie Ulm and son Fred, of Coburntown, Miss Claudia Gill of Auburn, Miss Lela Shilling, Mrs. Wm. Pervines and daughter Mary, little Elaine Pervines and Mrs. Angelia Wolff were the guests of Mrs. M. A. Ulm, Wednesday.

A post card shower was given Mrs. Emanuel Ulm, Wednesday, June 29th. it being her fifty-sixth birthday, she received eighty-five fine cards, a dish and two bouquets for which she wishes to thank all who kindly remembered her on this occasion.

DISHES OF THE GREAT.

Frederick the Great made a satisfactory meal on salt beef or pork and cabbage.

Ben Jonson asked no better treat than a pork pie, with an abundance of Canary wine.

Peter the Great consumed baked goose, stuffed with apples, and considered it a fine dish.

Raphael lived principally on dried fruits, such as figs and raisins, eating them with bread.

Locke considered that the proper breakfast for a studious man was a bit of fish and a piece of bread.

Mohammed was so abstemious that a handful of dates and a mouthful of water was all he required after a day of hard riding.

Napoleon Bonaparte was not at all choice in his eating habits. He would seat himself at the table, begin on the things that were nearest, and in ten or fifteen minutes he had made his dinner.

Prolific Nut Trees.

The nut trees of the world could, it is calculated, provide food all the year round for the population of the globe. Brazil nuts grow in such profusion that thousands of tons of them are wasted every year.

ST. JOE NEWS.

Read the ads and be posted.

Band concert Saturday evening.

Aaron Thomas and wife were Sunday guests of Edgerton relatives.

Several of our people were at Hamilton and Hickeville the Fourth.

Abner Copp and Henry Krabill were at Wayne, Thursday, on business.

Work was commenced Tuesday morning on building a new porch at the H. W. Krabill residence.

Prof. Geo. H. Leland made a hurry-up trip to Argos, Ind., Sunday. Leaving early in the morning and returning the same day on his motorcycle.

Johnny had been a very bad boy and when his father came home it was decided that he should talk to him instead of giving him the usual whipping. So the father took Johnny on his knee and said: "Johnny, do you know what happens to good boys?" "They go to heaven." "Don't you want to go there, Johnny?" "No; I'd rather go with you."

The dairymen say the farmers are making a great mistake by not planting pumpkins for the reason that they are both health and milk producers. After the frost kills the grass in the fall the milk cows begin to lose in flesh, and the milk flow diminishes. At this point the pumpkin takes up the work and furnishes the cow with something that has gone from the grass and places the animal in a position to receive grain. The jump from frosted grass of which there is no substance to grain is too sudden, but the pumpkins put in the missing link. Farmers tell us they cannot cultivate in the same field. This is true, but two or three acres should be given wholly to the raising of pumpkins for the cows in the fall or early winter.

Hard After the Drunks

State Health Commissioner Hurty has secured an agreement with the interurban and steam railroads whereby the latter companies will observe an old law, which prohibits carrying passengers with a jag on.

This is to prevent dry counties citizens from visiting wet cities and returning home with excess cargos of liquor under their belts. A drunken person comes under the classification of a nuisance.

WAIT FOR THE BIG SHOW

AS SHOWN IN TIGER BILL'S GREAT WILD WEST ARENA.

TIGER BILL'S WILD WEST BEST SHOW ON EARTH!

THIS GREAT CONSOLIDATED SHOW, WITH ITS TRAINED ANIMALS, COW BOYS, ROPERS, ROUGH RIDERS, SHARP SHOOTERS, LASSO THROWERS, STAGE COACH ROBBERY, AND ALL OF THE EXCITING FEATURES OF FRONTIER LIFE, TOGETHER WITH THE FUNNY CLOWNS, EDUCATED DOGS AND PONIES WILL BE SEEN IN THE BIG ARENA WITH THE GREAT TIGER BILL WILD WEST SHOWS AT

ST. JOE

Friday, July 8.

JULY

L 904

0438

DANGER SIGNALS.

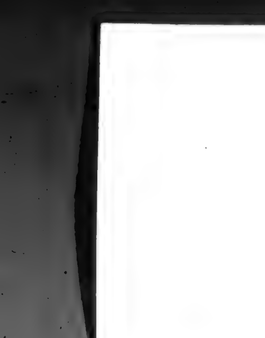
Sick kidneys give unmistakable signals of distress. Too frequent or scanty urinary passages, backache, headache and dizzy spells tell of disordered kidneys. Neglect of these warnings may prove fatal. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. They cure sick kidneys.

Mrs. M. A. Gamblin, Russellville, Ark., says: "I was in such bad shape from kidney disease that I gave up hope of my recovery. I could rest neither night or day, the pains in my back nearly driving me frantic. There were decided dropsical symptoms such as swelling of my feet and ankles and my heart palpitated violently. After doctoring without benefit, I began with Doan's Kidney Pills and when I had used two boxes I was as well as ever."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

JUNGLE AMENITIES.



Elephant—Say, Hippo, close that submarine opening of yours or the water will rush in and sink you.

Hippopottamus—Oh, lock up your trunk and put a strap round it if you don't want to have it busted.

SKIN HUMOR 25 YEARS

"Cuticura did wonders for me. For twenty-five years I suffered agony from a terrible humor, completely covering my head, neck and shoulders, so even to my wife, I became an object of dread. At large expense I consulted the most able doctors far and near. Their treatment was of no avail, nor was that of the —— Hospital, during six months' efforts. I suffered on and concluded there was no help for me this side of the grave. Then I heard of some one who had been cured by Cuticura Remedies and thought that a trial could do no harm. In a surprisingly short time I was completely cured. S. P. Keyes, 147 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Oct. 12, '09."

Face Covered with Pimples

"I congratulate Cuticura upon my speedy recovery from pimples which covered my face. I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent for ten days and my face cleared and I am perfectly well. I had tried doctors for several months but got no results. Wm. J. Sadler, 1614 Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, May 1, 1909."

Conquests.

"I have been engaged several times," boasted the first summer girl, "to men whose names I did not know."

"That's nothing," retorted the second summer girl. "I engaged myself last season to a stranger who wigwagged his proposal from a passing yacht."

Hard Task, Indeed!

Little Helen was at the seaside with her aunt, and in the house where they were staying was a telephone. One day she heard her mother talking from the city, and she was so terrified that she burst into tears.

"Oh, auntie, auntie!" she sobbed, "how shall we ever get mamma out of that little hole?"

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.

Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

Inference.

Ethel (confidentially)—Do you know, Clara, that I had two offers of marriage last week?

Clara (with enthusiasm)—Oh, I am delighted, dear! Then the report is really true that your uncle left you his money?—Pick-Me-Up.

Valued Absences.

"Always speak kindly of the absent," said young Mr. Primly.

"I would," replied Miss Cayenne, "if I thought it would be an inducement to some tiresome people to remain so."

Red, Weak, Weary, Watery Eyes. Relieved By Murine Eye Remedy. Try Murine For Your Eye Troubles. You Will Like Murine. It Soothes. 50c at Your Druggists. Write For Eye Books. Free Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

Be patient with everyone, but above all with yourself. I mean, do not be disturbed because of your imperfections, and always rise bravely from a fall.—Francis de Sales.

RED CROSS BALL BLUE

Should be in every home. Ask your grocer for it. Large 2 oz. package only 5 cents.

Men who remain neutral in times of public danger are enemies to their country.—Addison.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

Some animals multiply rapidly and some snakes are adders.

The REAL ARTICLE

By LOUISE OLNEY

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

Hal Phillips hung to his strap in the 9 o'clock down car, and thanked the fates he was stationed where he could study her back hair and the soft curve of her cheek. It was now March and all winter he had been watching the girl with a persistence hitherto all unrewarded. She had not even seemed to see him. He reflected discontentedly that she might safely glance at him some day, but she never had—so far as he could tell. So he continued to see her every morning, to wonder who she was, and to think how lonely he was there in the mid-west trying to make good in the law.

This girl, he said to himself, was the real article, and he had a captious taste. Her soft brown hair, coiffed demurely with a well-bred ignoring of the flamboyant fashion, was manifestly all her own; her dainty color came and went; her dainty figure swayed softly as she walked, and her manner was perfect. In three months he had been unable to decide what she did—she would not classify. She could not be a stenographer, nor a clerk; surely not a professional woman—she was too young, too sheltered looking. She left the car some blocks before he did, so he could not see where she went.

This morning as they neared her usual stopping place he looked up from his contemplation of her profile to meet the grin of Smith, who was hanging to a strap a bit farther on. Phillips nodded and frowned—Smith was such an observant wretch. He hoped he had not seen his interest in the girl. Just then the car stopped with a jerk, and Phillips, off his guard, swayed just in time to strike the girl's shoulder as she rose, and to loosen by the shock her hold on her immense handbag.

Furious at his awkwardness, he restored the bag, apologized as best he could in the three smiling seconds she gave him, and touched his hat as she got off. Then he watched Smith, who had an office in the same building with his. The idiot was still grinning—he would ignore the grin.

Getting off at their corner, the young men started for the building and entered the elevator in silence but Phillips, meeting his own stern blue eye in the mirror, frowned at himself in disgust. He had seen Smith lift his hat to the girl, and was wondering why he, Phillips, was such a confoundedly self-conscious donkey that he could not carelessly ask who she was, as another man would have done. Why not? But he couldn't—he had, somehow, become too personal to him to allow herself. Therefore, he mentioned the weather to Smith, who rose to the occasion and predicted a storm. Then they parted.

Once in his office, Henry Phillips read his mail—advertisements offering sets of law books on the installment plan; propositions for connections with not too reputable firms in greater cities; his mother's loving, anxious letter, with its accustomed questions about his health, his clothing and lodging, his friends, his success. Then finally, a letter from Linda, his lifelong neighbor and friend. Nice girl, Linda, he reflected, as he finished the balanced, cheerful, epistle with its unfeigned interest in his doings. For the first time he wondered why on earth he and Linda had never come to care for each other. Come to think of it, there was no girl quite like Linda! He decided that when he went home in the summer he would see a great deal of her, and he remembered that her hair was much like that of the girl in the car. Who was the girl, anyway?

He took the code and began working on the case he was soon to try, but his thought was confused. Why had he not met her? He had met many good people in the four months he had been in Bleirton, which was not big enough to preclude the possibility of his meeting most of the desirable folk therein. He had come well armed with introductions. He knew himself to be well bred, well looking. But the only girl he wanted to know, never came in his way, and never even seemed to see him. Manifestly, he could not follow her to wherever she worked—but he did not believe she worked. And he could not ask about her. Once he had seen her at the theater in a box with Mrs. Weston and a fine looking man, a stranger, and much her elder. He had seen her nowhere else—except on the car.

With a wrench, he brought his thoughts back to the law with such success that he forgot his lunch and went out for a sandwich an hour past his usual time. And by chance, he perched upon a stool in the lunchroom next to Smith, who welcomed him jovially.

"Just the man," Smith remarked. "Phillips, help me out! I'm bidden by my cousin, Mrs. Best, you know, to go out into the hedges and byways and find a presentable man to bring to dinner—some one failed her at the eleventh hour. You're neither maimed nor halt—though I won't say you're not blind, the way you knock against people in—cars, for instance!" He grinned maliciously as he continued. "But you'll do. I've intended for a long time past to ask you to call there with me, but haven't got round to it. Will you go tonight?"

Phillips accepted, equitably, but not too eagerly. He felt cross and unfit for society—a sure sign that he needed to mix more with his fellows. Smith went on talking.

"You're to take out Constance Morton, too, lucky dog! Guess you've not been introduced to her." He gave Phillips a sly look. "She came here from New Hampshire—not so far from our sacred Boston. You ought to know her. She's not been out much because she's busy with the Fairlie family portraits—has her studio in Wellington. Great stuff, to be a successful artist at barely twenty-five! Well, you'll see for yourself. I'll call for you about 6. So long!"

At 6:30, groomed within an inch of his life, glad to get away from himself and to be civilized for an evening, and hoping to get the girl out of his mind, Mr. Henry Phillips entered the Best home. He did wish that Smith did not grin so much, but others seemed not to mind. Mrs. Best was hospitality itself, and her three pretty daughters welcomed him with interest. But all this was nothing, for after a moment his hostess led him to a group near the fireplace, and his head began to go round queerly and his heart cut strange antics.

For the girl, sweet and lithe in her rose-colored gown, gave him her slender hand a moment, and smiled conventionally, quite as if she had never seen him before.

He was conscious, too, of a great joy, that her name was Constance—that was as it should be. And, thank heaven, she slurred her "r's"—he could not abide the western burring of that abused consonant. And presently he took her out to dinner—a very good dinner.

Fate was with him. The man on her other side was engaged to his dinner partner. And, afterward, she was his partner at cards. And he maneuvered until Mrs. Best asked him to see the girl home. Then she herself asked him to call.

Time slipped by after that, and Phillips alternated between hope and fear. Sometimes she seemed very near to caring; then for weeks at a time she would seem very far away.

Spring had come to her full and was gliding into early summer when, as often happens in love matters, a little thing brought the one great thing to pass. The two were taking a walk in the early twilight, and as they passed through a small park, he began abruptly to tell her that he was soon going "back east" for a long vacation. At the moment he was preceding her down some steps that led to the street and turned to offer her a hand, should she need it. He saw, surprised, that tears were running down her cheeks and that she was unable to answer a trifling question he was asking.

"Why, Constance—why"—he unconsciously used her name. "Why, what is it?" Then, suddenly, her foot slipped and she would have fallen but that he caught her in his arms.

"I'm—ashamed," she finally murmured, "but I think your talking of going home made me homesick. I did not mean to be a—baby—I—suppose I wanted to go home, too. I"—she stammered, but he at last found his tongue and his courage. He began to tell her how he loved her, had always loved her, always would love her. It was not a new tale in the world, but she listened with astonishing interest.

Twilight had passed into soft darkness before she remembered that she stood on the street letting a man make love to her. Then she remembered that her hands, though promised, were yet her own. She withdrew them.

Together, these two with one heart sauntered homeward. It was all very wonderful. They wondered why they had not realized it before. For she admitted that she had noticed him on the car, and had wormed much information out of the grinning Smith.

The Flag of Denmark.

In the year 1219, King Waldemar of Denmark, when leading his troops to battle against the Livonians, saw, or thought he saw, a bright light in the form of a cross in the sky. He held this appearance to be a promise of divine aid, and pressed forward to victory. From this time he had the cross placed on the flag of his country and called it the Dannebrog, that is, the strength of Denmark. Aside from legend, there is no doubt that this flag with the cross was adopted by Denmark in the thirteenth century, and that at about the same date an order, known as the order of Dannebrog, was instituted, to which only soldiers and sailors who were distinguished for courage, were allowed to belong. The flag of Denmark, a plain red banner bearing on it a white cross, is the oldest flag now in existence. For 30 years, both Norway and Sweden were united with Denmark under this flag.—Housekeeper.

Custom House Wisdom.

Custom house stories are always interesting, and here is a new one. The hero of it, a Swiss missionary, was returning to Basle from South America, bringing with him some skulls discovered in ancient Patagonian burying places.

At the frontier the authorities insisted on inspecting his trunk. They classified the skulls as "bones of animals," and demanded duty at the rate of a penny a pound. The missionary protested; and it was presently agreed that as the skulls were for scientific purposes they must be allowed to enter without payment.

The only question was how to classify them for the purposes of the Swiss statistical bureau. This problem was debated at great length, but ultimately the skulls went through as "personal effects already worn."

ONLY WANTED HIS CONSENT

Merchant Thought Caller Wanted Daughter's Hand, but He Wanted to Sell Automobile.

He was well dressed and breezy, and when he entered the private office of the great tea merchant he looked capable of doing anything from selling books to writing up insurance.

"I have come, sir," he announced without hesitation, "to get your consent—"

"Consent for what?" demanded the old man, without looking up.

"Well—er—you see, your daughter—"

"Oh, I understand now. So you like my daughter, eh?"

"I think she is the finest young woman I have met in many moons. As I was saying, if you'll give your consent she will have the handsomest—"

"Come! Come! Don't get vain and say she'll have the finest husband if she accepts you."

"I'm married, sir. I'm trying to tell you that if you give your consent she'll have the handsomest auto runabout in town. She's dead struck on it and if you'll consent and put up one thousand cash we will—"

But the great tea merchant had collapsed.

In a Barber Shop.

Senator Aldrich entered a barber shop in Washington not long ago and placed himself under the care of a colored barber.

When the senator was departing through the door, another customer inquired as to his identity.

"'Deed, sah," replied the barber, "dat's Senato' Alrich, who is de general manager of dese United States. I had seen 'im several times, but I nebber met 'im socially before."

Snodgrass' Scheme.

"I'll give you $100 if you'll move into the house next to mine," said Mr. Snodgrass to the man with the stentorian voice.

"What is your scheme?" vibrated the other.

"Why," explained Mr. Snodgrass, "the houses are a mile apart, and I'm trying to sell my house to a timid lady who specifies it must be within calling distance from her next-door neighbor."

High Lineage.

"This milk looks mighty blue," remarked the young man who had just put up $10 in advance for a week's board in the country.

"Yew bet it air," replied the rural host. "Thet comes from havin' nawthin' but peddygreed cows, by grass!"

Something Durable.

"What kind of cigars will you have?" asked the dealer. "Light, medium or strong?"

"Strong ones, by all means," said the blushing damsel. "Strong enough not to break in the young man's pocket, don't you know."

No Cause for Alarm.

Traveler—Here! Keep off! What the—Pullman Porter—Don't shy, sah! It am on'ly de vackum-cleaneh, which hab supehceded de microbey whisk broom in dis heah up-to-date car, sah!"—Puck.

His Argument.

"Kindly remove your arm from around my waist," said the proud beauty. "I could never learn to love you."

"How do you know you couldn't?" urged the persistent suitor. "You might at least try a sample lesson."

The Reverse.

"I once knew a woman who treated her husband like a dog."

"That's nothing, if you mean the comparison of suffering. I once knew a woman who treated her dog like a husband."

Hereditary Power.

Hoax—Poor old Henpeckke has to mind the baby.

Joax—Yes, it's wonderful how that baby takes after its mother.—Philadelphia Record.

A Mean Man.

"If you hadn't proposed to me nine times I never would have accepted you!"

"Quite true. I've had a sneaking suspicion ever since that eight is my lucky number."

Defined.

"What is suspended animation?"

"It's what happens at an afternoon tea when the very woman they have been talking about enters the room."—Puck.

No Bids.

"Scribe has started to writing poetry."

"He ought to take something for it."

"He would, but nothing's offered."

Cause and Effect.

"If Solomon was so wise, why did he marry 1,000 wives?"

"You've got it backward. It was his wives that wised him up."

Hopeless.

"What sort of chap is Tibbles?"

"The sort who'd dress up to go fishing."

Joint Owners.

Proud Mother—Oh, James! what do you think? The twins have another tooth.—Life.

TOKEN OF HIS APPRECIATION

Sarcastic Boarder, Evidently Disturbed by Little Things, Surprises Landlady With Present.

"Madam, you have been most attentive to me during my stay here."

"Thank you, sir, very much."

"Yes, you have been most attentive; and not only you, but everybody and everything in this house, if I may say so, has been most perseveringly attentive to me, day and night—and, madam, to show my appreciation I am going to offer you a small present."

"Oh, how very kind of you!" said the proprietress, and a bright, expectant smile lit up her face.

The boarder then handed her a neatly-packed parcel and made a hasty departure, while she hurried to see what it contained; but judge of her intense surprise, on opening it in the presence of the other boarders, to find that it contained only insect powder.

His Egg Producer.

Ashley—I suppose you remember that wonderful white Leghorn hen of mine?

Seymour—Yes; what about her?

Ashley—I want to tell you about her laying; it's something remarkable; why, some days last summer she laid more eggs than all my other hens put together.

Seymour—What was the matter with the other hens?

Ashley—They were sitting.

John's Foresight.

Mabel—Oh, John, papa asked me this morning if you play poker, and I'm in a quandary to know what to tell him. You—you see, I don't know how it might strike him.

John—He puts up a pretty fair game, doesn't he?

Mabel—I—I believe so.

John—Then tell him I know absolutely nothing about cards.

Would Try Simple Life.

"Say, Uncle Hiram," queried the city nephew, "if some one should give you half a million dollars what would you do?"

"Wall," replied the old man, "th' fust thing I'd do arter gittin' th' money would be tew sell th' farm an' retire tew th' city an' lead er quiet life, by grass!"

Limit Too High.

Travers—What became of that bunch of sweet girl graduates who banded together a year ago, declaring they would only marry men who could show at least $2,000?

Homer—Oh, the bunch is still intact; but I understand they recently voted to cut the limit down to $9.98.

Other Alms.

"Going to church this morning?"

"No. What's the sermon to be about?"

"'Planting Seeds of Righteousness.'"

"Pshaw! I've got to take a look at my garden."

Dangerous Explosive.

Mr. Honey Mooner (at lunch)—Pettie, there's something the matter with this tea; it's hardly lukewarm.

Mrs. Honey Mooner (apologetically)—Yes, dear, I know; but, you see, I couldn't risk having it any warmer. The box was labeled "Gun-powder tea!"—Judge.

Quite Right.

Church—It is said that in Spain shoe blacking is mixed with wine instead of water.

Gotham—Well, it's better, I suppose, to have wine go to your feet than to your head.—Yonkers Statesman.

Discovered at Last.

Mrs. Hix—They say Mrs. Gaffney has the real thing in the ideal husband line.

Mrs. Dix—Indeed.

Mrs. Hix—Yes. I understand he sits up and mends her clothes after she has gone to bed.

His Nature.

"I consider a professional diver as the modern model."

"How so?"

"Because though he always goes to the bottom of things he also rises to the occasion."

The Likeness.

"Do you know, Jinks, who is newly rich, and Binks, who is a connoisseur, always remind me of pugilistic dogs."

"How so?"

"Because the one is always snarling over the other's whine."

Proved His Courage.

Miles—Why do you think Knox is such a brave man?

Giles—Why, I once heard him tell a woman that her baby looked like all other babies.

No Excuse.

"Just received an invitation to attend a comet party."

"Going to accept?"

"Guess I'll have to. My friend sends an alarm clock."

Hard Hit.

Stella—Young Biddell seems to be infatuated with the girl he is engaged to.

Maud—Yes. They say he proposed after seeing her with her hair done up in curl papers.

Libby's Food Products

Are Best For Your Table

Because they are made of the choicest materials and guaranteed to be absolutely pure.

Libby's Veal Loaf makes a delightful dish for luncheon, and you will find Libby's

Vienna Sausage
Corned Beef
Pork and Beans
Evaporated Milk

equally tempting for any meal.

Have a supply of Libby's in the house and you will always be prepared for an extra guest.

You can buy Libby's at all grocer's.

Libby, McNeill & Libby
Chicago

Applause is only the clacking of tongues. Self-respect is better than fame.—Antoninus.

TAKE A FOOT-BATH TO-NIGHT

After dissolving one or two Allen's Foot Tabs (Antiseptic tablets for the foot-bath) in the water. It will take out all soreness, smarting and tenderness, remove foot odors and freshen the feet. Allen's Foot Tabs instantly relieve weariness and sweating or inflamed feet and hot nervousness of the feet at night. Then for comfort throughout the day shake Allen's Foot-Ease the antiseptic powder into your shoes. Sold everywhere 25c. Avoid substitutes. Samples of Allen's Foot-Tabs mailed FREE or our regular size sent by mail for 25c. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.
"Foot-Tabs for Foot-Tubs."

Or Scrambled It.

Shirts—of the "boiled" variety—are often very refractory, and it takes more than courage and patience to put one on. Mr. Jones, one evening, struggling into his, which was fresh from the laundry, remarked to Mrs. Jones that it was a foolish custom, this wearing of stiff shirts. A writer in Tit-Bits tells the story.

"We've got plenty of time, dear," said his wife. "I guess the only trouble is that the girl boiled it a little too long."

"Looks to me as if she had fried it!" said Mr. Jones, as his head emerged.—Youth's Companion.

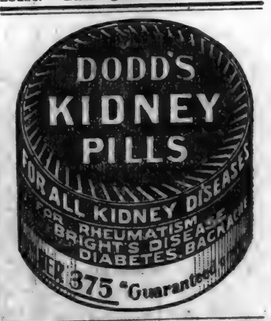
Your Great Grandmother Made Soap.

She would fill a barrel with wood ashes, let rain water seep through them to make lye, and then have a soap boiling day, using all the bacon rinds and scraps of fat meat and grease she had saved. She made soft soap. Nowadays women don't have to ruin their tempers and their health and their looks making soap, or toiling all day over the washing. Easy Task soap—a pure, white laundry soap made of clean tallow, cocoanut oil, borax and naphtha does the hard work in the laundry and everywhere else in the house that a safe and sure cleaner is needed.

Most Useless Ever.

"Can you imagine anything more useless than a comb without any teeth?"

"Yes; golf links without a clubhouse."—Birmingham Age-Herald.



A Skin of Beauty is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. Felix Gouraud's Oriental Cream or Magical Beautifier.

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash, and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 60 years, and is so harmless we taste it to be sure it is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the Skin Preparations." For sale by all Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers in the United States, Canada and Europe.

FERD. T. HOPKINS, Prop., 37 Great Jones Street, New York

JULY

D 439

L 904

MRS. FENTON

BY

W. E. NORRIS

CHAPTER VII.—(Continued.)

Fred, however, did not seem disposed to listen to well-meant advice upon that point.

He had never troubled himself much about the question of expenditure. He had not got into debt; but possibly he might have done so if the allowance which his uncle had made him had not been supplemented by tolerably frequent presents. However as that might be, it was evident that he could not afford to marry upon such an income; and when he realized this unquestionable fact his heart grew heavy within him. He did not share Mr. Breffit's confident belief that his cousin was dead and buried, the circumstance of her having remained silent for so long not appearing to him by any means as conclusive as it had appeared to the man of law. It was not very unnatural that she should have remained silent. Knowing what her father was, she must have known that he would never be persuaded to receive her husband, and she probably had not cared to crave a pardon which at the utmost would be extended to herself alone. So Fred, as he journeyed back toward London, had some serious thoughts to keep him company, not the least disagreeable of which was that he was now in honor bound to refrain from paying his addresses to Susie Moore. A man who has some definite prospects may be justified in asking the girl who loves him to wait for better times; but Fred's prospects were indefinite in the last degree, and he could not but feel that the finger of duty beckoned him away from Cromwell Road for the present.

CHAPTER VIII.

On the afternoon of Fred's return he looked in at a club of which both he and General Moore were members, and it so happened that General Moore was the first person whom he came across in the smoking-room. The General jumped up, shook his young friend by the hand, and endeavored to assume a proper air of affliction. "So sorry to hear of your loss, my dear fellow! Very sudden, was it not? I'm afraid you can hardly have been in time to see your uncle alive."

"I was too late by a good many hours," answered Fred. "I didn't even know that he was ill until I got home from your house the other night, when I found a telegram waiting for me. He must have died at the very time when our theatricals were coming to an end."

"Dear, dear!—how very sad, to be sure! Although," added the General, with a cheerfulness which could no longer be repressed, "he wasn't exactly a young man, you know."

"Oh, he wasn't a young man certainly."

"And, really when you come to think of it, extreme old age isn't a thing to be desired. You were poor Dean Musgrave's only surviving relative, were you not?"

"Very nearly," answered Fred, with a slight smile.

"I presume, then," continued General Moore, casting aside all affectation of sorrow, "that we may congratulate you upon having come into a very handsome fortune."

The General turned rather red and felt a little ashamed of himself after he had made this interrogative remark, which, it must be confessed, was not in the best taste. But there were excuses for him. He knew that when he reached home he would be sure to let out that he had met young Musgrave at the club; he knew that he would be questioned by his wife, and he also knew that she would be displeased with him if he should profess himself unable to answer her questions.

Fred hesitated for a moment, but only for a moment, before replying, "My uncle left me £10,000."

General Moore's chin dropped and his eyes grew round. "Ten thousand pounds! God bless my soul! do you mean to say that he had no more than that to leave?"

"The lawyer tells me that he had something like £200,000; but the whole of it, except my share and a few small legacies, goes—as of course it ought to go—to his daughter. Until I heard the will read I had no idea that he had a daughter, but it seems that there is such a person, though nobody knows her exact whereabouts at present. She married against my uncle's wishes shortly before I went to live with him, and apparently they have never met since. However, he behaved generously to her at the last."

"Generously!—yes; he behaved generously to her, and no mistake! But I must own—however, it's no business of mine. And nobody knows where this woman is, you say?"

"Well, it is known she sailed for New Zealand after her marriage. I dare say we shall soon have news of her."

"What—what a very unpleasant surprise!" General Moore could not help ejaculating. "You take it most good-humoredly, Musgrave; but it must be a great blow for you; I defy any man not to feel such a thing as a blow. Still," he added, presently, "there's always a chance that your cousin may have died in New Zealand. In that event you would inherit, I suppose."

"Yes; in that event everything would go to me, as the next of kin."

"Oh, well," returned the general, rubbing his hands, "we'll hope for the best then."

Like Mr. Breffit, he was strongly of opinion that the only child of a man who possessed £200,000 does not allow the fact of her existence to remain a secret for twelve years, and he said as much, adding, while he moved away, "Come and look us up when you've nothing better to do, Musgrave. Always glad to see you."

But Mrs. Moore, when this deplorable tale was related to her, decided that intimacy with young Mr. Musgrave must for the time being be discouraged. "Of course we can't ask him to dinner while he is in such deep mourning; and although one wouldn't wish to seem unfriendly, it would be as well to keep him at a certain distance until we know a little more. Oddly enough, somebody—I can't remember who—told me about this daughter of the old Dean's on the evening of the theatricals. It is really very unfortunate! Such a nice young fellow in every way; and a fortune of £200,000 too! But for Susie's sake we are bound to be careful."

The General concurred. Neither he nor his wife were more worldly than their neighbors; but it stands to reason that when you are blessed with a daughter who is of an age to marry, you cannot allow yourself the additional luxury of perpetually welcoming handsome young paupers to your house.

Taking all this into consideration, Mrs. Moore judged it advisable to write a very kind note to the young man, in which much sympathy was expressed for him in his bereavement and no allusion was made to his uncle's will. In a postscript she added: "I don't know whether you care about seeing your friends just now, but you would always be pretty sure of finding us at home between half-past 5 and 6 o'clock." And for a whole week afterwards she took very good care to be out at the hour named; which was a needless precaution, since during that time Mr. Musgrave did not avail himself of her permission.

When at length he did call, Mrs. and Miss Moore happened to return from their drive while he was standing on the doorstep, and of course they could do no less than ask him to come in and have a cup of tea. He, for his part, did not see how he could decline the invitation without rudeness; and his conscience, which had kept him away from South Kensington for so long, allowed him to accept it upon the condition that he should abstain from any marked attention to Miss Moore.

CHAPTER IX.

Susie apparently had not much to say to him; but perhaps that was because her step-mother did not give her the chance. Mrs. Moore was extremely amiable and extremely talkative. They had a great many engagements and were very busy, she said.

"I hear of all sorts of entertainments in prospect; we ourselves shall be going to two dances later on, I think. So sorry we shall not see you at them; but of course you won't be going out."

Indeed, she laid a good deal of stress upon this point, and recurred to it repeatedly in the course of her conversation, seeming to take it for granted that Mr. Musgrave would retire from society for the remainder of the season.

However, her manner was as friendly as possible; and if the impression which she conveyed (and desired to convey) to her visitor was that they were likely to have very few opportunities of meeting for a long time to come, she also implied that this was a source of sincere regret to her. Fred went away pretty well pleased with her and much pleased with himself. He considered that he had behaved very nicely under such circumstances of exceptional difficulty; he had scarcely spoken a word to Susie, nor had he said anything of a nature to betray his secret. Once or twice, it was true, their eyes had met, but that had been unavoidable. Fred had, in fact, betrayed his secret to an intelligent observer quite as effectually as he could have done through the medium of speech; and after he had taken his leave Mrs. Moore looked meditative and serious.

The outcome of her meditations was that she remarked, "That young man will never make his fortune, I'm afraid."

"Why not?" asked Susie.

"He seems to me to take things far too easily. His uncle's will must have been a great surprise and disappointment to him; yet he talks as though nothing were changed."

"Grumbling wouldn't make the difference any less," observed Susie.

"Of course not; and nobody would wish him to grumble. But his friends, I should think, might wish him to show some sign that he appreciated the necessity of carving out a career for himself."

Susie replied rather warmly that she thought Mr. Musgrave accepted adverse fortune quite as a gentleman should. He might intend to carve out a career for himself without brandishing his carving-knife in the face of all his acquaintances. "His uncle seems to have treated him very badly," she added in conclusion.

"Well," said Mrs. Moore, in an impartial tone, "I am not quite so sure of that. From what I have heard lately he can have taken no trouble at all to conciliate his uncle, and one can't deny that a daughter has better claims than a nephew."

"But he ought to have been told that there was a daughter."

"Perhaps he would have been told if he had asked. I really think that it was his business to inform himself, instead of assuming that he must necessarily be the heir, whether he obeyed orders or not."

Mrs. Moore said this partly because she really meant it, and partly because she did not wish Fred Musgrave to become too interesting a figure in Susie's sight. Should circumstances, after all, place his late uncle's fortune in his hands, there would be nothing in the criticisms which she had uttered to debar her from consenting joyfully to his union with her step-daughter, and she would have defeated her own object if she had exceeded the limits of legitimate criticism or given Susie an excuse for taking up the cudgels on his behalf.

The girl showed no disposition to do so, merely remarking, "He dances very well; I'm sorry it won't be allowable for him to go to any more balls this summer."

Possibly such bereavements as Fred had sustained should make it improper for the bereaved ones to show their faces in society for two or three months; but they are not regarded in that light by the general run of nephews.

Fred had no lack of leisure time (for it is evident that if you want to produce a really good comedy, with some strong situations in it, you must above all things avoid hasty workmanship), and he was a member of the Marylebone and other clubs, and had an abundance of friends. Besides, do what he would, he could not help regarding the present period as one of transition. It was all very well to say that he would assume his cousin's existence as proved; but there are serious difficulties in the way of basing your whole manner of life upon a mere assumption, and the more he tried to familiarize his mind with the idea of practicing at the bar the more he hated it.

So far, nothing had been heard of Mrs. Fenton. Inquiries—so Mr. Breffit informed Fred—had been instituted by telegram in the principal towns of New Zealand, but without result; and now advertisements had been inserted in all the leading colonial newspapers. "We shall have news of some kind before long, you may be sure," the lawyer declared. "People don't disappear in these days even when they want to disappear, much less when they have no motive for concealing themselves."

Now it came to pass one fine morning in the month of May that Musgrave had an appointment which obliged him to walk across Hyde Park; and when, among the crowd of ladies who were seated beneath the trees there, he recognized Mrs. Moore and her step-daughter, what could he do but stop and speak to them? They had not met for such a very long time that it would have looked decidedly odd if he had walked on without addressing a word to either of them; and, indeed, they both appeared to be pleased to see him. Mrs. Moore was engaged in conversation with an elderly gentleman; and as the chair by Susie's side was vacant, Fred thought there could be no great harm in his occupying it just for a minute or two, and asking her how she was enjoying her first season.

She was enjoying it very much, upon the whole, she said; and she had heard that he also was enjoying himself. "Papa says you are playing cricket all day and every day."

"Well, hardly that," answered the young man; "but I have been playing in rather more matches than usual this year. You speak as if I oughtn't to have been playing. What ought I to have been doing!"

"Oh, I shouldn't presume to say. Wearing a wig and gown, perhaps."

"So I will, as soon as somebody is obliging enough to give me a brief. In the meantime I go on with my literary work, such as it is. I really am not a loafer, Miss Moore, though I know you set me down as one. I am not half such a loafer as Claughton, for instance."

"Are you not?" asked Susie, innocently. "I should have thought—but of course I know nothing about it. Only papa always says that Captain Claughton is a very keen soldier."

"It's bad luck to him if he is, because he belongs to a corps which never sees any active service."

"Well, the Life Guards were sent to Egypt, you know."

"So we are always being reminded," answered Fred, whose good-humor was not proof against this attempt to represent his rival as a hero; "but there wasn't much fighting worth speaking of there."

"They were not to blame for that, I suppose," Susie was beginning; but now Mrs. Moore somewhat abruptly dismissed her elderly friend and rose.

"Susie, dear," she said, "we really must be making our way home. Good-by, Mr. Musgrave; do come and see us some afternoon when you have nothing better to do."

This was quite kindly said; but for all that, Fred walked away feeling rather sore and with an intuitive conviction that Mrs. Moore was not particularly anxious for his company. Moreover he was conscious of having been undeservedly snubbed by Susie. Was it possible that his changed fortunes had caused him to lose her favor? Or had her step-mother been setting her against him?

Both of these things were perfectly possible and even, from an abstract point of view, probable, but neither of them happened to be true. Had Fred been able to look into the not very obscure depths of the girl's mind he would have discovered that, if she was displeased with him, it was because she was a little hurt by his recent inexplicable neglect of her. But such tremendous powers of penetration as that are granted to few young men and to no lovers.

(To be continued.)

The Noise.

She (on the parlor sofa, in a very low tone)—Sh! What's that?

He (also in a low tone)—What?

"That sound. I thought it was papa coming."

"No, dear; that was my last cigar being broken in my vest pocket."—Yonkers Statesman.

Better Than Gasoline.

He—Those are awful smelling cigars you gave me for my birthday.

She—I know it, dear.

He—Why did you give them to me, then?

She—To kill the gasoline smell when we are motoring.—Yonkers Statesman.

Unexpected.

"That's a fine umbrella you are carrying."

"Th-thank you."

"For what?"

"For not claiming it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Retribution may come from any voice. Surely, help and pity are rarer things—more needful for the righteous to bestow.—George Eliot.

CORN PLANTING IS OVER

THAT CANADIAN TRIP SHOULD NOW BE TAKEN.

If you had intended going to Canada for the purpose of purchasing land on which to establish a home and accompanying some land company, whose holdings you proposed to look over or to go up on your own account to select one hundred and sixty acres of land free, you should delay no longer. Corn-planting is over, your wheat crop is well ahead, and you have a few weeks' time before you are required in the fields again. Now make your intended trip. Reports at hand show that the crop prospects in Canada were never better than they are today. The cool weather has not affected the crop, but if anything, it has been a benefit. There has been plenty of moisture and those who have had their land properly prepared took upon this year as likely to be one of the best they have had. A great many are going up this season who expect to pay two or three dollars an acre more than they were asked to pay last year. Others who wish to homestead are prepared to go farther from the line of railway than would have been necessary last year. Still it is worth it. So it will be with you. Next year lands will be higher-priced and homesteads less accessible. There is a wonderful tide of immigration to Central Canada now. It is expected that one hundred and fifty thousand new settlers from the United States will be numbered by the end of the present year, an increase of fifty per cent over last year. In addition to this there will be upwards of one hundred thousand from the old country, which does not include those who may come from the northern countries of the Continent. These all intend to settle upon the land. The reader does not require an answer to the questions, "Why do they do it?" "Why are they going there in such large numbers?" Western Canada is no longer an experiment. The fact that one hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat were raised there last year as against ninety-five millions the year previous, shows that the tiller of the soil in Central Canada is making money and it is safe to say that he is making more money than can be made anywhere else on the Continent in the growing of grains. He gets good prices, he has a sure and a heavy crop, he enjoys splendid railway privileges, and he has also the advantages of schools and churches and such other social life as may be found anywhere. It is difficult to say what district is the best. Some are preferred to others because there are friends already established. The Grand Trunk Pacific, on its way across the Continent, is opening up a splendid tract of land, which is being taken up rapidly. The other railways—the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern are extending branch lines into parts inaccessible a couple of years ago. With a perfect network of railways covering a large area of the agricultural lands it is not difficult to secure a location. Any agent of the Canadian Government will be pleased to render you assistance by advice and suggestion, and a good plan is to write or call upon him. The Government has located these agents at convenient points throughout the States, and their offices are well equipped with a full supply of maps and literature.

Awful Prospect.

One day recently a clergyman was performing a marriage ceremony at the parsonage in the presence of his little son. The boy listened very attentively while his father pronounced the couple husband and wife, then going to his mother he said:

"Mamma, when a man marries a woman, must he live with her?"

"Yes, dear," his mother replied.

The boy was thoughtful for a moment and then said:

"Mamma, must papa live with all the women he has married?"

Horrible Thought.

"But why do you think we are in imminent danger of a war with England?"

"Ain't Alfred Austin just as likely as not to write a poem on the occasion of Roosevelt's visit?"

ALL UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPERS Use Red Cross Ball Blue. It makes clothes clean and sweet as when new. All grocers.

No one need speak of monotony if only they just look around for another's wants.—Royston.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

How we dislike the dentist who spares no pains.

A Woman's Advice.

A woman was looking over the shoulder of a man who was writing this item, and just when he got to this point, and was writing the word "soap," she said:

"There's one great essential in a laundry soap. It must be a soap that will not rot the clothes or the fabrics. Some soaps will clean goods, but they rot them; others have sticky, yellow rosin in them and stain the clothes yellow. Just you write that Easy Task soap saves half the work and saves all the clothes and drives away the dirt and keeps away the disease germs, and is the best soap I ever found."

And so her advice has been followed, for women know soap.

Gasoline Engines.

Gasoline engines are only used to a limited extent as yet. They are just coming into use. One dealer estimates about five per cent. replacing windmills. People are very conservative about improvements.

THE FINEST FABRIC is coarse compared with the lining of the bowels. When irritated we have pains, diarrhea, cramps. Whatever the cause, take Painkiller (Perry Davis').

To love and to serve is the motto which every true knight should bear on his shield.—Downs.

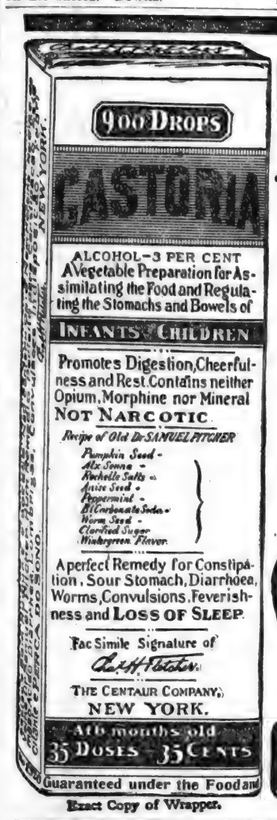
A PACKAGE MAILED FREE ON REQUEST OF

MUNYON'S PAW-PAW PILLS

The best Stomach and Liver Pills known and a positive and speedy cure for Constipation, Indigestion, Jaundice, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Headache, and all ailments arising from a disordered stomach or sluggish liver. They contain in concentrated form all the virtues and values of Munyon's Paw-Paw Tonic and are made from the juice of the Paw-Paw fruit. I unhesitatingly recommend these pills as being the best laxative and cathartic ever compounded. Send us a postal or letter requesting a free package of Munyon's Celebrated Paw-Paw Laxative Pills, and we will mail same free of charge. MUNYON'S HOMŒOPATHIC HOME REMEDY CO., 53d and Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

DEFIANCE STARCH easiest to work with and starches clothes nicest.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 27–1910.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Think of Last Summer—

You can remember days when the heat inside your kitchen was so great you could hardly bear it. With the right stove you would have made a better hostess. Save your health. Don't put up with the drudgery of a coal range. You can have a clean, cool, pleasant kitchen. The does away with all drudgery of cooking. Why should you be a slave to a coal range when you can have an Oil Cook-Stove that is cheaper than coal, cleaner than coal, doesn't "smell," doesn't smoke, lights instantly, can be put out instantly, leaves no ashes, and doesn't heat the kitchen. With one of these stoves you can boil, bake or roast the most elaborate dinner. You can change from a slow to a quick fire, or the other way about, by simply turning a wick. Apply a match, and instantly the heat from an intense blue flame shoots upward through the turquoise-blue enamel chimneys to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven—but nowhere else. The stove has every convenience that can be thought of: Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping food and dishes hot, drop shelves to hold coffee or teapots, towel rack; in fact every convenience possible.

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive.

Caution Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

Every dealer everywhere. If not at yours, write for Descriptive Circular to the nearest agency of the Standard Oil Company

(Incorporated)

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so?

The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as sacredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N.Y.

Work While You Sleep

Millions of people have CASCARETS do Health work for them. If you have never tried this great health maker—Get a 10c box—and you will never use any other bowel medicine.

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

LIVE STOCK AND MISCELLANEOUS ELECTROTYPES In great variety for sale at the lowest prices by WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION, 1536 W. Adams St., Chicago

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

JULY

0440

L 904

Free Attractions at

ROBISON PARK July 4-10.

The Circus Thriller

Dare-Devil Chefalo in his death, defying Looping the Loop! He rides down a 60 foot incline, then with one tremendous whirl he loops the loop and with a mighty leap into space, he loops the flume. All in one amazing hair raising act. You will want to see him more than once. He was the expensive treasure at the Indiana State Fair in 1909. Chefalo will be at Robison Park July 4th and all the following week including Sunday July 10th. You will want to see him more than once.

CORRESPONDENCE

ITEMS FROM DIFFERENT LOCALITIES WRITTEN FOR THE NEWS

Fairview Neighborhood

Mr. D. W. Baker is making his barn look handsomer than new—paint.

Roy Kinsey has the job of papering Fairview Church, having completed the steel ceiling. It is expected to re-open the church, Sunday the 21th.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Baker and daughter, of Jackson Tp., visited relatives here Monday.

Too much hay on one side of the load or too little on the other caused an upset for Lankey Morr the 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Johnston returned from their fishing excursion in Michigan, Tuesday.

Mr. Wm. Hollabaugh visited his daughter Sylvia, and grandaughter Dorothy, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sherer, Monday evening. Mrs. Alda Brown and sons, Lawrence and Paul, were also callers.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Ginther and daughter Dorothy, of South Bend, Ind., Mr. and Mrs Albert Ginther and Frank Ginther of Ft. Wayne, Mr. Earl Sherer of Chicago, and Herbert of Lansing, Mich., were guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sherer, Sunday and Monday. It was the first time in four years they were all at home at the same time, and it is said baby Dorothy was the magnet which drew them all together. Miss Ines Staley of Oakwood, Ohio, was also a guest.

SPENCERVILLE
R. F. D. No. 1.

Mrs. John Mason was a Ft. Wayne shopper last Saturday.

Mr E L. Dilley returned from his visit in Ohio last week.

A very pleasant surprise was given Mrs. D. K. Horn the evening of the Fourth, by her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. George Horn and sons Jennings and Walter, Mr. and Mrs. John Horn and daughter Leila and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horn and daughter Venus. The evening was spent in visiting and singing patriotic songs, after which ice cream and cakes were served.

John Notestien and family spent the Fourth at Robison Park.

Mrs. R. W. Dwyer and children spent a few days last week with her sister, Mrs. Swayne, near Ft. Wayne

Miss Mary Horn visited a week with her cousin, Miss Blevere Cummins, of Harlan.

Dr. Shutt of Ft. Wayne was visiting a few days last week at D. K. Horn's.

COUNTY LINE NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs Harney Walter are spending a few days with Wm. Means and family.

Rufus Strong and wife, and Miss Pearl Armstrong spent Sunday with Wm. Means and wife.

C. A. Conner is hauling cement blocks.

Joe Goldsmith and family had a fine display of fire works, Monday evening

Geo. Keister and wife, and Chas. Bishop and wife spent Monday afternoon with E. G. Armstrong and family.

W. T. Wyatt and wife were at Ft. Wayne, Monday.

Miss Cora Bishop spent Saturday evening with Miss Pearl Armstrong.

Tom Stafford and family spent Saturday evening with E. J. Armstrong and family.

Miss Georgia Surface of Garrett, spent a day last week with Miss Pearl Armstrong.

Dan Mowery and wife of Butler Center, spent Saturday night with R. R. Wyatt and wife.

Elmer Bishop and wife took dinner with A. E. Sponhour and family, Sunday.

Miss Zulu Sponhour spent July 4th. with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fernwalt of Ft. Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Klopfenstein took dinner with W. T. Wyatt and wife, Sunday.

Miss Zema Nickerson of Kendallville, and Miss Ruth Bishop of Auburn, are spending the week at A. E. Sponhours'.

E. J. Armstrong and wife, and Mrs. Cora Sponhour spent Sunday with Chas. Huffman of St. Joe, who is in poor health.

E. J. Wyatt, wife and daughter Myrtle, Mr. and Mrs. Ford Newton of Auburn, and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Porter of Cedarville, spent the Fourth with Wm. T. Wyatt and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Otto were the victims of a pleasant surprise Saturday evening in honor of Mrs. Otto's birthday. About 54 guests were present to enjoy ice cream and cake and many other good things.

J. Steinborn and family, who recently purchased the Metcalf farm, gave the community a large display of fire works, Monday evening. The community can heartily appreciate a celebration of this character. The explosion and whiz of the sky rocket are far more thrilling than the explosion of Temper and the rumble of wrathful cannon.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Mowery of Butler Center, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Rinehold and Master Ell, Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh R. Wyatt, Master George and Miss Helen, went to Artic, Sunday, to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Burtzner and family. Mr. Burtzner met them at Artic and took them to his home on the hay rack where they were turned loose to enjoy the day. Mr. Burtzner was reminded that he had just passed a birthday on the day called Saturday. The children waded in the brook near by and had a long play day. Mrs. Burtzner filled the table with good things which rapidly disappeared at the noon hour. The day was enjoyed by all and will not soon be forgotten.

Susan Conner of Elcott City, Maryland, is spending a few days with C. A. Conner and family.

Ben Gerig and wife, Geo. Lochner and wife, Solomon Goldsmith and wife and Joe Goldsmith and wife took Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sponhour.

Chas. Hart and wife and Miss Adams of Indianapolis, called on Mr. and Mrs. Saxe Hadsell Sunday afternoon.

Comrades Attention.

The DeKalb County Veteran Association will meet in St. Joe, about the middle of August. Colonel Beidler of Waterloo, Commander, will issue an order soon, giving the exact time of the meeting.

It is desired that all members of John C. Carnes, Post G. A. R attend the next regular meeting, at 2 o'clock P. M., Saturday, July 9th. to take part in devising ways and means to properly entertain the comrades attending.

M. Baker, Adjutant. J. D. Leighty, Commander.

W. G. Erick

TRUSTEE

of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY

TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK

at Store in

SPENCERVILLE, IND

WISE'S CORNERS.

Everybody busy making clover hay, this week.

George Welch spent last Tuesday evening at Benjamin Smiths'.

Wayne Hughes of Hicksville, made several business calls in our vicinity, this week.

James Munn and Samuel Smith were at Hicksville buying a hay loader, Tuesday.

J. D. Spitler, wife and daughter Margie, were at Will Millers', Tuesday evening.

Gertrude Smith visited with friends near Antwerp, Ohio, Friday.

Several from our neighborhood attended the funeral of Mrs. John Bowman at Spencerville, Sunday afternoon.

Elmer Smith and family spent Thursday afternoon at W. L. Smiths'.

Miss Ethel and John Shutt spent Thursday in Spencerville.

Charley Markle and Herby Webb are assisting Lewis Markle making hay, this week.

Elmer Volkert lost a valuable horse last week. Spasmotic colic was the cause of its death.

Mrs. Julia Bice spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Nettie Welch.

Frank Wertmans' and Edd Billmans' spent last Saturday evening at Grabill.

Grove Meeting

The Third Annual Meeting of the five Christian Churches, St. Joe, Coburns Corners, Harlan, Newville and Milford, will be held in Railroad Park on the first Lord's day in August. Gary L. Cook, of Indianapolis, State Bible School Superintendent, will be the speaker, morning and afternoon. A basket dinner will be served at the noon hour. Everybody come.

No Better Flour

MADE IN

DeKalb Co.,

THAN

Daily Bread Flour

Keesler Mg. Co.

ST. JOE, - - - - INDIANA

SHOULD NOT BE PRE-EMINENT.

"Side Shows" of College Life Must Be Ousted from Present Dignity.

According to Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, a young man can learn to become the manager of a foot ball team or of a residential club, the leader of an orchestra or a glee club, the star of amateur theatricals, an oarsman or a chess player without putting himself to the trouble or his parents to the expense of four years at a college. These are innocent enough things for him to do and to learn, though hardly very important in the long run; they may, for all I know, make for efficiency in some of the simpler kinds of business; and no wise man who knows college lads would propose to shut them off from them or wish to discourage their interest in them. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, not only, but may make him a vicious boy as well. Amusement, athletic games, the zest of contest and competition, the challenge there is in most college activities to the instinct of initiative and the gifts of leadership and achievement—all these are wholesome means of stimulation, which keep young men from going stale and turning to things that demoralize. But they should not assume the front of the stage where more serious and lasting interests are to be served. Men cannot be prepared by them for modern life.

The college is meant for a severer, more definite discipline than this; a discipline which will fit men for the contests and achievements of an age whose every task is conditioned upon some intelligent and effective use of the mind, upon some substantial knowledge, some special insight, some trained capacity, some penetration which comes from study, not from natural readiness or mere practical experience.

The side show need not be abolished. They need not be cast out or even discredited. But they must be subordinated. They must be put in their natural place as diversions, and ousted from their present dignity and pre-eminence as occupations.

What's in a Name?

One member of Congress employs in writing a perplexing system of abbreviation, which might be termed a combination of short and long hand.

Some of his colleagues were one day speaking of his craze for brevity, when one said, "Blank has certainly brought his system to a fine point; but there was a chap in my State, Kentucky, who distanced all competitors in this respect. His name was Will Knott, and, so keen was his mania for abbreviation, that in writing to friends he invariably subscribed himself 'Wan't.'"

Used to It.

"John Strange Winter, Frank Danby and Helen Mathers, three well-known English novelists, have given up novel writing for the good reason that they can't make any money at it."

The speaker, a publisher of New York, smiled grimly.

"It gives point to a story that John Strange Winter—she's a woman—told me last year. At a seaside hotel, when she informed the landlady that she was a novelist, and no less a one than the author of 'Booties' Baby,' the landlady answered with a queer smile:

"'Oh, I'm so glad! I like to entertain literary people so much! They never in the least mind paying in advance.'"

Electric runabouts are popular in Spain.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad

VERY LOW FARES TO

Mountain Lake Park, Md.—June 28-July 12.

Chicago—U. S. Army Tournament, July 7, 8, 9.

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO—Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES—South Southwest, West, Northwest.

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST, Long Limits.

Consult BALTIMORE AND OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stopover Privileges and Other Detailes.

Coburn's Corners

David Shull and wife of Michigan, are visiting with Joseph Shulls' for a few days.

Mrs. Alice Hart spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs Nelson Scholes.

Warren Coburn of Wayne, visited friends in the neighborhood over Sunday.

Miss Bessie Hart, who attends school at Valparaiso, spent the Fourth with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Kel Hart.

The Spencer Tp. convention will be held at the Corners, July 16-17. There is a short evening session on Saturday night and an all day session, Sunday.

There were 73 present at Sunday school, Sunday, with a collection of $2.28.

W. P. Coburn and family spent Sunday with Samuel Davis and wife of Jackson township.

Bert Milliman of Ft. Wayne, visited with his father, J. M. Milliman, on the Fourth.

Fred Hart and family, Clyde Hart and family and Nicholas Funk and family took Sunday dinner with Wm. Hamiltons'.

Ezra Coburn of St. Louis, Mo. visited over Sunday under the parental roof.

The picnic at the grove was quite well attended. The band boys feel that it was a success as they cleared $40. We surely wish them success in any further enterprise.

Philip Carper, wife and two children of near Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Abel, Byron Widney and wife of north of St. Joe, and Miss Susie Sechler spent Sunday with Ross Abel and wife..

Several from this place spent their Fourth in Hicksville.

Dr. Dubel, wife and two sons of Detroit, Mich., and Mr and Mrs. John Wright and daughter, of Hicksville, visited Walter Abel and wife, Tuesday. Mrs. Dubel is a neice of Mrs. Abel's. Mr. and Mrs. Dubel were enroute for California and stopped at this place, to visit relatives.

Cadmus Shull and wife spent Sunday at Nelson Lakes'. Mr. Lake is in a very critical condition and to add to his misery he is both deaf and blind.

Mr. H. C. Hathaway and family spent Sunday afternoon with relatives at Auburn.

Mrs. Chas. Thayer, Mrs. Daisy Culler and son, spent Sunday with friends here.

Not What He Meant.

Capt. Bradley S. Osbon, the famous sailor, said in New York in the course of a vigorous defense of Dr. Cook:

"Peary, in criticising Cook, only criticised himself. He was like the old uncle at the Zoo. An old uncle stood in the Zoo monkey house. He watched the monkeys' antics with stern disapproval. A doctor at his side laughed and said to him:

"'Uncle, they seem almost human, don't they?'

"The old man, with a look of disgust, answered coldly:

"'Human? Why, they ain't no more human than I am.'"

Did She Mean It?

Hostess—It's beginning to rain. You'll get wet. I think you'd better stay to dinner.

Departing Guest—Oh, dear, no! It's not raining so badly as all that.

Irish Chickens for England.

Ireland sends nearly 8,000,000 fowls yearly to English markets.

..Real Estate..

Insurance

NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to oan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

Does not Color the Hair

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Stops Falling Hair — An Elegant Dressing

Destroys Dandruff — Makes Hair Grow

Composed of Sulphur, Glycerin, Quinin, Sodium Chlorid, Capsicum, Sage, Alcohol, Water, Perfume. Ask your doctor his opinion of such a hair preparation.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Does not Color the Hair

J. C. AYER COMPANY, Lowell, Mass.

J. D. Leighty, President
E. Case, Vice President

W. C. Patterson, Cashier
S. W. Tustison, Asst. Cashier

Bank Statement

Report of the Condition of the St. Joe Valley Bank.

a private bank at St. Joe, in the state of Indiana, at the close of its business on June 30, 1910.

RESOURCES			LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts		$40 401 95	Capital Stock—paid in		$10 000 00
Overdrafts		3 25	Surplus		1 000 00
Other Bonds and Securities		100 00	Undivided Profits		6 434 18
Furniture and Fixtures		900 00	Demand Deposits		25 394 55
Due from Banks and Trust Co's	16 926 02		Demand Certificates		20 448 22
Cash on Hand	4 916 07		TOTAL LIABILITIES		$63 276 95
Cash Items	29 66
TOTAL RESOURCES		$63 276 95

State of Indiana, County of DeKalb ss:

I, W. C. Patterson, cashier of the St. Joe Valley Bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true.

W. C. PATTERSON,

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 2nd. day of July 1910.

S. S. WIDNEY, Notary Public.

seal

My commission expires April 16, 1912.

JULY

0441

L 904

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 14, 1910. NO. 28

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.
Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

JULY CLEARANCE SALE

Our July Clearance Sale of all summer lawns commences this morning. Radical reduction in price will prevail on all summer dress goods to make a quick clean-up of all we have in stock. These lines comprise Lawns, Dimities, Batistes, Soisettes Tissues, Mulls, Pongees, Madras, and wash Tussah silks.

10 cent goods	8c	25 cent goods	20c
15 " "	12c	35 " "	28c
20 " "	16c	50 " "	40c

MEN'S OXFORDS

Our shoe man makes it a business not to carry over any Men's oxfords and therefore has reduced the price good and strong to make a quick clearance of all he has in stock. You have four months to wear them yet and a little over half price is all you need to pay here in this sale for them. Douglas and Selz lines to select from.

☞We sell sewing machine needles to fit any machine made. Also shuttles and bobbins.

Local Items.

Buy your Gasoline at Burwell's.

Ralph Patterson is at Auburn, this week.

Get one of those 5 cent tablets at THE NEWS office. Our own make.

Carl Leighty, who underwent a slight operation last Wednesday, is better.

Henry Hull is feeling much better. Rheumatism is the principal complaint.

Mrs. S. B. Bernard and Emma Wineland went to Ft. Wayne, Tuesday, to spend a few days.

Roof painting is in order now. It pays to paint roofs often. The Baxter coal sheds were fixed last week.

Mrs. Beulah Beard of Waterloo, and Miss Richmond of Pittsburg, are guests in the home of W. H. Randall.

Merritt Hull is at Detroit, this week attending the National Elks Convention. He will return Friday evening.

Miss Hazel Starr and Miss Minnie Westerman of Harlan, were the guests of Callie Wineland for a few days last week.

Mrs. Lula Merchant of Minneapolis, Minn., is visiting this week in the home of Mrs. A. B. Filley, H. H. Kees and C. C. Woodcox.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Lutheran church will meet with Mrs. W. C. Patterson this (Thursday) afternoon at 2:00 o'clock.

Don't forget the social at Saylor's School House, to-night (Thursday.)

H. L. Dunkle and family were Fort Wayne guests, Sunday. Mrs. Dunkle and daughters remained for a week's visit with her mother.

Mrs. W. H. Randall, Mrs. Beulah Beard and Miss Edith Richmondt spent Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shilling.

Tuesday evening about 6:00 o'clock the Hay's school house was struck by lightning. The belfry was damaged to the extent of a few dollars.

Mrs. Mary Andress and son Collins, of Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Maude Mahoney of Panama, are the guests of Mrs. Alice Warner and family.

Miss Eata Farver and Miss Neva Andress and their gentlemen friends, Earl Steiman and Vernie Kelley, spent last Sunday at Hamilton lake.

Howard Gee and Mark Williams commenced Tuesday to tear the brick wall down near our office and we are certainly glad of it. It was an eye sore to the town.

Uncle Chas Huffman has been quite poorly for the past week. The extreme hot weather was too much for him. The last few days he has been feeling much better.

What better rains could you ask for, slow, soaking showers have visited us for several days and the corn and potato crop has taken on new life and is looking fine.

Mesdames W. C. Patterson and S. W. Tustison were at Hicksville calling on relatives, Wednesday afternoon. A cousin, Mrs. Myers, of Omaha, Neb., is there.

James Sechler died Monday evening at his home east of the Hoisington river bridge. The funeral services held at Newville, yesterday afternoon. Obituary will appear next week.

As a result of up-setting his dray wagon, Monday, James Harter is unable to be out. The wagon is subject to such tricks when turning short. Mr. Harter sprained his right leg severely.

Mrs. Nannie Kosht, a sister of Mrs. Geo. Swineford of this place, died Monday at the home of her sister, north-west of Auburn. She had been ill for several weeks. She has a number of friends here that were shocked to learn of her death. The funeral was held Wednesday at the house with interment at Newville.

Do Not Suffer this hot weather

We can help you

Your money back if you want it.

A short story, if we cannot give you relief and fit you satisfactory, we won't keep your money, you get the benefit of experience and study without extra charge. You will do better with than elsewhere.

DUNKLE

Local Briefs

Come in and get acquainted with Burwell's.

Miss Inez Hart is confined to her bed with typhoid fever.

Dr. Lake reports a son born to Mr. and Mrs. John Bowen, two miles north of here.

Call at Kagey's and get your Post Cards. An elegant assortment.

The Central Union Telephone Company put into effect July 1st. a new ruling that all Bell Toll charges hereafter will be reduced one-half to subscribers within Allen, DeKalb, Noble, Lagrange, Steuben and Whitley counties, thus making a saving of 50 per cent to them.

FOR SALE:—A 24-inch Wilson Heater stove, burned about 2 months, in good condition. Will sell cheap. Inquire at THE NEWS office.

The ladies of the Fairview M. P. church will give an Ice Cream Social at St. Joe in the Methodist parsonage on next Saturday evening, for the benefit of the Fairview church. All are invited to attend and help in a good cause.

The band concert Saturday night was called off and full away was given the rain. At about the time the concert was to begin the rain came and it was little late to commence then and too some of the boys were not here. A good crowd was in town but they were all glad to see the little shower. The usual concert will be given Saturday night at 8:00 o'clock.

The prohibition delegates from the Twelfth Congressional District met in the Baptist church, Saturday and nominated Rev. V. Sawyer of Allen county, as candidate for congress to fill the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of Prof. Alfred Moudy of Waterloo, who was named early last spring. The nominee is chairman of the prohibition organization in Allen county. District Chairman W. W. Wyrick of Angola, resigned and Emory Johnson of this county, was named to succeed him but because of his absence it could not be ascertained whether or not he would accept. Should he not the county chairmen were empowered to name one.—Dispatch.

Wedded

A very quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Koch on last Thursday evening, when their daughter, Miss Beulah was united in marriage to Mr. Clay Coburn, of east of town, Elder J. A. Brown officiating. The young folks need no introduction to the public as they are well known to our people. The entire community joins THE NEWS in extending congratulations.

Coburn's Corners

There were 82 present at Sunday School Sunday and a collection of $1.90.

Milo Walker and Clyde Hart were at Ft. Wayne on business Thursday.

Wm. Hamilton and wife were entertained Sunday at the latter's parents.

Del Coburn, wife and three children spent Sunday with the family of Roy Wade.

Selye Hadsell of Peru, is staying with his uncle, Saxe Hadsell, during his summer vacation.

The township Sunday School convention will be held at the Corners on Saturday eve and Sunday.

Miss Clara Shull entertained her Sunday School class No. 1 Sunday. The little folks were treated to ice cream and cake.

J. M. Milliman accompanied Miss Shirlie Hobart as far as Blakesley, O., Sunday where he will visit a few days with his son John D.

Mrs. Vernon Wilmot returned home Monday, after spending two weeks around her old home in Cleveland with relatives and friends.

Harry Driver of Milwaukee, Wis., accompanied by his sister, Mable, of Scipio, visited Sunday with their sister's family, Mr. and Mrs. Saxe Hadsell.

W. E. Harlan and wife of Bethel, Ind., spent last week with their daughter, Mrs. J. A. Brown and family. Mrs. Harlan will remain for a few days.

J. C. Hull, wife and son Merritt, Mrs. Ida Walker and two grandaughters of South Bend and F. B. Leighty and wife, spent Sunday afternoon with Orson Quance and family.

Miss Shirlie Hobart, who has been spending a few weeks with her cousin Fanny Milliman, returned to her home in Toledo, Sunday, to begin teaching in the summer school at that place.

Mrs. Wilmot Coburn was called to Goshen Thursday to attend the funeral of her nephew, Roy DeBow, whose death occurred at Lake Wawasee on that morning. He was reported as drowned but the doctors pronounced it heart failure. He was in the lake ready for a morning bath when he threw up his hands and fell over dead without a struggle, within fifteen minutes from the time he went in the water. Three physicians worked with untiring efforts to bring him to life. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. John DeBow of Goshen. Mrs. DeBow was a daughter of Moses Hilterbrand. The parents and family are almost heart broken for Roy was an unusually smart boy. He was working at office work in Napanee at the time of his death and was down to the lake to spend the night with his lady friend and her people who were spending a week at that place. They are also heart broken of the affair. The funeral was held on Saturday at the First M. E. Church in Goshen. His obituary will appear later.

Ice cream social at M. P. parsonage St. Joe Saturday night.

Little Portia and Paul Hadsell are the guests of their grandparents at Four Corners this week.

Notice to the Public.

I have sold my Hardware Stock to J. W. Burwell & Son, who have taken charge of the store. Burwell & Son come among us well recommended. They are upright, honorable gentlemen as well as practical hardware men, and will carry a clean up-to-date stock of hardware. I bespeak for them the same liberal patronage that you have given me and will assure you they will do all in the bounds of reason to merit your potronage and hold the same. I wish to thank all for their patronage and kindness shown me while in the Hardware business in St. Joe. Very truly,

D. J. Baker.

Having purchased the stock of Hardware of D. J. Baker and taking charge at once we are here to co-operate with our customers. We will make the right prices and do our level best to please you. Come in and get acquainted, once friends always friends. Get our prices before buying we can save you money. Watch our space each week and see what bargains we offer.

Yours for Business and Friendship,
J. W. Burwell & Son.

A Statement.

As certain unscrupulous persons have taken upon themselves the pleasant (?) duty of circulating defamatory report concerning myself in connection with Mrs. F. H. Abel. I take this method of informing these disreputable scandal mongers that their lies have been nailed and their true characters have come to light. There is a saying that "People who live in glass houses should never throw stones". Please bear this in mind and avoid future trouble. This statement was made in the presence of the persons named and witnessed by another party. Signed—Asa Shuff.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Abel.

M. P. CHURCH ANNOUCEMENTS

St. Joe, Prayer meeting on Thursday evening at 7:30. Sunday School on Sunday morning at 9:00 o'clock followed by regular preaching services. A welcome for all.

Fairview, Church services at 2:30 P. M., standard time. Every member of the church is requested to be present, matters of importance will be presented. Rev. L. Coomer, Pastor.

Grace Sechler is at Angola for a couple of weeks taking a course in Manuel Training.

Send in your news.

Harry Milliman of Edon, was in town, Wednesday.

John May and daughter Marjory, were at Columna, Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. C. O. Benjamin visited over Sunday with her parents, south of Coburntown.

We call your attention to the advertisements of this issue. Some exceedingly great prices prevail for your acceptance.

Merritt Barney and family attended the funeral of Mr. Bert Smith at Hicksville, yesterday at 2:00 o'clock. Mr Smith is known here by a few of our readers, having worked here on the B. & O. bridges at the time the road was double tracked. Mr. Smith was at Rome, N. Y., when taken sick and died in the hospital there.

Band Concert Saturday evening.

Ringling Brothers show will exhibit at Auburn, August 3.

Barnum & Bailey circus drew quite a following yesterday to Wayne.

Geo. Swineford and wife moved last week into their summer house on their farm. Mr. Swineford moved his chickens also and is taking things easy. Another room was built on and have things very convenient now.

Another divorce suit was filed in the circuit court Saturday. In it Mrs. Mae Wyatt is seeking legal separation from Frank Wyatt and the custody of their three children, ranging in age from eleven months to five years. Desertion and his sentence to the penitentiary are given as the reason for asking the court to grant her request.—Dispatch. She will be remembered as Mae Milliman.

The Chance of the season.

Commencing Sat. and continuing for 1 week

I am going to offer you some bargains in the dry goods line that had ought to appeal to anyone.

LOT NO. 1
Entire line of Summer Dress goods at ½ regular price.

LOT NO. 2
Entire line of Embroidery at.....5c yard

LOT NO. 3
Our line of Linings at.....½ price

LOT NO. 4
1 lot Ladies No. 4 Shoes worth from $2 to $3.50 at....$1.50

LOT NO. 5
1 lot Misses Slippers, sizes from 11—2, worth $1.00, $1.25 $1.50, to close at.....65c.

LOT NO 6
1 lot Mens 50—75c, all sizes Negligee at.....35c.

If you are in need of anything in the above lines it will be well worth your time to look them over.

Sol Barney.

SEE OUR MID-SUMMER SALE.
AD ON THE LAST PAGE OF THIS ISSUE.

PATTERSON'S.

JULY

0442

L 904

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

OLD-AGE PENSIONS.

The expected has happened. A bill for old-age pensions has been introduced in the house of representatives. The introducer is William Bauchop Wilson of Blossburg, Pa., former coal miner, former international secretary of the United Mine Workers of America, who now makes a living for his ten children on a farm, when he is not lucky enough to be drawing a representative's salary, says Brooklyn Eagle. The provisions of the bill give $120 a year to each man or woman over the age of sixty-five who has neither property worth $1,500 nor an income of over $240 a year. Modesty is to be expected of an entering wedge. But Wilson's measure is too modest by half. This is a rich country. How can it expect a person over sixty-five years old to live comfortably on $120 a year? If the old-age pension in each case were fixed at, say $5,000 a year, more money would be put in circulation and anyone would have a motive for seeking longevity. Nobody would be silly enough to nurse thrift or to pursue industry any farther than would be needed to keep life going till the age of sixty-five should be reached. For that matter, why not make the age forty? This is an era of humanitarian experimentation.

The mosquito season is at hand, and New Jersey, where the objectionable insect most abounds, is moving in the matter of destroying the pest. Bayonne is one of the towns in which energetic and organized action has been taken. Infested sections are to be oiled and ditched, and it is believed that by the methods employed millions of larvae will be killed and thus grave consequences will be averted. It has been shown that combined and systematic effort, including the most scientific means of fighting the evil, can be very effective, and New Jersey, which has been a great sufferer from the ravages of the mosquito, may add vastly to health and comfort by general war aimed at exterminating the mosquito.

Is Cuba to furnish the means of safeguarding the forests and producing paper at a moderate cost? It is announced from that island that experiments in manufacturing paper from sugar-cane fiber have proved entirely successful, and that the product can be turned out at much less cost than from wood pulp. Of course the cane is what is left after the sugar has been extracted, and thus another by-product comes into play. It has also been asserted that American cornstalks may be converted into paper. As there is practically an unlimited supply of such material, making good the assertion should be a very important step in conservation.

Crossing the English channel in an airship semes to have become almost a habit. Louis Bleriot led the way nearly a year ago and was followed by Jacques de Lesseps May 21 last. Both those aviators were Frenchmen, and they flew from France to England. Now Charles Stewart Rolls, an Englishman, has made the trip from England to France and back again without a stop, and therefore holds the record in this particular line of achievement. And he did the trick in a Wright aeroplane, so America gets at least part of the credit.

Dispatches from Seattle report an almost unprecedented rush to the gold fields of Alaska. This does not look as though there were general acceptance of that story that a Scranton alchemist has discovered a method of transmuting baser materials into gold and silver, which, if actually done, would inevitably minimize the value of the yellow and white metals. In short, the modern prospector or speculator has no use for the philosopher's stone, so eagerly sought by the ancients.

The movement for the devising of sanitary rules for all passenger trains and railroad stations is not aimed at the carrying operations, because it originated among them, and was suggested by Dr. W. A. Applegate, chief surgeon of the Southern railway. The railroads have always been leaders in promoting the safety and comfort of the traveling public, and they will cooperate earnestly with the United States public health and marine hospital service in combating germ diseases.

How will coming generations get their physical exercise in outdoor recreations? The motorcycle has played hob with the bicycle, and the power boat has the sailing boat and the oarsmen on the run. A tiny motor now pushes the light Indian canoe over the shallow lakes and streams, and for some the paddle is too strenuous or too slow. Shall we next see the pedestrian tuck a motor in his pocket and get over the ground without the labor of moving his feet?

MRS. PHEDUM'S GUESTS DISCUSS THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME

ROOSEVELT AND TAFT MEET

FORMER EXECUTIVE CALLS ON PRESIDENT AT BEVERLY.

Maintain Secrecy Concerning What Passed Between Them in the Conference.

Beverly, Mass.—A smile spread over the face of President Taft Thursday afternoon as he hurriedly left his work in the library of the Burgess Point cottage and rushed to the veranda when the Lodge limousine drove up, the "honk honk" of which was announcing the arrival of former President Roosevelt.

They met just outside the door and simultaneously Taft clapped a hand on the Roosevelt shoulder as Roosevelt seized the president's hand in a strong grip.

"Mr. President," exclaimed the one; and "Theodore," cried the other.

"By George," continued Roosevelt, "this is fine. I am mighty glad to see you, Mr. President."

Thus, after a separation of sixteen months, Taft and Roosevelt met again, at the Taft cottage here in Beverly, with only Senator Lodge and Secretary Norton present, all the rest of the world being barred out.

Those who witnessed the meeting say it was characterized by all the old-time cordiality of relations between the two—that there was the best of feeling displayed—and that the hearty bursts of laughter that proceeded first from the president and then from Roosevelt as they sat on the veranda and chatted for two hours and a half, was strongly reminiscent of the old White House days.

In a long interview with Chairman Martin A. Knapp of the commission Friday President Taft went exhaustively into the provisions of the new law and later, in conversation with callers, he earnestly pointed out that there need be no apprehension that the commission will run amuck or that the new law will be used to club indiscriminately all railroads that propose an advance in rates.

The law, the president pointed out, was not passed for the purpose of lowering rates, or even of holding all rates where they are at the time of the passage of the law, but rather for the purpose of equalizing rates.

RAILROADS GAIN A VICTORY

Commerce Commission Grant Permission to Advance Grain Rates East of Buffalo.

Washington.—Announcement was made by the interstate commerce commission Thursday that it will not suspend official classification 36, involving more than 6,000 items, which was filed to become effective July 1. This is regarded as a victory for the railroads.

Permission was granted by the commission to railroads operating out of Buffalo to advance rates on flour and other wheat products one cent a hundred pounds to eastern destinations.

For nearly a month the commission has been overwhelmed with protests against the proposed new classification, many shippers seemed to believe that the rearrangement of freight classification would result in largely increased rates. The subject was considered carefully by the commission, a thorough and comprehensive check being prepared on the entire classification. In the items and ratings involved there are only fifty-eight changes, of which twenty-eight are reductions and thirty advances, the latter including twelve increases in carload weights.

Maniac Slays His Father.

Hill City, Kan.—Buck Plant, who escaped from the insane asylum at Parsons, Kan., Tuesday, went to the home of George Plant, his father, here, and crushed the old man's head with a hammer as he lay asleep. Plant then cut his father's throat.

Sanders Succeeds McEnery.

Baton Rouge, La.—Gov. Jared Y. Sanders was on Tuesday elected United States senator from Louisiana, succeeding Samuel Douglass McEnery, deceased.

CLEAN SWEEP FOR HARVARD

Crews Defeat Yale Boats in Three Shell Races on Thames River.

New London.—Harvard's day of victory on the Thames Thursday culminated with success in the varsity eight.

With her stroke oar all but collapsed, Yale crossed the line at the New London bridge four lengths behind the Cambridge crew.

For three and a half miles the shells sped down the river almost abreast, first one and then another forging slightly ahead. Harvard was nearly a length ahead at the two-mile point and her bow showed in front for the greater part of the way, but time and again a gallant spurt brought the New Haven shell on even terms. Not until the boats entered the final quarter mile stretch did the Crimson look like a winner.

Harvard's victories were the most decisive that ever marked the opening of her annual rowing regatta with Yale. The Crimson freshman eight-oared crew beat the youngsters from New Haven by three lengths, and the Harvard 'varsity four bettered this performance a little later by rowing away from Yale in the last eighth mile of a surprising race and finishing four lengths in the lead.

TREASURY HAS A SURPLUS

Year Ends With Government Ahead $9,402,000, Against Deficit of $58,734,000 Last June.

Washington.—A surplus of $9,402,000 in the ordinary receipts and expenditures, against a deficit last year of $58,734,000 was announced by the treasury department Friday.

The total deficit over all, which includes Panama canal expenditures and the public debt, is $35,884,000, against $118,795,000 last year.

The total ordinary treasury receipts were $13,300,000; total for month, $76,271,000, and for the fiscal year just closed, $669,054,000. The corporation tax receipts, which are included in the last named figures, aggregated $17,362,000.

The total ordinary receipts for the past year stand against $608,589,000 for last year. The customs receipts during the past fiscal year reached $332,785,000, against $300,711,000 last year; the internal revenue $287,833,000, against $246,212,000 last year, and miscellaneous, $51,092,000, against $56,664,000 last year.

The aggregate expenditures for the past fiscal year reached $659,662,000, against $862,324,000 last year. Among the ordinary expenditures were grants from the treasury of $8,495,000 on account of postal deficiency, against similar grants last year of $19,501,000.

Diver Finds Man's Body.

La Crosse, Wis.—John Murray, a diver, located the body of the man supposed to be John Plein of Waupun in the hull of the steamer "J. S.," which burned to the water's edge Saturday night. The body was wedged tightly between one of the boilers and wreckage and cannot be extricated until another diver arrives. It is located close to where the ship's prison was situated.

Loses Eye Making Fireworks.

Bloomfield, N. J.—Frank Christian, 20 years old, tried to manufacture home-made fireworks in a shed in the rear of his home here. In an explosion which resulted, both his eyes were blown out and he was otherwise terribly burned. He will die.

Dan Patch Goes to Pasture.

New York.—Dan Patch was on Tuesday retired from the racing and speed exhibition circuit. M. W. Savage, his owner, is authority for the statement the animal never again will be asked to start in attempts to lower world's records.

Jilted Man Murders Girl.

Detroit, Mich.—Spurned by the girl he loved, Edward Weiss Tuesday shot and killed Gertrude Lubowits and turned the weapon on himself. He is dying in the hospital.

IS NOT A QUITTER

SECRETARY BALLINGER SAYS HE WILL NOT RESIGN FROM CABINET.

HAS CONFERENCE WITH TAFT

Says His Policy Toward Public Domain Will Retain Spirit of Conservatism—President Enters Into Ten Days' Seclusion.

Beverly, Mass.—After a long conference with President Taft here Tuesday Secretary Richard A. Ballinger of the interior department made the emphatic announcement that he will not resign from the cabinet, no matter what the verdict of the congressional investigating committee may be.

Secretary Ballinger announced that the policy toward public domain would retain the spirit of conservation, but would also encourage the privilege of development. When some one referred to it "and the Taft-Ballinger policy," he said:

"You may call it what you like, but I will tell you one thing—it will follow the lines of the law."

Earlier in the day, before seeing Mr. Taft, Mr. Ballinger said that he "was not a quitter," but would not discuss a resignation. After his talk with the president, Mr. Ballinger announced positively that he would not quit.

The discussion with Mr. Taft was entirely on carrying out the orders signed by the president Saturday, and on carrying out legislation of the recent session of congress.

The ten-day seclusion of the president has begun. Senator Warren of Wyoming got as far as Boston and telephoned for an appointment. He was told that no engagement would be made with any one for ten days.

Just before the bars were put up Beckman Winthrop, assistant secretary of the navy, and Representative John Dwight of New York, Republican whip of the house, slipped into the Taft cottage, each accompanied by his wife.

HUGHES FOR CHIEF JUSTICE

Governor Will Probably Succeed Melville W. Fuller As Head of Supreme Court.

Washington.—With the death of Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller and the probable retirement of Associate Justice William H. Moody of the Supreme court, President Taft will have two vacancies in that court to fill within the next few months.

It is generally believed that Gov. Charles E. Hughes of New York, who has been confirmed as an associate justice, will be promoted to chief justice, and that Lloyd W. Bowers of Chicago, solicitor general of the department of justice, will be appointed justice in his place. The other alternative suggested is that Mr. Bowers be made chief justice, it having been understood here for some time that the president considered him qualified in all legal respects for the place. It is known, however, that President Taft has considered Governor Hughes also in this connection so far as his abilities are concerned.

In the event of the retirement of Associate Justice Moody it is believed there is a strong possibility that a Democrat will take his place. With the death of Chief Justice Fuller only two Democrats remain on the Supreme bench—Associate Justices White and Lurton.

RECLAMATION ACT IS VALID

Appellate Court Hands Down Far-Reaching Decision Concerning Arid Lands.

San Francisco.—A far-reaching decision, directly affecting the $30,000,000 appropriation recently made by congress and the reclamation service, wherein the United States court of appeals sustains the circuit court of Idaho's contention that the reclamation act is constitutional, was rendered here Tuesday.

The decision establishes the right of the secretary of the interior to acquire by condemnation or otherwise lands and waters in the furtherance of any reclamation project.

The importance to the west lies in the fact that already the government has expended millions of dollars in the work of reclaiming the arid lands of the west, and congress but a short time ago appropriated $20,000,000 for the work to be done this year.

The decision of the court of appeals also extends to the right of the government to take over any needed private water rights in carrying out the provisions of the act.

This makes the irrigation projects of the west authorized by law and will permit a resumption of work in many sections without delay.

Fire in Czar's Palace.

Paris.—A wing of the historic Peterhof palace of St. Petersburg, containing treasures of untold value, was destroyed by fire, according to a dispatch received here, and the loss is at least $3,000,000.

Kidnaping to Bring Death.

Baton Rouge, La.—Kidnaping is to be made a capital offense in Louisiana for both principals and accomplices. A measure to this effect was passed almost unanimously in the house here Saturday.

HAS PRAISE FOR POINDEXTER

CONGRESSMAN HAS CONFERENCE WITH ROOSEVELT.

"Insurgent" Is Candidate for United States Senator From State of Washington.

Oyster Bay, N. Y. — One of Colonel Roosevelt's important conferences was held with Representative Poindexter, an Insurgent from the state of Washington.

It can be stated that Congressman Poindexter left Sagamore Hill with strong assurances that he will have the support of Colonel Roosevelt in his campaign fight for the United States senatorship.

Mr. Poindexter, after his visit with Colonel Roosevelt, said: "He is the same old president. The man I have worked with and loved, and I am still going to work with. He is just the same as ever. He is a wonderful leader, and he is still the leader. I am tremendously pleased with my talk with him. He must tell the details, if he wishes, of our conversation. Colonel Roosevelt and I and my associates have always worked together, and he assured me that we will continue together.'

Congressman Poindexter represents the district from which Secretary Ballinger comes.

In speaking of the visit of Mr. Poindexter, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Representative Poindexter and I went over together the political situation in the northwest. He assured me that he is in hearty sympathy with my conservation policies. Mr. Poindexter is a candidate for the position of United States senator and he is politically opposed to that wing of the party headed by Secretary Ballinger. Mr. Poindexter is a fine type of a man."

WRECK DEATHS NUMBER 23

Big Four Officials Place Blame for Railroad Accident at Middletown on Train Dispatcher.

Cincinnati, July 6.—Three names were added to the list of killed in the wreck on the C. H. & D. tracks near Middletown, and the death of two more, which is expected by the physicians, will bring the number up to 25.

William Anninger of Springfield, an unidentified white man now at Middletown, and Evelyn Lloyd of Round-Point, Me., who died at the Dayton hospital, complete the list of those who lost their lives as a result of somebody's blunder.

Officials of the Big Four say that the cause of the wreck can be found in the fact that train dispatcher Smith of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton road in Dayton, is alleged to have "busted" or revoked an order giving the freight train until 1:07 p. m. to make the siding at Poasttown, and is said to have failed to give the passenger a copy of this order. Had he given Pilot Wall a copy of this order the passenger train would have remained at Poast-Town until the freight passed it. General Manager Gould of the C. H. & D., replying to the statements made here by Wall, says the case was something like that, but he would not say so positively.

An eleven-months-old baby hurled 100 feet from the telescoped second car of the wreck was found alive in a near-by corn field many hours after the accident. The baby was orphaned by the wreck, both parents having been killed in the wreck. The child has been adopted by a Middletown family.

FOREST FIRES PERIL TOWNS

Terrible Havoc Is Wrought in Rainy River District, Manitoba—Loss Is Heavy.

Winnipeg, Manitoba. — Forest fires have during the past few days wrought terrible havoc in the Rainy River district, destroying timber and property variously estimated at from three to six million dollars. The town of Emo is seriously threatened and is practically cut off from communication with the outside with the exception of a single telegraph wire. Fort Francis is surrounded by fires and no word can be got from the stricken town.

Ashland, Wis., July 6.—The village of Cornucopia, about half way between Ashland and Duluth, on Lake Superior, is in danger of being wiped out by forest fires. The steamer Barker took off all the women and children that it could carry from Cornucopia and left them at Bayfield.

Fires now completely encircle the village, except on the lake side.

Life Sentence Given Hyde.

Kansas City, Mo. — Dr. B. C. Hyde, convicted of having poisoned Col. Thomas Swope, the millionaire philanthropist, was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor by Judge Ralph S. Lathaw in the criminal court here. An appeal to the state supreme court was filed by Hyde's attorney.

Man Boiled Alive.

Hammond, Ind.—Andrew Held was literally boiled alive by falling in a vat of boiling cement at the Buffington Cement plant Tuesday. He was fished out of the vat by fellow workmen and the flesh fell from his body.

J. C. Mitchell, Railroad Official, Dead.

Council Bluffs, Ia.—Julian C. Mitchell, prominent in railroad circles and for 28 years local passenger agent for the Union Pacific and Northwestern roads in this city, died Tuesday from pneumonia.

SHELBYVILLE IS MUSICIAN'S CHOICE

Nominating Committee Selects Hammond Man for President.

CONCERTS DRAW BIG CROWDS

Artists Greeted by an Audience Which Filled the Theater Despite the Hot Weather—Meeting Proves a Success.

Princeton.—Reports of committees were received at the business session of the Indiana Music Teachers' association. The reports show the condition of the association to be all that could be desired. The nominating committee posted its selection of names for officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Clark Leaming of Hammond; treasurer C. F. W. Meyer of Fort Wayne; secretary, J. S. Bergen of Lafayette; executive committee, J. M. Black of Washington (chairman), Emma J. Holtzman of Brookston and Nellie A. Crane of Seymour; program committee, George Raymond Eckert of Indianapolis, chairman, and Mrs. D. D. Mitchel of Martinsville; auditor, Percy L. Nussbaum of Marion; public school commission, W. Ethelbert Fisher of Peru (chairman), W. E. M. Browne of Newcastle and W. T. Giff of Logansport.

The nominating committee anticipated the amendment to the constitution which does away with an auditing committee and chose but one name for auditor instead of three, as has been the custom. Shelbyville was recommended as the place of next year's meeting, provided satisfactory arrangements can be made with that city. In case that cannot be done the executive committee will later select the place of meeting. Following the business session in the morning, Christian F. Martens lead a round table discussion of modern methods in vocal instruction. Mr. Martens handled his subject in such a manner that much profit from a pedagogical point of view was gained from his talk and the discussion which it brought forth.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Bedford.—Following the decision of Judge James B. Wilson at the last term of court that Receiver Clark of the defunct Bedford Savings and Loan association could not sue the directors of the association, eight of the stockholders have individually brought suit against George C. Campbell and other directors to recover the several amounts which they had paid into the association.

Bloomington. — Incorporated for $200,000, the Ohio Oolitic Stone company will complete its organization in this city this week, and during the present summer will open and develop its stone land of 240 acres southwest of here. With the exception of one man, all the incorporators are Ohio capitalists, with William W. Dodgson of Dayton as president. It is the intention of the company after opening the plant to erect stone mills and equip them with modern machinery, and to utilize all the by-product in making lime and crushed stone. The home office will be in this city.

Elwood. — Professional crackamen entered the L. E. & W. station and, after wrecking the safe with nitroglycerin, escaped with $30. The report of the explosion aroused residents in the neighborhood, who noticed two men walking leisurely down the railroad track, carrying suit cases. When the police arrived on the scene there was no trace of the men, but signs of a horse and buggy hitched to the cemetery gate, two squares away, indicated that the thieves made their escape by that method.

Kokomo.—Acting upon a report appearing in an Indianapolis paper to the effect that an examination of one of two dog heads sent to the state board of health showed that one of the dogs had died of rabies, a special meeting of the common council was held and a drastic ordinance passed. All dogs must be muzzled and accompanied by their masters when on the street. Stray dogs may be impounded and shot within twenty-four hours. A mad dog at large on North Main street was chloroformed by the police.

Terre Haute. — The joint subwage scale committee ended negotiations and agreed to report back to a joint convention of the United Mine Workers of America, District No. 11, and the Indiana Bituminous Coal Operators' association their failure to agree on the terms to be incorporated in the final wage contract. Officers of both bodies then set July 7 for the opening of the joint convention, when the terms of the wage contract will be considered. Another shutdown of the mines is expected if the joint convention fails to settle the differences.

Anderson.—A watch dog prevented the grocery store of Charles Jones in North Anderson from being entered by burglars. The men forced the door to the building, but evidently did not know that a bulldog was secreted in the store. The dog started for the men, who ran without opening the cash register containing more than $28. The burglars are believed to be the same who entered the grocery of J. L. Phillips on the north side of the public square. In that case the robbers were discovered by a policeman, but fled before he could get them.

JULY

0443

L 904

THE DRAWBACK.

"There are very few women architects."

"No wonder. Women do not relish being called 'designing creatures.'"

UNDEFEATED CHAMPION OF THE NORTHWEST.

F. A. Ireland, Rifle Shot, of Colfax, Wash., Tells a Story.

Mr. Ireland is the holder of four world records and has yet to lose his first match—says he: "Kidney trouble so affected my vision as to interfere with my shooting. I became so nervous I could hardly hold a gun. There was severe pain in my back and head and my kidneys were terribly disordered. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me after I had doctored and taken nearly every remedy imaginable without relief. I will give further details of my case to anyone enclosing stamp."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

In New York.

Up-to-Date Gladys—Is it really such an improper play?

Up-to-Date Dorris—Oh, it isn't just er to see, but it's all right for us girls.—Puck.

Wrong Angle.

"There's a bright side to everything."

"A bright side! Bah!"

"Well, there is."

"Do you mean to tell me, doctor, that there is a bright side to my having had my leg amputated?"

"Indeed, there is; and if you could put yourself in my place you could really see it."

Authority on Soup.

A little boy, promoted to company dinner at the family table, enjoyed his oyster cream hugely until he came to an unrecognized object at the bottom of the plate.

"What is it? Oh, just an oyster, dear," responded the child's mother, sharply appealed to.

"Why did Dora put it in?"

"Oh, to make the soup good."

"She can leave it out next time," the tiny epicure decided. "The soup's good enough without."—Exchange.

Lightning Rods on the White House.

The White House is going to have lightning rods. They will be put on some time this summer. The distinguished occupants of the mansion past and present have never been protected against Jupiter's bolts. The rods will be put on every part of the building, except the low offices where the president transacts his official business. Col. Spencer S. Colby, United States superintendent of public grounds and buildings, persuaded Mr. Taft that the White House ought to be equipped with the rods and executive approval was given. The cost will be between $500 and $800.—Philadelphia North American.

A "Corner" In Comfort

For those who know the pleasure and satisfaction there is in a glass of

ICED POSTUM

Make it as usual, dark and rich—boil it thoroughly to bring out the distinctive flavour and food value.

Cool with cracked ice, and add sugar and lemon; also a little cream if desired.

Postum is really a food-drink with the nutritive elements of the field grains. Ice it, and you have a pleasant, safe, cooling drink for summer days—an agreeable surprise for those who have never tried it.

"There's a Reason" for POSTUM

Postum Cereal Co., Limited, Battle Creek, Mich.

ADVISES DEALERS TO ADVERTISE

Tells Furniture Men How to Boom Business.

URGES STUDY OF CONDITIONS

The Furniture Trade, He Declares, Is Lagging Behind in the Race for Business—Undecided for Next Meeting.

Indianapolis.—That furniture is to a large extent a luxury, and that the dealer and manufacturer should increase the demand for it by advertising, and by the careful study of methods of arousing interest in articles of this kind was the trend of the speech of O. H. L. Wernicke of Grand Rapids, Mich., before the Indiana Retail Furniture Dealers' association at its convention at the Claypool hotel.

The furniture trade is lagging behind in the race for business, was another conclusion he drew. He said while statistics are not always accurate, as near as can be learned, the furniture trade of the country last year amounted to between $135,000,000 and $140,000,000, or an expenditure of only about $1.50 per capita. The people of the country, he said, spent practically three times as much money for automobiles last year as they did for furniture.

"To some extent," he said, "furniture is like pictures. To sell it you must arouse interest in it. This cannot be done without publicity. Also the furniture man should study his trade as carefully as men in other lines of work study theirs. The dealer should become familiar with the historic and artistic sides of his work.

"While it is not true of every man in the business, it is nevertheless a certainty that a majority of clerks and retailers do not know the difference between the styles of furniture of the various historic periods. The only thing he can tell about the furniture is what is marked on the tag. The dealer should develop the artistic side of his work, too, and should know something about color schemes, settings and other things that pertain to the artistic phase of furniture selling."

Several members of the association participated in the voluntary talks pertaining to the good of the organization. The question of selling goods at uniform prices instead of cut rate competition sales was discussed. It was decided to invite traveling men selling furniture in Indiana to become associate members of the organization.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—C. C. La Follette, Thorntown.

First Vice-President—George C. Wyatt, Rushville.

Second Vice-President — John Heynes, Evansville.

Secretary and Treasurer—J. M. Chappell, Westfield.

Members of Executive Committee—H. H. Dowd, North Vernon; R. D. Leatherman, Tipton; G. A. Recker, Indianapolis; D. N. Foster, Fort Wayne; Lewis Hornaday, Indianapolis.

The election of delegates to the convention of the National Retail Dealers' Furniture association, with which the Indiana association is affiliated, was left to the executive committee. This committee also will select the place for the 1911 state convention.

The session was opened by an address of welcome by Mayor Shank, to which George C. Wyatt of Rushville responded. George H. Ollar of this city, former president of the association, delivered an address in which he advanced the theory that the furniture dealer, by cultivating the taste of the buying public so that homes would become more attractive would be taking a step in the interests of moral development. He said better furnished homes in many instances would keep children at home during the formative period, when they are apt to go astray. Mr. Ollar predicted the future will see furniture dealers in cities moving to the outer districts in order to maintain establishments which admit of adequate display room.

Counties Pay June Taxes.

A total of $746,084.30 was paid into the state treasury by twenty-one counties, making the June settlement of taxes through the offices of the state auditor. More than $1,250,000 has been paid in during the last three days. Counties making the latest settlements and the amounts paid follow: Floyd, $28,131.79; Clay, $31,519.53; Wayne, $67,604.44; Blackford, $17,939.92; Hamilton, $37,141.43; Clinton, $44,008.39; Kosciusko, $46,741.11; Wabash, $40,283.84; Howard, $39,946.58; Sullivan, $40,349.18; Decatur, $32,551.14; Tipton, $25,809.37; Jefferson, $20,024.54; Daviess, $30,351.11.

Darling on Pardon Board.

Governor Marshall says Harry B. Darling of Laporte, chairman, in 1908, of the Democratic press bureau, will be appointed to the state board of pardons to succeed John J. Gillette of Lagrange, whose term has expired. With Darling, the board will, for the first time in years, have a Democrat as a member. It is probable that the appointment of Darling will be made soon after the work of the present session of the board has been completed.

Slaughtered by Dogs in Indiana.

Indianapolis.—Statistics just completed by J. L. Peetz, state statistician, as a result of data collected by township assessors last year, show that during 1908, 22,552 farm animals were killed by dogs in the state, including those which died as a result of being bitten by rabid dogs. Under the state law, animals thus killed are paid for out of a special township fund provided by taxing owners of dogs, and the total sum paid during the year for the animals killed amounted to $149,213. Stray dogs and dogs permitted by their owners to run over the farms of their neighbors were responsible chiefly for the great destruction of property. Of the animals killed, there were 911 dairy cows, valued at $20,897; 2,264 beef and stock cattle, valued at $23,416; 6,455 hogs, valued at $44,529; and 12,722 sheep, valued at $60,371. The beef and stock cattle killed nearly equals an average June day's receipts in the Chicago market; hogs, about half of an average day's receipts, and sheep, about double such receipts. Statistics from the same source show that on January 1, 1909, there were in the hands of the dairymen and farmers of the state, 483,879 dairy cattle, valued at $13,532,650. During 1908, 421,535 cows were milked, producing 161,316,231 gallons, valued at $22,299,815. Of the amount produced 26,200,991 gallons were sold on the market, in addition to 1,543,183 gallons of cream marketed. The butter produced during the year totaled 29,910,926 pounds, valued at $8,986,093. Of the amount produced 20,991,624 pounds were marketed. During the year, 89,861 pounds of cheese were manufactured, valued at $20,282.

County Institute Dates for Teachers.

County institutes for teachers will be held in the state this year as follows: July 18 to 22, Floyd county; August 8 to 13, Fountain county; August 15 to 19, Brown, Greene, Harrison, Laporte, Owen, Rush, Spencer, Union and Warrick; August 22 to 26, Boone, Carroll, Daviess, Decatur, Fayette, Franklin, Gibson, Hendricks, Henry, Jackson, Jennings, Lake, Lawrence, Marshall, Martin, Porter, Putnam, Scott, Shelby, Starke, Switzerland and Warren; August 29 to September 2, Adams, Allen, Bartholomew, Benton, Blackford, Cass, Clark, Clinton, Crawford, Dearborn, Dekalb, Elkhart, Fulton, Grant, Hamilton, Hancock, Huntington, Jasper, Randolph, Ripley, St. Joseph, Steuben, Sullivan, Tippecanoe, Tipton, Vanderburg, Vermillion, Vigo, Wabash, Washington, Wayne and Wells; September 5 to 9, Clay, Delaware, Dubois, Howard, Jay, Johnson, Madison, Orange, Perry, Pike, Posey, White and Whitley; October 10 to 14, Montgomery; November 21 to 25 (Thanksgiving holidays), Morgan.

A booklet giving a complete list of instructors at the various institutes and the subjects to be discussed by them has been issued at the office of the state superintendent of public instruction.

$11,284.10 Insurance Fees.

Cyrus W. Neal, head of the insurance department in the office of the auditor of state, has closed his books for the second quarter of the current year with a total of $8,820.10 collected for general fees, and $2,564 collected for license fees, or a total for the quarter of $11,284.10. The collections for the corresponding quarter of last year totaled $10,390.50, this year showing a gain of $993.60. The general fees collected for the first six months of the calendar years amounted to $69,944.29, as against $63,877.29 for the corresponding period of last year. The license fees for the six months just closed amounted to $19,296, as against $16,907 for the corresponding period of last year.

The quarterly report of the state oil inspector, Sid Conger, showed $11,346.30 turned into the state treasury. This sum represents one-half the fees collected by the deputy inspectors, the other half being retained to pay for the service. The collections on oil and gasoline inspection in Indianapolis for the quarter amounted to $3,326.30; in Evansville, $1,015.90; in Fort Wayne, $868.20; in Terre Haute, $742.10; in Lafayette, $672.50.

Suits Against Railroads.

A dozen additional cases, charging various railroads of the state with violations of the state laws concerning coupling brakes, handholds, safety appliances, etc., were placed in the hands of the attorney general by the railroad commission to be made bases for suits under the penal statutes. This brings the total number of cases filed with the attorney general to more than fifty, which, it is understood, he will take up at an early date.

New Grand Officers of O. E. S.

The twenty-second annual session of the Indiana grand chapter of the O. E. S. was held with over one hundred delegates in attendance, as guests of the Nettie Ransford chapter, No. 16, of this city. Grand officers were elected as follows: Grand worthy matron, Sarah J. Hale, Crawfordsville; grand worthy patron, W. H. Russell, Wabash; associate matron, Gertrude Hill, Indianapolis.

Governor Fills Vacancies.

Governor Marshall has filled the vacancies on the state board of medical examination and registration by the appointment of Dr. W. A. Spurgeon of Muncie, and Dr. M. S. Canfield of Frankfort, to succeed themselves. Both members were indorsed by the state association of physicians of their respective schools, and the appointments were made in accordance with a statement of the governor some time ago that the men selected by the state associations would be appointed.

WORK OF SESSION IS MOST EFFECTIVE

CONGRESS ENACTS MUCH LEGISLATION IMPORTANT TO THE WHOLE COUNTRY.

MANY GOOD LAWS ARE MADE

Activities of the Lawmakers Have Resulted in Vindication for the Taft Policies, and Republicans Are Exultant Over Outlook.

Washington. — Republicans claim and Democrats admit that the session of congress which closed on June 25th was the most effective since the civil war in the enactment of general legislation important to the country at large. Not only is the work of the session effective in the number of laws placed on the statute books, but because of the scope and far-reaching importance of most of them. The work of this first regular session, taken into consideration with the passage of a complete tariff law at the special session, gives to the first part of President Taft's administration an importance never before attained by any president during the same period in time of peace.

Among other important measures passed and approved by the president, were the following:

The railroad bill, extending the regulative power of the government over common carriers by rail.

The establishment of postal savings banks.

The creation of a commission to inquire into stock and bond issues of railroads, with a view to ascertaining if they have been watered or not, and recommending legislation to congress.

Publicity of campaign contributions in congressional and national elections.

The creation of a Bureau of Mines and Mining, with an appropriation of $502,000 for its administration.

Admission of Arizona and New Mexico into separate statehood.

Authority granted to the president to withdraw certain classes of public lands from entry in pursuance of the national conservative policy.

An issue of $20,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness authorized for the completion of irrigation projects already begun, but held up on account of a lack of funds.

Increase in the navy by construction of two first-class battleships, four torpedo boats, and other craft.

Recommended by the President.

The following legislation was enacted upon the president's recommendation, although not included in the party platform:

The creation of a commission with a view to obtaining facts on which the federal departments may be reorganized in the interest of economy.

Laws aimed at the suppression of the "white slave" traffic.

The reorganization of the lighthouse service.

Comparatively few propositions, as the history of congress runs, were recommended by the president and failed.

Whatever legislation was promised by the Republican platform or recommended by the president, and which failed of enactment during the session just closed, will have consideration during the next session, or if not passed then, can be taken up at the next congress. It is important, then, that the next congress have a substantial Republican majority in order that all pledges may be kept and all recommendations of the president carried out. In this connection, it may be said that there is no longer any Democratic claims of a walk-over, and the exultation of a few weeks ago has vanished into a doubtful attitude on the part of the Democratic leaders, while the Republicans all over the country are jubilant and confident that they will score a big victory in November.

Party Without An Issue.

The fact of the matter is, the Democratic party has not a single issue with which to go before the people during the coming campaign, while on the other hand, the Republicans have several issues upon each and every one of which they can take an aggressive stand and appeal to the people with the greatest hope and confidence.

There will be no division in the Republican ranks; there will be harmony from one end of the country to the other. There will be an entire agreement—first, upon the legislation that has been enacted during the last session; second, upon the endorsement of the administration, which has accomplished so much, both in the way of promoting legislation and in the efficiency and economy practised in every department; third, in support of the tariff law, which has proved to be so beneficial in every way to the industries and labor of the country and successful in the way of revenue. The president is growing stronger with the people every day, and those who have been nodding their heads have, within the last few weeks, come to admire the chief executive for the amount of legislation that has been enacted in a large degree through his quiet but effective effort.

The next house of representatives will be Republican, whether the majority will be 5 to 50, cannot now be predicted, but there is no reason whatever, considering the record made by the president and congress that a single seat should be lost, while on the contrary, there is reason to suppose that many seats will be gained. The country never had a better president; never had a better administration; never had a better congress than that which it now possesses, and it is believed without doubt that the people will endorse most heartily the party which, through its president and members of congress, has done and will continue to do work beneficial to every interest of the whole people throughout the entire country.

Plain Facts About the Tariff.

A tariff law universally acceptable we have never had. Tariff legislation may never reach that felicitous state. In sharp contrast with the superfinalities we have had upon the subject is Representative Payne's straightforward defense of the new tariff in a recent speech in the house of representatives. He advises the members of his party to pick up the glove, and in the coming congressional campaign fearlessly discuss the measure on its merits. On this subject, the representative from New York speaks with an authority that comes only from a deep study of its problems and a wide experience in tariff legislation covering many years. He makes the following points:

First, while there have been some increases in duties, the new tariff, as a whole, is a substantial downward revision. He gives the proofs in figures.

Second, where there has been any increase, it is either on luxuries, as wines and silks, made necessary to augment the revenue; or, if upon necessary to augment the revenue; or, if essities, to secure adequate protection. In illustration of the latter point, we have the increased duty on stockings of 1.8 cents a pair. Before the passage of the present law, of certain sizes, two-thirds of the stockings worn by women and children in this country, were made in Germany. We had the factories, the machinery and the skilled women workers to care for our needs; but, lacking sufficient protection, between thirty and forty thousand young women were working only half time. After the duty had been put on, our factories began running full time, our workers had steady employment, and we pay not one cent more for stockings than we did before. In some casse, the retail price has been lowered.

Third, the new tariff is not responsible for the rise in prices, only as it brought prosperity to the country, put every one to work, and in that way brought about a demand that far outran the supply. On examining particular commodities, we find that where the duty was reduced prices went up, and in some instances where the duty was increased, prices went down. For example, the duty on lumber was reduced, and lumber went up on every kind on which the tariff had been reduced. But on shingles the tariff was increased, and in less than thirty days shingles went down. The duty on meats and foodstuffs was reduced, and meats have gone up. In the face of these undeniable facts, how can the present tariff be held responsible for high prices? Furthermore, there is going on, all over the country, a gradual lowering of the prices of foodstuffs. As the tariff hasn't changed, those who charged the increased prices to the tariff must now credit the decreasing prices to the same law. to be consistent.

Fourth, the new tariff has vindicated itself upon its maximum and minimum provision. The maximum has not gone into effect anywhere in the civilized world, but the minimum has given us the best tariff rates of any nation in all the world, and the best we have ever enjoyed. Before the passage of the Payne law, every country in the world that competed with us, with the exception of Great Britain, had a maximum and minimum rate, and they were driving us out of the market. Under the maximum and minimum provision of the new law, the gates of the world have swung wider to our merchants and manufacturers than ever before, and we stand at least an even chance to win back the market.

We need make no apologies for the new tariff. It courts investigation. Make the campaign from now on one of education, and there need be no doubts as to the complexion of the next congress.—Leslie's Weekly.

Glass Eating Causes Death.

After satisfying his notion that he could eat beer glasses and similar articles, Frank Granholm died at his home, near Marshfield, Ore. While drinking, he ate some glass, and died, after contracting pneumonia, which, with the glass, caused his death.

Would Seem So.

"And now," said the teacher as the class closed its history lesson, "can any little boy tell me why national holidays like the 22d of February and the 4th of July are appointed?"

"Yes, ma'am," spoke up the pugnacious little chap in the green sweater; "to hold prize fights on."

Beginning of the End.

Little Willie—Say, pa, why is the last of a college term called the commencement?

Pa—Because, my son, it is the commencement of the graduate's realization that the world wasn't made for him exclusively.

Lift a Little.

Mortgage raising is the only boat up hill.—Washington Post.

DAISY FLY KILLER

placed anywhere, attracts & kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts All Season. Made of metal, cannot spill or slip over, will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Of all dealers or sent prepaid for 25c. HAROLD SOMERS 150 DeKalb Ave. Brooklyn, New York

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists

Decidedly So.

Hewitt—Are you sweet on that girl?

Jewett—Sweet on her? The sugar trust isn't in it.

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.

Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

The Secret.

"Miss Bright," whispered Miss Gaussip, "can you keep a secret?"

"Yes," replied Miss Bright, also whispering, "I can keep one as well as you can."

Try This, This Summer.

The very next time you're hot, tired or thirsty, step up to a soda fountain and get a glass of Coca-Cola. It will cool you off, relieve your bodily and mental fatigue and quench your thirst delightfully. At soda fountains or carbonated in bottles—5c everywhere. Delicious, refreshing and wholesome. Send to the Coca-Cola Co., Atlanta, Ga., for their free booklet "The Truth About Coca-Cola." Tells what Coca-Cola is and why it is so delicious, refreshing and thirst-quenching. And send 2c stamp for the Coca-Cola Baseball Record Book for 1910—contains the famous poem "Casey At The Bat," records, schedules for both leagues and other valuable baseball information compiled by authorities.

A Hibernian Verdict.

A New Yorker is the happy employer of an aged Irishman, who grows eloquent over the woes of the Emerald isle. Said the boss: "Pat, the king of England is dead."

The old man was silent for a moment. Then he took off his hat.

"Well," he said slowly, "as a man he was a fine bit of a boy. As Englishmen go, he was as good as yez can make them. As a king, there was nobody on earth as could beat him. But still, I'll keep me eye on George."

When Father Helped.

The fond father held the manuscript while his son practised the oration.

"Shall we permit the ruthless hand of the hydra-headed tyrant," cried the youth, "to—to—to—well, what is it?"

The father was wrestling with the manuscript.

"Oh, yes," he muttered, "here it is: 'to desiccate.' Go on."

"It's desecrate," cried the boy, indignantly. "Shall we permit the ruthless hand of the hydra-headed tyrant to desecrate the—the—the—why don't you prompt me?"

The father was staring hard at the manuscript.

"The—the poodle—paddle—poodleum of our liver ties," he stammered.

"It's the 'palladium of our liberties,'" roared the boy. "Gimme that paper—I'll say it meself."

And he stalked away angrily.

But He Wasn't.

Senator Depew, in his Washington residence on his seventy-sixth birthday, told a reporter that his health was perfect.

"You do, indeed, sir," said the reporter, heartily, "look the picture of health."

"Yes," said the senator, "I shouldn't have said I was well if my appearance didn't bear me out. A self-contradiction didn't bear me out. A self-contradiction. You have heard about the census taker?

"A census taker rang the bell of a Hillyer place residence the other day and an elderly gentleman opened the door.

"'I'd like to see the head of the house,' said the census taker.

"'S-sh! Not so loud!' whispered the elderly gentleman. 'Now, what is it? I'm the head of the house?'"

A Pleasing Combination

Post Toasties

with Cream and Sugar.

Adding strawberries or any kind of fresh or stewed fruit makes a delicious summer dish.

The crisp, golden-brown bits have a most delightful flavour—a fascination that appeals to the appetite.

"The Memory Lingers"

Sold by Grocers.

Pkgs. 10c and 15c

POSTUM CEREAL CO., LTD. Battle Creek, Mich.

JULY

L 904

0444

The St. Joe News.

One Year . . $1.00
Six Month . . 50c
Three Months . . 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

Forestry in Indiana.

The greatest part of Indiana in its primitive state was covered by forests, noble forests; where the Indian in the zenith of his glory hunted the wild game which naturally abounded. The early settler could make little use of the gigantic trees which covered his claim. Of the smaller trees he made his cabin and stable, the latter with its clapboard roof and puncheon floor, was to him of great value, more than the trees which today would be worth a small fortune.

As the soil was first importance to the settler little thought was given to anything but clearing it of any and all obstructions, so that not even were trees left for beauty or shade—some sugar producers were left. Farms were fenced with rails, and in some places corduroy roads were made by placing logs side by side and covering them with dirt. My grandfather as well as many others worked many a night by the light of a blazing hickory tree to get the new ground ready for corn. It is little wonder the children of the next generation looked upon tree as a natural enemy, and continued the sacrifice of the forests until it is said that today less than 20 per cent of the forests remain that existed forty years ago, and lumber has advanced 100 per cent in the last twenty years.

Much has been said but little has been done about renewing the forests that have been destroyed. The sacrifice of our forests has been accompanied by the rapid developement of the agricultural and industrial interests of our state in which cheap lumber has been, and will continue to be, an important factor. Wood will continue, as it has been, to be the most useful of materials for manufacturing and constructions. If the forests are destroyed the business interests will suffer the consequences. In January, 1905, the American Forest Congress met in Washington, D. C., to discuss the importance of forest preservation so as to prevent a timber famine. Apparent progress has been made in arousing the people of Indiana to the vast importance, especially, the future generation, of that systematic and persistent effort necessary to the realization of the possibilities of the soil and climate of our state in the development of timber resources.

It is important to inculcate in the minds of the youth of our great country a sincere love for nature and a desire to cultivate and protect our trees, because of their usefulness, as well as their beauty and comfort, to mankind. People err who mistrust the willingness of the boy or girl to allow trees to grow unmolested. Farmers, especially, should take up the cultivation of tree growing, not only for appearances but also for a protection of the animals. Farm door yards would be much more attractive if they were ornamented with shade trees, for nothing speaks more for the culture of a home or family than well kept lawns with beautiful trees and vines. It is only humane that live stock should have the protection of the trees.

Many a school house of Indiana lacks the surroundings that makes for contentment and comfort as expressed in the spreading shade trees.

The city school grounds are often so small that tree planting is out of the question and the building is exposed on every side, though where space permits, it is not uncommon to find some of the ground carefully laid out in a good arrangement of grass plots, flower beds and shade trees.

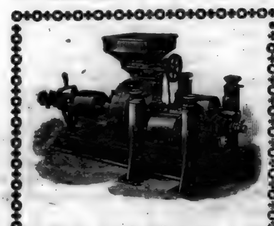
In the country, however, an improved school yard is rarely found and many are as inhospitable as when they formed a part of the unsettled country. This lack of improvement is not due to causes evident at first sight. It is not on account of poverty, because the neglect is as great in wealthy as in less prosperous communities

It is not due to lack of appreciation of the beauty, for where homes are surrounded with trees, grass and flowers, the school is likely to be neglected. The cause seems to lie rather in the failure to see the importance of comfort and beauty in education and to realize the interest of the young people in the natural world around them. How often is it a teacher of an Indiana common school mentions forestry in any form or helps it along by impressing it on the minds of their children how necessary it is for the immediate conservation of our forests? The governor of this state annually appoints Arbor Day at the proper season for planting and always give some valuable points for the benefit of the day. This day is sometimes celebrated in the country school by public exercises appropriate to tree planting, with essays and recitations by the pupils and probably an address by a visitor, but in a city school little or no time is taken for these purposes. Many people do not know in what month Arbor Day generaly comes.

Many cities are rapidly beautifying them selves by the more careful cultivation of plants and trees; for instance our own city, Fort Wayne, has ordered many thousand trees for individuals this spring which is the result of a Civic Improvement Society. The Pennsylvania Railroad Co., has planted over a million and a half of trees since it has taken up forestry on an extensive scale. A certain silk factory has planted over 50,000 pine trees along the streams which furnish water power for them.

How much farther would "Forest Preservations" be carried on if every person felt a little more responsibility toward the saving of our forests and looked forward to future needs. Instead of seeing panic, ruin and destruction staring the people in the face, what might he see? He is a poor American indeed who does not look after the future generation in regards to forestry as well as other important resources.

DAVID ERWIN,
Ft. Wayne, Ind.
Eighth Grade, Township Schools.



Grain is Saved,
Money Made,
and
Stock does better
by having your feed ground
by the

Keesler Mfg. Co.
ST. JOE, - - - - INDIANA

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.
No. 11 due at .....10:32 a. m.
No. 3 ....8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.
No. 2 due at.....6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at.....4:57 p.m.

J D Fetters
TRUSTEE
of Concord Township.
OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK
at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

A Frightful Wreck
of train, automobile or buggy may cause cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains or wounds that demand Bucklen's Arnica Salve—earth's greatest healer. Quick relief and prompt cure results. For burns, boils, sores of all kinds, eczema, chapped hands and lips, sore eyes or corns, its supreme. Surest pile cure. 25c. at H. L. Dunkle's.

Mid-Summer Sale.

On the last page of this issue will be found a large advertisement that will mean money in your pockets by taking advantage of it. Patterson's store is running a Mid-Summer Sale commencing Saturday and continuing for two weeks. All the goods listed are of the best stock and nothing is shabby. It means much to our people to be able to purchase seasonable goods at such low prices as will prevail for these two weeks. Don't put off doing your shopping too long.

ST. JOE NEWS.

Mrs. Bert Woodcox and daughter Lucile, were at Wayne, Saturday.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank; you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

..Real Estate..
Insurance
NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

His answered day or night.

Phone No. 82.

St. Joe, Indiana.

Summer Is Here

which brings flies, bugs and mosquitoes. Why be pested with them when Kinsey has a full line of Screen Doors, Windows, Wire screen and Hinges. All sizes at right prices. That nice lawn needs a mower to keep it mowed. When that building needs painting, don't forget we have a full line of Paint and Oil guaranteed strictly pure. The hot weather will make you wonder where you can secure a Gasoline or Oil Stove, remember we have a full line. When you need anything in Hardware remember we are complete. We show the biggest line of Graniteware ever shown in town and prices are such as have never been known. We have the Automatic Schrams Fruit Jars. Come in and we will be glad to show them. Always bear in mind that Kinsey's is where you get value received or in other words, dollar for dollar.

At your Service,

H. V. KINSEY H. V. Kinsey & Son E. R. KINSEY

Furniture Hardware Undertaking

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37 3

You will also find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Especially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37 4.

Band concert Saturday evening.

Miss Goldie Johnston of Ft. Wayne, called on friends at this place, Thursday afternoon.

C. O. Benjamin was at Montpelier, Saturday evening attending a meeting of operators.

Miss Agnes Krabill is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. John Shilling west of Spencerville.

FOR SALE:-Large, new, oak bookcase. Quartersawed front. Price $12. MAHLON BAKER.

Grover Curie, wife and baby, Mrs. Belle Ridgway and Paul Curie are spending the week at Hamilton lake.

Miss Grace Sechler returned from Ft. Wayne, Saturday, where she had spent the week with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Benninghoff and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Baxter made a trip to Butler, Saturday evening in the former's automobile.

Frank Wise and wife, Lee and Orville Wise and their families, of Auburn, called on C. B. Leighty and family, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. F. G. Baker and Mrs. C. H. Bishop returned to their homes Monday noon, after spending several days here with Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Baker.

Mrs. J. E. Sturgis and children of Butler, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoads and daughter, of near Concord, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Florence Buchanan.

Tiger Bill's Wild West Show pitched their tents on the Harry Kees field opposite the B. & O. depot here, last Friday. The evening crowd was exceedingly large and an excellent wild west performance was given, besides the trained dogs, horses and the punching bag act. The cow boys were skilled and could handle the rope to perfection as was demonstrated in the center of the arena. Everyone was well pleased with the show.

The best man we have in our town for the general good of the town is the one you will always see on the front seat of the progressive "band wagon." He is the first one to extend an open and warm hand to greet the stranger and welcome him to the best town in the state. He will resent an insult to our town as quickly as he would a slur at a member of his family. He very politely invites the chronic croaker to "move on." He is ever ready to give his just proportion to every public enterprise. He talks up our town at home at abroad and believes it is the best upon God's green earth in which to live, and desires to be buried here when he dies. Let us try to be like this man for one year and our little city will take on new life and improve as never before in its history.

Napoleon's Grit
was of the unconquerable, never-say-die kind, the kind that you need most when you have a bad cold, cough or lung disease. Suppose troches, cough syrups, cod liver oil or doctors have all failed, don't lose heart or hope. Take Dr. King's New Discovery. Satisfaction is guaranteed when used for any throat or lung trouble. It has saved thousands of hopeless sufferers. It masters stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, hemorrhages, lagrippe, croup, asthma, hay fever and whooping cough and is the most safe and certain remedy for all bronchial affections. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free at H. L. Dunkle's.

Read the ads and be posted.

Little Miss Marguerite Leighty, spent last Thursday and Friday with her grandparents.

Henry Hathaway and family and Herman Brown and family of Auburn are enjoying a couple of weeks camping in the Dills grove near the river.

There will be a Methodist Protestant rally at the Fairview church, Sunday July 24. Everybody is invited to attend. Good time and a good speaker will be present.

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Ice! Ice! Ice!
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

Grove Meeting

The Third Annual Meeting of the five Christian Churches, St. Joe, Coburns Corners, Harlan, Newville and Milford, will be held in Railroad Park on the first Lord's day in August. Gary L. Cook, of Indianapolis, State Bible School Superintendent, will be the speaker, morning and afternoon. A basket dinner will be served at the noon hour. Everybody come.

Local Items

See Burwell's before buying and save money.

Mrs. B F. Walter and daughter, Edna, are spending this week with friends and relatives at Harlan.

The Misses Mary Horn of Spencerville and Bivere Cummins of Harlan, spent Saturday and Sunday with their uncle, John Betz and family.

The world's most successful medicine for bowel complaints is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It has relieved more pain and suffering, and saved more lives than any other medicine in use. Invaluable for children and adults. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE,
ST. JOE, IND.
Office in Case building.
Bell Phone No. 44.

D. F. BROWN,
.....SHOE SHOP.....
My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite the Postoffice. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.
St. Joe, - Ind.

S. S. Kimes
—M. D.—
Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.
Phone No. 10.
Spencerville, Ind.

Little Miss Callie Mills of Fort Wayne is spending a few days with her cousins, Galen Betz and Edith Berry.

5% FARM LOANS 5%
SEE
Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.
Bell 347k Home 346
Office:
Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Miss Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son,
Phone No. Office 37-2. Residence 37-3

JULY

0445

L 904

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

Another Fire in Town.

Arthur Steward, who lives near the Wabash railroad, had the misfortune to loose his barn, last Saturday noon. His little 5 year old boy has been in the habit of wanting to play with fire and in order to keep him from it they placed the matches where they supposed them to be out of his reach, but the youngster got them just the same, and he immediately climbed to the hay loft, where he had his fun. Mr. Sam Steward was occupying the barn and a few minutes before he had been out and fed his horses preparatory to make a drive to Auburn. He had gotten his rig all ready and was waiting for Mrs. Steward to come. She soon arrived and noticed the fire and soon notified Mr. Steward by the time he reached the barn one of the horses ropes had been burned off and it left the barn on a run while the other was still fast to the manger. Mr. Steward cut the rope and then had trouble in getting the horse out of the barn. The horse is yet in a serious condition, having breathed the hot air into its lungs until it was nearly overcome. Mr. Steward's harness and feed was also consumed by the fire. The young lad owned up to having set the barn on fire. He remained in the hay loft until he was compelled to jump out the door, not being injured in the least. Men from town were soon at the scene but nothing could be done but to watch the buildings near by. A small insurance was on the farm but nothing on the contents.

SPENCERVILLE

The News $1.00 per year.

Mrs. John Beams is on the sick list.

Little Fannie Vallieu spent Sunday with little Jessie Steward.

Mrs. Hattie Beams took dinner with her mother, Mrs. Shutt, Sunday.

George Henderson and family visited with W. S. Tyndall's Sunday afternoon.

The Winner overalls and shirts are the best. Beams & Co., sell them.

Sarah and Katie Myers spent a couple of days this week with Fort Wayne relatives.

The Warren Silberg house caught on fire last Wednesday noon, probably due to the fact that Mrs. Silberg had had a fire in the stove during the forenoon. The dinner had been prepared and the family were seated at the table. Mrs. Frank Rhoads, a neighbor, happened to notice it and immediately gave the alarm and soon the fire was extinguished. A small hole had been burned in the roof and had it not been discovered for 10 minutes longer the entire house would have been enveloped in the flames. It evidently caught fire by a spark falling from the chimney on the dry roof.

FRED THOMAS

I have moved my blacksmith shop across the street to the Geo. Wilson property recently purchased by me. All customers will find me here at all times ready to attend to all work.

The Blacksmith.

YOU ARE ALWAYS WELCOME AT THE

TREECE RESTAURANT

Lunch, Cigars, Confectionary, Ice Cream and Soft Drinks

Clem Treece

PROPRIETOR.

Read your own News.

Ice cream social at M. P. parsonage St. Joe Saturday night.

Cora Steward and son Fred, spent last Saturday at Robison Park.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fairfield and little son are here visiting for a few days.

Geo. Beams and family spent Sunday with John Haifleys' near Springfield Center.

Mrs. Sadie Butler took supper with her daughter, Mrs. Frances Chapman Friday eve.

Before buying your machine oil see Erick & Co's Eldorado Castor. Only 20c. per gallon. It's a fine one.

Mr. Frank Silberg spent part of last week with his mother, returning to his work on Saturday.

Rev. Byrt and family returned home Tuesday evening after a week's visit with friends in Ft. Wayne.

Miss Inez Wasson of near Spencerville, went Monday evening to begin work for Mrs. Albert Shearer.

Messrs. Simeon and Samuel Tarney of Auburn spent last Tuesday with their sister, Mrs. Lydia J. Steward.

Phone us the news or use our item box at the post office. We want all the news, but it is impossible to get it without your help.

Mr. Buck, of Stryker, Ohio, came last Thursday to visit his daughter, Mrs Gora Hart and his son at Cromwell, returning to his home on Monday.

Soreness of the muscles, wnether induced by violent exercise or injury, is quickly relieved by the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment is equally valuable for muscular rheumatism, and always afford quick relief. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville

Mrs. Stella Moor, Mrs. Della Brown, Mr. Theodore Kline and grandson, were Ft. Wayne shoppers on Monday of last week.

Mrs. Gladys Paff came Wednesday morning to spend a couple of months with relatives and friends. Her coming was a surprise to all.

Poplin and Soisette silk, a washable dress goods, goes at 21 cents. A regular 25 cent value. Beams & Co.

Mrs. Kathryn Steward and little daughters returned to their home in Garrett last Thursday, after spending a few days with relatives.

Walter Wilson spent Sunday with his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. L. J. Steward, at this place. Mrs. Wilson is here caring for her mother, who is quite poorly.

When the stomach fails to perform its functions, the bowels become deranged, the liver and the kidneys congested causing numerous diseases. The stomach and liver must be restored to a healthy condition and Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets can be depended upon to do it. Easy to take and most effective Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and, W. L Wernert, Spencerville.

Don't neglect putting news items in the box at the postoffice so that we may get them by Monday forenoon. We make regular trips each week. The writer is positive that there is more news in Spencerville than is being received each week. We cannot call on each one of you to get news, so please put your items in the box arranged for that purpose. Please help us this much.

Worked 24 Hours a Day

The busiest little things ever made are Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar-coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, languor into energy, brain-fag into mental power; curing Constipation, Headache, Chills, Dyspepsia, Malaria. 25c. at H. L. Dunkle's.

M. and Mrs C. E. Chapman were St. Joe visitors Friday evening.

Mrs. Rachel Mason called on aunt Lydia Jane Steward Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Rachel Horn and Mrs. Mason, visited with Mrs. L. J. Steward Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawk of Akron, O., are here visiting friends and relatives this week.

Mrs. Martin Davis visited with her daughter, Mrs. Henry Walter and family Sunday.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gently stimulate the liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system, cure constipation and sick headache. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

WABASH CORNERS.

Three grades of Binder twine at Burwell's.

Roscoe Rickett has a job of firing on the B. & O. railroad.

Orange Herrick and wife were Sunday guests of aunt Em Simanton.

Some from this place attended the Tiger Bill show at St Joe Friday night

Miss Pearl Pervines spent Friday in St. Joe, the guest of Miss Flossie Copp.

John Bowman and two daughters are staying with Gene White and family.

O. K. Shull and family were Sunday guests of Benj. Hamilton ane wife at St. Joe.

Several from this way attended the Milt Krise sale in St. Joe Saturday afternoon.

Miss Edna Perkins of Ft. Wayne, spent last week with her parents at this place.

Attend the social at Saylor's School House, to-night (Thursday.)

Mrs. Wm. Pervines and daughter, Pearl, did some shopping in Butler Thursday forenoon.

Mrs. Maggie Thomas and Mrs. Ella Gill of St. Joe, were the guests of Mrs. Ida Herrick Thursday.

Cal Loux, wife and son Frank, of south of Coburntown, spent Sunday at Frank Loux's at this place.

Mrs. M. A. Ulm and sister, Mrs. Josie Shilling, spent Sunday in Auburn, the guests of Charley Gill and family.

Ed Hull and two sisters, Marie and Goldie, spent part of last week in Ft. Wayne the guests of Mrs. Mary Bartlett and family.

Roy White and family and Sherman Wolff and wife, were the guests of J. B. White and wife in St. Joe Saturday evening.

Mrs. Hattie Johnson and daughter, Thelma of Concord and Mrs. Della Dragoo, were the guests of Mrs. Deem Hull Wednesday.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Excursion to

Sandusky $1.25
Cedar Point 1.50

Train leaves ST. JOE at 4:54 A. M.

SUNDAY, JULY 17th.

Numerous Attractions.

W. G. Erick

TRUSTEE

of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY

TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK

at Store in

SPENCERVILLE, IND

Fairview Neighborhood

Cut Canada thistles now. "The sign is right."

Ice cream social at M. P. parsonage St. Joe Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Milt Krise were out riding in this neighborhood Sunday evening.

Fairview neighborhood was overrun with book agents last week. They found pretty good picking.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Buttermore visited near Garrett Sunday. Reports crop prospects better here than there.

Ice cream and cake at Saylor's School House, to-night (Thursday.) Come.

A slip of the memory made me say that Roy Kinsey had the contract for papering Fairview church. I should have said George Kinsey.

Wheat cutting has been about completed here and prospects are for a good yield, although smut will damage it somewhat. Oats seem to be alright but is short. Corn is rather poor, especially on clay or sand. Hay not better than a half crop. Early potatoes are "fine"—can be run thru a colander without mashing.

A beautiful mounted picture with each purchase of one dollar or more at Burwell's.

Our good Old Girls had a pretty hefty job of house cleaning at the church Friday and Monday. And by the way, if it were not for the women "nudging" things along two thirds of the churches would be closed inside of ten years. and we'd be as barbarous and heathenish as—Newark, Ohio.

The rededication of the Fairview church will take place Sunday, July 24. It is purposed to have a union of Concord, St. Joe and Fairview Sunday Schools and all day services. Come with baskets filled for yourselves and a few more. The John Knight grove near the church it is reported will be open to the public and for teams.

CONCORD

Jack Johnston and wife, and Dell Funk were visitors at John Funks', Sunday.

Geo. Johnson and family, and Rev. Coomer were Sunday guests of Dell Dragoos'.

Miss Mae Daily came home from Angola, Saturday, where she is attending school.

Mary Scott and daughter Inez, called on Mrs. Eva Miller and Dora Lucas, Monday afternoon.

Heavy and shelf Hardware at Burwell's.

Mrs. Rebecca Baker wishes to thank her friends for her post cards she received on her birthday.

Inez Patterson came home from Indianapolis, Thursday, where she has been for sometime.

E. W. Johnson, wife and daughter, and J. W. Brown, wife and sons were Sunday guests of A. A. Carper and wife.

Master Waldo Baker spent Friday and Saturday with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Carper near Union.

Mrs. Delila Dragoo and daughter Ruth, went to Ft. Wayne, Saturday to visit her daughter, Mrs. George Bartlett, returning home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wyatt came home from Elkhart, Thursday, where they spent the Fourth with Mrs. Wyatt's daughter, Mrs. John Boren and family.

Henry, Wm. and John Baker are taking an outing at the lake, this week. John Baker and wife and Wm. expects to start for Florida, next Monday, where they will make their home.

Band Concert.
Saturday Night.
at St. Joe.

ST. JOE.

The best line of one-cent Post Cards in town can be seen at Kagey's.

The case building is being put in shape for the moving of the post office, which will take place this week.

Had a Runaway.

Clarence Hart experienced a runaway Monday morning. While hitching up his team Monday to the binder they became frightened and started from the D. J. Leighty farm, running south to Cynthia Engle's, turning up the hill and around her house. In making the turn the tongue broke. When they were about to go down the steep bank the tongue finished breaking thus stopping them. This was the only part of the machine broken and the horses were not scratched in the least.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad

VERY LOW FARES TO

Mountain Lake Park, Md.—June 28-July 12.
Chicago—U. S. Army Tournament, July 7, 8, 9.

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO—Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES—South Southwest, West, Northwest.

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST, Long Limits.

Consult BALTIMORE AND OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stopover Privileges and Other Detailes.

CORRESPONDENCE

ITEMS FROM DIFFERENT LOCALITIES WRITTEN FOR THE NEWS

SPENCERVILLE R. R. NO. 1.

Read The News.

John McNabb lost a valuable horse last week.

Miss Blevere Cummins, of Harlan, visited a week with Miss Mary Horn.

The Misses Mary and Hallie Notestion were home for a few days visit from Ft. Wayne.

Rev. Hitchner, wife and son, were entertained to supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horn Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Horn and daughter Leila and Venus Horn, called at the home of Newton Miller last Sunday afternoon.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2.

Mr. Nelson Lake is critical ill at this writing.

Dessa and Iva Pounce spent Sunday with Edie Smith.

Mark Tyndall was a Sunday guest of Willie Stevens.

Lena Wearley was the guest of Ollie Beerbower, Sunday.

Harley Wearley was a Sunday caller at Clinton Wearleys'.

Melvin Howey, wife and son spent Sunday with his parents.

Arthur Furnish and family spent Sunday with W. O. Lake and family.

Greeley Wearley and wife called on Loren Means and wife, Sunday afternoon.

Fern Wearley spent Sunday with her parents, C. M. Wearley and family.

Sol Goldsmith and family, and Mr. Baldon visited with Thomas Fornners' Sunday.

Harley Wearley and Vean Hetzel visited Sunday with Dallas Kelley and family.

Howard Hatch and Fred Showalter of Butler, and Clara Keesler called on Pluma Kimes, Sunday.

H. M. Widney, wife and daughter Dorris, called on Harvey Kimes and family, Saturday evening.

Clara Clark and daughter Avis, of Ft. Wayne, are spending a few days with her parents, Geo. Howey and wife.

Dallas Kelley and his father were called to Adrain, Mich., last week, on account of his brother Isaac, who was seriously hurt on the railroad.

Laten Lake of Butler, Dr. J. H. Lake and family of St. Joe, and Mrs. Johnstone and children of Chicago, spent Sunday with Nelson Lakes'.

Those Pies of Boyhood.

How delicious were the pies of boyhood. No pies now ever taste so good. what's changed? the pies? No. Its you. You've lost the strong. healthy stomach the vigorous liver, the active kidneys, the regular bowels of boyhood. Your digestion is poor and you blame the food. What's needed? A complete toning up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Try them. They will restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c. at H. L. Dunkle's.

WISE'S CORNERS.

Tracy Gratz spent Sunday with friends near Grabill.

Ira Smith was at Ft. Wayne on business, last Thursday.

Hershey Webb bought a work horse of Will Smith, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edd Billman were Sunday guests at Spencerville.

Miss Margie Spitler spent Thursday afternoon with Miss Eva Wertman.

Hiram Koller made several business calls in our vicinity last Thursday, concerning a ditch.

Beeks McKinley was entertained at the home of Joseph Spitlers', last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Nettie Welch was pleasantly entertained at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ray Squier, last Monday.

E. Billman and F. Wertman are assisting Leo Chapman in making hay on Henry Markle's farm, this week.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve Headaches, Neuralgia and all Pain.

Mrs. Tom Holtz of near Grabill, spent Tuesday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Samuel Smith.

Several from our vicinity called on Mr. Will Moore in Spencerville, last Friday evening. He is in a very serious condition.

Elmer Smith and family, and W. L. Smith and wife spent the evening of the 4th., under the parental roof. Ice cream and cake was served.

Mrs. Claudie Shutt and children spent a very pleasant evening last Monday, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ella Fisher of Spencerville.

Two of Frank Wertman's daughters from Ashland, Ohio, came to visit among friends, last Tuesday. Mrs. Wertman and Mrs. Billman brought them from Hicksville.

Teething children have more or less diarrhoea, which can be controlled by giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. All that is necessary is to give the prescribed dose after each operation of the bowels more than natural and then castor oil to cleanse the system. It is safe and sure. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

COUNTY LINE NEWS.

Earl Wyatt spent Sunday with Miss Grace Kain of Angola.

Miss Grace Sponhour spent Sunday with Miss Bina Boots.

Miss Zulu Sponhour is working for Chas. Huffman and wife.

Clarence Sponhour and wife spent Sunday with Chas. Huffmans' of St. Joe.

Willard and Hazel Strong spent Saturday and Sunday with Loren Means and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Wyatt attended church at Spencerville, and took dinner with K. E. Chaney and wife.

J. Bishop and family, and Chas. Bishop and family spent Sunday with Perry Myers and wife and the new daughter, Miss Mary.

Clay Rinehold, wife and son Walter, and Mrs. Etta Armstrong and daughter Pearl, spent Sunday with Oliver Warstler and family.

Does not Color the Hair

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Stops Falling Hair An Elegant Dressing
Destroys Dandruff Makes Hair Grow

Composed of Sulphur, Glycerin, Quinin, Sodium Chlorid, Capsicum, Sage, Alcohol, Water, Perfume. Ask your doctor his opinion of such a hair preparation.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Does not Color the Hair

J. C. AYER COMPANY, Lowell, Mass.

JULY

0446

L 904

Cupid and the Proprieties

By Catherine M. Patterson

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

Monday morning was drawing perilously near and the party had just broken up. It was one of Patricia Norton's regular Sunday night supper parties, whose guest list never numbered more than eight and usually less—and the Falwells and Jimmie Brent were the latest stayers. Mrs. Falwell and her husband were just leaving. Mrs. Falwell and her husband! It was always that way, not that Mrs. Falwell was the more important of the two or was the possessor of any mental, moral or physical superiority, but it just naturally was. Yet every one liked Mr. Falwell and he himself seemed quite content with things as they were.

Jimmie Brent had risen with the Falwells, but after they had gone he still remained. In his hand he held a half-smoked cigar.

"May I stay until I finish this?" he inquired, indicating his weed.

"Surely," said Patricia.

"Brent promptly knocked off not only the ashes, but the live end of the cigar. Patricia's eyebrows went up inquiringly.

"Your motive, Jimmie?" she questioned.

"You said I should stay until I finished this cigar," holding it off and admiring its proud, brown beauty.

"But I don't expect you to be forever doing it."

"Forever!" mused Jimmie. "I'd like to make this last forever."

"Jimmie Brent, you are coming back to a forbidden subject. Finish that cigar in five minutes—for then out you go."

"Do you mean that, Patricia?" making no move to light his cigar and—if possible—settling himself still more comfortably in his chair. "May I ask how you are going to do it? You can't use brute force, you know."

"I shan't attempt to do it myself," she said, with dignity. "I shall call Aunt Nancy, and if she can't accomplish it she will call the janitor."

"Call Aunt Nancy? Good. She thinks you are making the mistake of all the many mistakes of your life in so persistently refusing to marry me. Call Aunt Nancy in if you wish, she is on my side."

"I'd Never Do That."

"I should say she is. She made the coffee so strong tonight that if it had wanted to do so it could have walked off bodily with this entire apartment. And all that because 'Mar'se Brent he likes his cawfee dat strong dat if de cup was ter bre'k de cawfee would 'most stand up alone.'"

"All of which goes to prove my point. As for the janitor, nice sort of a name you would have if one of your Sunday nights ended in a disgraceful brawl between the janitor and one of your guests."

"Nice sort of name I'll have, anyway, if you stay here much later," muttered Patricia, glancing at the clock. "Those new people across the hall are taking a lively interest in me as it is, and they have been here only a week."

"You don't say so!" offered Jimmie, politely, covering his lips quickly with his hand, ostensibly to conceal a yawn.

"Jimmie, you are sleepy. Please go home."

"Haven't finished my cigar."

"You are not likely to if you don't get busy and smoke it."

"I'm not in a hurry, thank you. But about those new people across the hall, Patricia? Tell me more about them. What do you think of them?"

"I think they are horrid," said Patricia in a tone that bore the hallmark of conviction. "I've seen only members of the family, but they—enough. There is an old, gray-haired woman, so lean and angular you could use her for a costumer. She owns a barbed-wire voice that corresponds perfectly with her hatchet-face."

"Barbed-wire voice, hatchet-face," repeated Jimmie. "She is perfectly safe from me. But what sort of person is she? Your description doesn't reveal that little detail."

"Oh, doesn't it? Then perhaps the fact that she discusses the other people in the apartment building with the servants may throw some light on the subject."

"It does help some. But what has she said about—about—well, about you, for instance?"

"Well, she said that if I were not—" Patricia stopped in the middle of her speech, and her face flushed.

"Go on. What did she say?"

"She said," repeated Patricia, with an effort, "that if I was not engaged to you I ought to be, and—"

"My sentiments exactly. The lady of the hatchet-face is not such a bad sort, after all. But to go on. What else?"

"She said it was disgraceful the number of times that you come here, and the lateness of your stay is always perfectly shocking. And those are my sentiments, Jimmie; you simply must go."

"Not until you have promised to become Mrs. J. Brent before the year is over."

"I'd never do that."

"Very well, then, here I'll sit. Meantime, take heed unto yourself and remember the hour."

"I am remembering it, Jimmie. Please, please go. Finish your cigar as you cross the park."

"No, thank you; that isn't included in my campaign plans. Tell me more about these interesting people. Who is the second member of the family that you know?"

"A horrid, freckled boy, who is the most ubiquitous person with whom it has ever been my misfortune to come in contact. He is always in the halls and lately he has insisted on posting my letters for me. Fairly snatches them out of my hand and races off like mad. I can't stir any more without finding him at my heels."

"You seem to have made a conquest, and, after the manner of womankind in general, you don't appreciate it. By the way, how did all these remarks of the hatchet-faced one reach your ears? That point isn't quite clear to me."

"Aunt Nancy told me. The woman herself and the janitor, to whom my most estimable neighbor across the way has also been talking, it seems, told Aunt Nancy."

"But, Patricia, what was that you said about people listening to tales from servants, and talking to them?"

"Jimmie, you are horrid. It is different with Aunt Nancy. She is—"

"A dear, as I have always maintained," interrupted Jimmie. "But come, Patricia. Aren't you going to accept me this time?"

"No, I am not. Oh, Jimmie, it is one o'clock. Please go."

"Can't help it if it is 5 o'clock a. m. Patricia, you know you love me, only you are too contrary to admit it. You have kept me in suspense for six long years and that is more than enough. Moreover, you have yourself to think of. If the people across the hall have noticed my numerous and late visits, so have the other people in the building."

"Stop!" cried Patricia. "Please, please don't say anything more like that. And won't you go home?"

"I will not until you promise to be my wife, Patricia," and, rising quickly, Brent crossed to Patricia, who also had risen. He took her in his arms. Patricia attempted to free herself.

"Promise me, Patricia, that you will be my wife," coaxed Jimmie, gently, but there was underneath it all a stern tone that implied that the man would brook delay no longer.

"Will you go at once if I do promise?"

"I'll go in five minutes. I want to tell you something first. Is it a bargain?"

"Yes, Jimmie, I will marry you."

"Before the year is over?"

"Yes."

Brent bent and kissed her before he asked: "On your word of honor, in spite of what I am going to tell you? Oh, I promise you I haven't committed a penal offense or disgraced the family in any way," he said, quickly, in answer to the glance of startled inquiry from Patricia.

"Tell me. You have my word, and that once given holds good for all time."

Brent bent and kissed the face he held between his hands before he spoke. "Patricia, I am the main part of the new family that has just moved into the apartment across the hall."

"You!" gasped Patricia. "And, and the woman with the awful face and voice? They are dreadful, even if she is related to you."

"But she isn't a relation of mine, so don't look so distressed. She will not come to pay us long visits. She is a most estimable woman, however, and my—housekeeper."

"And the boy?"

"The horrid imp,' which I believe was the affectionate and tender term you used in conjunction with him, is my young brother, who, by the way, thinks that you are the one woman. And all those tales were purely my own invention, carried to the right person by my faithful housekeeper. You see, dear, I was getting desperate. Remember, you have promised, on your word of honor, to marry me; so there is to be no retraction of your promise."

"Marry you? I certainly will," said Patricia, positively, "if for no other reason than to keep my eye on you in the future and prevent your doing something still worse. But do you remember your own promise to go?"

"Yes; and I'll go," said Jimmie, snatching up his cigar from the chimney piece. "Only I'll smoke this, not as I cross the park, but as I cross the hall."

A Paragon of the Kitchen

By MINNIE DOUGLAS

"Upon my word," protested John Ellwood, at the breakfast table, "this servant-girl problem is beginning to push the limit."

"Yes," returned his wife, peevishly, "we begin to realize that housekeeping in the country is pretty nearly what the comic papers depict it. This is the ninth cook I've had this winter."

"Just look at that fish! Look at it! It's not fit to eat," exclaimed Ellwood irefully holding up a scorched, unappetizing object. "And here I am, invoigling every man I meet to buy land and live in the country!"

"That's our business, dad," broke in Ellwood, Jr., from behind his paper. "We must dispose of every block in this real estate by spring."

"A nice chance of selling property for homes, with this condition in our own," growled the elder man, singling out portions of breakfast from among the scorched embers. "Here are these Chicago men coming out next week to look over the ground with a view to buying homes! I invited them to stay with us and get a taste of real living! And this is what we'll offer them!"

He threw down the fish, gulped a few mouthfuls of coffee and rose in disgust. "Just look at that stuff supposed to be coffee! I go to the trouble of carrying out the best blend of coffee in the market—in the bean! And that's what I get! It's enough to make a man swear off eating and believe the old saw, 'The Lord sends food but the devil sends cooks!'"

"Right you are, dad," grinned his only son, a splendid young fellow of twenty-five. "It's enough to make a man foreswear matrimony and live in comfortable bachelor quarters—eh?"

"Yes," returned Ellwood, Sr., biting sarcasm in his tone. "That sounds well from you! One might think you weren't breaking your own neck—and our temper—trying to get your head into the matrimonial noose at present."

"You planted your 'fig tree' pretty young, didn't you dad? Seems to be a law of nature to want your own roof-tree for the olive branches of posterity." He smiled broadly, ignoring his father's rising temper.

"By George, I'd live the rest of my life on overdone breakfasts and underdone dinners if it would cure you of your mad idea of getting married! And what's more," the old man blustered, "I'll never consent to your marrying the girl you have on your mind! The idea of you—you, who will some day have every cent I own—picking out a—a what is she?—a telegraph operator? No! I'll be—"

"There, there, dad," interrupted young Ellwood, "there are times when you are apt to say too much."

His son's self-control, under trying circumstances, was a source of secret admiration to Ellwood.

"It's abominable," the elder man burst out again, "to think that all my money will go to a girl who clicks a telegraph key—or—or something. She will probably beggar you. That sort always goes to extremes."

A whimsical smile played in the son's eyes. "But my dear father, you have the privilege of leaving your money to found a home for the training of cooks."

"I might do worse," he grunted, his mind going back to the origin of the dispute.

"Why can't we have practical schools of cookery where diplomas are distributed as in other professions?"

"There are schools of cookery, father—and good cooks. But—they won't come to the country."

"Good cooks? Where are they? Show me one! Bring one here and I'll promise her any wage she wants—in reason," cried the senior Ellwood.

"I'll do it, father," flashed the young man. "I'll do it. There must be good cooks and I'll get one. You and mother leave it to me."

"Remember how much depends on the visit from these Chicago land people! That's all I ask."

"Leave it to me," replied the son, confidently.

"What do you mean, Archer?" asked Mrs. Ellwood, always on the qui vive when domestic economy was the point of discussion.

"Nothing at all—except that I'm going to find a cook. I'm tired of this sort of thing—as tired as you and dad, so I'll try my hand."

That night the son was late to dinner.

When he arrived, it was with the smile of triumph on his face. "I've found you a cook," he exclaimed as he closed the front door. "And I've had my own time trying to get her to come out here to the country—but she's a cook!"

"Ah! that's the point. Is she a cook?" queried the father, the scepticism of past experience in his tone.

"You'll not find her equal," retorted the son, with confidence.

Mrs. Ellwood gazed at her son in wide-eyed astonishment.

"How do you happen to know, Archer?" she asked.

"She told me so," replied Archer, innocently. "And, besides, she comes well recommended."

"We're probably in the same boat we've been in for some time," testily replied Ellwood, Sr.

"I hope you told her I always scour the pots and kettles," jocularly added the father.

"That's another thing—she doesn't want the family butting into the kitchen."

"Anything else?" asked Mrs. Ellwood, faintly.

"Tell her we provide white kid gloves for our cook and have a motor at her disposal?" asked the father.

"There, there, dad, there's nothing unreasonable in her stipulations. There's no harm in a woman's keeping her profession on a dignified basis."

"Right you are my lad. I'm only joking. It takes intelligence of a high order to cook. Hang me, if it isn't as much of an art as painting pictures or writing poems—and a lot easier to appreciate. Bring her on, my son! I believe we're on the right track at last."

The first breakfast provided by the paragon of the kitchen caused a hush of awe about the table. Ellwood, Sr., was afraid to talk for fear of waking himself from an ambrosial dream. Mrs. Ellwood was silent, lost in wonder at the appearance of her breakfast table. Even the finger-bowls were polished till they gleamed like diamonds.

"This isn't the day for clean linen, Sarah," she whispered to the table-maid, who, in fresh apron and tidy hair looked unusually cheerful.

"No, ma'am, but the new cook refused to have the effect of her good cooking spoiled by being served on soiled linen."

"She's not afraid to run up laundry bills," muttered the mistress.

"I'll foot the laundry bills," exclaimed Ellwood. "A meal like this is worth something extra. She's a peach. What does she look like?"

"Not much to look at," sniffed Mrs. Ellwood. "She wears goggles and has her hair combed straight back. Says the steam hurts her eyes and takes the crinkle out of her hair. But her manners make up for her lack of looks."

"I'll have to go in and compliment her," rejoined Ellwood, Sr., grinning beatificially in his delight over the tasty food.

"Remember the agreement not to butt in," reminded the son.

"True! Better not risk it, I guess," acquiesced Ellwood.

Later in the week, when the expected guests had arrived and the host had taken them to the dining-room for an appetizer, he was surprised to find Sarah in charge, beaming in a cap and apron of the latest fashion. She administered dexterously to his every wish—a thing that proclaimed training for the occasion.

He was delighted with the appearance of his sideboard, the accumulation of sundry Christmas and birthday presents in the shape of decanters, glasses and carafes, having been brought to the light of day and polished within an inch of their lives.

"This is tip-top, Archie," he whispered to his son. "She's more than you cracked her up to be. I'll raise her wages."

"At her own request, the paragon had arranged the menu for dinner so that the meal was not only a delight—but a surprise—to the family. The host fairly beamed from the head of table, knowing that with every dish set before him he was adding a substantial argument in favor of home in the country.

"I'll tell you what—Ellwood," exclaimed one of the guests, "if you can promise me as good a cook as you have—and such perfect service—I'll buy some property and build here."

"Find everything right to your hand out here," exclaimed Ellwood, rubbing his hands gleefully but not daring to look at his wife or son. "I think one of the best things we can do is to build a school for the perfection of culinary art—she—" pointing to the kitchen—"is a graduate of a cooking school."

"I've a mind to offer her double wages to come out to us," facetiously exclaimed the president of the land company.

"By George if you do, I'll treble it," cried Ellwood.

"Suppose I raise it and quadruple it," cried a third, the jocularity of the occasion getting into his soul.

"Hang me, if I wouldn't marry her!" shouted the host in a burst of merriment. "Yes, sir, I'd marry her! She's a valuable asset to any family."

"What about the punishment for bigamy, dad?" asked young Ellwood.

The father laughed. "A man would be justified in comitting bigamy to acquire such a rarity. She's a genius—that's what she is! Now, sir, here's your chance," he went on, playfully. "If you were to make up to a girl like that—we could overlook her having earned her own living and enjoy her cooking." He laughed merrily over his own joke.

Young Ellwood left the table mysteriously and presently re-entered leading a blushing young person by the hand. She was clad in neat pink gingham that detracted nothing from the curves of her fresh young body.

"Well, dad, as I've always taken your advice," began young Ellwood, "I'll continue to do so. I intend to marry the paragon of the kitchen.

"Eh, what? What? What?" exclaimed Ellwood, swinging about on the pair. "What's all this?"

"This is Miss G lor—my fiancee—who came to help you out of a difficulty and to introduce you to her good qualities. She has, according to your own confession, more than pleased you. You remember your promise to do anything in reason? I—I now claim my reward in asking your sanction to our engagement."

"Bless my soul, boy, I'd no idea you had such excellent taste—such good sense. You are your father's son. Take her—my lad—take her. How worth is her above rubies."

"VISION" SPRINGS NEW ONE

Fair Agent Puts Clerks to Rout by Introducing Book in Unique Up-to-Date Manner.

It was a quiet springtime morning and the clerks in the big importing office were languidly pushing their pens over the ledgers and dreaming of baseball and fishing. Suddenly the screen door opened and a vision drifted in like a June zephyr.

"Gentlemen," exclaimed the vision, as she lifted her automobile veil, "it is coming! Be prepared! It is coming!"

There was a flutter among the pen pushers.

"What's coming?" demanded one. "A cyclone?"

"Earthquake?" asked another.

"Halley's comet turned back?" chimed a third.

With a silvery ripple of laughter the vision opened her suitcase.

"No, gentlemen, the 'big stick' is coming, and with it is coming Theodore the Great. Before he arrives you should buy a copy of the greatest book of the day, entitled: 'Teddy the Terrific; or, 'Big Sticking in Africa and Big Sticking in Europe.'"

But the clerks fled.

Royal Compliment.

George is the breezy elevator boy in one of the big office buildings. "George," said the tall bookkeeper the other morning, "let me off at the third."

"George, the fourth!" added the old broker.

"George, the fifth!" chirped the pretty blonde typist.

George expanded until there was danger of his brass buttons leaving his blue uniform.

"Aw, whatcher getting a swell head about?" piped a messenger. "Somebody would t'ink yer was a page in de senate."

"Page in de senate? Why, didn't yer hear dat peach of a typewriter say 'George de fift'? Makes one feel like de new king of England."

Lack of Self-Esteem.

Ashley—Dingler's bump of self-esteem must be a cavity.

Seymour—What makes you think that?

Ashley—The way he went after a job last week. He asked the boss what the wages were; boss told him: "Dollar a day for a good man," then Dingler said he was sorry, but he didn't like to work for less than that, and came away.

Getting Honest.

"This is your birthday, isn't it, Bess?"

"Yes, Dick."

"How old are you?"

"Twenty-two."

"Well, I'm going to give you a kiss for every year of your life."

"Why, Dick! Dick—I—I may as well confess to you that I am really twenty-six."

The Company's Gratitude.

High—Church was paid $1,000 for saving the life of Miser Klutchims.

York—Gracious! I had no idea that Klutchims would ever have paid an amount as large as that!

High—Oh, he didn't pay it; the money was paid by the company that has Klutchims' life insured for $500,000.

Two Desiderata.

Robinson—Why do you call your friend an "Animal Burbank?"

Rollins—Because he is trying to evolve a frog that will be all legs and an orphanage turkey.

Robinson—An orphanage turkey?

Rollins—Yes, a turkey that will have enough drumsticks to go around in an orphan asylum.

The Ambiguous Cook.

Mrs. DeAyaker—Did your cook leave on account of the extra 15 cents a week that the Razer woman offered her?

Mrs. Von Holmer—I can't tell; she said she was going to leave because she wanted the change, and I don't know whether she meant the money or the new place.

Mutual Fear.

Sinnee—Why didn't Kounfeitte raise a fuss when he found the grocer had sold him bad eggs?

Tricee—For the same reason that the grocer didn't raise a fuss when he found Kounfeitte had paid him a bad half-dollar.

Matter of Years.

Knox—Popleigh doesn't brag about that bright boy of his any more.

Blox—Has he ceased to be bright?

Knox—Not exactly. He says about the same sort of things as formerly, but he's got to the age where they are saucy.

An Illustration.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is a paradox?

Pa—Well, my son, a coal stove is one kind of paradox. It won't burn until it is put up, then it won't burn until it is shaken down.

Better Than Usual.

Snodgrass—Did you have good luck on your last hunting trip?

Nymrodd—Better than usual; I was shot at only four times and hit only twice.

Same Old Kind.

Ruggles—Have you a fireless cooker in your kitchen?

Raggles—Yes, but it's fireless because I can't afford to buy fuel for it any more.

WISE BOY SUBLET CONTRACT

Benevolent Old Lady Lavishes Kindness and Attention on Wrong Lad—Hired a Substitute.

A benevolent old lady happened one day to be visiting a school where a young incorrigible was undergoing punishment for a series of misdemeanors.

The teacher cited him as "the worst boy in the school—one I can't do anything with. I've tried everything in the way of punishment."

"Have you tried kindness?" was the gentle inquiry.

"I did at first, but I've got beyond that now."

At the close of the visit the lady asked the boy if he would call and see her on the following Saturday. A boy arrived promptly at the hour appointed. The old lady showed him her best pictures, played her liveliest music, and set before him a delicious lunch on her daintiest china. Then she thought it about time to begin her little sermon.

"My dear," she began, "were you not very unhappy to have to stand in the corner before all the class for punishment?"

"Please, ma'am," broke in the boy, with his mouth full of cake, "that wasn't me you saw. It was Pete. He gave me ten cents to come here and take your jawing."

Some High Flyers.

The guide was showing the visitors around Washington.

"This," he announced, pausing in a wide corridor, "is the wing of the senate."

"Do tell!" ejaculated the man from Kansas with the red handkerchief around his neck. "I never knew the senate had wings, but I've often thought the senators might have 'em."

"And why the senators?"

"Because so many of them are always up in the air, b'gosh!"

Lots of Practise.

"Have you had any practise?" inquired the manager of the great combination circus and menagerie, who had advertised for a man who could 'chin himself twenty times with one hand.'"

"I've had too much practise," wearily sighed the applicant, whose right shoulder was three inches higher than his left. "For seven years I've been practising two hours daily; I'm a straphanger, sir."

The Burning Question.

Venus was rising from the sea.

"Great Jupiter!" cried the men, as they crowded the beach. "How did you lose your arms?"

But the women never noticed the arms.

"In the name of all that is wonderful," they chimed, "how do you keep your hair in curl in salt water?"—Judge.

His Question-Answer.

"Are marriages made in heaven?"

The lecturer paused, as if for an answer to his interrogation; whereupon a man with a hunted look glanced furtively over his shoulder, swallowed hard, moistened his lips and said, huskily:

"Do strawberries grow at the north pole?"

Attractive Letters.

Rodrick—Yes, he came over here to learn our language and started on the alphabet. Began picking up letters, you know.

Van Albert—And what progress has he made?

Rodrick—Oh, he soon found that the only letters he had time to pick up were the X's and V's.

Methods of Calculation.

"Scientists are not usually successful business men."

"No. They think they are doing very well if they come within a few hundred thousand miles of the exact measurement. You can't figure on dollars that way if you are doing business with a bank."

Caution.

"Why do you insist on my going with you when you ask father for my hand again?" asked Ethelinda.

"Because," answered Claude, "I don't want to give him any more opportunities to presume because there are no ladies present."

The Great Problem.

"Please advise me."

"Well?"

"Shall I marry a girl who is my temperamental opposite and quarrel with her the rest of my life, or shall I marry a congenial soul and get tired of her?"

Still Cheaper.

"Isn't it cheaper to move than to pay rent?" I inquired of the young married man.

"I suppose it is," he replied with a settled air, "but my plan is cheaper than either; I live with my father-in-law."

Lack of Courage.

Bashful Browne—I'll give you $50 if you tell Miss Holmes I want to marry her.

Brassy Benson—Not on your life! She might try to work the John Alden racket on me.

Hint at the Reason.

"The patient is much better today, nurse."

"Yes, doctor. You remember you didn't call yesterday."

JULY

0447

L 904

Children's Skins.

Every now and then a child's skin will break out in some kind of a rash and folks think it caught the trouble at school or somewhere away from home. Half the time the trouble is caused by the use of unwholesome yellow soaps for washing clothing. They leave the dirt in the goods and make the clothing harsh and irritating to the skin. No wonder the rash breaks out. Easy Task soap is clean and white and sanitary and is best for children's clothes and yours, too. Get it at your grocer's.

Get After the Flies.

With the warm days flies multiply amazingly. Now is the time to attack them and prevent the breeding of millions from the few hundreds that already exist.

Perhaps the most effective method of destroying flies is by burning pyrethrum in each room. This stuns the flies and they can be swept up and burned.

Flies are dangerous carriers of disease and an enemy of humankind. Do your part toward keeping down the pest and improving the health of your community.

YELLOW CLOTHES ARE UNSIGHTLY. Keep them white with Red Cross Ball Blue. All grocers sell large 2 oz. package, 5 cents.

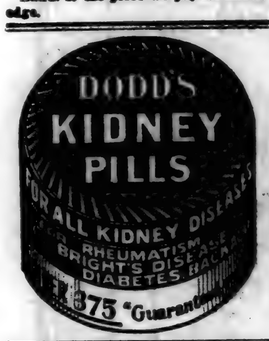
A rich man's children seem to think it is up to them to make a noise in the world.

Dr. Pierce's pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take.

A man is never so easily deceived as when he is trying to deceive others.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

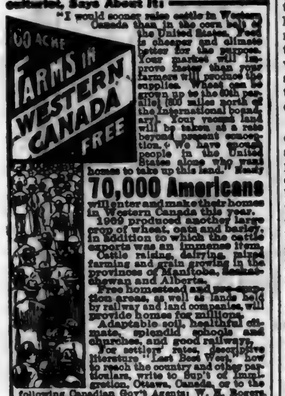
Ennui is the price we pay for knowledge.



WESTERN CANADA

What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agricultural Expert, Says About It:

"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed is cheaper and climate better for the purpose. Your pastures will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Wheat can be grown up to the 55th parallel, 1800 miles north of the International boundary. Your present land will be taken at a rate beyond present conception. We have enough people in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land."



70,000 Americans will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year. 1909 produced another large crop of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item. Cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as lands held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for millions.

Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, and good railways.

For settlers' rates, descriptive literature "Last Best West," how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 3d Floor Traction Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and M. V. Williams, Room 9, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you).

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

FREE Send postal for Free Package of Paxtine. Better and more economical than liquid antiseptics FOR ALL TOILET USES.

PAXTINE TOILET ANTISEPTIC

Gives one a sweet breath; clean, white, germ-free teeth—antiseptically clean mouth and throat—purifies the breath after smoking—dispels all disagreeable perspiration and body odors—much appreciated by dainty women. A quick remedy for sore eyes and catarrh.

A little Paxtine powder dissolved in a glass of hot water makes a delightful antiseptic solution, possessing extraordinary cleansing, germicidal and healing power, and absolutely harmless. Try a Sample. 50c. a large box at druggists or by mail.

THE PAXTON TOILET CO., Boston, Mass.

STOCKERS & FEEDERS

Choice quality; reds and roans, white faces or angus bought on orders. Tens of Thousands to select from. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Correspondence Invited. Come and see for yourself.

National Live Stock Com. Co.

At either
Kansas City, Mo., St. Joseph, Mo., S. Omaha, Neb.

Try Gillette Shaving
NO STROPPING NO HONING
Gillette
KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

FREE INFORMATION about irrigated farms in the Sacramento Valley, Cal. Ideal climate. Rich soil. Six and seven cuttings of alfalfa. First class poultry and dairy country. All the fruits. Easy terms. H. L. Meldrum & Co., 504 Lakeside Bldg., Chicago.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

MRS. FENTON

BY

W. E. NORRIS

CHAPTER X.

While Fred Musgrave was holding the brief and discouraging interview with Miss Moore described in the last chapter, Mr. Breffit was sitting in his office and gazing in some dismay at an open telegram which lay upon the table before him. This message, which had just arrived, purported to come from "Laura Fenton, Sydney, New South Wales," and seemed to dispose pretty finally of the prospects of Laura Fenton's next of kin.

"Have seen advertisement. Am sailing for Europe. Mr. Fenton died three years ago." Such was the substance of a communication which caused the worthy Mr. Breffit to use strong language.

"Confound the woman!" he muttered; "what's the use of her husband being dead? He would have had no claim if he had survived her. Well, she will have to prove her identity, and that may not be so easy a matter as she imagines."

The lawyer derived some comfort from this reflection, which, however, was not shared by the next of kin, to whom he hastened to impart what he called his bad news.

But Fred was not so very sorry that uncertainty was at an end. His position, at all events, was now clear, and there was no longer any necessity for him to hesitate about visiting at the Moores' house if they chose to receive him. The next time that he met the General he told him that the missing heiress had been discovered, which intelligence, however, had already reached that gentleman through the medium of the press.

Mrs. Moore, when she read the paragraph, remarked: "That settles poor Mr. Musgrave's hash! It's a pity; but we must be thankful that matters were checked in time."

"Oh, well; matters hadn't gone very far, had they?" said the General.

"I'm afraid they were upon the verge of going rather far," answered his wife. "It just shows how careful one ought to be! Happily, there is no great harm done, and nothing will be easier than to quietly let him drop out of our visiting-list."

But General Moore, who was an honest and kind-hearted old gentleman, did not quite like this cynical suggestion. "Is there any occasion for that?" he asked. "I would rather not turn my back upon the poor fellow now that he is down; and, after all, how do we know that he ever thought of Susie or she of him? It seems to me that Claughton is a good deal more dangerous."

"I don't think Captain Claughton can be called exactly dangerous," answered Mrs. Moore, musingly. "It appears that he has some money of his own, and I am told that his elder brother, who is unmarried, is subject to epileptic fits. Of course I don't want to turn my back upon poor Mr. Musgrave; let him come and dine if you like. All I stipulate for is that he shall only be asked on dinner-party nights."

Thus the General felt at liberty to be amicable and hearty when his young friend accosted him, and, after offering his condolences, did not hesitate to add: "What are you doing next Thursday? We have one or two people coming to dine with us, and should be delighted to see you, if you're not engaged."

Fred gladly accepted the invitation and betook himself to Cromwell Road on the appointed evening; but the opportunity thus afforded him of exchanging a few words with Susie—it was only a few words that he was permitted to address to her, and these were spoken in the presence of witnesses—was productive of no great increase in his happiness. It occurred to him that he would hardly have been asked to the house if the risk of his ensnaring Miss Moore's affections had been thought worth taking into account; and he was hampered by a feeling that any such attempt would be rather dishonorable.

However, he set to work with might and main upon his play, as to the conclusion of which there was in truth no great hurry, since he was assured that it could not possibly be produced that year. The comedietta which he had already written, and which had been tolerably successful as a lever de rideau, had now been withdrawn, and the profits which he had derived from it in the shape of royalties had not been magnificent. The proprietor and manager of the theater at which it had been performed was very civil and encouraging, was quite open to consider the more ambitious forthcoming play, and said that, should it prove suitable, he would be glad to make a mere liberal arrangement with Mr. Musgrave than he had been able to do in the previous instance. Only he could not under any circumstances undertake to promise that the first representation should take place for another six or nine months.

From all this it resulted that during the month of June, while haymakers were busy in the country, and matrons maids were busily making metaphorical hay in London after the time-honored fashion which never changes, and Susie Moore was dancing to her heart's content, the young men were disporting themselves and losing their money at Ascot and elsewhere, Fred Musgrave carried about a mournful face above his broad shoulders. Is anybody really very sorry when one of his acquaintances is balked of a fortune? The very rich perhaps may be—for reasons which it is needless to specify, most of us have a difficulty in entering into the feelings of the very rich—but, with the possible exception of that small minority, men do not seem to feel much sympathy with such disappointments; and it may be noticed that there is a general disposition to regard them as having been in some way or other deserved.

Let us hope that they would have been less hard upon him if they had known what the loss of £200,000 meant in his case. From time to time he met Susie Moore, but these meetings were most unsatisfactory. They never lasted for more than a minute or two; she had the air of wishing to avoid them, and her demeanor had become distinctly formal and chilling—far more so than that of her parents, who were always friendly and pleased to see the young man, and very anxious to hear whether his cousin had arrived yet. Relations may not be an altogether unmixed blessing, yet in times of trial one naturally turns to one's own kith and kin for sympathy; and some idea of the loneliness from which Fred was now suffering may be gathered from the fact that he had begun to look forward with impatience to the arrival of the highly inconvenient cousin, who was the sole surviving representative of the Musgrave family besides himself.

CHAPTER XI.

Mrs. Fenton reached London a few days earlier than Mr. Breffit had calculated that she could do, and lost no time in calling upon him at his place of business in Bedford Row. The first thing that struck him when she had been ushered into his presence was that she was very pretty, and the next was that she was remarkably well dressed. Lawyers get into the habit of noticing details, and some of them—little as one might suppose it to look at them—really know the difference between a well-dressed and an expensively dressed woman.

While his sharp eyes were thus taking note of externals he was shaking hands with her, hoping she had had a pleasant voyage, inquiring whether she had found tolerably comfortable quarters in London, and getting her seated in the clients' chair. His own chair was fixed upon a pivot. He gave it a half-turn, so that he sat sideways to the writing-table and facing his visitor. Then he threw one leg over the other, placed his elbows upon the arms of the chair, rested his chin upon his folded hands, and said:

"Well, Mrs. Fenton, I must congratulate you upon your good fortune. I need hardly tell you that it has come as something of a surprise to those who knew your poor father."

"And to me, too," answered Mrs. Fenton (she had a singularly musical voice, he noticed). "Sometimes I used to hope that he might perhaps have forgiven me; but I never thought of his leaving his money to me. I dare say I ought to have written; and yet I doubt even now whether he would have answered me if I had."

Mr. Breffit shook his head. "In all probability he would not. There is no harm in my telling you that I have drawn up more than one will for him, and under none of them, except the last, which he signed on the very day of his death would you have received more than an insignificant legacy."

Mrs. Fenton looked rather sorry for a moment, but a smile broke out upon her lips as she said, "Well, at any rate, he must have forgiven me at the last; and I think that in his heart he must always have cared a little for me, though I was such a bad daughter to him."

"To tell you the truth," answered he, bluntly, "I doubt whether the Dean's last will was prompted so much by paternal affection as by avuncular spite. His nephew, whom he had always intended to be his heir, was foolish enough to offend him, and he was not the man to let any offense, however venial, go unpunished."

"His nephew?" repeated Mrs. Fenton, with raised eyebrows; "who would that be, I wonder?"

"Mr. Frederick Musgrave, the only son of the Dean's only brother. You will, perhaps, remember that the Dean had a brother."

She made a sign of assent. "I have heard of him, but I never saw him. He was a rich merchant. My father thought that he had lowered himself by engaging in trade of any kind, and so they were not on speaking terms."

"Exactly. Well, Mr. Thomas Musgrave died a bankrupt, and your father adopted the orphan, who was then a boy of 15 or 16, and is now a young man of six or seven-and-twenty. Very unfortunately for him, he recently took it into his head that he had a talent for dramatic composition, and employed himself in writing plays instead of trying to obtain a practice at the bar, as his uncle wished him to do. The consequence is that he now finds himself with a capital of £10,000 instead of the £200,000 which he had every reason to count upon."

"Oh, poor fellow!" exclaimed Mrs. Fenton, impulsively. And then, after a pause, "Is he a nice young man?"

"In my humble opinion he is a very nice young man," replied the lawyer, smiling.

Mrs. Fenton looked down for a moment or two at the pearl-gray Suede gloves which fitted her little hands so perfectly. When she raised her eyes there was a look of appeal and doubt in them which might have softened the heart of any lawyer in Bedford Row.

"Mr. Breffit," said she, "do you think I ought to take all this money from my cousin?"

"My dear madam," said Mr. Breffit, for he was a little touched, and he did not choose her to think that he was touched, "I am a solicitor; I am not the Pope, and I have no pretensions to adjudicate upon matters of conscience. As a solicitor, however, I may say that you cannot help taking what is legally yours."

"But I may part with what is legally mine."

"You can execute a deed of gift, no doubt. No doubt also your cousin would decline to accept such a gift. Still, you might try."

There was a rather long pause, during which Mrs. Fenton cast down her eyes once more, while the lawyer smiled a little cynically. But all the cynicism was shamed out of him when she began to speak again, because her voice trembled, and it was evident that the tears were not very far off.

"I feel as if I ought to give the money up," she exclaimed; "and yet it is hard—I suppose you can't imagine how hard it is! My husband, as I dare say you know, was a music-master; and while he lived, his profession, which he carried on first in New Zealand and then at Sydney, brought us in just enough to keep us going; but he had a long and expensive illness, and when he died I was left very nearly destitute. Everybody tells me that I might have made a great deal of money by my voice if only it had been a little more powerful; but unluckily it is not a strong voice, and so I have had to earn what I could by giving lessons and sometimes singing at concerts. Upon the whole, I have been moderately successful; still, I have saved next to nothing, and always I have had before me the specter of a poverty-stricken old age. Won't you advise me, Mr. Breffit? I don't know that I shall take your advice if you tell me that I ought to resign everything to my cousin, because it would be so dreadful to have come all this way only to be disappointed at last. But—but I should be very glad if you could tell me that I am not bound to do so."

There was a candor and a pathos, and even a touch of suppressed humor, in this which fairly vanquished Mr. Breffit, who burst out laughing.

"My dear young lady," said he, "you must not distress yourself with such quixotic scruples. I don't mind owning to you that I think Fred has been hardly dealt with. Still he is a young man and can work for himself. By the way, you will have to prove that you are your father's daughter."

"My case," said she, "is such a peculiar one, all my relations, except this cousin whom I never saw, being dead—and I suppose all, or almost all, of those who knew me at Oxford when I was a girl. And, indeed," she added, with a smile and a sigh, "I don't believe any of them would recognize me. Twelve years have changed me from a child into a middle-aged woman."

With her fair hair, which was arranged in clusters of curls over her broad, low forehead, with her clear complexion and her childish blue eyes, she looked about five-and-twenty, and Mr. Breffit, in an unwonted access of gallantry, felt impelled to say as much.

She had brought a small hand-bag with her, which she now opened, taking out of it a bundle of papers. "I was told," said she, "that these would be sufficient to establish my identity, and some of the people who were kind to me at Sydney thought I might like to show you letters from them. Here they are, if you will look through them."

(To be continued.)

SCIENCE IN TABLOID FORM.

A Few Discoveries Made by the Genial Office Statistician.

Research proves that the smallest men push the heaviest loads, while the big fellows hold down the office chairs, the New York Times says.

A cubic foot of water is a load for one man. A cubic foot of near-whisky will make a load for forty men.

One of the most peculiar optical illusions is the fact that a small front yard looks larger than the State of Indiana when viewed from the rear of a dull lawn mower.

Out of the 26,232,615 haircuts administered in this country last year, thirty-seven were cut just as the patrons desired they should be.

Wild geese fly in the shape of a V—even on the restaurant menu.

The first green thing to show after the melting snow is the labels of the empty tin cans in the back yards.

It is a peculiar fact that the Chinese of this country forget their English as soon as they are arrested and do not recover until they are free again.

The diamond is so hard it will make a large dent in the hardest heart.

The destruction of our old apple trees threatens the supply of genuine French brier.

The boll-weevil has wrought untold havoc with this year's importations of pure olive oil.

With the invention of the bathtub in 1823 the number of perfume factories decreased 90 per cent.

The easiest thing to touch is some one who wants a favor.

Faith in Himself.

Men of unusual capacity generally know their power perfectly well, but the majority of them are too reserved to express this knowledge. The artist Millais, however, writes J. E. Reid, was as open and frank as a boy in expressing his belief in himself.

When the Leyland collection was on view, previous to its dispersal, Millais went to see it, and openly asserted that his "Eve of St. Agnes" was the best picture there. This egotism was part of his character, a thing it was impossible to resent on account of the manner in which it was expressed.

Millais never lost the self-confidence of youth. In this respect, as in many others, he remained a boy to the end. Neither was the egotistic note confined to art matters. His public speeches were invariably about himself; his conversation on all subjects was impregnated with the essence of a sincere conviction of his own authority to speak. He liked to be always right; and such were his grasp of realities and his power of reasoning that it required very strong evidence and a very clever argument to convince him that he was wrong.

It has been calculated that a man who shaves regularly until he is 30 years old has cut off about thirty-five feet of hair from his face.

INCOMPETENT.

Mrs. Hare—Old Snail got his boy a position last week and he only held it one day.

Mr. Hare—What was it?

Mrs. Hare—A messenger boy.

BOY TORTURED BY ECZEMA

"When my boy was six years old, he suffered terribly with eczema. He could neither sit still nor lie quietly in bed, for the itching was dreadful. He would irritate spots by scratching with his nails and that only made them worse. A doctor treated him and we tried almost everything, but the eczema seemed to spread. It started in a small place on the lower extremities and spread for two years until it very nearly covered the back part of his leg to the knee.

"Finally I got Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills and gave them according to directions. I used them in the morning and that evening, before I put my boy to bed, I used them again and the improvement even in those few hours was surprising, the inflammation seemed to be so much less. I used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, the same of the Pills and the Soap and my boy was cured. My son is now in his seventeenth year and he has never had a return of the eczema.

"I took care of a friend's child that had eczema on its face and limbs and I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. They acted on the child just as they did on my son and it has never returned. I would recommend the Cuticura Remedies to anyone. Mrs. A. J. Cochran, 1888 Columbia Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 20, 1909."

Dangerous Job.

Kind Lady—Here is a rhubarb pie, my poor man. How did you get that wound on your arm?

Tired Tim—I was a lookout, mum.

Kind Lady—Ah, a lookout on a steamer and there was a collision?

Tired Tim—No, mum, a lookout for a second-story man an' de watchman winged me, mum.

Your Wife's Picture.

A man ought to be ashamed to live so that his wife is compelled to look as she does at housecleaning time. He'll allow her to buy cheap old yellow soap right along and take twice as long for her housework and washing, when Easy Task soap will save time, health and money for her. A man wouldn't tolerate old-fashioned methods in his place of business for a minute. If your wife would use Easy Task soap all the time there wouldn't be a tenth of the dirt to get rid of at housecleaning time.

In the Way.

"You haven't much of a memory for dates," said the conversational boarder.

"Nope," replied Farmer Corntossel. "I used to have. But it interferes with business when you're sellin' spring chickens."

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Few of us use to the full the resources of happiness that are available. Happiness depends upon the treatment of what we have, and not of what we have not.—E. J. Hardy.

IF YOU USE BALL BLUE, Get Red Cross Ball Blue, the best Ball Blue. Large 2 oz. package only 5 cents.

A woman can stand a lot of suffering if she doesn't have to keep quiet.

TUMOR OF YEARS GROWTH

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Holly Springs, Miss.—"Words are inadequate for me to express what your wonderful medicines have done for me. The doctors said I had a tumor, and I had an operation, but was soon as bad again as ever. I wrote to you for advice, and began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as you told me to do. I am glad to say that now I look and feel so well that my friends keep asking me what has helped me so much, and I gladly recommend your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Willie Edwards, Holly Springs, Miss.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy—tumor. If you have mysterious pains, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable compound at once.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy, and should give everyone confidence.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Constipation Vanishes Forever

Prompt Relief—Permanent Cure

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS never fail. Purely vegetable—act surely but gently on the liver. Stop after dinner distress—cure indigestion—improve the complexion—brighten the eyes. Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price

GENUINE must bear signature: Brent Good

WANTED An agent in every city and town to sell the only good $15 Vacuum Cleaner on the market. Superior to many of the $35.00 machines. Liberal discounts. Write today for particulars.

THE JUNIOR COMPANY Bradford, Pa.

PROOF In the Morning!

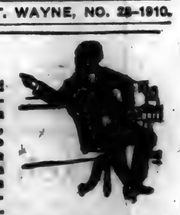
We tell you about how good you'll feel after taking a CASCARET—that millions of people—buy, use and recommend them—But that's talk—you buy a box now—take as directed to-night and get the proof in the morning—After you know CASCARETS you'll never be without them. 921

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

MUSIC ARRANGED FOR PIANO and Orchestra. Melodies written to sung poems. W. NELSON, 1133 West 36th St., New York

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 28-1910.

Remedies are Needed



Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhœa and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature R. V. Pierce M.D.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

MICA AXLE GREASE is the turning-point to economy in wear and tear of wagons. Try a box. Every dealer, everywhere

STANDARD OIL CO. (Incorporated)

JULY

0448

L 904

Midsummer Sale

The summer season is now well advanced. The first days have been real warm ones - - so warm in fact that people have not been inclined to get out to town any more than necessary. We appreciate this and as a special inducement to cause everyone in this vicinity to want to come to St. Joe, at least once or twice, we are now putting on our annual Midsummer Sale. This is an event of no small importance to the people of this locality. The advertisement below quotes you a few of the special bargains but the list does not include near all of the good things that are offered. In our preparations for this sale we have planned to make it

A SEASON OF LIBERAL REDUCTIONS

- - a price-cutting that none can afford to miss. We want you to be a sharer in the bargains offered during this Midsummer clean-up. Remember the best values are snapped up early in the sale, so be on hand the first day to get your choice. Not our offerings but the taking advantage of them is what benefits you, so favor yourselves and us by visiting "The Home Store" during our Midsummer Sale

Beginning Sat. July 16, Ending Sat. July 30.

Read carefully every word of the following, take advantage of the reductions in price

Ladies Jackets and Skirts at Sale Prices

Ladies' Jackets—Your choice from a lot of 25 made from the finest all wool covert cloth, satin lined throughout, a regular $10 value, Midsummer sale price... $5.95

Ladies' Jacket—Made from fine all-wool covert cloth and diagonal weaves, all new styles, regular price $7.50 our Midsummer sale price..... $3.95

Ladies' Jackets—Made from covert cloth very similar to above, late styles, regular price $5.00, Midsummer Sale price only..... $2.95

Ladies Skirts—We have just 10 ladies skirts, in blue, black, gray and fancy, sizes 23 to 28 waist and 37 to 40 in. length, all made up in good style. These are worth up to $6 50. Your choice of these at $3.47

Mid-Summer Sale of Shoes

The increasing popularity of our shoe department is evidence sufficient that our shoes are giving satisfaction. We call your special attention to the values we are offering during this sale.

$3 00 Elk Skin Work Shoes—A shoe known everywhere as the most durable work shoe on the market. Our Mid-summer Sale Price is only..... $2.79

$3.50 Men's Dress Shoe—In patent leather, gun metal and vici, excellent quality. Priced during this sale at..... $2.98

$4.00 Men's Dress Shoe—In patent leather and gun metal. Better material than above, latest styles. Mid-summer Sale Price $3.29

$3 50 Ladies' Dress Shoe—In patent leather and vici. Very fine values in button and laces. Mid-summer Sale Price..... $2.98

$2.50 Ladies' Dress Shoe—Shown in patent, gun metal and vici, low or high heel. A very durable shoe. Sale price only $2.29

$1.50 Boys' Shoe—Sizes 2½ to 6, a very durable shoe in box calf. Sure to give satisfaction. Mid-summer Sale Price..... $1.29

$1 50 Boys' Shoe—In box calf, sizes 8½ to 2½, well made in every particular and priced during the Mid-summer Sale at..... $1.09

Girls' Shoes—From vici stock, new lasts in button or lace, sizes 8½ to 11½, sale price $1.15; sizes 11½ to 2. Sale price..... $1.29

Shirts for Men at Reduced Prices

Lot 1—An assortment of Men's Shirts in light and dark patterns, all sizes, none have sold at less than 50 cents, our clean up sale price..... 37c

Lot 2—Shirts in plaited and soft bosoms, with or without collars, usually sold at 75 cents and more, our clean up sale price only..... 63c

Mens Fancy Shirts—A lot Mens Fancy Shirts most all sizes, assorted light and dark colors. Sale price..... 39c.

Men's Work Shirts—An odd lot in all sizes and colors, some are slightly soiled, all are good values. Your choice during this sale only..... 37c

Calico

During the Midsummer Sale we offer all our prints in blues, blacks, reds, silver grays, black and whites and figures, a big showing of new patterns, at the yard 4 3-4 cents

Ginghams

1500 yards of Dress Ginghams of all kinds in checks stripes, light and dark patterns, formerly priced at 12½ cents but all go during the Midsummer Sale at 9 cents

Crashes

A very desirable showing of Steven's all linen crash to close out during sale. 18-inch crash, former price 12½c, now 11c; 20-inch crash, was 13½c, now 12c; 21-inch crash, was 14c, now 12 cents

Percales

36-inch Percales in light and dark patterns, suitable for summer dresses: were 12½c, sale price..... 11c.

Admiral Percale, dark patterns only, full 36 inches wide, Midsummer Sale 8 1-2 cents

Ribbons

Special lot of ripbons, No's 22, 40 and 60, to close out during sale. A good opportunity to supply yourself with ribbons in any color. Priced during sale at the yard 10 cents

Curtains

150 pairs of Lace Curtains in Nottinghams, Brussels net and Cable net. All these curtains to be closed out during the Midsummer Sale at reduced prices ranging from 85c to $6

Muslin-Muslin. Mid-Summer Sale Prices

Just the right time to lay in a supply of Muslins. The many summer uses for muslins make them much in demand and the values we offer during this sale should prove particularly attractive.

A good quality unbleached muslin, 36 inches wide, Midsummer Sale price..... 5½c

Spartan LL unbleached, full yard wide muslin, Midsummer Sale price only..... 7c

Extra fine bleached muslin, 36 in wide, our Midsummer Sale price..... 7 1-2c

Our Pride bleached muslin, best quality yard wide, sale price only..... 9c

9-4 bleached sheeting, a very good quality, offered during sale at..... 27c

9-4 bleached sheeting, our best grade and sure to give satisfaction, our Mid-summer Sale price only..... 29c

Sale of Carpets and Rugs.

Our sale of Carpets, Rugs and Linoleums should attract many buyers. The patterns are new and desirable—sure to please the critical. Be sure to examine these offerings.

Ingrain Carpet—A heavy weight, half wool carpet in very good patterns. Priced during the Mid-summer Sale at only..... 39c

Ingrain Carpet with all-wool filling, a large assortment of new patterns, something to suit everyone. Sale price only..... 49c

All Wool Ingrain—Absolutely all wool throughout, bright new patterns, full yard wide, our very best and selling everywhere at 75 cts., our Mid-summer Sale price..... 63c

Axminster Rugs—A 9X12 Rug, one of the very best $25 rugs on the market, heavy and durable, the Midsummer Sale price $19.50

10 Patterns of Linoleum-- A very attractive line of patterns in 12 foot widths to select from. Excellent wearing service. Priced during the Mid-Summer sale at..... 55c the Square yard.

Hosiery-Hosiery for the Entire Family.

Mens' Fancy Hose—All the season's desirable shades, none have sold for less than 25 cents a pair, our clean-up price during Mid-summer Sale, 2 pairs for 40c; single pair 21c

Ladies' Hose—A ribbed top, black hose, well made and good length. Priced during the Mid-summer Sale at the pair..... 11c

Misses' Hose—A black ribbed hose, especially good, our Sale price, 2 pair for 20c; single pair..... 11c

Childrens' Hose—Bestever childrens' hose sizes 5 to 7½, sale price per pair..... 9c

Mens' Socks—Mens' heavy work socks seemless, double heel and toe, sale price per pair 6c

Each $20 you spend with us you will receive 50 cents worth of additional dry goods

Special Prices

on Men's and Boys' Caps to Close Out

All 50c caps at.....39c
All 25c caps at.....19c

GET YOURS Before They are all gone.

Patterson's

DEPARTMENT STORE-ST JOE, IND.

Cash Register

Checks with Every Purchase.

Don't fail to visit THE HOME STORE during the big Mid-Summer Sale.

JULY

L 904

0449

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1910. NO. 29

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.
Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

NEW FALL GINGHAMS

They have arrived this week in all the much wanted and handsome plaids so much to be used this fall. This is to be a gingham season and we have prepared for it early.

NEW RUGS--FALL STOCK

A little early to talk about it but we are getting them in already for your selection. You will be well repaid if you come here for Rugs—Carpets—Linoeleum—Window Shades and Lace Curtains.

JULY SALE

WASH DRESS GOODS

Oor wash goods sale is one of the best value giving events to be had this season. We have made the price so low that we are determined to make a clean sweep of every yard in stock this month. Real low prices may be had here on this class of goods while they last. A good selection to be had yet.

ST. JOE.

Send in your news.

Band Concert Saturday evening.

Lafe Bailey is assisting in the meat market, this week.

O. H. Widney and wife of Auburn, were in town, Tuesday afternoon.

D. F. Benninghoff and wife drove to Toledo, Sunday, returning Monday afternoon.

H. L. Dunkle and wife, and S. S. Casebeer were at Wayne, Sunday. Mrs. Dunkle remaining for the week.

Dr. Bowmans' returned to Hamilton, Sunday. Mrs. Bowman and Ray remained while the rest returned Tuesday.

The Misses Ethel and Marguerite Leighty visited several days last week with Mr. and Mrs. S. Openlander at Sherwood.

J. C. F. Abel is taking a fifteen day vacation and Isaac Meese is carrying the mail on route No. 1. Mr. Abel left Tuesday for Danville to visit his son Glen, and wife

Read THE NEWS.

C. A. Woodcox is giving the bakery a couple coats of paint, this week,

Fred Johnston of Rockford, Ill., is the guest of his wife and mother here this week.

The best line of one-cent Post Cards in town can be seen at Kagey's.

A movement is on foot among the three Sunday schools of St. Joe to have a union picnic in the Dills grove, south of here, at some early date. Have a good program arranged and go for a good time. That's the thing to do.

Mrs. Thos. Krise, who fortunately has two mail carriers, our own genial John Weaver and Mr. Perry of St. Joe entertained the two gentlemen to dinner on Thursday and Mr. Weaver, we dare say, bore evidence of the feast on his return to the city—he was even "more broad as long." Mrs. Krise appreciates the receipt of mail from the two gentlemen and took this method of showing it.—Dispatch.

Merritt Hull is at Detroit working in the Griswold Hotel barber shop.

Get one of those 5 cent tablets at THE NEWS office. Our own make.

Call at Kagey's and get your Post Cards. An elegant assortment.

Archie Olds of Bluffton was the guest of his friend Ralph Patterson over Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Baxter of Hobart, Ind., came Monday to visit with her sister, Mrs. Belle Ridgway and family.

Asa Shuff was at home Sunday and Monday from Wayne. He is working for Fred Eckart Packing Company.

Miss Eva Ridgway spent from Friday until Monday with her mother and sister and family at Cold Springs

Lloyd Engle of Wayne was the guest of relatives here Monday. He is preparing to move there where he has work,

FOR SALE:—A 24-inch Wilson Heater stove, burned about 2 months, in good condition. Will sell cheap Inquire at THE NEWS office.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Meyers and children, Donald and Dorothy of Omaha, Neb., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Patterson a couple of days last week.

Frank Meese returned home Sunday morning from Paducah, Ky., where he had been working with a bridge gang up to the time of getting his fall. He gets about with the aid of crutches.

Monday morning Ralph Patterson received a phone message from Springfield, stating that one of his class mates, a son of Senator Hipes, had died and that he was wanted to sing at the funeral Tuesday afternoon. He left Garrett, where he had been canvasing, Monday evening.

Here is a boy's composition on "Breathing": Breath is made of air. We breath with our lungs, our lights, our liver and our kidneys. If it was not for our breath we would die when we slept. Our breath keeps the life agoing through our nose when we are asleep. Boys that stay in a room all day should not breath. They should wait till they get out doors. Boys in a room make bad, unwholesome air. They make carbonicide. Carbonicide is poisoner than mad dogs. A heap of soldiers was in a black hole in India and a carbonicide got in that there hole and nearly killed every one of them afore morning. Girls kill the breath with corsets that squeeze the diagram. Girls can't hullar or run like boys because their diagram is squeezed too much. If I was a girl I had rather be a boy, so I can run, holler and row and have a great big diagram.

Ralph Patterson left for Springfield Monday. The Springfield Chautauqua commences next week and the Stover-Patterson Concert Company appear on the program the 24-25, of which Ralph is one of the leading members. The Company consists of two gentlemen with a lady reader and pianist.

Harry Meek was at Butler Saturday.

The drug store front has changed color.

Frank Scholes was at Fort Wayne Thursday.

H. W. Krabill was at Wayne, last Saturday.

F. R. Bowman and wife were at Garrett Friday.

James Burwell visited over Sunday with his parents at Churubusco.

Elder J. A. Brown and wife are the parents of a baby boy born Sunday.

J. R. Leighty, of Kansas City, Kansas, was in town Sunday, returning home Monday.

Rev. Osbun and family of Mathews Indiana are the guests of Mrs. E. L. Dilley and other relatives.

FOR SALE:—4,500 wreckage brick, all in good shape for laying. S. S. Widney, St. Joe.

Master Josiah Woodcox, Galen Betz and Florence Kagey entertained the measles the past week, but are now much better.

The postoffice was moved Monday evening after the closing hours, into the Case building. The location is extremely good, being more central.

Thrashing, Heating and Cooking Coal. Plenty for all and more coming. Prices as low as anyone. W. E. Baxter.

The work on the Krabill porch is progressing nicely. The masons are putting in a new walk in front and when the work is completed it will add greatly to the appearance of the place.

Dr. Sheffer was called Saturday evening to dress a wound on Paul Carpenter's foot it having been cut with a scythe. His brother was mowing weeds and Paul was too close, receiving a wound necessitating 7 or 8 stitches.

Mrs. J. H. Reinoehl lost a valuable cow, Monday afternoon. The cow was tied out near the creek, north of town and in some way she had tangled one of her feet behind in the rope throwing herself, and when she was discovered she lay in the creek on her back with head pulled around sideways. The rope was tied around the horns and the more she struggled the more it drew her head around. Frank Sebert came along with his team and when he discovered the cow there he took his team and pulled her out but she soon died. No one knows how long she had been in such a condition. The cow was valued at $80. No doubt the neighbors in the west end will miss the milk too as well as Mrs. Reinoehl.

Seasonable Suggestions.

Lemon and Vanilla Extract, Pure.
Crystal Flake for making Ice Cream.
Jelly Glasses 24c per dozen.
Asiatic Cholera Cure best made.
Purple Top Turnip Seed in Bulk.
Plenty Good Fishing Tackle.
Hammocks ⅓ off Regular Price.
After Dinner Mints a Superb Confection.
After Dinner Salted Peanuts Clean and Good.
Tanglefoot and Poison Fly Paper.
Post Cards that are Up-to-date.

Our increasing drug trade is proof that it always pays to run a business with a Character Tone to it. You will always do better at Dunkle's Drug Store.

H. C. Willis of Waterloo was in town Tuesday.

Cledious Keesler of Branch, Mich., is a new subscriber to THE NEWS.

Mahlon Baker moved Tuesday into the Mrs. D. J. Baker property and Milton Krise moved yesterday into the Ed Bills property.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Beams and Mrs. Rummell of Spencerville, O. K. Shull and family, P. A. Shurtz, wife and daughter Pearl and G. C. Lucas and wife, were entertained Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lucas. Ice cream and cake were served.

C. O. Benjamin and wife, F. B. Leighty and wife, Will Hamilton, wife and Gerald Brown, O. K. Shull and family, and Mr. Thayer Northrup were entertained Sunday afternoon at the pleasant country home of J. R. Shilling and family, west of town. Ice cream and assorted cakes were served.

LUTHERAN CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Prayer meeting Thursday evening. Regular monthly council meeting will be held after prayer meeting. Sunday school, Sunday morning followed by the regular preaching services. C. E. in the evening.

Rev. Hitchner, Pastor.

Candy and Cigars.

Home made candy and the best grade of cigars at Milliman's barber shop owned and run by

Merritt Milliman.

Thrashing coal. W. E. Baxter.

Rev. Byrt and wife of Spencerville, took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lucas yesterday.

Mrs. Ida Meek of St. Louis, is the guest in the home of H. H. Meek.

Chas. Jenkins and Mrs. Dan Welch, of Auburn, were married at the M. P. parsonage, Sunday evening, by Rev. Coomer, of this place.

John Baker, wife and brother Wm. of Concord, left Monday noon on the B. & O. for their new home at Lakeland, Fla. John was there in April of this year and he liked the climate so well that he purchased 7 acres of oranges and grape fruit. They expect to raise fruit. His trees are young but will have a light crop this year.

LOOK HERE!

We have sold a lot of goods the last few days but we still have a good selection in the different lots and we will continue the prices for Another Week.

You have been fooled in ads so many times you do not investigate, that is where you are making a mistake. Everyone exclaims-is'nt that cheap.

LOT NO. 1
Entire line of Summer Dress goods at ⅓ regular price.

LOT NO. 2
Entire line of Embroidery at.....5c yard

LOT NO. 3
Our line of Linings at.....⅓ price

LOT NO. 4
1 lot Ladies No. 4 Shoes worth from $2 to $3.50 at....$1.50

LOT NO. 5
1 lot Misses Slippers, sizes from 11—2, worth $1.00, $1.25 $1.50, to close at.....65c.

LOT NO 6
1 lot Mens 50—75c, all sizes Negligee at.....35c.

If you are in need of anything in the above lines it will be well worth your time to look them over.

Sol Barney.

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST.JOE, IND.

THE HOME STORE'S
Big
Mid-Summer Sale
Now on

Our Big Mid-Summer Sale started out with a rush Saturday morning, and a great many people took advantage of the bargains offered. Here are a few of the good things that you can now get.

Calicos
That were 6c. now
4 3-4c

Ginghams
That were 12½ and 15c.... now.....9c
One lot of 10c ginghams..7c

Percales
That were 10 and 12½c NOW
8⅓ and 11 cents.

Mens Shirts
That were 50c
Now 37 - 39c

Misses Oxfords--Pumps
That were $1.50 to $2.00.
Now go at 89c and $1.09

Men's Sox
Men's heavy work sox, seamless, double heel and toe.
At 6 Cents

Muslin
Good quality unbleached muslin.....5⅓c yd.
Good fine bleached muslin 36in. wide at.....7c yd.

Remember sale lasts until Saturday July 30 and that there will be new bargains offered every day.

JULY

L 904

0450

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

INFANTILE PARALYS'S.

At various points throughout the country there are vivid recollections of the deaths due to the mysterious outbreak of infantile paralysis. Not only children, but elderly persons were among its victims. At New York those who died from the malady included a prominent business man and a priest who had visited young members of his flock afflicted with infantile paralysis and caught the illness from them. There were numerous cases in St. Paul and Minneapolis. Specialists in the Rockefeller laboratories at New York have been working on infantile paralysis for a year, using monkeys in experiments which have demonstrated that it is not due to an abnormal condition of the blood, but is an infectious disease of the spinal cord. Despite acreful microscopic search for a distinctive microbe, so far none has been found. Experiments are now directed to the discovery of an antitoxin for infantile paralysis such as that which has been used with marked success in the treatment of diphtheria. The knowledge that has been gained of the nature of the disease is expected to facilitate the discovery of its cure.

It transpires that the recent report from Germany that a certificate of inspection on importations of pork from America would be deemed adequate was erroneous. The German government has not removed its interdict in this regard. Knowing that the special inspection for trichina has been abandoned in this country, Germany will no longer request special certificates as to that disease, because it is realized that no such certificates can be produced. This, of course, leaves matters unchanged. But at present there is no worry as to exportations of American pork because a short supply of hogs and an avid market for pork have caused prices to mount to heights at which exportation is unprofitable.

A New York yachting writer remarks that the schooner Shamrock, once a proud bearer of the New York Yacht club pennant, has been "numbled" by conversion into a fishing boat with gasoline engine. The service may be humble in comparison with the royal service of a well-kept racing craft, but it is far from humble in comparison with the fate of the latest racers for the America's cup, the majority of which have gone to the scrap yard with their first paint on their plates.

A French astronomer announces that the comet which was visible recently is not Halley's, and he promises that the genuine comet will appear in August. We positively refuse to get excited over any more comet announcements. It is too late now to get anything into the magazines about an August comet, anyhow.

An immigration inspector passed a woman who could not speak the language when her parrot, weary of the parley, ejaculated, "Cut that out!" "All right," said the inspector. "Your parrot speaks English. That shows you have been in this country, as you say. You're admitted." Look for a boom in educated parrots.

Ingenuity worthy of a better cause was that of a couple of Jersey robbers who, on calling at a house and being admitted, bound and gagged the inmates, after which one joyously played the piano to deceive the neighbors while the other gathered up the loot. This is the whistler at the plow with a vengeance.

It may become necessary for a benign government to arrange a system of pensions for those who are killed or wounded in the war the automobile is waging on the human race.

A New Jersey man received $200 for a tooth he lost in a fight with a street car conductor. This is one of the cheapest as well as most expensive cases of dentistry on record.

According to a physician everybody will be crazy in 2175, if the present ratio of increase does not decline. That will be a great year for musical comedies.

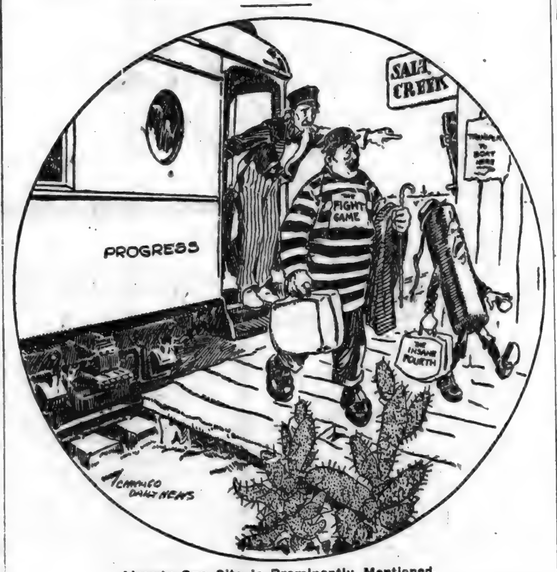
A Pittsburg sculptor arrested on a Paris street wore nothing but a pair of socks. He probably thought he was at home and sufficiently clothed in smoke.

Man gets five years in prison for putting dynamite on car tracks "just for fun." It's horrible to think what would have happened to him if he'd been in earnest.

That professor who wants imbeciles killed at birth overlooks the possibility that he might not have survived to make the suggestion.

The safe and sane coal mine is among the things eagerly hoped for but as yet not probable.

SPEAKING OF THE NEXT FIGHT—



Already One Site Is Prominently Mentioned.

TRAIN ROBBERS ARE FOILED

THREE YOUTHS HOLD UP THE "KATY" FLYER.

Crew Slips From Under Muzzles of Revolvers, Regains Cab and Dash Away.

St. Louis. — Cleverness on the part of the engineer prevented three youthful and apparently inexperienced bandits from robbing the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Southwestern flyer, No. 3, near Larimore, about fifteen miles from St. Louis.

Three young men were arrested as suspects and are in jail pending investigation. The police do not believe they are the men wanted and are searching for three others.

The bandits compelled the engineer and fireman, at the points of revolvers, to descend from the cab and go with them to the baggage car to assist them in uncoupling it.

While tinkering about the coupling the engineer and fireman in the darkness managed to glide away from the bandits. The two started on a run for the cab. The bandits soon became aware that the crew was dashing for the cab and opened fire.

The engineer and fireman sprang into the cab, the engineer threw the throttle wide open and dashed away with the train.

Several shots were fired during the attempted hold-up, and the passengers, who filled five coaches, were thrown into a panic. Conductor Walker, who also displayed great coolness in the crisis, devoted his time to calming the passengers.

The train was in the hands of the bandits 40 minutes. For half an hour they tried of their own accord to uncouple the baggage car. It was not until they found themselves unable to do the work that they got the engineer and fireman.

According to the railroad officials here there were thousands of dollars in the baggage car in addition to the mail.

ALL RELIGIONS TO UNITE

John D. Rockefeller Quotes Letter From Roman Catholic Bishop to Support His Prediction.

Cleveland, O. — John D. Rockefeller, Sr., in an address before the Bible class of the Euclid Avenue Baptist church, prophesied the amalgamation of all the religions of the world. To bear out his statement, he quoted a letter from a Roman Catholic bishop, whose name he did not disclose.

"There is more of the spirit of Christ in the world today than ever before," said the oil king. "It is the greatest power. People who love him are coming together and they will unite. Regardless of the slight difference due to many religious organizations, the same spirit is there and the motive will accomplish as much."

URGES LOEB FOR GOVERNOR

Taft Favors Collector New York Port for Gubernatorial Candidate in Empire State.

Beverly, Mass.—President Taft Monday urged William Loeb, Jr., to accept the Republican gubernatorial nomination in New York this fall. Mr. Loeb is averse to taking up the task and would prefer to complete the work that he has undertaken as collector of the port, but before he left Burgess Point he assured the president that if the demand was made he would accept the duty.

Finds Riches in Attic.

Crooksville, O.—In the attic of the house on his farm known as the Lewis homestead, west of this city, Theodore Brown Monday found an old jug that contained $1,500 in gold and old coins. The Lewis heirs will attempt to wrest it from him.

Suicide in Wake of Fight.

Sacramento, Cal.—Antone Rochi of Chico, who made two attempts to commit suicide because of the defeat of Jeffries, died in the county hospital.

RAIL LINES ARE PROSPEROUS

Roads Are Placing Enormous Orders for Equipment—Dividends Show Big Increase.

New York.—Continued evidences of the great prosperity that is surging all over the country are given in the enormous orders placed within the last few days by the large railroads of the country for additional equipment.

No such tremendous sums of money have ever been spent by the railroads, it is said, except in the initial construction of a road, or in a large extension. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company alone has appropriated $7,000,000 for new equipment.

Not merely in money spent for improvements of facilities, but in the declaring of dividends by the railroads lies the proof that the good times which returned a year or more ago have in no way diminished.

Since January 1 eighty-six railroads and industrial corporations in this country have increased their disbursements or declared initial or resumed dividends to the extent of $57,625,000 a year. Twenty-three of these corporations are railroads, their increase alone representing $15,000,000. Up to June 1 of this year the aggregate dividend payments from the eighty-six corporations in question have amounted to about $298,000,000, which is an increase of about $46,230,000 over the first five months of last year.

CALL RATES CONFISCATORY

Pullman Company Lawyer Says Commission's Order Means Bankruptcy for Big Concern.

Chicago.—Contending that the interstate commerce commission's order for a reduction of sleeping car rates is confiscatory, attorneys representing the Pullman company and the railroads appeared in the United States circuit court to argue for a rehearing of their petition for an injunction to prevent the order being put into effect.

An injunction was previously denied them, but they seek to reopen the case on the ground that they have new facts to present.

Attorney Fernald of the Pullman company told the court that the new schedule of rates would ultimately mean bankruptcy for the sleeping car companies.

It would mean a loss of $116,000 annually on fares between St. Paul and the points of Fargo, N. D., and Seattle, Wash., alone, he said.

The reduction from St. Paul to Fargo is 40 per cent. on upper berths and 25 per cent. on lower, and from St. Paul to Seattle the fare is lowered 29 per cent. on upper and 6 2-3 per cent. on lower.

ESTRADANS WIN NAVAL FIGHT

Repulse Surprise Attack by Two Madriz Gunboats on Town on Pearl Lagoon.

Bluefields.—The combined defense of a force of American planters and merchants and the Estrada soldiers successfully balked an attack against Pearl Lagoon Saturday when the Madriz gunboat San Jacinto, backed up by the gunboat Venus, directed a heavy fire into the center of the town.

Concealed guns set upon the coast since the last Madriz invasion were aimed against the San Jacinto. Captain Solis of the gunboat and a score of the crew were killed outright, while forty or fifty more of the men were wounded. The attacking gunboat was practically disabled.

Powder Magazine Blast Fatal.

Pittsburg, Pa.—A powder magazine at Cabot, Pa., exploded Tuesday, killing one person and injuring 20 others. The magazine was the property of the Standard Plate Glass company and contained 1,000 pounds of dynamite and 5,000 of blasting powder.

Lifts Ban on Benzoate.

Pasadena, Cal.—Action taken last year, condemning the use of benzoate of soda as a food preservative, was rescinded by the American Institute of Homeopathy Tuesday.

AIR FALL KILLS FIVE

OSCAR ERBSLOEH AND FOUR COMPANIONS PERISH WHEN DIRIGIBLE BALLON DROPS.

AVIATOR ROLLS IS KILLED

Son of Lord Who Flew Across English Channel and Returned, Victim of Accident in View of Thousands in England.

Leichlinger, Rhenish Prussia.—Oscar Erbsloeh, the German aeronaut who won the international balloon race at St. Louis in 1907, and four companions were killed Wednesday when the dirigible balloon Erbsloeh burst at a height of several hundred feet and dropped to the earth a crumpled mass.

The Dead.

Oscar Erbsloeh, inventor and balloonist.

Herr Toelle, a manufacturer of Barmen.

Engineer Kranz.

Engineer Hoeppe.

Motorman Spicke.

The craft was of the nonrigid type, 176 feet in length and 33 feet in diameter. The motors were of 125 horsepower and drove the airship at a speed of 28½ miles an hour.

The war department recently purchased one of Erbsloeh's balloons.

The cause of the accident is a matter of conjecture, but it is believed that the bursting of the bag was due to the expansion of gas by the warm sunshine.

Bournemouth, England. — Hon. Charles Stewart Rolls, third son of Lord Llangattock and one of the most daring and skillful of British aviators, who recently made a flight from Dover to France and return, met a most tragic death at the close of the first flying machine tournament of the year in England Tuesday.

In the presence of a great company of spectators, a majority of whom were women and children, and many personal friends of the young aviator, the Wright biplane on which he was flying fell suddenly with terrific speed from a height of 100 feet.

It struck the ground close to the crowded grand stand, smashed into a tangled mass, and before the doctors and their assistants could reach the spot Rolls was dead.

The event in which Rolls was competing was for a prize for the aviator alighting nearest a given mark. The goal was directly in front of the grand stand, where the spectators were massed. He had risen to a good height, then shut off his motor and was gliding in a broad circle toward the mark.

Without warning the tail piece of the biplane snapped off. The machine gave a sudden lurch, and the framework crumpled up the air. When it struck the ground it was smashed to splinters. The doctors found that Rolls had sustained a fractured skull.

Lord and Lady Llangattock, the parents of Rolls, narrowly escaped witnessing the tragedy. They were yachting along the coast and put in at Poole, near Bournemouth, intending to attend the aviation meeting, but postponed going until later.

Rolls was thirty-three years old, and was one of the most popular young all-around sportsmen in England.

Bethany Plain, Rheims.—Baroness De la Roche, the first French woman aeroplanist, was injured probably fatally here Friday by falling from a height of more than 150 feet.

Baroness De la Roche had flown around the field once at a height of 80 meters (250 feet), when suddenly in front of the applauding tribunes she appeared to become frightened and confused at the approach of two other aeroplanes. She began to descend, but while still 50 meters from the ground lost control of the machine. The aeroplane turned over and fell like a log.

While momentarily conscious the baroness said that the rush of air from a motor passing over her head had frightened her, whereupon she cut the ignition and lost control of her machine.

RIVER STEAMER GOES DOWN

Cape Girardeau Strikes Snag in Mississippi and Sinks—All Passengers Safely Landed.

St. Louis.—The river steamer Cape Girardeau struck a snag and sank to the bottom of the Mississippi river at Turkey island, 50 miles south of here Monday. Ninety passengers were aboard, and all were taken ashore safely.

The boat was returning from Commerce, Mo. Many of the passengers were women and children. They were asleep when the boat hit an obstruction. The passengers crowded on the decks and members of the crew quieted them. They walked ashore on the gangplank. Later they were brought to St. Louis by train.

Submarine Rams a Gunboat.

Provincetown, Mass.—During the maneuvers in the war game Monday the submarine Bonita rammed the gunboat Castine, flagship of the submarine flotilla, and to prevent her sinking she was run ashore and beached. No one on board was hurt.

Wisconsin Sawmill Burns.

Wausau, Wis.—The sawmill of Brooks & Ross at Scofield was destroyed by fire Tuesday. The mill is valued at $50,000. A heavy rain saved the planing mill.

"DRY" WAR LEADS TO LYNCHING

ANTI-SALOON DETECTIVE HANGED FOR KILLING MAN.

Mob Storms Jail at Newark, O., Gets Prisoner and Strings Him Up.

Newark, O.—Battering down the doors of the jail, a mob of women, men and children Friday took Charles Etherington, an anti-saloon detective, who confessed to having killed a man here, and lynched him in the public square.

The mob which had been increasing all evening at the jail became frenzied and refused to listen to pleadings for preservation of order.

They broke all the jail windows and rammed in the outer door, taking the keys from the jailer. They quickly found the prisoner's cell on the second floor and then, dragged by a rope, the man was taken up Third street to the square and across the park to the southeast corner, where he was strung up over the arm of a telephone pole.

Gov. Harmon arrived in the city Sunday and began an investigation which may lead to the ouster of the sheriff and Mayor.

The shooting of Howard and the lynching of Etherington is the culmination of long standing trouble between the "wets" and "drys" here.

Etherington and twenty others, all said to be "dry" detectives, came here from Cleveland and other places to get evidence against "near beer" saloons. At the first place no trouble arose. At the second Charles Richards, the bartender, was handcuffed for over an hour. At the third place visited the trouble started.

A mob of 2,000 gathered and threatened the detectives. With revolvers drawn the Anti-Saloon league officers retreated to a hotel. The police interfered there, arresting eight of the detectives.

The remaining twelve detectives broke and ran, pursued by the howling mob. Half a dozen were caught and beaten. The police rescued most of them. A downtown crowd fell on James Henderson of Columbus, and beat him so severely that he was taken to the Newark hospital. Etherington, who fled to the ball park, stumbled in his flight and the crowd set upon him. Howard, the proprietor of a "near beer" saloon, the last place searched by the detectives, was in front of Etherington when the latter drew a revolver and fired.

Etherington was hurried to the jail with a yelling mob at the heels of the police who were protecting him. All afternoon the crowd stormed about the place threatening to lynch the detective.

DOES NOT SUPPORT MADRIZ

Emperor William, Through Foreign Office, Declares Germany Will Not Intervene in Nicaragua.

Berlin.—The foreign office Tuesday made public an authorized statement respecting the letter of Emperor William to President Madriz of Nicaragua. Reports have reached Berlin that attempts were being made in America to construe this letter as an indorsement by the emperor of the Madriz party.

The statement follows: "Madriz gave notice of his election upon undertaking the presidency, to the emperior in the usual written form. The customary formal reply was prepared by the foreign office. It was not an autograph letter, but was simply signed by the emperor. The address, 'great and good friend,' was in accordance with official courtesy. Any intervention by Germany in Nicaraguan affairs neither followed nor is intended. Germany neither sought nor designs to seek a coaling station. Rumors of Germany's intention toward the Galapagos islands are equally without foundation, as are all suggestions that the German government has in any wise modified the cultivation of friendly relations toward the United States."

TRAINMEN SLAIN IN WRECK

New York Central Passenger Train Jumps Track—None of Passengers Seriously Hurt.

New York.—Three men were killed and a train load of passengers badly shaken up when north-bound train 59 on the New York Central, known as the Northern and Western Express, was wrecked Monday near Newton Hook, nine miles north of Hudson.

Engine and baggage car jumped the track and toppled over. The six other cars of the train, all Pullmans, left the rails, but remained upright and no one in them was seriously hurt.

Engineer Tyndall was caught under his engine and was fatly crushed, dying shortly afterward. The other trainmen were instantly killed.

A report received by the public service commission at Albany said the wreck was caused by the engine striking a door of a freight car that had fallen on the track.

Church to Build Asylum.

Holland, Mich.—A movement has been started by preachers and laymen in the Christian Reformed church to establish an asylum where the church will take care of its insane as it does its poor. This plan includes the purchase of a large farm between Holland and Grand Rapids.

Big Catholic Church Burns.

Nanaimo, B. C.—The Roman Catholic church and St. Anne's convent were completely destroyed by fire Tuesday. The loss is placed at $250,000.

LADS ROB STATE

TRAFFIC IN TRANSFER STAMPS WAS RICH PICKINGS OF THESE YOUNGSTERS.

NEW YORK LOSES MILLIONS

More Than Two Thousand Boys Have Been Debauched by the Practice—Many Agents Involved in the Traffic and are Known to Comptroller.

New York.—Clark Williams, state comptroller, said the other day that the illegal traffic by boys in stock transfer stamps had cost the state $1,000,000 a year. More than 2,000 boys have been debauched by the practice, according to Mr. Williams, and some have made so much money that they have been enabled to buy valuable real estate. One boy had succeeded, he said, in amassing $7,000 in two years by means of trade in the two-cent tax imposed on every share of stock.

"I think I am placing cost in revenue low when I say these stamp thieves have taken $1,000,000 a year from the state," declared the comptroller. "The law is faulty. It would be possible to stamp out the theft, but the legislature at the recent session had its attention on other things and failed to realize the importance of doing away with the traffic. Still, if it had not been for two men I would have succeeded in obtaining the passage of an amendment to the present stock transfer tax law. One of these men had a personal reason for seeing that the present traffic continued. The other had a personal reason for blocking me in any effort I might make to better conditions."

The method of operations was simple. Dealers in stamps would pay the boys 40 cents for a canceled $2 stamp, or sell them canceled ones for $1.60. By soaking the stamps off stock issues and selling them, or by affixing canceled ones, instead of using new ones, and then canceling them, they could clear about 20 per cent. of the state stamp tax.

There are many agents involved in the traffic and these men also are known to the comptroller. He predicts the whole system will have an end in the near future.

GIRL AVENGES A MURDER

Black Hand Crime in New Orleans Is Followed by Swift Retribution.

New Orleans, La.—Joseph Manzella an Italian proprietor of a saloon and grocery at St. Philip and Dauphine streets, fell a victim to the so-called "Blackhand Society" here, but his death was avenged a few seconds later when his seventeen-year-old daughter shot and killed the assassin as he was attempting to escape.

Manzella had recently received many letters signed "Blackhand society," demanding money. Shortly before noon an Italian called at the store and asked if any money was forthcoming. When ordered out he shot Manzella in the breast. As Manzella fell he drew his revolver and fired at the assassin. Young Josephine Manzella rushed into the store and gave chase to the assassin, firing at him as he ran. The dead body of her father's slayer lay in the gutter outside with three bullet wounds near the heart. The assassin was identified as Giuseppe Spennazzio, who is said to have emigrated from Sicily recently.

Will Get Twain's Library.

Redding, Conn.—Mrs. Clara Clemens-Gabrilowitsch, daughter of the late Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), has formerly notified the directors of the Mark Twain free library in this place, that she will present to that institution practically the entire library of her father, now in his late residence, Stromfield. The gift includes nearly 2,500 volumes. Mr. Clemens drew a check for $6,000 in favor of the Redding library a few days before his death, and the money will be used to erect a building for the institution.

Fatal Boxing Bout.

New York.—In an amateur boxing bout held in Mineola, L. I., Hugh Brant, known also as "Kid Burns," a bellboy of Garden City, collapsed in the fourth round and died before medical assistance could reach him. The bout was held in the room in the rear of the hotel bar. Brant's opponent was Tommy Walsh, aged twenty-one, from Tuckahoe, N. Y.

King Edward's Funeral Costly.

London, Eng.—The elaborate funeral given King Edward cost the nation $202,500 as is shown in the supplementary financial estimate just issued.

Age Forty-Two; Seventh Husband.

Greenfield, Ind.—Otto Wilson and Mrs. Ruth Dishman were married in this city the other day. Although the bride is only forty-two this is her seventh marriage and all of her husbands are living but one.

Twenty-Third Victim.

Hamilton, Ohio—Henry Oswald, who was injured in the Big Four wreck at Middletown July 4, died from his injuries in Mercy hospital, this city. This brings the death list up to twenty-three.

JULY

0451

L 904

"Cold Molasses"

By BELLE MANIATES

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

There was to be a leap year dance down at the Corners, and consequently all the young men in the vicinity wore a half receptive, half sheepish air. Two of them, Warren Youngs and Arthur Haskell, rivals for the affections of Hetty Lane, were in a state of great anxiety. Hitherto odds had been even, but now surely Hetty must needs show her hand, and the man who was invited to the dance would have reason to believe himself to be the favored one.

Hetty was wise and wily. Warren had the fastest horse in the county and Arthur was going to buy an automobile in the spring. So she did not mean to let things come to an issue for some time yet. Besides, she really didn't know which one she liked the better, so she decided to invite a third young man.

"It doesn't really matter whom I go with," she reflected, "for once there I can dance with any one I choose. I have a great mind to ask John Wylie. It would be such a surprise to every one, and it might be a kindness to him, for I don't believe he has ever been to a party, and no one else will ask him. He has never taken a girl anywhere."

She put her idea into execution. John was quite overwhelmed at the honor.

"It isn't a joke, is it, Hetty?" he asked wistfully.

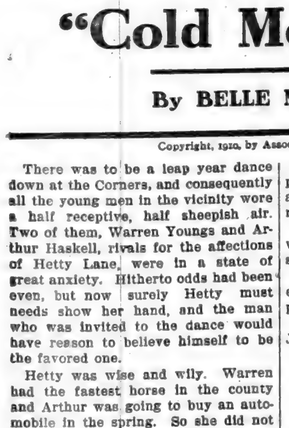
"John!" she exclaimed reproachfully. "Well, I might as well tell you frankly that I didn't want to make Art or Warren mad by inviting either, so I—"

"Compromised," he finished, smiling. "Well, Hetty, I feel honored even to be a compromise, and I should be delighted to go with you, but I have a confession to make: I don't dance."

"I didn't suppose you did, John, but I thought maybe you'd like to go and hear the music and sit out some dances with me."

"Of course, I would," he said, flushing and looking down into her dazzling eyes.

"John's good looking, even if he is



She Was Enjoying Her First Ride in an Ice Boat.

big and clumsy," she reflected as she returned home.

On the way she met two girls.

"Who are you going to invite, Hetty?" asked one of them, eagerly.

"I have already invited," she replied. "I asked John Wylie."

They both laughed hilariously. "Don't fool, Hetty. Tell us who, Warren or Arthur?"

"I have just this moment asked John, and he has accepted.

"Why, Hetty, whatever has possessed you? I should as soon think of taking an elephant."

"I like elephants," she replied.

"But, Hetty, they call him 'Cold Molasses' because he is so slow. You won't get there till the party is over."

"Molasses melts at times, you know."

Hetty tripped away, giggling at the sensation she was going to create.

"Well, Hetty," asked her father at supper, "who are you going to take to the dance—Art or Warren?"

"Neither, father. I have asked John Wylie," she replied, preparing herself for a lecture on flirting.

To her surprise, her father's face was full of approval.

"Well, Hetty, I am glad you are getting sensible at last. John Wylie is as good as gold. He's a little slow—"

"Yes; they call him 'Cold Molasses' and 'Old Hundred.'"

"It isn't always the fastest that make good."

Warren and Arthur were not at all disturbed when they heard Hetty was going to the dance with "Cold Molasses." They did not fear such a rival. At the party Hetty put her name down in four spaces on John's program.

"Won't you ask me for more?" he pleaded.

Hetty laughed. "This is leap year, John. You mustn't ask for dances."

She was at a loss to know what to talk about when she came to sit out the first dance with him, but he began the conversation.

"I'm like a bull in a china shop at a party, Hetty, but I'm glad I am here, and I want to give you a pleasure in return. May I?"

"Certainly," she replied, hoping he would not ask her to ride after his sauntering old mare.

"I can give you a faster ride than either Art or Warren can," he said, proudly.

"Oh, have you got a new horse, John?"

"Not a horse. Keep on guessing."

"An automobile?"

"No."

"Balloon?"

"No."

"Well, I give up, John."

"I don't believe I'll tell you just yet. Not until you are sitting out the fifth dance with me."

"John isn't so slow," she thought, as she took his program and wrote her name once more.

When the fifth dance came he asked her if she wouldn't enjoy it more to have it a surprise until it materialized. "I'll come over tomorrow afternoon and take you to it."

When he called the next day he didn't drive the old mare.

"This looks like Warren's horse," said Hetty, as she got into the sleigh.

"It is," he replied, touching up the horse. "I borrowed it because I heard you couldn't bear to ride behind a slow horse."

"Did Warren know you were going to take me riding?"

He looked at her in surprise. "Why, no," he replied. "He would have made some excuse not to lend it to me if he had known that."

"And they call John slow," she thought with a smile.

They drove five miles to a farmhouse where some of John's friends lived. He left the horse and sleigh in the barn and then escorted Hetty down to a lake.

"Here," he said, "we can have the sport I love."

In a few moments she was enjoying her first ride on an iceboat.

"John," she cried, ecstatically, "there's nothing like it, is there?"

"Except sailing," he replied. "I come here for my recreation in summer and winter."

"I'll never think of John as 'Cold Molasses' again," she thought as they finally went up to the farmhouse to get warm before starting for home.

When they reached her house Mr. Lane came out to the sleigh.

"My wife sent me to ask you in to supper, John."

"Yes, do, John," urged Hetty.

"I've got to get this horse back," said John, sorrowfully. "Warren wants it tonight."

"Ben Childs is here. He lives next to Warren's. He'll be glad not to have to walk home."

After supper Mr. and Mrs. Lane went to a neighbor's to call and Hetty settled herself for a comfortable visit with John without perturbation. She knew from a certain expression in his eyes how much he thought of her, but she also knew his slow way of doing things, and calculated that it would take him at least a year to reach the proposing point. Therefore, when he suddenly put his arm about her and asked her tersely if she would be his wife she was so surprised that she accepted him.

"John," she said later, "how did you come to ask me so soon?"

"So soon!" he echoed, in surprise. "Why, little girl, I've been wanting to ask you since the first time I saw you."

A Kneepad for Miners.

The miner's calling is what accident insurance companies would term an "extra hazardous risk," but every little while some inventive genius brings forward an article designed to eliminate some of the dangers. One of these devices is the kneepad designed by three Illinois men. This pad is a concave steel piece worn over the knee with two sharp points turned outward. On the inside of the pad, toward the knee, is a cushion lining to allow the wearer to kneel on it without bruising himself. The harness worn with this guard consists of a pair of side bars running from the ankle to the knee. At the upper point they are attached to a strap, which buckles around the joint and at the foot they terminate in a contrivance which fits over the instep and around the heel, thus keeping the pad in place and preventing it from slipping around to one side. Equipped with this device a miner can crawl around on dangerous ledges with safety.

Faults of Women's Dress.

Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, wife of the mayor of Boston, says that individuality should be the essential feature of women's dress. Society women, adhering so closely to the styles, she says, often make themselves unconsciously ridiculous. Many women, she says, wear the latest styles in order to avoid gossip, when they would much prefer to dress in a simpler manner.

Not So the Eggs.

Rooster—Did you see where they are going to require all eggs to be tagged with their age?

Hen—These humans are getting too fresh.

ALL BACKED AWAY TOGETHER

Woman Creates Much Excitement at Railroad Station by Accusing Man of Stealing Her Ticket.

A short woman, wearing a white shirtwaist and a hat with three apples on it, grabbed by the neck a chunky young man who held a ticket in his right hand in the waiting room of the Lackawanna railroad station in Hoboken at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and screamed, "Give me my ticket!"

"Gug-gug-gug," gasped the gagged stranger, as he struggled to release her grip.

The station cop went to the man's rescue and gently inquired what the rumpus was all about.

"He's got my ticket," said the woman.

"I haven't," growled the man. "I paid for it and it's mine."

"Well, it looks like mine," explained the woman. "It's the same shape and color. I put it in my bag, which I placed on the seat, and I saw him walk away from it."

"Why don't you look in your bag and make sure?" suggested the cop.

The woman took a peek and found her ticket.

"Men shouldn't carry their tickets in their hands," said the policeman, as he backed away from the backing woman and backing man.

Consolation.

There had been a little quarrel after the honeymoon.

"And just look at my pretty linen collar," sobbed the young wife; "the tears have trickled down and wilted it out of shape. You haven't a bit of feeling."

"Indeed I have," laughed the big husband; "I'm going to fix things up."

"H-how, George?"

"Why, the next time I go downtown I am going to buy you a waterproof collar."

The Real Robber.

They were looking over the best six sellers.

"Ah, this fiction is right up to date," remarked Gunner, as he looked over the titles. "Here is a novel called 'The Robbery in the Paris Taxicab.'"

"H'h!" ejaculated Guyer. "Does it mention the name of the robber?"

"No, I guess it was the taximeter."

For Gunner had been to Paris and knew something about the taxicabs.

In His Line.

"And now, Nora," said the one who had engaged a new cook, "I require all onions to be peeled under water."

"All onions peeled under wather!" echoed Nora. "Shure, awn Oi'll sind me brother Larry aroun'. He will suit yez betther."

"Your brother Larry?"

"Yis, mum; he was cook on a submarine boat in th' English navy."

His Hobo Name.

"What is your name?" inquired the kind-hearted woman, as she handed the intellectual looking tramp a large piece of her best jelly cake.

"Me real name, ma'am," the man replied between his eager bites, "is known only to th' forgotten past; but ever since me gal turned me down an' her ol' man turned me out I've went by th' name of 'Gas.'"

Dangerous.

Convalescent Patient—I owe my life to my physician and when he comes I am going to tell him so.

Friend—Better wait until some other day.

C. P.—Why so?

Friend—Well, he is out collecting all that is owing to him today, and he might take it.

At Uncle's.

Bill—Do you know that a watch ticks 157,680,000 times in a year, and the wheels travel 3,558¾ miles?

Jill—No, do you?

"Certainly I do."

"I don't see how you can prove it. You never carried a watch a whole year that I know of."—Yonkers Statesman.

Bad Error.

Tom—How is it old man Giltwood turned you down when you asked for his daughter's hand?

Dick—Why, that's what I get for proposing by letter. Instead of writing, 'Darling, I will support you on savings, an 'h' slipped in on my typewriter, and it read, 'Darling, I will support you on shavings.'"

Making Himself Solid.

Tom—So your proposal to the pretty girl in the park was a flat failure? Some one cut you out?

Dick—Yes, they had cut me out with a chisel. I was so busy proposing I didn't notice that I was sitting on a freshly cemented wall and the blamed stuff hardened.

Sounded Grand, But—

Stubb—I thought you told me Bluffwood had a suit for every day in the week. He has only one suit to his name.

Penn—Well, doesn't he wear that every day in the week?

The Lone Exception.

Gunner—The world hasn't any use for knockers.

Guyer—I don't know about that. It doesn't object to opportunity and she's a great knocker.

90,000,000 IN THIS CLUB

Young Chicagoan Attending School in England "Puts One Over" on His Numerous Tormenters.

The young son of a Chicago man, who attended school in an English provincial town, found himself, by reason of the fact that he was the only representative of his nation there, made the subject of much chaff on the part of his British cousins. The young fellow, however, took the guying with such good nature that, despite the number of his tormentors, he generally managed to come off with flying colors.

On one occasion at an evening gathering the westerner wore upon his coat lapel a pin in the form of a tiny American flag. Several of his friends pretended not to recognize the Stars and Stripes, and one of them, a young woman, affecting a most supercilious air, gazed long at the emblem and said:

"You belong to some secret society or organization, I see."

"Oh, yes," cheerfully assented the Chicago chap, amiably. "It's my club, you know. There are about 90,000,000 of us in it now, I believe.—Harper's Weekly.

Between Neighbors.

"This thing has gone far enough," stormed the man in the bungalow. "Your chickens come through the fence and ruin my garden."

"Well, why don't you keep an eye on them?" asked the man in the cottage.

"What? I'd have you understand that I'm not going to mind your chickens."

"Mind them? Well, if you don't mind them what in the world are you talking about, anyway?"

Extra Passengers.

The backwoods train was moving at traction-engine speed.

"Is this the fastest train on the road?" asked the impatient tourist.

"It's de limited, sah," responded the porter, with much pride.

"Carries everything before it, eh?"

"Not ebbything, sah, but generally a cow or a mule on de pilot. Reckon deh's sumfing deh now, kase Ah feel her slowing up a bit."

Asking Too Much.

"See here, young man," said the irate father, "your college principal says he doesn't know of anything that you would be likely to make a success of. Now, sir, I'd like to know what you intend to make of yourself?"

"Give it up, father," replied the young man. "How do you expect me to answer a question that even a college professor can't answer?"

The Secret Out.

"What is the most important thing in your line?" asked the inquisitive youth.

"The art of putting the right word in the right place," answered the poet. "For instance, the expressions, 'Dinner for nothing' and 'Nothing for dinner,' contain the same words, yet what different meanings they convey?"

At Midnight.

Mrs. Tymidlay (shaking her husband to waken him)—Oh, John, I'm afraid there's a man downstairs; I heard a noise that sounded just like a yawn!

Mr. Tymidlay—Oh, go to sleep and don't bother me! What you heard was probably your rubber plant stretching itself.

Not Selfish.

Wakeley—The Foodieres are certainly selfish. Foodiere told me this afternoon that he and his wife have meat three times a day, but they never think of letting their children have any.

Mrs. Wakeley—Why, John, their children are only babies!

The Men Don't Deserve It.

"I defy anyone to name a field of endeavor in which men do not receive more consideration than women!" exclaimed the orator at a suffragette meeting.

"The chorus,' murmured some irresponsible person.—Lippincott's.

Bird in the Hand.

Mrs. Styles—I wish you would not take that squab in your hand when you eat it.

Mr. Styles—Why, a bird in the hand is worth two—well, you know the rest, dear!—Yonkers Statesman.

At It Again.

Growells—This meat is scorched again. It's a pity you can't get a meal without burning something!

Mrs. Growells—It's a pity you can't sit down to the table without roasting somebody!

Third-Degree Scene.

The Heroine (in Chinese den)—Help! Help! What in heaven's name are about to do, Claude Cunningham?

The Villain—Wr-r-r-ring the secret from you, cuh-kurse you!—Puck.

Poor Percy.

Pearl—Percy Pink has given up golf and taken up motoring. He used to tire every one at golf.

Ruby—H'm! Now I suppose he will be an "automobile tire."

Appropriate.

"Why do you call this poem 'The Boomerang?'"

"It always comes back."

BURGLAR STEALS BULLDOG; OWNER VOICES DISGUST

SUPPOSEDLY VICIOUS CANINE LOOT OF THIEF WHO TAKES HIM AWAY AT NIGHT.

Montclair, N. J.—Charles B. Sturges, whose home is in South Mountain avenue, has taken off his hat to the underworld.

If the enterprising thief who visited Sturges' place recently and stole the fierce-appearing, wild-eyed, iron-jawed, long-fanged, foam-flecked brindle bulldog which Sturges purchased recently to protect his home against night marauders, will make himself known, the Montclair man will give to him the collar, muzzle,

The Two Went Away Together as Nicely as Could Be.

leash, blanket, whip, tar soap, flea powder, mange lotion, distemper cure and illuminated pedigree that belong to the dog.

Sturges has no more use for them. He had planned to exhibit his brindle bull at the dog show and make a determined fight for first prize for ferociousness.

Now he has changed his mind. He has decided that what he thought was a brindle bulldog really is, despite its frightening appearance, an albino-livered cross between a lamb and a rabbit, with a streak of turtle dove thrown in. The feeling here is that if the brindle hybrid does not guard the underworld any better than it guarded the Sturges home, in a little while the police will have all its denizens behind the bars, and the thief who stole the brindle will be sorry he did it.

When Sturges purchased the brindle he took it home and boasted to his neighbors that any burglar who intruded upon his premises would be chewed to bits. He went to bed feeling that everything was safe, and saying to himself what a blessing it was to have a faithful, four-legged protector roaming the grounds outside.

The burglar seemingly greeted him like a long-lost brother, and the two went away together as nicely as could be, with the tail of the brindle waving a by-by toward the Sturges home. The thief evidently decided enough glory had come to him for one night in stealing a brindle bulldog, because he made no effort to break into the house.

WOMAN FIGHTS A MAD CAT

Club Member Rescues Housewife, But Not Until She Is Severely Bitten.

Cleveland, O.—A gigantic Maltese cat, with lashing tail and fiery eyes, was a prisoner in the cellar of 412 East Fourth street a few days ago, unconsciously awaiting its executioner, an armed agent of the Humane society.

The cat had been a pet for several years in the family of Mrs. Max Adams. The housewife attempted to stroke the animal the other day, when it sprang at her, viciously clawing and biting her.

The woman succeeded in warding off the cat's leap at her throat, but it clung to her left arm and sank its fangs repeatedly into the flesh near the elbow.

Several members of the University club heard Mrs. Adams' screams and hurried to her rescue. By the time she reached a physician's office her arm had swollen to twice its normal size, and she was almost overcome by the pain.

The wound was cauterized, but the possibility of more serious results are feared.

It is believed that the cat was attacked by some other animal suffering from rabies. The Humane society was ntoified, and Richard Sullivan was sent to the house.

The cat eluded him and hid in the basement. As he was unarmed he barricaded the place to prevent the animal's escape and promised to return with a net and gun to capture and kill it.

Many in Federal Employ.

Washington.—There were 28,947 persons in the federal employ in Washington on July 1 last; the annual pay roll for them is $31,541,225, an average of nearly $1,100 each.

A Skin of Beauty Is a Joy Forever

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S Oriental Cream and Magical Beautifier

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 57 yrs., and is so harmless we taste it. To be sure it is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the skin preparations." For sale by all druggists and Fancy-Goods Dealers in the U.S., Canada and Europe.

FURKIES as worn by the elite. No other cosmedic will do it.

Ferd. T. Hopkins, Prop., 37 Great Jones St., New York

At the Summer Resort.

"I think I've seen you before somewhere."

"Yes, I think so. Let's see, you and I were engaged to be married four seasons ago, weren't we?"

TAKE A FOOT-BATH TO-NIGHT

After dissolving one or two Allen's Foot-Tabs (Antiseptic tablets for the foot-bath) in the water. It will take out all soreness, smarting and tenderness, remove foot odors and freshen the feet. Allen's Foot-Tabs instantly relieve weariness and sweating or inflamed feet and hot nervousness of the feet at night. Then for comfort throughout the day shake Allen's Foot-Ease the antiseptic powder into your shoes. Sold everywhere 25c. Avoid substitutes. Samples of Allen's Foot-Tabs mailed FREE or our regular size sent by mail for 25c. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

"Foot-Tabs for Foot-Tubs."

Statistics Go Lame.

"'Pears t' me thar's somethin' wrong with statistsicks," remarked the oldest inhabitant as he dropped into his usual place on the loafers' bench.

"What's wrong with 'em?" queried the village grocer.

"Wall, ercordin' tew 'em," continued the o. i., "we orter hev had a death in teown ev'ry six weeks fer th' past tew years."

"Is that so?" said the grocer.

"Yaas," answered the other, "an' by ginger, we ain't had 'em!"

Watch Your Refrigerator.

You'll save many a doctor's bill by watching your refrigerator. Keep it absolutely clean all the time. The best way to clean it is to take clean hot water, make a suds with Easy Task soap and wash every nook and corner in the ice box or refrigerator. Then the food doesn't get smelly and carry disease germs to the table. Easy Task soap, being made of pure cocoanut oil, borax, naphtha and clean tallow, is antiseptic as well as cleansing. It is a wonderful soap—and a nickel a cake.

Cost of Spontaneity.

"I want the office, of course," said the aspiring statesman, "but not unless I am the people's choice."

"We can fix that, too," said his campaign manager; "only you know it's a good deal more expensive to be the people's choice than it is to go in as the compromise candidate."

Midas.

Midas had come to that point in his career where everything he touched turned to gold.

"What shall you ever do with the stuff?" asked his entourage in visible alarm.

Midas affected not to be uneasy. "Just wait till the boys begin to touch me!" quoth he, displaying an acquaintance with economic tendencies far in advance of his age.—Puck.

Foxy Hiram.

"Well, now, if that ain't surprising!" ejaculated Mrs. Ryetop, as she shaded her eyes with her hand. "There goes old Hiram Skinflint, and rather than step on a poor black ant he picked it somewhere out of the reach of danger."

Her husband laughed knowingly.

"Not Hiram Skinflint, Mandy. He'll go down to Jed Weatherby's general store and order a pound of granulated sugar. Then while Jed is looking another way he'll drop the ant among the grains and tell Jed as long as his sugar has ants in it he ought to sell it at half price. Like as not he'll try to get Jed to throw in two or three raisins and a yeast cake. You don't know Hiram Skinflint."

Compound Interest

comes to life when the body feels the delicious glow of health, vigor and energy.

That Certain Sense of vigor in the brain and easy poise of the nerves comes when the improper foods are cut out and predigested take their place.

Grape-Nuts

If it has taken you years to run down don't expect one mouthful of this great food to bring you back (for it is not a stimulant but a rebuilder.)

Ten days trial shows such big results that one sticks to it.

"There's a Reason"

Get the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

POSTUM CEREAL CO., LTD., Battle Creek, Mich.

JULY

0452

L 904

The St. Joe News.

One Year - - $1.00
Six Month - - 50c
Three Months - - 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

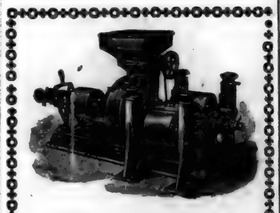
MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

Stolen fruit may be sweet, but there is sorrow in its assimilation.

The flies, the flies, the pesky flies, they crawl upon the bread and pies and on each bite of food we eat, they wipe their nasty, dirty feet. They buzz around defying foes, they dance upon your face and nose, and then without apparent fear, they tunnel in your ear. They light upon your hairless head at early dawn when you're abed they fly and frolic everywhere and make the housewives almost swear. They fall down in the crock of cream and life to them is one sweet dream They get mixed in the raisin cake that all the housewives try to bake. They drop down in the coffee cup, and in the lasses get mixed up. With nimble feet and active wing they leave their germs on everything, and then their presence they explain with dots upon the window pane. Then bring the swatter forth and swatt, and teach the flies they mustn't dot, bring out the sticky paper that nabs the insects by the feet and holds them struggling for their breath until they die a lingering death. But do not use that ancient trick and dope the flies to make 'em sick, for this will cause them, so they say, to dot their little lives away.



Grain is Saved,
Money Made,
and
Stock does better
by having your feed ground
by the

Keesler Mfg. Co.

ST. JOE, - - - - INDIANA

New Business Men.

J W. Burwell & Son of Churubusco, are the new proprietors of the D .J. Baker hardware store. They are men of experience, having been in the business for years and are well able to supply the wants of their patrons Mr. Burwell will move his family here in a short time and well occupy the Mahlon Baker property. We welcome the new people to our little city and hope that they will do well, Mr. Baker, who has retired from the business, has made a success of it and has given the people of this community A-1 store, carrying a stock of $4,500, which is considered good for a town of our size.

A Frightful Wreck

of train, automobile or buggy may cause cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains or wounds that demand Bucklen's Arnica Salve—earth's greatest healer. Quick relief and prompt cure results. For burns, boils, sores of all kinds, eczema, chapped hands and lips, sore eyes or corns, its supreme. Surest pile cure. 25c. at H. L. Dunkle's.

News Items

J. H. Leighty was at home a few days this week.

Mrs. Kate Davis visited Ft. Wayne relatives a few days last week.

Wm Curle and Florence Buchanan and wife were at Wayne, Thursday.

Mrs. Ida Walker and two granddaughters, returned to South Bend, Saturday after spending one month with relatives here.

A young lady who taught a class of small boys in the Sunday school desired to impress on them the meaning of returning thanks before a meal. Turning to one of the class whose father was a deacon in the church, she asked him: "William, what is the first thing your father says when he sits down to the table?" "He says, "Go slow with the butter, kids; it's forty cents a pound," replied the youngster.

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at .....10:32 a. m.
No. 3 .....8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at.....6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at.....4:57 p.m.

J D Fetters

TRUSTEE

of Concord Township.

OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK
at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank; you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Ice! Ice! Ice!
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

Honor Thy Father and Mother

Children do not always do this According to the following story told by a DeKalb Co. Mother.

When we read stories of great adventure, or stories of depravity in magazines and other periodicals, it seems they always read like fiction, because they occur among the mountains or on the deep sea, or in some far away land that it seems to the reader to be largely imaginary by the writer. But the story here recorded was told by a life long citizen of DeKalb County, Indiana.

About the year 1845 there moved into DeKalb county a family settling in the western part of the county on a farm, in this family was a young girl of about ten summers. She grew to womanhood and married a man who was not wealthy but a good hard working young man. They began life in a very humble way, and by saving their earnings they in after years purchased a farm of 120 acres. When the Civil war broke out the husband enlisted in the service of his country which he faithfully served, after the war he again took up the duties of his farm. To them was born one son who they raised to manhood, and giving him every advantage possible to make something for himself he seemed to develop a selfish spirit, wanting everything he raised even on his parents land. This son married and has lived on his mother's farm ever since.

About two years ago the father died leaving the mother in her old age and just at the time she should have the care and affections of her son, she is denied that blessing, the son still farms the farm which now consists of 200 acres good land, and takes every thing he raises on the farm for himself; does not even give his mother enough wheat for bread nor potatoes or anything only what little she raises herself in her garden. Only recently she went to the store and bought a sack of flour on time until her pension money comes, this she says is all her living.

Now her daughter-in-law is about to go into nervous prostration because this mother will not deed her son her home and give them full chance to turn her clear out.

Moral, parents if you want to help your children do what you can but do not deed them the home until you are done with it. A Citizen.

M. P. CHURCH ANNOUCEMENTS

Prayer meeting on Thursday evening to which all are invited to attend. As the Sunday School will go to Fairview in a body to attend the rededication services there will be no Sunday School here in the morning or church services in the evening.

Rev. Coomer, Pastor.

ST. JOE NEWS.

Marion Smith and family of Auburn were St. Joe visitors Sunday.

..Real Estate..

Insurance

NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

alls answered day or night.

Phone No. 89.

St. Joe, - Indiana.

Summer Is Here

which brings flies, bugs and mosquitoes. Why be pested with them when Kinsey has a full line of Screen Doors, Windows, Wire screen and Hinges. All sizes at right prices. That nice lawn needs a mower to keep it mowed. When that building needs painting, don't forget we have a full line of Paint and Oil guaranteed strictly pure. The hot weather will make you wonder where you can secure a Gasoline or Oil Stove, remember we have a full line. When you need anything in Hardware remember we are complete. We show the biggest line of Graniteware ever shown in town and prices are such as have never been known. We have the Automatic Schrams Fruit Jars. Come in and we will be glad to show them. Always bear in mind that Kinsey's is where you get value received or in other words, dollar for dollar.

At your Service,

H. V. KINSEY — H. V. Kinsey & Son — E. R. KINSEY

Furniture Hardware Undertaking

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37-3

You will also find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Especially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37-4

Electric Railway Talk.

Hon. J. D. Leighty, of St. Joe, recently informed us that his street railway project from Butler to Fort Wayne by way St. Joe, Spencerville and Robinson Park, is not dead yet, but prospects are looking better than ever. The Bryan-Hicksville-Fort Wayne line seems to be a dead one. They made a fine display of fireworks early in the spring, by doing a little work over by Harlan, but it has long since been abandoned. Parties have also been surveying the St. Joe river from Ft. Wayne to St. Joe, to ascertain the possibilities of generating water power and the expense of making it available. It has been noted before in this paper that it is the declared intention of those now in control of the Toledo & Indiana Electric Ry, to build from Bryan to Ft. Wayne via Butler.

They never expressed any intention, so far as we know, of building the Hicksville line, but the people at Harlan and other places along the line were very anxious for it and capitalists said they would build it if the people along the line would take $100,000 in stock, which would virtually secure the bonds to be sold for the contruction of the road. But it seems that somebody has failed to "come across" with the money and the project is at a stand-still.—Butler Record.

Poor Food in Canada.

According to the bulletins of the inland revenue department of Canada, that country appears to have become a dumping ground for the adulterated foods which were driven out of the United States by the pure food laws. Ground pepper is the most badly adulterated article found there. While it is true that the percentage of adulteration is less than formerly, the adulteration is still there. Out of 145 samples of ground cloves collected in various parts of the country only seventy-four were genuine. Chicory and roasted grain are frequently found in coffee. Native wines are sold as foreign brands.

To some extent the government itself is to blame for the prevalence of adulteration. The average citizen is more likely, says the Buffalo Express, to take his chance on having his food adulterated if he has to pay for an examination himself. Many samples of adulterated food have been sent to Ottawa for examination, but the government refuses to make the desired examination unless the person sending the sample is willing to pay $7. The department will have as assume a different attitude if it hopes to drive out adulterated foods.

Napoleon's Grit

was of the unconquerable, never-say-die kind, the kind that you need most when you have a bad cold, cough or lung disease. Suppose troches, cough syrups, cod liver oil or doctors have all failed, don't lose heart or hope. Take Dr. King's New Discovery. Satisfaction is guaranteed when used for any throat or lung trouble. It has saved thousands of hopeless sufferers. It masters stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, hemorrhages, lagrippe, croup, asthma, hay fever and whooping cough and is the most safe and certain remedy for all bronchial affections. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free at H. L. Dunkle's.

Grove Meeting

The Third Annual Meeting of the five Christian Churches, St. Joe, Coburns Corners, Harlan, Newville and Milford, will be held in Railroad Park on the first Lord's day in August. Gary L. Cook, of Indianapolis, State Bible School Superintendent, will be the speaker, morning and afternoon. A basket dinner will be served at the noon hour. Everybody come.

Local Items

Read the ads and be posted.

Thrashing coal. W. E. Baxter.

Glen Wineland, Fred Meese and Willie Beams were at Wayne, Sunday.

Mr. Orin Kincade of Orangeville, spent Sunday afternoon at New Haven.

Grandma Walker returned Monday from a couple days visit with her sister, Mrs. Bowser of Kendallville.

Bert Beidler, wife and son, Mrs. G. A. Bishop and Mrs. Eliza Bishop spent Friday with M. T. Bishop and wife.

Helen Bowman visited a few days last week with her aunt, Mrs. Mary Jane Silberg and family, at Spencerville.

Ed Leighty and family left Monday morning for several weeks outing at Hamilton lake, occupying the Chas. Koch cottage.

At a Congregational meeting Sunday evening the Lutheran church of this place voted to entertain the Synod of Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan in October. The Synod was to have been held at North Manchester but as there is no pastor there at present the meeting place had to be changed.

The world's most successful medicine for bowel complaints is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It has relieved more pain and suffering, and saved more lives than any other medicine in use. Invaluable fof children and adults. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

DENTIST

C. R. PRICE,

ST. JOE, IND.

Office in Case building.

Bell Phone No. 44.

D. F. BROWN,

.....SHOE SHOP.....

My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite the Postoffice. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.

St. Joe, - Ind.

S. S. Kimes

—M. D.—

Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.

Phone No. 10.
Spencerville, Ind.

Band concert Saturday evening.

Fred Reed was a St. Joe visitor, Friday.

5% FARM LOANS 5%

SEE

Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.

Bell 347k Home 346

Office:

Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Elza Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son.

Phone No. Office 37-2. Residence 37-4

JULY

0453

L 904

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

Home Coming

Spencerville and old Concord township Home Coming meeting was held at Spencerville, Monday afternoon of this week. The object of the first meeting to get organized and in shape for business. The following organization was perfected:

Chairman—R. U. Bowser
Secretary—Mort Shutt
Treasurer—Ed Beams.

They then chose August 25 for the date of the meeting to be held at or near Spencerville. Further announcements will be given later, and everybody is asked to talk the matter up and make it a success. Every person who has ever lived in old Concord township and Spencerville are invited and expected to be there on this date.

SPENCERVILLE

THE NEWS $1.00 per year.

W. G. Erick was at Auburn, Monday.

Mrs. J. R. Knisely went to Butler Monday to visit her son George.

Jerry Klopfenstine and wife were callers at Frank Beams' and C. Curies'.

Ethel Berry of St. Joe visited with her sister, Mrs. W. P. Steward last Sunday.

Homer Cook and Burl Enzor, were cutting wheat the first of last week at Newville.

Sam Steward and wife visited their daughter. Mrs. Guy Strong, at Bear Creek last Sunday.

The Winner overalls and shirts are the best. Beams & Co., sell them.

Some ball games will be pulled off here this summer. Arrangements are being made.

J. R. Culbertson of Auburn, took dinner with his daughter, Mrs. Geo. Henderson and family, Thursday.

Mrs. Henry Murray visited a few days last week with her daughter at Wayne. On Thursday, Mr. Murray and W. G. Erick were there.

Dr. B. O. Shooks' entertained two automobile loads from Auburn, and F. R. Bowman and wife of St. Joe, on Saturday evening. They made ice cream and enjoyed themselves royally.

Esquire Allen reports the marriage of Mr. Luther Shoemaker, of Allen County and Mary M. Preem of Wayne on Sunday at high noon. A dinner was served. Mr. Shoemaker is well known to the people of this vicinity, his former wife dying leaving him with a family of children. They will reside on his farm south of here.

Don't neglect putting news items in the box at the postoffice so that we may get them by Monday forenoon. We make regular trips each week. The writer is positive that there is more news in Spencerville than is being received each week. We cannot call on each one of you to get news, so please put your items in the box arranged for that purpose. Please hel us this much.

FRED THOMAS

FARMERS!

should remember that there is always more or less repairing to be done before the fall work comes on. Your drag may need some teeth sharpened and now would be a good time to have it done before they are needed.

All Work Guaranteed.

The Blacksmith.

YOU ARE ALWAYS WELCOME AT THE

TREECE RESTAURANT

Lunch, Cigars, Confectionary, Ice Cream and Soft Drinks

Clem Treece

PROPRIETOR.

Read your own NEWS.

Lutheran S. S., 94 attendance $2.07 collection.

Mabel Knisely spent Sunday with her parents.

Ethel Metcalf left Teesday for a week at Winona Lake.

Bring your old junk and rubber to J. F. Baltz. Prices right.

Ethel Metcalf had for her guest over Sunday, Miss Veva Steward of Butler.

Miss Arminta Steward is the guest of her sister at Marion College this week.

Bert Henderson visited in the Rhoads home on the County line, Sunday.

Mrs. Jennie Steward and Mrs. Pernettie Steward, spent last Friday in Garrett.

The Misses Dessie and Iva Pounce attended the show at Ft. Wayne last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Henderson and children called on Frank Baltz, Sunday afternoon.

Merton Kimes and wife of Robison Chapel, were Sunday guests of Geo. Kimes and wife.

John Rupert returned from Bobo last Friday where he had been spending the week with Rev. Brown and wife.

The Misses Viola and Mabel Knisely accompanied by their gentlemen friends, spent Sunday at Robison park.

Mr. John, Jack and Robert Beams and Ben Baltz were at Auburn, last Thursday, looking after the Baltz estate.

Walter Newman and family left for Wayne, Monday, where they expect to live as Mr. Newman has employment there.

Chas Mortomer and wife of Toledo and Fred Roller and wife of Bryan, spent last week with W. L. Wernert and wife. Mr. Mortomer and Mrs Roller are brother and sister of Mrs. Wernert.

Quite a good deal of wheat has been threshed this season already and the yield is fairly good. Jake Baltz had 2 2-5 acres and it turned out 32½ bushels per acre, which is extra fine and he holds the belt thus far to any we have heard of. About 25 bushels is the average.

When the stomach fails to perform its functions, the bowels become deranged, the liver and the kidneys congested causing numerous diseases. The stomach and liver must be restored to a healthy condition and Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets can be depended upon to do it. Easy to take and most effective. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Mrs. Israel Horn of this place and Mrs. Dr. Hull of Hicksville, left Saturday for Lagrange to attend the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Galloway, which occurred on Sunday. The affair was a surprise gotten up by the daughter and all the family were present to enjoy the day. A splendid dinner was served and one of the remarkable features of the dinner was that the three grandaughters present, ranging in age from 8 to 10 years, baked the anniversary cake. Ice cream and cake were served in the afternoon and a company photograph was taken. It was a day long to be remembered.

Worked 24 Hours a Day

The busiest little things ever made are Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar-coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, languor into energy, brain-fag into mental power; curing Constipation, Headache, Chills, Dyspepsia, Malaria. 25c. at H. L. Dunkle's.

Wm. Sommers and wife were guests of relatives here, Sunday.

Chas. Koch and wife were guests of Frank Beams and wife, Sunday.

E. W. Erick and wife are enjoying the week with Fred Hellman and family near Ft. Wayne.

Ed Hix and family, Mr. Hardesty and wife of Harlan, were Sunday guests in the Vallieu home.

Old junk and rubber brings the highest market prices at J. F. Baltz. Come and see him.

John Provines has again returned to Covington, Ind., where he will take up his work in the drug store.

Mr. Lewis Lake and sister, Caroline Lyons of Branch, Mich., were here attending their father's funeral, Sunday.

J. W. Dills and wife, O. E. Hart and wife of Hicksville, were guests of Spencerville relatives, last Wednesday.

Miss Viola Knisely, who has been working for Mrs. Lloyd Nuesbaum near Harlan, is at home for a few weeks.

Before buying your machine oil see Erick & Co's Eldorado Castor. Only 20c. per gallon. It's a fine one.

Phone us the news or use our item box at the post office. We want all the news, but it is impossible to get it without your help.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gently stimulate the liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system, cure constipation and sick headache. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Mrs. Miller and family, of Toledo, have been visiting Henry Carnes and family also John Beams and family the past week.

Poplin and Soisette silk, a washable dress goods, goes at 21 cents. A regular 25 cent value. Beams & Co.

Magdalena Henderson of Robison Chapel, came last Sunday to stay a few days with her sister, Mrs. L. J. Steward.

Mariah Oberholtzer returned Friday evening from a three weeks visit with Ft. Wayne relatives. She enjoyed herself very much.

Mrs. Lizzie Bishop of Auburn, came Saturday to attend the funeral of her uncle, Nelson Lake. While here she was the guest of Mrs. E. Allen.

Quite a number from this place had planned to attend the festival at Wesley Chapel last Friday evening, but were prevented from doing so by the rain.

Teething children have more or less diarrhoea, which can be controlled by giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. All that is necessary is to give the prescribed dose after each operation of the bowels more than natural and then castor oil to cleanse the system. It is safe and sure. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Daniel Rhoads and family of Springfield Center and Fred Thomas and family of this place, spent Sunday with Archie Squires and family near Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Knisely received word of the arrival of a fine baby girl at the home of their daughter in Michigan. She will be remembered as Halcie Knisely.

Frank Wise, wife and son Orville, and family of Auburn, spent Sunday with C. A. Rhoades' and on their return home visited with J. C. Vallieu and family a few minutes.

Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is quickly relieved by the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment is equally valuable for muscular rheumatism, and always afford quick relief. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville

We are here to give you a newspaper. Our ambition is to let no item escape us. However, we can only be in one place at a time, so if you see an item getting away from us please capture it and deliver it at this office or put it in the item box at the post office and great shall be your reward.

W. G. Erick

TRUSTEE

of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY

TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK

at Store in

SPENCERVILLE, IND

Big Circus at Auburn.

Ringling Bros. World's Greatest Show to Be There on Wednesday, Aug. 3.

This will be the only opportunity this year of seeing the best of all circus entertainments. This is the show that amazed New York City with its European company of actors, and its extensive new menagerie. Its parade is the longest and most superb spectacle that ever passed through the streets of any city on earth. On April 3, 1883, the five brothers gave their first performance in their home town, Baraboo, Wis., on the public square. They made their own tent and their own ring properties. The audience sat on planks borrowed from a lumber yard. They had but one horse. From that little one-ring affair to their present stupendous organization the history of the Ringling Brothers reads like a fairy tale. They began with nothing. They now own the greatest amusement enterprise in all history.

The reason of their success is no secret. It is a peculiar combination of the right kind of talent and a policy of uprightness in dealing with the public. Even during its early days it was a good show. It was small, but it was an earnest endeavor. Without capital the fine young men struggled against the bitterest opposition. They won the confidence of the public and have always kept it because they have always deserved it. A very few years after that first performance their rivals began to sit up and take serious notice when mention of the Ringling Brothers was made. They realized they had an opposing force to compete with that had come to stay. In a few years more the Ringling show took first place among the tent shows of America. There is where it will always stay. It has become the leader in the art of entertainment.

Among the many European features offered this year are the Schuman horses from the Circus Schuman at Berlin, Scheveningen and Frankfort. Albert Schuman, as a trainer of horses is the most wonderful man in history. He has made ten millions of dollars exhibiting the animals he has trained. Tourists travel many miles out of their way to visit his institutions in Germany. There are fifteen animals in his act. They enter the arena concealed in large beer barrels piled on an immense brewery wagon. They are not discovered by the audience until they kick the heads out of the barrels and jump into the ring. They begin their act by pulling the bungs from kegs, drawing a beer-like fluid from the tap and drinking it from big glasses. They roll each other around in barrels. They waltz in time to music. They skip the rope and smoke pipes. From the beginning to the end of their act they remain standing on their hind feet.

Another great act is presented by the Saxon trio of the world's strongest men. Two of them form the pillars of a bridge over which passes an automobile with six passengers. Still other novel and great acts are presented by the Lorch family of acrobats, from Germany,—the great Alexis family of aerialists, Robledillo, the Spanish wizard of the wire, the Dutton family of riders, and the greatest company of clowns in the world. The new parade is a marvel of beauty. The new menagerie is a complete collection of animals.

Those Pies of Boyhood.

How delicious were the pies of boyhood. No pies now ever taste so good, what's changed? the pies? No. Its you. You've lost the strong, healthy stomach the vigorous liver, the active kidneys, the regular bowels of boyhood. Your digestion is poor and you blame the food. what's needed? A complete toning up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Try them. They will restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c. at H. L. Dunkle's.

Vain Sacrifice.

Apropos of examinations and their terrors, A. E. Palmer, secretary of the department of education of New York, told at a recent dinner an odd story of a young African prince.

"This prince," said Mr. Palmer, "entered Yale or Harvard—I forget which—and amused himself with motor cars and bulldogs till examination time drew near. Examination time frightened the young prince horribly. He began to study, and he cabled home to the King, his father:

"'Examination next week. Most difficult. Implore aid of gods in my behalf.'

"A few days later this reply came back from the barbarous West Coast monarch:

"'Rites performed. Fourteen picked youths, all sons of nobles, have been sacrificed. Omens propitious.'

"Yet would you believe it?" Mr. Palmer concluded, "the young prince flunked."

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad

VERY LOW FARES TO

Mountain Lake Park, Md.—July 29-August 23.
Chicago—Triennial Conclave, Knights Templar Aug. 5-8.
Milwaukee, Wis.,—Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias July 29- Aug. 1.

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO—Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES—South Southwest, West, Northwest.

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST, Long Limits.

Consult BALTIMORE & OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stopover Privileges and Other Details.

CORRESPONDENCE

ITEMS FROM DIFFERENT LOCALITIES WRITTEN FOR THE NEWS

WISE'S CORNERS.

Mrs. Julia Bice is working for Mrs. Pearl Bice near Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Squier spent Saturday evening at Geo. Welchs'.

George Welch assisted J. D. Spitler make hay, Tuesday and Thursday.

Surely everybody feels very thankful for the splendid rains of last week.

Misses Ethel and Gertrude Shutt visited a few days this week, with Mrs. Burl Enzor.

John Koch is making hay on John Webb's farm, east of Grill's school house, this week.

Several from our neighborhood attended Mr. Nelson Lake's funeral, Sunday forenoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Smith were entertained at Bracy Bartholemews' near Grabill, Sunday.

Mrs. Claudie Shutt very pleasantly entertained her brother John, of Covington, Ind., last Thursday.

Nearly all the farmers in our vicinity have their wheat cut and hay made, and are very busy plowing their corn.

Mrs Frances Squier of near Auburn, and Mrs. Calvin Squier and daughter Olive, of Jackson, Mich., were Sunday visitors of Ira Smiths'.

Frank Wertman is getting his new buggy repaired at Butler, which was damaged very much in Arthur Steward's fire, a week ago last Friday evening.

THE HOOKWORM.

Laziness of Many People in the South Is Due to It.

One of the dangerous enemies of man is the hookworm, says a physician. For years it has been supposed that the inertness and general thriftlessness of the poorer people of the South especially were due to climate or their natural laziness, and nothing could be done for them. But certain inquisitive scientists and physicians have discovered that what ails them—it is estimated that there are 2,000,000 of hookworm sufferers in the Southern States—is the hookworm.

This Necator Americanus—American murderer—is a worm about three-quarters of an inch long and like a thread in circumference. It gets into the body from water, from raw fruit and vegetables and from the earth when walked on in bare feet, as most of the Southern poor children and many adults go nine months in the year. The worm fastens its fangs into the mucous membrane of the intestines and sucks the blood from its victims. It moves about from place to place and will live for years. Usually from a dozen to a hundred infect an individual, but the numbers vary, often going into the hundreds and thousands, the limit, as far as recorded, being 4,600 to one person.

Once these people get the hookworms they begin to grow lazy and careless, apparently, and insist that they are sick and need medicine. Thousands of bottles of patent medicines for all kinds of diseases have been taken by them, and doctors have treated them for various ailments, but to no avail. The hookworm was fastened upon their vitals and nobody knew it.

Now, thanks to investigation, the trouble has been discovered and at the same time a remedy has been found.

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

MORMON FARMERS.

A Thrifty Class Among Whom Failure Is Practically Unknown.

Minerals are not the only products of Utah. They are only one source of wealth. Mormon husbandmen are remarkably successful. They plowed the first furrow between the Mississippi River and the Sierra Nevada mountains; they dug the first irrigation ditch ever used by white men in America; they planted the first fruit trees in the Rocky mountains, and made the valleys of Zion to flow with milk and honey. Their patient industry, their intelligence and care, their economy and thrift seem to be greater than is found among the gentile farmers, and also their prosperity. This is apparent throughout this entire section. Many gentile farmers fail, but few Mormons. The paternal interest manifested by the Church of Latter Day Saints in its flock, the fraternal helpfulness its members show toward each other, the educational methods that are used, and the influences that are exerted to keep the young people on the farms may account for this phenomenon. It is a significant fact, also, that the Mormon farmer has a great advantage in buying his implements and supplies and selling his products through the Zion co-operative stores, which exist everywhere in the State, and the sugar mills controlled by Mormon capital pay $5 a ton for beets, while farmers elsewhere are forced to accept $4.50 a ton.

The Mormons have not only reduced diversified farming to a science, but are the most practical of economists. They are self-dependent to as great a degree as the early settlers of New England. They spend very little at the store and raise nearly everything they need—a little patch of this and a little patch of that; medical herbs which are as good as anything they got at the druggists, and they use sorghum of their own raising instead of sugar. They plant trees where nothing else will grow, and utilize nearly everything that other farmers waste. Ordinarily out here people too often limit themselves to one crop, and buy bacon, butter, eggs and corn meal at the stores; but every Mormon farm has a dairy and a poultry yard. The Mormon women have not forgotten the use of the spinning wheel and loom. They work up the wool of the lambs into homespun for their husbands and sons, and their sheets and tablecloths are woven of flax that grew in their gardens. They knit the socks and the stockings and the mittens of the family, and they make their own clothes in the old fashioned way, which is not common in the twentieth century, but contributes substantially to reduce the household expenses and to increase the deposits in the savings banks.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Ingredients: Sulphur. Glycerin. Quinin. Sodium Chlorid. Capsicum. Sage. Alcohol. Water. Perfume.

Anything injurious here? Ask your doctor.
Anything of merit here? Ask your doctor.
Will it stop falling hair? Ask your doctor.
Will it destroy dandruff? Ask your doctor.

Does not Color the Hair

J. C. AYER COMPANY, Lowell, Mass.

JULY

0454

L 904

Controlled Newspapers.

The Atchison Globe says that no advertiser has ever tried to control its editorial policy, the remark being occasioned by the charge often made nowadays, that the big advertisers direct the editorial policy of newspapers.

The experience of the Globe is the experience of most newspapers. The merchant who does a great deal of advertising is more interested in the circulation department of a newspaper than in the editorial department. If a daily paper goes to the homes of the people, and is read by them, he is satisfied, and it may chase after any theory or fad, for all he cares. He has troubles of his own, and he isn't trying to shoulder those of the editorial brethren.

There are newspapers controlled by people outside of the editorial rooms, and a good many of them, more's the pity; but the people exercising that control are not the business men who pay their money for advertising space. The newspapers which are established for political purposes are often controlled by chronic officeseekers, whose first concern is their own interests. There are newspapers controlled by great corporations, and the voice of such newspapers is always raised in protest against any genuine reform.

The average western newspaper usually is controlled by its owner, and he is supposed to be in duty bound to make all sorts of sacrifices at all sorts of times; there are people who consider it his duty to insult his advertisers, just to show that he is free and independent. If he shows a decent respect for his patrons, who pay him their money, and make it possible for him to carry on the business, he is "subsidized" or "controlled." The newspaper owner is a business man, like the dry goods man or the grocer. The merchants are expected to have consideration for their customers, and they are not supposed to be subsidized by the man who spends five dollars with them, but the publisher is expected to demonstrate his courage by showing that he is ungrateful for the patronage of his friends. It is a funny combination when you think it over.—Emporia Gazette.

A BAD THING TO NEGLECT.

Don't neglect the kidneys when you notice lack of control over the secretions. Passages become too frequent or scanty; urine is discolored and sediment appears. No medicine for such troubles like Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly remove kidney disorders.

Mrs. A. E. Fulton, 311 Skidmore St., Portland, Ore., says: My limbs swelled terribly and I was bloated over the stomach and had puffy spots beneath the eyes. My kidneys were very unhealthy and the secretions much disordered. The dropsical swellings began to abate after I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and soon I was cured."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Miser of Sag Harbor.

"Economy," said Daniel W. Field, the millionaire shoe manufacturer of Boston, who at the age of forty-five has entered Harvard, "economy is essential to wealth, but by economy I don't mean niggardliness.

"Too many men fail to attain to wealth because they practise a cheeseparing and mean economy that gets everybody down on them.

"They practise, in fact, an economy like that of old William Brewster of Sag Harbor. William, you know, would never buy oysters because he couldn't eat shells and all."

A Protection Against the Heat.

When you begin to think it's a personal matter between you and the sun to see which is the hotter, buy yourself a glass or a bottle of Coca-Cola. It is cooling—relieves fatigue and quenches the thirst. Wholesome as the purest water and lots nicer to drink. At soda fountains and carbonated in bottles—5c everywhere. Send 2c stamp for booklet "The Truth About Coca-Cola" and the Coca-Cola Baseball Record Book for 1910. The latter contains the famous poem "Casey At The Bat," records, schedules for both leagues, and other valuable baseball information compiled by authorities. Address The Coca-Cola Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Locked Like a Pattern.

"My dear," asks the thoughtful husband, "did you notice a large sheet of paper with a lot of diagrams on it about my desk?"

"You mean that big piece with dots and curves and diagonals and things all over it?"

"Yes. It was my map of the path of Halley's comet. I wanted to—"

"My goodness! I thought it was that pattern I asked you to get, and the dressmaker is cutting out my new shirtwaist by it!"—Chicago Evening Post.

Notes and Comments.

Church—Does your neighbor play that cornet without notes?

Gotham—Yes; but not without comments.—Yonkers Statesman.

DON'T SPOIL YOUR CLOTHES.

Use Red Cross Ball Blue and keep them white as snow. All grocers, 5c a package.

There is always room at the top and in a Masonic lodge a man has to work up to it by degrees.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

Many people are busy mortgaging the future in order to acquire a past.

PROPOSE TO ASK HALT IN RATES

Representatives of State Railroads Hold Meeting.

TO MAKE AN INVESTIGATION

Petitions the Interstate Commerce Commission to Suspend the Operation of New Freight Rates Submitted by Railroads.

Indianapolis.—Representatives of the state railroad commissions of Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, at a joint meeting in this city, petitioned the interstate commerce commission to suspend the operation of new freight rates submitted by railroads in the Central Freight association territory pending thorough investigation of the cause.

The railroad commissions, the petition sets out, believe the rates, which have been submitted to go into effect August 1, are excessive. The text of the petition follows:

"The railroad commissions of Michigan, Indiana and Ohio desire respectfully to call the attention of your honorable body to the fact that the carriers composing what is known as the Central Freight association have published and filed tariffs applying on classes and commodities effective August 1, 1910, carrying rates which are an advance over existing rates of 15 to 25 per cent.

"Believing that these advances are excessive, are not justified by the conditions and that they will work a hardship on the shipping public and on consumers, we respectfully pray that your honorable body exercise its authority and postpone the taking effect of these tariffs until such time as a full investigation can be made, your petitioners can be accorded an opportunity to make full investigation and be heard, and the carriers have been required to show by sufficient evidence that the advances are justified."

The petition is signed by Commissioner Scully of Michigan, Commissioner Gothlin of Ohio and W. J. Wood, chairman of the Indiana commission.

The secretary of the Illinois warehouse commission, William Kirkpatrick, attended the conference, but said he did not have authority to sign the petition.

Health Board Will Work as a Unit.

It is assured the state board of health in legislative matters will work as a unit hereafter, according to a resolution passed at its quarterly meeting. In the past occasions have arisen on which members of the board differed as to the expediency of certain legislative matters, and to prevent this in the future the action was taken. The resolution provides that no member or employe of the board shall recommend, introduce or take part in any manner whatsoever in any legislation in the next general assembly without first having submitted the matter to the board for approval.

William Cook, Charles Knarzer, Samuel Davis, John R. Schilling and Henry L. Dorman, Jr., a committee representing the East Market Meat Dealers' association, appeared before the board, stating they came in protest against an order of the board requiring meat dealers at the market to keep their meat in refrigerators with glass doors. As the order of the board does not specify glass door refrigerators, but merely provides that meats shall not be exposed to dust or dirt, nothing was done in the matter, the board taking the theory that the meat dealers had misconstrued the order of the board.

An order of the board providing for "anti-spitting" signs in cars was changed in wording at the request of the Big Four railway officials. The new notice will be identical with those of Illinois, Michigan and Ohio, as it is more convenient for the railways to use one sign good in all four states than to attempt to provide differently worded notices.

In the matter of the condemnation of a schoolhouse at North Grove, District 5, Harrison township, Miami county, the time was extended until June 1, 1911, on a showing that the township expects to build a structure sufficient to accommodate three different schools which will be consolidated and this cannot be done in time for the opening of school in the fall.

Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the board, reported he had made 16 visits at the request of local health authorities during the quarter ending June 30. He reported also that there was less sickness and death in the state during the quarter than in the corresponding quarter of last year. Measles was the principal illness in point of number of cases. In some counties this amounted to an epidemic. Every county in the state reported cases of this disease.

Civil Service Examinations.

The civil service commission announced that the regular fall examinations for places in the executive department will be held in Indiana as follows: Indianapolis, September 14, 29 and 30, and October 12; Fort Wayne, September 14, 16 and October 12; Evansville, September 14, October 3, 12; Bloomington, September 14 and October 12; Lafayette, September 14 and October 12; New Albany, September 14, October 1 and 12; Valparaiso, September 14, 15 and October 12.

No Decision as to Prison-Made Goods.

The prison contract commission, named by Governor Marshall to investigate and report plans for such contracts to reduce to a minimum the competition between prison-made goods and goods made on the outside, adjourned its preliminary session without having arrived at any definite conclusion concerning what should be contained in the report to the governor. A meeting was arranged at Jeffersonville, when the commission will study contract conditions at the state reformatory, and later a similar meeting will be held at the state prison at Michigan City. Warden Reed of the state prison was made permanent chairman of the commission, and Harry Slough of the state labor commission, was elected secretary.

"The conference," said Mr. Slough, "left us all entirely at sea concerning what is the best thing to do under the circumstances governing competition in the state. None of us has at this time anything definite concerning a solution of the problem."

Governor Marshall stated, at the close of the conference, that he would recommend that the next general assembly enact a law requiring all state institutions to purchase goods manufactured in the state prison and state reformatory where these institutions could supply the wants. The advisability of such a law has been questioned by the board of state charities for a great many years, and institution men, almost without exception, oppose it. There exists now a general recommendation that all institutions purchase prison-made goods where possible, but often the prices in the outside market are better than those quoted by the state penal institutions, and the outside goods are purchased. The heads of the various state institutions, compelled to make their annual maintenance appropriations carry their institutions through, object to being bound by any law which will compel them to pay a higher price for prison-made goods than they would be compelled to pay for similar goods in the open market.

Warden Reed reported to the commission that the shirt-making department at the state prison had been closed, due largely to the fact that the prison-made goods could not meet outside competition. However, a strong pressure has been brought to bear on the prison board by outside shirtmakers to abolish the system. Another element which entered into the decision to discontinue was the fact that payment for shirtmakers outside the prison was so low that it was virtually useless to train the men in this class of work when in the institution.

The commission estimated that of all the prison-made goods sold in Indiana, less than two per cent. came from the state prisons.

Talks to State Bar.

"Crude Legislation" was the subject of a paper read at the meeting of the Bar Association of Indiana at the Country club by George H. Gifford of Tipton, who prefaced his remarks by saying that in fifty-seven years the statute law of Indiana has grown from one small volume until it has reached at the present time three large volumes, containing a total of 4,000 pages.

"In our legislative machinery," said he, "we have not kept pace with the age, and we are trying to have our legislators do the work with a legislative ox team instead of a legislative automobile or airship. What is the remedy? This is easy—a constitutional amendment. What shall be the terms of this amendment is a problem hard indeed. The main object to be obtained is perfect legislation, or as near perfect as may be practicable.

"One element necessary to this end is plenty of time, plenty of deliberation, an opportunity to bake well and thoroughly all enactments. Our populistic statesmen insist on the initiative and referendum as the panacea. This is objectionable for it is expensive, involves delay and is not in harmony with the spirit of our state government. The local option idea is objectionable, based on the fact that it is in effect a referendum and carried to its ultimatum will lead to distressing confusion. If it will apply to all, and we shall have local option on baseball, horse racing, pool selling, theaters, sale of tobacco and so on ad infinitum.

"If we were to venture a suggestion it would be that the legislative term be limited to 90 days; that during the first 60 days bills be carried only through their second reading. During this time no bill should be placed on final passage except bills for appropriations; that there be an adjournment for 30 days, and that upon adjournment a copy of all bills which stand for final passage be furnished to the governor. Upon the second convening there should be no original bills introduced, confining the work entirely to the bills pending. This would give the governor time to familiarize himself with the pending legislation and also to have his attorney general and other legal advisers pass upon legal questions.

Pensions for Indianians.

Pensions were granted to the following Indianians: Thomas C. Bruce, $20; George H. Burritt, $6; Samuel B. Castetter, $15; Rachel Castle, $12; Charles Cole, $12; Emily F. Fleener, $12; John W. Gould, $15; Angelina C. Griffis, $12; Elizabeth Hancock, $12; helpless child of William Hayes, $12; Will C. Higgins, $12; Harrison Hubbard, $50; Frank Keller, $10; Albert Lane, $12; Singleton Livengood, $12; Louisa Lynn, $13; Mary E. C. Price, $12; Maria A. Spears, $12; Winnie Washington, $12.

STATE MILITIAMEN MUST BE GOOD

Strict Orders Will Relieve Anxiety of Farmers.

NO OVERRUNNING OF FARMS

Proper Sanitary Conditions About the Camp Is First Thing on Which General Grant Placed Emphasis.

Indianapolis.—If the state militiamen of Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana, who go into camp for instruction and drill at Ft. Benjamin Harrison in September, have proper regard for instructions received from the United States war department concerning requirements as to discipline, the farmers and gardeners in the vicinity of the camp can go to bed at night assured that when they get up next morning their corn fields and watermelon patches will be intact. In a general order issued by Major General Grant, commanding the department of the lakes, for the instruction of militiamen and militia officers, a copy of which has been received by the governor, the general calls specific attention to sundry irregularities of past encampments, and urges all officers and men to see that when the encampment closes there do not exist grounds for criticism, as in the past.

Proper sanitary conditions about the camp is the first thing on which General Grant places emphasis. For the observance of all proper sanitary rules and regulations, the company commanders are to be held responsible. Attention is called to the fact that there should be no promiscuous firing of blank cartridges in and about the camp, day or night. A practise of men falling out of the drill lines and straggling over the neighboring country is not to be countenanced. Military courtesies are to be observed to the letter. There is to be no overrunning of farms and gardens. Laxity of service when on guard duty is condemned and the militiamen warned against it.

Furthermore, the "dude" shoe is to be tabooed. One entire paragraph of the general instructions is devoted to footgear. In the past, it has been found, the men went to camp with thin-soled, pointed shoes, which would do very well for an Easter parade, but were entirely unfit for military purposes. The men are urged to provide themselves with heavy-soled shoes at least one size larger than those usually worn. Above all, the men are cautioned to see to it that the toes are not pointed, but of sufficient width to discourage corns and cramped footsoles.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Valparaiso.—A bad wreck was caused on the Grand Trunk road at Griffith when the air hose was disconnected by a tramp. When the engineer tried to stop the train at a crossing the brakes failed to work, and the engine and 20 cars went off the rails, the engine turning upside down, wrecking cars and destroying their contents. The engineer and fireman were buried under the engine and both were seriously injured.

Greentown.—The burning of the Majestic theater here is believed to have been the work of an incendiary. The town has no fire protection, save a bucket brigade.

Goshen.—Arrangements were made to send Mrs. Jacob Gorsuch, wife of a wealthy Elkhart county farmer, to Longcliff asylum for the fourth time. She is sixty-three years old and the mother of several children.

Winona Lake.—Dr. J. N. Hurty of Indianapolis, secretary of the state board of health, gave a lecture here on "The Prevention and Cure of Tuberculosis."

Muncie.—Cutting an old oak tree that stands on a farm in Salem township, and which has been gradually maturing for the last century, hewing it into a casket, is the strange preparations made for the burial of Cary Fenwick, seventy-seven years old, one of the pioneer residents of Delaware county, who died at his home, one mile east of Daleville. In a manuscript left, which was not opened until after the aged man's death, the strange request was found. Fenwick had been a resident of Delaware county for 75 years. The strange request calls to mind the burial of the late King Edward of England, whose casket was hewn from a tree cut down from the groves surrounding Windsor castle.

Bloomington.—Enough dynamite to have wrecked the new home of Prosecutor Frank Regester was found on his front porch with the fuse burned to within five inches of the cap. Regester has been active in prosecuting law violators and some of the enemies thus made are believed to have attempted to destroy his home.

Huntington.—Health officers have taken steps to compel the city of Huntington to clean out Little river, which runs through the heart of the city. The city sewers empty into the river and the health officers declare it is dangerous.

Ft. Wayne.—A motor patrol wagon will be purchased within a short time for the local police department.

South Bend.—Five hundred members of the Maennerchor of northern Indiana and southern Michigan will meet in South Bend to observe the thirty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the local society.

Double the Wheat Yield of Your Land

Crop rotation and good tillage will not do it all. You need fertilizer—need Armour's. In order to secure a proper return on the investment in your land you MUST increase the yield per acre.

Armour's Fertilizers

for wheat have a record of always producing the heaviest yield. Use them this Fall—Grow more wheat—Make more money. Ask your dealer.

Armour Fertilizer Works, Chicago

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Many Women who are Splendid Cooks

dread having to prepare an elaborate dinner because they are not sufficiently strong to stand over an intensely hot coal range. This is especially true in summer. Every woman takes pride in the table she sets, but often it is done at tremendous cost to her own vitality through the weakening effect of cooking on a coal range in a hot kitchen.

It is no longer necessary to wear yourself out preparing a fine dinner. Even in the heat of summer you can cook a large dinner without being worn out.

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

Gives no outside heat, no smell, no smoke. It will cook the biggest dinner without heating the kitchen or the cook. It is immediately lighted and immediately extinguished. It can be changed from a slow to a quick fire by turning a handle. There's no drudgery connected with it, no coal to carry, no wood to chop. You don't have to wait fifteen or twenty minutes till its fire gets going. Apply a light and it's ready. By simply turning the wick up or down you get a slow or an intense heat on the bottom of the pot, pan, kettle or oven, and nowhere else. It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot, drop shelves for coffee, teapot or saucepan, and even a rack for towels. It saves time, worry, health and temper. It does all a woman needs and more than she expects. Made with 1, 2, and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner sizes can be had with or without Cabinet.

Every dealer everywhere; if not at yours, write for Descriptive Circular to the nearest agency of the

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

Real Reform.

Knicker—What is your idea of municipal government?

Bocker—First provide an auto and then create an office to fill it.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.
The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Household Consternation.

"Charley, dear!" exclaimed young Mrs. Torkins, "the baby has swallowed a gold dollar!"

"Great heavens! Something must be done. There will be no end to the cost of living if he gets habits like that!"

It is a Mistake

Many have the idea that anything will sell if advertised strong enough. This is a great mistake. True, a few sales might be made by advertising an absolutely worthless article but it is only the article that is bought again and again that pays. An example of the big success of a worthy article is the enormous sale that has grown up for Cascarets Candy Cathartic. This wonderful record is the result of great merit successfully made known through persistent advertising and the mouth-to-mouth recommendation given Cascarets by its friends and users.

Like all great successes, trade pirates prey on the unsuspecting public, by marketing fake tablets similar in appearance to Cascarets. Care should always be exercised in purchasing well advertised goods, especially an article that has a national sale like Cascarets. Do not allow a substitute to be palmed off on you.

Unflattering Truth.

A Chicago physician gleefully tells a child story at his own expense. The five children of some faithful patients had measles, and during their rather long stay in the improvised home hospital they never failed to greet his daily visit with pleased acclamation. The good doctor felt duly flattered, but rashly pressed the children, in the days of convalescense, for the reason of this sudden affection. At last the youngest and most indiscreet let slip the better truth.

"We felt so sick that we wanted awfully to do something naughty, but we were afraid to be bad for fear you and the nurse would give us more horrid medicine. So we were awfully glad to see you, always, 'cause you made us stick out our tongues. We stuck 'em out awful far!"

Artistic Temperament.

"Hamlet seemed to speak with authority in his advice to the players."

"Yes," replied Mr. Stormington Barnes, "although he was rather quiet and patient. But in his other scenes he was as nervous and irascible as a regular stage manager."

Every mind has its choice between truth and repose. Take which you please—you can never have both.—Emerson.

GOT PHOTOGRAPH OF PANTHER

Exciting Experience Which Few Members of the Party Care to Go Through Again.

A panther is not easily killed, and will often revive with very unpleasant results, as on a certain occasion in the Deccan. He appeared to be quite dead and one of the spectators rushed up with a camera on a stand to obtain a picture of the supreme moment. He got his photograph, and, strange to say, it survived what followed; but no sooner had he taken it than the panthere revived, tore himself loose, and went for the photographer. Somehow the man escaped, but the camera was sent flying, and, disconcerted by his encounter with it, the panther turned and made for the nearest tree, up which he went as quickly as a monkey. Now, the tree was crowded with interested spectators, and for three or four strenuous seconds (until the panther was shot) we enjoyed a spectacle of natives dropping to earth with loud thuds like ripe plums from a jungle tree as the panther approached them.—Wide World Magazine.

Tactful.

A woman with a pronounced squint went to a fashionable photographer.

He looked at her and she looked at him and both were embarrassed.

He spoke first.

"Won't you permit me," he said, "to take your portrait in profile? There is a certain shyness about one of your eyes which is as difficult in art as it is fascinating in nature."Beacon.

We are told that true love will conquer a great many obstacles, but poverty and the toothache are two exceptions.

Delightful Desserts

and many other pleasing dishes can be made with

Post Toasties

A crisp, wholesome food—always ready to serve.

With fruits or berries it is delicious.

"The Memory Lingers"

A little book—"Good Things Made with Toasties"—in packages, tells how.

Sold by Grocers—pkgs. 10c and 15c.

POSTUM CEREAL CO., LTD.
Battle Creek, Mich.

JULY

0455

L 904

MRS. FENTON

BY

W. E. NORRIS

CHAPTER XII.

Mr. Breffit took the documents handed to him and ran his eye over them. The lawyer read these letters quickly, mumbling out their contents half-aloud. The first was from the Governor of the colony, and read:

"'Very happy to be able to render this small service to Mrs. Fenton, whose acquaintance it was a pleasure to me to make soon after my arrival here. Although ignorant of her family history'—h'm, h'm—'that she is the widow of the late Mr. William Fenton, who died three years ago in this place—matter of fact—documentary proof easily obtained.' Ah, and this is from a bishop, I see. 'Admirable talent, irreproachable private life, industry, and courage above all praise.' Not much to the point, but kindly meant, no doubt. And here we have a judge. 'Should have no difficulty in proving her title to the estate. May mention that her relationship to the testator has been long known to my wife and daughters, though by her wish not generally spoken of'—h'm, h'm. Well, Mrs. Fenton, I think you were quite right to provide yourself with these letters."

"Will they do?"

"Eh? Oh, well, they are evidence. Not, of course, conclusive evidence; but I imagine that no one is very likely to dispute your claim. Let me see; you would hardly recollect your uncle, Sir James Le Breton, who is one of your father's executors. It was in India, I think, until after the time of your marriage."

"Yes, I fancy so. At all events, he never came to Oxford."

"But you will remember the other executor—the Master of All Saints."

"Of course I do—dear old man! And so he is still alive?"

"Yes, and I think it would be as well for you to see him."

"I should like it of all things. Might I run down to Oxford to-morrow, do you think? And would you write him a line to say that I am coming?"

Mr. Breffit replied that he would do so.

"And then there is my cousin. Oh, dear! I shan't like seeing him at all; it will make me feel so horribly ashamed of myself! Perhaps I might wait a few days before facing him."

"No doubt," interrupted Mr. Breffit, "it would be convenient to you to have a little ready money. If you will allow me to supply your wants until the necessary formalities have been gone through, I shall feel much honored."

"I have over a hundred pounds left," answered Mrs. Fenton, simply. "Thank you very much for your kindness, but I needn't trouble you yet. However, I confess that I was going to ask you whether I should have to wait long for my inheritance."

"Oh, we won't let you starve," answered the lawyer, laughing; "you may make your mind quite easy as to that."

So she thanked him once more, and, after giving him her address, took her leave.

When she had departed Mr. Briffit stretched out his legs, threw himself back in his chair, and said aloud:

"I know what I should do if I were Master Fred—I should marry that woman."

After all, it was not such an impossible solution of the difficulty, and, being a man of much natural kindness of heart, he rubbed his hands and chuckled over the idea for some minutes before he reverted to business.

Mrs. Fenton was a woman of quick emotions and varying moods. The distress and compunction which she had manifested at one period of that interview had been quite genuine; but this phase of feeling had soon passed away, and when she reached the hotel in Albemarle street, at which she was staying, she was in the highest of spirits.

The establishment in question, which had been recommended to her by no less a person than the Governor of New South Wales, was as good a one of its kind as could be found in London; and although that may not be very extravagant praise, it certainly implies an extravagant scale of charges. But one of the great advantages of possessing a fortune of £200,000 is that this enables one to rise superior to such considerations and to pay ten shillings for a small dish of strawberries without wincing. Mrs. Fenton had strawberries with her luncheon, and laughed delightedly at the thought that it really would not very much matter if they cost her a sovereign each. The sitting-room which she occupied could not be called luxurious; but she knew that the daily price of it would be rather more than double the weekly rental that she had been accustomed to pay in Sydney, and this knowledge invested its rather shabby furniture with a halo of glory in her eyes. Her joy in her newly acquired wealth was childish and undignified, no doubt; but it was also very natural, and by means of a slight effort one may manage to sympathize with it.

When she had finished her luncheon, she ordered a brougham and drove to several houses in fashionable quarters, where she left cards and letters of introduction with which she had been provided by some of her Sydney friends; for although she had been poor, she was possessed of gifts which had won popularity for her, and in every one of these letters stress was laid upon the circumstance that she had a perfectly exquisite voice. In an overgrown society like that of London it is well that new-comers should have some special claim or other upon notice; though, to be sure, an income of £8,000 a year or thereabouts might almost suffice to launch a deaf-mute. The remainder of the afternoon Mrs. Fenton devoted to shopping, an occupation which, for the time being, completely satisfied her soul. Her taste and her imagination were alike admirable, and never in all her life until now had it been possible for her to give a free rein to both. She did not hurry herself; she had a good look round and made a careful selection; also she gave orders which were received with the respect to which their magnitude entitled them. When at length she reached home, pleasantly tired, she did not feel the want of a companion, as many people would have done. Of late years her life had been necessarily lonely, and before her widowhood a great part of it had been spent with one whose companionship was by no means agreeable at all times; now she was quite contented to curl herself up in an armchair and to keep on murmuring luxuriously, "I am rich—I am rich—I am rich!"

CHAPTER XIII.

Nothing that appertains to this world can confer happiness upon any mortal for more than a limited time; but the mere consciousness of being rich was enough to make Mrs. Fenton perfectly happy throughout that afternoon and evening and to send her rejoicing to bed. For some reason or other, this mood did not survive the night. She brought a poor appetite down to her early breakfast the next morning, and it was with a rather depressed and weary air that she drove to the Paddington station and took her ticket for Oxford.

Not until the spire of St. Mary's and the dome of the Bodleian came into view did she rouse herself from her abstraction; and then there was only time to cast an eager, searching glance at the beautiful old city before the train stopped and she had to get out upon the platform. A porter called a hansom for her, and, to his intense astonishment, received half-a-crown for his trouble. Mrs. Fenton laughed at his open mouth and round eyes; it was so delicious to feel that half-a-crown was of no more consequence to her than a penny.

This trifling incident had the effect of raising her spirits, and she sighed no longer while she was being driven through the streets and past buildings of which the foundation-stone had not been laid in the days when Miss Musgrave had eloped with her music-master. Twelve years work many transformations even in Oxford; but for a much longer period than that there has been no perceptible alteration in the aspect of the venerable college of All Saints, where Mrs. Fenton was presently set down. While she was gazing at the grass and the trees and thinking how marvelously green they were, and how unlike anything in Australia, a tall, stooping old man entered, toward whom she advanced, holding out both her hands.

"Don't you know me?" she cried.

"Well, well!" said Dr. Drysdale, taking her hands; "and so this is my poor little Laura Musgrave! No, my dear, no, indeed; I don't think I should have known you. You are much changed—much changed!"

"You are not," she returned; "you aren't changed a bit. You don't look a year older."

"Ih, I am older," said the Master of All Saints, smiling; "but then I was an old man already when you went away, whereas you were a little girl. Now you are——"

"A woman who is a long way past her prime."

"I wasn't going to say that; I was going to say a very beautiful and fashionable-looking lady."

He had led her to the light and was still holding her hands, while he looked down kindly at her upturned face; but now she drew away from him, with an impatient jerk of her shoulders and a grimace.

"I hate to be spoken to in that way!" she exclaimed. "I have learned to dress myself properly; but of course I am not beautiful. And I am 30."

The old man broke into a low laugh. "Ah, Laura, Laura!" said he, "you are not so much changed as I thought you were, after all. You never liked flattery or believed that anybody who paid you compliments could be sincere. You used to shrug your shoulders and stamp at me just like that when I told you that you would some day have a voice which would astonish the world."

"Well," she returned, "I was right and you were wrong. My voice has been developed as far as it will go, and the world hasn't been in the least astonished. Still, such as it is, it has kept me alive. Ever since my husband died I have supported myself by giving lessons and sometimes singing at concerts. But for that, I daresay I should have starved."

Dr. Drysdale looked sorry and a little ashamed. "Why did you never write to your father, my dear?" he asked, presently.

"You know it would have been useless. He never forgave any one."

"I don't think we can be quite sure of that. At all events, he has given convincing proof that he forgave you."

Mrs. Fenton shook her head. "I thought so at first, but Mr. Breffit undeceived me. He named me as his heiress because there was nobody else to name except my cousin, and he happened to be displeased with my cousin at the time. When I heard about this cousin and how badly he had been treated, I felt as if I ought to give up all the money to him and disappear again."

"Oh, dear me!" exclaimed Dr. Drysdale, "that would be a very strong measure to take. You didn't say so, I hope."

"I believe I did say so, but that isn't the same thing as doing it. Tell me about this cousin of mine. Is he dreadfully disappointed?"

Dr. Drysdale smiled. "To the best of my belief Fred has expressed no disappointment," he answered; "I am not prepared to say that he hasn't felt any."

"Then you think that I shall not really be doing him an injury by taking the money from him?" she asked, eagerly.

"In the first place, my dear, you are not taking it from him, because it is not his and cannot be made his. He has an income upon which he can very well live, and it rests with him to increase it by his own exertions. He really is not very much to be pitied."

Mrs. Fenton said no more upon the subject. By Dr. Drysdale's request she lunched with him, and they had a long and pleasant chat over bygone days.

"I hardly know whether there are any old friends of yours here whom you would care to see," the Master said, when they had strolled out into the garden. "Death has been busy among us. My poor wife was taken from me, as I dare say you know, nine years ago, and many others have gone since. Still there are a few remaining." And he mentioned the names of some of them.

"Yes," said Mrs. Fenton, "I recollect them all, but they wouldn't recollect me. I was only a gawky schoolgirl in those days, and ladies never came to our house, you know."

"You were the only friend I had in Oxford," Mrs. Fenton went on. "Do you remember how I used to come and sing to you sometimes, and how fond you were of 'Il Segreto per esser felice'? I sing it still, only not in the old way."

They were opposite the open windows of the disused drawing-room. She stepped in abruptly, threw open the piano, seated herself before it and, in a singularly sweet mezzo-soprano voice, gave a brilliant rendering of the operatic air which she had mentioned, while Dr. Drysdale, who had followed her, kept time with head and hands.

"No, indeed!" said he, when she had finished; "that is not the old way. You have marvelously improved, my dear, and yet——"

"And yet you like the old way best? Well, then, here it is for you."

And now she repeated her performance in a very different style, altering the pitch of her voice a little, affecting a difficulty with the high notes, and stumbling from time to time over the accompaniment.

The old man laughed. "You take me back," he said, "you take me back. I could have fancied myself a dozen years younger. Well, I'm glad you haven't forgotten old times, Laura, though I hope the new times will be happier for you than the old."

He thought it his duty to give her a little lecture on the deceitfulness of riches and the responsibilities which belong to those who possess them. He was a very simple, kind-hearted, and honest old man, and what he said was so true that nobody could resent it. Mrs. Fenton shaded her face with her hand while he was talking, and when she looked up there were tears in her eyes.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, "I wish I were a good woman! I should like to be—I suppose everybody would. But it seems so easy for some people to be good and so difficult for others!"

She cried a little as she said goodby to the worthy Master of All Saints, who made her promise to come and see him again, and she shed a few tears on her way down to the station; but when she entered the railway-carriage she shook her shoulders and set her lips firmly. "All this is sentimental nonsense," she said aloud, "and I can't afford to be sentimental. I must keep what I have got. After all, it is a thousand times more valuable to me than it would be to him. Besides, I shouldn't wonder if it was true that young men are none the better off for being rich."

(To be continued.)

KANSAS CITY'S WAY.

Example in Pluck and Spirit Other Cities May Well Emulate.

In thirty days Kansas City completed the subscriptions for a fund of more than $1,000,000 to place and maintain a line of freight boats on the Missouri river between that city and St. Louis, says the Nashville Tennessean. Such a line means water competition on all freight rates between Kansas City and all seaports. The Mississippi will be opened up for Kansas City business by the new line and the great packing center will be insured a permanent advantage in rates over cities less fortunately situated.

The Missouri river is a treacherous stream. Its navigation is difficult, but shipbuilders are confident they can provide boats of shallow draft which will be able to ply between Kansas City and St. Louis practically the entire year. Such a line will insure the commercial supremacy of Kansas City over neighboring packing centers, and the business men of the Missouri city were not slow in availing themselves of this advantage.

Every city with a navigable river should profit by the pluck and spirit shown by Kansas City. When great commercial interests combine they are capable of working to their mutual benefit.

In Europe barges abound on every stream which has a permanent channel affording more than two feet of water. The United States must come to a realization of the value of its waterways. Boats must be built for the heavy freight which can well be carried by the slower means of transporation. This country is outgrowing its railways. It requires added freight lines and rivers stand ready for the reception of barges capable of carrying an unlimited amount of freight.

Wise Man.

"You made a great hit with the birthday presents you gave your aunts."

"Yes, I think I sized up their wants pretty accurately."

"What did you give the beautiful one?"

"A silver-mounted mirror."

"That was a good hunch, and what did you give the ugly one?"

"A silver-mounted mirror."—Houston Post.

Money is not needful; power is not needful; cleverness is not needful; fame is not needful; liberty is not needful; even health is not the one thing needful; but character alone.—John Stuart Blackie.

YOUNT UNIFORMITY BILL IS HIT BY EDUCATORS

Ohio Teachers' Association Adopts Strong Resolution Against State Uniformity of School Books.

Cedar Point, O., —— .—Educators of Ohio to the number of 2,000 attended the annual meeting of the Ohio State Teachers' Association here. The session was marked by two important incidents—the teachers refused to listen to an address on equal suffrage and they took unanimous action against state uniformity of school books.

During the last session of the legislature the Yount uniformity bill was passed by the senate and was lost in the house. The educators of Ohio do not want uniformity considered again and they voice their protest in the following strong resolution:

"We believe that the educational value of school processes and practices should be paramount to every other consideration. We are therefore opposed to all efforts which would aim to establish a system of State Uniformity in the selection of text-books, because we believe that such a system would be a hindrance to the present progress of our schools."

He Rose to It.

"Do you know," said a little boy of father and I know everything. What I don't know my father knows, and what my father don't know I know."

"All right! Let's see, then," replied the older child, skeptically. "Where's Asia?"

It was a stiff one, but the youngster never faltered.

"Well, that," he answered coolly, "is one of the things my father knows."—Harper's Bazaar.

A BURNING ERUPTION FROM HEAD TO FEET

"Four years ago I suffered severely with a terrible eczema, being a mass of sores from head to feet and for six weeks confined to my bed. During that time I suffered continual torture from itching and burning. After being given up by my doctor I was advised to try Cuticura Remedies. After the first bath with Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment I enjoyed the first good sleep during my entire illness. I also used Cuticura Resolvent and the treatment was continued for about three weeks. At the end of that time I was able to be about the house, entirely cured, and have felt no ill effects since. I would advise any person suffering from any form of skin trouble to try the Cuticura Remedies, as I know what they did for me. Mrs. Edward Nenning, 1112 Salina St., Watertown, N. Y., Apr. 11, 1909.

He Had Been Observing.

"Why don't you call your invention the 'Bachelor's Button?'" I asked my friend, who was about to put on the market a button that a man could attach without needle or thread.

"I fear that the appellation would imply too much restrictiveness," he answered. "You see," he went on, giving me one of his knowing smiles, "I expect to do just as much business with the married men as with the bachelors."

Those Awful Roaches.

They sneak out on the kitchen sink and look at you saucily sometimes. Don't fret your life away dusting powders in the crevices and buying insecticides. Make a hot suds with Easy Task soap and go after that sink. Mr. Roach and his family thrive where things are not clean, and it is hard to clean the cracks and crevices with ordinary yellow soaps—it is impossible! Easy Task soap makes roaches hunt other quarters. It keeps moths out of woolens, too, if you use it in your laundry.

An Exception.

Caller—Is Mrs. Brown at home?

Artless Parlor Maid (smiling confidentially)—No, ma'am—she really is out this afternoon.

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.

Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

Whether the church shall stay in the world depends not on whether the world will support it but on whether it will serve the world and save it.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPERS.

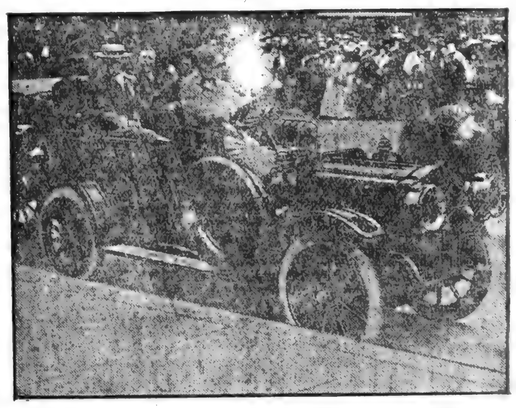
Use the best. That's why they buy Red Cross Ball Blue. At leading grocers 5 cents.

Theatrical expense accounts come under the head of play bills.

ROOSEVELT RETURNS AND IS GIVEN AN OVATION SELDOM EQUALED

The Mighty Traveler Goes Buoyantly Through a Long and Trying Reception-Parade, Showing Lively Interest in Everything American

The White Company Receives Unique Compliment for the Sturdy Reliability of Its Steam Car From Mr. Roosevelt and Family



Theodore Roosevelt and Party in White Steamer.)

After fifteen months' absence, exactly as scheduled, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt disembarked from the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, Saturday morning, June 18, at 11 a. m. To the keen disappointment of a large group of newspaper correspondents, Mr. Roosevelt absolutely refused, as heretofore, to be interviewed or to talk on political subjects, but his rapid fire of questions showed the same virile interest in public affairs as before.

If the welcome tendered by the vast throng may be considered a criterion upon which to base a "return from Elba," surely there was no discordant note in the immense reception-parade, nor in the wildly clamorous crowd which cheered at every glimpse and hung on his very word.

The incidents of the day in New York were many, but perhaps none better illustrated the nervous energy and vitality of the man, the near-mania to be up-and-doing, which he has brought back to us, than the discarding of horses and carriages for the swifter and more reliable automobiles. The moment the Roosevelt family and immediate party landed, they were whisked away in White Steamers to the home of Mrs. Douglas Robinson at 433 Fifth avenue. A little later, when the procession reached the corner of Fifty-ninth street and Fifth avenue, Colonel Roosevelt again showed his preference for the motor car in general and the White cars in particular, when he, Cornelius Vanderbilt and Collector Loeb transferred from their carriage to White Steamers, which were in waiting for them.

After luncheon at Mr. Robinson's house, the entire party, including Colonel Roosevelt, again entered White cars and were driven to Long Island City, where they were to take a special train to the ex-President's home at Oyster Bay.

The supremacy of the White cars with the Roosevelt party was again demonstrated on Sunday, when the party was driven to church in the White Steamers, and a group of some forty prominent Rough Riders were taken in a White Gasoline Truck to a clambake at the Travers island clubhouse of the New York Athletic Club.

Hereditary Power.

Hoax—Poor old Henpeck has mind the baby.

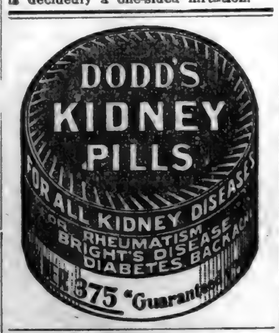
Joax—Yes, it's wonderful how that baby takes after its mother.

For Red, Itching Eyelids, Cysts, Styes Falling Eyelashes and All Eyes That Need Care Try Murine Eye Salve. Aseptic Tubes—Trial Size—25c. Ask Your Druggist or Write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

A widow may have words of praise for her late husband. But a sleepy wife, never!

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

To greet misfortune with a smile is decidedly a one-sided flirtation.



STOCKERS & FEEDERS

Choice quality; reds and roans, white faces or Angus bought on orders. Tens of Thousands to select from. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Correspondence Invited. Come and see for yourself.

National Live Stock Com. Co.

At either

Kansas City, Mo., St. Joseph, Mo., S. Omaha, Neb.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 28-1910.

Your Liver is Clogged up

That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts—Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days. They do their duty. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, and Sick Headache.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE

GENUINE must bear signature:

Brent Good

WANTED An agent in every city and town to sell the only good $15 Vacuum Cleaner on the market. Surperior to many of the $25.00 machines. Liberal discounts. Write today for particulars.

THE JUNIOR COMPANY Bradford, Pa.

Up-Set Sick Feeling

that follows taking a dose of castor oil, salts or calomel, is about the worst you can endure—Ugh—it gives one the creeps. You don't have to have it—CASCARETS move the bowels—tone up the liver—without these bad feelings. Try them. 916

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere, attracts & kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts All Season. Made of metal, cannot spill or tip over, will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Of all dealers or sent prepaid for 30c.

HAROLD SOMERS
150 DeKalb Ave.
Brooklyn, New York

PATENTS Warren E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

MUSIC ARRANGED FOR PIANO and Orchestra. Melodies written to song poems. W. NELSON, 130 West 56th St., New York

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale people look good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach.

A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—the great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

JULY

0456

L 904

Young Boys Steal Booze.

Saturday night about 8:00 o'clock as B. & O. Agent Monroe was on his way to the station, accompanied by C. O. Benjamin, they heard a noise near the depot that made them believe someone was into the beer cases that had just arrived on local from the east at about 7:00 o'clock. In a short time they saw a white shirt appear and they immediately took after them.

It was found that two small boys in knee pants were the robbers, and were run east into the gravel pit. When they came to the creek they did not hesitate to find a log to cross on but made their steps more lively. The men stopped there. They returned to the depot and took a lantern and went back over the ground and Mr. Monroe stated that 12 bottles of the beer was found and the boys were left to enjoy the remaining 8 bottles. In the skirmish to escape being captured one of the boys left his coat and hat lay on the platform but Monroe did not think of it being one of the boys and said nothing. Within a half hour the owner made his way back and seized it and then run. They gained an entrance to the depot by taking out a window glass in the office department and from there they could get into the freight room. The window was tacked in and consequently it was an easy matter to gain an entrance without making noise to call attention of anyone. Mr. Monroe thinks he can lay his hands on the parties as he was rather close on them He stated also that he had filed the report with the Chief of Police of the road and no doubt the company will have a tracer here in a few days and the boys will dance a merry tune, It was no doubt a great disappointment to the owner of the beer, when he came after it, to learn that "Young America" had took possession of the greater amount of his shipment. Such work has often been done in St. Joe and the youngsters have been taken to Auburn, but as others were implicated in the deal the matter was dropped but now is the time to give them what is due them. Just one good example is what such boys here need and if their parents can't do anything someone else had better. Later in the evening one of the youngsters was seen on the street with mud on his pants, which was almost a sure sign that he was one of them.

IF YOU
Want a cook,
Want a clerk,
Want a partner,
Want a situation,
Want a servant girl,
Want to sell a piano,
Want to sell a carriage,
Want to sell town property,
Want to sell your groceries,
Want to sell your dry goods,
Want to sell your hardware,
Want to sell your millinery goods,
Want customers for any thing,
Advertise weekly through this paper.
Advertising is the highway to success
Advertising brings new customers,
Advertising keeps the old ones,
Advertising will insure success,
Advertising shows energy,
Advertising shows pluck,
Advertising is "biz"
Advertise or bust,
Advertise long,
Advertise well,
ADVERTISE
At once.

Murder at Grabill

The bruised and blackened body of little Charlie Coats was buried Saturday afternoon in the Cedar Creek township cemetery, hiding forever the physical evidences of the most atrocious murder that ever shocked Allen county. Moses E. Richer, an Amish farmer, his weazened little body and pinched, sharp features telling in their every line the truth about the miserly little character, is a prisoner in the Allen county jail, awaiting an investigation by the grand jury on a charge of having brutally beaten the little orphan until his flesh quivered like jelly and then of having bitten huge chunks from his arms and legs and finally of having kicked and cuffed the very life out of the child's frail little body.

The lad, according to Coroner A. J. Kesler, and Dr. McEvoy, who conducted the post-mortem examination Friday afternoon, died as a direct result of bloody clots on the brain, superinduced by two contusions on the base of the skull. Although Prosecutor A. E. Thomas states that he has a signed confession from Richer that he inflicted the wounds on the boy's body, the man, it is understood, refuses to confess that he actually killed the little chap but the wife gives evidence that he did. The complete story is a sad one and the man is now in jail awaiting trial. He does not worry in the least and has not made any effort to employ an attorney or get bond.

LITTLE ABOUT EVERYTHING.

Belgium officially frowns on cremation.

Pennsylvania leads in cement production.

The hop consumption of England is decreasing.

Cash registers are used in a church in Massachusetts.

The spectroscope has revealed the presence of water on Mars.

Glass bricks inserted in the wall now take the place of windows.

Tunis is suffering from an invasion of locusts on an unprecedented scale.

On the farms of England last year there were 1,494,089 horses employed.

The teeth of German school children are looked after by the government.

According to Chinese law, a wife who is too talkative may be divorced.

In England a dog used to guide a blind person is exempt from taxation.

At last count there were 1,318,000 persons in India dependent on state aid.

The Australian government will erect five wireless stations along its coast.

One physician out of every twenty-one in the United States lives in New York City.

Traveling cooking schools are being sent out all over the German empire by the government.

A new scale not only weighs but also counts the articles being weighed, provided they are all alike.

Germany utilizes 20 per cent of her water power; Switzerland, 25 per cent; France only 11 per cent.

Some New England bread is still made from yeast brought over in the Mayflower.—Scientific American.

The longest telegraph circuit is that between London and Teheran, the capital of Persia. It is 4,000 miles long.

Morning milk is best for babies—fresher and fewer germs than the previous night's milk, but slightly weaker in cream.

The American red gum is entering largely into the manufacture of furniture. Early objections to its use have been overcome.

Platform tickets are used by some German railroads for the use of non-travelers who wish to say "Good-bye" to departing friends.

John Connors, a farmer near Beulah, Kan., makes a nice little stake every year selling corn husks, which are used to wrap hot tamales.

Church bell-ringing in London has become such a nuisance in some quarters of the city that the bells are muffled on week days.

Under a new law in Alabama, that took effect July 1, no man may carry and no man may sell a pistol less than two feet in length.

After working for Heathcoat & Co., lace manufacturers, of Tiverton, England, for seventy-one years, William Hurtable has just retired.

Of the forty-four English county chief constables, only three have risen from the ranks, thirty-three being ex-army officers and one an ex-navy officer.

It has been stated on British authority that American immigrants into Canada are taking $50,000,000 worth of property into that country each year.

Time is apparently of more importance in New York than in any other city, for the city displays more public clocks than London and Paris combined.

The mole of the Western Pacific Railroad, at Oakland, Cal., is nearly completed. It is 3,000 feet long, and is ultimately to be a solid fill 1,200 feet wide.

The Mexican government has contracted with the Krupps to build a plant for the manufacture of bullets, smokeless powder and guncotton, near Vera Cruz.

Obituary.

Mrs. Nannie C. Kosht, daughter of Isaac and Lucinda Hornberger, was born in Stark county, Ohio, 1849. She moved with her parents to Williams county, Ohio, and thence to DeKalb county, Indiana, where she grew to womanhood.

She was one of DeKalb county's school teachers which calling she followed until her marriage in 1882. The community sadly suffers the loss of this most estimable lady. The anguish can only be appeased by the consciousness that her life has been one of ideality, during the long suffering she has been uncomplaining and withstood the ravages without a murmur.

She was converted and joined the U. B. church over 35 years ago, and lived a consistent life all these years. Those who are left to mourn her loss are five sisters, Mrs. Amelia Mann, Mrs. Geo. Swineford, Mrs. James Sherwood, Mrs. Charles Towsley, Minnie Hornberger, and a brother, J. P. Hornberger, five nieces and one nephew, besides a host of friends.

Funeral Wednesday, July 13, at 1 p. m. at the home of her sister, Mrs. James Sherwood, where she died, Rev. N. Leas Stambaugh, pastor of the M. E. church at Waterloo officiating. Interment at Newville cemetery.

Band Concert.

Saturday Night. at St. Joe.

The Man Wanted.

Capt. L. L. Denison, candidate for Representative makes the following statement through the Waterloo Press and no explanation is necessary as the language used is very plain:—

In accepting the nomination for Representative I made the statement that if elected I wanted to represent the sentiment of the people of DeKalb county.
This I thought was sufficient to express my position on all questions in which the people of this county are interested.
As it has been brought to my notice that some question has arisen as to the application of my statement to the county Local Option Law, I desire to state that under no consideration could I vote for the repeal of that law
Yours truly,
L. L. DENISON.

MUCH IN LITTLE.

The piano was invented early in the eighteenth century.

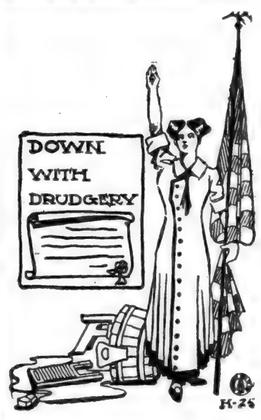
There are more than 30,000 vessels in the world of 100 tons or more.

For the Congo a smelting plant to treat 1,000 tons of copper ore daily has been ordered from the United States.

Large quantities of tortoise come from Sikkim and Tibet, that from the latter country being harder and of darker blue, which gives it greater value.

Europeans have discovered that American syrup barrels, once used, are better than new ones. They are used especially for the pickling of meat, and if of hard wood, even in the United States, bring better prices than new ones.

The 30,000,000 people of the Turkish empire are still practically without motor cars. The government is now about to spend several million dollars on good roads and between Damascus and Bagdad a motor car service is likely to be established soon.



A DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

Every woman owes it to herself and family to stay young. She can do this only by not overworking. We have a number of labor saving devices that every woman ought to know about and prices so reasonable that she can't afford not to purchase Asbestos Sad Irons. Sanitary Tin Churns, easily washed. Different kinds of labor saving washing machines. Sanitary Granite Cooking Utensils, Gasoline and oil stoves of all patterns.

J. W. BURWELL & SON,

Phone No. 11. St. Joe, Indiana.

WABASH CORNERS.

Mrs. J. B. White of St. Joe and the correspondent, were the guests of Mrs. Mollie White Wednesday.

Mrs. Angelia Wolff was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ella Gill in St. Joe on Tuesday of last week.

Beatrice and Aubrey Wilson, spent Thursday afternoon with Joe and Catherine Shull.

Mrs. Angelia Wolff was the guest of Milton Wolff and family of Edon, O., from Saturday until Monday.

Dennis Burley threshed his wheat Friday.

Roy White and son Ora and Clarence and Walter White, called on Sherman Wolff Sunday.

Mrs. Grady Woodcox and little daughter of St. Joe spent Friday with the family of Dennis Burley.

CONCORD

Sam Morr, wife and son, Dell Draggoo, wife and daughter Helen, visited Sunday with E. W. Johnson and wife.

Mrs. John Brown and Mrs. Milton Carper visited with their mother, Mrs. Draggoo, Tuesday.

Mrs. Harry Mann of Pebbles, Ohio, visited with his sister, Mrs. Curtis Hursey, from Friday until Sunday. Jay Hart and wife of Coburntown, also spent Sunday with them.

Henry Baker, wife and son Walter, visited with Nelson Tustisons', Sunday.

Grant Kellar, wife and two children George and Jessie, were guests with Mrs. Draggoo and family, Sunday.

Lewis Layman went to James Ricketts', Monday, to build a new kitchen for them.

O. G. Baker and wife also Ollie Carper and wife are the proud parents of a new baby boy. It is hard to say which father is the proudest.

George Johnson, wife and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Johnson's sister, Mrs. Sam Vanzile near Union Chapel.

CHEAP EXCURSION TO NIAGARA FALLS

Thursday, August 4th

AT LESS THAN ONE-QUARTER OF THE REGULAR RATE

Limit, four days, including date of sale, with extension of limit to August 15th upon depositing ticket with Joint Agent, No. 335 Main Street, Niagara Falls, N. Y., on or before August 7th, and payment of 25 cents.

Side trips may be made to Toronto, Alexandria Bay, Montreal, Quebec and many other points.

FOR PARTICULARS, APPLY TO NEAREST WABASH TICKET AGENT.

J. D. McNAMARA, GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT. ST. LOUIS, MO.

Coburn's Corners

There were 92 present at Sunday School Sunday and a collection of $2 28.

There was a nice crowd at the S. S. Convention, Sunday afternoon and each one responded to their work assigned them and it was an interesting convention. The president, Mr. Glovd is surely doing all in his power to make these conventions a success. I wish every S S. worker might be as interested as he is.

Lloyd Engle of Ft. Wayne, spent Sunday evening with Cadmus Shull's.

Alva Coburn, wife and son Mark, of Hicksville, visited with O. J. Bakers,, Sunday.

Blanche Hadsell of Peru, visited Sunday with relatives at this place and Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Showalter of Butler, visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Kimes.

John Driver and family of Hall's Corners, and I. S. Hadsells' of Peru, were Sunday guests of Saxe Hadsell and family.

Cyrus Hadsell and family of Los Angeles, California, and Bert Hadsell and family of Wayne, took dinner yesterday with Saxe Hadsells'.

Effie Schoolmaster and two children Henry and Lotus, of Fremont, Mich., is here for a few weeks stay with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hart.

The ladies of the neighborhood met one day last week, and gave the church a renevating and put down new carpet.

Mr and Mrs. Winans of Paulding County, visited Sunday with Reuben Deitrick and wife. Mrs. Winans is a sister of Mrs. Deitrick.

Sherman Hart and family called on her parents Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shull.

Eugene Albright, a brother of Mrs. Nicholas Funk, that has served four years in the U. S. Navy, is visiting them, he came from the Western coast the past week.

Vernard Kaveney of Cleveland, Ohio, a nephew of Mrs. Vernon Wilmot, is staying with them for a few weeks.

Fairview Neighborhood

Arton Coyle started yesterday for Syracuse on his motor cycle to visit a few days.

Rev. Coomer and Mr. W. D. Johnston went to the lake Monday on a fishing trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Koch of St. Joe, for many years residents of this neighborhood, visited with their son and daughter here, Sunday.

The social at Saylor's school house was largely attended, and was financially a success. Many St. Joe people were in attendance. The social given by the Fairview folks at St. Joe was also satisfactorily attended.

Dan Wyatt while unloading hay on the Sherer farm, suffered a painful injury in his hand and leg, by a pulley breaking letting the fork drop, puncturing his hand and limb. The curious thing about it is, that the fork had delivered its load and was returning empty when it gave way.

The long continued drought was broken here Friday evening by a copious rain, especially in the western part. A half mile west of the church the storm assumed almost cyclonic violence, logging the oats badly, and blowing down wheat shocks.

Last Saturday was the largest day's work I have done since I have been in the barber business. Come on good people and you will see a cement walk and a painted front before snow flies.

GEO. MILLIMAN.

Mr. Frank Johnson while hunting squirrels in the Sam Morr woods, last Saturday, got the drop upon a very large owl and immediately thereafter it was a dead one. He gave its mate a persistent chase but it escaped.

Mr. W. D. Johnston has a bunch of pigs which I do not believe can be beaten in the county. They are eight in number, were born March 4 and will average 150 lbs. When 90 days old three of them were weighed which averaged 103 lbs; and at 101 days old an average pig weighed 127 lbs. They have not been weaned and on account of their size only four can succle at a time.

The Story Your Mirror Tells

NO VISIBLE LINE

You read and look afar with equal facility, but no one observes that you are wearing bifocals because the usual lines are absent. Wear the genuine Kryptok's awhile and you will never willingly return to old style bifocle glasses.

The Hartzog Method

of examination and adjustment insures correct comfortable glasses, backed by our Guarantee to give satisfaction. No charge for examination.

DR. J. W. HARTZOG
The Eyesight Specialist.

WILL BE IN ST. JOE, IND. AT DR. H. W. BOWMAN'S OFFICE MONDAY, JULY 25.
Remember Date Call Early
HOME OFFICE
1213 Wells, Cor. Wells and High
Ft. Wayne, Ind.

JULY

L 904

0457

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1910. NO. 3

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.
Department Store.
Hicksville, O Phone 24

New Shoes For fall.

Buying our shoes from manufacturers only we get them earlier than otherwise and therefore are able to show you at this time what will be wore during the fall season this year. Two of our store force give this part of the business their entire attention, studying the wants of the public and getting the shoes adapted to comfortable as well as serviceable wear. This applies to Mens—Womens and Childrens shoes. Selz—Douglas and "Menz Ease" shoes for Men and Boys are sold with an ironclad guarantee for service, a guarantee we are ready to make good should any shoe happen to go wrong. We want your shoe business and at the same time we want you to get the worth in wear in every pair you get from this store. If you buy your shoes here we will see that you get it too. Isn't that fair. Bring the whole family we can fit any foot from Baby Ones to Mens No. 12.

Special Sale Tan Shoes and Mens Oxfords.

This week we are closing out our entire stock of fine Tans and Mens' Oxfords at a rediculous low price. Tans are excellent wearers and we want to make room on our shelves for the new fall shoes. This is a chance to get reliable footwear at a very low price.

Farmer Well Off.

Never in the history of this country has the farmer enjoyed such unparalled prosperity as has fallen to his lot during the past few years and especially within the past four years. Everything that he had to sell has brought a good price while some things has brought very fancy prices, such as pork, eggs and chickens. The farmer who was at all industrious has been making money. His crops may be no better than in the years past but the price he receives gives him ready money that he did not know in former years. Very few things that he buys has increased in price, so that the gain in prices received is almost a complete gain. The time will soon be here when he will go to the polls to cast his vote and the question is, how will he cast it? It must be conceded that the present administration has been responsible in part at least for this. The laws have made prosperity for the farmer possible. There is an old adage that "when you have a good thing stay by it". This will apply here very forcible and ought to secure the vote of every farmer for the republican ticket. P. C.

Seasonable Suggestions.

Lemon and Vanilla Extract, Pure.
Crystal Flake for making Ice Cream.
Jelly Glasses 24c per dozen.
Asiatic Cholera Cure best made.
Purple Top Turnip Seed in Bulk.
Plenty Good Fishing Tackle.
Hammocks ⅓ off Regular Price.
After Dinner Mints a Superb Confection.
After Dinner Salted Peanuts Clean and Good.
Tanglefoot and Poison Fly Paper.
Post Cards that are Up-to-date.

Our increasing drug trade is proof that it always pays to run a business with a Character Tone to it. You will always do better at Dunkle's Drug Store.

Local Items.

Earl Smith made a flying trip to this place, Thursday, and took dinner with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith.

Mrs. G. M. Barney and daughter Pauline, spent Thursday and Friday in Hicksville, the guests of Mrs. Barney's mother, Mrs. Turrittin.

Mr. H. L. Dunkle was at Ft. Wayne Sunday, he was accompanied home by Mrs. Dunkle, who has been visiting relatives at that place for a couple of weeks.

Mrs. Bell Miser and little daughter, Chelma, of Auburn, spent a couple of days last week, in the home of Marshall Andress and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Andress of K allville, spent last Saturday and S day with Marshall Andress and f ily.

M. P. CHURCH ANNOUCEMENTS

Thursday at 7:30 P. M., Prayer and Teachers' meeting. Saturday at 2:30 p. m. Quarterly Conference. Sunday morning at 9:00, Sunday school and at 10:15 preaching and communion services. Rev. E. P. Engle of Maysville, will conduct the services, and all have a cordial invitation to these services.
Rev. Coomer, Pastor.

Last of the Mohicans.

Old Danny Deerskin, said to be t last descendant of the famous Indi chief Mohican, who once ruled th trfbe that inhabited South Jersey, dead at Vineland, N. J. Danny claim to be about 100 years old. When Vi land started 45 years ago he w found by the pioneers, living on a lon ly island in a swamp. The last of t Mohicans made his living in prop Indian fashion by hunting and fishi

ST. JOE.

Send in your news.

Band Concert Saturday evening.

The more you fret and fuss, the hotter seems the weather.

Mrs. S. Price of Evanston, Ill., is the guest of relatives at this place this week.

The best line of one-cent Post Cards in town can be seen at Kagey's.

Mr. Warner and wife and Mr. Meese and wife of Hicksville, were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Warner Sunday.

The famous leaning tower of Pisa is sinking. This proves after all, even ages of bluff cannot equal the lasting advantages of an upright life.

Read THE NEWS.

Thrashing coal. W. E. Baxter.

Mr. Perry Long and children of Auburn, spent Sunday with J. C. Hull and wife.

Chas. Hull and wife of Spencerville, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Shuff.

Charlie Kinsey and family of Auburn, spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. H. V. Kinsey and family.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Benninghoff and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Patterson were at Auburn, last Thursday evening.

FOR SALE:—4,500 wreckage brick, all in good shape for laying. S. S. Widney, St. Joe.

John Betz and wife took Sunday dinner with the former's brother, Joel Betz and wife at Spencerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler and daughter Agnes, spent Sunday in Ft. Wayne with Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Bowen and family.

Everett Walker and wife of Hicksville, called on Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith and Mrs. Martha Walker, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. High Reasoner returned last Wednesday evening from Zion City, where they had been visiting friends for about a week.

The hot weather that shrivels the spring wheat fields makes the corn grow. And corn is the main thing. And this is a great country.

Thrashing, Heating and Cooking Coal. Plenty for all and more coming. Prices as low as anyone. W. E. Baxter.

Jesse Copp and lady friend, Miss Bertha Sturm, of New Haven, were Sunday guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Copp.

LOST:-Somewhere between Kagey's store and Dr. Sheffer's office, a pair of nose glasses. Finder please hand to Dr. Sheffer and receive reward.

Mr. and Mrs. James Turrittin of Kasota, Minn., Mrs. Mapes of Bryon, and Mrs. Turrittin of Hicksville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Barney, the latter part of last week.

John Gill and wife, Adam Shilling, wife and son Howard, and Mrs. Webster and son were royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Brown at the home of Theodore Kline, Sunday. Ice cream and cake was served to which all did simple justice.

L. L. C.

On last Wednesday evening the Ladies Literary Club held its Annual Mid-summer meeting at the home of Mrs. Delora Curie. The ladies assembled on the comfortable and beautifully decorated veranda at seven o'clock, where the program for 1910 to '11, was read. After business, the committee in charge, Mrs. May Mrs. Kagey and Mrs. E. Patterson, served Marshmallow Dainties with Creme Wafels. The first meeting in the Club year will be held September 7, at the home of Mrs. Benninghoff.

Obituary.

James Sechler, son of Levi and Mary B. Sechler, was born in Lehigh county, Pennsylvania, August 21, 1845, and departed this life July 11, 1910, aged 64 years, 10 months and 20 days.

On the 26th day of August, 1874, he was united in marriage to Harriet Gee. To this union were born eight children, four sons and four daughters, six of whom are living. He leaves to mourn their loss a wife, six children and ten grandchildren, four brothers, three sisters and many friends and relatives.

He was a kind and loving husband and father, a good and kind neighbor ever ready to lend a helping hand in time of need. He united with the Christian church at Newville about twelve years ago and lived in the faith.

During his suffering and distress he often said he would like to stay with his family but said he was willing to leave himself in the hands of a just God; that he had no fear of death.

Funeral services were held at the Christian church, Newville, Ind., July 13, conducted by Rev. F. A. Thomas. Burial in Evergreen cemetery. Elza Kinsey, funeral director.

Ex-Clerk Jenkins Married.

Ex-Clerk Charles Jenkins, the now popular Seventh street grocer, pulled off a funny stunt on his friends Sunday evening of last week by claiming as his bride Mrs. Emma Welch, sister to H. R. Culbertson, without telling.

Mr. Jenkins went to the office of the county clerk Saturday afternoon and so manipulated things there that he covered up his tracks as a candidate for the ranks of the benedicts.

He took his bride to St. Joe, where Sunday evening at eight o'clock they were united in marriage by Rev. Coomer. Mr. and Mrs. John Baker witnessed the ceremony.

A company of bellers well repaid Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins for their having gotten married without letting it be known.

The best wishes of a host of friends accompany the newly wedded couple on their matrimonial career.-Courier.

The Story Your Mirror Tells

NO VISIBLE LINE

You read and look afar with equal facility, but no one observes that you are wearing bifocals because the usual lines are absent. Wear the genuine Kryptok's awhile and you will never willingly return to old style bifocle glasses.

The Hartzog Method

of examination and adjustment insures correct comfortable glasses, backed by our Guarantee to give satisfaction. No charge for examination.

DR. J. W. HARTZOG
The Eyesight Specialist.
At Dr. Shook's office
Spencerville,
Mon. Aug. 1st.
Remember Date Call Early
HOME OFFICE
1213 Wells, Cor. Wells and High
Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Candy and Cigars.

Home made candy and the best grade of cigars at Milliman's barber shop owned and run by

Merritt Milliman.

Be sure to visit
The Home Store
before the week ends.

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST.JOE, IND.

"Friends, a season of saving is soon over."

Mid Summer Sale Will End

The bargain season closes Saturday Night and if you have not already availed yourself of our liberal price cuttings, we urge you to do so before the store closes Saturday night. These two weeks of value giving have been liberally patronized by those who desired to benefit from our offerings. A careful reading of this ad will reveal some special bargains not announced before. These are meant to spread a veneer of interest over an already successful sale and to attract you into our store before the Mid Summer Sale ends.

Note the additional Bargain Items.

Gingham Specials

Lay in a supply of these just now for aprons and dresses.

APRON CHECK GINGHAMS a regular 9c value, as much as you like while it lasts, yard 6c

DRESS GINGHAMS, 12½c and 15c values that have been selling rapidly, the final clean up at 9c

A Final Clean Up On Shirt Waists

Lot 1—All our white and lawn waists, embroidery and insertion trimmed, selling as high as $1.25, now 89c

Lot 2—Includes the $1.50 and $2.00 waists; these are good values and just to make a wind up of these summer waists the price is cut to $1.19

Saturday Only

A couple of specials for the Saturday trade. Take advantage of them.

Best quality Granulated Sugar, we make the price to you Saturday, per poundonly ... 5½c

Men's Suspenders, an extra good one, you'll think so too when you see it, Saturday price 19c

One Lot Boy's Clothing at Half Price

A Reminder of Prices Previously Quoted

Lest you have forgotten the earlier announcements of this sale, we recall your attention to prices previously quoted. Look up our big sale ad. If you can't find it, here are a few of the prices. Time enough to take advantage of them.

Mens Shirts 37-39 and 63c	Ladies Hose 9c and 11c	CALICOES were 6c now 4 3-4c
Mens Shoes $2.79 to $3.29	Ladies Shoes $1.09 to $2.29	PERCALES selling at 8 1-2 and 11c

Attend the Band Concert Saturday Night and Make "The Home Store" Your Headquarters.

JULY

L 904

0458

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

The question of divorces has been under careful consideration for many centuries. The Pharisees tempted Christ by asking his judgment on the Mosaic law of divorcement, and received an answer direct and fundamental. It has been a serious, a continuous, a vexatious question from time immemorial, says Newark News. All governments, clerical and civil, have tried to settle it and have failed. Our own government and each of the states and all the courts have for many years been trying to establish uniform divorce laws, and to discourage divorces, as much as possible. Yet they are increasing instead of diminishing. A few denominations will not tolerate divorces, but the civil laws recognize them. From the point of view of the latter the innocent party to divorce proceedings is guilty of no offense, ought not to be held in dishonor and should be permitted to marry again. It is the abuse of the divorce laws by immoral, unconscionable, undesirable citizens that has brought the most serious dishonor upon the dissolution of the marriage contract. The Reformed synod's attitude with reference to innocent parties in necessary divorce proceedings accords with general public sentiment. What should be done to the guilty ones is yet under discussion.

The bill advocated by the Audubon societies of the state of New York, forbidding the sale within this state of the plumage of any wild bird which is protected within New York, has passed the legislature and is awaiting the governor's signature. We trust it will receive his approval, says Rochester Herald. For many years the Audubon societies have labored unceasingly to educate the people of this state to the economic as well as the sentimental value of wild bird life. Their progress has been very slow. The rural communities of the state, even the fruit-raising sections of western New York, have been afflicted with almost incredible ignorance of the usefulness of birds. Farmers' boys often rob birds' nests of their eggs, and amuse themselves by aiming their newly acquired firearms at birds of every kind. It is seldom that a word of censure is heard from the male parent, whose property the young mischief-maker is hastening to destroy.

A porous plaster worth $50 is something of a novelty in the curative agency line. A druggist in Middletown, N. Y., is the possessor of this valuable article, and he is about to send it to the treasury department at Washington to be redeemed. The worthy druggist was troubled with a lame back and had his wife apply the plaster. The lady did not notice a $50 bill which her husband had placed on a dresser in their room, and the note was sticking to the plaster when the latter was put where it might do the most good. There was much mystery and a long hunt before the bill was located, but now plaster, bill and all will be sent to the government officials and "something just as good" will be substituted.

A Chicago doctor has arranged to give the dogs a drink this summer. He has bought a thousand two-quart basins and the city council has allowed him to distribute them about the city in front of stores and houses, and the tenants will be expected to see that they are kept filled with water for the benefit of the dogs. The doctor got the notion from the City of Mexico, where storekeepers are required to keep such basins at their doors. The idea is a good one, and should reduce the number of mad dog scares in Chicago this summer. There will be less hydrophobia if the dogs can get water whenever they want it.

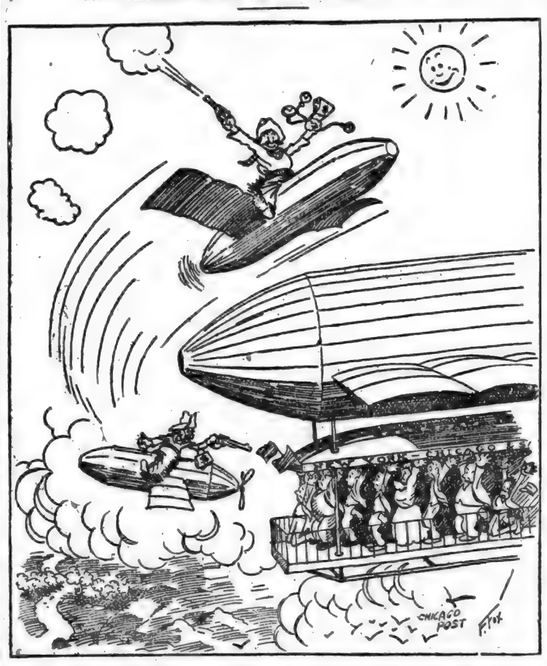
Connecticut is traditionally the land of steady habits, and perhaps a "whopper" of a fish story coming from that quarter will get more credence than if it originated in a more sinful source. Anyway, a resident of Winsted states that he found a fish in his well, and when he hooked it he discovered that it was a trout so large that the well curb had to be removed before the fish could be hauled out. The saving grace of this fish tale is that the narrator does not attempt to give the weight of the monster catch.

Scientists announce the production of edible roses. And are American beauties going to be cheaper than pigs' feet?

In spite of their frantic efforts to keep apart, Peru and Ecuador are allowed to go on making faces at one another.

It is only a short distance from New York to Philadelphia, but Aviator Hamilton found it farther going back.

THE JESSE JAMES OF THE NEAR FUTURE



PLOT TO KILL AMERICANS

OFFICIALS SET UPON BY RENEGADE MOROS.

Three of Outlaws Are Slain and Five Wounded in Fusilade.

Manila.—Dean C. Worcester, American secretary of interior for the Philippines, was set upon by renegade Moros, on the Island of Palawan Monday and escaped assassination only through the alertness of his bodyguard, who shot down the outlaws, killing three of them outright.

Secretary Worcester was touring the island, which is the most westerly of the larger Philippine group, bounding the Sulu sea on the west, and was present at the installation of the new governor.

In anticipation of his coming a band of Moros planned his death.

Armed with bolos carefully concealed, they laid a trap for the secretary, who suddenly found himself the object of a savage rush.

Captain Moynihan of the scouts was the first to recognize the hostile movement and just in the nick of time he ordered the scouts to fire.

At the fusillade three Moros who led the attack dropped dead in their tracks, while several others doubled up with more or less severe wounds.

The rest of them took to their heels.

Investigation showed that the attack by the renegade Moros also was a part of a plot against Provincial Governor Evans.

Governor Evans and Mr. Worcester had landed on the island and wished to take a boat for a river trip. A Moro leader objected and a parley followed. Then a group of warriors rushed from ambush, attacking the party. Mr. Worcester was in front.

At the crucial moment the guards, commanded by Captain Moynihan of the scouts, opened fire.

Five of the wounded were captured and placed under arrest. Others escaped in the jungle, but a detail of scouts was sent after them.

BLAZE IN JOLIET PRISON

Shirt Factory Is Destroyed With Loss of $25,000—Convicts Create No Disorder.

Joliet, Ill.—Fire that broke out in the shirt factory at the Illinois state prison here totally destroyed the building and equipment, causing a damage estimated at $25,000. Crossed electric wires is assigned as the cause of the conflagration. The volunteer fire department composed of "trusties" failed to check the flames and the Joliet city department was called. Guards were dispatched through the corridors at the out-start to allay the fears of the convicts and there was no disorder.

IOWA COLLEGE TO BE SOLD

Des Moines Presbyterians to Acquire Highland Park Institution and Turn It Into Technical School.

Des Moines, Ia.—Negotiations have practically been completed whereby Highland Park college of this city will pass under the control of the Des Moines Presbytery. It is understood that the consideration is $200,000. It is proposed by the Presbyterians to convert the institution into a technical school.

Central Vermont Men Out.

New London, Conn.—All conductors and trainmen on the Central Vermont railroad walked out on a strike Monday night. It is reported that at least twenty-five hundred employes are out on the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont.

Fire Wipes Out Lumber.

Pittsburg, Pa.—A million feet of lumber in the yards of A. G. Breitweiser Co., at South Twenty-second street and the Monongahela river, was destroyed by fire Monday.

ROYAL ARCANUM HARD HIT

New York Court Decides Order Cannot Raise Its Assessment Rates Without Members' Consent.

New York.—Supreme Court Justice William J. Kelly of Brooklyn handed down a decision in which he holds that the supreme council of the Royal Arcanum cannot raise its assessment rates without permission from the members of the organization.

It is believed that the decision deals a hard blow to the order. The case was brought to the attention of the court by Samuel Green of Brooklyn, who is a member of the DeWitt Clinton council R. A., and who at one time held one of the highest positions in the council.

In deciding in favor of the plaintiff Justice Kelly declares that the society cannot assume an unlimited reserved power to increase the amount of assessment to an extent which might be prohibitive and could only result in depriving the individual of his membership.

WOMAN SLAYS GAME WARDEN

Confesses She Killed John O'Connor Because He Tried to Break Up Her Home.

Springfield, Ill.—Mrs. Frank Stout confessed that she had fired the shot which resulted in the death of Deputy State Warden Game John O'Connor.

Mrs. Stout is in jail here and will be held to await the action of the grand jury without bond. The woman appeared before the coroner's jury Sunday at her own request.

O'Connor was shot Friday night at his home by some one who fired through an open door. In an antemortem statement he declared that Frank Stout had threatened to kill him, but Stout, when arrested, proved an alibi. Later Mrs. Stout was arrested and, in her confession, declared O'Connor had annoyed her and "had tried to break up her home."

The woman admitted while on the witness stand that she telephoned O'Connor a few days before his death and asked him if he intended to quit coming to her home. This admission is taken by authorities to mean that the woman was in love with O'Connor and that jealousy may have prompted her in her act.

MADRIZ ORDERS REBELS SHOT

Nicaraguan President Instructs His Commander to Shoot Down Prisoners Without Trial.

New Orleans.—An intercepted telegram sent by Jose Madriz, claimant to the Nicaraguan presidency, to Gen. Robert O. Gonzales, commander of the Madriz forces at San Ubaldo, Nicaragua, was sent to Consul General Sussman of this city by President J. J. Estrada of the provisional government, Tuesday.

It instructs General Gonzalez to shoot without trial all rebels and prisoners that are taken by his men. The telegram, which caused a thrill of horror through Cetral America, has been forwarded to the state department and will be referred to the peace conference at The Hague. The telegram was captured by Gen. Luis Mena of the provisionals, who reports on the day it was received by Gonzalez two revolutionists were shot at Charco Muerto. The same day 15 prisoners taken by Estrada were released.

Grasshoppers Ravage Wabash Valley.

Terre Haute, Ind.—There is a plague of grasshoppers in the Wabash bottoms and automobilists Tuesday found their tires covered with bodies of insects, impeding their progress and causing the cars to skid. Gardens and corn have been destroyed.

Zeppelin Gas Works Razed.

Friedrichshafen, Germany.—The gas works of the Zeppelin Airship company were demolished by an explosion Tuesday. Seven persons were severely injurd.

RAIL CHIEF SLAIN

BURGLAR MURDERS IRA G. RAWN, PRESIDENT OF THE MONON.

THEY EXCHANGE BULLETS.

Awakened by Prowler In Summer Home at Winnetka Railroad President Seizes Revolver and Is Shot Down, Thief Escaping.

Chicago.—I. G. Rawn, president of the Monon railway, was shot through the heart and instantly killed at his summer home in Winnetka by a would-be robber. The burglar escaped. There is no clew to his identity.

Servants and women in the house, aroused by the shot, found Mr. Rawn lying in the hallway on his face. The front door was open. There was no one in sight.

The fact that the murder was committed by a burglar was established by the finding of jimmy marks on the door, which had been forced open.

The story of the shooting of Mr. Rawn was told by Ralph G. Coburn, a son-in-law of the victim.

"Mrs. Rawn was awakened by sounds on the first floor of the house," he said. "Mr. Rawn also was awakened and he also heard the sounds. He insisted upon going down to ascertain the cause, although Mrs. Rawn tried to persuade him not to do it.

"He descended the stairs and had barely reached the landing when everyone in the house was awakened by the roar of two shots fired in quick succession.

I. G. Rawn.

"I rushed out as did the others. We found Mr. Rawn lying in his night clothes. Blood was trickling from his breast.

"He struggled, turned over, tried to speak, and could not. We sent in hurried calls for a doctor. Mr. Rawn died within five or six minutes after the shot had been fired. He did not regain consciousness."

"We immediately summoned the Winnetka police, and it was they who found the mark on the door which established the fact that the crime had been committed by a burglar. Other than that we have no clew.

"The house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Rawn, their daughter, Mrs. Bigelow, and my wife and myself and our two children. There were also three servants in the house, the cook, Mrs. Rawn's maid, and Mrs. Bigelow's maid. None of the rest of us heard the sound of the burglar."

Only one bullet took effect. The other went wild.

A half hour after the murder had been committed Pinkerton detectives and other private detectives were hired by the sons of the dead man.

"We will offer a reward," said Mr. Coburn and spare no expense to capture the assassin.

Following so soon after the burglary at the home of Laird Bell last Saturday or Sunday night when Mr. and Mrs. Bell were out of town, the incident has aroused the residents of the suburb. Plans for better police protection are being talked of and the crime of this morning probably will incite the villagers to take immediate action.

While Mr. and Mrs. Bell were away from home at Lake Geneva last week burglars entered their home and stole several thousand dollars' worth of silverware, jewelry, and heirlooms. No report of the matter was made to the local police till after Mr. and Mrs. Bell returned home on Monday.

Mr. Rawn became president of the Monon road last October. He was 55 years old. He rose in the railroad work from the job of student telegraph operator which he took at 15 years of age. He was born in Delaware, O., and his only education was in the common schools there.

Indiana County Loses in Census.

Washington, Ind.—Census returns show Madison county, Indiana, has a population of 65,224, a decrease of 5,246 inhabitants.

May Yet Telephone to England.

Dover, England.—Telephonic communication between England and America may soon be a possibility if a new experimental submarine cable recently laid across the English channel by the British post office authorities answers expectations.

Western Banker Arrested.

Portland, Ore.—W. D. Outman, treasurer of W. P. McMonies & Co., of this city, was arrested here Tuesday on a charge of receiving money, knowing a bank to be insolvent.

16,000 RAILROAD MEN GO OUT

STRIKE ON GRAND TRUNK SYSTEM TIES UP FREIGHT.

Passenger Service Is Congested—Milk Famine Threatens Montreal—Strikers Are Orderly.

Montreal.—It was estimated Tuesday that 16,000 men were out of employment as a result of the strike of employes of the Grand Trunk railroad system which went into effect Monday night.

The strike order was obeyed by 6,000 conductors and trainmen and the company Tuesday locked out 10,000 men in the shops in the hope that they would accept the positions deserted by the conductors and trainmen. The coup has not been successful.

Freight and passenger traffic on the entire Grand Trunk system is congested. Freight is piling up in immense quantities at the various transfer points, with no likelihood of being moved for a long time.

A few trains were run by minor officials of the road, with office clerks to take the tickets, but this method has proven a failure. Passengers will not purchase tickets because of the inability of the company to guarantee a through trip to any point.

A milk famine is threatened in Montreal by reason of the company's failure to deliver any part of the usual supply of that commodity from outlying points. Also there is a marked scarcity of other necessities now transported by the railroad.

There was nothing approaching disorder among the strikers at any point along the system, excepting in one instance, in which a brakeman on a Grand Trunk train at Flint, Mich., was attacked by the strikers and saved by his mother, who shamed the strikers into retreat.

The commissioner of labor of Canada offered to arbitrate the grievances of the strikers, declaring that the Canadian government would pay all expenses incurred by him, but the officials of the union declined the offer, saying that the strike had gone too far for arbitration.

REPORT CRIPPEN IN CANADA

Liner Steward Declares Alleged Wife Slayer Reaches Montreal on Steamer Megantic.

Montreal, Que.—Positive statements that Doctor Crippen, the London murderer, sought by Scotland Yard, arrived here Sunday on the White Star Dominion liner Megantic was made Monday by H. J. Airress, saloon steward of this ship, who is corroborated by two other stewards.

The actions and appearance of a passenger who was attended at table by Airress and accompanied by a woman registered only as "Carruthers," seemed suspicious to the steward.

When the liner docked here the couple attracted much attention by their apparent haste to disembark. They hailed a cab and disappeared.

The police believe Crippen has left Montreal for American soil.

JEWS DRIVEN OUT OF KIEV

Expulsion by Russia of Israelites at Rate of 45 Individuals Each Day.

Kiev, Russia.—The expulsion of Jews from Kiev continues at the rate of 45 individuals a day. From July 4 until July 15 497 were expelled by what is known as the second method—that is, they were forced actually to leave town. During the same period 1,121 persons were expelled by the first method, which, in effect, is a warning for their departure, but permits them time for a settlement of private affairs. In the majority of cases the latter method proved ineffectual, as the Jews in that category are prone to return to Kiev after temporary absence.

During the 12 days mentioned there were 165 expulsions from Solomenka and 151 from Demiefka.

SHALE ROCK CASES ENDED

Verdicts of "Not Guilty" Are Ordered by Judge Against Two Remaining Defendants.

Chicago.—Verdicts of "not guilty" in favor of Contractor Michael H. McGovern and Ralph A. Bonnell, former assistant city engineer, were signed in Judge Albert C. Barnes' court Friday, the jury acting in obedience to instructions from the court.

By the acquittal of the remaining defendants in the identical way in which City Engineer John Ericson and Former Deputy Commission of Public Works Paul Redieske had previously been eliminated from the case the trial for alleged conspiracy to defraud the city out of $46,984.20 in payments made for "sale-rock extras" in the Lawrence avenue sewer case came to an abrupt end.

The statute of limitations has run and there will be no more indictments.

Woman Eats Four Babes.

Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo.—The disappearance of Dominican children near the Haytien frontier has been explained by the horrible confession of a Haytien woman that she had murdered them, eating four.

Ohio Judge Sees Roosevelt.

New York.—Theodore Roosevelt had a long talk with Judge Kincaid of Toledo, O., Tuesday and it was generally understood that political conditions in the judge's home state came in for discussion.

HIT BY LIGHTNING

AVIATOR EHRMAN FLYING AT BARCELONA MEETS WITH UNIQUE MISHAP.

MACHINE FALLS TO GROUND

Aviator Escapes Without A Scratch In Manner Most Miraculous—Novel Accident Brings Him Into Prominence.

Barcelona, Spain.—While he was making a cross-country flight Aviator Ehrmann's aeroplane was struck by lightning and fell blazing to the ground. The aviator escaped uninjured, which is regarded as almost miraculous.

There has never been a more startling aerial exhibition than that which Ehrmann unwillingly afforded and those who witnessed it could hardly believe their eyes when the airman emerged from the singed frame-work none the worse for his experience.

He was sailing along at a moderate height when he got in the path of a sky-bolt. Instantly the aeroplane was enveloped in flames, its canvas wings shriveled up, and, clinging to the skeleton of his craft, Ehrmann came down with a thud.

Aviator Ehrmann heretofore has not figured prominently in flying events and the novel accident occurring to him brings him into prominence for the first time.

Boy Is Brutally Murdered.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Moses E. Richer, aged thirty-four years, a well-to-do farmer of Cedar Creek township, is a prisoner at the county jail charged with first degree murder. His victim is Charles Coats, a twelve-year-old lad taken from an orphans' asylum at Cleveland, Ohio, by Richer, in February of this year, with the understanding that he was to be furnished a good home. Richer has made a signed statement, now in possession of the state, in which he admits inflicting the wounds with which the boy's body was literally covered and which the authorities declare are directly responsible for the boy's death. According to the evidence in the hands of the officers, the child died from the effects of a blood clot on the brain, resulting from a blow on the skull when Richer threw him violently against the side of their house and when the breath left the bruised and mutilated body, the inhuman foster parent had the child face downward on the floor and was beating him with his hand.

Automobile Plunged Into Ditch.

Wabash, Ind.—A motor car in which Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Brodbeck and their daughter, Ada, were riding, plunged off a bridge into a creek and turned over, but wa scaught at the bottom of the ravine in such a manner that the three were not crushed. Miss Brodbeck suffered a broken leg and Mrs. Brodbeck was bruised, but Dr. Brodbeck was not hurt. Mrs. Brodbeck was driving when the accident occurred and pulled too close to the edge of the bridge in trying to avoid a loose timber.

Kind Act Wins Fortune of $500,000.

Macon, Ga.—Shortly before the Klondike gold boom, W. V. Miller, a motorman, met J. F. Curley, a miner, stranded and without funds. He took him in, fed him and gave him money to pay his fare as far as Birmingham. That was the last he ever heard of Curley until the other day, when he received word that the miner had died in Dawson City and left him a fortune estimated at $500,000.

Serious Wreck in Ireland.

Dublin, Ireland.—Several cars of an excursion train on the Great Southern railway broke away from the locomotive and running wild down an incline crashed into a passenger train. Many persons jumped from the runaway cars and tumbled down the embankment. About 100 persons were injured, most of them slightly. A score of the injured were brought here.

Forest Fires Destroy Towns.

Winnipeg, Manitoba.—The town of Three Forks has been completely wiped out and the towns of Jaffray and Baynes Lake are reported to have been destroyed by forest fires, in the Sloan district. Candon in the same district is said to be doomed. Fires are also raging over 50 square miles in the Cootenay district.

Fatal Wreck in Chicago.

Chicago, Ill.—One man was killed and another seriously injured when a switch engine crashed into a passenger train at Forty-third street. A number of passengers were bruised but none seriously hurt. The engineer of the switch engine was killed and the fireman hurt. The accident was caused by an open switch.

Boy Dives Into Barbed Spine of Fish.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—Death in an almost unheard of form waited for Lawrence S. Baker, an eleven-year-old Jacksonville lad, when he dived from a boat while swimming in Lake Worth. A stingaree, a huge, flat bodied and gruesome species of warm water fish, was lurking under the boat. One of the barbed spines which the fish carries on its whip-like tail, pierced the boy's neck, cutting into the jugular vein. He rose to the surface, crying for help, and bled to death within four minutes.

JULY

0459

L 904

HE LIVED IN THE CITY.

Papa—Why can't we see the moon in the daytime?

Jimmie—'Cause they don't light it up until after dark.

Casey at the Bat.

This famous poem is contained in the Coca-Cola Baseball Record Book for 1910, together with records, schedules for both leagues and other valuable baseball information compiled by authorities. This interesting book sent by the Coca-Cola Co., of Atlanta, Ga., on receipt of 2c stamp for postage. Also copy of their booklet "The Truth About Coca-Cola" which tells all about this delicious beverage and why it is so pure, wholesome and refreshing. Are you ever hot—tired—thirsty? Drink Coca-Cola—it is cooling, relieves fatigue and quenches the thirst. At soda fountains and carbonated in bottles—5c everywhere.

She Lives in Bingville.

A south Missouri paper is carrying this ad.: "Attractive woman, not a day over thirty, would be pleased to correspond with eligible man. Not absolutely necessary that he should be young. Would prefer one with property, but one with a good paying position would be satisfactory. The young lady is of medium height, has brown hair and gray eyes, not fat, although, most decidedly, she is not skinny. Her friends say she is a fine looking woman. Object matrimony. Reason for this advertisement, the young woman lives in a little dinky town, where the best catches are the boys behind the counters in the dry goods and clothing stores, and every one of them is spoken for by the time he is out of his short pants. Address Hazel Eyes, Box 23, Bingville, Mo."—Kansas City Star.

The Stomach Hold.

Col. H. N. Renouf, at the "Old Guard" banquet at Delmonico's, emphasized the importance to an army of a good commissariat.

"You have perhaps heard," he said, "of the company of privates that a patriotic lady entertained one Memorial day to dinner.

"It was a good dinner, and at its end a pretty maid servant entered with a superb dessert.

"'Dessert, sergeant?' she said to the stalwart young soldier at the head of the table.

"'Desert?' the sergeant answered. 'When I can get eats like this for nothin'? Nixie! Not me!'"

Incorruptible.

The lady of the house hesitated.

"Are my answers all right?" she asked.

"Yes, madam," replied the census man.

"Didn't bother you a bit, did I?"

"No, madam."

"Feel under some obligations to me, don't you?"

"Yes, madam."

"Then, perhaps you won't mind telling me how old the woman next door claims to be?"

"Good day, madam," said the census man.

Many of us have cause to be thankful for what we don't get.

HARD TO PLEASE
Regarding the Morning Cup.

"Oh how hard it was to part with coffee, but the continued trouble with constipation and belching was such that I finally brought myself to leave it off.

"Then the question was, what should we use for the morning drink? Tea was worse for us than coffee; chocolate and cocoa were soon tired of; milk was not liked very well, and hot water we could not endure.

"About two years ago we struck upon Postum and have never been without it since.

"We have seven children. Our baby now eighteen months old would not take milk, so we tried Postum and found she liked it and it agreed with her perfectly. She is today, and has been, one of the healthiest babies in the State.

"I use about two-thirds Postum and one-third milk and a teaspoon of sugar, and put it into her bottle. If you could have seen her eyes sparkle and hear her say "good" today when I gave it to her, you would believe me that she likes it.

"If I was matron of an infants' home, every child would be raised on Postum. Many of my friends say, 'You are looking so well!' I reply, 'I am well: I drink Postum. I have no more trouble with constipation, and know that I owe my good health to God and Postum.'

"I am writing this letter because I want to tell you how much good Postum has done us, but if you knew how I shrink from publicity, you would not publish this letter, at least not over my name."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Around the Bend

By ALICE CAMERON

Ralph Hurlbut leaned back in unaccustomed idleness and let the canoe float down stream. The sense of having nothing to do, nothing to worry about, on this glorious June morning, filled him with a dreamy content.

He was on the first vacation he had taken since college days. The last few years had been strenuous ones for the keen young business man. Mind and body had been worked hard.

As the canoe swept down stream, Ralph Hurlbut was conscious of an exhilarating excitement. His imagination pictured a dozen adventures, but one image persisted, and at last drove the others away. Ralph's youth was asserting itself. He hoped he might find Her sitting on the bank or walking beneath the willows; a dream girl with the gray eyes and the sweet mouth of the woman he could love.

As he neared the turn in the stream, his odd imagining became almost real to him. It possessed his mind wholly. He could even see the gown she would wear; blue, soft, with perhaps some white fluffy stuff on it like clouds on a June sky. He gazed with a boyish eagerness toward the bend that hid her.

A few more vigorous strokes and the canoe swung dizzily around the curve and glided into the unknown part of the stream. The trees were fewer here. There were flowers near the banks. He gazed quickly about. No one was in sight. All was peaceful and quite deserted.

A deep disappointment came over him, a feeling stronger than the cause seemed to warrant. He tried to laugh it off. "Here I am mooning like an idiot!" he exclaimed, disgustedly. "I imagine a thing and then complain because it is not real." But the disappointment and the eager longing persisted.

He steadied the canoe and looked around once more. A white patch on the left bank attracted his attention. He could not see what it was, and in pursuit, idly paddled to the shore. He drew his canoe up on the bank and picked up the object. It was a little white silk glove, long and small in hand, the fingers still curled naturally as if rosy living fingers were within them. He smoothed it out on his palm. The tips were soiled a trifle.

Ralph smiled down at the dainty thing.

"I'll find your owner for you, little glove," he said, putting it into his pocket.

Far up the road, to his left, he caught sight of a moving patch of blue—a blue dress, a white hat! Immediately he ran up the bank and started along the road.

Before he could reach her, the wearer of the blue dress turned into a narrow path leading to the only house in sight. When Ralph arrived at the path he could see her knocking at a side door. Her back was turned to him as she pounded vigorously. Ralph waited, walking slowly up and down. The blue dress evidently had a determined owner. Ralph thought she would never cease knocking. He had his first misgiving when she shook the door. Finally, when she began to kick strenuously at the panels, he began to see that Fate had, perhaps, been misleading him.

At this moment the woman made up her mind that no one was at home. She turned away and came down the path toward Ralph, walking with impatient strides. A basket hung on her arm.

She looked about fifty years old, extremely gaunt and remarkably bad-tempered. One glance, and the fact that he had followed this person in a romantic mood, carrying her glove over his heart, moved Ralph to a fit of laughter. While she walked toward him, staring angrily, he rocked to and fro in paroxysms of mirth. The woman came almost up to him, and was about to say something in no gentle tone—to judge by her expression—when she suddenly tripped on a stone, and catching at Ralph for support, let her heavy basket fall at his feet. His coat was torn with a long rending sound and the woman sat down heavily in a crumpled heap. The cream in a glass bottle in the basket splashed lightly over Ralph, and eggs covered his shoes with a yellow coating. As he noted each new phase of the catastrophe he burst into another roar of laughter. His companion sat in the road and regarded him stonily. Finally, Ralph saw that her face was growing very pale, and at the idea that she might really be hurt, his laughter subsided. He gently tried to help her up. She struck at him awkwardly, her eyes flashing, but said nothing. Ralph was really alarmed for by this time her face was very white. "Are you hurt, madam?" he asked, anxiously. No answer. He began to talk, hoping that she would break her angry silence.

"I hope you will forgive me for laughing. You see I thought you were—er, some one else. And I was so surprised I could not help laughing. Tell me whether you are hurt. Let me help you." His face looked so handsome and so appealing that the stony expression of the woman softened a trifle.

"Well, the least you can do is to help me home," she said, gruffly. "I'm all shook up." She evidently blamed him for her fall. He raised her, and she leaned on him, grunting and groaning.

They walked on. She said nothing. Finally he began to be unpleasantly aware of her weight. His arm seemed almost paralyzed and drops of perspiration came out on his forehead. He stood still a moment in the road. "Would you mind changing to the other side? I could support you with my right arm. This one is getting a little tired." The long lips set into a grim line. "Can't," responded the woman. "My other arm's hurt too bad." He wondered vaguely how her arm could possibly be hurt, but said nothing. The woman urged him on, it seemed to Ralph interminably.

She did not speak except to urge him to walk faster. Finally, they made one last turn and came within sight of a small gray house set well back from the road in a garden of roses. Red ramblers climbed over fence and porch.

As the two drew near, a young girl arose from the steps and hurried toward the gate. "Oh! are you hurt? Are you hurt?" she exclaimed, breathlessly to the woman. The latter put out her "injured" arm and opened the gate with a bang. "No! I fell down but I wa'n't hurt a mite. Would ha' been home an hour ago only I wanted to teach some smart fools a lesson. She strode up the walk and into the house, letting the screen door slam after her.

Again the helpless fit of laughter came upon Ralph. He leaned against the gate, rubbing his numb arm and shouting with mirth. This time he had a sweet echo, and looked into a rosy face dimpled with fun, for after one blank moment, and a glance at the state of his attire, the girl had semed to divine all, in a flash.

The young man looked down somewhat ruefully at his coat and shoes. "I seem to have received the worst of it," he said.

The girl looked up with a trace of shyness. "You could come in and clean up. Do not mind her, she's peculiar, but—"

He broke in with a question. "Any relation?" he asked. What if she should be the mother!

"No! Oh, no! We are boarding here—my mother and I. Mrs. Thurston takes boarders every summer."

She started toward the house, and Ralph followed. Mrs. Thurston met them at the door. She led the young man to a room, supplied him with water and clean towels in grim silence. But as she was leaving she paused. "Gimme that coat." Ralph handed it to her, and she disappeared.

Presently she brought back the coat. The long rip was neatly mended. "Guess this'll do till you can see a tailor. Dinner ready in half an hour."

That dinner was a memorable event. It was a well-cooked meal, served in the long bay windows where the ramblers climbed in over the sill. Mrs. Thurston lost some of her grimness, and even smiled once or twice. Mrs. Farrand, the girl's mother, was very gracious.

And the girl herself? She sat by the open window, not in the blue dress he had pictured, but in snowy white. In her eyes were the lights and shadows the expressions he had seen in the eyes of the Dream Girl around the bend in the stream. His wonderful vacation had, indeed begun.

Afterward, he saw her alone for a moment on the porch. The glove lay in his pocket. He was afraid to ask her about it. Suppose it should not be hers. He drew it out slowly. The light from the window shone upon it. The girl reached up and took it from his hand.

"Why, you found my glove!" she exclaimed in surprise.

"It is yours, then?"

"Yes. I'm so glad! It is not very pleasant for one not to have a mate."

He looked down at her.

"Im finding that out, too," he murmured.

He moved a step nearer.

"Good night." He pressed the little soft hand in both his own for a moment. "I'll see you tomorrow morning," he said. "I've arranged with Mrs. Thurston to come here to board."

PREACHER LOSES $2 OF FEE

Young Man Charged for Marriage License Has Unique Plan of Getting Even With Clerk.

The clerk filled out the marriage license and handed it over.

"Thank you," said the young man.

"Hold on! That's $2."

"Two dollars!"

"Yes; did you suppose we gave those things away?"

"I certainly did. Chargin' a man $2 for a sheet of paper that didn't cost the county more than a nickel at the outside is robbery. Have I got to pay it?"

"You'll pay it or you'll hand back the document."

"All right," said the young man, taking a bill out of his pocket, tendering it to the clerk and waiting for his change, "but I can tell you right now you ain't robbin' me. You're robbin' the preacher. He'll get just $2 less than I was goin' to give him!"

Pocketing the change and tilting his hat back on his head, he stalked out of the office with the air of a man who had been imposed upon, but who knew how to get even.

Another Catch.

Gunner—What's the latest news today?

Guyer—George Washington's auto sold for $500 in New York.

Gunner—What are you trying to hand me? There were no autos in George Washington's day.

Guyer—Who said anything about automobiles? This refers to his autograph.

The Mystery Explained.

"See here, my man," said the philanthropist who was doing an investigating stunt on his own account, "you are an interesting puzzle to me."

"Is that so?" queried the other.

"Yes, it's so," answered the party of the philanthropy part. "You are too lazy to work. How do you manage to live?"

"Oh," was the reply, "I get trusted."

The Real Difference.

Jack—What's the difference between a plumber and a poet?

Tom—That's old. A plumber lays pipes and a poet pipes lays.

Jack—That's not the answer.

Tom—What is it then?

Jack—A plumber has money to burn, but a poet doesn't even get a chance to smell the smoke.

As Represented.

"See here," growled the irate man as he entered the jewelry store. "I bought this watch of you last week and paid you $2 in cash for it. You said it would work like a charm—and it doesn't keep time at all."

"That's all right, my friend," replied the jeweler calmly. "Neither does a charm."

As It May Be.

"People are not alike," remarked the moralizer. "What suits one may not please another."

"Right you are," rejoined the demoralizer. "What is one man's automobile may be another man's juggernaut."

Works Both Ways.

"The clarinet," remarked the amateur as he paused to get his second wind, "is the hardest instrument to play."

"Anyway," rejoined his one-man audience, "it can't be any harder to play than it is to listen to."

His Task.

"Did you do much sight-seeing when you went abroad?"

"No," answered Mr. Cumrox. "Mother and the girls did the sight-seeing. I had to put in my time finding the places where they cash letters of credit."—Wasp.

The Modern Way.

"Has he asked your parents for your hand yet?"

"My, no. That's an old fashioned custom that's no longer observed. My father may consider himself lucky if we decide to send him an invitation to our wedding."

Thought Quickly.

"What is a totem pole?" his wife asked.

"A totem pole," he said, thinking fast, "is the rail—or pole—on which an objectionable citizen is ridden—or toted—out of the community."

The Better Way.

Maude — Formerly when Miss Screecher was asked to sing she would say "Oh, I can't."

Clara—But she doesn't do that now.

Maude—No; she lets the audience find it out for themselves.

Gentle Protest.

Barber (on train)—Yes, this is a great road, sir. Let me describe it to you as I work.

Man in Chair—Er—yes, but don't put the curves in my cheeks with that razor.

Getting Back at the Prof.

Prof.—Is a watermelon a vegetable or a fruit?

Stude—I don't know. But please tell me whether clam digging is fishing or agriculture.

A Cautious Game.

"Does Bliggins ever bluff when he plays cards?"

"Never until he gets home and explains where he has been."

ORDERED TO SWEAR—SHE DID

New York Woman In Court Gives Unique Interpretation of Customary Oath.

Mrs. Johanna Spitzer of 910 Columbus avenue, New York, and her husband, Karl, were going north in an Eighth avenue car the other night when William Delliny, of 330 East Fifty-fourth street, got on.

The man stepped on Mrs. Spitzer's toes several times. Her husband told him to behave himself. Delliny retorted by swearing and paying his respects to the social status of the Spitzers. He was arrested at Columbus circle on complaint of Mrs. Spitzer.

In the night court Mrs. Spitzer was about to give her testimony as complainant.

"Do I have to swear, Judge?" she asked Magistrate Krotel.

"Yes, madam."

"But Judge, I do not like to."

"You must. Every witness makes oath before testifying. The law requires it."

"Well, if I must, I must, I guess. But I don't like to."

"Yes, you must."

"Well, damn."

Delliny was sent to the workhouse for five days.

A Friend in Need.

Algie—I say, Fred, You're—aw—a fwiend of mine, aren't you?

Fred—Sure.

Algie—Then be a good fellow and—aw—help me out. I'd like to have that pwetty cousin of youahs learn all about my—aw—good points, doncher know.

Fred—I am helping you, old chap. I argued with her for two hours yesterday trying to convince her that you weren't as big a fool as you look.

What We May Expect.

The suffragette meeting had grown red-hot.

"And what will become of the great brewery buildings when we control the votes?" shouted the leader.

And the little man who had crept in unobserved shrugged his shoulders.

"I guess they'll be turned into chewing gum factories and complexion-powder mills" he muttered simply.

He Doubted Her Sincerity.

"I cannot give you a favorable answer until you have talked with my father."

The young man seized his hat.

"What's your hurry?" the fair girl asked.

"I take no chances," replied the youth. "I am going to see your father before you can get to him."

And he hustled from the room.

Couldn't Fool Her.

The husband was in a repentant mood.

"My dear," he said, "if I have ever given you any unkind words I take them all back."

But the wife was wise to his ways.

"That's just like you, John Henry Hix," she rejoined. "You want them back so you can use them all over again."

New to the Business.

Mrs. Newed—I'd like a couple of yards of steak, please.

Butcher—Pardon me, madam, but since the first of the month we have been selling it only by the pound. What kind of steak would you like?

Mrs. Newed—Rare steak, please. My husband doesn't like it well done.

Butchery.

Isidore was turning over the pages of his new reader. The picture of a cow greatly excited him. "Teacher, teacher," he called, "I vonce seen a cow!"

"Did you? Where?"

"In the street. A man had her and he vas going to kill her for her milk."—Everybody's.

One of Many.

"Yes," boasted the self-made man, "I'm one of those chaps who never forget a favor."

"That's what you are," rejointed the party who says what he thinks. "You never forget a favor you do any one—and you never let him forget it, either."

Dawn of a Scheme.

"They say the tail of that comet is composed of gas."

"Yes."

"And 4,000,000 miles long."

"Well?"

"I wonder if we couldn't rig up some kind of a suction engine and tap it?"

Real Charitable.

Tattered Theodore — 'Scuse me, mem, but I ain't got scarcely a rag t' me back. Kin yous help me out?

Kind Lady—Certainly. Youll fine the rag bag behind the door in the woodhouse. Help yourself.

Anything But Quiet.

Mrs. A.—There goes Mrs. Green. They say she is such a quiet dresser.

Mrs. X.—Quiet? You should hear her carrying on when her husband is buttoning up her waist in the back.

Quite So.

"Why is the public always bullish in the market?"

"That's natural enough. It is hard for the public to grasp the idea that anything is ever going down in price."

Who Cares?

"There are germs in kisses."

"Well, let's commit germicide."

The Wretchedness of Constipation

Can quickly be overcome by

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Purely vegetable—act surely and gently on the liver. Cure Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, and Indigestion. They do their duty.

Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

FREE Send postal for Free Package of Paxtine.

Better and more economical than liquid antiseptics FOR ALL TOILET USES.

PAXTINE
TOILET ANTISEPTIC

Gives one a sweet breath; clean, white, germ-free teeth—antiseptically clean mouth and throat—purifies the breath after smoking—dispels all disagreeable perspiration and body odors—much appreciated by dainty women. A quick remedy for sore eyes and catarrh.

A little Paxtine powder dissolved in a glass of hot water makes a delightful antiseptic solution, possessing extraordinary cleansing, germicidal and healing power, and absolutely harmless. Try a Sample. 50c. a large box at druggists or by mail.

THE PAXTON TOILET CO., BOSTON, MASS.

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere, attracts & kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts All Season. Made of metal, cannot spill or upset, will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Of all dealers or sent prepaid for 25c.

HAROLD SOMERS
180 DeKalb Ave.
Brooklyn, New York

SLEEPING IN THE OPEN AIR

Useful Book With Full Directions Given Away by Philanthropic Association.

"Direction for Living and Sleeping in the Open Air," is the title of a pamphlet being sent out by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to its local representatives in all parts of the United States. The pamphlet is meant to be a handbook of information for anybody who desires to sleep out of doors in his own home. It emphasizes the fact that outdoor sleeping is as desirable for the well as for sick. The booklet will be sent free of charge to any one applying for it at the headquarters of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis in New York, or to the secretary of any local or state antituberculosis association.

Some of the subjects of which the pamphlet treats are, how to take the open-air treatment in a tenement house; how to build a small shack or cabin on a flat roof in the city; how to make one comfortable while sleeping outdoors either in hot or cold weather; how to arrange a porch on a country house; and how to build a cheap porch; the construction of tents and tent houses; the kinds of beds and bedding to use in outdoor sleeping, and various other topics. The book is well illustrated and attractively prepared.

Awfully Busy.

Jim—A stitch in time saves nine.

Tom—Who said that?

Jim—Gee! Ain't you read your Bible?

Tom—Nope; I ain't even had time to read the sporting page this morning yet.—Cleveland Leader.

Not an Objection.

"I think he'd like to join your club, but his wife wouldn't hear of it."

"She wouldn't hear of it? Why, I know of half a dozen men who would join our club if their wives couldn't hear of it."

We know people who seem to know everything except the fact that they don't know how much they don't know.

If you wish beautiful, clear, white clothes use Red Cross Ball Blue. Large 2 oz. package, 5 cents.

Truth is cut up to patch too many lies. You can never boil the lies back into truth again.

Dr. Pierce's pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take.

Man cannot be happy when idle, unless resting from previous labor.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

JULY

0460

L 904

The St. Joe News.

One Year - - $1.00
Six Month - - 50c
Three Months - - 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

WITH THE SAGES.

Foster the beautiful, and every hour thou callest new flowers to birth.—Schiller.

What is not needful and is commonly wrong, is to pass a judgment on our fellow-creatures.—Gladstone.

What I am and what I think are conveyed to you in spite of my efforts to hold it back.—Emerson.

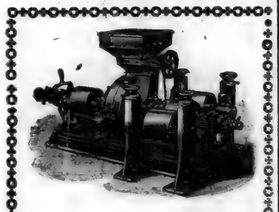
Despondency is not a state of humility; it is the vexation and despair of a cowardly pride.—Fenelon.

He who gives better homes, better books, better tools, a fairer outlook and a better hope, him will we crown with laurels.—Emerson.

There is no conversation so agreeable as that of a man of integrity, who hears without any intention to betray, and speaks without any intention to deceive.—Plato.

Men who see into their neighbors are apt to be contemptuous, but men who see through them find something lying behind every human soul which it is not for them to sit in judgment on.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Anger may repast with thee for an hour, but not repose with thee for a night. The countenance of anger is hatred; the continuance of hatred turns malice. That anger is not warrantale which hath seen two suns.—Quarles.



Grain is Saved, Money Made. and Stock does better by having your feed ground by the Keesler Mfg. Co.

ST. JOE, - - - - INDIANA

Railroads Should operate Under Usual Business Rules.

In discussing the operations of a railway it does not seem possible for the fairminded man to apply any other method of reasoning than is applied to commercial institutions in general; in fact, where transactions consist of the exchange of an article or a product for an agreed price in the coin of the realm, there is no essential difference in principle whether it be a railway disposing of its product—transportation—or a shoe manufacturer disposing of shoes.

There must always be a sufficient margin between the revenue side of the balance sheet and the expense side to permit of some return on the investment; and in this connection it is well known that manufacturing and other commercial concerns are seldom content with what for a railway is termed by the average man a fair return on the investment.

It is argued that railways are quasi public institutions, owing a responsibility to the public to furnish adequate and safe transportation, but, granting that this is true, is it not equally true that with this increased responsibility they deserve to be permitted to earn funds ample to provide the facilities which will measure up to the best of known standards?

What can be expected if the increased expense of railway operation continues to augment and rates are not allowed to be increased? What will happen when the lines of revenue and expense meet? Will not the country as a whole, which depends so largelyon the transportation furnished it by the railways, be the one to suffer? And how will conditions then compare with what they might be if railways are allowed to make moderate increases in their rates of freight-increases which, though they mean much to the railways handling millions of tons of freight a year, will scarcely be noticed by the average human being. For not 10 per cent of the price of the necessities of life is represented by the railway transportation charge.

Railway expenses of all kinds have been constantly on the increase, while rates of both freight and passenger business have been on the decrease. This has been possible by reason of the greatly increased efficiency and economy of operation, an economy unknown in any other country.

Public authories have said and are saying that the pay of labor must not be reduced, but must be increased to correspond with the increased cost of living; manufacturers of all sorts of railway supplies have demanded and are still demanding higher prices for their product, and federal and state legislative bodies have passed laws either limiting or reducing revenues (e. g., large recent reductions in mail and passenger rates) or increasing the expenditures of railways.

In other words railways, besides absorbing the high cost of living of their own employes and the employes of manufactures of railway supplies, are compelled to reduce their revenues and increase expenses.

Again, as regards the increase in wages, public opinion has been with the employe in every case; in fact, in the last year those increases in wages to the largest single class of employers have been granted through arbitration urged upon us by federal officials, in many cases representative of Federal or State Governments sitting with the board of arbitrators and passing upon increases in pay amounting in the aggregate to millions of dollars.

Railways, besides being carriers of freight, act as insurers. As a practical matter they contract to deliver goods in the same condition as received, or pay for the loss or damage that may occur; and in this respect they now bear a greater responsibility than was formerly assumed by any common carrier, a burden which is costing the railways large amounts yearly. We do not ask to be relieved of this responsibility, but rather that charges sufficient to meet all of the expenditures necessary for the proper conduct of the railway business be permitted.

I doubt whether the public has any conception of the immense detail required in the handling of the business of the railways. The Wabash Railroad, operating only 2,500 miles and having about $18,000,000 gross freight earnings per year, makes some 2,400,000 way bills annually; in other words, there is one way bill, for every $7.50 of gross freight charges, including of course full carloads and less than carload shipments.

Finally, let us bear in mind that with the expenses of the railways of the country running dangerously close to the revenue line, the prospect of interesting new investors to supply funds for the enlargement, improvement or addition of present facilities is practically all. Will money be loaned to enterprises where an adequate return on the investment, and even the principal itself is in jeopardy?

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at ..... 10:32 a. m.
No. 3 ..... 8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at ..... 6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at ..... 4:57 p.m.

J D Fetters
TRUSTEE
of Concord Township.

OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK
at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank; you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Ice! Ice! Ice!
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67 2.

Grove Meeting

The Third Annual Meeting of the five Christian Churches, St. Joe, Coburns Corners, Harlan, Newville and Milford, will be held in Railroad Park on the first Lord's day in August. Gary L. Cook, of Indianapolis, State Bible School Superintendent, will be the speaker, morning and afternoon A basket dinner will be served at the noon hour. Everybody come.

FOR SALE:—A 24-inch Wilson Heater stove, burned about 2 months, in good condition. Will sell cheap Inquire at THE NEWS office.

..Real Estate.
Insurance
NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

Calls answered day or night.

Phone No. 89.

St. Joe, - Indiana.

Summer Is Here

which brings flies, bugs and mosquitoes. Why be pested with them when Xinsey has a full line of Screen Doors, Windows, Wire screen and Hinges. All sizes at right prices. That nice lawn needs a mower to keep it mowed. When that building needs painting, don't forget we have a full line of Paint and Oil guaranteed strictly pure. The hot weather will make you wonder where you can secure a Gasoline or Oil Stove, remember we have a full line. When you need anything in Hardware remember we are complete. We show the biggest line of Graniteware ever shown in town and prices are such as have never been known. We have the Automatic Schrams Fruit Jars. Come in and we will be glad to show them. Always bear in mind that Kinsey's is where you get value received or in other words, dollar for dollar. At your Service,

H. V. KINSEY — H. V. Kinsey & Son — E. R. KINSEY

Furniture Hardware Undertaking

Office Hbone No. 37-2 — Residence No. 37 3

You will also find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Eespecially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 — Residence No. 37-4

During the Scrap.

"Didn't some idiot propose to you before our marriage?"

"Certainly."

"Then you ought to have married him."

"That's just what I did!"

Merely That and Nothing More.

A man and a woman entered a State street car, says a Chicago newspaper. Another man sprang up and motioned the woman to the seat. The man who was with the woman promptly took it.

"I gave that seat to the lady," said the other, indignantly.

"Oh, that's all right," said the man in the seat. "She's my wife."

WHERE DOES SHE BELONG?

A Question Which Every Worried Housewife Should Consider.

While we hear and read much of the evil effects of American worry upon American women in crippling their energies and shortening their lives, there is very little written or spoken of the element of restlessness that sets worry agoing, says a well-known writer. The wife of a farmer or mechanic or clerk or small storekeeper never settles in her own mind just where she belongs. To use a slang phrase, "She never gets there." Consequently, she never finds a resting place for her mind and body. By the time her house is decently furnished she begins to contrive how it can be made "smart," as the English women would say. The American uses a more objectionable word when she calls it "genteel." The girl takes music lessons, and a piano must be bought. Her children have playfellows who dress well, and she would not have her little ones seem mean or shabby. Everybody who is anybody has two parlors. Our housewife would do her own washing and ironing, and take in "shopwork" privately—yes! and sit up late at night to do it rather than not have the pair of useless, dreary rooms on her first floor that go by that name.

She lives, for the most part, in the basement. Her work is there, and the semi-cellar used as the dining-room is the family parlor when there is no company. It keeps the children's dirt in one place instead of letting it be strewed all over the house; it is cool in summer and warm in winter, and from her afternoon sewing chair by the front windows she can have an eye on "the girl" and the girl's company.

I wonder, sometimes, what would be the effect upon our bustling, worried housewife were she to determine, once for all, just what her sphere in life is, and make up her mind to fulfill the station to which God has called her before straining and panting to climb to a higher. When will we study the old, sadly true and neglected lesson that it is not the duty or trial of today that wears us out, but planning and hoping and dreading for to-morrow?

Napoleon's Grit

was of the unconquerable, never-say-die kind, the kind that you need most when you have a bad cold, cough or lung disease. Suppose troches, cough syrups, cod liver oil or doctors have all failed, don't lose heart or hope. Take Dr. King's New Discovery. Satisfaction is guaranteed when used for any throat or lung trouble. It has saved thousands of hopeless sufferers. It masters stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, hemorrhages, lagrippe, croup, asthma, hay fever and whooping cough and is the most safe and certain remedy for all bronchial affections. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free atH. L. Dunkle's.

WABASH CORNERS.

Roscoe Rickett spent Saturday afternoon in Butler.

J. R. Shilling and wife made a business trip to Auburn Thursday.

Mrs. J. B. White of St. Joe, spent Friday with the correspondent.

George Simanton and family of St. Joe spent Sunday with aunt Em Simanton.

Forest Brown and family of St. Joe spent Sunday with the family of Geo. Pervines.

Miss Jessie Lindsey of Marsailles, Ohio, spent Saturday and Sunday with Miss Lela Shilling.

Mr. and Mrs. John Koch and little grandaughter, Vera, called on J. R. Shilling Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Maude Jenkins spent Wednesday afternoon in Butler the guest of her mother, Mrs. Maxwell.

Charley Moore and family of Butler spent Saturday night and Sunday at the home of Sherman Rickett.

Little Violet Wilson of Orangeville was the guest of her grandparents, Dennis Burley and wife, last week.

Mrs. M. A. Pervines and daughter Pearl and son Winfield, were Sunday afternoon guests of Sherman Wolff and wife.

Mrs. Minnie Ulm and son, Fred, ate dinner with Emanuel Ulm and wife Wednesday and spent the afternoon in Ft. Wayne.

Gladys Paff of California and Lester Houk of west of Spencerville, were the guests of Gene White and family one evening last week.

Depends on Ourselves.

Our own attitude determines our friends or enemies.—Wood.

The world's most successful medicine for bowel complaints is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It has relieved more pain and suffering, and saved more lives than any other medicine in use. Invaluable fof children and adults. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE.
ST. JOE, IND.
Office in Case building.
Bell Phone No. 44.

D. F. BROWN,
.....SHOE SHOP.....
My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite the Postoffice. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.
St. Joe, - Ind.

S. S. Kimes
—M. D.—
Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.
Phone No. 10.
Spencerville, Ind.

Read the ads and be posted.

Band concert Saturday evening.

5% FARM LOANS 5%
SEE
Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.
Bell 347k — Home 346
Office:
Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Kim Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son,

Phone No. Office 37-2. — Residence 37-3

JULY

0461

L 904

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

Local Items

THE NEWS $1.00 per year.

Jessie Moffett, is again visiting her grandparents.

The Masons are building a new covered stairway to their hall.

Miss Violet Tyndall visited last Thursday with Ethel Shutt.

Thrashing coal. W. E. Baxter.

The social the Mission Band was planning to give has been postponed indifinetly.

The Misses Lena and Nellie Kelley visited with Grace and Jessie Cook, last Friday.

Mrs. Pluma Knisely of Harlan, visited Mrs. Mary J. Murray, Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Mariah Oberholtzer spent several days last week with Frank Vanziles and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sunday and family of Angola, visited last week with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smith.

Old junk and rubber brings the highest market price at J. F. Baltz. Come and see him.

Gale Scott and Ruth Chaney of Auburn, came Thursday to visit their friends, the Chaneys and Scott families.

Andrew Hemrick and wife of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Daisy Butler and husband.

Before buying your machine oil see Erick & Co's Eldorado Castor. Only 20c. per gallon. It's a fine one.

Ethel Baker is now in Ft. Wayne and she spent Sunday with her parents at this place, accompanied by two children of her uncle, Mr. Southern.

Last Thursday afternoon and evening, Lloyd Wade and Clyde Rectenwal and wives with a boat and well filled luncheon basket, picnicked along the old St. Joe.

The young people here are enjoying pleasure trips with boats and lunches, on the river as they never have, but surely should. Its as good as a lake if they will just realize it.

Mr. E. Walker of Hicksville, came over in his machine, last Thursday, and took Messrs. John and Henry Beams and families to that place for the day. They attended the races while there,

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gently stimulate the liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system, cure constipation and sick headache. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

The fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Spitler, was celebrated Sunday at their home just north of town. The children and grandchildren and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Leighty of St. Joe, shared in the merriment of the occasion and enjoyed the delightful repast. Ice cream and cake were served in the afternoon. Mrs. Spitler is in very poor health at this time. The day was one long to be remembered by those present.

FRED THOMAS

FARMERS!

should remember that there is always more or less repairing to be done before the fall work comes on. Your drag may need some teeth sharpened and now would be a good time to have it done before they are needed.

All Work Guaranteed.

The Blacksmith.

YOU ARE ALWAYS WELCOME AT THE

TREECE RESTAURANT

Lunch, Cigars, Confectionary, Ice Cream and Soft Drinks

Clem Treece

PROPRIETOR.

Read your own NEWS.

W. W. Fisher spent Sunday with his family.

John Rupert is a new subscriber to THE NEWS.

Lutheran S. S., 88 attendance $2.29 collection.

Bring your old junk and rubber to J. F. Baltz. Prices right.

W. P. Steward and wife were guests of the latter's parents at St. Joe, Sunday.

Mrs. Sommers is spending a few days near Grabill with her son, Will and wife.

Mrs. Clara Lampman of Holgate, Ohio, is visiting with Mrs. Wise and Mrs. Ed Beams.

Bessie Squires of Ft. Wayne, is spending her vacation with her grandmother, Mrs. Beams.

Wallace Wilson and children of Norris Chapel, were guests of relatives Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Baltzer Koontz and granddaughter called on Mrs. Beulah Vallieu, Thursday evening.

Phone us the news or use our item box at the post office. We want all the news, but it is impossible to get it without your help.

Mrs. Ethel Walter and children of Coesse, are guests of her sisters and parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Provines.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawk of Akron, Ohio, who have been visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. S. Cole, returned to their home Saturday.

Dr. K. K. Whelock of Ft. Wayne, and daughter, Mrs. Delworth of Texas, visited Lydia Jane Steward and other relatives, Sunday.

Mirs Malinda Krockenberger and Grandma Shirey of Ft. Wayne, spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. John Shilling.

Mr. R. L. Hull and wife, Jno. Baxter and wife, and Mrs. Mackintosh of Waterloo, motored over Thursday and were accompanied to Hicksville by W. G. Erick and wife, where they all enjoyed the races.

When the stomach fails to perform its functions, the bowels become deranged, the liver and the kidneys congested causing numerous diseases. The stomach and liver must be restored to a healthy condition and Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets can be depended upon to do it. Easy to take and most effective. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. D. Wernert, Spencerville.

Legal matters pertaining to transfer of the old Baltz property to Mr. Markle will be settled this week. Eb Chapman expects to take possession by buying house and three acres of land. The property formerly owned by Mr. Chapman is now for sale.

Raymond Rhodes, wife and daughter Laverne, drove to Huntertown, Saturday evening and returned home Sunday, accompanied by their two daughters, Alene and Lucile, who had been visiting for a few days at that place. Little Miss Laverne remained for a few days visit.

Frank Boger, who has been making an extended tour of the western states, returned to his home last Saturday. He states that in spite of the dry weather here, the crops are just as good as any he saw while away.

Chas. Chapman returned to Illinois, Sunday, to resume his work with the elevator gang.

Worked 24 Hours a Day

The busiest little things ever made are Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar-coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, langour into energy, brain-fag into mental power; curing Constipation, Headache, Chills, Dyspepsia, Malaria, 25c, at H. L. Dunkle's.

Mrs. L. J. Steward is some better at this writing.

Several from this way attended the races at Hicksville last week.

Mrs. Emma Allen is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ben Zimmerman at Harlan, a few days.

Mrs. Fredrick and daughter Olive, of Mich., are visiting friends here, this week.

Mrs. Cora Hart and daughter Pauline, are visiting the former's parents at Streicher, Ohio.

Miss Ruth Youngs of Ft. Wayne, is visiting with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Baltzer Koontz this week.

Jack Beams was at Ft. Wayne the fore part of the week installing furnaces for different parties. He has also improved his store with a new awning in front.

Mrs. Rachel Horn and niece, Mrs. J. R. Leighty, of Kansas City, called on aunt Lydia Steward Wednesday afternoon and took supper with Raymond Rhodes and family.

Bowser & Berry have just received a full car load of Grover's Wheat Fertilizer, which contains no filler except pure animal matter. Call on them for your fertilizer while it lasts.

Teething children have more or less diarrhoea, which can be controlled by giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. All that is necessary is to give the prescribed dose after each operation of the bowels more than natural and then castor oil to cleanse the system. It is safe and sure. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Clarence Steward and Murray Erick made a trip to Hamilton, last Sunday.

Mrs. Draggoo and daughter called on Aunt Lydia Steward, last Wednesday afternoon.

Wm. Miller and family of Harlan visited with J. C. Vallieu and family Sunday.

Rich Culbertson, wife and daughter Ruth, of Auburn, visited with Geo Henderson and family, Wednesday.

John Dove and wife of St. Joe, visited with the former's sister, Mrs. Mable Lake and family, Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. Geo. Henderson and children, and Mrs. Alice Henderson visited with High Roller of Springfield Center, Thursday.

Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is quickly relieved by the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment is equally valuable for muscular rheumatism, and always afford quick relief. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; and W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

We are here to give you a newspaper. Our ambition is to let no item escape us. However, we can only be in one place at a time, so if you see an item getting away from us please capture it and deliver it at this office or put it in the item box at the post office and great shall be your reward.

A Frightful Wreck

of train, automobile or buggy may cause cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains or wounds that demand Bucklen's Arnica Salve—earth's greatest healer. Quick relief and prompt cure results. For burns, boils, sores of all kinds, eczema, chapped hands and lips, sore eyes or corns, its supreme. Surest pile cure. 25c. at H. L. Dunkle's.

He Knew.

"Do you know what to do if the car should break down?" asked the thoughtful mother of the young man who was going to take her daughter out in his new auto.

"Certainly," he answered.

The young people were quite late in returning. The fair young daughter rushed in to her mother and said:

"Oh, mamma, the car did break down. But Jack knew exactly what to do! We—we are engaged!"

Where She Belonged.

"To what state does that young college girl belong who is preparing to take the final examinations?"

"To the state of most of them."

"What is that?"

"The state of collegrs."

W. G. Erick

TRUSTEE

of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY

TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK

at Store in

SPENCERVILLE, IND

Obituary

Lucius Nelson Lake, son of Nathan and Jerusha Lake, was born near Burlington, Vt., Feb. 12th., 1827.

When but eight years of age he moved with his parents to Allen county, Indiana, he continued to live with them until Sept. 28th., 1853, when he and Miss Margaret E. Tyndall were united in marriage.

They resided in Allen county until the year 1866, when they removed to DeKalb county, Indiana, one mile east of Spencerville, where they were residing when God called His faithful servant to eternal rest.

To this union were born twelve children, three girls and nine boys, one girl and one boy preceeded him to the Heavenly home in their infancy.

A wife, ten children, twenty grandchildren, five great grandchildren, a brother and a large circle of friends remain to mourn the loss of a faithful, devoted husband, a loving father, a brother and friend that was always true and loyal exemplifying the Christ in whose footsteps he was striving to follow.

He gave his heart to God when a young man, later united with the M. E church and remained a faithful member until his death. He and his wife have been devoted members to the class at Spencerville for many years and his earnest prayers will long be remembered by the older members of the class.

For the past twelve years his failing health, the loss of his sight and hearing have kept him away from the church in person, but that devoted spirit continued to commune with God even in the dark hours of affliction, until the Master said, "It is enough come Home, and quietly peacefully that spirit passed over into the Celestial world to dwell with its Redeemer throughout the years of Eternity.

Jesus, Thou Prince of life,
Thy chosen can not die;
Like Thou, they conquer in the strife
To reign with Thee on high.

AMERICA'S TIMBER MINE.

One in New Jersey in Operation More Than One Hundred Years.

The wood mines of upper Tonkin, China, are not any more curious than a wood mine that has been in operation in New Jersey for more than 100 years. This mine is at Dennisville, in the swampy region of south New Jersey, and yields cedar such as grows nowhere on this continent to-day. The fallen and submerged forest is believed to be prehistoric. Logs have been mined from it more than six feet in diameter.

These ancient cedars have a delicate flesh-colored wood, and if it is a tree that was alive when it fell, the same pungent flavor when cut as pervades our common red cedar. The dead trunks are odorless. The logs lie in heaps or layers, and it has not been determined yet how many layers there are below the top stratum the miners uncover.

When these prehistoric cedars were first discovered and for 80 years afterward they afforded remunerative and constant employment to many persons who mined the logs, and to-day they are a source of considerable income to those who continue to raise the logs. The cedars are cut up into shingles and staves and made into pails and tubs and other wooden vessels. The great endurance of the wood is noted in shingles made from it a century ago and which are as sound to-day as when they were first put in use.

Near the Delaware river, eight miles west of Dennisville, cedars of the same variety have been found at a depth of 12 feet. At Cape May, on the Atlantic coast, 20 miles east, in drilling an artesian well an alluvial deposit similar to the Dennisville swamp was found at the depth of 90 feet and the drill entered a cedar log and bored into it more than six feet before its diameter was entirely pierced. This tree was alive when it fell, no telling how many thousands of years ago.

Those Pies of Boyhood.

How delicious were the pies of boyhood. No pies now ever taste so good. what's changed? the pies? No. Its you. You've lost the strong, healthy stomach the vigorous liver, the active kidneys, the regular bowels of boyhood. Your digestion is poor and you blame the food. what's needed? A complete toning up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Try them. They will restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c. at H. L. Dunkle's.

A Bright Lawyer.

An eminent lawyer was once cross-examining a very clever woman, mother of the plaintiff in a breach of promise action, and was completely worsted in the encounter of wits. At the close, however, he turned to the jury and exclaimed: "You saw, gentlemen, that even I was but a child in her hands. What must my client have been?" By this adroit stroke of advocacy he turned his failure into a success.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad

VERY LOW FARES TO

Mountain Lake Park, Md.—July 29-August 23.
Chicago—Triennial Conclave, Knights Templar Aug. 5-8.
Milwaukee, Wis., Grand Lodge, Knights of Pyth- July 29- Aug. 1.

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO—Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES—South Southwest, West, Northwest.

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST, Long Limits.

Consult BALTIMORE & OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stopover Privileges and Other Detailes.

CORRESPONDENCE

ITEMS FROM DIFFERENT LOCALITIES WRITTEN FOR THE NEWS

COUNTY LINE NEWS.

Dave Luttman went to Auburn, Saturday.

Zulu Sponhour spent a few days at home, last week.

Mrs. Cora Sponhour entertained the Soap Club, Thursday.

Chris Stuckey lost the stallion Dewey, Saturday evening.

Mrs. Mary Luttman called at Rose Lawn, one day last week.

T. A. Farner and wife spent Sunday with Solomon Goldsmiths'.

Henry Rakestraw, wife and family went to Auburn, Saturday.

E. J. Armstrong and family spent Saturday at Butler Center.

Charley Corneli and wife will move to the Nabig farm, this week.

A. E. Sponhour and family spent Sunday with Chas. Huffmans'.

B. A. Rhoads and family called at Rose Lawn, Sunday afternoon.

William Gross and family spent last week with E. J. Armstrong and family.

Milton Simanton and wife took dinner with W. T. Wyatt and wife, Sunday.

Milton Simanton and wife spent Saturday with John Simanton and wife.

Minnie Keister and Geo. Haifley spent Sunday with Albert Peters and wife.

Miss Adelpha Arnold of Auburn, spent a few days with A. E. Sponhour and family.

Clarence Sponhour and wife took Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Otto.

Ida Lamtz, Alda Stiner and Mamie Blough spent Sunday afternoon with Anis Watson.

William Armstrong and family of near Auburn, spent Sunday with E. J. Armstrong and family.

William Kitchen of Dayton, Ohio is visiting with his cousin, Mrs. William Wyatt and family.

Jake Grim and wife spent last Thursday with their daughter, Mrs. William Watson and family.

William Wyatt and Wm. Kitcher went to St. Joe, Monday, and Mr. Kitcher returned to his home in Dayton.

Earl Stiman and Estha Farver, and Pearl Armstrong spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Goldie Hobbs of Harlan.

Mrs. Kathrine Baker and children of Fresno, Cal., are spending a few days with her brother, Geo. Rinehold and family.

William Smith and family of Harlan, and Mrs. Robertson of Kalamazoo, Mich., spent Sunday with their mother, Mrs. Geo. Keister.

Geo. McNutt has about completed some extensive repairs to his farm buildings. The house has been remodeled and painted and other buildings painted.

Mrs. Henry Thomas of Kendallville, G. W. Burtzner of Butler Center, Mrs. Kathrine Baker of Fresno, Cal., Sam High and wife, Clay Rinehold and wife, Sam Turney, Rev. Harper, Miss Velma and Blair Baker, and R. R. Wyatt and wife, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rinehold.

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

THE SLIGHTED CHORUS BOY.

An Inoffensive Chap Whose Youth Is Spent in Longing for a "Chance."

So much has been said, written and sung of the chorus girl that the chorus boy, who plays an equally important part in the musical comedy, is rarely remembered. That his martial entrance saves many a woman from hysteria and many a strong man from a bad case af nausea, few theatergoers realize. No matter how brilliant the gowns of the chorus girl, as she dances on to the scene, nor how beautiful her face, she cannot hold the situation after the first few moments of admiration without the aid of the chorus boy, who completes the picture and gives foundation to the song.

The chorus boy has little to say of himself; he gives the laurels to the chorus girl. By the chorus boy is meant the healthy, ambitious chap who not only works, sings and dances in the chorus, but who lives within his means and dresses in quiet taste.

He is very much in evidence, and deserves recognition, but his voice and ability wait years sometimes for an opportunity. His home life, like that of all the theatrical profession, is usually in a $3 room, and his places for dining those frequented by theatrical people.

He is not only studying the solos of the company with whom he is traveling, but he is adding to his repertoire a number of sacred songs from the best composers, and these songs are often admirably rendered in the churches of the town where the chorus boy is known.

In the room of a man with this taste for good music one will find good books, in lighter vein, good pictures, and few but cherished photographs. He is more systematic than the chorus girl, probably because his wardrobe is simpler and his changes fewer.

His reasons for going into the business are very much like the fellow who starts to sweep out the office of the wholesale manufactory. He hopes some time to be one of the firm, or have a business of his own. So the chorus man hopes to gradually work from the last man in the chorus to the first, from the first to a small part, and from the small part to the goal of his ambition—the man around whom the opera is written, with songs that are sold in the audience and hummed on the street.

Above everything the chorus man tries to keep under the same management until his opportunity comes, for so unimportant has he been made, by the oversight of the public, that new managers look upon him as an amateur until he proves himself experienced by some miraculous opportunity.

Does not Color the Hair

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Stops Falling Hair Destroys Dandruff

An Elegant Dressing Makes Hair Grow

Composed of Sulphur, Glycerin, Quinin, Sodium Chlorid, Capsicum, Sage, Alcohol, Water, Perfume. Ask your doctor his opinion of such a hair preparation.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Does not Color the Hair

J. C. AYER COMPANY, Lowell, Mass.

JULY

0462

L 904

In Cupid's Behalf

By MORTIMER CARLTON

Although Harriet and I have lived in New York for nearly three years, we have not become reconciled to the aloofness and indifference with which most dwellers in the metropolis seem to regard their neighbors. We still observe the people next door with a kindly curiosity in keeping with the traditions of the little town where we were born, brought up, and married.

It was a June evening when first we noticed our neighbors. Harriet and I were sitting in the twilight of our little parlor, dreaming together of the cool woodland haunts we had once frequented. In the midst of our reminiscences Harriet's attention was suddenly drawn to the window.

"Frederic!" she whispered. "Do look. Be careful, or she'll see you. • • • The poor thing! I wonder what the matter is!"

Peeping over Harriet's shoulder I saw a girl, dressed in black, seated at the fifth floor parlor window opposite but a few feet above ours. There was something appealing in her attitude.

Presently she got up and lighted the gas. The next instant a gray-haired man entered the room.

"Sibly is coming," we heard him say, as he threw himself into the chair by the window. "He wants a definite answer tonight."

The girl made no reply. She was standing in the middle of the room, and Harriet and I could see the despair in her large, dark eyes.

"Well, why don't you say something?" the man exclaimed.

"What is there to say, father?"

"You might at least try to be cheerful, Justine," he complained. "Heaven knows, I am no more taken with the idea of your marrying a man like Sibley than you are. But how can I help it? A word from him and I am worse than ruined."

"Very well, father," the girl replied, wearily. "When Mr. Sibley comes, you may tell him what you please. "But"—with a little shiver of repulsion—"don't ask me to see him."

She passed quickly into the next room.

In a moment, our attention was drawn to the "horrid man" across the area. He had arisen from the chair and left the room. He returned, accompanied by a clean shaven man of middle stature, rather portly, and very deliberate in his movements.

"Where's Justine?" the visitor asked.

"She's indisppsed, Sibley," his host replied. "But she has left the matter to me."

"Look here, Bullard," Sibley said suspiciously. "I don't come here to listen to evasions. I came for a definite answer."

"I know you did," Justine's father replied petulantly. "But you needn't snarl at me because my daughter doesn't feel equal to seeing you. It isn't my fault. I've done——"

"What is her answer?" Sibley interrupted.

"Oh, she consents, just as I told you she would."

"Good!" exclaimed Sibley, and Harriet and I saw his smile of triumph, and hated him for it.

His smile quickly gave place, however, to a crafty expression.

"If I'm to get you out of your scrape, Bullard," he went on, "we shall have to be married right away. The post office people are suspicious, and they may spring a surprise any moment."

"Will Monday evening do?" asked Bullard, his face pale with fear. "I—I don't think I—that my daughter will consent to an earlier date."

Sibley eyed his host a second. Then he said:

"Very well. Monday evening at seven. Leave all the details to me Bullard. All you will have to do is to keep quiet. Mind you say nothing of this to that fellow Colby. He's likely to cause trouble."

"Leonard Colby. That's the man Justine loves."

"Impossible, I protested. "Why, I know Leonard Colby. He is one of our coming lawyers. And anyway, Harriet, it's his affair, not ours."

"But don't you see, Frederic?" Harriet exclaimed. "Mr. Colby doesn't suspect what a predicament Justine is in."

"Why doesn't Justine tell him, then?" I urged. "You say she loves him."

"Of course she does, and that's the reason why she can't tell him. He hasn't proposed yet! And," my wife went on, "he must propose before Monday! Since you know him, Frederic, don't tell me that our overhearing isn't providential. You must see him first thing in the morning. For that poor girl's sake I hope we are not too late."

Early the next morning I called at Colby's office.

Colby, however, was out. He had left word, his clerk said, that he would be detained up town all day.

"It's too awful, Fred," cried Harriet as I reached home. "Mr. Colby came this morning, and Justice has refused him."

"It's Justine's pride," Harriet explained. "She just couldn't bring herself to reveal the family skeleton to Mr. Colby. Don't you see, Fred? She has had to decide between the honor of her name and her love for him. And the saddest part of it is," Harriet added, "that the sacrifice is perfectly absurd. Her father doesn't deserve it. Her family name isn't worth it, and we must prevent it."

And so I went to Colby's office again. This time I found him at his desk. His naturally sunny countenance was clouded with gloom, and his response to my greeting was an inarticulate growl.

Presently I induced him to unburden himself. What he told me confirmed my wife's theory of the situation. But more than that, it made evident to me that Justine's refusal had struck at something deeper than his vanity.

"I've done something, or said something," he groaned, "that made her lose faith in me."

"Nonsense," I declared, "there's another man. What is her father doing?"

"Floating gold mines. That is another thing that worries me. If he's not careful, he will get himself into trouble with the postal authorities."

"Who are his associates?" I asked.

"Well, there's Wollford, and Sibley, and——".

"Ah, Sibley. Who is he?"

"The silent partner. He supplies the money."

"Married?" I continued.

"I don't know. I haven't heard," Colby replied listlessly. "What are you getting at?"

"Could anything be plainer?" I cried. "Her father, impoverished and eager to recoup his fortune—a charming dutiful daughter—a wealthy banker." I got up preparatory to departure. "Look up Sibley—and don't let any more grass grow under your feet!"

"Jove Fred," Colby responded. "You're a wonder!"

"Nothing of the kind," I disclaimed. "Simply a married man. Which reminds me," I added. "My wife wants you to dine with us Monday evening. Dinner at six-thirty. Be punctual. My wife insists on punctuality. But you will find her rather clever as solving puzzles like yours.

The final act in our little drama was brief, but full of surprises.

At quarter past six on Monday evening Justine, already dressed for her wedding journey and looking far from happy, lighted her parlor gas and—very carefully pulled down the shades. This was a contingency which neither Harriet nor I had foreseen, and our consternation quite bereft us of wit.

Before we had recovered sufficiently to discuss so serious a miscarriage of our plan with the calmness it demanded, we were further appaled to find that a full quarter of an hour had elapsed and that Colby had not yet appeared.

Then Harriet saw two shadows, unmistakeably masculine, pass across the Bullard window shades.

"It's Sibley and the minister," she exclaimed. "I know it is! Frederic, if Mr. Colby does not come in three minutes, I am going over and tell the minister."

"Now my dear," I remonstrated. "You musn't get excited."

I went to the window and craned my neck in futile effort to get a view of the street. I was inwardly anathematizing a system of architecture which so brutally limits the outlook from a rear apartment to the walls of the adjacent buildings, when I became aware of an unusual stir in the neighborhood. Glancing upward, I saw a cloud of smoke rising from the next street and spreading above the roof of Bullard's apartment.

"Harriet!" I cried. "There's a fire in the next street. It may be the front apartments in Justine's house."

My wife came to the window.

"I wish I could see something," I added giving way to the excitement that was in the air.

"What time is it?" Harriet asked.

"Quarter of seven."

"And Mr. Colby not here!" Harriet gasped. "He will be too late. I know he will!" She looked at me with sudden determination. "Frederic throw a book at Justine's window. Throw it hard, and then we'll both cry 'fire!' We must gain time somehow."

I turned to pick up a book. But just as I drew back my arm to hurl it, Harriet exclaimed.

"There's Mr. Colby—coming up the fire escape!"

Looking down, I saw Mr. Colby clammering up the fire escape to Bullard's house. He made for Justine's apartment on the top floor. Once on her balcony he flung open the window, tore the shade from its sockets and plunged into the room.

Two men stood staring at him—Bullard and Sibley.

"Where's Justine?" Colby pants. "Quick! House afire—stairway cut off—go down fire escape!"

His voice brought Justine. For a brief second the four made a tableau, Colby breathing heavily, the others gazing at him as if he were an apparition. Then Sibley, awoke to the significance of Colby's warning. His eyes turned furtively from Colby to the window, and with a rush he gained the balcony and fairly slid down the ladder.

His frenzied exit aroused the others.

"You next, father," said Justine.

Her father did not stop to argue the order of their going. Like Sibley he seemed quite willing to entrust Justine to Colby.

Justine followed him, and then came Colby. As they began to descend, Colby glanced up and recognized us. He smiled broadly and waved his hand. It flashed upon me then that he had exaggerated the extent of the fire to suit his purpose. It was as I learned later, a small affair which the firemen had confined to the basement of Bullard's house.

"Well," I said to Harriet, "that ends our part."

But it didn't. There remained the wedding. Harriet was matron of honor, and I was best man. Sibley was not present. Colby has "looked him up" so effectually that he had found it expedient to take a long vacation in Europe.

FIJIAN COMMUNISM

NATIVES OF THE ISLANDS HAVE ALL THINGS IN COMMON.

Dr. Basil Wilson, on the Staff of British Government Physicians, Talks Interestingly of the People, Their Habits and Customs.

Accounts of a primitive communism in actual present working are brought by Dr. Basil Wilson, who is on a visit to Montreal. Dr. Wilson comes direct from Fiji, where he has lived for the last seven years, and reports that the natives of those islands still have all things in common.

"The land is held by the community," he told a representative of the Family Herald, "and each man has his little patch given him to work. Then, whether his crop is big or little, he draws his share out of the common produce. The chief gets a larger share than the other members of the tribe, but each has a right to his share, which is settled by tribal custom.

"Nor is this the only form of communism at work. Not all the land is held by the natives. They are able to sell and have sold land to white men and to natives of India, who reside in Fiji in large numbers. In such cases the land is sold by the tribe and the proceeds of the sale are divided among the tribe as is the produce of their lands."

Dr. Wilson stated that the native population of the islands was about 120,000, while there are 35,000 Indians and four or five thousand whites. The Indians have come over from India under indenture to work the sugar plantations. They are indentured for five years and then are free to stay in the islands or return, as they wish. After spending five years as free men in Fiji they are entitled to a free passage back to India, but comparatively few avail themselves of it. They find life so much easier in Fiji that they prefer to stay. They go into gardening and small trading chiefly. Their success in trading has given rise to some feeling against them on the part of the small white trader, but there is no such problem as has arisen in South Africa in this regard.

Dr. Wilson is a member of the far-flung line of the British government service. He is one of a staff of government physicians who are charged with the care of the natives and the indentured Indians. They are also allowed to practise privately among the white and free Indian population. There are at present only two private physicians in Fiji; they live in Suva, the capital, where the white population is large. The period of service of the government physicians is seven years and Dr. Wilson is now on his way home on a year's furlough.

Carnegie's Daughter.

Margaret Carnegie, daughter of Andrew Carnegie, is an almost constant companion of her father. She is bright and vivacious, thoroughly unspoiled, and is excellent company for the multimillionaire on his strolls in Central park. She is so strong and healthy now that she no longer gives her parents any worry, but instead is full of animal spirits and strength. She has been trained after the manner of the Scotch and is thoroughly unaffected. She has her father's keeness of mind. Several years ago she gave her parents much worry. She sprained her ankle in Skibo castle and for more than a year she was compelled to wear a brace. It was feared she might be a cripple permanently. That trouble, however, was cured and the girl who some day may inherit more than $100,000,000 now is thoroughly strong.

Holds Record for Titled Suitors.

Always at the feet of the lovely Miss Marie Gebhard kneel princes and dukes, each imploring her to bestow on him her hand—and incidentally her great fortune. She is the daughter of the late William Gebhard of New York and first cousin of Mrs. Frederick Wilson and Frederic Gebhard. Miss Gebhard and her mother have lived in Paris several years. Admiring rumor has it that she has rejected more titled suitors than any woman of her native country or, indeed, of Europe. Actually she has been compelled to take long journeys to escape the noblemen attracted by her beauty, wealth and wit.—New York World.

The Chorus Girl.

Antionette Berton contributes to Harper's Weekly an account of her investigation of the chorus girl. "It takes all sorts of girls to make a chorus," says one whom she interviewed. "You have girls from 'most every state of the Union and from nearly every country of the globe. You have lively girls and scholarly girls, improvident girls, and girls who save—girls who are fond of autos and champagne, girls who are drudges and never go out. The average chorus girl is a hard worker—she has to be—and she is, as a rule, a good girl, although she may be careless in her speech and enjoy a good time.."

Sweet Peace.

"Mrs. Naggett," said the doctor, "your husband needs a rest. He must go to Hastings for three months."

"Oh, splendid!" she exclaimed. "I'll be delighted to go there."

"Very good. You go there for three months after he comes back. That will give him six months' rest."—Tit-Bits.

CARRIES BIG LIFE POLICY

Prince Henry of Prussia Said to Have Insurance Amounting to $10,000,000 Against Assassination.

In appearance Prince Henry of Prussia, who is one of the cleverest and possibly one of the most distinguished of Queen Victoria's grandsons, bears a striking resemblance to King George V., and, like his majesty, is the sailor of the family. His first love of the sea was acquired under somewhat curious circumstances. In 1871 the Crown Princess Frederick took her two elder boys for a change of air to Wyk, a primitive little bathing place on the Schleswig coast. The interest of the young princes was aroused when one day a small yacht anchored off the village, and they appeared to have a keen desire for a closer inspection of the vessel. The owner became aware of this and offered to conduct them over his yacht and to take them out for a sail. Their mother graciously gave her consent, with the result that before the trip was over the younger had fully decided to become a sailor.

It is said that Prince Henry holds the unique distinction of being the only man—royalist or commoner—who is insured against assassination. He has an insurance of a sum approaching $10,000,000 against being killed by the hand of an assassin. Some years ago, when the prince took command of the German fleet in Chinese waters, this policy was taken out. The risk is believed to be held solely by German companies. An ardent motorist, his imperial highness' passion in this respect is exemplified by the following story: While out driving with a friend one day they noticed ahead of them a slow-moving goods van, the driver of which appeared absolutely regardless of the approach of the motor car. Presently the prince's car sped past. "Yer fathead!" exclaimed the man, "you might as well 'ave asked me to make room for you." The prince immediately applied his brakes and the car came to a standstill. After a moment's discussion his companion returned to the complacent van driver and inquired, "Did you mean his royal highness to be a fathead?" "But," stuttered the other, "I—I didn't know!" "His royal highness is sure of that," said the prince's companion. "Take this," he added, handing him a gold coin, "as a present from his royal highness, because you are the first man who has called him a fathead!"

Climate Affected by Deforestation.

That the stripping of trees from a country has a bad effect on the climate is indicated by the following account by a traveler in the interior of China: "Kansu is the poorest of all the provinces of China and the most inaccessible by reason of its defective communications. Devastated by Mohammedan insurrection in the years from 1861 to 1878, it has never recovered from the ravages to which it was then subjected. The ruins everywhere of what were once thriving towns and villages impress the traveler with a sense of the horrors of insurrection in China. Insurrection means extermination of the vanquished—no quarter to old or young, to man or woman. Loss of life during the great insurrection amounted to millions, and even in the short insurrection of 1896 the destruction of life was appalling. The province now needs repeopling, but in the absence of communications the work is difficult. It is a treeless province. There has been universal destruction of timber. Even the fine avenue of willows and poplars planted by Tso Tsung-t'ang between the two capitals is fast disappearing. Deforestation is profoundly affecting the climate. When rain falls it falls with such violence that it scars the face of the country, which is everywhere covered with soft loess (clay) of varying thickness, with no vegetation to bind the soil together."

America's Wine to the Rescue.

If there is one thing more than another that Europe prides and plumes herself upon and crows and brags about to prove her undoubted superiority to America in land, blood and brain, that thing is surely wine. Every European regards his vine and its wine tree as a sure sign from heaven that Europe is the world's only real true man's land, saying America is a harsh land and inhospitable, where the grape can never, never mellow into the true bliss of a perfect wine. American grape vines are the salvation of the wine industry of this whole world, and without them Morgan or Rothschild or King William for all the world's power and wealth could not take one sip of champagne, Johannesberger, Hock or Liebfraumilch and be assured of having it from year to year.—New York Press.

Purified by Trial.

He that can apprehend and consider vice with all her baits and seeming pleasures, and yet abstain and yet distinguish and yet prefer that which is truly better, he is the true warfaring Christian. I cannot praise a fugitive and cloistered virtue, unexercised and unbreathed, that never sallies out and sees her adversary, but slinks out of the race, where that immortal garland is to be run for, not without dust and heat. Assuredly we bring not innocence into the world, we bring impurity much rather; that which purifies us is trial, and trial is by what is contrary.—Milton.

Two Sides.

Author—My books sell like hot cakes.

Critic—Yes, and they are just about as hard to digest.—Judge.

Armour's Fertilizers

Increase the yield—Improve the quality—Enrich the soil. Every harvest proves it. Can you afford to risk your wheat? Be safe.

Armour's Fertilizers grow the biggest crops. Ask your dealer.

Armour Fertilizer Works
Chicago

(70)

IMPROVING MORALS IN CHINA

Influence of Christian Teachings Shown in the Changed Conditions Found There.

"The public conscience is now being awakened upon this aspect of public morality. Last week I was invited to take part in a meeting organized by men who are not directly connected with any Christian church, but who are sincerely desirous of assisting in the reformation of their countrymen. Their purpose was to start an antigambling league, and with this in mind they called a public meeting, which was attended by some hundreds of Chinese scholars and business men, and resolutions were passed in approved public meeting style, approving of a campaign against the gambling vice. Members of the Chinese Young Men's Christian association were asked to assist in the meeting, and to demonstrate by the means of games the possibility of recreation without vice. Suitable addresses were given by prominent Chinese, and the chief organizer of the movement is one of the government education inspectors for the provinces of Kiangsu and Kiangsi. A Chinese Roman Catholic teacher gave a violin solo, a Chinese secretary of the Young Mens' Christian association rendered two cornet solos, and a Protestant missionary sang to the gathering. The whole meeting was conducted in so orderly and orthodox a fashion that it was scarcely possible to realize how tremendous a reformation in the whole Chinese outlook upon public life this meeting revealed. Twenty years, even ten years, ago such a meeting would not have been within the realm of possibility. Today we have a class of public moralists arising who have undoubtedly learned from Christianity in their midst the ideals which they are desirous of impressing upon their countrymen."

Is Dirt Good for Boys?

Some folks say: "Oh, let the boy play in the dirt. It is good for him. I wouldn't give a cent for a boy that keeps his clothes clean." That may be all right, but what about the boy's mother? Getting the dirt out of clothes by the use of old-fashioned yellow soap and a slow washday method is hard labor. If the boy's mother uses Easy Task laundry soap, which does half the work for her itself, and which reduces washday labor by fifty per cent, it is different. Easy Task is five cents a cake and is the greatest nickel's worth of soap ever sold.

Confused Impressions.

"Of course, you know the story of William Tell," said the serious citizen.

"To tell you the truth," replied Mr. Cumrox, "I'm not clear about him. I can't exactly remember whether he was a great marksman or a famous opera singer."

Novelty.

"I thought you told me you had something original in this libretto," said the manager, scornfully. "Here at the very outset you have a lot of merry villagers singing, 'We are happy and gay!'"

"You don't catch the idea at all," replied the poet wearily. "The 'g' is soft. It should be pronounced 'happy and jay.'"

Back to the Tall Timber.

Alfred—Are you going to pass your vacation at the seashore?

Gilbert—No, thank you. It's the woods for mine this year.

Alfred—Don't like the shore, eh?

Gilbert—Oh, I like it well enough, but it's too risky. I passed my vacation there last year and had several narrow escapes.

Alfred—From drowning?

Gilbert—No; summer girls. Seven of them proposed to me.

Aims and the Man.

"Sure Father Flaherty was a good man," Mr. Murphy said of the deceased parish priest. "He hated sin but he loved th' sinner, an' he was all compassion an' patience an' wisdom. There never was another loike 'im f'r holdin' up hope to th' poor batthered man that had anny desire f'r good.

"'Faith,' said he to Con Meehan, th' toime th' bh'y was down an' out, 'faith, this soide av paradise 'tist all beginning again, over an' over, an' tin toimes over!'

"An' that keen," continued Mr. Murphy, "'twas niver worth whoile to keep back part av th' price av th' land! Wid a twinkle in his eye he'd see clean through anny Ananias that iver walked.

"An' gin'rous!" Mr. Murphy's voice dropped to a lower key and his eyes were wet as he added, "His hand was always in his pocket an' whin they prepared him f'r burial they found his right arm longer than his left wid stretchin' it out to th' poor."—Youth's Companion.

VISIONARY.

Jiggson—If a man could only sell coal at the north pole or ice in hades!

Wiggson—But that's out of the question.

Juggson—I know; but, gee! just think of the prices he could get!

Autoing and Optics.

"Is not auto driving terribly hard on the eyes?" we asked.

"Well, I guess not," replied the chauffeur, withering us with scorn. "Why, before I got to runnin' a car I was thinkin' o' gettin' specks, my eyesight was that poor I couldn't see the contribution box in church until it was so near past me it was too late to dig for any money. But I hadn't been runnin' that wagon two days till I could see a policeman's little finger stickin' out from behind a tree four miles away. I could even see which way a copper's eyeballs were turned if he was standin' in the shade three miles off. Hard on the eyes! Well, not much! It's the best medicine for weak eyes that was ever invented, don't you forget it."

His Claim to Prominence.

At a social gathering a certain man, intent on knowing every one, was introduced to Senator Julius C. Burrows of Michigan.

"The name Burrows is very familiar to me," he said. "I am certain that you are a man of some prominence."

"Yes," replied Senator Burrows, "I am the man that 'died at first' just before Casey came to bat in that celebrated ball game in Mudville."—Success Magazine.

Old Advice.

Manager—You never get this scene right. Your business with the sweet peas is all wrong and you forget when you are to speak—you get your lines all mixed up.

Actress—All right, sir, I'll be more attentive and fix the sweet peas and try to get my lines in the right place.

Manager—Your course is very simple. Just mind your peas and cues.—Baltimore American.

Small Job.

Him—I was confused for a bit, I confess, but it took me only a moment to collect my wits—

Her—Yes, it couldn't take any longer than that. Go on!

Sometimes a woman keeps on telling people how smart her husband is until she actually believes it.

Mortgage the ship for all it's worth before giving it up.

A Dream of Ease—

Post Toasties

NO COOKING!

An economical hot weather luxury—food that pleases and satisfies at any meal. So good you'll want more.

Served right from the package with cream or milk. Especially pleasing with fresh berries.

"The Memory Lingers"

Pkgs. 10c and 15c
Sold by Grocers

Postum Cereal Co., Limited
Battle Creek, Mich.

JULY

0463

L 904

MEDICAL MEMBERS BURY HATCHET

Will Not Call for Any Resignations.

GOVERNOR RESTORES PEACE

Brings to End Fight in Board of Medical Registration in Mysterious Manner—Members Silent.

Indianapolis.—The cordial relations that appeared to exist among the members of the state board of medical registration and examination after their meeting with Governor Marshall evidenced a suspension of hostilities. Whether the governor waved a magic wand amid the assembly or wielded a stout hickory sprout is not known, for all refused to talk. They all admitted the hatchet had been buried, but those on the outside who know are convinced that the conflict between the osteopaths and the allopaths is irreconcilable and will be revived at the next session of the Indiana general assembly.

Governor Marshall thought the dissension in the board caused by the petition to bar Dr. John F. Spaunhurst from giving the usual part of the state examination had been exaggerated. The governor said there was a better understanding among the board members when the conference adjourned and that there was an amicable feeling all around.

"Will any member of the board be asked to resign?" the governor was asked.

"Not by any means," he replied. "I have no reason to call for any resignations. I believe the board will continue to perform its duties without internal friction. I called the members into consultation to find if there was any real trouble."

The governor may have read the riot act to the warring factions, but if he did they kept very silent about it. Dr. W. A. Spurgeon of Muncie was asked for a statement about what transpired, but said he was in a hurry to catch a train.

The chairman of the legislative council of the allopathic school, Dr. W. N. Wishard, who was charged with having been responsible for the circulation of the petition, smiled as if he were an Insurgent coming down from Sagamore Hill at the close of the meeting.

It is stated positively that the "regulars" will endeavor to have a law passed by the next legislature providing that osteopaths be denied the degree of doctor of medicine, and be known as doctors of osteopathy, or something similar.

May Regard All Outside Relations.

In placing the valuation of a corporation's property in the state the state board of tax commissioners may include in its calculations the relations the corporation operating in the state has with corporations in adjoining states, according to a ruling by Judge Charles Remster in the Marion circuit court. Judge Remster gave a special finding of facts in the case of the Postal Telegraph Cable company against the Indiana state board of tax commissioners. The plaintiff corporation will appeal the case.

By taking into consideration the relations of the corporation to other corporations the tax board listed the valuation at $45 a wire-mile within the state, making the total valuation $424,764. The company contended that as an Indiana corporation it should not be taxed for outside relations by adding them to the net property value in the state, and brought suit for an injunction against the various county tax officers of the state.

Attorney General Bingham showed that the corporation in the state was controlled by the Commercial Cable company through a deed of trust made to the Farmers Loan and Trust company of Indianapolis. It was shown also that all affairs were directed from an eastern office.

Governor Addresses Boys.

The largest class ever graduated from the eighth grade of the Indiana Boys' school received diplomas. Gov. Thomas R. Marshall delivered the class address, in which he compared life to a ball game and from this drew several points; no cheating; contentment with duty; relation of umpire and players. After the address a violin solo was rendered by Katharine, the small daughter of Superintendent E. E. York, with Ester Milhouse as piano accompanist. Guy H. Humphrey, president of the board of control, presented the diplomas, and said that of the three former classes graduated not one boy had been returned for violation of his parole.

Examine Applicants for Professions.

Examinations were given at the state house by the state board of medical registration and examination, the state board of pharmacy and the state board of veterinary examiners. Ninety-four applicants for licenses to practise medicine reported for examination, 85 took the pharmacy examinations and two the examinations for veterinarians. In addition to the veterinary applicants, who took the examination, licenses will be issued to 38 graduates of recognized colleges, who filed credentials with the board.

Marshall Names Prison Delegates.

Indiana delegates to the meeting of the American Prison association at Washington, D. C., September 30, and to the International Prison congress, which merges into the American meeting October 3 were appointed by Governor Marshall. Those representing institutions of the state will have their expenses paid; others must pay their own expenses. The list of delegates follows:

American Prison association: Representing the Indiana state prison, James D. Reid, warden, and Herbert R. Koffell, Knox; Indiana reformatory, Superintendent D. C. Peyton and Alvin Padgett, Washington; Indiana Boys' school, Superintendent E. E. York, Plainfield, and Guy H. Humphries, Bloomfield; Indiana Woman's prison, Miss Emily E. Rhoades, superintendent, Indianapolis, and Mrs. Nettie A. Wilson, Lafayette; Indiana Girls' school, Miss Charlotte Dye, superintendent, Clermont, and Mrs. L. G. Ellingham, Decatur; Mrs. Julia E. Work, Plymouth; Robert W. Miers, Bloomington; Judge T. E. Howard, South Bend; Judge James A. Pritchard, Indianapolis; Judge Luke E. Wrigley, Albion; Martin J. Hyland, Indianapolis; Judge James A. Collins, Indianapolis; Judge Charles M. Fortune, Terre Haute; Prof. Cecil C. North, Greencastle; Eugene H. Iglehart, Evansville; Patrick O'Brien, South Bend, and Judge Francis E. Bowser, Warsaw.

International Prison congress: Indiana State prison, Warden James D. Reid and Robert C. Houston, Frankfort; Indiana reformatory, Superintendent D. C. Peyton and Dr. H. C. Sharp, Indianapolis; Indiana Boys' school, Superintendent E. E. York and H. C. Schloss, Indianapolis; Indiana Woman's prison, Miss Rhoades and Mrs. Fanny McKee, Indianapolis; Indiana Girls' school, Miss Dye and Mrs. Arminta A. Kern, Indianapolis; Judge M. F. Parr, Lebanon; Judge Edward O'Rourke, Fort Wayne; C. M. Kimbrough, Muncie; Thomas E. Ellison, Fort Wayne; Timothy Nicholson, Richmond; Judge George W. Stubbs, Indianapolis; Judge J. L. Kirkpatrick, Kokomo; Sydney B. Davis, Terre Haute; W. H. Hart, Indianapolis; Prof. U. G. Weatherly, Bloomington, and Prof. H. C. Tuttle, Crawfordsville.

Inspected Cattle Killed for Test.

The 200 delegates that attended the semi-annual meeting of the State Veterinarians' association witnessed the killing and exhibition of five carcasses of cattle infected with tuberculosis. The demonstration was given as the feature of the second day of the twenty-eighth annual convention. Complete laboratory methods were employed in diagnosing the cases and in exhibiting the effects of the disease. The demonstrations were given at the state biological laboratory north of the fair grounds, where the convention sessions have been held.

Dr. J. M. Wright of Chicago, state veterinarian, was in charge of the tuberculosis tests. He was assisted by United States Government Inspector Mattatall of East St. Louis. After the tests were made, photographs of the carcasses were taken and will be preserved as part of the records of the meeting.

Among the speakers on the closing day of the meeting were Dr. A. T. Peters of this city, superintendent of the laboratory, who addressed the convention on "Tuberculosis and Animal Diseases," State Veterinarian Paul Juckiness of Lincoln, Neb.; Dr. J. M. Wright of Chicago, Chairman Phil B. Haner of the live stock commission; Dr. Dyson of Chicago and Superintendent A. J. Lovejoy of the state fair, Roscoe.

Fiscal Supervisor Frank D. Whipp and Secretary B. R. Burroughs of the state board of administration were guests of the convention at the noon lunch, given by the Grace Lutheran ladies.

The association will meet next December in Chicago. At that time the annual convention will be held and officers elected for the ensuing year.

Praises Trades School of Prison.

The trades school as maintained by the Indiana reformatory and the institution as a whole was complimented by the members of the Indiana labor prison commission, who are in session here. After a thorough inspection the commissioners declared themselves highly pleased with the workings of the institution, and made some valuable suggestions that will be incorporated in the report to the governor.

The commission, which is composed of Major Peyton, superintendent of the Indiana reformatory; Warden Reid of the Indiana prison at Michigan City; Edgar A. Perkins, former president of the Indiana Federation of Labor, and Messrs. Slough and Koerner of the Indiana labor commission, will adjourn to meet again at a date to be selected by the chairman.

Warden Reid gave Major Peyton an order for chairs and tables to be used in the criminal annex to the Michigan City prison.

Incorporations.

Articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the secretary of state as follows:

Ayer-McCaskel-Reagan Clay company, Brasil; capital stock, $10,000; directors, Joseph V. Ayer, William L. McCarel and Daniel E. Reagan.

Gadwell Social club, Peru; no capital stock; directors, John Beal, Willard Parks and J. W. Mapes.

The Montezuma Buckeye club, Montezuma; no capital stock; social; directors, Lewis Farmer, Harrison Garke and Henry Harrison.

METHODISTS TO MEET AUGUST 4

Northwest Indiana M. E. Conference Program Announced.

BISHOPS AMONG SPEAKERS

A Big Tabernacle Seating Nearly Twelve Thousand People Has Been Reconstructed—Meeting Will Last Ten Days.

Lafayette.—Methodists from all parts of the state will assemble at Battle Ground, August 4, for the annual camp meeting of the Northwest Indiana M. E. conference. Announcement has just been made of the program. For half a century the conference has been holding its camp meeting, each summer, on the beautiful grounds adjoining the Tippecanoe battlefield. This year the big tabernacle has been reconstructed, and is now a model of its kind. It seats nearly 12,000 people. The meeting will last ten days, closing on August 14. It is expected that 25,000 people will attend.

Several of the most noted leaders in the Methodist church of America will take part in the program, among them Bishop William A. Quayle of Oklahoma City; Bishop David R. Moore of Cincinnati; Dr. Francis J. McConnell, president of De Pauw university; Rev. Alfred Kummer, Rev. Worth Tippy and Dr. H. A. Gobin, vice-president of De Pauw. Miss Lulu Schwin and Miss Blossom Boord of Covington will have charge of the childrens' service each morning, and the young people's department will be in charge of Rev. Oakel Hall. Dr. H. A. Gobin will have charge of the daily Bible study and the conference quartette will furnish music, assisted by an orchestra. Each afternoon at two o'clock some well-known minister of the conference will preach.

The two Sundays of the camp meeting will be banner days. A love feast will be held each Sunday morning preceding the preaching service. Bishop Quayle and Bishop Moore will preach on the first Sunday. On the second Sunday, August 14, Doctor McConnell will preach twice. Each Sunday afternoon Doctor Gobin will present the Sunday school in the tabernacle. Evangelistic group meetings will be held in the shade of the trees on the battlefield. Sunday, August 7, will be observed as dedication day. At the love feast on the first Sunday Rev. L. C. Buckles of Dayton will officiate, and at the love feast on the last Sunday Rev. W. P. McKinsey of Plainfield will have charge of the service. On Thursday, August 11, there will be an Epworth League excursion from Brazil to the camp meeting.

There will be important meetings of the woman's home and foreign missionary societies of the conference, and these will bring hundreds of church women to the grounds. On Friday, August 5, a special program will be presented by the Home Missionary society of the conference. Rev. Alfred Kummer will speak. On Friday, August 12, a special program will be presented by the Foreign Missionary society of the conference. The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society will be held August 2, 3 and 4, immediately preceding the camp meeting itself, and at the same time the itinerant school of the conference for the examination of candidates for the ministry will be held on the grounds. Rev. Worth M. Tippy will deliver the addresses to the itinerants.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Laporte.—Rev. Gideon F. Brayton, age eighty-eight, fifty years ago one of the leading northern Indiana Baptist ministers, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. David Miller, in Carthage, Mo. The body will be brought to Laporte for burial. He worked for many years in the mission fields for the American Baptist Home Mission society.

Greensburg.—An affidavit was filed in the court of Justice A. S. Creath against F. M. Ehler, deputy game warden of Indianapolis, charging him with assault and battery and attempt to kill Harry Luken. The complaint charges that Ehler accosted Luken in the fields on May 23 and ordered him to stop. Luken failed to pay any attention to the command, and as he ran the officer fired several shots at him.

Kokomo.—Gordon Gammons died of a gun shot wound self-inflicted by accident while crossing a foot log at the Odowd ford across Wild Cat creek, three miles west of here. Gammons was squirrel-hunting, accompanied by his nephew, Ezra Hardimon, and his brother, William Gammons. When he lost his balance the hammer of the gun struck against a sapling and the shot entered his shoulder, penetrating the lungs.

Shelbyville.—Members of Chilion lodge, Knights of Pythias, will hold a centennial celebration here September 23 and 10,000 visitors are expected. John W. Kern, Senator Shively, Senator Beveridge and Representative Barnard will probably speak. The committee is also trying to secure James E. Watson and Governor Marshall.

South Bend.—An unidentified man about thirty-two years old was cut to pieces at the Lake Shore & Grand Trunk crossing here. The skull was crushed and the legs and arms ground off.

ONE THING CERTAIN.

"Dou you know," shouted the earnest orator, "what to do to the trust?"

"No, but I know blame well what they're doing to us!" said a man in the front row.

SOFT, WHITE HANDS

May Be Obtained in One Night.

For preserving the hands as well as for preventing redness, roughness, and chapping, and imparting that velvety softness and whiteness much desired by women Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, is believed to be superior to all other skin soaps. For those who work in corrosive liquids, or at occupations which tend to injure the hands, it is invaluable.

Treatment—Bathe and soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of Cuticura Soap. Dry and anoint freely with Cuticura Ointment, and in severe cases spread the Cuticura Ointment on thin pieces of old linen or cotton. Wear during the night old, loose gloves, or a light bandage of old cotton or linen to protect the clothing from stain. For red, rough, and chapped hands, dry, fissured, itching, feverish palms, and shapeless nails with painful finger ends, this treatment is most effective. Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole proprietors, Boston, Mass.

Didn't Care for Expenses.

They were seated at the breakfast table.

"John, dear," said the young wife, "this is my birthday."

"I'm glad you mentioned it, darling," rejoined her husband. "I'll buy you a present the first thing when I get downtown."

"Well," she said, "I hope you won't get any cheap 98-cent affair."

"Of course I won't," he replied. "Why, I would be ashamed to present you with anything that cost less than a dollar."

Simple Truth.

You can only do clean washing with clean soap. You know that cocoanut oil, borax and naphtha are natural cleansers and sterilizers and that they can't harm fabrics. Easy Task soap is the only one that combines these scientifically, and for that reason it cuts washday work in two and does the work better than it ever has been done. Ten cents to test it; money back quickly if it isn't what is claimed for it.

Their Object.

Banks—The women of my town have formed a secret society.

Rivers—A secret society? Surely, that's a misnomer; women don't know how to keep secrets.

Banks—But they know how to tell them, and that's why they formed the society.

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.

Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

Otherwise Hopeless.

"My daughter's voice is to be tried today."

"Have you fixed the jury?"—Cleveland Leader.

ARE YOUR CLOTHES FADED?
Use Red Cross Ball Blue and make them white again. Large 2 oz. package, 5 cents

Some women are beautiful when they are angry, but generally they are mean and ugly at such times.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

And many a coming man neglects to arrive.

SHE RECOGNIZED THE VOICE

And From Remark Made, Also Knew the Party Was Not Engaged in Prayer.

Confidential friends of Louis B. Shields are telling this story about that eminent Republican: A state convention at Columbus had just adjourned and the Cuyahoga county delegates were all back home when somebody suggested a friendly game of poker. The game was going along right merrily at three a. m.

At that hour an officious attendant called up Mr. Shields' residence, which happened to be almost next door.

"This is long distance," said the servant with no warrant of authority whatever. "We are all here in Columbus and can't get home until morning."

"That's all right," came back the reply, "but if that voice I hear in the apartment house next door saying 'that's good' isn't Mr. Shields' then I can't recognise a voice when I hear it at night."

And that is the end of the story, for the voice saying "that's good" was indeed that of Mr. Shields, and it was so near home, so the narrator relates, that there was no use in offering a denial.—Cleveland Leader.

WEAK KIDNEYS WEAKEN THE WHOLE BODY.

No chain is stronger than its weakest link. No man is stronger than his kidneys. Overwork, colds, strains, etc., weaken the kidneys and the whole body suffers. Don't neglect the slightest kidney ailment. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at once. They are especially for sick kidneys.

Ted Hiatt, Oswego, Kans., says: "For many years I suffered from kidney disorders. I was treated by specialists in Kansas City and Chicago, was told I had an abscess of the kidneys and an operation was advised. I thereupon began the use of Doan's Kidney Pills and gradually improved. Soon an operation was unnecessary as my kidneys were well."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Lots of marriages merely demonstrate that misery loves company.

MORE PINKHAM CURES

Added to the Long List due to This Famous Remedy.

Oronogo, Mo.—"I was simply a nervous wreck. I could not walk across the floor without my heart fluttering and I could not even receive a letter. Every month I had such a bearing down sensation, as if the lower parts would fall out. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done my nerves a great deal of good and has also relieved the bearing down. I recommended it to some friends and two of them have been greatly benefited by it."—Mrs. MAE MCKNIGHT, Oronogo, Mo.

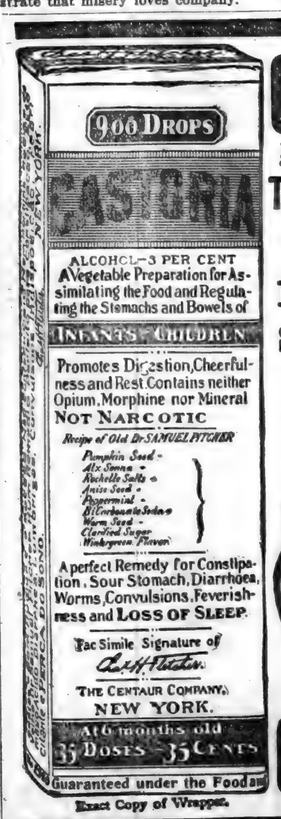
Another Grateful Woman.

St. Louis, Mo.—"I was bothered terribly with a female weakness and had backache, bearing down pains and pains in lower parts. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly and used the Sanative Wash and now I have no more troubles that way."—Mrs. AL HERZOG, 5722 Prescott Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.

STOCKERS & FEEDERS
Choice quality; reds and roans, white faces or angus bought on orders. Tens of Thousands to select from. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Correspondence Invited
Come and see for yourself.
National Live Stock Com. Co.
At either
Kansas City, Mo., St. Joseph, Mo., S. Omaha, Neb.

WANTED—Everybody suffering from Piles or any form of Rectal Ailments to write me for Free Trial of my Positive Painless Pile Cure.
S. U. TARNEY AUBURN, INDIANA



CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

MICA AXLE GREASE
is the turning-point to economy in wear and tear of wagons. Try a box. Every dealer, everywhere
STANDARD OIL CO.
(Incorporated)

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well.

Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native American roots.

Sickly Smile

Wipe it off your otherwise good looking face—put on that good health smile that CASCARETS will give you—as a result from the cure of Constipation—or a torpid liver. It's so easy—do it—you'll see. 918

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

MUSIC ARRANGED FOR PIANO and Orchestra. Melodies written to song poems. W. NELSON. 148 West 36th St., New York

PATENTS Warren E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 30-1910.

JULY

0464

L 904

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

EXCURSION

FROM ST. JOE, INDIANA

TO

NIAGARA FALLS N Y

AUGUST 13, 1910

$6.50 Round Trip

Choice of Rail or Steam or All Rail via Cleveland - Buffalo

Information regarding SIDE TRIPS and other details will be furnished by B. & O. Agents.

Coburn's Corners

There were 76 present at Sunday School Sunday and a collection of $2.64.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hart, a fine baby boy, last Sunday.

Mrs. Dr. Emanuel of Seville, Ohio, is visiting for a few days with W. P. Coburn and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Hart and little son Ward, of Hicksville, visited with Joseph Shulls', last Sunday.

Miss Velma Gee of Kendallville, and Miss Daisy Coburn of Ft. Wayne, are visiting with friends in the neighborhood.

Jacob Baker and daughter, Mayta Gee, accompanied by Miss Gee, of Kendallville, and Miss Coburn of Ft. Wayne, visited with John Bakers' of Scipio, Sunday.

Mrs. W. P. Coburn and Mrs. Vernon Wilmot were the guests of Caroll Wilmot and family near Harlan, Wednesday.

Mrs John Ulm wishes to thank her many friends who so kinkly remembered her on her birthday by sending her so many beautiful post cards. She received 71 in all.

Calvin Coburn, wife and daughter Delpha, Earl Coburn and family, south of Hicksville, Edwin Lumis and family of Hicksville, Dell Coburn and family, and George Wade and wife spent a pleasant afternoon in the Hamilton grove, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoads and baby of Concord, Dean Sturgis of Butler, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Abel spent Sunday with Will Hamilton and wife.

Minnie Ulm and son Fred, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Ulm to Ft. Wayne, last Wednesday.

Albert Milliman of Ft. Wayne, visited a few days the latter part of last week with friends.

Lee Wilmot, wife and daughter Edith, of Garrett, spent Sunday with his parents, Arthur Wilmot and wife. Mrs. Wilmot remained for a week's visit with other relatives.

The Sunday school voted Sunday to accept the invitation to the picnic, next Saturday, at Springfield in Mr. Hull's grove.

W. H. Northrup and wife accompanied by Marshall Andress's two daughters, Pauline and Melba, of St. Joe, visited Sunday with David Andress and wife at Hicksville.

Mrs. Thomas of St. Joe, is doing the work for Mr. and Mrs Moses Perry for which they are very thankful. Mr. Perry and wife are both in very poor health.

Mrs. Carrol Wilmot and children, Edna Wilmot and daughter Edith, and Anna Wilmot visited Tuesday with Mrs. Vernon Wilmot.

Lon Allen had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse, last Saturday, for which he had been offered $225. It died with Spinal meningitus.

The neighbors turned out enmass to harvest a crop of hay for Milo Walker, Monday, for which he is very thankful. They put up nine loads in the afternoon.

Mrs Mary Krise and Mrs. Harriett Johnson were at Auburn, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. John Hornberger of Auburn, visited with Mrs. Anna Baker, Saturday afternoon.

Miss Bertha Reed of Auburn Junction, visited with Inez Patterson, Saturday and Sunday.

Quite a number from here attended the services at Fairview, Sunday. A large crowd was present.

The social Saturday night was quite a success. A large crowd was present and about $10.00 was taken in.

On account of the rain Sunday evening, Rev. Barclay did not preach at this place. He and Mr. Merriman took the evening train for home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Steel of Walkerville, Mich., is here visiting friends and relatives. She visited with Mrs. Delila Draggoo, Monday and Tuesday.

LOCAL ITEMS.

F. A. Jenkins old barn was struck by lightning Tuesday night and a colt injured quite badly.

Marguerite Swineford and sister, Mrs. McCrury are keeping house for Geo. Swineford on the farm as his wife was taken to a Ft. Wayne hospital by Mrs. Dr. Swarts of Auburn.

Mr and Mrs. Myrtle, of Waukegan, Ill., are spending a few days with the latter's brother, Mr. W. H. Randall and family, making the trip in an automobile. On Sunday they attended a family reunion at Pleasant Lake and on Tuesday in company with Mr. and Mrs Randall, they spent the day in Ft. Wayne.

Church Reopening.

Sunday July 24th., was red letter day for the Fairview M. P. church, having been closed for three months undergoing much needed repairs, the church was again reopened with appropriate services. Rev. J. L. Barclay and A. T. Merriman of Liberty Center, Ind., were present and assisted in the service. Rev. Barclay preached the dedicatory sermon in the morning and Mr. Merriman giving a splendid address to the church and Sunday School in the afternoon. The sum of one hundred and seventy dollars was raised in cash and subscription to liquidate the remaining indebtedness and to purchase stoves and lighting system which are not in as yet. The total cost of repairs so far is something less than three hundred dollars. The church with its white coat of paint outside and finely painted metal ceiling and splended straw colored paper on the walls and bright new varnish on the furniture presents a very pretty and attractive appearance. The Fairview people are much pleased with their church. They wish to extend their heartfelt thanks to all those who aided them in every way in this work and extend a hearty welcome to all who attend their services.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad

Excursion to

Chicago $2.00

Train leaves ST. JOE at 3:00 A. M.

SUNDAY, JULY. 31st.

Numerous Attractions

CONCORD

Gladys Howey spent Saturday night and Sunday with Ada Ervin.

Sara Draggoo assisted Mrs. Merritt Baker in sewing a few days this week.

The carpenters have Chas. Jackson's new house nearly ready for the plasters.

Mrs. Curtis Hursey spent Monday afternoon with her sister, Mrs. Jay Hart.

ANNUAL

Farmers Picnic

At Robison Park

Wednesday, Aug. 24

Meet your friends and hold your Reunions on this day. No charge at gate. Band Concerts.

Local Briefs

Leon Kees is entertaining the measles.

Some new side walks are being put in this week.

C. A. Patterson and family were at Cedarville Sunday.

Call at Kagey's and get your Post Cards. An elegant assortment.

Miss Vera Andress is spending the week with Milton Dirrim and family at Hamilton.

Rozy Ulm is confined to her bed with typhoid fever. Inez Hart is improving slowly.

Mrs. Ira Bone was the guest of her son, Will and family at Concord, Thursday afternoon.

Lloyd Berry of Indianapolis, and his brother Charles, of Auburn, were the guests of E. E. Berrys', Thursday.

Get one of those 5 cent tablets at THE NEWS office. Our own make.

Mrs. Dr. Emanuel of Ohio, was the guest of Mrs. J. C. Hull, last Wednesday evening. She is visiting other friends in Spencerville and vicinity.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway and daughters, Eva and Olive, and her sister, Mrs. Baxter, were Sunday guests of the former's daughter and family, south of Spencerville.

Clyde Woodcox and family, Ward Woodcox and Ora Wilmot returned Wednesday evening from Empire, Ky. where they have been working this summer. They will leave within a few weeks and go near New York City where Mr. Woodcox has a contract on a big job of concrete.

The annual Federation Day celebration of Clubs will be held at Winona Lake, Wednesday August 10, 2 P. M. at Westminster Chapel. Mrs. M. F. Johnson, of Richmond, will be the speaker of the afternoon, her subject being, "A Democratic Movement in Art." Mrs. Grace Julian Clarke of Indianapolis, President of Indiana State Federation of Clubs, will speak upon, "School Suffrage for Women," and Mrs. Olaf N. Guidlin, chairman of the Household Economics department of the General Federation will also speak. Several from this place are contemplating to attend.

Band Concert.

Saturday Night. at St. Joe.

Base Ball.

The base ball craze has started and Spencerville has organized a team. The first game was played last Sunday at Spencerville with St. Joe and the latter being defeated by a score of 7 to 8. The attendance was fair. Arrangements are being made by the Spencerville manager for Sunday games. The same teams will cross bats at St. Joe, Saturday afternoon.

A Pleasant Surprise

A pleasant surprise was given at the home of Mr. W. J. McNabb, Sunday July 24, it being his sixty-fourth birth anniversary. All came with well filled baskets and a bountiful dinner was served to which all did ample justice Those present were: John McNabb, wife and children, Earl Izetta, Glen, Thelma, Alwilda, Dale and Bernard; Gilbert McNabb and wife; John Goldsmith and wife; Amos Witmer, wife and children, Opal and Merle; Herbert Schwartz, wife and children, Joy, Lawrence, Zela, Clifton and May; W. C. McNabb, wife and daughter, Urcell, of Auburn and Miss Bessie McNabb. All the children being present except Grover McNabb and wife of Ft. Wayne.

Wm. Curle and family are at the lake, this week.

Harry Kees made a business trip to Auburn, Thursday.

Wm. Leighty is the guest of his daughter at Sherwood.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Wertman, spent last Friday in Ft, Wayne.

Fairfield Meese was at Waterloo a few days last week visiting relatives.

Charley Jenkins and wife of Auburn, were in town Sunday afternoon.

Uncle Charley Huffman is able to be up town again, after several weeks illness.

Gladys Dirrim of Hamilton, is spending the week with Vera and Neva Andress.

Mr. Wayne Hughes and family of Hicksville, spent Sunday with Mrs. Rose Johnston and family.

Mrs. C. A. Woodcox and children are spending a few days with her parents at Garrett, this week.

Milton Carnahan and daughter, Mrs. Shutt of Jackson township, were Saturday guests in the Berry home.

Iona Woodcox, wife and baby left yesterday for Montpelier, Ind, to spend a few days with Mrs. Woodcox's parents.

Mrs. Ida Andress and daughter Violet, of Kendallville, visited last Wednesday with Marshall Andress and family.

August 11, is the date set by the three Sunday Schools of this place, for holding their Union Picnic in the Dills grove. The committe is arranging for a good time.

This community was visited Tuesday night by a severe electrical storm, lasting until nearly morning. The wind blew down grain shocks, fences and some trees but nothing serious has been reported as yet.

The W. C. T. U. will meet Friday with Mrs. Kate A. Leighty. This is the mother's meeting and a good program has been arranged. Every mother is especially invited.

George Bleeks has been laid up for the past week, caused by being mixed up with his horse and a corn plow on the Bishop farm, south of town. Dr. Lake was called and several stitches were taken in his leg to close the wound.

The editor attended the meeting of the Northern Indiana Editorial Association at Lake Wawasee Inn, last Thursday and Friday. A banquet was served in the evening to which 150 partook of. Pleasure rides on the lake were enjoyed and a very good time was had. The next meeting will be held at Mishawaka.

F. R. Bowmans' and D. J. Bakers' were at Spencerville, Maysville and Grabill, Sunday afternoon. They also visited the Moses Richer farm where the little orphan boy was so brutally murdered a few weeks ago. Dr. Shooks' and Geo. Hendersons' joined them at Spencerville, all making the trip in automobiles.

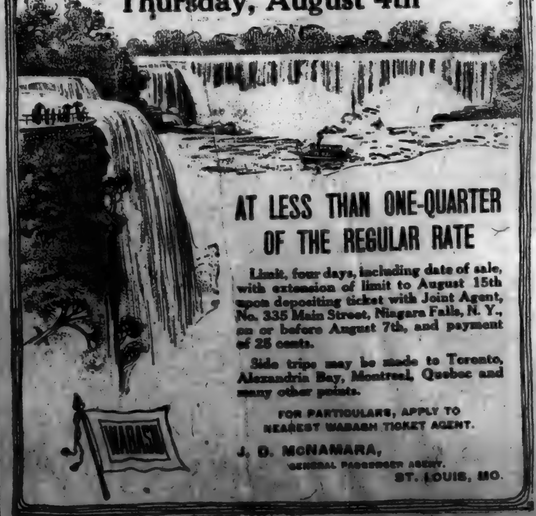
Last Saturday evening, at the closing of the band concert, our citizens witnessed an exhibition of the manly art of self defense, in which a few of our manly (?) young bloods participated. St. Joe certainly ought to be proud of some of her young Americans. There is a certain class of young people here that seem to think the only way that they can keep in the true light is to indulge in fights and stand on street corners and insult every person within hearing distance by their profanity and obscenity. A good sized fine for the older offenders and a liberal application of strap oil for the younger ones might go a good ways toward eradicating this public nuisance. Marshall Bleeks appeared on the scene and marched the young men to Squire Smith and two of them were fined $1.00 each and the costs. It will be a lesson to others as well as those implicated in the deal.

CHEAP EXCURSION

TO

NIAGARA FALLS

Thursday, August 4th



AT LESS THAN ONE-QUARTER OF THE REGULAR RATE

Limit, four days, including date of sale, with extension of limit to August 15th upon depositing ticket with Joint Agent, No. 335 Main Street, Niagara Falls, N. Y., on or before August 7th, and payment of 25 cents.

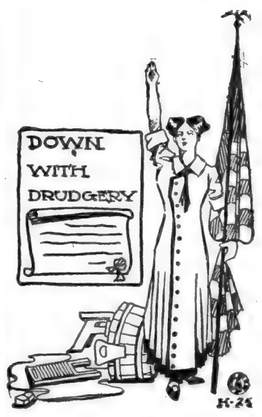
Side trips may be made to Toronto, Alexandria Bay, Montreal, Quebec and many other points.

FOR PARTICULARS, APPLY TO NEAREST WABASH TICKET AGENT.

J. D. McNAMARA, GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT. ST. LOUIS, MO.

WABASH

A DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.



Every woman owes it to herself and family ta stay young. She can do this only by not overworking. We have a number of labor saving devices that every woman ought to know about and prices so reasonable that she can't afford not to purchase. Asbestos Sad Irons. Sanitary Tin Churns easily washed. Different kinds of labor saving washing machines. Sanitary Granite Cooking Utensils. Gasoline and oil stoves of all patterns.

J. W. Burwell & Son

St. Joe, Indiana

LADY DUFFERIN QUITS LONDON.

Former New York Girl Finds City's Climate and Life Too Trying.

Lady Dufferin, formerly Flora Davis of Washington square, New York, has decided to make her home hereafter in the country, the London correspondent of the New York World says. The marchioness has been far from strong for the past year, and has found the trying climate and the social strain in London rather more than she wishes to stand.

Recently she has been in town superintending arrangements for moving from 7 Carlton House gardens. There she has been giving a few small dinners followed by music, to which she contributed no little, for she is very musical and has a remarkably sweet voice, which has been well trained.

Flora Davis, only daughter of John H. Davis, banker, was one of the most beautiful girls in New York society when she consented to become the wife of Lord Terence Blackwood, the second son of the first marquis of Dufferin and Ava. The wedding took place October 16, 1893, in Paris, where Lord Terence's father, who had been governor-general of Canada, and who had filled with distinction many important diplomatic positions, then represented Great Britain as ambassador to France. Nine years later Lord Terence, who in the meantime had succeeded to the courtesy title of Lord Clandeboye, became the second marquis of Dufferin and Ava.

There are three children, Lady Doris Gwendoline, 14 years old; Lady Ursula Florence, 10, and Lady Patricia Ethel, 7.

Lady Dufferin has been greatly admired in British society not only because of her royal loveliness, but on account of her personal graces and her charming hospitality.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Advertisements first appeared in newspapers in 1652.

Roumania has 6,000,000 inhabitants, of whom 30,000 are blind.

Coolies in Borneo are indentured at $18 to $36 a year, with board and clothing.

Near Hamburg, Germany, a patch of dwarf trees is closely guarded at government expense as a rare survivor of postglacial flora.

The International Anti-Cigarette League has 87,000 members, who are pledged to abstain from tobacco until they are 21 years of age.

In 1881, 2,862,331 persons were engaged in agriculture in the United Kingdom. Ten years later the number had decreased to 2,249,756; while in 1901 it was 2,109,812.

More than two thousand million dollars' worth of mineral oil has been exported from the United States since that product began to be an article of exportation, less than a half-century ago.

Mrs. Russell Sage has offered $500,000 to the American Bible Society if an equal amount can be raised. The time limit of this offer expired on the last day of 1909, but was extended.

The clubwomen of Nebraska are said to be responsible for the new state law which requires each school district to set aside each year 10 cents for each child in it of school age. The money is to be devoted to the school district library.

The total annual cost of Germany's land and sea defense is now 977,400,000 marks, without taking account of the 600,000 to 700,000 able-bodied men who are kept from profitable employment, representing in productive capacity as much as 1,500,000,000 marks a year.

SPENCERVILLE R. R. NO. 1.

Leona Hay was back to Waterloo, last Wednesday.

Miss Mary Horn entertained the mumps, last week.

Geary and Zona Horn were at Fort Wayne, last Saturday.

John McNabb and family spent Sunday at James McNabbs'.

John Mason and wife, and Greely Wearley and family spent Sunday at Robison Park.

Rev. Osbun and family of Matthews, Indiana, were the guests of Frank Horns', last Saturday.

The Misses Venus, Mary and Leila Horn were royalty entertained at the home of Ruth Gratz, Sunday.

The Misses Tressa, Viola and Clara Hay were the guests of Miss Leila Horn, last Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hilgemann of Ft. Wayne, spent Saturday and Sunday with the latter's parents, John Horn and wife. Mrs. Hilgemann remained a few days longer.

WISE'S CORNERS.

Wayne Hughes of Hicksville, ate dinner with Will Smith and wife Wednesday.

Elmer Smith assisted Burl Enos thresh his wheat near Newville last Tuesday.

Mrs. Pearl Hissong spent Thursday afternoon with her sister, Mrs. Nettie Welch.

Clarence Davis is assisting John Koch in making hay on John Webb's farm this week.

Mr. Martin Davis of Spencerville, made E. Billman a business call last Wednesday forenoon.

Mr. Frank Lake is making hay on the Crist Hursh farm this week. Charlie Cook is assisting him.

Ray Squier had a very sick horse Friday, caused by eating too much new oats, but is out of danger now.

Last Thursday Roney Grate threshed for J. D. Spitler and E. Billman, it was the first job in our neighborhood.

Mrs. Samantha Berry and Mrs. Lizzie Chaney of Auburn, were entertained at Mrs. Daisy Markle's Saturday.

Eva and Blanch Wertman, who have been visiting with their father, returned to their home in Ashland, Ohio this week.

Mrs, Tom Holtz of near Grabill, spent Thursday with her daughters, Mrs. Tracy Grats and Mrs. Samuel Smith of near Spencerville.

Mr. Will Zimmerman of Ft. Wayne made several calls on old friends and neighbors this week in our vicinity, also looking after the interests of Chase Bros. Nursery.

Tracy Grats threshed his wheat on the Crist Hursh farm Wednesday afternoon, also a load of oats for Lewis Markel, the first oats threshed in our vicinity this season and the yield was good.

Frank Wertman and wife pleasantly entertained the following last Wednesday evening: Charley Grill and wife, Perry Miller and wife, Jay Fales and J. D. Spitler and family. Ice cream and cake were served.

Monday afternoon Gertrude Smith called on Mrs. Nelson Lake and her two daughters, Mrs. Callie Lyons of Branch, Mich., and Mrs. John Benninghoff of Spencerville, who are with their mother most of the time since the death of their father. Mrs. Lake is quite poorly

0465

L 90

AUGUST

AUGUST

L 904

0466

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 4, 1910. NO. 31

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.

Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

New Dress Skirts.

We are already showing the new styles in fancy and plain Voile, Panama, and Serge skirts for ladies dress wear. You can buy them here as cheap as to have them made and save all extra bother necessary in the making. We have some extra values this season in Panamas and Serges at

$5.00 and $5.50

and some of the prettiest new styles in the Voiles at $7.50, $8.50 and $10.00 we've ever shown.

Our Tan Shoe Sale.

We are making a clean sweep of all our Ladies, Misses and Childrens tan shoes and oxfords at a big reduction in price. We are giving every buyer a reduction of one-third off the original price which makes them far below cost but we are determined to make a quick riddance of the entire tan stock at once.

Buy at once and You Get Bargains.

Big Day Next Sunday.

Announcements have been made each week through our columns calling attention to the Sunday School Meeting to be at St. Joe, next Sunday. The railroad park will be filled with people on that day from St. Joe, Coburntown, Newville, Harlan and Milford, Ohio. It is the annual yearly meeting of the five churches and an excellent time is expected. The services of Gary L. Cook, State Bible School superintendent have been secured and everyone is anxious to hear him. A basket dinner will be served at the noon hour. Consider yourself invited.

Beaten 6 to 7 Saturday

The Spencerville ball team visited our town Saturday afternoon and crossed bats with our home boys. The game was called in the Harry Kees field north of the depot, an ideal place. The visiting team commenced to play from the beginning and every good play was cheered by the audience which was excellent. In each game there are more or less errors and some are very costly at times, such was the case for the home team. The principal thing was that two of the players had visited some place where they could get a little "snope" and they indulged just a little too long and when they appeared on the field they were very disgusting to those looking on for when it was in their power to do something they were unable. Just such actions as these will hurt the team and when asking for donations from the public they will be let down. It is the idea of some that it is necessary to have booze in a game, and it may be, but as a rule they don't hold out long. A father who was playing with our home team set an excellent example before his four children, but is generally a rule that man has lost all respect for them and every one else when he appears in public in such a condition. The balance of the team were in good trim and should not bear the disgrace of a few.

Wm. Randall and wife spent Sunday with Rob Nichols and family of Orangeville.

Candy and Cigars.

Home made candy and the best grade of cigars at Milliman's barber shop owned and run by

Merritt Milliman.

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Ice! Ice! Ice!
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

Local Briefs

Chas. L. Wagner, surveyor of DeKalb county, was in town Monday.

FOR SALE:—4,500 wreckage brick, all in good shape for laying. S. S. Widney, St. Joe.

Mrs. Lee O. Tustison came home Saturday from Sterling, Ill., to visit her relatives. Mr. Tustison will arrive Saturday of this week.

Mrs. S. S. Steel of Wakerville, Mich, called on us Saturday. She is visiting relatives in this vicinity. She expects to make her home at New Paris, Ind., from now on with relatives.

Thrashing, Heating and Cooking Coal. Plenty for all and more coming. Prices as low as anyone. W. E. Baxter.

Rolland Bearss reported Saturday that he had one of his best thoroughbred cows shot in the leg behind on Friday afternoon. Upon examination he found it to be a bullet from a 22 rifle. The wound may not be serious although the animal is compelled to go about on three legs. The parties doing the shooting are known to be from St. Joe but it is not known whether it was accidental or otherwise. Mr. Bearss does not allow hunting and if he desired he could have the boys fined for trespassing. Boys are too careless with firearms.

If all reports are true, Hicksville is to have a suburban town to the west of her in the way of an enlarged Scio. It is said that Core Diehl of Maysville, has bought the Shaffer property near the corner there, and will start a new store. C. R. Headley, it is said, will remodel the brick school house east of the corners, and move his store from near the railroad to the new location. T. Rodimer has bought the property where Mr. Headley now has his store and will continue the business in the old stand. Verily Scio is destined to become more than a cross roads town if such rapid improvements and additions continue at this rate.—News.

Read THE NEWS.

Were you at the show?

Band Concert Saturday evening.

George Kagey was in town over Sunday.

St. Joe was visited Monday by several journeymen.

Miss Grace Sechler spent Sunday with Butler relatives.

John Baxter and wife of Butler, spent Sunday with W. E. Baxter and wife.

The best line of one-cent Post Cards in town can be seen at Kagey's.

A picnic will be held in the Hamilton grove, Saturday, given under the auspices of the Newville Christian church.

J. W. Burwell and family were called Saturday morning to Columbia City on account of the illness of Mrs. Burwell's mother, Mrs. Rachael Wagoner. When they arrived they found she had passed away. The funeral was held Tuesday.

Miss Helen Patterson returned last Friday from a two weeks visit at LaGrange, Indiana. She was also the guest of Mrs. G. C. Nichols for a few days at Klinger Lake, Michigan. She returned home by the way of Auburn and spent Thursday night as the guest of Miss Helen Fitch and wa accompanied home on Friday by Dr. and Mrs. Fitch and Miss Gladys Fitch in their automobile.

The town board succeeded in getting a walk put in front of the Roseberry Wiers property, last week. The improvements is a grand one and was badly needed. The improvement adds greatly to the property. Other walks should be put in now besides a crossing at the west end of town, which is in a bad condition. The board should not force anyone to build when they have crossings that are dangerous.

Henry A. Barnhart, of Rochester, was renominated for congress, and Lon E. Bernethy, of North Judson, for representative, by the democrats of the Thirteenth congressional and joint assembly districts meeting in convention in South Bend, Tuesday. Both nominations were made by acclamation and the two conventions were marked by complete harmony. United States Senator Benjamin F. Shively presided at the congressional meeting.—Ex.

After taking a rest of several months, the report is made public that The Dawn, published by Ab Kelley at Waterloo, will spring into existance during the campaign this fall. It looks as though the wet and dry question will again be the political issue or else The Dawn would never have wakened from its peaceful slumbers. The figure that The Dawn will cut in this campaign will amount to (0) as the people are more determined than ever to vote dry and the man who is running for the county offices must make his standing known to the public or else his name will be "Dennis."

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS
—By Charles O. Borst, Abstracter.

CONCORD TOWNSHIP—B. T. Bowen, et al, to J. C. Bowen, Fr. N½NW¼, sec. 3, & 60 ac. in SW¼, sec. 34, Wil. Tp. 34,—14, $4800.

J. C. Bowen to L. T. Bowen, pt. N½ NW¼, sec. 3, & pt. SW¼, sec. 34, 34—14 in Wil. Tp. $1350.

Thrashing coal. W. E. Baxter.

Mr. and Mrs. John May visited over Sunday with relatives at Corunna.

Ross Andress and wife of Kendallville, returned home Monday after a couple of weeks visit here with relatives.

With this issue the Prohibition party commences a column to appear each week. We desire to inform the public that any political party can secure a column at our regular rates.

Mr. Hall and family moved last week from Garrett into the Ida Andress property. Mr. Hall owns a farm 4 miles west of town and will build a house on it before moving onto the farm.

Abner Copp visited over Sunday with his son Ora, and family at Hamilton. He moved from Garrett three weeks ago and started up in the tinning business, and Mr. Copp reports him being very busy.

The Fourth Quarterly Meeting for the 1909 and 1910 Methodist Protestant church, St. Joe Charge, L. Coomer, Pastor, was held last Saturday and Sunday with the St. Joe church. The quarterly conference elected Sol Barney as delegate, and S. Widney to represent the Charge in the annual conference to convene in the city of Frankfort, the third Wednesday in August. The Sunday services were fairly well attended with much interest, the Sunday school session being very interesting. The entire services of the day were interesting and profitable to all. Rev. E. P. Engle of Maysville, preached the morning sermon, the communion service was impressive and helpful; and the dinner hour was a great delight and refreshing to the temporal needs, the ladies having provided a basket dinner which was eaten and enjoyed by all at the east end of the church in the shade. The social service which followed was also very profitable, all seemed to be encouraged and formed new resolutions for the future.

CANNING SEASOn
NOW ON.

You will want Mixed spices in Bulk. Best and purest.

MRS. PRICES CANNING COMPOUND

it is the best preparation on the market to put up Corn, Beans, etc. Keeps them just same as day you put them up. Parafine, Sealing Wax, Cinnamon Bark, whole Cloves, Pepper, Mustard, etc. Quality and prices the best.

Also while you are busy, don't forget to disinfect your home and out buildings, it may prevent those dreaded diseases that are contageous of any filth. It costs but little and saves health and money. Our stock in that line is complete and you'll always do better at

Dunkle's Drug Store.

ST. JOE, - - - INDIANA.

Public Notice

Having sold a half interest in the blacksmith shop to C. H. Sailor, I would like to have all persons knowing themselves indebted to me, to call and settle. Craig Sheffer.

ST. JOE.

Mrs. Joe Harrod of Mansfield, Ohio, is here assisting in the care of Rozy Ulm, who has the typhoid fever.

S. O. Austett and wife of Wayne, were Sunday guests of H. L. Dunkle's. They spent the day at Hamilton lake.

Isaac Meese is putting in a cement walk this week.

Wayne Hughes of Hicksville made a business trip to this place Monday.

M. P. CHURCH ANNOUCEMENTS

Preaching at Concord Church at 10:00 A. M., at Fairview at 3:30 and St. Joe at 7:30 P. M. Sunday School at St. Joe at 9 A. M., at Concord at 9 A. M. and Fairview at 2:30 P. M. This will close the preaching services for the conference year.

Rev. Coomer, Pastor.

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST. JOE, IND.

Treet your feet fairly
They'll carry you squarely.

FOR YOUR FEET

For your selection this season, we have gathered a showing of footwear which must commend itself to anyone who cares about the sort of shoes he wears—and we are particularly delighted with our new arrivals in

Men's Shoes for The Fall Season.

Every young man, married man or jolly old bachelor who cares to come here and examine these shoes will be as enthusiastic as we are in their praise. The very newest styles in fall footwear are here. Original models, many of them shown for the first time this season. The new high heel and the new raised toe seem to have the call and the popular leathers promise to be gun metal, patent colt and box calf. Some smart models in button and blucher, with more reserved styles in the ever popular straight lasts. W. L. Douglas shoes and every pair full of style and quality, ready for all the wear you can give it.

Prices $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00

Three of the season's popular models are shown in this ad—we have plenty of others to show you. For the man who at medium cost would be dressed in Fashion's best, these Douglas fall styles should be of unusual interest. Come in and see these shoes; "lookers" are as welcome as buyers, but you will have no cause for regret if you

BUY YOUR FALL SHOES AT

"The Home Store"

AUGUST

0467

L 904

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

HASTE KILLS TASTE.

Everywhere haste mars art among us. What is the reason for so resplendent a failure as the congressional library at Washington? Simply that haste precluded a thorough maturing of the general scheme and prevented the mural painters either from harmonizing their work with the whole or even doing their individual best. Why is the average tall building, in spite of its imposing mass, a poor thing to look at? Simply because the architect has hurriedly applied irrelevant ornament to the work of the engineer. Under commercial conditions these makeshifts may seem inevitable. But the vice of precipitancy runs through our whole social structure. Academe and Parnassus suffer violence, and the violent take them by force. How many university chairs have been occupied by glib young scholars whose achievement was mostly verbal, while sound learning languished in obscure position? How many an actress has rolled her pretty eyes at an audience, to be extolled promptly as a star of magnitude?

New York and New England are taking steps to improve their agricultural conditions, and, curiously enough, the leadership in the movement is taken by railroad presidents and merchants. The other day a meeting was held at the Produce Exchange of New York and a permanent organization was effected to preach and illustrate the gospel of intelligent, intensive farming. Among the able addresses delivered the most striking was that of President Brown of the New York Central. He gave American, South American and Canadian statistics pointing the moral that we have surrendered our place as the first of the food-exporting nations; that food production has not kept pace with consumption, and that in a few years we shall be compelled to import grain. It seems that we have in the country about 10,000,000 acres of practically abandoned farm land, while the land that is cultivated is bled here and merely scratched there.

To the other favorable crop prospects must be added the prediction that cotton is likely to show the largest yield on record. There is general agreement by experts as to the outlook for a big supply, the estimates placing the figures between 13,000,000 and 14,000,000 bales. Should the latter total be touched a new "high water mark" will be reached. The great cotton crops heretofore were 13,556,000 bales in 1905, 13,550,000 bales in 1907 and 13,828,846 bales in 1909. Notwithstanding reports of ravages by the boll weevil and of attempts at restricting the output cotton appears to be on the gain—and America furnishes the chief supply for the world.

Two sailing ships, in coast parlance "windjammers," have just gone to sea from Seattle provided with wireless telegraph equipment—the first craft of their character to be thus equipped. One of the ships was provided with the apparatus by her Japanese steward, who was formerly a member of the signal corps of his country's navy. This indicates that the installation of wireless telegraphy on sailing ships is neither complex nor costly, and foreshadows quite general use of the valuable means of communication. Romance and mystery are being driven from the sea by steam and electricity.

The great Oxford dictionary that was begun by Dr. Murray in 1884 is now completed as far as "T." But it is debatable matter whether modern English was spoken as far back as 1884.

Chauffeurs who find gasoline leaks by means of lighted matches must be lineal descendants of those who used to look for leaks in the gas pipe with lighted candles.

Indianapolis doctors made a man a new nose from a chunk of his leg. He limps now, and he can't smell, but otherwise the operation was a success.

It is significant that it is the doctors who are declaring there are too many physicians and who would make it yet more difficult to become one.

Balloon pilots are careful to avoid alighting when the ship is in motion.

The term "affinity" is not libelous, decides a New York court. It's awful hard to insult a New Yorker, nowadays.

All persons who are affected by sea sickness will look forward hopefully to the development of airship transportation across the English channel.

Romance is not dead! Pretty soon our young people will begin eloping in aeroplanes.

WHY NOT MAKE A THOROUGH JOB OF IT?

BRYAN LOSES OPTION FIGHT

NEBRASKA DEMOCRATS REFUSE TO ADOPT LEADER'S PLANK.

Commoner's Battle Against Liquor Vain, Despite Great Speech on the Convention Floor.

Grand Island, Neb.—Nebraska Democrats Tuesday night delivered a blow to William J. Bryan when by a decisive vote they registered their unbelief in his county local option plan.

Mr. Bryan had labored hard in the committee in an effort to have his ideas written into the platform, and after being defeated in the committee, he appealed to the convention and in this appeal made the speech of his life to a convention already instructed against him.

He pleaded to his old friends, begged them not to repudiate him unless they found him untrue to Democratic principles; he threatened statewide prohibition if county option was defeated; he denounced those Democrats whom he charged with being subservient to the liquor interests; and he cajoled the uninstructed delegates to vote for him and his plans. And then standing aside he listened to the most bitter words directed at him that he has ever heard.

No attack made against Bryan by Republicans or others, in any of his campaigns, was ever so bitter as were the attacks made by Bryan's old friends against their old leader. As a member of the committee on resolutions, Mr. Bryan returned a minority report on the county option plank. This minority report, signed only by Bryan himself, was short and to the point, saying simply: "We favor county option as the best method of dealing with the liquor question."

It was in defense of this report that Mr. Bryan made the speech which will be called the greatest effort of his life.

The sentiment towards Bryan was shown when, for more than an hour, the convention called upon different leaders to address it, but not a single one was made for Mr. Bryan. When the final vote was taken, Bryan's plank was turned down 645 to 195 and a direct anti-county option plank inserted.

WOMAN AVIATOR IS COMING

Mme. Mathilde Frank Expects to Enter In Race From Chicago to New York.

New York.—A French woman, one of the four or five women who have done serious work in aviation, has indicated her intention of coming to America shortly for the purpose of attempting a flight from Chicago to New York for the prize recently offered. She is Mme. Mathilde Frank, the French wife of a British journalist.

Mme. Frank has made several excellent flights recently. She flew fourteen miles at Mourmelons without stopping, establishing a record as a woman aviator. She is at present preparing for a flight across the English channel from Calais to Dover.

MAYOR KILLED WITH BOMB

Virginia Village Executive Is Slain Lying in Hammock by Assassin Who Throws Dynamite.

Ridgeway, Va.—Former Mayor A. H. Bousman was assassinated Monday by a dynamite bomb which was thrown from the street under a hammock in which he was lying. He died an hour after the explosion. No clue to the identity of the murderer or the cause of the crime has been found.

$2,200 Stolen on Warship.

Seattle, Wash.—Paymaster Eugene A. Pricou of the receiving ship Philadelphia, at the Puget sound navy yard, with Clerk Garrity, is under arrest and the entire paymaster's corps confined to quarters pending investigation of the loss of $2 200 from the ship's safe.

Believed Quake Kills Many.

Tokio.—Many have been killed in an earthquake and volcanic eruption Tuesday at Usu bay, on the southern side of the island of Hokkasdo.

TAFT ENDS MAINE CRUISE

Mayflower Is Scheduled to Arrive at Beverly Thursday Afternoon—Much Work Awaits President.

Portland, Me.—President Taft's cruise is rapidly drawing to a close Leaving the waters of Penobscot bay behind, the Mayflower headed for Casco bay, and anchored off Portland Tuesday night. The president did not go ashore.

The Mayflower stopped Wednesday at Biddleford Pool, where Mrs. Louis T. More, one of Mrs. Taft's sisters, has a summer home. Beverly will be reached at three p. m. Thursday. The president will find a lot of work awaiting him there. He also has made a number of important engagements.

President Hadley of Yale, who has under consideration an appointment as head of the railroad stock and bond inquiry commission,

After passing the night on board the Mayflower at Dark harbor, Isleboro, President Taft and his party visited Rockland for an hour Tuesday. He was taken for an automobile ride and afterward made a little informal speech in front of the library.

The president hurt his ankle while he was playing golf on the links of the Kabo Valley club at Bar Harbor. Despite the excruciating pain which was evidenced by a decided limp and facial grimaces each time he had to climb in or out of an automobile or train, the president carried out the exacting program which had been arranged for him. It included a spech, an automobile ride and luncheon in Bangor, and a speech and reception at Ellworth.

The president was climbing a steep grassy slope leading to one of the greens when his right foot turned beneath him. There was some pain at the time, but Mr. Taft though nothing of it and continued his game. Later, however, he suffered considerable pain.

Surgeon Grayson of the Mayflower dressed the injured ankle and made a thorough examination. He declared there was no general sprain, but a bad strain of some of the tendons.

NEGRO IS BURNED AT STAKE

Belton (Tex.) Mob Revenges Death of an Officer—Two Have Narrow Escape.

Belton, Tex.—Henry Gentry, a negro, eighteen years old, paid the penalty of his crime—murder and intended assault—at the stake. Two others, a brother and a companion, charged with implication, missed a like fate only through the pleadings of Sheriff Burke and several citizens.

Gentry attempted to force an entrance into the home of Mrs. Lamb, a widow, but was frightened away with a shot by the woman's daughter. Several hours later, while Gentry was being hunted by a posse headed by Constable James Mitchell, Gentry, firing from ambush, killed the leader.

The posse surrounded the fugitive. Gentry made a dash for liberty and was shot and crippled. He was dragged behind an automobile to Belton, where several thousand men and boys waited.

TAFT'S ANKLE IS STRAINED

President Meets With Painful Accident While Playing Golf—Puts In Busy Day.

Bar Harbor.—Once more afloat, President Taft and his party on the Mayflower left Bar Harbor Sunday night for Penobscot and Casco Bay, in which they will cruise until Wednesday, when the ship will be turned toward Beverly.

Fix Blame for Gun Blast.

Washington.—The board of army engineers which investigated the gun explosion last Thursday at Fortress Monroe reported Monday that the accident was caused by the failure of the safety device of the firing mechanism to function properly.

Heat Kills Six Pittsburgers.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Six deaths from heat in the vicinity of Pittsburg were reported for Monday, though the thermometer only reached 88 degrees on the streets.

STRIKERS IN RIOT

GRAND TRUNK PASSENGER SERVICE ABANDONED AT SOUTH BEND, IND.

ORDER TROOPS TO BE READY

One Man Shot and Three Detectives Arrested—Attempt to Derail Train Is Frustrated by Alertness of Engineer.

South Bend, Ind.—Governor Marshall Sunday night ordered Capt. Charles B. Calvert, Company F, Third infantry, of this city, to hold his troops in readiness to assemble at a moment's notice. There was spasmodic rioting in the Grand Trunk yards all day by mobs of strikers and their sympathizers.

Grand Trunk officials announced that no attempt will be made to move any passenger trains through South Bend, orders having been issued to cancel all passenger service to or from the city. Advices from all along the Grand Trunk system is to the effect that strikers are quiet at all points except at South Bend.

Strikers, or their sympathizers, attempted to derail east-bound passenger train No. 8 at Olivers, the first station at which Grand Trunk trains stop when entering South Bend. The engineer saw the thrown switch just in time to bring his train to a stop and prevent heavy loss of life.

J. Freel of South Bend was seriously wounded by John Peck, a detective of Battle Creek, Mich., who with Eldridge Graham and William McReynolds, also of Battle Creek, are under arrest. Freel was shot in the back and is at Epworth hospital. A mob burned two cabooses and attempted to destroy several freight cars but the arrival of police and fire department foiled the plan.

A freight train of 50 cars was stalled for seven hours by some one cutting the air hose and taking the couplings, and it tied up five passenger trains. The police are authority for the statement that the stalling of the freight may not have been the work of strikers but of men in the employ of the company, the police believing that the move was brought about as a part of a plan to get state troops in the field and thus break the backbone of the strike by turning public sympathy away from the strikers.

A crowd of 1,500 to 2,000 men and boys, sympathizers, made an effort Monday night to burn a refrigerator car that had been switched on a crossing west of Oliver's Station. The city fire department succeeded in quenching the flames after the car had blazed for 20 minutes or more.

It was evident that the trouble was brewing early in the evening for the mob began to congregate at the junction of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad and the Grand Trunk. As the crowd increased in size it moved west from Oliver's Station and when a freight train of seven cars and a caboose appeared on the scene an hour later it was greeted with a shower of stones, spikes and coupling pins.

As soon as the train was stopped at the west end of the yards the engine crew was attacked by several foreigners, but the arrival of Assistant Chief of Police Chappel and a squad of policemen routed the rioters for the time being. Mayor Charles L. Goets of South Bend and Sheriff Millard F. Kerr of St. Joseph county instructed D. Crombie, Montreal, first assistant to Grand Trunk chief of transportation, who has been in this city, that all local police protection would be withdrawn from the railroad yards unless every Pinkerton detective was removed from the city. The private detectives were withdrawn.

Anticipating the possibility of trouble in the yards, Governor Marshall took time by the forelock and ordered the four companies of the First battalion, Third infantry, Indiana National Guard, located at South Bend, Plymouth, Warsaw and Elkhart under command to Maj. George W. Freyermuth of South Bend to hold themselves in readiness to move on to South Bend at 30 minutes' notice.

The governor ordered Gen. Will J. McKee, commander of the state militia, who is in the city, to remain in South Bend and keep in close touch with the strike situation. The battalion for the most part consists of experienced men, the officers with very few exceptions having been in the service for from five to ten years.

Mayor Goets issued a proclamation urging all inhabitants to refrain from gathering in crowds on the streets and to assist in preserving order.

Freed to Help Harvest Crop.

Georgetown, Ky.—A novel method to save the wheat crop of Scott county was resorted to when a number of farmers appeared before the county judge and paid the fines of ten prisoners in the jail in order to get help to harvest the crop.

May Restrict Emigration.

Pittsburg, Pa.—As a protest against working conditions in mines and mills of western Pennsylvania, it is intimated at the office of the Austrian consulate here that the imperial government may restrict emigration to this region.

Death in Tidal Wave.

San Sebastian, Spain.—Four persons are known to have perished in a wave which swept the harbor here Tuesday and it is feared the death roll will mount higher.

GEN. WOOD PRAISES HEROES

COMMENDS OFFICERS WHO AVERTED SECOND EXPLOSION.

Lieut. Hawes Fights Fire With Bare Hands and Stops Further Disaster.

Washington.—Stories of valor and sacrifice in time of suffering and confusion were detailed to General Wood, chief of staff of the army, and other officials of the war department upon the return to Washington of officers who witnessed the explosion of the big gun in the first minute of battle practise at Fortress Monroe which resulted in eleven deaths.

These personal reports were augmented by further telegraphic reports from Lieut. Col. C. P. Townsley of the coast artillery corps, commandant of the fort.

Lieutenant Hawes is praised by the commandant for having extinguished with his bare hands burning material that threatened to ignite the second charge, which was on its way to the emplacement.

Conspicuous in the group of those whose heroic conduct attracted attention was Lieutenant Van Deusen, who suffered a broken leg from the body of one of his men being hurled against him. His body also was burned by gas. He was the timekeeper during the target practise.

Following the receipt of the reports General Wood sent a telegram to Fortress Monroe expressing his sympathy for the bereaved and suffering, and his appreciation of the "excellent conduct" of the officers and enlisted men.

The war department has begun a rigid investigation to determine the cause and fix the responsibility for the explosion of the gun.

RAWN WAS WORTH MILLION

Will of Slain Railroad Chief Filed for Probate—Widow Gets All—Home Under Guard.

Chicago.—To Mrs. Florence Willis Rawn, widow of the late I. G. Rawn, president of the Monon railroad, who was found dead last Wednesday in his summer home in Winnetka, is given all the property left by the late railroad chief, according to the terms of his will, filed with the assistant clerk of the probate court Monday. Mrs. Rawn is named executrix under the will. The estate is supposed to be valued at over $1,000,000.

A guard has been placed in the Rawn home by Samuel H. Greeley, president of the village board of Winnetka, because he has learned that "material evidence as to facts concerning the death of the railroad official have been and may be suppressed."

A letter was sent to Mrs. Rawn notifying her that Marshal Coutre of Winnetka would take charge of the premises until after the inquest.

J. T. Harahan, president of the Illinois Central railroad, joined forces with the Chicago police in their efforts to solve the mystery surrounding the tragic death of Mr. Rawn.

In a conference with Assistant Chief of Police Herman Schuettler President Harahan turned over all of the evidence in the Illinois Central graft investigation that involved Mr. Rawn.

SCORES SAVED BY WIRELESS

Sister Vessel Goes to Relief of Burning Ship and All on Board Are Safe.

Charleston, S. C.—The snap and flash of the wireless, sending out the "S. O. S.," the call that has superseded the "C. Q. D."—the high sea cry for help—Saturday resulted in the saving of scores of lives from the burning coast liner Momus, owned by the Southern Pacific company, off the Florida coast. News of the rescue was brought by wireless dispatches received here.

The Comus, a ship belonging to the same line, answered the call, standing by while the passengers were transferred. The advices sent out while the vessel was ablaze in twelve fathoms of water said there was a minimum of confusion among the passengers, and that nearly all, especially the women, acted with heroism from the time the flames were discovered until they were safe aboard the relief ship.

$80,000 IN BONDS STOLEN

American Agency of Russo-China Bank at New York Report Theft of Securities.

New York.—Bonds and other securities, the market value of which is estimated to be about $80,000, were officially reported as having been stolen from the American agency of the Russo-China bank. The par value of the securities is $66,000.

Profound mystery and secrecy were maintained by everybody supposed to be in a position to have information as to the theft.

Their Twentieth Baby Born.

Lena, Wis.—Relatives here were notified Tuesday of the arrival of the twentieth baby in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maxim Marquoiller of Menominee, Mich. The parents are former residents of this vicinity.

$30,000 Shaft to Firemen.

New York.—A $30,000 monument to volunteer firemen is to be built in Jersey City, N. J., with money provided by the will of Frederick T. Frier, an ex-police captain, who died on June 17.

WESTINGHOUSE OUT

GREAT INVENTOR LEAVES PRESIDENCY OF HIS COMPANY.

KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

Ignored in His Later Days—Unfeeling Business Methods Work Slowly But Surely Toward Appointment of Another Executive.

Pittsburg, Pa.—A note of regret permeates the world of big business men here and elsewhere as a result of the announcement that George Westinghouse, the man with the great inventive mind, known and honored the world over as the inventor of the air brake and a mighty power for good along advanced achievements, is about to resign the presidency of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, the child of his brain and pet of his later years of labor.

Other electric devices that have shot the world far ahead of the ordinary laps in civilization and advancement are owed to the creative mind of Mr. Westinghouse, who will now give up, as it were, his plaything and hobby of years and force himself into retirement. It is predicted that E. M. Herr, ranking vice president, will be asked to assume command of the company.

It was after the reorganization, in the reconstruction period of the firm's affairs, that Mr. Westinghouse found his power slipping from his grasp. Day by day he saw that he was taking a secondary place in the great things that the company was doing, not through any fault of his own, but because he was being 'frozen out." At first he only chafed under the thought. As the "freezing" process grew more and more evident, Mr. Westinghouse saw that he must surely be where he was not especially wanted. Thus his determination to retire entirely from his post as active head of the firm.

It was only cold business tactics, such as is resorted to every day in every big city and big corporation in the world. But there was a touch of pathos with it all. The inventive genius was being made secondary to the business minds of others with whom he came in contact during the days of labor.

Among the many inventions that are credited to the master mind of Mr. Westinghouse, besides the air brake, are a devise for replacing derailed steam cars, various pneumatic devices for switching and signaling, a complete system for controlling natural gas and conveying it for long distances, adaptations for steam devices and similar creations.

This week Mr. Westinghouse was elected president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Boat Upsets; Two Drown.

Erie, Pa.—Harry and Alvin Winfield, brothers, and well known young men, were drowned in Erie harbor when their sailboat capsized. They had just taken a picnic party safely across to the peninsula and were returning for another load of young people when a gust of wind overturned them. Alvin Winfield's sweetheart was among a number of girls who, helpless, witnessed the accident from shore.

New Lincoln Statue.

Frankfort, Ky.—A $15,000 heroic size statue of President Lincoln is to be placed in the rotunda of the first floor of the new capitol. J. B. Speed of Louisville has decided to present the state with such a statue and the contract has already been made with the sculptor who designed the statue of Lincoln erected at Hodgenville, Ky., Lincoln's birthplace.

Promised Ex-Slaves Pensions.

Alexandria, La.—Scores of negroes in this section have been victimized within the past ten days by a white man who obtained the sum of one dollar from each of them "as a fee for having their names enrolled as ex-slaves in order to secure pensions." The swindler has not been apprehended.

Groom 74; Bride 25.

Boston, Mass.—Japan's Yankee admiral, Henry Walton Grinnell, was married to Miss Florence Mary Roche, daughter of the late James Jeffrey Roche, the well-known author. Admiral Grinnell is seventy-four years old and was an intimate friend of the father of the bride, who is twenty-five years old.

Explosion Kills Eleven Workmen.

Quebec.—Eleven workmen were killed in an explosion on the Transcontinental railway about 125 miles west of La Tuque. The men were engaged in blasting operations near a tunnel. A number of workmen were injured.

Three Die in Flames.

Chicago, Ill.—Three men, employes of Frederick Mihell & Co., manufacturers of cotton wastes, are believed to have burned to death in a fire which attacked the company's six-story building. The building was a mass of flames within a few minutes after the blaze was discovered.

Five Die in Cuban Wreck.

Havana, Cuba—Five men were killed and twenty others seriously injured in a collision between two trains on the Preston sugar mill road.

AUGUST

0468
L 904

RIGHT OF BOARDS TO ISSUE BONDS

Differences Cause Delay of Building Plans.

OPINION OF F. M. COX

Where the Town School Authorities Wished New School Buildings Were Unable to Build Them Because of Lack of Funds.

Indianapolis.—A difference of opinion between attorneys for bond buyers and attorneys for school corporations in a number of incorporated towns in the state has resulted in delays in a number of such places in the matter of the completion of public school buildings, according to information received by the state superintendent of public instruction, Robert J. Aley. In a number of places, where the town school authorities (the board of town trustees) wished new school buildings but were unable, because of lack of sufficient taxable property, to erect such buildings, arrangements were effected with the advisory boards and trustees of surrounding townships and the two corporations joined in the building projects.

In some of the instances it was necessary to issue bonds, and while the township bonds were easily disposed of, the town authorities had trouble as soon as they offered their wares for sale, the attorneys for the buyers holding that a board of town trustees had no authority to issue bonds for the purpose of joining with the township corporation in the construction of a public school building in which the township and the town would have a common interest.

While the opinion given by Mr Cox is not being sent out as final, it is being referred to the inquiring town boards as throwing some light on their powers and as suggesting a means of escape from the difficult position in which they have found themselves. Since the question is one that will probably come up frequently in the next few years because of the tendency toward the centralization of schools in incorporated towns, the state superintendent is anxious to see the matter adjusted in the courts.

Plans Made for Conference.

The local executive committee which has the planning of arrangements for the annual conference of the board of state charities and correction to be held at Marion September 10, 11, 12 and 13, has partially completed the arrangements for the sessions. The Morris hotel has been selected as the convention headquarters. The opening session will be held on the evening of September 10 in the First M. E. church at which the conference president, Dr. S. E. Smith of Richmond, will deliver the annual address. The mass meeting, at which it is hoped to have Governor Marshall and Amos W. Butler of Indianapolis, and Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, speak, will be held in the Coliseum, the largest auditorium in the city. All other general sessions of the conference will be held in the First Presbyterian church.

The round table discussions will be held during the forenoons in order that they may not interfere with the general sessions of the conference and the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, the public library hall and the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches will be used for these meetings. The subjects embraced in the round table discussions will be state, county and city charities, juvenile delinquents and dependents, tenement housing and kindred subjects. There will probably be a meeting of the tuberculosis commission and of the secretaries of city charities during the conference.

Marion hotels will accommodate about four hundred guests and plans are under way to utilize boarding houses and private dwellings to care for delegates and visitors to the conference who cannot obtain hotel accommodations. The plans of the local executive committee are made early that the state executive committee, which will formulate the detailed program for the conference, may have the outline. The general sessions of the conference will be held afternoons and evenings.

May Delay Burney Schools.

Dr. D. W. Weaver, secretary of the Decatur county board of health, has been advised by Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board, that if an attempt is made to open school in the building at Burney this fall the trustees of the township and the teachers will be prosecuted. The building was condemned in June, 1909, by the state board, but the advisory board of the township has taken no action. Trustee Caleb Wright that unless some provision is made he will not order the schools opened in Burney this fall.

Asks School Tax Ruling.

Attorney General Bingham has been called upon for an opinion by Robert J. Aley, state superintendent of public instruction, with reference to the power of a school corporation to borrow money in anticipation of revenues to be collected for the following year by means of the local tuition tax.

It is established that a school corporation can draw in advance upon funds to be received from the state. Elmer G. Bunnell, believes the law that applies to state funds also applies to the local option fund.

Issue Value of Franchise.

A wide difference of opinion was revealed in the hearing before the state board of tax commissioners when the Ohio Hydraulic company of Jeffersonville asserted that a franchise upon which it had been assessed $10,000 was not worth the paper upon which it was written. The franchise related to the utilization of certain water power on the river front at Jeffersonville. The evidence disclosed that the company never has exercised the powers conferred by the franchise, but the auditor of Clark county asserted in rebuttal that the assessment was made in anticipation of some future value the franchise might have.

The Indiana Lumbermen's Mutual Insurance company of this city asked the tax commissioners to assess mortgage notes at 70 per cent. of their face value.

Former State Senator C. M. Kimbrough of Muncie, representing the Indiana Bridge company, before the board, contended that the Delaware county board of review had raised the assessment above that fixed by the state board last year; that the company had made no improvements in the meantime, and consequently that the increase was unjust. This same company made an appeal last year, and it became necessary for the tax commissioners to visit the plant and fix a valuation.

The tax commissioners heard an appeal from E. J. Shoobridge of this city in which he sought to show that the Indianapolis Water company was assessed too low. Mr. Shoobridge asserted that the corporation is worth $8,190,000 including tangible property, franchises and good will. The valuation was fixed at $2,230,880 by the Marion county board of review. The contract with the city was estimated to be worth $1,000,000. County Auditor Albert Sahm appeared before the commissioners in behalf of the Marion county board of review. He maintained that the assessment was fair and reasonable.

J. T. Moorman of Winchester, vice-president of the Jeffersonville Water, Light & Power company, contended that the Clark county board of review had assessed that company ten per cent. of the gross earnings, whereas the usual assessment is not more than three or four per cent. Mr. Moorman wanted the assessment reduced. He had contracts and bills of sale which he showed that the Clark county board has assessed the corporation on personal property more than the original cost.

The case of the appeal of the Simon P. Thompson estate involved a peculiar point of law. Judge Thompson before his death went to the south for his health, leaving a son in charge of a 1,600-acre farm in Jasper county. The son gave certain notes signed, "Simon P. Thompson and son." After Judge Thompson's death the estate sought to have these notes deducted from taxables. If the son was a partner the notes are taxable, it is held. If he was an agent, they were held to be exempt.

Charge Railroads With Violating Law.

Five suits for alleged violation of the Indiana railroad laws, requiring equipment on cars to safeguard the lives of employes and passengers, were filed in the Delaware circuit court here by the Indiana railroad commission through Attorney General James Bingham. Three of the cases are against James P. Goodrich, receiver for the Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville Railroad company; one against the Lake Erie & Western Railroad company and the other against the Central Indiana Railroad company. The complainants allege that the railroads are subject to fines of $100 for each alleged offense.

Two of the suits against the C., C. & L., now owned by the C. & O., pertain to alleged defective grab irons on box cars, and the second relates to an alleged defective box car coupler. The suit against the L. E. & W. alleges that a defective automatic coupler on a box car was in use, and the C. I. road case alleges that a box car with a broken draw bar, which is said to have been supplanted by an emergency knuckle, was used.

Postal Clerk Promotions.

The post office department announced that promotions have been made in the Indianapolis post office as follows: William C. Armund and Jeremiah S. Bates, from $1,000 to $1,100; Charles Gross, Oscar Henn and John C. Harvey, from $900 to $1,000; J. Frank Miller, from $600 to $900; Edgar L. Minnich, from $1,100 to $1,200; Thomas J. Murphy, from $600 to $800; Eugene F. Pfaffin, from $900 to $1,000; Earl P. Rush, from $1,100 to $1,200; George F. Schuttler, from $1,100 to $1,200; John R. Thomas, from $900 to $1,000, and Fred W. Yeaman, from $900 to $1,000.

Promotions of clerks in the post office at Evansville will be made as follows: One from $600 to $800, two from $1,000 to $1,100, and five from $1,100 to $1,200.

Rural carriers appointed: Evansville, route 11, Carl Kitzinger, carrier; Joseph H. Fentner, substitute; Shirley, route 1, Claudius A. Hiatt, carrier; Edgar Bennett, substitute.

Incorporations.

The following articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the secretary of state:

Farmers' State Bank of Sheldon, Sheldon; capital stock, $25,000; incorporators, Lucius Somers, Charles N. King, Oscar V. Schoonover, Fred J. Springer and 43 others.

Northern Indiana Florists' association, Winona Lake; social and industrial; no capital stock; directors, W. W. Dedrick, A. J. Waggoner, W. S. Kircher, J. S. Stuart, D. C. Noble, George Paston and John H. Shelton.

CAUSES ARREST OF HOTEL KEEPER

Permits Young Boy to Operate Elevator.

CHARGES SIGNED BY P. KLINE

W. E. Blakely, Indianapolis Officer at Logansport Requests Rebate, Fails to Receive It, and Takes Summary Action.

Logansport.—Following an altercation between W. E. Blakely, state factory inspector, and Dugger Holmas, clerk at the Murdock hotel, charges were filed against E. E. Murphy, proprietor of the hotel, for permitting a boy under the age limit to operate the elevator in the hotel. The charges are signed by Peter Kline, who, the police say, is an assistant under Blakely. When Blakely went to settle his bill, it is said, the clerk retained $2.50 from the bill handed him by Blakely.

Blakely demanded the 50 cents, declaring he asked for a two-dollar rate. The clerk says Blakely then demanded that he be rebated at least 25 cents and when this was refused he declared the hotel was violating the law in many ways, that minors were operating the elevator and that there were no ropes in the rooms and says that under pretext of going up to his room to investigate Blakely stepped in the elevator and en route to the third floor questioned the boy running the elevator as to his name and age.

Says Church Must Pay Tax.

Richmond.—The opinion of the state board of tax commissioners that the school property owned by the North A Street Friends church, but leased to others, is taxable, is shared by John F. Robbins, county attorney, who believes that under a strict interpretation of the law tax should be paid on the property. The business college which holds the lease, although a private institution, does not have to pay tax since it comes under the classification of educational institutions.

Church Convention Closes.

Washington.—The convention of the Daviess County Association of Christian Churches adjourned a two days' meeting with the election of the following officers: President, Thomas D. Slimp, Washington; secretary-treasurer, Rev. W. B. Morris, Odon; superintendent of Christian Endeavor work, J. E. Slimp, Elnora, superintendent of county Bible schools, Paris A. Hastings, Washington. Rev. Garry L. Cook of Indianapolis, state Sunday school superintendent, addressed the convention.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Washington.—Members of the official board of the First Christian church of this city gave evidence at an examination in a local law office in the proceedings being conducted by Arnold J. Padgett, attorney for Mrs. Laura Bunn Clark-Davidson in her damage suit against the churchmen she charges with defamation of her character. The defendants denied that they attached their signatures to a letter as published, and that the arrangement of the signatures had been changed from the original recommendation of Mr. Davidson, which they caused to be forwarded to Toronto, Canada.

Evansville.—Orders by the board of park commissioners, adopted in what it is charged was a star chamber session, for the dismantling and removal of the Sunset Park museum building, brought protests from the 700 members of the Federated Woman's clubs of this city. Mrs. Fred Atwood, president of the federation, and Mrs. North Storms of the executive committee say they will secure an injunction. The park museum building has been an issue for two months. Advocates of the plan for letting it stand charge that Jabez Woodley, a member of the park commission, wanted it removed so that he will get an unobstructed view of the river front from his residence.

Greencastle.—J. E. Wyatt, a prominent stock buyer who lived just north of this city, committed suicide at his home by hanging. Wyatt had lost several thousand dollars in the last few weeks in cattle and sheep deals, and it is thought that worry over his misfortune caused him to take his life.

Crawfordsville.—A site for the new municipal electric light plant, which is to be built this summer at a cost of $90,000, has been selected. The land will be condemned.

Shelbyville.—A new degree of Pocahontas has been instituted at Marietta. The charter members numbered 35. Wheat Sheaf council of this city conferred the work.

Seymour.—The Seymour district conference of the Methodist church closed a three days' session here. Among those who took prominent places on the program were Rev. M. B. Hyde of Indianapolis, Rev. Harry A. King, president of Moores Hill college, and Rev. Virgil Tevis of Rushville. The reports from the different churches in the district showed that much progress has been made by the church in this district the last year.

Princeton.—Rev. M. F. Bierbaum of Marthasville, Mo., has accepted a call to the German Evangelical church in this city, and arrived here.

SYMBOLISM DID NOT APPEAL

Belinda Rejects Proposal of Charlie to Be Joined Together Like Hands of Clock.

"Charlie," sorrowfully sighed the young lady in the parlor of the concrete house, on Washington avenue, "it is nearly 12 o'clock."

"Yes, Belinda," was the breathing response of her poetical companion, who was sitting on the sofa beside her, "the minute hand is drawing closer and closer to the hour hand, and when the time of midnight is chimed the two hands will be even as one. Oh, darling Belinda," he continued, as he literally simulated the action of the minute hand, "may not the coming together of those two hands be symbolical of us?"

She broke away and stood firmly on her feet. "No, Charles Henry Smith," she retorted, angrily, "those two hands will remain as one but a single second, and then the minute hand will divorce itself and go on its way alone. No, Mr. Smith, a minute hand that doesn't stick isn't the kind of symbolism I want!"

All Signs Favored It.

It was the first anniversary of their matrimonial career.

"Henry," said Mrs. Peckem, "did you really expect me to accept you the night you proposed?"

"I had every reason to believe you would, my dear," replied Henry. "On my way to your house I walked under a ladder, saw the new moon over my left shoulder, a black cat crossed my path and I heard a dog howl three times."

The Place for Him.

"That French count the Simpkins girl married is coming over to this country to go in business. He can't live in France—his creditors are so annoying."

"Going into business! Why, they told me he didn't know enough to put up an umbrella when it rains. What in the world can he do?"

"Why, old Simpkins is trying to get him a continuous job at the courthouse—doing jury duty."

Went the Limit.

His wife had been doing a shopping stunt.

"How much did you spend today?" asked her husband.

"Fifty-four dollars and nineteen cents," she replied.

"Oh, was that all?" he queried somewhat ironically.

"Yes," answered the other half of the matrimonial combine with an injured air; "that was all I had."

Appreciation.

Smith had just finished his fifth cup of coffee when the landlady remarked: "Mr. Smith, you must be very fond of coffee."

"It would seem so," he replied, "when I am willing to drink so much water to get such a little taste?"—Cornell Widow.

Used Unlawfully.

Rector—Greaser has been arrested by the government for using a form of simplified spelling in his advertisements.

Italis—I don't see why such use should be unlawful.

Rector—But he spelled "oleomargarine" butter.

The Pity of It.

"'Tis one of the saddest things of married life."

"What is?"

"The fact that the wife can't think of anything new for dinner, and the husband, while dissatisfied, can't suggest anything."

Best He Could Do.

Noble Sportsman—Whatever it is I've shot, it makes a most unearthly row.

Keeper—Yes; poor Bill ain't got a musical voice, 'as 'e? But I heard him say he was going to take singing lessons.—Tit-Bits.

No Reason To.

Mrs. Nagg—What do you think of such a thing? Mrs. Jabber tells me that our neighbor, Highboy, does not believe that one must suffer for one's sins.

Mr. Nagg—No wonder—Highboy isn't a married man.

It's Size.

"The theme filled as a book and now it fails as a play. Yet the central idea is good."

"Quite right. I think you could boil it down into an anecdote and get ten dollars for it."

Scared by the Cooking.

Little Willie—Say, pa, when poverty comes in at the door, what window does love fly out of?

Pa—It probably flies out of the dining-room window, my son.

Enterprise.

Newsboy (to newcomer, as he turns around from signing hotel register)—Extra! Extra! All about your arrival and which hotel you're stopping at!"—Harper's Bazar.

Profitable Peaks.

"The Swiss ought to be very proud of the Alps, as nature's handiwork."

"No doubt, but they ought to be a great deal prouder of the way they make the Alps pay."

A Painful Fact.

It takes a lot of waiting to bob up precisely at the moment a certain girl comes along.

PROBLEM WAS EASILY SOLVED

Amusing Story of American Girl Being Presented at European Royal Court.

An amusing story is being told in social circles in London about a young American woman who was anxious to be presented at a certain European court. Of course, the high officials had to make inquiries about her social status in her own country, and pronounced their veto, says the New York Herald. It could not be done. The daughter of a man who sold boots and shoes could not be received by his majesty at a royal court. The girl was in great distress, and promptly cabled home to her father. Next day she received the following reply:

"Nonsense. It's not selling. Am simply giving them away. See advertisement."

The cablegram she duly presented in the proper quarter, and, although the ending did not seem quite clear to the official mind, it was held to solve the difficulty. So she was presented at court as the daughter of an American gentleman who was noted as a great philanthropist.

Gentle Reminder.

They were nearing the corner pharmacy.

"Soda water is a luxury," remarked the young man.

"A great luxury," assented the pretty girl with rising interest.

"And do you think soda-water fountains should be taxed?"

"I do, indeed, George, to their utmost capacity."

And after she had consumed four ice-cream fizzes at ten per George was sorry he had spoken.

Jollying Him Along.

"Somehow," said the genial railroad official as he seated himself beside the traveler; "there are some things that lead you to appreciate our wonderful improvements for their convenience and comfort."

"Oh, don't worry," laughed the jolly traveler, "there are some things about your road that are always in the public eye."

"I am glad to hear that. And would you mind naming them?"

"Tho cinders, sir; the cinders."

Demanded by the Trade.

"Papa, how often have I told you not to say, 'I seen you—'"

"Now, ye look a-here, Maggie," interrupted Uncle Charlie Seaver, laying down his knife and fork, "maybe you will make your livin' by good grammar and higher eddercation; but your ma and me, we're jest obliged to take in summer boarders, and they demand th' dialect if they pay our rates. So what I say goes, see, whether she's grammatic or not."—Puck.

Perhaps He Gives It to Her.

"Your husband's business is growing and making more money for him right along, is it not?"

"No, he is losing more and more money every day."

"You astonish me! You must surely be mistaken?"

"No, I'm not; every time I ask him for a dollar he tells me how he is losing money."

The First Year.

"Remember, my boy, that the first year of married life is always the hardest."

"That so?"

"Yes, it will take you all that time to give dinner parties to the relatives and friends who believe they ought to be invited to test your wife's cooking."

Their Desperation.

Worthington—Do the subscribers to Turgler's Weekly seem to appreciate the paper?

Slappers—Well, they held a meeting a few days ago and unanimously agreed to offer Turgler $500 if he would stop sending the publication to them.

A Good Guesser.

Short—I say, old, man, can you let me have five dollars a few days?

Marks—Sure. Here you are.

Short—By the way, do you know why I always come to you for a loan?

Marks—No; I give it up.

Short—That's it, exactly.

The Elevator Man's Joke.

Hobbs—I guess the elevator is out of order. What is that sign on the door?

Dobbs—The elevator man must be a bit of a wag. It says: "Please pardon me for not rising."

Latest Role.

"Why do you save those old rubber shoes?"

"They are for hungry arctic explorers," replied Mrs. Housekeep. "Been a good many of 'em along this route."

Unrest.

"Is Mr. Biggins at home on horseback?"

"I should think so," replied Miss Cayenne. "He seems equally uncomfortable in either place."

Just Like a Woman.

"You would never shed tears over me!"

"Oh, you never can tell; I shed tears over an onion this morning."

Effective Methods.

Wunder—Stayler is successful as a collector of bad debts.

Waring—That's because he takes a tent with him and camps out in front of the debtor's door.

Formerly the people burned witches. Now they roast politicians.

Clear white clothes are a sign that the housekeeper uses Red Cross Ball Blue. Large 2 oz. package, 5 cents.

The Modern Idea.

"And you don't love him?"

"No."

"Then why marry him?"

"Oh, I might as well. Every girl has to have a foolish marriage or two before she really settles down."

More Serious.

"Mathilde Browne was very rude to an overdressed old woman she met on the street the other day."

"I know the story. The old woman turned out to be Mathilde's very rich aunt, and now she's going to give all her money to a hospital for decrepit dogs."

"Nothing of the sort. In fact, it's worse. The old woman was the Brownes' new cook—and now they haven't any."

Can You Save?

Certainly you can save, if there is an incentive. Lots of women in Columbus are saving wrappers from Easy Task soap. You know if you send twenty-five of the wrappers and a two cent stamp to the Hewitt Brothers Soap Company, Dayton, Ohio, they will send you a beautiful art reproduction, all ready for framing. Some folks go to a picture store and pay a big, fat price for the same pictures. Your grocer keeps Easy Task soap; or he will keep it if you ask for it.

A Knowing Girl.

When young Lord Stanleigh came to visit an American family, the mistress told the servants that in addressing him they should always say "Your Grace." When the young gentleman one morning met one of the pretty house servants in the hallway and told her that she was so attractive looking he thought he would kiss her, she demurely replied, clasping her hands on her bosom and looking up into his face with a beatific expression, "O Lord, for this blessing we are about to receive, we thank thee."—Lippincott's.

Silenced the Critic.

Charles Sumner, when in London, gave a ready reply. At a dinner given in his honor, he spoke of "the ashes" of some dead hero. "Ashes! What American English!" rudely broke in an Englishman; "dust you mean, Mr. Sumner. We don't burn our dead in this country." "Yet," instantly replied Mr. Sumner, with a courteous smile, "your poet Gray tells us that 'Even in our ashes live their wonted fires.'" The American was not criticized again that evening.

The Home of the Cod.

There is just one other great cod bank in the world besides those off Newfoundland. It lies off Cape Agulhas, which is the southern tip of Africa, and south of the Cape of Good Hope. The Agulhas plateau is said to be almost a duplicate in size and richness of the north cod banks. But this is too far off, so there is little promise of its appeasing the hungry appetite of the world for cod.

Advice.

"Father," queried Bob, just home from college, "you've worked for me pretty hard nearly all my life, haven't you?"

"Quite right, quite right, son," mused father, retrospectively.

"Just so," returned Bob, briskly. "Now, you had better get busy and work for yourself a bit—eh, dad?"—Life.

Comparing Notes.

Mrs. Newly—My little Robbie is remarkably strong; he is only four years old, but he can raise his high chair with one hand!

Mr. Spoodler—Oh, that's nothing; in the apartment house where I try to do my sleeping there's a baby that's only four months old, and that child can raise the roof with no hand at all.

Where He Came In.

"Have you ever figured in a divorce suit?"

"No; the lawyers did the figuring. I just paid the bills."

A friend's worth is at its best when an enemy tests the strength.—Royston.

There's vitality, snap and "go"
In a breakfast of

Grape-Nuts

and cream.

Why?
Because nature stores up
In wheat and barley
The Potassium Phosphate
In such form as to
Nourish brain and nerves.
The food expert who originated

Grape-Nuts

Retained this valuable
Element in the food.
"There's a Reason"
Read the famous little book,
"The Road to Wellville,"
Found in Packages.

POSTUM CEREAL COMPANY, Limited,
Battle Creek, Michigan.

AUGUST

0469

L 904

The St. Joe News.

One Year $1.00
Six Month 50c
Three Months 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, ---- Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

AUGUST.

Last year,
Alack and alas!
Beverly, Mass.,
And Bill on the flat
Of his back in the grass
Sounding the depths
Of the opaline sky
And watching the clouds
Floating dreamily by.
Last year,
Alack and alas!
Beverly, Mass.

This year,
Sagamore Hill,
Strenuous still,
And no one complaining
For want of a thrill,
Shindy and sass
Just as certain as fate—
Beverly, Mass.,
Can dream early or late,
Snore as it pleases
And snooze as it will—

This year,
Sagamore Hill.

Of August it may first be said, its name is from Augustus, whom men have likened unto Ted, perhaps without injustice. He made the world go round about as many times a minute, and the news was always dull without the great Augustus in it.

He had his Ananias Club for liars and for fakers, and he loved to sail his little tub among the Roman breakers. He counted peace a sort of plague, and never did pursue it, but let it rally at The Hague, and you couldn't beat him to it.

He preached about the same old things that Teddy has been preaching, and most of Rome's awakenings resulted from his teaching. He battled hotly for the right, and valiantly imbued it, and the stork could not attempt to light but what he upend shooed it.

There was, however, one affair to which he was little, and that was the time his pet bear was coming from b[illegible]. He had, of course, t[illegible] everything opposing him to slumb[illegible] and howled [illegible] to sing so[illegible] laudatory numbers.

[illegible] the parallel desists. Augustus said them. No, sir! and when he entered with his lists it might have been the grocer for all the greeting that he got from that adulting chorus which desire, of course, was not bit like Theodorus.

But howsoever, when he died the month that lives to grill us was being written far and wide the season of Sextilus. They wanted to commemorate the hot time he presented the nation with, at any rate, so August was invented.

The dog days will resume again,
And the man who voted water
With the weather down to eight or ten
Below will grow the hotter
With wishing that he had foreseen
The season hot and stewing,
And nothing but a choice between
Pink lemonade and bluing.

It will not strike him, we're afraid, as when the cold was stinging, and up and down the wind-swept street the icicles were flinging. There's nothing like a dry parade, the shouts of Hallelujiah, and the children skilfully arrayed for what you want to fool you.

It's very easy to forget there's such a thing as Summer, or such a quantity as sweat, what time the busy drummer is rub-a-dubbing up the street a million bumps a minute, and the line sweeps by with rhythmic feet and the little shavers in it.

It somehow makes it seem that booze is only fit for motors, and in the scuffle that ensues not very many voters bethink them that a chance remains that milk won't give them gristle to last when August boils their brains and their ears begin to whistle.

A crafty temperance is that contriving its elections when Boreas is at the bat in these disputed sections. There is a time for everything, to Tabor and to potter, and one to sit way back and sing inaudibly for water.

At any rate, the world will spin
With very small pretension,
And the Fall elections will begin
To clamor for attention.
The next few weeks will fire the gun
Repeatedly and ofttly,
And a lot of folks begin to run
For office very softly.

The bold insurgent will have polled the principal chautauquas, and will by that time have been told how far discreet his balk was, or if to follow his attack with further demonstration, or quietly to tip-toe back upon the reservation.

The hopeful Democrat will tool this way and that way framing, and hope to have us as a rule have none of their explaining. He'll carefully trim up his wicks and get his pump pulsating, and pass the grandstand every six or seven seconds waiting.

There'll be some dust put up, it seems, when this event gets going, and some things starting at the seams that wanted proper sewing. No wonder Roosevelt came back, and nowadays his gun is rusting in the shooing rack, when here is where the fun is.

The time of green and growing things will near its termination, and the song the thrasher sweetly sings will come with moderation. We'll sort o' think of autumn time, the hunter and the nuter, and the fisherman will wear a smile as thick as apple butter.

And then September will return
In good autumnal fashion,
And the poet fall upon his lyre
In something of a passion.

Regulate Traffic or Prohibit It.

Which Method Do You Favor, Mr. Temperance Voter? What is the Bible Way?

COURT'S VERDICT ON LOCAL OPTION

To Temperance Republicans and Democrats:

There are but two methods of dealing with the liquor traffic. One is regulation, the other is prohibition.

License is regulation. Federal Tax Receipt is regulation. Local Option is regulation.

"But," says one, "are you not mistaken about Local Option being regulation?" The Supreme Court of Indiana, in the case of McPherson vs. The State, decided December 10, 1909, said: "To 'regulate, restrict and control' the sale implies that the sale shall go on within the bounds of certain prescribed rules, restrictions and limitations." "The act before us (that is, the Local Option act) is one of regulation or one of prohibition—one or the other. It cannot be both, and avoid being double, which no one claims. It is a bundle of provisions, in the enforcement of which every county in the State may retain its saloons and continue the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and some counties that are now wet may become dry, and some that are now dry may become wet, according to the sentiment of the electors at the end of any period of two years."

"It seems absurd, because rationally inconceivable, that under the operation of a general prohibitory statute enacted by the General Assembly sales as a beverage may indefinitely continue to be lawfully made in many counties of the State. It is also equally incomprehensible that a law may be absolutely prohibitory and in itself provide the means and terms under which sales may be continued or resumed in any or all counties of the State. We therefore conclude that the object and purpose of the act before us is regulation and not prohibition."

Having found out what regulation is, let us also inquire what prohibition is. In the same case the Supreme Court said: "Prohibition as applied to the liquor traffic, implies the putting a stop to its sale as a beverage, to end it fully, completely and indefinitely."

So we see the Supreme Court was right when it said that the Local Option act was regulation and not prohibition.

Again, in the same case, the Supreme Court said: "A prohibitory law to be classed as such must, at the same instant, in the same way, become effective to interdict the sale of liquors throughout all parts of the jurisdiction of the law making power." As the "jurisdiction of the law-making power" is State wide, then "all parts of the jurisdiction of the law-making power" would be the whole State, and hence under the definition of the Supreme Court nothing less than State-wide prohibition could be prohibition. So again we see that the Supreme Court was right when it said that Local Option was regulation and not prohibition.

So then, my good Republican and Democratic friends, it is impossible for you to vote either of the old party tickets without voting for the regulation of the liquor traffic.

Which is the right way, regulation or prohibition? In this connection it might be well to inquire what is the Bible way? That Book is the supreme standard of right and wrong. The Bible says: "And even now is the axe laid unto the root of the trees; every tree therefore that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire." This is a correct test for men and institutions. Since the fruit of the saloon is always bad, the Bible way is to lay the axe unto the root of the tree, hew it down and cast it into the fire. That means destruction, and that is what prohibition means as applied to the liquor traffic.

Again, the Bible says: "Let us not therefore judge one another any more; but judge ye this, rather, that no man put a stumbling block in his brother's way, or an occasion of falling." Since the saloon is a stumbling block that is populating the penitentiaries, reformatories, jails and alms houses, and each day filling the land with new-made graves and the tears of widows and orphans, it should be put out of the way, and that can only be done by prohibition. One can not regulate a stumbling block. As well try to regulate dynamite in hell.

Again, the Bible says: "To this end was the Son of God manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil." The saloon belongs to the "works of the devil." To regulate the "works of the devil" means the perpetuation of his works. Therefore, my brother, don't vote for the regulation of the liquor traffic, because if you do you are assisting the devil. If you wish to help Christ destroy the works of the devil, don't vote to regulate his (the devil's) works, but vote to prohibit them.

Centuries of regulation of the liquor traffic in the old country and many decades in the new have proved it a failure, and it must always be so, because it is wrong.

Prohibition is the only way because it is the Bible way, and the Bible way is right.

Therefore, my good old-party friends, stop voting to regulate the work of the devil, and vote the Bible way, which is the right way, and which is prohibition.

You cannot vote either of the old-party tickets without voting for the regulation of the liquor traffic. And God will hold you accountable for the awful results of the traffic.

A. B. KIRKPATRICK.

Kokomo, July 12.

THE BEST HOUR OF LIFE

is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky M.C., N. C., when he was suffering intensely, he says, from the worst cold he ever had. I then proved to my great satisfaction what a wonderful Cold and Cough-cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For after taking one bottle I was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that. It is the surest and best remedy for diseased lungs, hemorrhages, La Grippe, Asthma, Hay Fever—any throat or lung trouble. 50c. $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

Summer Is Here

which brings flies, bugs and mosquitoes. Why be pested with them when Kinsey has a full line of Screen Doors, Windows, Wire screen and Hinges. All sizes at right prices. That nice lawn needs a mower to keep it mowed. When that building needs painting, don't forget we have a full line of Paint and Oil guaranteed strictly pure. The hot weather will make you wonder where you can secure a Gasoline or Oil Stove, remember we have a full line. When you need anything in Hardware remember we are complete. We show the biggest line of Graniteware ever shown in town and prices are such as have never been known. We have the Automatic Schrams Fruit Jars. Come in and we will be glad to show them. Always bear in mind that Kinsey's is where you get value received or in other words, dollar for dollar.

At your Service,

H. V. KINSEY — H. V. Kinsey & Son — E. R. KINSEY

Furniture Hardware Undertaking

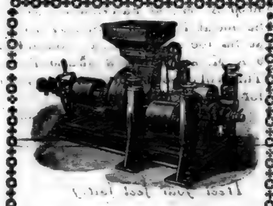
Office Phone No. 37-2 — Residence No. 37-3

You will also find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Especially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 — Residence No. 37-3



Grain is Saved, Money Made, and Stock does better by having your feed ground by the

Keesler Mfg. Co.

ST. JOE, - - - - INDIANA

Money Coming to You,

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank, you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

J. D Fetters

TRUSTEE

of Concord Township.

OFFICE DAY:

THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK at his farm residence One mile EAST OF CONCORD.

Real Estate.

Insurance

NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at ..... 10:32 a. m.
No. 3 ..... 8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at ..... 6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at ..... 4:57 p. m.

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

All is answered day or night.

Phone No. 82.

St. Joe, Indiana

DENTIST

O. R. PRICE,

ST. JOE, IND.

Office in Oase building.

Bell Phone No. 44.

D. F. BROWN,

.....SHOE SHOP.....

My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite Kagey's Grocery. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.

St. Joe, - Ind.

S. S. Kimes

—M. D.—

Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.

Phone No. 10.

Spencerville, Ind.

Read the ads and be posted.

Band concert Saturday evening.

5% FARM LOANS 5%

SEE

Charles O. Borst

Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dester Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone:

Bell 347k Home 346

Office:

Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. They can, by planning and funeral need care or attention. Use Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, does charge of funerals, Solicitous attention. Calls answered day or night.

H. V. Kinsey & Son,

Phone No. Office 37-2. — Residence 37-3

0470

L 904

AUGUST

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

Local Items

THE NEWS $1.00 per year.

Miss Hazel Steward of Alberton, O., is the guest of relatives here.

Mrs. Mellie Enzor assisted Mrs. Emma Smith in cooking for threshers last Friday.

Wm. Erick and son Beeks, left Tuesday to spend the remainder of the week at Hamilton Lake.

W. P. Steward, wife and Miss Steward of Ohio, were Sunday guests of Harvey Kimes and family.

John Koch and wife and William Smith and wife assisted Elmer Smith and wife with their threshing last Friday.

Before buying your machine oil see Erick & Co's Eldorado Castor. Only 20c. per gallon. It is a fine one.

C. R. Bowman and Frank Butler, accompanied by their wives spent Sunday at Glen Henderson's at Huntertown and at the park also.

Family reunions will be in full sway in a week or so and it is the desire of THE NEWS that all families furnish us with complete reports of same.

Old junk and rubber brings the highest market price at J. F. Baltz. Come and see him.

Spencerville was beaten Sunday by the Newville base ball team to the tune of 10 to 14. But the boys got tired of running before the game was over.

Frank Beams and family drove to the Reicher farm near Grabill, Sunday afternoon and when they had nearly reached home, his horse became frightened at a passing automobile, and gave a lunge breaking the singletree. The matter was soon adjusted so as to get home. No one was hurt.

Bowser & Berry have just received a full car load of Grover's Wheat Fertilizer, which contains no filler except pure animal matter. Call on them for your fertilizer while it lasts.

Wm. Morr was taken to Longcliff Asylum last Thursday by Dr. Shook. Wm. has had a severe sick spell this summer and it has left him in this demented condition. At times he seems to be rational and, in a short time his mind is off. It is a sad fact indeed but it is thought that he can be cured of it by treatment given at the home at Longcliff.

Thrashing coal. W. E. Baxter.

Here is a scheme a Spencerville man worked to get his wife to hoe the garden: He went out with the hoe and after searching around for awhile went to the house to wash the dirt off a dime and a quarter. He had struck it rich. Back he went and presently returned with another quarter. He told his wife he had made money enough for one day and would take a nap. When he awoke his wife had the whole garden hoed but she had not found a cent. She dosen't know yet that the "mine was salted." Can you think of any Spencerville man who would be guilty of such a misdemeanor?

FRED THOMAS

FARMERS!

should remember that there is always more or less repairing to be done before the fall work comes on. Your drag may need some teeth sharpened and now would be a good time to have it done before they are needed.

All Work Guaranteed.

The Blacksmith.

YOU ARE ALWAYS WELCOME AT THE

TREECE RESTAURANT

Lunch, Cigars, Confectionary, Ice Cream and Soft Drinks

Clem Treece

PROPRIETOR.

Read your own NEWS.

Lutheran S. S., 93 attendance $2.80 collection.

The Mesdames Jane Butler and L. O. Wade were at Wawasee, last week.

Bring your old junk and rubber to J. F. Baltz. Prices right.

Evangeline Fisher visited last Friday with Gertrude and Ethel Shutt.

Homer Cook started to work for Harry Enzor of Newville last Wednesday.

Chas. Hollisteen and wife of Wayne, were Sunday guests of L. W. Steward and family.

Master Don Shook is at Hamilton, this week, and is a guest at the Chas. Koch cottage.

Phone us the news or use our item box at the post office. We want all the news, but it is impossible to get it without your help.

Wes Zimmerman of Butler came down to thresh his wheat last Friday morning, it turned out 53 bushels from four acres of ground.

Don'ts to be Observed.

Dog days began July 20 and continue until about September 20, during which time dogs and domestic pets suffer most from the excessive heat. But if the few "don'ts" contained herein are followed you will not only be giving comfort to your dog, but will also be playing safe for yourself and everyone else in the family.

Don't kick a dog.

Don't be cruel even in parting fighting dogs.

Don't let a vicious dog run loose, if your dog is vicious he ought to be killed or chained.

Don't chloroform your dog; shooting is more humane.

Don't give your dog too much meat in hot weather.

Don't let the dog go thirsty.

THE AMERICAN WORKMAN.

His Condition as Compared to English and German Laborers.

J. B. Street, statistican for the British department of commerce and labor, who has been investigating comparative conditions of working people throughout Germany, the United States and England, says that the American workingman lives higher, works lesser hours and has a better time all around than either his German or English brethren.

"I find that the skilled man in the United States has a better and more varied diet than in any other country I have investigated," he said. "The English workman has as much meat, but he hasn't the variety of vegetables and sweets. His meals lack imagination."

The German mechanic Mr. Street finds to be in the worst condition of all. His trades unions are the most complete and best organized of the three countries considered, and yet he works more hours, gets less pay, eats less, and is worse housed than any of them. They get 25 per cent less pay than Englishmen," said Mr. Street. "They work 10 hours a day as against nine in England and eight in the United States, and their cost of living is 18 per cent higher."

The poor districts of American cities failed to horrify Mr. Street. He said they had worse at home.

"I've been through your poorest section," said he. "It is much the same as one finds in all the large cities of the world. The difference here is that there is an appearance of energy and hopefulness in most of your poor people. The reason is, I take it, that they had enough enterprise and thrift to start with to get themselves over here with the intention of bettering their condition."

Chas. D. Lake and family visited with O. D. Applegate at Killtown, Sunday.

The Misses Lena and Nellie Kelley also Grace Cook visited last Thursday afternoon with Anna Squires and Louis Smith.

Mr. Adams and family of Auburn, came in their auto last Friday eve and took Maud Kline with them to Auburn for a few days.

Grandma Steward is no better at this writing. Last week she attempted to stand when the folks were out of the house and she fell, injuring her left hip. She is 80 years old and her chances for recovery are very small.

A party was given Ruth Thomas last Saturday in honor of her tenth birthday. About 2 o'clock nine of her little friends gathered at her home and all enjoyed the afternoon. About 4 o'clock a dainty lunch was served after which they were treated to ice cream and candy.

John Hemrick and wife of Peru, spent last week with Frank Butler and wife.

We hear that Wall Fales has recently been married to a lady at Auburn, formerly Mrs. Carper.

Miss Mary Comesky and sister, Mrs. John Moudy called on Grandma Tripp, Sunday evening.

Next Saturday the Lutheran Sunday School will go to the Scipio picnic and the Methodist school at Leo.

Jessie Moffett returned to her home at Auburn last week, after visiting two weeks with her grandparents.

Miss Ethel Baker was taken quite ill suddenly in Ft. Wayne, at the home of Mr. J. Southern and was immediately removed to the St. Joseph hospital where she underwent an operation. Mrs. Southern was also a patient there at the same time.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced with water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Last Saturday, Bert Fisher with some boys were driving four steers home which they had purchased below, and one of them became unmanagable. It ran into Beerbower's yard knocking down Lewis Fisher, jumped a fence and was rushing at Bert when it dropped to the ground and in 20 minutes was dead. They think it was due to internal injuries. It meant a loss to Carnes of $70.

CLYDE E. HART

Republican Candidate for County Surveyor. Is Making Early Canvas.

Is A Man Well Liked

The above is a likeness of Mr. Clyde E. Hart, Republican candidate for Surveyor. He is a man who is well known over the County, having been a school teacher in the county for several years. Has been and is now connected with the Farmer's Mutual Insurance Company and all business dealings have been honorable. He is a young, active man and is making a favorable impression with the voters of the county.

Mrs. Anna Squires of Kendallville, is here visiting friends and relatives.

Lewis Fisher, while playing ball last week, had the misfortune to break one of his ribs.

Mr. John Moudy of Robison Chapel, visited with his wife and sister, Miss Mary Comesky, Sunday.

Mrs. Lucy Fairfield called on Mrs. John Hobaugh, and sister Miss Lena Rummell, Sunday afternoon.

Levi Sechler is at work on his farm north of St. Joe threshing his grain. He stated that his wheat threshed 25 bushels to the acre.

LIFE ON PANAMA CANAL

Has had one frightful drawback—malaria trouble—that has brought suffering and death to thousands. The germs cause chills, fever and ague, biliousness, lassitude, weakness and general debility. But Electric Bitters never fail to destrop them and cure malarial troubles. "Three bottles completely cured me of a very severe attack of malaria," writes Wm. A. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "and I've had good health ever since." Cure Stomach, Liver, and Kidney Troubles, and prevent Typhoid. 50c. Guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

W. G. Erick

TRUSTEE

of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY

TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK

at Store in

SPENCERVILLE, IND

Sam Cole and wife are visiting relatives at Garrett.

J. F. Baltz and wife made a business trip to Auburn, last Friday.

George Henderson and family spent Sunday at Robison Park.

Fred Hart and wife of Tiffin, Ohio, are the guests of Cal Hart and wife.

Martin Davis and wife are visiting with relatives at Blakesly, Ind., a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Baltz, Mrs. J. B. Sommers and Mrs. Emanuel, visited with Wm. Sommers and wife over Sunday.

When the digestion is all right, the action of the bowels regular, there is a natural craving and relish for food. When this is lacking you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They strengthen the digestive organs, improve the appetite and regulate the bowels. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Ett Walker and family of Hicksville, visited with H. W. Beams and family, Sunday.

Fred Thomas' visited with his wife's parents, Mr. Daniel Rhoades and wife of Springfield Center, Sunday.

George Beams and family attended the ball game at St. Joe, Saturday, and took supper with John Davis and wife.

Mrs. Effie Schoolmaster and children of Fremont, Michigan, attended Sunday School and church at this place, Sunday.

Mrs. W. L. Wernert and Ethel Metcalf, combined a pleasure with a business trip last week by driving to Robison Park and from there to Wayne.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad

VERY LOW FARES TO

Mountain Lake Park, Md.—July 29-August 23.
Chicago—Triennial Conclave, Knights Templar Aug. 5-8.

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO—Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES—South Southwest, West, Northwest.

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST. Long Limits.

Consult BALTIMORE & OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stopover Privileges and Other Details.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

EXCURSIONS

FROM ST. JOE, INDIANA

TO

ATLANTIC CITY, CAPE MAY OCEAN CITY and other Atlantic Coast Resorts.

August 18, 1910. Round Trip $16.50

Consult B. & O. Agent for details

Mrs. Beulah Vallieu and children visited with Mrs. S. E. Koontz, Sunday.

FOR SALE:—A 24-inch Wilson Heater stove, burned about 2 months, in good condition. Will sell cheap. Inquire at THE NEWS office.

To Maintain the White House.

The total appropriation for the maintenance of the White House for this year, for telephone service, automobiles, housekeeping, care of conservatory and greenhouses, printing, lighting and the multifarious trifles necessary to keep up such an establishment, is $377,225, the lowest sum expended in its maintenance since 1904, except during the last two years of the Roosevelt administration, when a record was made by keeping down expenses to about $160,000 each year. With the exception of these two years the expenses have been higher, chiefly owing to appropriations for repairs and additions, which vary from year to year. The highest executive expenditures are about one-tenth of the civil list of Germany and one-eighth that of England.

The entire expense of the White House, including the salary of the President and cost of clerical and office assistance, is a little more than the sum allotted by the Hollanders to Queen Wilhelmina, and is certainly not an extravagant ratio of expenditure, contrasting the proportions of the two countries.

SCIENTIFIC NOTES.

British brewers last year used about 63,000,000 pounds of hops.

Almost two-thirds of the world's petroleum is produced by the United States.

Many thousands of electrical horse power are now used for mining purposes in the Klondike.

Much of the Southern Pacific Railroad in Mexico will be laid on dwarf oak ties from Japan.

About 25,000 worth of gold is recovered from the soot in the chimneys of the United States mints every few years.

All Rotterdam street cars carry first aid packages for relief in case of accident to crew, passengers or pedestrians.

Using electricity, Nome, Alaska, the most northerly town in America, is one of the best lighted in the world.

The first company in the world to undertake the production of radium in a commercial way is building a laboratory at London.

The corn crop of the country for 1909, though not the largest on record, was the most valuable, being worth $1,720,000,000.

STRUCK A RICH MINE.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., says he struck a perfect mine of health in Dr. King's New Life Pills, for they cured him of kidney and liver trouble after 12 years of suffering. They are the best pills on earth for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia, Debility. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

Fish Versus Beef.

When the Beef Trust puts the price of steak up to $1 a pound we can go to eating more fish. Grazing land diminishes every year, so it is only a question of time until beef gets to somewhere near canvas back duck in price. Old ocean will always be in business at the old stand and with the same undiminished confines, unless we run afoul of a wildcat comet or planet and are wiped out; then it won't make any difference. So long as fish is a trifling incident of our diet its price will somewhat follow up the price of beef, for lack of general supply. When it becomes a chief article of food enormous fish industries will be established everywhere, and the supply will keep up with the steady demand. There can't be a monopoly of the ocean; there can't even be such a monopoly in the handling of fish as in the slaughtering, packing and cold storaging of beef.

In buying a cough medicine, don't be afraid to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it and relief is sure to follow. Especially recommended for coughs, colds and whooping cough. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Healthful Kinds of Work.

Breweries and tanneries and printing ink factories confer exemption from tuberculosis, and employes in turpentine factories never have rheumatism, says Harper's Weekly. Copper mining excludes the possibility of typhoid among the workers.

Shepherds enjoy remarkable health. The odd odor of sheep appears to exercise some influence tending to the prevention of disease. Sheep are especially good for whooping cough, so that in a sheep country when a child is taken down with that malady it is the custom for the mother to put it among the sheep to play. The next day, it is said, the child will be well.

Men and women working in lavender, whether gathering or distilling it, are said never to suffer from neuralgia or nervous headache. Lavender, moreover, is as good as a sea voyage for giving tone to the system. Persons sufferings from nervous breakdown frequently give their services gratis to lavender plants in order that they may build up their vitality.

Salt miners can wear summer clothes in blizzard weather without fear of catching cold, for colds are unknown among these workers.

Are Doctors Any Good?

Foolish question! Yet some people act as if a medicine could take the place of a doctor! The best medicine in the world cannot do this. Have a family doctor, consult him frequently, trust him fully. If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds, we would not offer it to you. Ask your doctor. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Pills for constipation, biliousness, sick headache, we would not offer them to you. Ask your own doctor about it.

AUGUST

L 904

FRANK VERNON'S QUEST of the MUSE

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

Frank Vernon had decided to write his masterpiece. Plot, character and incident had all shaped themselves in his mind, and he was sure that two of three months of uninterrupted work would see the book ready for the publishers.

"But I can't write the thing here," he said to the young man who shared his small boarding house room. He gazed disconsolately at the assortment of cravats, ink bottles, pipes, slippers, books, pencils and shaving mugs that cluttered chairs, beds, bureaus, desk and table. "Some of the old duffers who turned out good stuff lived in garrets, but I'll bet you the price of a good lunch that the garrets didn't have much in them."

"You ought to get married, old man," said Jimmy, his room-mate, cheerfully, as he searched energetically for a handkerchief in the bookcase. "It's great the way a girl can keep things in order."

"I couldn't afford it, and, besides, I don't want to. But really, Jimmy, I'm in earnest. I want to get out in the country, away from all distractions, and in the cool green quiet of the fragrant woods pursue the fleeting muse of literature. If I can't catch her I'll come back and take that position the Daily Courier people said would be ready for me next fall."

Jimmy laughed. "I know just the place for you to go," he said. "A quiet farmhouse on the edge of a wooded hill. Two of the quietest people in the world live there and take boarders in summer."

"That's all right, excepting the other boarders. They'd be a distraction as bad as cravats and slippers all over the furniture."

"I can fix that up," announced Jimmy, confidently. "My little sister's staying there, and I'll write her a letter and tell her a friend of mine, who's engaged to a girl who's traveling in Europe, is coming down to seek peace and comfort in solitude. I'll ask her to put the others on, so they'll let you alone."

Thus it was that, a couple of weeks later, Frank Vernon, with two suitcases containing a minimum of cravats and a maximum of pads, pencils and pens, reached the peaceful, comfortable farmhouse where Mr. and Mrs. Gray took summer boarders.

The first evening of his stay, Frank met Patricia, Jimmy's sister, a tall, slim young woman, with soft hair and deep, dark eyes.

The next day Frank started forth in quest of the muse, his pockets bulging comfortably with pipe and tobacco pouch, plenty of soft pencils, paper, and a bundle of sandwiches. He struck joyfully from the road, up the wooded hill, determined to seek out a comfortable spot where he could come every day to work.

Almost at the crest of the little hill he came to the very spot he was seeking. A great bowlder, jutting over the edge of the hill formed a small platform or outlook, giving a charming view up and down the valley.

Frank climbed up to the flat surface of the rock. From a fissure in the middle of it grew a plucky little pine tree, and in its shade he threw himself down on the soft carpet of moss and cones. The distant tinkle of cowbells sounded from the pastures below. Bird calls came from the branches above, a gentle breeze rustled through the trees, and a nearby brook muttered pleasantly.

"If the muse I'm seeking lives in these parts at all," said Frank, as he sprawled in the sunshine, "I'm sure she lives here. Hello," he said, suddenly sitting up. "There she comes now!"

Mingled with the sound of bird and brook and rustling leaves came a girl's clear voice, singing. Presently over the bowlder edge appeared a brown cap, a stray curl or two, and then two surprised, dark eyes.

The voice stopped suddenly as Jimmy's sister recognized Frank. "Well, how did you find it? It's mine," she said.

"I'm in search of a muse and I thought she might live here."

"I'm the only muse that lives here. If I'm not the muse you're looking for you can go. I shan't, for this is my house and I come here every day."

She unpinned her cap and fastened it to one of the branches above her, deposited a basket of fruit and biscuits at the foot of the tree and sat down.

"I'll keep you from getting lonesome, if you're going to stay," she announced. "What's her name?"

"Whose name?"

"Oh, Jimmy told me about her, you know."

"Oh, of course," said Frank, flushing as he recalled his role of engaged man. "It's—oh, it's Angelina."

"Beautiful! Is she little or big?"

"Um—why, Arabella's not exactly either; sort of both," said Frank, desperately.

"Well," said the girl, "I know just what Arabell-Angelina looks like." She looked at him and her dark eyes sparkled with laughter.

"I call her Angelina for short," stammered Frank, boldly.

"Never mind. Some day you must tell me more about her. But I'll not tease you any more today. Shall I read to you?"

And so the morning passed, Patricia reading from a book a poem and a magazine she had brought with her and Frank lying on the ground listening and watching her. When lunch time came they shared their sandwiches and fruit. Frank brought water from the little brook to drink and Patricia gathered flowers for festiveness.

The summer passed as summers will pass. Frank's masterpiece fared badly. For between doubt as to whether he had better admit that Angelina was a myth, and so lose Patricia's friendship, or persist in the deceit and so lose a chance of making her care for him, his mind was in no state for steady work.

Every day he sought the home of the muse, and sometimes he wrote. But he found impassioned odes and gentle sonnets more to his liking than the stirring romance of adventure and life that he had planned for his masterpiece. Sometimes, Patricia came to read to him, and to keep him from grieving too deeply for Angelina. But whenever he led the conversation from Angelina in particular and the countryside in general, to talk of Patricia and himself, the muse would laughingly don her hat, pick up her books and desert him for the day.

Toward the end of August, Frank decided to confess, and then go home to the waiting Courier position.

"Patricia," he began one morning, "I came up here this summer in search of a muse, and I haven't found her; so I'm going back to the city to work."

"I suppose you and Angelina-Arabella will have a dear little flat," said the muse, gazing down on the sleepy little valley. "Is she home yet?"

"That's another thing," said Frank, hopefully. "You see, she is never coming back. In fact, she's—you see, there isn't any Angelina."

Patricia turned to him and laughed. "Do you suppose that I ever believed in the dear thing for more than five minutes?" she asked. "Don't you suppose I guessed right away, and made Jimmy tell me she was a fake? Do you suppose, if I hadn't known all about her I should have let you—" She stopped, blushing, and turned away again.

"You mean fall in love with the muse of these woods, Patricia?" asked Frank, going to her.

"No," smiled the muse, "I mean make the muse fall in love with you."

The Church's Millinery Section.

Because many of the feminine members of the congregation of a Baptist church in a southern city insist on wearing their hats in church, its pastor has set aside a certain portion of the church as the "millinery section," for use of these hat wearers.

The minister announced that all women who come with large creations adorning their heads must either take them off or sit in the "millinery section."

The practise of women wearing hats during the services has been a subject of agitation for some time with the man attendants, and the pastor has from time to time openly opposed it. The minister commented rather sharply on the practise of wearing hats in church, and announced the new program for "a millinery section."

This is all right in its way, but to eliminate the hat is to eliminate the wearer. When it comes time for the separation of the sheep from the goats, the dominie will be charged up with the loss of souls and the dismembering of his church, because where the women are there the men will be also, especially the dominies.—Millinery Trade Review.

The Sign Carrier's Preferences.

"It's hard carrying a banner on a hot day," said a man who makes a living, such as it is, by carrying signs in the street, "and it's harder carrying it on a windy day, but in summer I'd rather carry a banner than a pair of sandwich boards.

"Carrying a high sign you do at least get a free circulation of air all the time around your body and legs, but with sandwich boards on you're all shut in. Hot work carrying sanwiches in summer, but in winter they do for an overcoat; in a way at least they keep the wind off you a little.

"So when I can pick and choose I carry a banner in summer and get inside the sandwich boards in winter. But easy as it looks, you can take it from me that any way you put it carrying signs is not really the easiest way in the world to make a living."

Embarrassing.

"Myrtilla," said the stern father at the breakfast table, "what line of goods does that young salesman represent?"

"He—he sells automobiles," faltered Myrtilla, glancing out of the window.

"He does, eh? Well, I thought perhaps he sold face powder. I saw a sample on his arm when he left last night."

And poor Myrtilla blushed redder than the strawberries.

Punctuality.

Blinks—It's all right for a man to be punctual, but Stickley carries it a little too far.

Jenks—How's that?

Blinks—Why, he wants a fellow to return borrowed money the day he promises to do so.

Avoiding Unpleasantness.

"Who gives this young woman away?" asked the minister.

"No use spoiling the party now," spoke up her father. "He'll find out for himself if he's only half as bright as I think he is."

Was It Brown?

By Nellie Cravey Gilmore

As long as she lived Sylvia would never forget that dizzy walk home from the hospital in the stinging, pouring rain; the savage pleasure she experienced in the cruel way it whipped her hot cheeks and half froze the angry blood curdling fiercely through her rebellious little body.

She had been a fool to go there, of course. And she faced the verdict of her own common sense with the keenest sense of humiliation she had ever known. To be refused admittance to the room where her lover presumably lay dying because she could not give an affirmative answer to the attendant's inquiry as to whether she were "anything to the patient," was bitter enough of itself, but to come face to face with Chalmers's mother and Alline Bester, about to enter where she had been denied, and to be met by a haughty stare of surprise from each, made her young blood boil.

As a matter of fact they were everything to each other. Both she and Chalmers knew that far better than any spoken word or circlet of gold could signify, but no formal engagement existed between them, and she could not be the first to proclaim their love.

They told her at the hospital that if he lived through the night the chances were he would recover. The following day a paragraph in the paper stated that young Chalmers was pronounced comparatively out of danger. A succeeding item hinted at his approaching betrothal to Alline Bester. And within a week the young fullback was on the rapid road to recovery.

The day before Chalmers was discharged from the hospital Sylvia, her mother and father sailed for Japan.

"Listen Dear," he Began Excitedly.

Nine weeks later Sylvia sat reading with overbright, indignant eyes the following letter from her lover.

"Boston, Mass., December 3.

"Dear Little Girl—Why did you run away without one word of farewell? Is it possible that, after everything, you can still be in the dark about how I feel toward you? Have I been mistaken in assuming that you felt the same?

"My last conscious thought before that frightful accident was of you; my first on reawakening to the rational world was of—you. My very first act on being released from the crucible of nurses and doctors was to hasten to Wildmere, only to find you thousands of miles away—and not one word or line of explanation!

"The governor and my mater were so cut up about the accident that I have concluded to retire from the gridiron for the present. Thus you see, everything considered, I return to college a very dejected and gloomy soph. Will you not drop me a line from the far off orient that life may seem something less than a blank, dear, and the world a habitable place instead of one vast, aching wilderness?

"As always,

"Billy."

Sylvia read the letter several times with a variety of emotions. Then she crumpled it and tossed it into the trash basket. Afterward, she went over to her writing desk and penned a cloudy polite little note in reply that effectually shut off any possible excuse for further correspondence. When the letter was sealed, the little resolute line of her lips relaxed into quivering and she broke into a storm of tears.

Early in the following autumn the Marburys returned to America.

It was on a glorious November morning that Sylvia came in, flushed, from a downtown expedition, and hurried straight to the little white sitting room in their new apartments at a fashionable New York hotel.

Without stopping to remove her hat, she turned her bag upside down, emptying the contents on a small, onyx table. There were several new postcards, half a dozen newspaper clippings, a few half-tones—of Brown.

She opened her scrapbook and pasted them all in with painstaking fingers. Never had there been a man like Brown on the Yale gridiron. Every day added fresh laurels to his already brilliant record. He was worshiped by his classmates, idolized by his team and adored by the girls.

From the wreck of her shattered hopes, Sylvia had risen to join in the universal hero worship. On her mantel was a panel of the invincible Brown; in her bureau drawers were innumerable likenesses and unlikenesses. She carried his picture in a tiny locket about her neck, and on her desk was a porcelain painting of him.

She glanced smilingly at the dozen different caricatures each newspaper had proudly named as the "only true likeness" of the mighty one. Then, with a queer little pang at her heart, she opened the secret compartment of her desk and drew forth an old photograph of Billy Chalmers. She looked into the handsome, serious eyes long and earnestly; a little sob caught in her throat. How she had loved him! Could it be really true, she asked herself, that he had changed so much—and cared for that other (?), cared enough to marry her, as report said?

A sharp rap on her door interrupted the painful train of thought, and Sylvia rose and turned the knob, schooling her face into unconcern. It was a special, in Billy's own handwriting, and she tore open the envelope with crimsoning cheeks:

"Dear Sylvia," it ran. "May I call at four on a matter of importance? Am sailing at daybreak for Germany to take up the study of medicine in Berlin. Please do not refuse me.—Billy."

For an instant Sylvia stood holding the sheet between trembling, icy fingers. Should she see him? All the fierce resentment and wounded pride of the past year surged up in her defense; with a swift impulse she seized a pen and dashed down a single word and signed it "Sylvia."

The succeeding hours were the longest Sylvia had ever spent in her life, but Chalmers arrived promptly. She greeted him with her most formal little manner, effectually screening wild inward turbulence from his eager penetrating glance.

Every attempt he made to lead the conversation into personal channels was balked by her, and finally Chalmers broke out abruptly:

"Look here, Sylvia, the last time I saw you it was an understood thing between us that as soon as we both graduated we'd be—"

"Have you forgotten—Alline?" she interposed, coldly.

"That affair was all my mother's doing. Only recently I learned of the report in the paper which you must have seen. I went at once to Miss Bester and told her the true situation. She is to be married in April to another man. We shook hands and parted friends. On my word of honor, that is the sum and substance of the whole thing. By George, Sylvia! who is that fellow?" Chalmers had caught sight of the panel on the mantelshelf, and the color flooded his face.

Sylvia blushed, too, and said, foolishly: "Isn't he a wonder?"

"To judge by the gushiness of the press—he is," was the half-disgusted reply.

"You know him well, of course?" she queried, fencing for time.

"Oh, after a fashion! Do you?" He gave her a quick, keen look.

"Only in this legendary sort of way," and she indicated the pile of clippings on her desk, her eyes traveling comprehensively from one wall to another where were displayed the more or less ludicrous prints. "I suppose he's a perfect idol of the girls, isn't he?"

Chalmers grunted. "I happen to know that he doesn't care a fig for but one in the world—and she won't look at him."

"Oh," exclaimed Sylvia, "what a stupid she must be!"

Chalmers rose and paced the length of the room, then back again. He stopped in front of Sylvia's chair; his voice had changed when he spoke.

"Is it possible, Sylvia, that this fellow has supplanted me in your estimation—has taken the old, dear—place—?"

Sylvia laughed constrainedly. "I—you see," she said, "I had to have something to keep up my interest—somebody. It—it's a sort of fad, you know—"

"But if he should come here today, and ask you to be his wife, would you listen to him?"

"I—suppose—I—should," was the very subdued response.

Chalmers bit his lip. Suddenly he sat down on the arm of her chair and deliberately drew her head against him. "Listen, dear," he began excitedly. "I want to tell you a few things about—Brown. He had a serious accident last year during one of the big games, and his people didn't want him to play football any more. He didn't make any rash promises, but rather than have them worry, he took an assumed name—"

Sylvia looked up tentatively, her eyes now wistful, now dancing—red lips parted.

"Do you think he did wrong in this?"

Sylvia shook her head, her black lashes shadowing the pink rim of her cheek.

"Sweetheart, I—I am Brown."

"Oh!"

He caught her close to his heart. "Will you cross the ocean with me tomorrow, dear, or will it require a longer time to get accustomed to Brown's identity?"

"I knew it all along," she whispered. "I haven't missed a game. And—and—Billy, please let me talk, I—I think it would be something of a distinction, really, to be pointed out as Mrs. Brown."

MENDING TROUSERS POCKETS

Mrs. Billtops Objects to the One Ingenious Method That Pleases Her Husband.

"As some sage has remarked," said Mr. Billtops, "the longer we lives the more we finds out. You take, for instance, the mending of a trousers pocket that has a hole in it down at the bottom, so that you are in danger of losing out of it your keys or your pocket knife or such small change as you may there carry.

"Now I supposed there were just three ways of mending that pocket, three and no more. One way would be to put a patch on it, another way would be to cut off the bottom of the pocket and sew on a new section, and still another way would be to put in an entire new pocket; but the tailor to whom I took these trousers to be fixed up has shown me a fourth way that made me laugh for its simplicity and at the same time as I thought in genuity.

"He just folded over the bottom of the pocket high enough up to cover the hole, and then just stitched the pocket across through the folded over part and the main body of the pocket. this you see something that could be done in a minute and that at the same time served its purpose. I admired it for its ingenuity and effectiveness, but Mrs. Billtops doesn't look at it as I do.

"She says that if it's a sloppy way of mending a pocket, that it makes the pocket shallower, for one thing, and that then that folded over part, making the pocket of double thickness, makes a ridge there which is not desirable. She says that she has mended pockets that way herself, but that it is not a good way, and I guess she's right; she generally is."

TIN A GOOD SOUND BARRIER

German's Experiment With Telephone Booth Convinces Him It Should Be Put In Walls.

Any one who in a telephone booth has been disturbed by loud talking outside, or some other noise to interrupt the electric conversation, will be interested in an article in a German periodical, Der Gesundheitsingenieur. The writer tells how he dealt with this difficulty. He had been making some acoustic experiments which convinced him that if a wooden telephone booth were lined with tin, all noises would be excluded. He nailed sheets of tin on the wooden walls, with the result that an expert, who had laughed at his idea, was so impressed that he forthwith proceeded to construct a number of such booths. Nor are telephone users the only ones who may profit by this experiment. The writer referred to appeals to architects to introduce tin, or aluminum, in the walls of houses generally, to deaden sounds. He is convinced that if this were done the neighbor's daughter's piano and voice would cease to be a disturbing factor in life, except, of course, in summer, when all the windows are open. The tin manufacturers may be trusted to see to it that this plan is properly pushed and advertised.

Where Men Are "Pretty."

A British investigator is ungallant enough to state that the reason why women are as a rule of a beauty not attained by man lies in the fact that they are more indolent and not so prone to "exercise their brains" as men are. Intellectual labors and assiduous attention to business are, according to this authority, matters extremely prejudicial to the development of physical beauty.

In support of his theory this Briton points to the Zaros, a tribe of British India. Among them, it appears, women hold the place that in other countries is pre-empted by men. The Zaro woman manages the affairs of state, engages in business on her own account and does not restrict herself in the narrow field of woman elsewhere. On the other hand, the Zaro man has nothing to do but cook the meals and look after the children. The natural result of all this, says our scientist, is that the men of this singular tribe are "very pretty" and the women unusually plain.

Brought Bees to Earth.

A rather novel way of capturing a swarm of bees was adopted in North Hants, England, recently, where a gamekeeper found that a roving colony had settled high up on a beech tree fifty or sixty feet above the ground in his garden. A man went to his assistance and spread a cloth on the ground on some hay just beneath the swarm. The keeper fired a shot which cut away the bough from which the bees hung from the tree. They fell like a bunch of grapes on to the cloth, and a "skep" was immediately placed over them. The swarm weighed nearly five pounds, and the bees appeared to be none the worse for their treatment.

Strange Juvenile Depravity.

An extraordinary case of juvenile crime recently occurred at Rossenfeld, near Munich, where two choir boys have been sentenced to several years' imprisonment for poisoning sacramental wine. The elder boy stole some hydrochloric acid, and the younger who was assisting the priest at mass, poured the poison into the wine. The first person who tasted the wine fortunately noticed that something was wrong, and a strong emetic was administered by a doctor in the congregation.

A WARNING.

Man at Telephone—Let me have the gas office, please.

Operator—Certainly. But you know we don't allow any swearing over our lines.

Try This, This Summer.

The very next time you're hot, tired or thirsty, step up to a soda fountain and get a glass of Coca-Cola. It will cool you off, relieve your bodily and mental fatigue and quench your thirst delightfully. At soda fountains or carbonated in bottles—5c everywhere. Delicious, refreshing and wholesome. Send to the Coca-Cola Co., Atlanta, Ga., for their free booklet "The Truth About Coca-Cola." Tells what Coca-Cola is and why it is so delicious, refreshing and thirst-quenching. And send 2c stamp for the Coca-Cola Baseball Record Book for 1910—contains the famous poem "Casey At The Bat," records, schedules for both leagues and other valuable baseball information compiled by authorities.

Immense Saving Possible.

In a preliminary bulletin on the cost of maintaining a tuberculosis sanatorium, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis announces that the average cost per patient per day in thirty semi-charitable sanatoria scattered in all parts of the United States is $1.669. These institutions represent an annual expenditure of over $1,300,000 and over $15,000 days of treatment given each year. The bulletin, which is part of an extensive study the National association is making for its bureau of information, points out that the country could save annually at least $150,000,000 if the indigent consumptives were properly segregated.

An Easy Fit.

A number of years ago there lived in northern New Hampshire a notorious woman-hater. It was before the day of ready-made clothing, and wanting a new suit, he was obliged to take the material to the village tailoress. She took his measurements, and when she cut the coat, made a liberal allowance on each seam.

The man's dislike of women in general prevented his having a fitting. He took the finished garment without trying it on. It was much too large, and his disgust was apparent in the answer he made to the friendly loafer on his first visit to the post office, when he wore the despised article.

"Got a new coat, Obed?" said the loafer.

"No, I hain't!" said Obed. "I've got seven yards of cloth wrapped round me."—Youth's Companion.

How He Kept the Law.

"I noticed," said the friend-who-could-be-trusted, after a trip through the factory where preserves are made, "that a white powder is first put in the cans, and that the preserves are then put in the white powder."

"Yes," explained the proprietor to the friend-who-could-be-trusted, "that white powder is a preservative. You see we are compelled to put the preserves in a preservative because an idiotic requirement of the government makes it unlawful for us to put a preservative in the preserves."

Caught Too Quick.

"I pleads guilty ter stealin' dem melons, jedge," said the prisoner, "but I wants de mercy er de court."

"On what grounds?" asked the judge.

"On dese grounds," replied the prisoner: "I stole de melons, but de sheriff didn't give me a chance to eat 'em!"—Atlanta Constitution.

As He Remembered It.

"Johnnie, what did the minister preach about today?"

"It was about something that stings like an adder and bites like a multiplier."

There can be no true rest without work, and the full delight of a holiday cannot be known except by the man who has earned it.—Hugh Black.

For Breakfast—

Post Toasties

with cream or milk

The smile that follows will last all day—

"The Memory Lingers"

Sold by Grocers.

Pkgs. 10c and 15c

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd.
Battle Creek, Mich.

AUGUST

0472
L 904

The "Done Up" Shirt Waist.

Half the looks of a shirt waist depend on the way it is done up. If it is washed with cheap strong yellow soap, so that it gets streaked and stained instead of being cleaned and beautified, it is "done up" sure enough. The woman who values her personal appearance—and that means every woman—will see to it that her shirt waists are laundered with a soap that leaves them white and clean and sweet and new-looking. Easy Task soap is the only one that will do this. Same price as others—five cents a cake, and the greatest enemy to dirt and friend to fabrics ever made.

The saddest case in this world is when one thinks the almighty has destined him to be happy at the price of another's misery.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

We are still patiently awaiting the advent of wireless politics.

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF MISERY

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"For four years my life was a misery to me. I suffered from irregularities, terrible dragging sensations, extreme nervousness, and that all gone feeling in my stomach. I had given up hope of ever being well when I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Then I felt as though new life had been given me, and I am recommending it to all my friends."—Mrs. W. S. FORD, 2207 W. Franklin St., Baltimore, Md.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test of years and to-day is more widely and successfully used than any other female remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed.

If you are suffering from any of these ailments, don't give up hope until you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. She has guided thousands to health, free of charge.

The Army of Constipation

Is Growing Smaller Every Day.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible—they not only give relief—they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE

Genuine must bear Signature

Brentwood

A Skin of Beauty Is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S Oriental Cream and Magical Beautifier.

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 52 yrs. and is so harmless we taste it to be sure it is properly made. Accept No counterfeit of similar name. Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut-ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the skin preparations." For sale by all druggists and Fancy-Goods Dealers in the U.S., Canada and Europe.

Ferd. T. Hopkins, Prop., 37 Great Jones St., New York

Busted

Many a man goes broke—in Health—then wealth. Blames his mind—says it don't work right; but all the time it's his bowels. They don't work—liver dead and the whole system gets clogged with poison. Nothing kills good, clean-cut brain action like constipation. CASCARETS will relieve and cure. Try it now. 818

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment. All druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

STOCKERS & FEEDERS

Choice quality; reds and roans, white faces or angus bought on orders. Tens of Thousands to select from. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Correspondence Invited. Come and see for yourself.

National Live Stock Com. Co.
At either
Kansas City, Mo., St. Joseph, Mo., S. Omaha, Neb.

MUSIC ARRANGED FOR PIANO and Orchestra. Melodies written to song poems. W. NELSON, 1358 West 50th St., New York

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 31-1910.

MRS. FENTON

BY

W. E. NORRIS

CHAPTER XIV.

Mr. Breffit (having previously made an appointment by means of an interchange of post-cards) called at Fred's rooms one evening after office hours in order to report upon the lady as to whose existence he had so often professed himself skeptical.

"The fact is," said he, "that your cousin is simply charming. I don't know exactly what there is about her; but there is something that is irresistible; you'll say so yourself when you have seen her. It isn't only that she is pretty, nor that she is a thorough lady all over——"

Fred interrupted this eulogium by a laugh. "What a rage my poor old uncle would have been in," he remarked, "if he had heard you say that. Just imagine the audacity of calling his daughter a lady. As if she could possibly be anything else."

"Well, she might have deteriorated, you know; girls who marry music-masters and run away to distant colonies are not so very unlikely to deteriorate. But she hasn't. Indeed, she has improved, according to the Master of All Saints, whom she went to see the other day, and who has written me an enthusiastic letter about her. He says she has gained immensely in appearance and manners, but that she doesn't strike him as having gained much in the way of experience, and he is terribly afraid lest she should fall among evil-doers. By which, I take it, he means that he is afraid of her making another foolish marriage. Anyhow, her friends must try to protect her from adventurers."

"It is pretty clear that she has made one staunch friend already," Fred observed.

Mr. Breffit looked a little shamefaced. "I can't help it," said he; "I am just as sorry for you as ever I was, my dear fellow, and I feel that it is very bad luck for you; still it isn't the poor thing's fault that she is the Dean's daughter or that he remembered that he had a daughter before he died. And then, as I tell you, she is irresistible. Even that dry old stick Sir James Le Breton thawed before she had been talking five minutes to him. He says she has a look of her mother, which I dare say is true; she certainly hasn't much look of her father. Now I'll tell you what I want you to do, Fred; I want you to go round to Albemarle street and call upon her. I know you well enough to know that you don't bear malice; but she doesn't know you yet, and she is very much distressed in her mind about you. She says she can't get over the feeling that she has robbed you."

Assuredly Fred bore no malice; and even if he had, propriety would have compelled him to pay his respects to his cousin. Moreover, he was really anxious to see her. So, as it was only a little after 6 o'clock when Mr. Breffit left him, he walked over to Albemarle street forthwith, and was glad to hear that Mrs. Fenton was at home.

She was busily engaged in writing letters when he was announced; but the moment that she heard his name she started up and walked quickly across the room to meet him, holding out her hand. "Oh, Mr. Musgrave," she exclaimed, "how very kind of you to come! All to-day I have been trying to screw up my courage to write you a note; but I couldn't get it as far as the sticking-point, and the note hasn't been written yet."

"What were you going to say in it?" asked Fred, smiling.

"Ah, that was just the trouble; I couldn't make up my mind what to say, and now I'm very glad of it, because talking is so much easier than writing."

She pushed a chair forward for him, and he seated himself and gazed at her, and was quite as much impressed by her beauty as Mr. Breffit had expected him to be. He could not begin by alluding to the subject which was necessarily uppermost in the thoughts of both of them; so he asked her whether she had had a prosperous voyage, and whether she did not notice a good many changes in London and so forth. But she did not even take the trouble to reply to these well-meant commonplaces, which she interrupted without ceremony after she had made a somewhat prolonged scrutiny of the young man.

"Tell me," said she, suddenly, "do you think me horrid?"

"Of course I don't," he answered, laughing; "why on earth should I?"

"Well, all I know is that I should be ready to murder anybody who cropped up from the southern hemisphere to pick my pocket of nearly a quarter of a million of money. But perhaps you are not vindictive."

"I don't think I am, and besides——"

"Oh, yes, I know. Wills can't be set aside, and the testator's only child has a natural right, etc. I have heard all that from Mr. Breffit. Still the fact remains that if I had put an end to myself out there in Australia, as I have more than once been tempted to do, you would be a rich man to-day."

"What made you think of putting an end to yourself?" asked Fred, more impressed by this incidental admission than by the feeling of compunction to which she laid claim.

"Perhaps I will tell you some day, if we ever become friends. Is it at all possible for us to become friends?"

"I hope so," answered the young man. "At all events, we are relations."

"Yes, but I am not sure that that is any great help toward friendship. Say what you will about it, you can't help feeling that I have supplanted you, and you can't like being supplanted; no human being ever did since the world began."

"I think it's all quite right," said Fred, "but even if it were not, you have had nothing to do with it."

"I dare say men don't look at these things in the same way as women do. You are supposed to have an inborn or acquired sense of justice which we haven't, I believe. I should like very much to be your friend, Fred. May I call you Fred?"

"What else should you call me?"

"That's understood, then; you are to be Fred henceforth, and I will be Laura, if you please. I was going to say that I have very few friends in the world, and none at all in England—and I like the look of you. Do you like the look of me as far as you have got?"

"Very much indeed," Fred replied.

"Well, there wasn't much use in asking the question, because you couldn't make any other answer. At least we can try to be friends, and if we don't succeed it can't be helped. How shall we begin? Are you doing anything particular to-night?"

And, on hearing that Fred had no engagement, she resumed: "Then why shouldn't we go and dine somewhere together? There are restaurants in London nowadays where one can get what men call a good dinner, are there not?"

Fred mentioned a restaurant in the neighborhood which had a high reputation, and added that he should feel greatly honored if she would accept his hospitality at that establishment; but to this she would not consent.

"You may order the dinner if you like," said she, "but if you want to make me happy you will let me pay for it. It can't be any novelty or luxury to you to pay for things, but it's both to me, and I want to avail myself of every opportunity of indulging in it before it palls."

So it was agreed that Fred should give instructions for the preparation of this banquet on his way home to dress, and that he should call for his cousin at 8 o'clock. He had not quite made up his mind about her when he went away, nor was he sure that he liked the look of her as much as no had professed to do. She was very pretty and very unconventional; but, like the majority of young Englishmen, he had no great fancy for unconventional ladies, and it seemed to him that some of her speeches had been marked by a certain lack of good taste.

But this slight inclination to take up a critical attitude was dispelled before he had been sitting a quarter of an hour opposite to her at the little round table in the restaurant. She disguised none of her impressions or sentiments, least of all the almost infantile delight which she derived from having plenty of money to spend; she said whatever chanced to come into her head; and some of the things that came into her head were rather quaint and made him laugh. She entered into conversation with the waiter, who was a German, asking him why he had left his native land, whether he would have to go home in case of war, and whether he didn't think it would be a much better plan to get himself naturalized as a British subject at once.

CHAPTER XV.

Mrs. Fenton devoted a good deal of her attentioni to the other occupants of the crowded room, and wanted to be told who they were and to what class of society they belonged. "You don't know!" she exclaimed, rather impatiently. "But why don't you know?—you live here. Before I had been a month in London I should be able to place every one of them for you. Look at that prim little grizzle-headed man with the fat wife. If we were in Australia I should put him down as a government official. What is he in England, I wonder? Not a Member of Parliament? He isn't happy; he doesn't like dining in public; it is his wife who has made him come here. She is greatly interested in us, and can't make us out at all. She has put up her glasses to try and discover whether I have a wedding-ring; because she thinks you can't be my husband, or you wouldn't be so civil to me. Now I am going to make her thoroughly uncomfortable."

Mrs. Fenton, as she said this, fixed her eyes upon the lady in question with a look of distressed commiseration, which speedily produced the desired effect upon the latter, who began to fidget about in her chair uneasily and to cast furtive glances over her shoulder.

"What have you done to the poor woman?" asked Fred. "Have you mesmerized her?"

"No; but she thinks there is something dreadfully wrong with her back, and of course she can't see it. Now she is asking her husband. He says, 'Oh, bother! it's all right'; and she says he might at least have taken the trouble to look before making so sure of that. They will come to high words presently. No; they are going away. He says it is time to be off; and he has got a pair of opera-glasses, so I suppose they are going to the theater. I wish we were going to the theater. Is it too late?"

Fred was afraid it was.

"Well, perhaps we might go some other evening. What are we to do now? Of course you want to smoke. Couldn't we go and sit in the park? It is such a beautiful, warm evening."

Fred shook his head.

"I don't think that would quite do," he answered, smiling.

"Then you had better come home with me. Would that do? Or would the hotel people think it odd that I should ask a young man to smoke in my sitting-room?"

"Oh, I'm your cousin, you know."

"Yes; I might tell them so if they looked scandalised; only isn't that what the cook says when she is discovered giving supper to the policeman? Never mind; we'll chance it."

So Fred returned to Albemarle street with her willingly enough, for indeed he found her a very amusing companion. No sooner, however, had they reached their destination than she ceased all of a sudden to be amusing, and became silent and depressed. When he knew her better he found that these abrupt transitions from gayety to gravity were natural to her, and that they as often as not occurred without any discernible cause.

"You want to hear something of my history," she said, in a changed voice and one which sounded to him like that of an older woman. "It is quite natural that you should want to hear it, and I should have had to tell you some day, though it isn't a subject that I like to dwell upon. My husband might have made money if he had been more persevering, for he was an excellent teacher and a very good theoretical musician; but for a long time things went badly with us. For some years we were at Wellington, in New Zealand, and then he thought there might be more of an opening in New South Wales, so we went to Sydney. But it was the same story over again there. People heard of his habits and wouldn't employ him; and he was not a good-temperedam na. His pupils complained of his roughness and rudeness, and so he soon lost the few that he had ever had. If I hadn't been able to give lessons myself we shouldn't have had enough to eat. I worked all day and every day, and when I went home in the evening he used to—Well, he is dead now; we needn't say any more about that."

Fred gazed at her pityingly, and his heart was moved with indignation against the deceased Fenton.

"Were you—were you fond of him?" he ventured to ask at length.

"Not latterly; he made that quite impossible. I suppose I must have been fond of him—in a way; but I am not sure about that. Probably you can't at all enter into the feelings of a girl who is naturally high-spirited, but has always been contemptuously suppressed—a girl who has no friends and scarcely any associates, except servants—a girl who is forever vacillating between an exaggerated idea of her own talents and gifts, and so forth, and a self-distrust which makes her resent casual compliments as a sort of insult. Most likely Mr. Fenton believed that my voice would be the means of bringing him a fortune even if my parentage didn't. He was bitterly disappointed in my voice, and he didn't live long enough to share my inheritance. The one thing which I do regret with all my heart is that I have been made rich at your expense."

"You mustn't regret that any more," said Fred; "I assure you I don't regret it. We couldn't both of us have my uncle's money, and it would have been far more unjust to disinherit you than me. After all, I believe it is rather an advantage than otherwise to a man to be obliged to work."

"Ah, that is what the Master of All Saints says; but perhaps both you and he only say it to to console me."

She really did look rather disconsolate at the moment; but Fred did his best to comfort her, and after a time she returned the favor by comforting him; for she induced him to tell her all about his prospects and ambitions and aspirations, and she was so kindly and sympathetic that before he went away she had heard the whole story of his attachment to Susie Moore.

"It seems to me that you have been a great deal too diffident," she remarked. "How is the girl to know that you care for her unless you tell her so? If she is worth anything, she won't mind waiting a year or two, and if she isn't—why, you will be well rid of her."

"Yes," answered Fred dubiously; "that sounds like common-sense; but then, you see, it isn't as though she had only her own inclinations to consult. She has a father and a stepmother."

"Oh, bother her father and stepmother! Let her snap her fingers at them."

"I don't think she would do that."

"Well, if she is so poor-spirited—but of course I can't judge of her without seeing her. Perhaps you may be able to find some opportunity of introducing me to the young lady. I know I shan't like her, though."

"Why not?" inquired Fred, with raised eyebrows.

Mrs. Fenton laughed. "For a very humiliating reason," she replied. "I am horribly jealous; I always have been, and I can't help it. I have taken a great fancy to you—which I dare say you will think rather precipitate of me; but I can't help that either. I like people very much, or I dislike them very much; it's my nature. Well, you know, no wife can endure a woman who likes her husband very much; and so when you marry, we shall cease to be friends. All the same, I won't try to poison here if we ever meet, and what's more, I'll give you an honest opinion about her.

(To be continued.)

Morgan, Jr., Well Equipped.

No boy, in being forced through the hard mill of apprenticeship, ever underwent more severe training than J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., received at the hands of his father and his father's friends. When "Jack" Morgan, as he was then known, graduated from Harvard in 1899, his father was a little doubtful about his commercial ability. It was a case in which paternal affections did not tend to belittle the shortcomings of the object upon whom they were centered. To try him out, his father placed him in the banking house of Peabody & Co., in Boston, and at the expiration of two years there were such favorable reports regarding his work that he took him into his own office in New York. So far as favoritism is concerned, it was never shown him. He was made to work a little harder than any other clerk, and if he made a blunder he was not spared. He was brought up to understand that his business future depended upon his own efforts, and that if he had any desire to take his father's place in the financial world he must first show that he was capable of assuming stupendous responsibilities.—The Bookkeeper.

We can finish nothing in this life; but we can make a beginning and bequeath a noble example.—Smiles.

Double the Wheat Yield of Your Land

Crop rotation and good tillage will not do it all. You need fertilizer—need Armour's. In order to secure a proper return on the investment in your land you MUST increase the yield per acre.

Armour's Fertilizers

for wheat have a record of always producing the heaviest yield. Use them this Fall—Grow more wheat—Make more money. Ask your dealer.

Armour Fertilizer Works, Chicago

THE REASON.

Janitor—I know the water is turned off. I'm sorry, but it isn't my fault.

Tenant—I know, and I guess that's why you're sorry.

EPIDEMIC OF ITCH IN WELSH VILLAGE

"In Dowlais, South Wales, about fifteen years ago, families were stricken wholesale by a disease known as the itch. Believe me, it is the most terrible disease of its kind that I know of, as it itches all through your body and makes your life an inferno. Sleep is out of the question and you feel as if a million mosquitoes were attacking you at the same time. I knew a dozen families that were so affected.

"The doctors did their best, but their remedies were of no avail whatever. Then the families tried a druggist who was noted far and wide for his remarkable cures. People came to him from all parts of the country for treatment, but his medicine made matters still worse, as a last resort they were advised by a friend to use the Cuticura Remedies. I am glad to tell you that after a few days' treatment with Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent, the effect was wonderful and the result was a perfect cure in all cases.

"I may add that my three brothers, three sisters, myself and all our families have been users of the Cuticura Remedies for fifteen years. Thomas Hugh, 1650 West Huron St., Chicago, Ill., June 29, 1909."

The Deacon's Parable.

A self-conscious and egotistical young clergyman was supplying the pulpit of a country church. After the service he asked one of the deacons, a grizzled, plain-spoken man, what he thought of his morning effort.

"Waal," answered the old man, slowly, "I'll tell ye in a kind of parable. I remember Tunk Weatherbee's fust deer hunt, when he was green. He follered the deer's tracks all right, but he follered 'em all day in the wrong direction."—Housekeeper.

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.

Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

Real Novelty.

Knocker—Say, here's an original baseball story.

Second Senior—How's that?

Knocker—Hero wins game in eighth inning instead of ninth.—Yale Record.

Why He Believes Her.

Evangeline—Rachel never can tell anything without exaggerating it.

John—That's why I believe her when she tells her age.

Red, Weak, Weary, Watery Eyes. Relieved By Murine Eye Remedy. Try Murine For Your Eye Troubles. You Will Like Murine. It Soothes. 50c at Your Druggists. Write For Eye Books. Free. Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

Remember, girls, that pinning a $17 hat on a 17 cent head doesn't increase the value of the head.

LEADING MISTAKES IN LIFE

Writer Has Recorded Ten, of Which Most of Us Assuredly Have Our Share.

Some of us may be glad to be told that there are only ten life mistakes, for there seem to be so many more, but a recent writer has catalogued them. Perhaps these are only the ten leading ones from which the smaller errors arise. Let's look over the list and see how many of them are ours: First, to set up our own standard of right and wrong and judge people accordingly; second, to measure the enjoyment of others by our own; third, to expect uniformity of opinion in this world; fourth, to look for judgment and experience in youth; fifth, to endeavor to mold all dispositions alike; sixth, to look for perfection in our own actions; seventh, to worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied; eighth, to refuse to yield in immaterial matters; ninth, to refuse to alleviate, so far as it lies in our power, all which needs alleviation; tenth, to refuse to make allowance for the infirmities of others.

Tit for Tat.

Being of a literary turn and having plenty of leisure, both Mr. and Mrs. Gluppins contributed special articles occasionally to two different newspapers in the town where they resided. One day Mr. Gluppins picked up a manuscript his wife had just finished, and proceeded to look it over.

"That's very good, Bertha," he said, after completing his inspection, "but I see you use the phrase, 'well-known fact.' I wouldn't do that."

"Why not?" she asked.

"Well, if a thing is well-known, why mention it?"

His wife said nothing in rejoinder at the time, but a few days later, while reading one of his articles in print, she found something to criticize.

"Horace," she said, "I am surprised to see you using the phrase, 'self-evident.'"

"What's the matter with that?"

"Why, if a thing is self-evident, what is the use of calling attention to it?"

Horace looked at her sharply over his glasses, but made no verbal response.—Youth's Companion.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

A Prophet.

Joe—Congratulate me, old man. I'm going to marry Miss Peachy.

Fred—Things are coming out just as predicted.

Joe—What do you mean?

Fred—I told her when she refused me that she would live to regret it.

If You Are a Trifle Sensitive

About the size of your shoes, many people wear smaller shoes by using Allen's Foot-Ease, the Antiseptic Powder to shake into the shoes. It cures Tired, Swollen, Aching Feet and gives rest and comfort. Just the thing for breaking in new shoes. Sold everywhere, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Aromatic Effects.

"What you ought to do," said the physician, "is to take the air in an automobile or a motor boat."

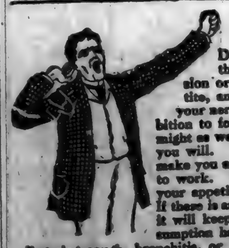
"Can't I stay home and open a can of gasoline?"

DO YOUR CLOTHES LOOK YELLOW? If so, use Red Cross Ball Blue. It will make them white as snow. 2 oz. package 5 cents.

If there is plenty of room at the top, why do people who get there continue to fall off?

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

A thick head is apt to generate a multitude of thin ideas.



Do You Feel This Way?

Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.

Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good." Dr. Pierce's medicines are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Their every ingredient printed on their wrappers. Made from roots without alcohol. Contain no habit-forming drugs. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

AUGUST

0473

L 904

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

EXCURSION

FROM ST. JOE, INDIANA

TO

NIAGARA FALLS N Y

AUGUST 13, 1910

$6.50 Round Trip

Choice of Rail or Steam or All Rail via Cleveland - Buffalo

Information regarding SIDE TRIPS and other details will be furnished by B. & O. Agents.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad

Excursion to

Sandusky $1.25

Cedar Point 1.50

Train leaves ST. JOE at 4:54 A. M.

SUNDAY, AUG. 7th.

Numerous Attractions.

SPENCERVILLE R. R. NO. 1.

Mr. E. L. Dilley is poorly at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. John McNabb spent Sunday afternoon at Frank Horns'.

B. W. Dwyer and family spent Sunday afternoon with George Horns'.

Mrs. Henry Walter and Zona Horn were at Auburn, last Saturday.

The Misses Thressa, Violet and Clara Hay and Venus, Mary and Lelia Horn spent Sunday afternoon with Zona Horn.

Mrs. John Horn and Mrs. George Horn called on Mrs. D. K. Horn, Saturday afternoon.

John Notestien and family spent Saturday and Sunday at Frank Vanzlies'.

Be sure and take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with you when starting on your trip this summer. It cannot be obtained on board the trains or steamers. Changes of water and climate often cause sudden attacks of diarrhoea, and it is best to be prepared. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2.

Martin Wagner, wife and son, were Sunday guests of Clarence Davis and family.

Rev. T. H. Walters and family visited with W. M. Tyndall and family, Thursday.

John Koch and family spent Sunday with Isaac Walters and family of near Antwerp.

Mrs. Elders and two children of Auburn, Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. Gratz of Hurshtown, spent Saturday with Greely Wearley and family.

Mr. Hilbert and family, and Will Miller and family of Hicksville, who came in their new automobile, were entertained at W. M. Millers', Sunday afternoon.

W. O. Lake and wife, F. M. Lake and Flora Renn spent Sunday with Chas. Lake and family at Ft. Wayne.

Walter Hart and wife of Tiffin, O., Effie Schoolmaster and children of Fremont, Mich., were entertained at the home of Kell Harts', Sunday.

If your liver is sluggish and out of tone, and you feel dull, bilious, constipated, take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets tonight before retiring and you will feel all right in the morning. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Harvey Kimes and family spent Sunday with Eli Fales and family.

Alice Zimmerman and son Ray, were Sunday guests of D. M. Kelley and family.

Clinton Wearley, who has been working at Huntertown, spent Sunday with his family and returned to his work Monday.

Mrs. Caroline Lyons accompanied by her aged mother, Mrs. Nelson Lake, returned to her home at Branch, Mich., where Mrs. Lake expects to remain for several weeks visit with her children.

Charley Hollenstein and wife of Ft. Wayne, Peter Steward and wife, Freddie Steward, W. M. Kimes and family, H. M. Widney of St. Joe, Perry Smith and friend of near New Haven, were Sunday guests of Harvey Kimes and family, Sr.

WISE'S CORNERS.

Mr. Henry Berry has been hauling tile for several days.

Mrs. Tracy Grats, spent Tuesday with friends near Grabill.

Get one of those 5 cent tablets at THE NEWS office. Our own make.

Several from our vicinity attended the picnic at Hall's grove Saturday.

George Welch has been working for F. Wertman several days this week.

Mrs. Emma Smith made Mrs. Millie Enzor a pleasant call Tuesday morning.

James McKinley and wife spent Wednesday afternoon with J. D. Spitler and family.

The correspondent spent a very pleasant afternoon with Mrs. Daisy Markle Saturday.

Lewis Markle, who has been very sick, is improving nicely under the care of Dr. Shook.

Ray Squires and wife were entertained at the nome of the latter's mother, Mrs. Nettie Welch Wednesday afternoon.

W. L. Smith and wife and Elmer Smith, wife and two children, Lois and Ira, were entertained to a fine chicken dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Smith Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bauman and three children, Guy, Martha and Burlen, of near Leo, spent Monday evening with Will Smith and wife.

Bracy Bartholemew, wife and daughter, Beulah, of near Grabill, were pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Smith Sunday.

Mrs. Lizzie Chaney who has been visiting with her sister, Mrs. Samantha Perry for a number of days, returned to her home in Auburn last Tuesday forenoon.

Henry Dove and John Fisher are ditching for Samuel Markle on his farm east of the corners this week. Owing to the long drought it was very hard work, but the much needed rains of Tuesday night and Wednesday morning will make conditions much better.

Band Concert,

Saturday Night.

at St. Joe.

ANNUAL

Farmers Picnic

At Robison Park

Wednesday, Aug. 24

Meet your friends and hold your Reunions on this day. No charge at gate. Band Concerts.

Mrs. Gertrude Smith called on Mrs. Margaret Lake last Monday forenoon and found her much better in health than the week before, she accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Callie Lyons of Branch, Mich., home for a visit among her children there. Two of her sons Lewis and Nathan Lake live near the above named place.

ST. JOE NEWS.

Born to Prof. and Mrs. Leland on Monday a baby girl.

Dr. J. H. Lake and wife and Mrs. J. J. Johnstone were at Ft. Wayne Tuesday.

LUTHERAN CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Prayer meeting Thursday evening. Sunday School Sunday morning followed by the regular preaching service. C. E in the evening. Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

Rev. Hitchner, Pastor.

WABASH CORNERS.

Sherman Rickett, wife and daughter Bessie and son Roscoe and Sherman Wolff and Wife, spent Thursday evening at Orange Herrick's. Ice cream was the feature of the evening .....Mrs. Hazel Herrick was the guest of her parents in St. Joe a part of last week .....May Daily, who is attending school at Angola, was the guest of her parents at this place from Saturday until Tuesday.....Mrs. Mahala Wade spent Thursday in Hicksville .....Joe and Catherine Shull were the guests of Aubrey and Beatrice Wilson, Tuesday afternoon of last week.. .. Mrs. Mollie White assisted Mrs. Wm. Johnston in cooking for threshers Thursday.. ...Mr. Alex Bowman of Waterloo called on Sherman Wolff and wife Thursday afternoon.....Mell Herrick and wife were Sunday afternoon guests at Roy White's.... .Sherman Wolff and Winfield Pervines spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives and friends at Edon, Ohio.

CONCORD.

Earl Beaber and wife, E. W. Johnson, wife and daughter Thelma, were Sunday guests of Delbert Draggoo and family.....Rev. Engle of Harlan, preached at this place, Sunday evening .... Miss Loretta Funk came home from Garrett, Saturday, to spend a week with her parents..... Lloyd Draggoo spent Sunday in St. Joe the guest of Ralph Sechler..... Mrs. Ella Hughes and two children called on Mrs. Delila Draggoo, Monday afternoon.....Mrs. Mary E. Baker of Auburn, spent Saturday night with D. W. Baker and family....The Sunday School at this place, is making preparations to attend the picnic held by the Christian church of Newville, next Saturday.....John Funk and wife, Sherman Funk, wife and son Marion, spent Sunday with Jim Astrys'.....Next Sunday morning is Rev. Coomer's last appointment at this place, as he is going to retire from the ministry.... .Mrs. Frank Brink and twin daughters of Butler, came Monday evening to visit with John Funk and family.....Will Scott and wife spent Sunday with John Hissong and family.

SPLINTERS.

Sharp shooters—crap players.

A minute's work cuts more ice than an hour's talk.

Some shows don't have to have a snow scene to give them a frosty look.

When a man pats you on the back he is trying to jingle the coins in your pocket.

The pen may be mightier than the sword, but nothing short of an axe will do for some people.

quiet out in the country? Ruralite—Oh, no; I've got my mother-in-law, a parrot and a phonograph out there.

Bowers—Who was the best man at the wedding? Powers—The bride's father; he gave them a brick house.

A man's heart is usually about the size of the Christmas presents he buys.

Cityite—Don't you find it awfully

Coburn's Corners

Miss Laura Coburn spent Saturday night and Sunday with Gladys Nelson.

Will Hamilton and wife took Sunday dinner with Benj. Hamilton of St. Joe.

Little Miss Ima Scholes of St. Joe, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Chas. Tustison, for a week.

Mrs. Frank Scholes and daughters, Ima and Dorothy, were the guests of Reuben Deitrick, last Thursday.

Ross Andress and wife of Kendallville, visited with his aunt, Mrs. Howard Northrup, last Wednesday.

Mr. Guy Platter and Miss Clara Shull visited with Calvin Kain and Ada Bair of Angola over Sunday.

Dell Nelson and family, and Wallace Jackson and family visited Sunday at the home of John Majors' of Antwerp, Ohio.

Mrs. Harlan, who has been visiting her daughter for the past four weeks, returned to her home at Bethel, Ind., Monday accompanied by Eber Brown, who will remain with her until school commences.

Saxe Hadsell and family, Thurman Shull and family, and Mrs. Cadmus Shull and daughter Nellie, attended the Hadsell reunion at Robison Park, Saturday. Saxe Hadsell and family remained over Sunday.

Little Miss Nellie Carper of Jackson Tp., spent the past week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Abel, who took her home Sunday and spent the day with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carper.

Local Items.

Send in your news.

The Hull barber shop was painted Tuesday.

Archie Squires of near Butler, was in town Tuesday.

The Reasoner family reunion will be held in Railroad Park, Aug., 11.

The ladies of the Lutheran church will serve dinner, September seventh when the old soldiers will have a reunion in our city.

Another business change took place last week. C. S. Sailor purchasing a half interest in the Craig Sheffer blacksmith shop. Mr. Sailor and Mr. Sheffer are A-1 men at the business and can surely accomodate the trade for miles.

STAGGERS SKEPTICS.

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or piles, staggers skeptics. But great cures prove its a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons, eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

The Only Bidders.

Frank Scholes and Milt Clark were the only bidders that appeared before the county commissioners, Tuesday of last week, in response to a notice to bidders calling for bids for the construction and repair of nine bridges over the county. Inasmuch as both these gentlemen are working together there was in reality but one bidder.

Contract prices are as follows:

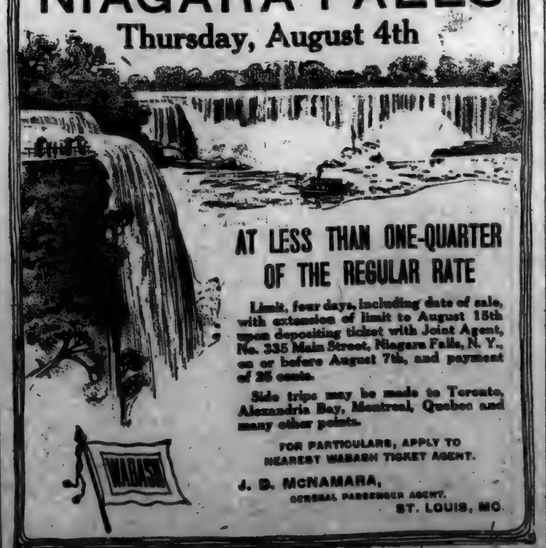
Musser bridge in Franklin	$250
Skeleton bridge in Troy	250
Perky bridge in Franklin	780
Shoudel bridge in Smithfield	250
Sugar grove bridge in Keyser	450
Grubo bridge in Keyser	450

CHEAP EXCURSION

TO

NIAGARA FALLS

Thursday, August 4th



AT LESS THAN ONE-QUARTER OF THE REGULAR RATE

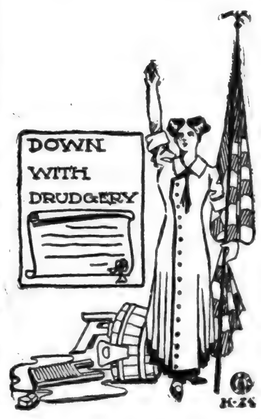
Limit, four days, including date of sale, with extension of limit to August 18th upon depositing ticket with Joint Agent, No. 335 Main Street, Niagara Falls, N. Y., on or before August 7th, and payment of 25 cents.

Side trips may be made to Toronto, Alexandria Bay, Montreal, Quebec and many other points.

FOR PARTICULARS, APPLY TO NEAREST WABASH TICKET AGENT.

J. B. McNAMARA, GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT. ST. LOUIS, MO.

A DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.



Every woman owes it to herself and family ta stay young. She can do this only by not overworking. We have a number of labor saving devices that every woman ought to know about and prices so reasonable that she can't afford not to purchase. Asbestos Sad Irons. Sanitary Tin Churns easily washed. Different kinds of labor saving washing machines. Sanitary Granite Cooking Utensils. Gasoline and oil stoves of all patterns.

J. W. Burwell & Son

St. Joe, Indiana

FULL PIANO RECITAL

Letha B. Coyle

Tuesday, Aug. 16

8 P. M.

Gold Medal Contest--Aug. 20, 8 P. M.

More Details Next Week.

Chastine Johnston.

Our Postoffice

The postoffice is now nicely located in the Case building. A new three-light Bystrom lighting plant has been installed by Geo. Milliman, which adds greatly to the already neat appearance of the office. It is up-to-date in every respect, the rural carriers now having a department of their own, making it the best equipped fourth-class postoffice in the county.

LOCAL ITEMS.

D. J. Baker made a business trip to Auburn Tuesday.

Mrs. C. R. Price visited friends at Auburn a couple of days this week.

Little Miss Clara Rhoads of Hicksville, is the guest of Pauline Barney.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Baker were guests of Rev. Hitchner and wife Sunday.

Call at Kagey's and get your Post Cards. An elegant assortment.

Miss Ethel and Edith Berry were guests of W. S. Berry and family of Jackson township Sunday.

Frank White and wife drove to Paulding, O., Saturday to visit Mrs. White's sister Grace. They returned home Sunday evening.

Messrs Claude Mason and John George have rented the old White Livery and Feed barn, and will start a livery as soon as they can conveniently arrange for same.

John W. Sale of Ft. Wayne, census supervisor of the 12th Indiana district and J. D. Leighty are being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bowman at Hamilton lake this week.

The Mothers Meeting held at Mrs. Kate A. Leighty's on last Friday afternoon, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. was one of great interest and enjoyed by all. After the well rendered program Mrs. Leighty served refreshments and the ladies enjoyed a good social hour.

SPENCERVILLE.

Mrs. B. Metcalf and Mrs. Susan Altenburge of Auburn and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Metcalf of Norris Chapel, were Sunday visitors at D. D. Metcalf's.

Dorsey Eckright of Butler, is spending the week with his grandparents, D. D. Metcalf and wife.

Postoffice is Robbed

The postoffice at Albion was broken into early Saturday morning and about $400 in cash taken. The postmaster is reticent about stating the exact amount. It was a peculiar robbery bearing on its face both the work of the professional and the amateur but whoever it was knew the conditions existing in every detail. At the telephone exchange and by the members of two families residing nearby noises were heard about two o'clock, which is now believed to be the time that the work was done. The robbers entered by the front door, smashing in the glass in the door, not even taking the time to remove the pane in the ordinary way.—Dispatch.

Frank May be Paroled 1911

Frank Nicholl, the defaulting assistant cashier of the City National Bank at Auburn, will probably be at home on July 30 of next year, should the new law be passed. Mr. Nicholl was sent to Fort Leavenworth on Nov. 20, 1909. The new law says that each prisoner convicted of an offense against Uncle Sam and sentenced for a definite period, may be released on parole after having served one-third of the total term, if the parole board's opinion be that such release is not incompatible with the welfare of society.

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

AUGUST

L 904

0474

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1910. NO. 32

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.
Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

Free To Customers.

We want to double the volume of our usual cash sales in the next three days, and to do this we are offering THIS WEEK, a ten per cent discount on every purchase made from the Dry Goods and Shoe Sections of this store. This sale gives you FREE ten cents on every dollar's worth you purchase from these sections. If you buy five dollars worth you save fifty cents. If your purchases amount to ten dollars you save a dollar. No matter what your purchase is, if it's ten cents or upward you get back ten per cent of the purchase price. Nothing reserved in these departments. All prices reduced.

10 yards best Calico 54c	25c Cotton Gloves.. .....23c	10c silkoline.....9c
10c Outing.....9c	50c Braids.....45c	15c silkoline.....13c
50c Corsets.....45c	20c Braids.....18c	20c draperies.....18c
$1 00 Corsets.....90c	15c Collars.....13c	30c draperies.....27c
50c Belts.....45c	10c Boys' Collars 9c	$2 25 rugs.....$2 00
25c Belts.....23c	25c Ladies' Collars.....23c	3 50 rugs.....3.15
$1.00 Dress Goods.....90c	50c Suspenders.....45c	4 50 matting rugs 4.05
75c Dress Goods 68c	25c Suspenders.....23c	5.00 matting rugs.....4.50
50c Dress Goods.....45c	50c Combs.....46c	$15 Seamless Tap Rugs.....13.50
$5.00 Dress Skirts.....$4 50	$1.00 Linens.....90c	22.50 Axminister Rugs....20.24
$5.50 Dress Skirts $4 95	50c Linens.....45c	50c Silks.....45c
$10.00 Dress Skirts.....$9 00	30c Linens.....27c	$1.00 Silks.....90c
25c Carpets.....23c	$1.00 Shoes.....90c	1.50 Silks.....1.35
50c Carpets.....45c	50c Shoes.....45c	1.00 Lace Curtains.....90c
70c all-wool Carpets.....63c	$1.50 Shoes.....$1 35	1.50 Lace Curtains.....1.35
60c wool filled Carpets.....54c	$2.00 Shoes.....$1.80	2.00 Lace Curtains.....1 80
$1.00 Wrappers 90c	$2.50 Amer'n Girl Shoes....$2.25	10c Ribbons.....9c
10c Underwear.....9c	$3.00 Douglas Shoes $2.70	20c Ribbons 18c
15c Vests.....13c	$3 50 Douglas Shoes $3 15	30c Ribbons.....27c
25c Drawers.....23c	$3 00 Ladies' Shoes.....$2.90	$1.25 Suit Cases.....$1.13
50c Underwear.....45c	$1.00 Night Gowns 90c	$2.00 Suit Cases.....$1.80
$1.00 Umbrellas.....90c	12c crash.....10c	$3.50 Trunks.....$3.15
$1.50 Bed Spreads.....$1.35	15c crash.....13c	25c Hats.....23c
$1.00 Kid Gloves.....90c	10c muslin.....9c	$1.50 Waists.....$1 35
50c Silk Gloves.....45c	5 yards 8c muslin.....36c

Mrs. Cassie Nichols of Newville, was the guest of Clyde Woodcox over Sunday.

Miss Madge Hart of Auburn, is visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity.

Wm. Leighty and wife are keeping house for Mack Leighty's while they are at the lake.

Martin Tustison and Gray Woodcox took in the Wabash excursion, August 4, to Niagara Falls.

Wm. Benninghoff of Ft. Wayne, was the guest of D. F. Benninghoff and wife over Sunday.

Attention Veterans.

Headquarters DeKalb County Veterans Association Waterloo, Indiana.

GENERAL ORDERS.

FIRST

It is hereby ordered that on the 8th. day of Sept., all veterans of the War of the Rebellion in DeKalb County do report for duty at St. Joe, Ind., for the purpose of renewing and strengthening Comradeship, to fight the battles over again; to draw rations and enjoy the other good things which will be provided by the Comrades and good people of that place, who enjoy an enviable reputation for entertaining public gatherings.

SECOND

It is further ordered, that each bring their wife, family, and friends to enjoy the ravages of War, and assist in making the engagement a memorable one.

THIRD

It is commanded that each veteran be supplied with amunition, not "forty rounds" but one to be exploded, to "bring down the house" by relating a brief reminiscence of an army experience.

By command of Frank N. Baidler Colonel Commanding Association.

C. R. REED,
Adjutant.

CANNING SEASOn
NOW ON.

You will want Mixed spices in Bulk. Best and purest.

MRS. PRICES CANNING COMPOUND

it is the best preparation on the market to put up Corn, Beans, etc. Keeps them just same as day you put them up. Parafine, Sealing Wax, Cinnamon Bark, whole Cloves, Pepper, Mustard, etc. Quality and prices the best.

Also while you are busy, don't forget to disinfect your home and out buildings, it may prevent those dreaded diseases that are contageous of any filth. It costs but little and saves health and money. Our stock in that line is complete and you'll always do better at

Dunkle's Drug Store.

ST. JOE, - - - INDIANA.

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Ice! Ice! Ice!
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

Local Briefs

Band Concert Saturday evening.

In a word received from J. E. Dermott of Coldwater, Mich., he stated that the corn crop was good in that vicinity.

H. C. Hathaway has made some excellent improvements on his store by painting. The bake shop has been cemented completely with some other slight changes. We like to see improvements and expect to do some ourselves before long.

Forest Brown was on the sick list the first of the week.

Patterson's have a good supply of grain bags. Get some of them.

The Lutheran church lot was filled with surface dirt last Tuesday and it is now ready for grass seed. The work was all donated.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. P. church will meet with Mrs. Lora Leighty on Saturday afternoon of this week at 2 o'clock. All members are urged to attend this meeting.

Mr. J. W. Krebs of Sunfield, Mich., and U. S. Krebs of Grand Junction, Colo., came Friday for a week's visit with their sister, Mrs. C. A. Patterson and family. On Sunday they visited at Cedarville.

The three Sunday Schools of St. Joe are today (Thursday) enjoying themselves in the Dills grove, in a union picnic. The committee has arranged for different amusements and a good time is to be had. Each one is to take their dinner and have a good social time.

Frank Kinsey and son Donald, spent Friday in Ft. Wayne.

St. Joe and Scipio will cross bats at the picnic today at Dills grove.

Clyde Woodcox and daughter, Bianch, were at Wayne last Thursday.

Mrs. Mattie Bowman and children left Saturday noon for a week's visit with Mr. Bowman at Chicago.

FOR SALE:—4,500 wreckage brick, all in good shape for laying. S. S. Widney, St. Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Killian of Hicksville, and Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Garver of Mason, Mich., took supper Sunday evening with Saxe Hadsell and family.

The Misses Mae and Mabie Driver are guests of their sister, Mrs. Saxe Hadsell. Miss Mable returned to Ft. Wayne about the middle of the week while Miss Mae remained for the entire week.

The B. & O. excursion last Sunday was well patronized, to Sandusky. Bert Woodcox and wife, Wm. Smith and wife of St. Joe and ten other people from the surrounding country took advantage of the cheap rates.

Mrs. Fred Johnston of Rockford, Ill., who has been visiting with Mrs. Rose Johnston for the past few weeks, left Tuesday to join her husband between Chicago and Milwaukee. Mrs. Rose Johnston accompanied her to Auburn to remain over night at the home of Cal Hutton.

Last Sunday the Union meeting of the five churches, namely: Newville, Coburntown, Harlan, St. Joe and Milford, Ohio, was held in Railroad Park. The day was cloudy and cool, which kept many away as it had an appearance of rain. After the Sunday school hour, Gary L. Cook spoke upon the Sunday school work of the state and how a better organization was being perfected. His talks were interesting and instructive. Prof. J. E. Sturgis and Arthur Haley, singing evangelists of Butler, took an active part in the song service. The dinner hour was enjoyed by all. Those coming without baskets were given places with the members and were treated royally. The afternoon session was largely attended as the rain withheld. The committee decided to hold the meeting here next year on the same day. Services were held in the church in the evening.

Public Notice

Having sold a half interest in the blacksmith shop to C. H. Sailor, I would like to have all persons knowing themselves indebted to me, to call and settle. Craig Sheffer.

Candy and Cigars.

Home made candy and the best grade of cigars at Milliman's barber shop owned and run by

Merritt Milliman.

Expenditures and Tax Levies for the Year 1911.

The Trustee of Concord Township, DeKalb County, Ind., proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at its annual meeting, Sept., 6, 1910, 2 P. M., to be held at the school-house of School District No 6 St. Joe, the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1. Township expenditures, $860.00, and township tax, 13 cents on the hundred dollars.
2. Local Tuition expenditures, $3,035 40, and tax, 36 cents on the hundred dollars.
3. Special school tax expenditures, $1,597.80, and tax, 18 cents on the hundred dollars.
4. Road tax expenditures, $..... and tax, ...cents on the hundred dollars.
5. Additional road tax expenditures, $650 00, and tax, 10 cents on the hundred dollars.
6. Library expenditures, $..... and tax, ...cents on the hundred dollars.
7. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $253 80, and tax, 3 cents on the hundred dollars.
8. Other items, if any, expenditures, $....., and tax, ...cents on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $6,397.00, and total tax, 80 cents on the hundred dollars.

Signed JOHN FETTERS Trustee.
Dated August 1, 1910.

Recital Tuesday Night

Next Tuesday night, Aug. 16, Letha Blanche Coyle, one of the Johnston school of music graduates this year, only fifteen years of age, will play a full piano recital in the St. Joe M. P. Church. This is quite an accomplishment for any piano student and considering the age of the performer, nothing small. A full program of ten pieces, all memorized, will be given, lasting about an hour.

Harry Rees, wife and son, Leon and Mrs J. D. Leighty, are spending a few days at Winona this week.

H. C. Hathaway, Frank Sechler, H. L. Dunkle and J. C. Hull very pleasantly spent last Thursday at Hamilton Lake.

The Home Coming billed for August 25th., at Spencerville, is causing considerable comment and everyone is planning to attend. The invitation is a broad one and strikes every person within the county and even further than that if they so desire to come. There is no limit to it. The secretary says that it will a big day for old or young; rich or poor; fat or lean; long or short; married or single; bachelors or maids and in fact everyone from the president down to the engineer of a peanut roaster. Everybody.

2 RECITALS
St. Joe M. P. Church

NO. 1. Full Piano Recital, Tuesday, August 16 at 8 P. M.
LETHA BLANCHE COYLE
ADDMISSION FREE to All.

NO. 2. GOLD METAL CONTEST and COMMENCEMENT
Saturday, August 20, 8:30 P. M.

Do Your Trading, Hear the Band and Then COME.

Admission 10c. Free on conditions below.

CONDITIONS: Admission is free to both recitals to all who hold cards of attendance at first recital. Cards can be obtained from any student by asking or from me any time before the first recital. These cards with the bearers name presented at the first recital will be punched and will then be good for admittance to the second recital.

Cards can be secured at the first recital but time to sign them will be necessary. Please secure them in advance.

We want your presence, not your money.

Chastine Johnston.

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST. JOE, IND.

THE HOME STORE

Look at your hose—
Would a new pair do?

A Few Hosiery Hints.

The demand for Hosiery at "The Home Store" this season has been tremenduous. Men, Women and Children have bought freely, recognizing that our line offered wide range of selection at a medium price. Large purchases by us have kept as full and complete as ever and we are ready to supply the hosiery need of all ages and sizes of men, women and children. Here are a few hints at what our stock offers:

BEAR SKIN HOSE made for Boys and Misses and designed especially for use where hard wear is expected of hose. They well deserve the name given them and will give satisfaction in their wearing qualities. Price per pair 15c

"GIRLIE" HOSE purposed for wear by little Misses and Children. This is also a good wearing hose that is proving very popular with mothers in the selection of stockings for the children. Price..... 15c

"BEST EVER" HOSE A well made hose for misses' wear. A good wearer yet at the same time neat and delicate enough for dress wear. We are making a special price on these hose while they last. Sizes 5 to 7½ 9c
Sizes 7½ to 9½ 11c

LADIES BURSON HOSE. A very popular hose for women's wear. They are fashioned to shape, fitting smoothly without binding in any part. Full ribbed top and good length. No better hose can be found anywhere for the price asked..... 25c

MEN'S HOSE—Our line of Men's Hose is so extensive that we cannot enumerate all the lines. The stock includes everything that a man could want from low priced work socks to the more fancy dress hose. The fancy hose include all the popular shades. Prices range from ..... 10c to 25c

CHILDREN'S HOSE—In addition to the lines already mentioned our showing of Children's hose includes other assortments at both higher and lower prices. Choices from these at ..... 10c to 25c

Buy your Hosiery at "The Home Store."

AUGUST

0475

L 904

The St. Joe News.

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

COOLING AS EASY AS HEATING.

Now, when one comes to think of it, there is difficulty in understanding why humanity has always realized the need of mitigating the severity of climate that takes the form of cold, but for the most part still assumes the impossibility of doing anything to temper heat, from which we suffer almost as much, says New York Times. At less expense than that by which houses are warmed in winter they can be cooled in summer, and, while the winter heating, thanks to our strange refusal to learn the art of ventilation, involves the creation of conditions injurious to health, those which summer cooling would establish would probably be in every way beneficial to us. At any rate, the thing is perfectly practicable. Of course, if adopted, it would add to the cost of living, but it would also increase the general stock of available energy, which would mean an increase of earning power to a more than compensating degree. Not much of a refrigeration plant would be required to bring the air of a bedroom to a temperature in which sleep would be refreshing, instead of impossible or exhausting, and the wonder is that the rich and the well-to-do, at least, do not generally, instead of hardly at all, utilize a benefit which science is ready to give them for much less money than they pay for a thousand other smaller luxuries and conveniences.

The first passenger airship to be operated for regular transportation purposes has been put in commission in Germany. It is a Zeppelin dirigible and will run over a course that will include Friedrichshafen, Stuttgart, Mannheim, Cologne and Dusseldorf. At first Count Zeppelin himself, inventor of the machine which bears his name, will be at the helm. The airship has capacity for twenty passengers, for whom accommodations as luxurious as those of a Pullman palace car have been provided. As the enterprise is backed by a shipping company of undoubted standing there seems to be ample faith in the success of the enterprise and belief that aerial navigation has come to stay.

Finland, in so far as the autonomy enjoyed heretofore is concerned, has practically been wiped off the map, the Douma first and the Council of the Empire finally having enacted the law which turns over the administration of Finnish affairs to representatives of the czar. Finland was formerly a grand duchy, and, though under Russian control, had a large measure of self-goverament. The Finns are a sturdy, self-reliant and intelligent people and have made great progress in education and otherwise But the policy of Russia is to centralize control at St. Petersburg, and the disposition of Finland is the latest exemplification of the existing tendency.

When farmers turn to "bulling" wheat the speculators in the grain exchanges hardly know where they are at. There seems to be something like a combined effort on the part of the big wheat-growers of the northwest to keep up prices, says Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin. Delegations by trainloads are going to some of the large trading-centers like St. Paul and dealing in heavy lots. Some of these farmers are rated as millionaires, having made fortunes in grain growing, and they also seem to understand the bull and bear business. At least the professional speculators in the "wheat pit" find the tillers of the soil foemen worthy of their steel.

Before you begin to criticise aviation meets for not panning out as per promises, please kindly remember how many races for the America's cup have been boring and inconclusive drifting matches. Both aviation and yachting depend on the wind, and the wind is mighty uncertain.

A Michigan farmer who separated from his wife and then became her hired man is suing her for $500 back pay. Perhaps he could get her to settle out of court if he would agree to take $499.

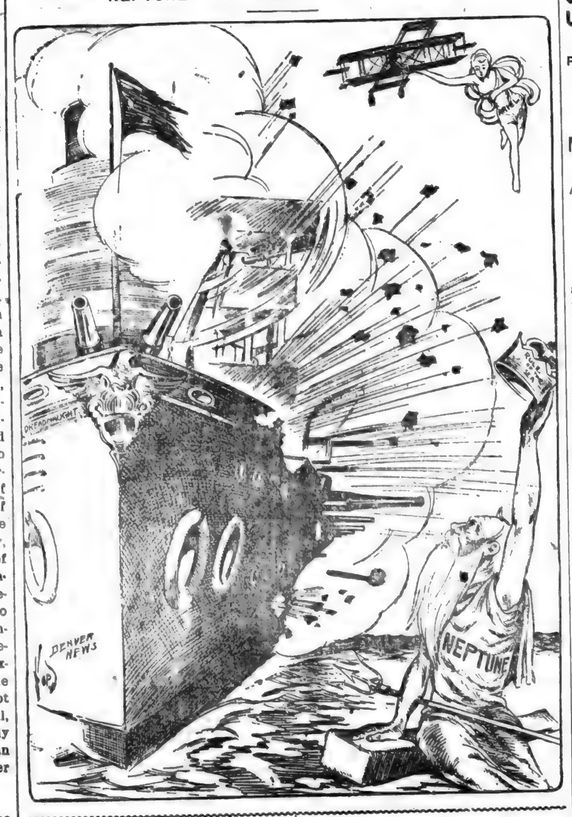
Western bankers report that the farmers of Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri and Iowa have spent $15,000,000 for automobiles. There must be something in that story after all.

Kidnaping is still prevalent despite the discouragements of heavy sentences. The only remedy seems to increase the penalty.

The price of cigarettes is going up, but this of course won't bother the man who always got his from the other fellow.

When airships become so thick that they shut out sunlight then, indeed, will aviation be well established.

NEPTUNE SURRENDERS HIS CROWN



HINT SUICIDE IN RAWN CASE

VERDICT, DECLARES RAILWAY MAN WAS SELF-SLAIN.

Jury's Open Finding May Make It Necessary for Heirs to Bring Suit to Obtain Accident and Life Insurance.

Chicago.—Ira G. Rawn killed himself, according to the verdict returned by the coroner's jury Friday. The Monon president was shot with his own revolver, held in his own hand, the verdict reads, but whether accidentally or with suicidal intent is not specified. The jury said the former explanation was the less probable. The finding of the jurors is described as "an open suicide verdict."

The verdict was reached after a three hours' session and after much lively debate in the jury room.

Although none of the jurors would talk about their action, it was said that three held out for a verdict of suicide and the others for one of accidental shooting, and that the open verdict returned was a compromise, to break the deadlock.

That the insurance companies will contest the payment of policies is said to be assured, and it is declared that relatives of the slain railroad president will bring court proceedings to collect the insurance.

No representative of the Rawn family was present when the jury's findings were made public.

The general consensus of opinion among those present at the close of the inquest was that the jury had taken the only course open to it.

DIE IN TEXAS RACE RIOT

Eighteen Blacks and Three Whites Are Killed in Pitched Battle Near Slocum.

Palestine, Tex.—Following a pitched battle between the negro farmers of this section in which at least 300 blacks took part and three companies of state militia from Houston and Galveston and a detachment of state rangers fought for hours and, it is said, that 18 negroes have been killed and the bodies of three white men are dying in an improvised morgue in the little town awaiting the arrival of undertakers from Houston.

Beginning Friday afternoon the race riot between the negroes and whites waged continuously until Sunday night.

The rioting began near the village of Slocum. Several reasons are assigned as the cause of the racial feeling. First, the refusal of a negro to pay an obligation for which a white farmer stood sponsor.

Later came reports of secret meetings among the negroes and an alleged confession of a negro that the murder of the man in question, James Spurger, and his family was planned. The situation reached a climax, however, when a negro was discovered advancing on Spurger from the rear, armed with a shotgun. He was trailed for some distance and shot by a posse when he refused to surrender.

Regiment Home From Alaska.

San Francisco.—The Twenty-second United States infantry, which arrived here Sunday on the transport Buford, after two years of service at Alaskan ports, Tuesday started for Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Jack Johnson Sued for a Bust.

New York.—Cartaino Sciarrino, an Italian sculptor, Tuesday brought suit for $4,000 in the courts here against Jack Johnson, the pugilist. Sciarrino claims this amount for making a bust of the champion in bronze.

ROYAL COUPLE FLEE SPAIN

King Alfonso and Queen Victoria Start for England Because of Enmity of Clericals.

San Sebastian, Spain.—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria have fled the country. The young king, dismayed at the bitter enmity shown towards his queen by the clericals, suddenly left Monday with her for England.

King Alfonso of Spain.

The royal couple will stop in Paris on their way to England and have a conference with President Fallieres.

Queen Victoria of Spain.

Much significance is attached to this, as France has done to the church what Spain, in a lesser degree, now is attempting. When he has established Victoria safely at the court of King George, the king will return to Spain.

City Treasurer Is Short.

Telluride, Col.—Vinton V. Rodgers resigned Tuesday as city treasurer of this city, an examination of his books showing a defalcation of over $25,000. It is not believed Rodgers will be prosecuted as he has been given until Thursday to refund the money.

Cigarette Fire Is Fatal.

Chicago.—Emma Limbke, twenty-five years old, who was burned when she accidentally ignited her clothing while smoking a cigarette in a cell at the Chicago avenue police station, died at the Passavant hospital Tuesday.

Railroad Attorneys in Session.

Portsmouth, N. H.—The railroad law was the theme of discussion at a conference of railroad attorneys in this city Tuesday. Practically all the principal railway systems of the United States were represented.

SETTLE G. T. STRIKE

PREMIER LAURIER IS ADVISED OF TERMINATION OF TRAINMEN'S WALKOUT.

MEN GET WAGES INCREASED

All Strikers, Except Those Guilty of Disorderly Conduct, Are to Resume Work at Once—Government's Intervention Brings Peace.

Ottawa, Ont.—McKenzie King, Canada's minister of labor, Tuesday sent the following telegram to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, at Weyburn, Saskatchewan: "Am delighted to be able to inform you that the strike of conductors and trainmen on the Grand Trunk railway system has been brought to an end through government intervention."

It means, of course, that the big trainmen strike is settled. The men are to return to work as soon as possible.

All strikers except those guilty of disorderly conduct will be reinstated as soon as possible. The increases as offered on July 18 become effective and date back to May 1.

On January 1, 1912, the standard rates of pay as on the Canadian Pacific railway will go into effect.

Columbus, O.—Governor Harmon is considering withdrawing about half of the National Guard now here on riot duty and cutting down the expenses of maintaining the soldiers from $12,000 a day to about $5,000.

In that event half of the street cars will be taken off and all lines abandoned temporarily, with the exception of the West Broad street, Long street and High street.

CRIPPEN WILL NOT FIGHT

Doctor Is Formally Arraigned and Informs Court He Will Not Combat Extradition.

Montreal, Que.—After being fully identified by Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard, Doctor Crippen, who is charged with the slaying of his wife, known on the stage in London as Belle Elmore, was Sunday placed under arrest by Chief McCarthy of the Quebec provincial police, assisted by Chief Davis of the Dominion police on board the steamer Montrose at Father Point.

Crippen, on the verge of a collapse, with his voice so weak it scarcely could be heard by Magistrate Angers, announced in court Monday that he would not make a fight against extradition to London.

This statement followed his formal arraignment in the provincial court on the charge of slaying "an unknown woman" the police believe to be his missing wife, Belle Elmore, the American actress.

Crippen's hearing, at the suggestion of Inspector Dew, was continued 15 days, and, at the expiration of that time, unless he decides to fight extradition, he will be sent back to England. Crippen's companion in flight, Miss Ethel Clare Leneve, was to have been arraigned with the American, but her custodians reported to the court that she was too ill to appear. The authorities are confident that the woman will give no more trouble than Crippen promises to.

Miss Leneve was transferred from the provincial jail to a hospital. The girl scarcely has been able to stand since her collapse when she was taken into custody. Her condition has excited much sympathy.

ROOSEVELT IN COAL INQUIRY

Ex-President Will Study Social Conditions In Pennsylvania Mining Towns.

Scranton, Pa.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, accompanied by Lawrence Abbott, son of Lyman Abbott, editor of the Outlook, of New York, arrived here Tuesday, having spent the night at the Delaware Water Gap and making a trip over the Pocono mountains by automobile.

While in Scranton Mr. Roosevelt was the guest of Bishop Hoban. Wednesday he went to Wilkesbarre and for three days will be entertained by Father Curran.

On Colonel Roosevelt's arrival here he met Miss Fanny Cochrane and Miss Florence Lucas Sanville of Philadelphia, who have for years been studying conditions of life among the working classes and who are acting as his guides in his present investigation. They preceded him from New York by train.

Explaining his tour of investigation, Colonel Roosevelt said:

"I have long been interested in social conditions in mining towns in Pennsylvania. When I read two articles in a magazine, written by Miss Sanville and Miss Cochrane of the Consumers' league of Philadelphia, I immediately got in touch with them and arranged to visit the mining towns and to see and talk with the people."

Seize Jap Poaching Boat.

Washington.—The seizure of another Japanese schooner, poaching in the Bering sea, was reported to the treasury department Tuesday by Captain Foley of the revenue cutter Tacoma, which is guarding sealing fields.

Appoints Blind Assistant.

New York.—United States District Attorney Henry A. Wise has made a rather novel addition to his staff by appointing Raymond G. Brown, who is totally blind, one of his assistants.

CALIFORNIA MANIAC KILLS 3

TURNS IN FALSE ALARM AND SHOOTS RESPONDING FIREMEN.

Insane Murderer Then Slays Wife and Babe—Dismissal From Fire Department Service Inspires Tragedy.

San Diego, Cal.—Bert S. Durham, a discharged member of the local fire department, ended a man hunt Monday by fatally shooting himself through the head after killing three persons, including his wife and child, mortally wounding a fourth and severely injuring a fifth.

Durham, in a desire for revenge, turned in a false alarm and when his former fellow workmen responded he fired a volley of shots at them, killing one and probably fatally injuring two others.

Durham then ran to his home and with a piece of steel wrapped in a handkerchief beat his wife and baby about their heads as they lay asleep, killing both.

Durham, who had been hunted relentlessly for hours, dodged his pursuers, leaving them without a clue, boarded a car in the residence section and rode quickly to the plaza in the center of the business district, where he put a bullet into his brain. He recovered consciousness later, but the coroner says he will die.

Durham's victims were:

Donald F. Grant, engineer engine company No. 3, San Diego fire department.

Mrs. Bert S. Durham and child.

Peter Sampsell, captain hose company, dying.

Guy Elliott, driver hose company, may recover.

At the first shot Grant fell from his seat to the ground dead, with a bullet in his head. At the second shot Elliott pitched to the ground with a bullet through the stomach. Durham then leveled his revolver at Captain Sampsell and fired twice, both bullets piercing Sampsell's lungs.

Two more shots, fired at other members of the crew, went wild, after which Durham drew another revolver and with it covered his retreat as he started to run from Assistant Chief Snedecor, who had driven up in answer to the alarm. As he disappeared in the darkness Durham shouted back to the assistant chief: "Tell my wife I am going to kill myself."

STUBBS WINS IN PRIMARIES

Returns Indicate That Five Kansas Reactionary Republican Congressmen Are Defeated.

Topeka, Kan.—Governor Stubbs, the progressive Republican candidate for renomination, won out in Tuesday's primaries by a majority estimated at 20,000.

Returns indicate that the reactionary Republican congressmen lost out in five of the contested districts. Thomas McNeal is running 800 ahead of D. R. Anthony; A. C. Mitchell is nominated over Scott in the Second by Governor Stubbs.

300; Fred S. Jackson won over J. W. Miller in the Fourth by more than 2,000; R. R. Rees is ahead of Calderhead in the Fifth by 800, and I. D. Young will be nominated over Reeder in the Sixth by a small majority.

The total Republican vote will reach 170,000, or 10,000 ahead of the normal Republican vote, and 40,000 ahead of the primary vote of two years ago. There were not many contests and only a small Democratic vote was cast.

KILLS HERSELF AND BABIES

Elopement of Wayward Daughter Preys on Parent's Mind—Prepares Burial Robes First.

Davenport, Ia. — After carefully arranging the burial robes for all three, Mrs. Nick Nehlsen, wife of a farmer living eight miles from this city, administered fatal doses of strychnine to herself and her two daughters, aged two and four years. The elopement action of a wayward daughter with a man many years her senior greatly preyed upon the mind of the mother.

Big Iron Ore Output.

Washington.—A great advance in iron ore production has been made in the Mesaba range in Minnesota. Shipments have increased from 13,300,000 tons in 1902 to 28,000,000 in 1909, according to an official report.

Saloonkeeper on Trial.

Columbus, O.—L. J. Bolton, Newark saloonkeeper, who fled from that city the night "dry" Detective Carl E. Etherington was lynched, was taken to Newark Monday to stand trial. He is alleged to have led the mob.

CHINA BOYCOTTS U. S.

ACTION FOLLOWS COMPLAINTS AS TO TREATMENT IN FRISCO.

SIMILAR TO PREVIOUS MOVE

Former Boycott Caused Millions of Dollars Damage to American Trade In China.

Canton, China.—A boycott of American goods and merchants, [illegible] lines to the one which [illegible] also caused millions of dollars damage to American trade in China, has been proclaimed here in response to complaints of the treatment of Chinese in America.

The specific cause for the [illegible] this occasion is the [illegible] Chinese of San Francisco to the [illegible] tion sheds on Angel Island, San Francisco bay. The [illegible] deavoring for some time to [illegible] moved to San [illegible] Cor to secure [illegible] living Chinese.

The boycott [illegible] Chinese Self-Government [illegible] Canton, and [illegible] propaganda of "China [illegible] and foreign [illegible] Chinese in San Francisco [illegible] letter received recently.

An appeal has been issued to Chinese abroad, asking them to [illegible] in the boycott.

Amateur Bird Man Tumbles.

New York.—Dr. H. Walden, an amateur aviator, was seriously injured at Garden City, L. I., while testing a new monoplane. Dr. Walden had been encircling the aviation field for half an hour when something went wrong with the craft and it dorpped 50 feet to the ground. The physician was unconscious when removed from the wrecked monoplane and was hurried to the hospital. It is believed that he is internally injured. Dr. Walden has been experimenting with a new stability device and was trying it out on a monoplane which does not glide as far as a biplane when the motor power ceases. When the surgeons examined Dr. Walden they found his collar bone, left arm, right wrist, left leg and right ankle broken.

Murderer May Now Go Free.

New York.—Italy cannot now legally demand the extradition of Porter Charlton. The legal time limit has expired and no demand from the Italian government had been received by the United States district attorney for the state of New Jersey. No steps will be taken for the prisoner's release, however, until September 20, when any one of three courses may be pursued. His lawyers may demand his release on the ground that there is no charge against him; they may obtain a writ of habeas corpus or they may institute proceedings to ascertain his sanity. Charlton is confined in the Hudson county (N. J.) jail, where he has been since his arrival and confession of murdering his wife, Mary Scott Castle Charlton, at Lake Como, Italy.

Wooden Steamer Is Rammed.

Seattle, Wash.—The steel steamer Chippewa rammed the old wooden steamer Albion off Westpoint, [illegible] the entrance to Seattle harbor. The Chippewa was returning to [illegible] from Everett after carrying an excursion party to Vancouver, B. C., and back and had no passengers. Ten passengers bound for Everett were aboard the Albion, but as far as known none of them was injured. The hull of the wooden vessel was pierced by the bow of the heavier steamer and the two were wedged tightly together. The passengers on the Albion, which will likely be a total loss, were transferred to the Chippewa.

Well-Known English Artist Dead.

London, Eng.—Linley Sambourne, chief cartoonist of Punch, died after a long illness. Mr. Sambourne, whose signature to the leading cartoons has been a prominent feature of Punch for the last decade, commenced his connection with England's standard humorous weekly in 1867. He was made chief cartoonist January 1, 1901. He was born in London in 1845 and in addition to his work for Punch he had illustrated a number of books.

Human Incubator Dies.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Physicians are investigating the death of William Douglas, who died following an operation when a live turtle egg, which had germinated in his stomach, was removed. Douglas swallowed the egg while eating soup.

Minnesota Bank Robbed.

Onamie, Minn.—Three cracksmen robbed the safe in the First State bank of $1,900 in bills and $200 in silver and escaped.

Army Officers Assassinated.

Victoria, B. C.—Captain Peter Elliston, commanding the Royal Canadian army in the Esquimaux garrison, was shot and killed by Gunner Grant of his company, who had recently been punished for a military offense.

One More Killed in Aeroplane Wreck.

Sunderland, Eng.—While making a flight at the Boldon race course, Mlle. Frank's biplane overturned and crashed into a crowd of spectators, killing a boy. Mlle. Frank was dangerously injured.

AUGUST

L 904

0476

NO COMPROMISE WITH COMPANIES

Prosecutors Must Not Settle Out of Court.

SAFETY APPLIANCE CASES

Two Reasons Why the Commission Has Adopted the Policy of Requiring Railroads to Pay Penalties.

Indianapolis.—There will be no adjustment out of court of cases brought by the railroad commission against various railroads of Indiana in local courts through prosecuting attorneys for violation of the safety device act if the commission is able to control things. This has been made clear to a number of prosecutors who have written the commission asking if that body would object to the suits being indefinitely continued in the event the defendant railroad companies were to agree to remedy all safety appliance defects.

One prosecutor in a county in the north part of the state where a number of suits have been brought, wrote the commission, saying that he had had success in handling the impure milk and insanitary food producing and distributing plants by continuances where the defendants agreed to obey the law, and suggested that the commission permit him to adopt such a method in dealing with the railroads and not to collect penalties prescribed by law, if the roads remedied the conditions leading to the filing of the suits. This the commission has declined to do, setting out its reason in a letter containing the following:

"The commission has adopted the policy of requiring railroads to pay penalties for two reasons:

"1. We call attention to the law by circular letter, and advise the railroads that in the event they do not comply, penalties will be enforced. I inclose you a copy of our letter with reference to automatic bell ringers.

"2. The railroad companies have sued this commission, or rather the state of Indiana, in probably as many as fifty cases, putting the state to a great deal of expense. We propose to collect enough penalties from the railroad companies to offset this expense. We therefore concur with the attorney general in his request and direction to you to proceed to enforce the penalties in these cases, and to advise us that you have done so."

Organize Body for University Outings.

The Sangamon County State University Excursion association has been formed. Its members comprise those who have been accustomed to making the farmers' trip each year to the state university to study crop methods employed there. The organization was launched through the agency of Major J. E. K. Herrick and County Superintendent E. C. Pruitt.

The following officers and directors were elected to serve the first year:

President—Edgar C. Pruitt, county superintendent of schools.

Vice-president—Maj. J. E. K. Herrick.

Secretary and treasurer—F. E. Kennedy.

Board of directors—Maj. J. E. K. Herrick, chairman; Cartwright township, Newton Rawls, J. H. Plunkett; Island Grove, W. H. Dunlap; New Berlin, Thomas Hergerty; Maxwell, R. B. Smedley; Loami, J. M. Dodd; Talkington, Arthur Brians; Salisbury, A. F. Rhodes; Gardiner, William Gardiner, T. S. Duncan; Curran, Fred Overstreet; Chatham, Charles H. Purdan; Auburn, Henry Hart, Fred W. Ladage; Fancy Creek, A. E. Petefish; Springfield, W. G. Fagan; Woodside, Will Ladage; Capitol, B. F. Drennan; Ball, J. W. Drennan, Jacob Stout; Divernon, Walter Drennen, C. E. Hay; Williams, G. A. Hobkirk, S. E. Moore; Clear Lake, H. C. Riddle.

Hears Tie Tax Evidence.

The state board of tax commissioners met to hear the remainder of the evidence submitted in the case of the Indiana Tie company of Evansville, on appeal from the assessment of the Vanderburg county board of review. The tie company submitted figures which were alleged to show a valuation of $359,488 on property in Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois and Tennessee on March 1, 1910. The company was assessed on $46,000 worth of property in Vanderburg county and on $108,000, the alleged excess of the capital stock value over all property owned by the company. The Vanderburg county board of review maintained that the capital stock, $600,000, was worth 90, because stock had been sold at that price. The company set out that this sale involved only a few shares and was to an employe of the company.

Pensions for Indianians.

Pensions were granted to the following Indianians: Charles F. Buck, $24, special act; Clarissa H. Burk, $12; James Ginn, $15; James F. Graham, $14; Levi Hawkins, $15; William J. Head, $50; Eliza Helmick, $12; Granville L. Howe, $15; Christopher Jeanerette, $16; Jacob F. Kull, $24, special act; John C. Miller, $20; Isaac W. Montgomery, $30; Louisa Rohling, $12; John H. Rottman, $15; Daniel Roucher, $24; Harry Runyon, $8; Jennie Shewman, $17; Thomas Sibert, $15; Estella Wehrly, $12.

Dates for District Meetings Are Set.

Plans which, it was said, would bring about a more complete organization of the Democratic state forces than existed two years ago, were presented by State Chairman Jackson to the members of the state committee at a meeting at the Denison hotel. The committee approved the chairman's suggestions, and dates were set for the meetings next month of the respective district chairmen with candidates on the county and state tickets, together with the congressional nominees.

Chairman Jackson also is to meet with the district chairmen and the plans of the campaign throughout the state are to be discussed. A portion of these plans already have been carried out in some of the districts, although they had not received the official approval of the state committee.

Following are the dates for the district meetings:

First District—T. D. Scales, chairman, to meet with state chairman, county and state candidates and congressional nominee at Evansville, August 5.

Second District—Fabius F. Gwin, chairman, to meet at Vincennes, August 6.

Third District—Mark Storen, chairman, to meet at New Albany, August 8.

Fourth District—F. M. Griffith, chairman, to meet at North Vernon, August 12.

Fifth District—Peter Foley, chairman, to meet at Terre Haute, August 16.

Seventh District—Bernard Korbly, chairman, date not set.

Eighth District—George Beebe, chairman, date not set.

Tenth District—Charles Murphy, chairman, to meet at Gary, August 20.

Eleventh District—E. E. Cox, chairman, date not set.

Thirteenth district—Peter J. Kruyer, chairman, to meet at Plymouth, August 19.

O. K. Five Trustee Reports.

Two trustees of Montgomery county, one trustee of Elkhart, one of Lagrange, and one of Jefferson county were found by the field examiners to have all accounts correct, according to their reports, filed with the state board of accounts. All of the trustees mentioned went into office in January, 1909, at the time that the law was passed creating the state board of accounts. The trustees given passing marks by the examiners are Ulysses G. Cotton, Cleveland township, Elkhart county; O. L. Osborn, Wayne township, Montgomery county; John B. Hopping, Ripley township, Montgomery county; L. W. Meroney, Eden township, Lagrange county, and Harry Underwood, Smyrna township, Jefferson county.

Three Trustees of Jackson county are charged with errors and shortages. Oscar Allen, trustee from 1905 to 1909, is charged by the examiners, William H. Aikman and Horatio Harryman, with having drawn $718 excess salary as overseer of the poor. Henry H. Tinch, trustee of Salt Creek township, Jackson county, from 1905 to 1909, is charged with having drawn excess salary to the amount of $40.

Railroad Men to Confer.

The advisory committee appointed by the last annual railroad convention to confer with the railroad commission of Indiana regarding matters of railway operation which would prevent accidents, will meet the commission. The members of the committee are J. W. Loshend, Evansville, superintendent of the Louisville & Nashville; D. F. Shaft, Indianapolis, superintendent of the Big Four; J. C. Sullivan, superintendent of the Wabash, and J. W. Coneys, superintendent of the Pennsylvania lines. This committee will prepare the program for the annual railroad convention to be held in Indianapolis November 10. This convention is a unique departure in the field of railway propaganda. The law creating the convention was written by the chairman of the Indiana commission, Judge W. J. Wood. No other state has such a conference.

Test Seed Wheat Will Be Sent.

The Indiana experiment station desires to place a number of co-operative tests of wheat varieties with farmers throughout the state. It is believed that the wheat yields could be materially increased by the use of better yielding varieties. Only by testing varieties side by side under similar conditions can it be determined which is the more adaptable variety for the soil and climatic conditions.

The experiment station will furnish free ten pounds each of four or five varieties. These are to be sown with the same soil preparation and cared for in the same way as the general crop. At harvest time definite areas are to be threshed separately and accurate reports of the yields furnished the state. The crop remains the property of the grower. Farmers interested should address Prof. A. T. Wianeko, Purdue university, Lafayette.

Articles of Incorporation.

Articles of incorporation have been filed in the office of the secretary of state for the following:

The Chesterton bank, Chesterton; capital stock, $25,000; incorporators, C. L. Taylor and others.

The Zaiser company, Indianapolis; capital stock, $1,000; bond dealers; directors, L. T. F. Zaiser, Donald McKenzie and S. G. Zaiser.

The Farmington and Chestnut Ridge Telephone company, Jackson county; capital stock, $3,000; to construct and operate a telephone property.

MAY PROFIT BY THE NEW LAW

Three Eligible Under Federal Parole Measure.

BOARD TO MEET IN AUGUST

Under the Old Law It Is Provided That There Shall Be Certain Deductions in Time for Good Conduct of Federal Prisoners.

Indianapolis.—As the result of the parole law passed at the last session of congress, three Indiana bankers who are now in the Ft. Leavenworth federal prison, are eligible to parole. Whether they will be paroled remains to be seen. The parole board provided for by the law will hold its first meeting in August. United States District Attorney Charles W. Miller said he did not know of any movement on foot at the present time to have these men paroled.

The three men who are eligible and who were sentenced for violation of the national banking laws are Justus L. Brodrick, former president of the Indiana National bank of Elkhart, who was sentenced April 21, 1904, to serve ten years; Gustav A. Conzman, former cashier of the Vigo County National bank of Terre Haute, who was sentenced January 29, 1906, to serve eight years, and Fred Lubbe, former cashier of the First National bank of Dillsboro, who was sentenced June 12, 1908, to serve five years.

Mr. Miller points out that the new parole act provides that every prisoner convicted of an offense against the United States and sentenced for a definite term, whose record of conduct shows he had observed the rules of such institution and who has served one-third of the total of the term, may be released on parole under certain conditions.

The act provides that "if it shall appear to the parole board from a report by the proper officers of the prison where the prisoner is held, or upon application by the prisoner, that there is a reasonable probability that such applicant will live and remain at liberty without violating the laws, and if in the opinion of the board, such release is not incompatible with the welfare of society, the prisoner's release may be authorized upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed. No release or parole shall be operative till the finding of the board of parole shall have been approved by the attorney general of the United States."

Under the old law it is provided that there shall be certain deductions in time for good conduct on the part of federal prisoners who were sentenced for a definite term other than life.

Deductions for Good Conduct.

These deductions are as follows: Commencing on the first day of his arrival at the penitentiary, prison or jail: Upon a sentence of not less than six months nor more than one year, five days for each month; on a sentence of more than one year and less than three years, six days for each month; on a sentence of not less than three years and less than five years, seven days for each month; on a sentence of not less than five years, but less than ten years, eight days for each month; on a sentence of ten years or more ten days for each month.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

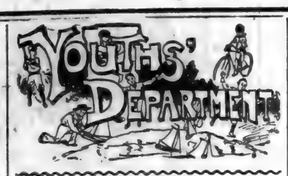
Nashville.—Harry Artis, a farmer of Georgetown, was bitten by a large copperhead snake and is in a serious condition. He was coming from the field and the snake sprang from a bunch of grass and struck him on the leg. He grabbed a club and killed the reptile. When he entered the house he fainted and a doctor was summoned. The snake was the largest of its kind ever killed in this county and measured six feet four inches.

Greencastle.—A fox chase through the streets of Greencastle was the unusual spectacle witnessed by several persons. Persons on the streets were first attracted by the baying of a pack of hounds. A few seconds later a fox, closely followed by seven hounds, dashed across the public square, through the court house lawn and on through the northwest part of town. No one was following the hounds.

Winamac.—The Tippecanoe river added another victim to its list when Leon Lewis Thomas, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Thomas, was drowned. The parents live on a farm four miles north of town, and were threshing. The child slipped away and with his pet dog went to the river to play. He had been throwing sticks in the water for the dog to bring back to him, and it is supposed lost his balance and fell into the stream.

Peru.—Branson Doud of Richland township has the banner wheat crop of this neighborhood. His thrashing was done and from thirty acres the yield was 1,260 bushels, an average of forty-two bushels an acre. In Miami county Mr. Doud is known as the "potato man." Last year his yield was close to 7,000 bushels of potatoes from thirty acres.

Shelbyville.—John Messick, one of the officials of the First National bank of this city, gave the First M. E. church official board a check for $3,000, that being the amount of the indebtedness of the church.



THE LITTLE GARDENER.

"I'm tired to death," cried Johnny,
When his ma called him to tea;
"I've hoed and dug and planted
'Till I can hardly see.

"I've made a fine big garden
And planted things just so,
And now I'll rest a little
'Till the seeds begin to grow.

"And when the crisp white onions
And beets and lettuce, too,
And peas and beans and carrots
Have all come nicely through,

"I'll keep the weeds from growing
'Round them, so good to eat,
And when my garden's ready
We'll have a great big treat."

TRICK OF BINOCULAR VISION

Young Lad Apparently Sees Little Canary Bird Walk Into Cage, But He Does Not.

"Guess what I have in my hand, Harry," said Uncle Dick, holding one hand teasingly behind his back.

"Some books?"

"No."

"A new magic lantern."

"No, I shall have to tell you," and he drew forth a big white sheet of paper, upon which was drawn an open bird-cage, at the right a dotted line, beyond the dotted line a little bird, writes Belle Lawrence in Youth's Companion.

"Now, Harry," said Uncle Dick, as he drew up a chair beside that of his nephew, "you see the little bird outside the cage? Well, soon you shall see the little bird walk right into the cage without our having to touch the bird, the cage, or the pencil."

Bird in the Cage.

"Oh, how?" cried Harry, in astonishment.

In answer to this question Uncle Dick placed the paper in Harry's hand and drew from his pocket an ordinary calling card, which he told Harry to place upon the dotted line and watch the bird carefully, his nose just touching the card.

All was still in the room for a moment and then aHrry cried out:

"He is moving—he really is—there he goes right into the cage!"

Just then the card dropped and Harry looked at the paper in amazement, for there was the cage, the dotted line, and the bird beyond the dotted line just as it had been before.

Uncle Dick laughed at Harry's confusion, then explained to him that it was a sort of trick; that the bird did not really go into the cage at all, yet it seemed so to him because it was a proof of simple sight with both eyes, or, and he laughed at the look of wonder in the little boy's face, "what wise men like your old uncle know as binocular vision."

Harry committed the long word to memory, and not willing to be outdone, drew a cage with two birds outside, then a whole flock, and joyously watched them journey inside the bars.

MEANING OF SCARLET THREAD

Woven Into British Naval Rope as Positive Method of Identification of Royal Property.

Ever since the day of Nelson, a peculiar custom has been observed in the British navy. A scarlet thread is woven into every one of the thousands of ropes used in the British naval service. This includes all ropes from the smallest heaving line to the largest hawser. Several romantic suggestions have been advanced as to why the thread is woven into the ropes, but the real reason is a simple and practical one.

It simply means a sure way of identifying royal property, and if any rope with the red thread is found in unauthorized hands the presumption is that it was improperly taken. It is forbidden that any rope manufactured for private use contain the red thread, in just the same way that in the United States the manufacture of paper for private use containing bits of silk is forbidden. This paper in the United States is used for currency purposes only.

REPRESSION OF P. I. R. PYLE.

Peruvious Ingomar Renssalaer Pyle,
Was one of these boys
Who never a moment believed it worth while
To stop making noise.
E'er Ruvey awoke at the stroke of the clock
He was snoring in glee.
He made enough noise to wake the whole block—
Did Peruvious P.
He yelled while he dressed and he stamped on the floor
To the dread of his ma.
He rapped on the windows and banged on the door.
Which wakened his pa (naturally).
He coasted downstairs and cried when he fell,
Which made such a din,
That all of the neighbors knew mighty well
When Ingo was in.
He tooted and banged, P. I. Renssalaer Pyle,
Till folks in the town,
Had him stuffed with guncotton in grand army style
To keep the noise down.
They wound him in down quilts and blankets and fleece
In undisguised hopes
That 'twould stifle the noise and bring back the peace.
They tied him with ropes.
When I tell you that mercury stood in the shade
At a hundred and ten,
You'll know how uncomfortable Ruvey was made,
He won't racket again.

TEN IN PRONOUNCING MATCH

Professional Men, Including Doctors, Lawyers, Teacher and Preacher, in Novel Test.

Ten professional men, including doctors, lawyers, a teacher and a preacher, took part in a pronouncing match in a New York hall of the Young Men's Christian association recently. Twenty-one words were written on the blackboard. The best man in the ten pronounced 12 words right, according to accepted authority. The average number of errors was 11. Such are the perils and uncertainties of that which he are pleased to call our mother tongue.

William Henry P. Phyfe having compiled a book of "7,000 Words Often Mispronounced," found it easy in a later edition to increase the list to 10,000. It is not likely that even in the second effort he reached the final word, for decisions on disputed pronunciations are chiefly arbitrary, and even presumptive authorities take little trouble to agree among themselves.

Only one man in the Young Men's Christian association ten pronounced "harass" with the accent on the first syllable. He admitted that he was perhaps right by accident. The nine-to-one argument of educated usage indicated here has not prevailed with the dictionary-makers. It may catch up yet. There is the hopeful instance of "squalor" and "squalid." Of these two words the latter is arbitrarily "squaw-lid," as pronounced, while in the former the logical "squaw-lor" has been recognized only in modern times against the fixed "squay-lor" of earlier years.

After all, the harmonizing of English pronunciations is a matter of some importance with the simplifying of spelling.

RARE TRICK WITH DECANTER.

Displacing Center of Gravity by Means of Bent Straw—Latter Must Be Strong.

Can you lift a decanter, half filled with water, by a bent straw? It is quite easy. The decanter should have a narrow neck and wide and rather square shoulder-part. The stray must be a good and whole one, about 2 ft. or 2½ ft. long. This should be bent upward one-third of its length, or enough to bring it under the shoulder of the decanter; then push into the decanter, leaving the long end outside, and lift carefully. The idea is to displace the center of gravity. The performer should take care to use a straw without crack or flaw in it.

Trick With Decanter.

Keeping It Secret.

Papa and mamma were laughing at a joke on gran'pa and little Tommy was keeping close tabs. Gran'pa's name is Noah Brown.

Little Mollie Smith was asked at Sunday school who built the ark. She didn't know and was told to have the answer by the following Sunday. Her mother instructed her. "Noah built the ark," she said. "Noah. The same name as Mr. Brown. His name is Noah Brown. You know that don't you? You've seen his name above his store. Just remember Mr. Brown, and then you'll think of Noah."

And very naturally when Mollie was asked the following Sunday who built the ark she answered promptly: "Mr. Brown built it. He lives right next door to us."

That's the story papa told mamma, and when she laughed Tommy was anxious to see the point. Presently his face lit up. "I know it!" he cried. "Gran'pa built it all right; but he doesn't want everybody to know it."

WEAK KIDNEYS WEAKEN THE WHOLE BODY.

No chain is stronger than its weakest link. No man is stronger than his kidneys. Overwork, colds, strains, etc., weaken the kidneys and the whole body suffers. Don't neglect the slightest kidney ailment. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at once. They are especially for sick kidneys.

Mrs. George Lajoie, 162 W. Gamble St., Caro, Mich., says: "I had lost in flesh until I was a mere shadow of my former self and too weak to stand more than a few minutes at a time. My rest was broken and my nervous system shattered. Had Doan's Kidney Pills not come to my attention, I firmly believe I would be in my grave. They cured me after doctors had failed."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

WELL QUALIFIED.

Squilbob—That fellow over there would make a splendid magazine poet.

Squilligan—A genius, eh?

Squilbob—No, but he has dyspepsia so bad that he would't get so hungry living.

SCRATCHED SO SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

"I write to tell you how thankful I am for the wonderful Cuticura Remedies. My little niece had eczema for five years and when her mother died I took care of the child. It was all over her face and body, also on her head. She scratched so that she could not sleep nights. I used Cuticura Soap to wash her with and then applied Cuticura Ointment. I did not use quite half the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, together with Cuticura Resolvent, when you could see a change and they cured her nicely. Now she is eleven years old and has never been bothered with eczema since. My friends think it is just great the way the baby was cured by Cuticura. I send you a picture taken when she was about 18 months old.

"She was taken with the eczema when two years old. She was covered with big sores and her mother had all the best doctors and tried all kinds of salves and medicines without effect until we used Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. H. Kiernan, 663 Quincy St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 27, 1909."

Merely a Prevaricator.

A doctor relates the following story: "I had a patient who was very ill and who ought to have gone to a warmer climate, so I resolved to try what hypnotism would do for him. I had a large sun painted on the ceiling of his room and by suggestion induced him to think it was the sun which would cure him. The ruse succeeded and he was getting better rapidly when one day on my arrival I found he was dead."

"Did it fail, after all, then?" asked one of the doctor's hearers.

"No," replied the doctor, "he died of sunstroke."

The Good Old Times.

There is a lot of talk about the "good old times." There weren't any "good old times," if you are talking about wash day or house cleaning. Those tasks meant red hands and headaches and backaches and trouble. Easy Task laundry soap would have made them "good" old times indeed. It does half the work in washing and cleaning; it drives the dirt out and not in; it doesn't shrink flannels or streak linens, and it hasn't any rosin in it to ret the fabrics. If your grocer isn't living in the good old times he sells it—lots of it!

Qualified.

A prominent western attorney tells of a boy who once applied at his office for work.

"This boy was bright looking and I rather took to him.

"'Now, my son,' said I, 'if you come to work for me you will occasionally have to write telegrams and take down telephone messages. Hence a pretty high degree of schooling is essential. Are you fairly well educated?'

"The boy smiled confidently.

"'I be,' he said."—Independent.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels and cure constipation.

The supply of talk always exceeds the demand.

RED CROSS BALL BLUE
Should be in every home. Ask your grocer for it. Large 2 oz. package only 5 cents.

No other man appreciates a helping hand like a man in trouble.

AUGUST

0477

L 904

The St. Joe News.

One Year - - $1.00
Six Month - - 50c
Three Months - - 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

LOCAL

A new cement walk is being built north, along the hardware on 4th., Steet.

Chas. Gill and family of Auburn, visited relatives here several days this week.

Mrs. Wm. Turrittin of Hicksville, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. G. M. Barney and family.

Russell and Clayton Hathaway are being entertained at Ft. Wayne, the guests of Mrs. F. H. Langley.

Rev. Coomer, pastor of the M P. Circuit, left Monday for his home at Marion. He will attend conference next week.

St. Joe crossed bats with Newville, last Sunday, defeating them by a score of 19 to 4. Something must have been wrong with Newville.

Mrs. Alice Warner is at Ft. Wayne this week attending the Millinery Openings. Cleveland, Cincinnati and Toledo are having a fine display at the Hotel Anthony.

John Zimmerman and wife of West Unity, O., Ed Camp and Mrs. R. Camp of Edon, O., spent last Sunday in the home of J. D. Fetters. Mr. Zimmerman has just purchased a new automobile.

Grain is Saved,
Money Made,
and
Stock does better
by having your feed ground
by the

Keesler Mfg. Co.
ST. JOE, - - - - INDIANA

Read THE NEWS.

Cucumbers for canning. J. W. Sherer.

Elza Kinsey and H L. Dunkle were at Wayne Tuesday.

Mrs. Cynthia Engle visited last Thursday with Ella Lucas.

Rev. L. Coomer and Sol Barney were at Auburn, Friday.

C. A. Patterson made a business trip to Ft. Wayne, Friday.

Mr. Sol Shearer and wife of Auburn, visited relatives at this place, Saturday and Sunday.

Arthur Upson and daughter, Mildred, of Vancouver, Wash., are visiting Aaron Geisinger.

Mrs. Lizzie Bauserman and daughter, Blevere Cummins, of Harlan, spent the day Friday with her brother, John Betz and family.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Bowen of Fort Wayne, visited from Friday until Sunday evening with S. S. Widney and Frank Sechler and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Bearss and M. E. Leighty and family and friend, Alfred Sigg of Hicksville, are spending the week at Hamilton Lake.

The Misses Lilly and Hannah Kohl and Idetta Lutz of Angola College, were the guests of Ethel Leighty and Grace Kain from Friday until Monday.

Misses Lucy Upson of Vancouver, Washington, Hazel Leighty of Warsaw, Indiana and Inez Geisinger of Auburn, are guests in the home of Aaron Geisinger.

Mrs. J. J. Johnstone and children of Marengo, Ill., who have been guests in the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Lake for the past seven weeks, returned to their home last Friday.

Mrs. Emma Skilling and children of North Baltimore, Md., arrived at this place last week for a short visit with relatives. They are spending a few days with Chas. Koch and family at Cold Springs.

When the digestion is all right, the action of the bowels regular, there is a natural craving and relish for food. When this is lacking you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They strengthen the digestive organs, improve the appetite and regulate the bowels. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

The Deputy Postmistress, Miss Ethel Berry is taking her vacation this week. She left Saturday for South Bend, where she will be the guest of Mrs. Otto Ginther for a few days and will go from there to South Whitley to visit friends the balance of the week.

Does it pay the farmer to protect birds? Only one answer is possible Even from the point of view of an investment for profit, the time and expense necessary for their care and protection are richly repaid. There is the added consideration that without the music and companionship of birds the world would be the poorer. Anything that adds to the attractiveness of the farm and increase the interest of farm life is worthy of attention even if no actual return is received in dollars and cents. Happily the farmer who protects birds secures a double return, increased profit from his crops and increased pleasure of living.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced with water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank; you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

SPENCERVILLE

Ever so many of our people attended Ringling circus.

Anna Squires is the guest of Jackson, Mich., relatives.

Mrs. Benson is the guest in the home of Benj. Hursh.

Mrs. Maud Henderson called on Mrs. Stella Moore, Thursday.

Bring your old junk and rubber to J. F. Baltz. Prices right.

Mrs. Stephen Brown and Mrs Frank Perylines drove to Robison Park, last Thursday.

Juanita Heyman of Ft. Wayne, who has been ill for some time is now a patient at Hope Hospital.

Clarence Steward is contemplating spending the winter at Indiana State University at Bloomington.

FOR SALE:—A 24-inch Wilson Heater stove, burned about 2 months, in good condition. Will sell cheap. Inquire at THE NEWS office.

The Spencerville Base Ball Team defeated the Scipio team at the Scipio picnic to the song of 17 to 10. Hull, Treece and Beams were Spencerville batteries. Spencerville took the lead in the fore part of the game. The local team will play Auburn at home on next Saturday; St. Joe on the 25th. of August; and Hicksville on the 1st. of September.

STRUCK A RICH MINE.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., says he struck a perfect mine of health in Dr. King's New Life Pills, for they cured him of kidney and liver trouble after 12 years of suering. They are the best pills on earth for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia, Debility. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

The Home Coming.

Well we are all coming home. The hundreds of invitations which the "Home Coming" committee have sent out to old settlers of Old Concord Township in various parts of the U S. have to a large per cent been answered. They say "We are coming home". Coming home once more to view the old yet remaining land marks and old faces that once were familiar in childhood days. To view the St. Joe with its wooded banks and old swimming holes, where the bare foot boys tracked through the orchards to take a swim in their cool inviting depths. To see and hear the short speeches of the old settlers, and once more and perhaps for the last time clasp the hand of a long known friend This will be a time long to be remembered in the history of the future.

Many of the old dwellings are still standing. The old residence of J. A. Provines built in 1844 by Jerry Rhodes for a hotel still stands. The old Jones and Emma Allen residence land marks are still in use, the Emma Allen property being the only sided log house yet in use in town. The old Henry Fales property still stands which has been moved north of town. The old mill dam and the water saw mill are still on sentinel duty on the St. Joe river where the murmuring waters declare that "The mill will never grind with the waters that is past. Many other old land marks still are to be seen in the rural parts of Old Concord township. Mrs. Marish Oberholtzer, J. A. Provines, Luther Jones are three old settlers yet holding original deeds of old property, who are yet alive and will be here in town to welcome old friends.

Murray Bros. who own the old grist mill are still at the old stand doing business. Joseph Spitler and Mrs. Owen Bunmell are still fighting the battles of life and will welcome all home. Sol Barney will be present to run in the old men's race. Many names might be mentioned of those who are yet among us but the 25th. of August will tell the story better than tongue can tell it.

In connection with the speeches of old settlers and the Home Coming there will of course be a good time provided for the youngsters. A big program of wheel barrow races, pig races, potatoe races, fat men's races, lean man's races, old man's races, young man's races, kids races, and all kinds of races including the human race. A ball game between St. Joe and Spencerville will be pulled off in the forenoon. 20 cts. dinner at noon hour. A fantastic parade will follow the dinner hour. Judge Powers, candidate for judge on Democratic ticket, will be present to deliver a Home Coming address. Other speakers will be present. This will be a big feature of the days program. In the evening there will be an exhibition of fire works and a festival of ice cream and other refreshments. Everything will be prepared for the comfort of all incomers from afar. Everybody invited.

J D Fetters
TRUSTEE
of Concord Township.
OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK
at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

Summer Is Here

which brings flies, bugs and mosquitoes. Why be pested with them when Kinsey has a full line of Screen Doors, Windows, Wire screen and Hinges. All sizes at right prices. That nice lawn needs a mower to keep it mowed. When that building needs painting, don't forget we have a full line of Paint and Oil guaranteed strictly pure. The hot weather will make you wonder where you can secure a Gasoline or Oil Stove, remember we have a full line. When you need anything in Hardware remember we are complete. We show the biggest line of Graniteware ever shown in town and prices are such as have never been known. We have the Automatic Schrams Fruit Jars. Come in and we will be glad to show them. Always bear in mind that Kinsey's is where you get value received or in other words, dollar for dollar.

At your Service,

H. V. KINSEY — H. V. Kinsey & Son — E. R. KINSEY

Furniture Hardware Undertaking

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37 3

You will also find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Especially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37 4.

LIFE ON PANAMA CANAL

Has had one frightful drawback—malaria trouble—that has brought suffering and death to thousands. The germs cause chills, fever and ague, biliousness, lassitude, weakness and general debility. But Electric Bitters never fail to destrop them and cure malarial troubles. "Three bottles completely cured me of a very severe attack of malaria," writes Wm. A. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "and I've had good health ever since." Cure Stomach, Liver, and Kidney Troubles, and prevent Typhoid. 50c. Guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

A Christmas Burlesque.

William Dean Howells, the famous novelist, laughed, at a Christmas dinner in New York, at the old-fashioned Christmas story of the sentimental type.

"Let us be thankful," said Mr. Howells, "that this story is no longer written. The Dickens of to-day no longer dips his pen and writes—"

With a laugh Mr. Howells rattled off the burlesque:

"It was Christmas eve, a night bitterly cold. The snow was falling softly, heavily; it covered houses, trees and fields with a glittering mantle of white. In an icy room destitute of every comfort, a woman and two children tried in vain to sleep. Their only bed was a heap of straw. Of coverings they had none. The mother, made desperate by the cold, heaped the straw in the most sheltered corner of the room, and, removing the door from its hinges, placed it in a slanting position against the wall, thus making a shield that would be some slight protection against the icy draughts. All three crept under the door and huddled together, and the youngest child said gratefully:

"'Mother, what must poor children do on Christmas eve who have no door to cover them?'"

She Was Willing.

Mr. Breezy, of Boston (tenderly)—Miss Miggles, will you—er—meet me in the gloaming?

Miss Miggles, of Milwaukee (eagerly)—Any old place you say, Mr. Breezy. Where is it and how do you get there?

THE BEST HOUR OF LIFE

Is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky Mt., N. C., when he was suffering intensely, as he says, "from the worst cold I ever had, I then proved to my great satisfaction what a wonderful Cold and Cough cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For after taking one bottle I was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that." Its the surest and best remedy for diseased lungs, hemorrhages, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hay Fever —any throat or lung trouble. 50c, $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

W. G. Erick
TRUSTEE
of Spencer Township
OFFICE DAY
TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK
at Store in
SPENCERVILLE, IND

..Real Estate.
Insurance
NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

WABASH WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.
No. 11 due at .....10:32 a. m.
No. 3 .....8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.
No. 2 due at.....6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at.....4:57 p.m.

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

Calls answered day or night.

Phone No. 82.

St. Joe, - - Indiana.

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE,
ST. JOE, IND.
Office in Case building.
Bell Phone No. 44.

D. F. BROWN,
.....SHOE SHOP.....

My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite Kagey's Grocery. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.

St. Joe, - Ind.

S. S. Kimes
—M. D.—

Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.

Phone No. 10.
Spencerville, Ind.

Read the ads and be posted.

Band concert Saturday evening.

5% FARM LOANS 5%

SEE

Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.
Bell 347k Home 346
Office:
Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Elza Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son,

Phone No. Office 37-2. Residence 37-3

AUGUST

L 904

0478

YOU ARE ALWAYS WELCOME AT THE

TREECE RESTAURANT

Lunch, Cigars, Confectionary, Ice Cream and Soft Drinks

Clem Treece

PROPRIETOR.

Local Items

THE NEWS $1.00 per year.

W. W. Fisher spent the past week at home.

Will Fulner of Auburn, is working for Wm. Allen.

Mrs. W. L. Wernert, spent the past week in Toledo.

Mrs. Dr. Emanuel is in this vicinity with her numerous friends.

FOR SALE:—A good Norman sucking colt. WM. RHOADS.

Minnie Keester was a guest of Jack Henderson's and other friends last week.

J. Y. Davis and wife of St. Joe, and son Frank, of Detroit, were the guests of Sam Davis and wife

Ethel Metcalf called on Miss Ethel Baker, who is in the hospital at Ft. Wayne. Mrs. Baker was there on Saturday.

Before buying your machine oil see Erick & Co's Eldorado Castor. Only 20c. per gallon. It's a fine one.

Mrs. Ben Hursh is a patient at Hope Hospital, having undergone an operation for cancer. She is doing finely, Dr. Kimes physician.

H. G. Hursh has returned home having completed his summer course. He will return on September 13th. to Springfield to continue his school.

Fern Wearley took advantage of the Sandusky excursion last Sunday morning from St. Joe and is now enjoying a two weeks visit with relatives there.

Old junk and rubber brings the highest market price at J. F. Baltz. Come and see him.

The Lutheran Sunday School attended the Scipio picnic Saturday, while the M. E's. were at Leo. They expect to go to the Cedarville picnic on September 3.

We wish to extend our many thanks to the kind friends and neighbors that remembered our daughter Edna, on her sixth anniversary by sending her such beautiful cards. She received one hundred and five.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Jackson.

In buying a cough medicine, don't be afraid to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it, and relief is sure to follow. Especially recommended for coughs, colds and whooping cough. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

The Old Mill as it has been is no more. Murray's have moved it over onto land and will use it for a warehouse. Will use the heavy timbers which supported it for necessary repair-work for dam.

Mrs. H. J. Carnes entertained the Ladies Missionary Society on Thursday of last week. It was the occasion of the annual election of officers as follows: President, Mrs. Sylvia Furnish; Vice president, Mrs. Rebecca Beams; Secretary, Mrs. Mattie Hart; Treasurer and Recording Secretary, Mrs. Hitchner.

FRED THOMAS

FARMERS!

should remember that there is always more or less repairing to be done before the fall work comes on. Your drag may need some teeth sharpened and now would be a good time to have it done before they are needed.

All Work Guaranteed.

The Blacksmith.

Lutheran S. S., 78 attendance $1.98 collection.

Mrs. Rachel Horn called on Mrs. L. J. Steward, Friday evening.

Mrs. Cal Brown of Ft. Wayne, spent the week with Thomas Murray's.

Quite a number from this place attended the ball game at Auburn, Sunday.

E. W. Erick and wife are enjoying an outing at Hamilton Lake, with their son, Beeks and family.

The ladies of the E. L. Church are planning to serve dinner in regular "home coming fashion" the 25th.

Dr. Carey and wife of Wayne, attended the Scipio picnic, Saturday. Mrs. Carey is the guest of Arthur Harters' for a few days.

Rev. Lindstrom and family of Pennsylvania, Mrs. Glen Henderson and baby of near Huntertown, and David Butler and family were entertained Sunday at the John Henderson home.

Expenditures and Tax Levies for the Year 1911

The Trustee of Spencer Township, DeKalb County, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at its annual meeting, to be held at the school house of District No. 10, on the 6th day of September 1910, commencing at 2 o'clock, P. M., the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1. Township expenditures, $749.18, and Township tax, 13 cents on the hundred dollars.
2. Local Tuition expenditures, $2,090, and tax, 33 cents on the hundred dollars.
3. Special School Tax expenditures, $1250.00, and tax, 18 cents on the hundred dollars.
4. Road Tax expenditures, $1,750, and tax, 25 cents on the hundred dollars.
5. Additional Road Tax expenditures, $....., and tax, ... cents on the hundred dollars.
6. Library expenditures, $....., and tax, ..., cents on the hundred dollars.
7. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $128, and tax, 3 cents on the hundred dollars.
8. Other items, if any, expenditures, $..... and tax, ... on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $6,567.18, and total tax, 92 cents on the hundred dollars.

Number of Polls, 125.

Signed W. G. ERICK Trustee.
Dated August 1st., 1910.

HOME-COMING AND CELEBRATION

This is to be the best time of your life, when you can meet your old friends. Everyone who has lived in Concord township is invited to this Home-Coming. Entertainment is being provided. Music by during both day and night. Ice Cream Supper in the evening. A great display of Fireworks in the evening, considerable money has been expended to entertain you on this day, so come and enjoy it.

Coburntown Farmer's Band

THIS MEANS EVERYBODY.

AUGUST 25, 1910.

PROGRAMME

The following races will be pulled off with a few slight changes as to order. List of Prizes.

Fat Mans race.....Box cigars by Clem Treece
Second prize—Briar Pipe and package smoking tobacco by W. G. Erick

Old Mans race.....$1.50 in Cash
Second prize—Pocket knife valued at $1.00.....R. U. Bowser

Young Mans race.....$1.50 in Cash
Second prize—Pocket knife.....W. L. Wernert

Sack Race Boys.....Junior ball bat by Wernert
Second prize—Ball bat.....W. L. Wernert

Little Girls race.....Silk head scarf by Erick
Second prize—75 cents cash.....

Goose Race.....Box cigars by Treece

Greased Pole.....$1.00 on the top

Flour Contests.....$3.50—8 at a tub

Shoe Race—1st. prize $3.00 2nd. prize $2.00.....

Pig race.....Prize—the pig.

The churches will be open to the Public as REST ROOMS.

SPENCERVILLE

AUGUST

0479

L 904

A MAN OF ACTION

By DONALD ALLEN

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

The afternoon ten was over, and the widow Chalmers sat down to think. There had been present Mr. Charles Montague. He loved to be called Charlie. He spoke with a drawl. He was always bored. He hadn't ambition enough to throw one of his numerous creditors downstairs.

And there was Philip Manchester. He had a studio used for smoking alone, and he was waiting for his aunt to die and leave him a hundred thousand dollars. He was a languisher.

And Capt. Noble had put his hand on his heart and started to propose to her, and was stopped only by a second cup of tea. He belonged to the Horse Marines, or some other military body, and was extremely proud of his drooping mustache.

Also, there was Reggy Pendergast, the society pet. He wrote sonnets and stole poems. He cultivated a lisp and a blush. He always held some one's poodle dog in his lap when he sat down, and the ladies spoke admiringly of his eccentricity.

And there was— But what was the use? There was only one gentleman present worth remembering, and he had vexed her a little by his attitude. He had scarcely paid her a compliment. He hadn't come and dawdled and departed, but had remained less than half an hour. He hadn't chummed with the dawdlers. He had betrayed no eccentricity. She couldn't remember who had brought him, but she had liked his face and the little he said. Franklin was the name he had given—Worth Franklin.

There were a dozen chaps who would have given a dollar or two to be assured that the widow Chalmers remembered them after their departure from one of her teas. She was on the right side of thirty, handsome, and rich, and not at all understood by society. Society picked out this one and that one for her to marry, and he was a dawdler. He was a ladies' tea man. He was a talked of small talk. He had eccentricities and a drawl. She was given credit for a fat bank account, good looks and a good figure, but her nature was supposed to be frivolous. She could sign a check, but was not supposed ever to have heard of the tariff or cold storage.

And the widow recalled the face of Worth Franklin and somehow felt glad that he had called in and towered over the other men. And when she thought of the silliness and the foppery and the hypocrisy of it all she wrote out a telegram to her dear friend, Mrs. Lee, down in the country, and said she was coming to visit her, and would be there on the evening train next day.

It Was Furious.

Mr. Worth Franklin was an architect just getting a foothold. He had ambition, earnestness and perseverance, but nothing in bank and no old aunts to leave him a legacy. A citizen down at Glendale wanted a modest little skyscraper, and some one told him of Mr. Franklin, and he wrote to him to come down. The architect telegraphed in reply, and so it was electricity as well as steam that landed him and the widow at the village depot together. They did not occupy the same car coming down, and as both were bundled up for stormy weather they did not recognize each other when they got off.

And the weather, which had been threatening all day to play high jinks, broke with a blizzard and things began to howl. There was no carriage from Mrs. Lee's; no man who wanted a skyscraper! The other passengers struck out for their homes and were lost to sight, and the architect and the widow found themselves in a box. At least the depot agent looked at them and grinned and said:

"No hacks for the hotel tonight. No hacks for anywhere. Telephone has gone dead, it's going to snow all night, and you will have to sit here by the stove till morning."

The agent was working for $45 per month, with no chance to make anything on the outside, and had lost $5 at poker the night before, and he took pleasure in making the announcement.

It was when the widow exclaimed, "Oh, dear, but what shall I do!" that the architect recognized her voice and reintroduced himself. She was glad to see him and shook hands heartily. She felt right away that something would be doing.

"Fill up this stove!" he commanded, as he turned to the agent.

He was grudgingly obeyed, but at the same time asked if he thought he was running that railroad.

"And now what's the matter with your telephone? Ah, I see. A boy ten years old could fix it in five minutes. There's a livery stable in town of course. What's the number?"

"It's 432, but you won't get no hack. The man is drunk and his driver has quit."

Ring! Ring! Ring! No answer.

"But you won't go out in this storm?" said the widow as the architect turned up his coat collar.

"Back in half an hour," he replied as he passed out.

Yes! the owner of the only public stables in the town was asleep in his own barn. He was locked in, but the door was pried open. He woke up and objected and was flung into a stall. A horse was led out, harnessed to a cutter, and the drunken man objected again. This time he was pitched into the snow. In forty minutes Mr. Franklin drove up to the depot. It was snowing and blowing, and it was the horse who found the way.

"And now for Mrs. Lee's."

"But—but I don't know the way. All I know is that it's about a mile away."

The agent had gone across the road to stand up to declare that the rich were growing richer and the poor poorer, and that the life blood was being ground out of him, when some one entered and grabbed him by the arm and demanded to know where Mrs. Lee lived.

"Never heard of her," he replied as he saw that it was the architect.

"Then you'd better get posted at once. Come on!"

And Mr. Franklin ran him across the street and into the depot and up to Mrs. Chalmers, and said:

"Tell the lady where Mrs. Lee lives, and tell her quick!"

"'Bout a mile up the road, on the right hand side. Big trees in front."

"Thanks. I can find it."

"Bet you can't, not in this storm, and if you get froze to death—"

But the widow and the architect were already passing out into the storm. It was furious. The horse must be left to take his own gait. He took it and brought up at the livery stable. The drunken owner awoke and objected, but the equine was turned around, the gad applied. This time he started for somewhere. He was half way there, and he was going along with his eyes shut when he stumbled and fell.

"And now we are surely lost!" cried the widow.

Mr. Franklin jumped out and had the old nag on his four legs in two minutes. Twenty rods farther on an abandoned wagon was found across the road, and the old horse crashed into it and sat down. Mr. Franklin rolled it aside into the ditch, assisted the horse to stand, and in ten minutes more he was making the doorbell at the Lee mansion ring all kinds of joyous sounds. When the door was opened he stood there with a snow woman in his arms, and having surrendered her to friends he called a good night and returned to the horse. Next day, while he was talking with the man who wanted the modest skyscraper, a note was handed him. It asked the man of action if he would kindly call somewhere and receive somebody's thanks.

He called and he was thanked, and if such little romances don't lead to admiration, love and engagements what does become of them?

VERY MODEST SCHOOL MA'AM

No Doubt She Meant Well, but Superintendent Overruled Her Ideas as "Bosh."

Miss Anna Sayre, principal of the Lincoln primary school of Newark, N. J., believes that modesty is the crowning virtue of woman and that its principles cannot be inculcated too early. Therefore, she forbade little girls to come to school during the hot weather without guimpes in their dresses, and would not allow the little boys to attend without collars.

"I have tried to teach modesty in the schoolroom," she says. "I deemed dresses cut six inches low front and back decidedly immodest and indecent. We cannot start too early to teach modesty in dress nowadays. My ideas may seem old fashioned, but if it is old fashioned to teach morals I am glad to be so termed."

Miss Sayre's order against low dresses on her six and seven-year-old charges caused much indignation among Newark mothers. The order was disobeyed by many, and the insubordinate ones were kept after school and made to write "guimpe" on the blackboard until their little hands were tired. Then the mothers appeared to Superintendent of Schools Poland. Being a man, he took a man's view of the subject.

"Bosh!" he remarked tersely. "Let 'em wear guimpes or not, as they like. What difference does it make, anyway?"

The boys had practically the same experience. Seeing how comfortable the little girls looked in their low-necked dresses, the boys doffed their collars for all. Another appeal to Mr. Poland resulted in the same ruling as in the case of the girls.

Those Questions.

Wadsworth (at the telephone)—Hello, is this main 3967?

Voice at the Other End—Yes, who are you?

Wadsworth—Is Hammersley there?

Voice at the other End—Yes. You want to talk to him?

Wadsworth—No. I want to kiss h

Violets or Roses

By Clarissa Mackie

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

When Noel Osmond asked her if he might send flowers the night of the Hasken ball Mildred Vard smiled enigmatically.

"You are very kind, indeed; and I am especially fond of white violets." Her quick glance caught his little start of surprise at the hint. White violets at that season were quite beyond the slim purse of young Mr. Osmond.

Noel's lips hardened into a straight line. All the pleasure he might feel in knowing that Mildred would wear his flowers was lost in the thought that the flowers would hold no meaning for her beyond their novelty and extravagance.

He did not remain long after that. Rather grave and preoccupied, he held Mildred's hand in his own for a brief instant and then went away. When he reached the florist's he turned in and asked for white violets. The clerk brought out a jar of the white blossoms, velvety, exquisite in texture, but quite odorless. The price was away beyond Noel's pocketbook, and he hesitated. Of course they might be charged—although he was poor himself, was he not the nephew of the rich Mr. Osmond and very likely his heir—and he need not be mortified in the sight of the girl he loved. Still Noel Osmond had come to the city with very high ideals of paving his way in the world and going without what he could not pay for.

The Vards were rich and fashionable people. But Mildred herself, the youngest daughter, was quite unspoiled by it all. Noel had found himself telling her of his fight for a place in the world and the ambition that kept him bright and keen eyed and fresh and clean hearted in the midst of a world of temptations.

Mildred had seemed to understand and their relations had been growing a little closer and Noel was hoping—hoping—some miracle might happen whereby he might become rich in a day and so be in position to declare his love.

"Your Buds Are Here."

And, knowing his poverty, she had expressed a wish for white violets!

A telephone bell rang sharply and the clerk turned to the instrument. Noel looked wistfully at the jar of violets. How he would have enjoyed sending that great mass of white blossoms up to Mildred! What was the man saying at the telephone?

"Yes, Mr. Kenyon, we have a few white violets—well, a good-sized bunch—send them up to Miss Vard? Yes, sir, thank you, sir!" He turned briskly to Noel.

"If you do not want these, sir, I have an order for them all."

"I won't take them," said Noel, turning away with a sick jealousy tearing at his heart. He knew Tom Kenyon well—Tom was as rich as Noel was poor.

He ordered pink rosebuds with grim, unpleasant mouth, and paid for them. As he strode homeward he felt for the first time the gall of poverty; he despised himself because he was too poor to be able to indulge the girl he loved. He could never hope to win her for his wife—what had he to offer her save youth and a perpetual struggle to keep up appearances?

Once more he would see her, would dance with her, talk to her; then he would go as far away as he could from this cold, unfeeling New York, where money was the standard in every walk of life. He would go into the west, where fortunes are made quickly, and perhaps some day, if Tom Kenyon did not step in between with his ready-made fortune—but it was very likely Tom would step in!

The hours intervening he spent in bitter calculations that only strengthened his resolve to cut it all and go away, and start his career over again in some city where Mildred Vard's lovely face and charming presence might never tempt him from work.

He carried these bitter reflections with him to the Hasken palace, where so many millions rubbed elbows that it seemed to Noel that the very air of the lighted rooms sparkled with gold dust.

He saw Mildred dancing with Tom Kenyon. He had never been jealous of Tom before, but the episode of the violets had proved to him how weak his own standing was. And she wore on the bosom of her rose-pink gown—not his roses, but Tom Kenyon's white violets!

Noel made himself very wretched that evening. He did not dance often, but he glowered in distant corners where he might watch Mildred's dark head.

To approach her might be to invite a snub. When he did meet her it all happened so suddenly that he could not avoid the situation. He had wandered into the conservatory and was moodily watching the goldfish darting to and fro in the huge basin when there was the sound of quick steps on the marble floor and Tom Kenyon's deep voice saying:

"Sit down here, Millie; I'll bring you an ice." Then he was gone and Mildred herself, flushed and sparkling, came around the big palm and came upon Noel at the goldfish basin.

"Why, Mr. Osmond, I did not know you were here," she said as he bent above her hand. She drew away and looked at him oddly.

"I'm in a black mood, Miss Vard," said Noel. "In fact I'm so grouchy that I think I'll clear out!" His eyes lingered on her upturned face with its wistful look that he had surprised once or twice before. "I hope you are having a delightful time," he went on lamely.

Her head drooped a little. "Yes, it is a lovely ball. Thank you for the beautiful rosebuds, Mr. Osmond—they are just the color of my gown."

Noel flushed darkly and his eyes rested on the white violets. With a sudden impulse of angry despair he touched the blossoms with a tentative forefinger.

"I could not send you these," he said harshly. "I am too poor, Miss Vard—I sent what I could afford to pay for. You are very gracious to accept the roses when you asked for violets. You see, I've made a big mistake—I'm not in it with the other chaps—I can't play the game!"

Somehow her hand found its way to his arm and was timidly laid on his black sleeve. "I asked you to send violets, Mr. Osmond, because I knew they were extravagant," she said quietly.

Osmond stared, puzzled, yet strangely thrilled by her tone. "What do you mean, Miss Vard?" he asked.

"I wondered if you were like all the rest of them, living beyond your means, spending more than you could afford to pay for—or whether you were what you appeared to be, working your way upward with the courage of your convictions apparent in your actions! I am not disappointed, Mr. Osmond. If you had sent me white violets I am afraid I would have been quite disgusted with you."

Noel's heart was beating hard. "But I would have liked to have you wear my roses," he was beginning, when she touched the frill of pink chiffon that edged the low neck of her gown.

"Your buds are here," she said softly, and Noel saw that his pink roses formed a garland across her bosom above the violets. After that, events moved rapidly, and with Mildred's hands in his own and her head on his breast he was explaining all his doubts and fears since he had left her that afternoon. And Mildred explained that Tom Kenyon was engaged to her sister Ethel, and Ethel had pinned the white violets upon Mildred's gown, for generous Tom had sent her too many for one person.

The miracle did not occur till the next day when Noel's Uncle Francis Osmond offered him a place in his banking house. "In order to learn the business which you must one day inherit, young man!" he said sharply. "I've been watching you, Noel, and expecting you to fall into the fast pace every day, but I'm disappointed, agreeably, my boy! I happened to be in that florist shop yesterday (looking at orchids behind a screen) and saw you turn down the violets and pay for the roses like a man—you're the right stuff!"

One of Sheehan's Ways.

R. F. Sheehan, connected with the Tod-Stambaugh company, is said to have the most unusual characteristic that there is any record of. It is this: He never laces up his shoes until after breakfast. It matters not whether he's at home or abroad, he dresses himself carefully to the minutest detail, pulls on his shoes and lets them go unlaced until he has been to the dining room. He says he doesn't know why he waits until after breakfast to tie his shoes, except that it's a habit. He's followed the practise so long that he cannot remember when he first took on that system of dressing.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In Society.

The Young Lawyer—I have only two books in my library, and they meet all my needs, "Good Style" and the "Penal Code."—Illegende Blaetter.

RACER DARES DEATH

GRIM NERVE OF MECHANICIAN AT RIVERHEAD CONTEST.

When the Steering Gear Becomes Disabled He Climbs Out Over Auto's Hood and Rides on Cranking Shaft.

One of the nerviest spectacles ever seen on an auto raceway, says Hampton's Magazine, occurred in the Long Island stock car Derby at Riverhead. Herbert Bailey, mechanician for Louis Disbrow and his No. 1 literary shook hands with death.

When the car had passed the stand on its fourth lap and was two miles from the repair pits the pin fell out of the reach rod, disabling the steering gear. The machine threatened to become unmanageable.

What did Bailey do but climb out over the hood, lower himself down on the little cranking rod and sit facing the radiator with his feet propped against the front axle. With one hand he prevented himself from being dashed under the wheels by holding on to the little water cap on the top of the hood.

The other hand held the disabled steering gear together. Bailey rode twenty miles in that manner, with the car going full speed, until the circuit was completed and the repair pits made.

George Robertson had an experience in the famous backstretch of the Merrimac Valley course which might have had pretty serious consequences.

"We were making seventy miles an hour," said Robertson in telling the story, "when suddenly I heard a crack. The next second I fell through to the floor of the car. The seat had broken under me. There I lay with my hands on the wheel and my feet sticking up in the air.

"I could not see the road in front of me, and did not know where the car was going. Just before Glenn Ethridge, my mechanician, grabbed me by the shoulders and pulled me up, the car tilted perceptibly. It almost tipped over. I tell you, I thought we were goners! No, I haven't said anything about it. Why should I?"

Smiling George they call him, and his sunny countenance certainly bears out the nickname. Robertson is a big, solid, good looking youth, who gives the impression that nothing could move him. He fairly radiates vitality. In everyday life he is an easygoing, merry, careless chap.

In a race he is another man. At times he acts like a maniac. He has been known to strike the men in the repair pits when they did not work fast enough to suit him. On the road he is absolutely fearless. The other drivers "turn out" for him. On more than one occasion Robertson has scraped the paint off a car that was slow in giving him leeway.

A story is told of Robertson's behavior during the Briarcliff race. It was said that he had hurled a monkey wrench at another driver who deliberately tried to block him. When Robertson was asked about this he appeared high incensed.

"Honestly, do you think I'd throw my wrench at any one? Why, it's absurd! Suppose I should need that wrench during the race! If I threw anything, I throw spare nuts."

Nominated But Not Elected.

"It's getting harder every year for a faker to get by," remarked Attorney M. B. Excell. "Whatever line a man's in, whether it's politics or selling groceries, it doesn't pay for him to try much four-flushing. I always think of the case of a man I knew in a town near here who ran for a county office one year and had a bright young chap there to write a speech of acceptance for him, to have ready in case he was nominated.

"He did get the nomination, and delivered the speech in great shape, without the use of manuscript of notes. The speech was wonderfully well put up, too—so good, in fact, that everybody wondered who had written it, for the speaker himself was regarded as a person who would have difficulty in writing a letter asking for a seed catalogue without getting somebody to help him with the spelling and the grammar.

"When he had finished and sat down, there went up a wild tumult of applause above which could be heard shouts of 'Author! Author!' just like they do after the first performance of a play in which the actors have delivered their lines well.

"And that cry was the thing that defeated the candidate." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Passing It Along.

"I've lost all confidence in Blinkers since he worked that old horse off on me," said Markleigh. "I'll never trust him again."

"What are you going to do with the animal?" asked his wife.

"Why—er—I expect a friend of mine over this afternoon to look at him," replied Markleigh.

Paradise in Advance.

"The man died eating watermelons," some one said to Brother Dickey.

"Yes, suh," he said, "Providence sometimes puts us in paradise befo' we gits ter heaven."—Atlanta Constitution.

O, Beatrice!

Beatrice—George tried to kiss me last night.

Muriel—Why, what did you do?

Beatrice—I—I sat right down on him!—Miami Herald.

SHOULD HAVE BEEN BUSY.

Old Lady—What are you crying about, my little man?

Kid—Nothin'.

Old Lady—Nothin!

Kid—Yes. Me teacher ast me what I was doin' an' I told her nothin', and she said I ought a been doin' sumthin'—an' give me a lickin'.

Wife and Country.

Paul D. Cravath, the noted New York lawyer said at a luncheon at the Lawyers' club: "Vacation time is here, and already that dreadful song about the wife gone to the country is being resurrected. But a variant to the song was furnished by a conversation I heard the other night.

"'Hello, Smith,' said one man to another, 'I'm glad to see you back at the club again, old fellow. Wife off to the country, eh?'

"'No,' growled Smith. 'She's got back.'"

A Protection Against the Heat.

When you begin to think it's a personal matter between you and the sun to see which is the hotter, buy yourself a glass or a bottle of Coca-Cola. It is cooling—relieves fatigue and quenches the thirst. Wholesome as the purest water and lots nicer to drink. At soda fountains and carbonated in bottles—5c everywhere. Send 2c stamp for booklet "The Truth About Coca-Cola" and the Coca-Cola Baseball Record Book for 1910. The latter contains the famous poem "Casey At The Bat," records, schedules for both leagues, and other valuable baseball information compiled by authorities. Address The Coca-Cola Co., Atlanta, Ga.

There Should.

Fritz the gardener was a stolid German who was rarely moved to extraordinary language. Even the most provocative occasions only caused him to remark mildly on his ill-luck. Not long ago he came back from the city in the late evening after a hard day in the market place. He was sleepy, and the train being crowded, the baggageman gave him a chair in his roomy car.

Finally the train reached Bloomfield. Fritz still slept as it pulled in and his friend had to shake him and tell him where he was.

"I tanks you," said Fritz, as he rose slowly to his feet. The open door of the car was directly in front of him. He walked straight out of it.

The baggageman sprang to look after him. Fritz slowly picked himself up from the sand by the side of the track, looked up at the door, and said with no wrath in his voice:

"There should here be some steps."—St. Paul Dispatch.

Mathematical Request.

Little Mary, seven years old, was saying her prayers. "And, God," she petitioned at the close, "make seven times six forty-eight."

"Why, Mary, why did you say that?" asked her mother.

"'Cause that the way I wrote it in 'zamination in school today, and I want it to be right."—Lippincott's.

Freedom doesn't always bring happiness, but you'll notice that it is the tied dog that howls.

Know How To Keep Cool?

When Summer's sun and daily toil heat the blood to an uncomfortable degree, there is nothing so comforting and cooling as a glass of served with sugar and a little lemon.

Iced Postum

Surprising, too, how the food elements relieve fatigue and sustain one.

The flavour is delicious—and Postum is really a food drink.

"There's a Reason"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd. Battle Creek, Mich.

AUGUST

0480

L 904

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman.

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

Clever Joke of Kind King.

King Edward's good nature was illustrated the other night by a London correspondent at the Press club in New York.

"The king," said the correspondent, "was visiting Rufford Abbey, and one morning, in company with his host, Lord Arthur Savile, he took a walk over the preserves.

"Suddenly Lord Arthur, a big burly man, rushed forward and seized a shabby fellow with a dead pheasant protruding from the breast of his coat.

"'Sir,' said Lord Arthur to the king, 'this fellow is a bad egg. This is the second time I've caught him poaching.'

"But the king's handsome face beamed, and he laughed his gay and tolerant laugh.

"'Oh, let him go,' he said. 'If he really were a bad egg, you know, he wouldn't poach.'"

Yes, Indeed.

Hostess (at party)—Why, so silent, Miss De Muir? You've scarcely said word since you came.

Youthful guest—Really, Mrs. Leader, I am having a very enjoyable time, but my father has told me 100 times never to say anything unless I have something to say, and I suppose—

Hostess—But, my dear child, think what a stupid and tiresome thing society would be if everybody followed that advice!

A Real Argument.

They were talking about argument not in the abstract but as applying to domestic happiness. "What do you think is the most unanswerable argument you ever heard?" one bachelor asked a married man.

"That's very easy," he replied. "When your wife says, 'If they can afford it we can,' there is no flaw in that—and never will be."—Youth's Companion.

Generosity.

"I never deny my wife a wish."

"Indeed?"

"No; I let her wish. It doesn't cost anything."—Life.

The only way to learn to do great things is to do small things well, patiently, loyally.—David Starr Jordan.

Hungry Little Folks

find delightful satisfaction in a bowl of toothsome

Post Toasties

When the children want lunch, this wholesome nourishing food is always ready to serve right from the package without cooking, and saves many steps for mother.

Let the youngsters have Post Toasties—superb summer food.

"The Memory Lingers"

Postum Cereal Co., Limited. Battle Creek, Mich.

MRS. FENTON

BY

W. E. NORRIS

CHAPTER XVI.

Fred Musgrave was a young man whose affections were easily won. He was by nature something of an optimist; he was not particularly fastidious; he had broad sympathies and entertained a favorable opinion of the human race as a whole. When people were kind to him he did not—as most of us, unhappily, so soon learn to do—ask himself what motive they had for being kind, but took it for granted that they liked him for his own sake (which, to be sure, was generally the truth), and felt this to be an excellent reason for liking them in return. His cousin, therefore, obtained without difficulty the friendship which she had declared that she coveted. Fred called every morning to inquire whether he could be of any use to her, and her reply always was that he could sit down and talk to her, if he wasn't in a hurry.

"You must go away the moment you are tired of me," she would add; "we should lose all the advantage of being first cousins unless we could dispense with ceremony."

However, he was seldom in any hurry to go away, and it was generally she who had to dismiss him at length; for she had a good many engagements of one kind and another.

"You can't think," she said, "what a funny sensation it is to be spoken to as an equal after one has been either patronized or trampled under foot all one's days. Sometimes I have to pinch myself to make sure that there is no mistake about it and that I am not the victim of a wildly improbable dream. These great ladies—I suppose Lady Clamborough must be a great lady? She is a viscountess and she lives in Belgrave Square—that makes her a great lady, doesn't it?"

"I don't know," answered Fred. "Yes; I dare say it does."

"Anyhow you must allow me the satisfaction of calling her great, because she is certainly the biggest person on my little list. I was going to say that these ladies really behave as though I were one of themselves."

"Well, so you are. You are as good as any of them by birth, I imagine."

She made a gesture of dissent. "I shall never be able to feel that. I have been crawling about in a lower sphere for too long. Still, as I am a pretty good mimic, I daresay that with a little more practice I shall be able to pass muster as one of them. This is Lady Clamborough."

She rose and crossed the room with short, tripping steps, screwing up her eyes and murmuring, "Who is it?" Oh, Mrs. Fenton—how do you do, Mrs. Fenton? I couldn't make out who you were. I am so wretchedly short-sighted, and I can't think what I've done with my eye-glasses."

"Lady Clamborough is fond of plain language, as I notice that they all are. Why, I haven't quite made out yet, but I fancy it must be to mark the difference which exists between them and the middle classes, who are always afraid of being vulgar. Viscountesses of course can't be vulgar, so they may say what they please."

One morning she announced to him with some pride, that she was a social success. "There's no doubt about it; I have met with acceptation. Last night I dined at Lady Clamborough's, and met the best of good company. After dinner I was begged to sing. At first I thought of declining, because, you see, the days are past when I used to be invited to Government House in acknowledgement of the fact that I had a voice, and when it would have been almost dishonest of me to refuse to raise it. But I said to myself, 'Don't you be too uppish, my dear. After all, what are you, with your paltry eight or nine thousand a year, among these high magnates?' When I had finished singing they literally rushed at me in a compact mass, and fought over me. I am now going to dine with every one of them."

"You must have a wonderful voice," said Fred.

"My voice has never brought me any money worth speaking of, and so I have always felt more ashamed than proud of it; but now I begin to see that it may be of use as a passport to the society of the great."

"Do you think the society of the great such an immense boon?"

She made a slight grimace. "Perhaps not exactly that; still I like it. It is altogether new to me, you see, and it gives me a kind of pleasure that I can't quite describe, to shake hands with duchesses. Is that very snobbish, I wonder? Anyhow," she added, after a moment of consideration, "I don't care whether my friends have coronets or not, and you are my only real friend, Fred."

He was very willing to be so described, and when he next met Mr. Bremit, he spoke of his cousin with a warmth of appreciation which delighted that benevolent schemer.

"Leave 'em alone and they'll come home," said Mr. Bremit jocularly to Sir James Le Breton, who shrugged his shoulders, and replied that he asked nothing better.

But Fred's heart, as we know, was no longer his own; and his cousin, instead of wanting to marry him, showed every disposition to promote his marriage with somebody else. At least, she buoyed him up with encouraging speeches and listened very patiently of his hopes and fears. More than that it was not in her power to do, since she was as yet unacquainted with the object of his adoration. She was extremely anxious to be introduced to the Moores, and he professed himself equally anxious to effect the introduction, but these things are not very easily managed without the aid of chance, and as the season was now on the wane, it was more than likely that Susie might leave London before Mrs. Fenton had found any opportunity of expressing an honest opinion about her.

Chance, nevertheless, did bring about the desired meeting one evening, when, at her request, Fred had taken his cousin to the theater. Mrs. Fenton enjoyed the play just as she enjoyed everything else; that is to say, after a most hearty and unaffected fashion. She deeply regretted that Fred's little comedy had been withdrawn from the boards, but could not agree with him that, since that was so, there was no particular necessity for their witnessing the farce which had replaced it. "Anybody who offers to take me to the theater must make up his mind that he is in for a night of it," said she. "Good or bad, dull or funny, I want to see it all."

Consequently they had been for some time in their places before a party of four persons arrived to take possession of the four vacant stalls in front of them. First came rubicund General Moore, beaming upon surrounding men and things, as usual; then came his handsome wife, and then Susie; the beauty of the procession being somewhat marred in the eyes of one spectator by the inevitable Claughton, who brought up the rear. Mrs. Moore, as soon as she was seated, turned round and entered into conversation; so that there was no difficulty about making his cousin known to her.

"So very glad to meet you, Mrs. Fenton," said she. "I have heard about you from Lady Clamborough, who declares that you have the most wonderful voice in the world."

Mrs. Fenton smiled. She did not seem to think such a ridiculous statement worth protesting against, and only remarked that she was rather fond of music.

A brief dialogue followed, in the course of which she amused Fred by making it quite plain that she did not intend to be patronized. He had before this had occasion to admire her skill in the art of imitation; he now saw how cleverly she could avail herself of that talent when it suited her to do so. It was evident that she had taken Mrs. Moore's measure at a glance, and in talking to her she adopted the style and manner of a modern fine lady with such absolute exactitude that nobody, meeting her for the first time, would have felt the slightest doubt about her being what she affected to be. She had the whole correct vocabulary at her fingers' ends; she was perfectly at her ease; she even made some passing allusions to social events which were supposed to be known only to the initiated few; in short, she surprised and impressed Mrs. Moore so much that the latter lady, who had begun by being gracious and a trifle condescending, very soon changed her note and became almost humble.

Seeing that his cousin was so very able to take care of herself, Fred felt at liberty to turn his attention to Susie, who was seated directly in front of him, and over whose shoulder he ventured to breathe some commonplace observation. But Susie did not get much beyond monosyllables in her replies, nor did she turn her head to look at him. Apparently she preferred to communicate any ideas that came into her mind to her neighbor, Captain Claughton, while he, for his part, was at no pains to conceal the fact that Mr. Musgrave was a bore to him.

"I didn't come to a hot theater in the month of July to be annoyed in this way," was the remonstrance which his face expressed, but which he politely refrained from uttering.

When the curtain rose, all interchange of amenities between the two rows of stalls ceased perforce, and Fred did not care to profit by any subsequent opportunity of renewing them. Good-humored though he was, he left the theater very cross, indeed, and as he drove away he said to his cousin: "I'll tell you what it is, Laura, I'm beginning to think that I've been an utter fool."

"That is not impossible," she returned," with a slight laugh, "but what makes you say so?"

"I mean I have been a fool to imagine that that girl ever had the smallest liking for me. If she cares for anybody, it is for Claughton. She must have cared for him all along, I suppose, only I was too stupid to see it."

Mrs. Fenton's slim fingers were stretched out in the darkness and met Fred's strong hand, which lay upon the seat beside her and which did not respond to her pressure. "Poor boy!" she exclaimed, commiseratingly.

"I shall be twenty-eight next birthday, consequently I am not exactly a boy," said Fred, whose nerves were much irritated.

"No, but you are old enough not to mind being called so, and in character you are quite a boy still. I like you all the better for it. I don't know whether Miss Moore likes you or not; it was impossible to judge from what I saw this evening, but I'm afraid she doesn't like the notion of being a poor man's wife."

This was the very thought which Fred had been trying, with more or less success, to keep out of his mind all through the evening. Still one does not always enjoy hearing one's secret thoughts put into words by other people, so he answered: "You don't know much about her, Laura; she isn't in the least what you suppose. Upon the face of it there's nothing improbable in her having fallen in love with Claughton."

"Nothing at all," agreed Mrs. Fenton, rather provokingly.

"Then why do you hint that she would throw over a man whom she cared for if he weren't rich?"

"Only because it struck me that she was rather emphatic in the way she turned her back upon you. One can turn one's back upon a man without being emphatic about it. However, I may be quite wrong, and I hope I am. At any rate, you mustn't get angry with me for saying what I think, Fred, for you will make me miserable if you do."

"I beg your pardon, Laura," said the young man, who was already ashamed of his petulance. "I know quite well that you wouldn't willingly say anything to hurt my feelings, and I would much rather that you were honest with me than civil. All the same, you don't quite understand Susie yet; how should you?"

"Well," answered his cousin, laughing, "I dare say I shall have an opportunity of studying her more closely before long, because it is obvious that Mrs. Moore means to cultivate me. By the way, I hope you noticed my behavior to Mrs. Moore. Was it a good piece of acting?"

"It was excellent; it couldn't have been better. Only I don't know why—"

"Oh, yes you do; you know why perfectly well. I might have been the humble ex-music mistress, and then, perhaps, she would have asked me to come in some evening and amuse the people who had dined with her, but I have played that role for a very long time now, and I am a little tired of it. You will see that she will call upon me at once—in fact, she asked for my address—and very soon after that I shall be invited to dinner."

This prediction was promptly fulfilled, for on the very next day Mrs. Moore left cards in Albemarle Street, and before the end of the week her new acquaintance received a friendly little note, in which she was begged to excuse so short an invitation and to "dine with us quite quietly on Tuesday next. We are only expecting a very few people, of whom I hope your cousin will be one, and we shall be delighted if you are able to join our small party, for, as we are soon leaving London, I am afraid this will be our last chance of seeing you both present."

Mrs. Fenton proved the sincerity of the interest which she took in her cousin by throwing over one of Lady Clamborough's most influential friends in order to accept this invitation. "If I can do nothing else for you," she remarked, "I can at least insure you a fair field by drawing off Captain Claughton—and I will."

Fred was rather amused by her self-confidence. "Do you think that will be such a very easy thing to accomplish?" he asked.

"The easiest thing in the world. You don't half know me yet, my dear Fred. It has been a matter of sheer necessity for me to acquire the art of making myself agreeable, and I will make so bold as to say that I am not a bad hand at it, especially as regards the male sex."

"That does not surprise me," said Fred.

"Thank you; but you have no idea as yet how attractive I can be when I like. Nor had they; it wouldn't have been safe It was most important that I should keep upon good terms with the women there, so I had to be very cautious in my dealings with their husbands and brothers. After all, I don't feel particularly proud because I can lead men by the nose: it is a trick which any one can learn so long as she doesn't happen to be downright hideous."

"H'm! It strikes me that you have pursued that system with marked success in the case of one humble individual whom I know," observed Fred.

"No; I have always been myself with you. Perhaps that is why my success hasn't been very marked so far. You won't stand any criticisms upon Miss Moore from me."

"I only think that you are not well acquainted enough with her yet to be able to criticise her fairly."

"I shall be better acquainted with her soon, but I doubt whether I shall dare to say what I think about her unless it is flattering."

"You will be very unfriendly if you don't say what you think," Fred declared. "I do not expect everybody to fall in love with her; only I dare say you'll allow me to keep my own opinion, even if it should differ from yours."

"I must allow you," answered Mrs. Fenton, laughing. "I wouldn't if I could help it, because it stands to reason that my opinion must be the less prejudiced of the two, and therefore the more valuable."

(To be continued.)

Now "Big Sister" Movement.

Working on the theory that prevention is better than a cure, the big sisters committee, which has just been appointed by the New York Mothers' Club, will interest itself in the entertainments and amusements of working girls on their holidays and in young girls in the public schools.

The Big Sister movement has been patterned after the Big Brothers, though it cannot work along the same lines. Annually there are about 10,000 boys brought before the children's court to a scant thousand girls. Most of the girls are three, four and five years old, who have reached there through the neglect, cruelty or other fault of their parents.

"It was a serious question—where had we best give help?" Mrs. Irwin said, "and as chairman of the committee I have decided. We will help with the schoolgirls. We will supply sane, clean, wholesome employment for working girls. Any individual cases that we hear of we will help specifically."

Mrs. Irwin has always been much interested in the welfare of girls. She is one of the two women who are lecturing to the mothers of public school children of this city for the year 1910.—New York Evening Telegram.

A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds. Men's behavior should be like their apparel—not too straight or point device, but free from exercise or motion.—Bacon.

There is far more room to do good than there are willing hearts ready to enter and do it.—Royston.

Armour's Fertilizers

Increase the yield—Improve the quality—Enrich the soil. Every harvest proves it. Can you afford to risk your wheat? Be safe.

Armour's Fertilizers

grow the biggest crops. Ask your dealer.

Armour Fertilizer Works
Chicago

He Knew the Kind.

Little Edward, aged four, was an only child. He was anxious for a baby sister, and was talking of it to a day with a friend of the family whose friend's family was a baby girl one year. The lady said, "Edward, you may have my baby; she is pretty and sweet."

"Oh," said Edward, "I don't want an old baby. I want a bran new one with coffin on but talcum powder."—Red Men.

The Dentist's Joke.

At a recent dinner of the Author's club in London to Mr. Owen Seaman, the editor of Punch, Mr. Walter Emanuel, another member of the staff of Punch, referred to the fact that the man with the largest sense of humor he had ever struck was an Englishman—a dentist. He went to him, after suffering long with the toothache. He refused to have gas, and the dentist pulled out a tooth, leaving him writhing in pain, and took the tooth to the window, where he laughed quite heartily. He groaned, "What's the joke?" "Wrong tooth," said the dentist.

Elbert Hubbard on Suffering.

Elbert Hubbard, editor of the Philistine, says: "Most of the suffering in this life comes from too much work, or too little." He could have left off that "too little," and he would have left it off had he referred to wash-day suffering. There has been too much work on wash day for the women, but now we have Easy Task soap that does the work easily, quickly, cleanly and surely—and does half the work all by itself. It is the cleanest, purest, white laundry soap made and sold at five cents a cake.

The Real Thing.

"You say your husband was cut by his neighbors at the party?"

"Yassah, dat's so, sah."

"Did they cut him with malice prepense?"

"No, sah; wiv a razah, sah."

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Taking Father's Job.

"Why should you beg? You are both young and strong."

"That is right, but my father is old and weak and can no longer support me."—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

SEASHORE EXCURSION VIA NICKEL PLATE ROAD.

Atlantic City, Cape May, Ocean City, or Sea Isle City, N. J. Tickets August 8th, low rates.

Ask Agent or write F. P. Parnin, T. P. A., Ft. Wayne, Ind. (29)

After a dog has indulged in short pants he usually goes in swimming.

ALL UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPERS Use Red Cross Ball Blue. It makes clothes clean and sweet as when new. All grocers.

Many a budding genius has developed into a blooming idiot.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

A nagging wife makes her husband forget his other troubles.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

FREE Send postal for Free Package of Paxtine.

Better and more economical than liquid antiseptics FOR ALL TOILET USES.

PAXTINE TOILET ANTISEPTIC

Gives one a sweet breath; clean, white, germ-free teeth—antiseptically clean mouth and throat—purifies the breath after smoking—dispels all disagreeable perspiration and body odors—much appreciated by dainty women. A quick remedy for sore eyes and catarrh.

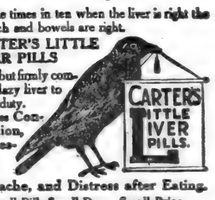
A little Paxtine powder dissolved in a glass of hot water makes a delightful antiseptic solution, possessing extraordinary cleansing, germicidal and healing power, and absolutely harmless. Try a Sample. 50c. a large box at druggists or by mail.

THE PAXTON TOILET CO., BOSTON, MASS.

Make the Liver Do its Duty

Nine times in ten when the liver is right the stomach and bowels are right.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS gently but firmly compel a lazy liver to do its duty.



Cure Constipation, Indigestion, Sick Headache, and Distress after Eating.

Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

STOCKERS & FEEDERS

Choice quality; reds and roans, white faces or angus bought on orders. Tens of Thousands to select from. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Correspondence Invited. Come and see for yourself.

National Live Stock Com. Co.

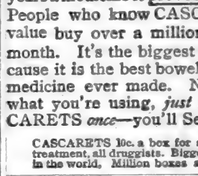
At either Kansas City, Mo., St. Joseph, Mo., S. Omaha, Neb.

Millions Say So

When millions of people use for years a medicine it proves its merit. People who know CASCARETS' value buy over a million boxes a month. It's the biggest seller because it is the best bowel and liver medicine ever made. No matter what you're using, just try CASCARETS once—you'll See. 913

CASCARETS 10c. a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere, attracts & kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts All Season. Made of metal, cannot spill or tip over, will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Of all dealers or sent prepaid for 30c.



HAROLD SOMERS 150 DeKalb Ave. Brooklyn, New York

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 32–1910.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good." It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common-Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

THE Famous Rayo Lamp

THE STEADY WHITE LIGHT

The Rayo Lamp is a high grade lamp, sold at a low price. There are lamps that cost more, but there is no better lamp made at any price. Constructed of solid brass; nickel plated—easily kept clean; an ornament to any room in any house. There is nothing known to the art of lamp-making that can add to the value of the RAYO Lamp as a light-giving device. Every dealer everywhere. If not at yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

AUGUST

0481

L 904

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

EXCURSION

FROM ST. JOE, INDIANA

TO

NIAGARA FALLS N Y

AUGUST 13, 1910

Double Berth in Pullman Sleeper from Chicago Junction Through to Niagara Falls.... $1.00.

$6.50 Round Trip

Choice of Rail or Steam or All Rail via Cleveland - Buffalo

Information regarding SIDE TRIPS and other details will be furnished by B. & O. Agents.

Coburn's Corners

Master Garold Brown is spending a couple of weeks with friends in Auburn.

L. O. Tustison and wife of Sterling, Ill., are visiting with his parents and other friends.

Mrs. Dell Nelson visited in Auburn a few days last week with her mother and other relatives.

Mr. Jud Williams of Wolf Lake, spent Sunday with his lady friend, Miss Fannie Milliman.

Miss Cornelia Coburn of Hicksville, is spending a few days with Jacob Baker and daughter Matie.

Little Miss Jessie Prickett of Auburn, is spending a week with her friend, Miss Anna Milliman.

Rev. Joseph Scholes and son of Bellaire, Ohio, is visiting home friends and taking a rest after a hard year's work.

Several from this community attended the show at Auburn, Wednesday, and thought it fine, well worth the money.

Warren Coburn and wife of Fort Wayne, attended the grove meeting at St. Joe, Sunday afternoon, and spent Sunday night with Jacob Bakers'.

The Kelley threshing machine is having full sway in this neighborhood this week. Taking the dry season into consideration wheat and oats are yielding a fair crop.

Mr. and Mrs. L O. Tustison, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton accompanied by Scott Scholes, and Joseph and Catherine Shull of Wabash Corners, spent Tuesday in a pleasure trip along the St. Joe river.

Several of the young people met at the home of Wallace Jackson's, Sunday afternoon in honor of Vere Nelson's birthday anniversary. They were treated to ice cream and cake and all had a nice sociable time.

Be sure and take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with you when starting on your trip this summer. It cannot be obtained on board the trains or steamers. Changes of water and climate often cause sudden attacks of diarrhoea, and it is best to be prepared. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

The picnic held at Hamilton's grove by the Christian church at Newville, Saturday, was a success as far as a fine dinner and a good program goes. There was splendid order and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves, and enjoyed the Marshall band music. The day was certainly an ideal one but on account of the busy time the crowd was not as large as it should have been,

STAGGERS SKEPTICS.

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or piles; staggers skeptics. But great cures prove its a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons, eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

CONCORD.

Mr. Charley Hull and wife, spent Sunday with his aunt, Mrs. James Wyatt.

Charley Gibford and wife, of near Sedan, spent Sunday with his brother Roy Gibford and family.

O. B. Draggoo of Auburn, spent Sunday at home.

Mrs. G. C. Lucas called on Mary Scott Monday afternoon.

Adam Shilling, wife and son Howard, Mrs. Webster and Rev. Coomer, were Sunday guests of John Hull and family.

Frank Baker, wife and daughters, Lucile and Helen and Walter Wilson, wife and daughter, Beatrice and son, Aubry, were guests of D. W. Baker's Sunday.

Mrs. Howard Krise and son, Paul and Mrs. E W. Johnson and daughter, Thelma, ate supper Saturday evening with Ira Bone and and wife of St. Joe.

If your liver is sluggish and out of tone, and you feel dull, bilious, constipated, take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets tonight before retiring and you will feel all right in the morning. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

WISE'S CORNERS.

George Horn threshed for Frank Wertman, Thursday.

Christ Hursh and wife were at a picnic near Leo, Saturday.

Elmer Smith called on business at his brother Will's, Thursday forenoon.

Wayne Hughes and family of Hicksville, ate dinner at Will Smith's, Friday.

Mrs. Henry Walter and daughter Fern, were Hicksville shoppers, Friday.

Several from our neighborhood attended the show at Auburn, Wednesday.

Martin and Bert Davis made Ed Billman a business call, Friday forenoon.

Mrs. Tom Holt of Grabill, visited with her two daughters near Spencerville, Thursday.

Christ Hursh and wife, and Burl Enzor and wife attended the sale on the Richer farm, Tuesday.

Hiram Roller was looking after the interests of the county ditch, east of the Corners, Wednesday forenoon.

Mrs. Gelia Bartholomew and Charlie Stevicks made Will Smith and wife a business call, Wednesday afternoon.

Will Scott and wife of Wabash Corners, called on John Hissong and family, Saturday, also attended the picnic at Scipio.

Charlie Moore of Hicksville, is working for Ira Smith this week, putting in cement walks and steps also cementing the cellar.

Arthur Steward and family, Frank Wertman and wife were pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Billman, Sunday.

Mrs. Mable Webb assisted in her mother's household duties, Wednesday. Mrs. Hursh under went an operation at Ft. Wayne, this week.

WABASH CORNERS.

Some from this place attended the picnic at Scipio Saturday.

Ralph White of Toledo, Ohio, ate dinner with his aunt, Mrs Angelia Wolff Friday.

J. B. White and wife of St. Joe and Roy White and family, ate dinner Sunday with Sherman Wolff and wife.

Band Concert.

Saturday Night.

at St. Joe.

Sam Daily is on the sick list.

Emanuel Ulm and wife were Sunday guests of John Ulm and wife.

Ora White was the guest of Sherman Wolff and wife Friday night and Saturday.

The best line of one-cent Post Cards in town can be seen at Kagey's.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Lucas were Sunday afternoon guests of P. A. Shurtz and family.

John Beams and wife of Spencerville, called on Gene White and wife Sunday evening.

Mrs. Laura Burley spent Thursday in St. Joe with Mesdames Iona and Bert Woodcox.

Miss Ruth Gratz of west of Spencerville, was the guest of Bessie Daily Saturday evening.

Clarence White scalded his foot quite badly Monday by letting a quart of hot water spill on it.

Mrs. Anna Rickett spent Saturday and Sunday in Angola the guest of her daughter, Mae Daily.

Wm. Pervines and wife went to Perrysville, Ohio, Monday noon for an extended visit with relatives.

Mrs. Frank Loux and daughter, Martha, were Sunday evening guests with the family of Wm. Pervines.

St Joe Markets

Wheat	.95
Oats	.32
Butter, country	.25
Eggs	.18

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

ST. JOE NEWS.

Get one of those 5 cent tablets at THE NEWS office. Our own make.

Call at Kagey's and get your Post Cards. An elegant assortment.

Mrs. Lloyd Engle and children of Wayne, are the guests of James Harters'.

Mrs. Emma Woodcox visited with her son Cadmir, and wife at Garrett, a few days returning Tuesday noon.

The Ladies Aid of the Lutheran church will meet with Mrs. J. D. Leighty, Saturday afternoon, August 13th. A good attendance is desired.

For Sale:—Six good brood sows, due to farrow by Aug. 28. JOHN C. KOCH, Spencerville, Ind., Phone 45-4.

Miss Mae McCain of Keokuk, Iowa, desires through this means to thank her friends from this vicinity, who so kindly remembered her on her birthday by sending beautiful remembrance cards.

H. M. Widney has purchased an automobile truck with a detachable seat behind. It is a very convenient rig for Mr. Widney as he can deliver berries and melons and do general work on his fruit farm with it. Mr. Widney believes in being up to-date.

Rev. J. C. McCain of Keokuk, Iowa, came Tuesday noon to visit old friends here a couple of days. On Tuesday evening a number of friends were invited to the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bone and a good social time was had. Ice cream and cake were served.

We would deem it a special favor if all subscribers owing us for 1 year would please call and settle. We want to keep our list up to the requirements of the law and unless some respond promptly we will be compelled to send them statements of their accounts.

McCALL PATTERNS 10 AND 15 NONE HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50 A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS

Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE

More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS

to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash price offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 246 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

BARBARIC AND EXPENSIVE.

Dress Trimmings, Decorations and Dishes Show in Golden Hue.

There is a revival of gold this season, not only of dress accessories but also in nearly every department of house decoration.

There are gorgeous gold slippers and stockings to match, gold-embroidered veils, and long shawls in net and chiffon cloth, gold turban ornaments and plumes, belt buckles and bags. The mesh chain bags are not new, but the bags composed of a mass of gold spangles are novel and decorative. Whatever the foundation material happens to be it is completely masked with the gold spangles.

There are stunning bags made on a foundation of brocaded satin, white and gold, the latter picked out in arabesques of gold cord and embroidery. Most of the designs are French and as ornate as the Louis XVI models from which they are copied.

Old-fashioned gold-banded china has come in again, and to correspond other table decorations are ornamented with gold. A new French ware is shown in which the foundation of crystal or porcelain is set in baskets of French gilt. There are rose baskets for the center of the table, individual almond and bonbon dishes and fruit dishes, as well as card trays and other ornamental pieces for the drawing room.

Toilet articles in bright gold without other ornamentation than a monogram are superseding the silver and ivory goods for those who can afford them. Gold-handled umbrellas, both for men and women, are in again, and put the simple mission sticks in evidence for the last year or so into the shade.

In the matter of antique rugs those having a body or groundwork as near to gold color as possible are most favored, and in all the line of fabrics and textiles for curtains and portieres wherever possible gold threads are interwoven. Gold or gilded paper and work baskets are seen, and, in fact, all down the line the gold revival is noted. It seems more or less barbaric, and is expensive.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

Everybody wants a little more than you are willing to give.

Attending to your own business is about the most effective method of Reform.

The average man seems to think it lessens his dignity to admit the most common fact.

The average friendship ends in this: How much I did for him; how little he did for me.

The world is also improving in this respect: fewer barbers call themselves tonsorial artists.

When a little girl does not care for the boys, ever notice how proud her mother is of her?

One trouble with the man who takes his time is that he also takes the time of others.

We wouldn't care to have the reputation of saying meaner things than any other living man.

When we are finally sent to the insane asylum, either airships or the Panama canal will be responsible.

When a woman smiles at her husband's jokes it is the same kind of a forced smile you see on the stage.

When we are bothered a good deal by bores, we like to hunt up agreeable men, and bore them by complaining.

A man can't half work and half play; he must either be a hard worker and a success, or a poor worker and a failure.

"My cow is becoming so poor, and feed is so high," said a man the other day, "that I am half tempted to drive her on the railroad track."

Money makes fools of some men, while the lack of money has a similar effect on others; there is never any danger of a shortage of the fool crop.

Corporations are robbed and blackmailed every day, in the most cruel manner possible, by men who claim to be shocked at the immorality of the corporations.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Mrs. Florence Buchanan is on the sick list.

The painting fever has took hold of B. L. Bailey and his shop is now showing forth an attractive color.

The infant of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Curie is a very sick child, having been sick for a week and it requires the close attention of Dr. Sueffer.

Roxy Ulm, who has been struggling with the typhoid fever, is quite serious this week. Dr. Lake, a trained nurse and the family are lending every effort to relieve her and the last report was, as we go to press, that she was resting some better.

Anticipation.

It's seven weeks till Christmas
And sister's making ties,
While mother talks of puddings
And thinks of rich mince pies.
The air is tinged with mystery,
We hear the whispers low;
The girls are making fancy work—
But father's making dough.
—Canadian Courier

A Happy Future.

He—You are the first and only girl I ever loved, Ethel!

She—My, Roxy! What a lot of fun you boys ahead of you!

We may live without friends
And live without books
But civilized men
Cannot live without cooks

AND good cooks deserve a sufficient supply of good utensils. Now that is just where we come in; we have more up-to-date labor savers for cooks than you ever imagined were in existance. We want you to see how complete our stock is and next week we will keep open house in honor of the cooks and housewives in this community and will take pleasure in demonstrating the merits of anything from a paring knife to a kitchen range. To make your visit profitable we are giving a Beautiful Mounted Picture with each $1.00 purchase for the entire week. Ask us for the picture or we might forget it. Here are a few that might interest you:

Oil Stoves $9 to $14.00

Reeds Flintstone granite ware absolutely guaranteed to be the best; The Celebrated Jewel Gasoline Stove; We also have a complete line of kitchen cutlery; butcher knives; carving knives; carving sets; paring knives and other articles too numerous to mention.

WATCH for our circulars concerning the Range we are going to give away

August 27, 1910.

Give us a call and let us convince you that we are right on prices as well as goods.

J. W. Burwell & Son

Phone No. 11 St. Joe, Indiana

Let Us do Your Tin Work.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

EXCURSIONS

FROM ST. JOE, INDIANA

TO

ATLANTIC CITY, CAPE MAY
OCEAN CITY and other
Atlantic Coast Resorts.

August 18, 1910. Round Trip $16.50

Consult B. & O. Agent for details.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad

VERY LOW FARES TO

Chicago—Triennial Conclave, Knights Templar Aug. 5-8.

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO—Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES—South Southwest, West, Northwest.

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST, Long Limits.

Consult BALTIMORE & OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stopover Privileges and Other Detailes.

THE NEWS

52 Doses for $1.00. Try it.

Grand Free Attraction.

for the

Farmers Picnic

ROBISON PARK

Wednesday, Aug. 24

ROLLO THE LIMIT.

He dashes down a 70 foot incline at lightning speed, turns a complete back somersault in mid air, landing upon another incline, then goes on down. AN ACTUAL FLIRT WITH DEATH.

FREE GATE! BAND CONCERT afternoon and Evening!

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Stops Falling Hair

Ayer's Hair Vigor is composed of sulphur, glycerin, quinin, sodium chlorid, capsicum, sage, alcohol, water, and perfume. Not a single injurious ingredient in this list. Ask your doctor if this is not so. Follow his advice. A hair food, a hair tonic, a hair dressing. Promptly checks falling hair. Completely destroys all dandruff.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Does not Color the Hair

J. C. AYER COMPANY, Lowell, Mass.

AUGUST

L 904

0482

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 18, 1910. NO. 33

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.
Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

SAHLIN CORSETS

This store is Hicksville Agents for this make of corsets and we now carry a good line in stock. This corset is made without stays or steels and is adapted for slender figures as an excellent form builder. They sell at

$1.00 and $1.50

NEW DRESS TRIMMINGS

Our imported line of dress trimmings came in this week and they are beauties of the trimming arts. If you want the newest these is made we have them direct from the maker that will please you for that new sall suit or dress. We invite inspection of this line.

NEW RUGS FOR FALL

Twenty-five more of them have arrived to make our rug selection one of the best in Northwestern Ohio. If you want room size rugs, either in Axminster, Tapestries, Velvets, Matting, Wool or Fiber rugs, we have them at a price that will satisfy you.

Hicksville Fair, August 30-31 and Sept. 1-2.
MAKE YOUR PLANS TO COME.

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Ice! Ice! Ice!
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

Young Lenherr Killed.

Chas H. Lenherr, the adopted son of Wm. Lenherr of south-east of Coburntown, dies at Pallas, Nebr. The real cause of his death is unknown. We take the following from the North Platte (Nebr) Telegraph of August 6th and 8th.

When train No. 4 over the Union Pacific came in about 9 o'clock last evening, blood was discovered on the pilot of the engine. The crew of a west bound freight early this morning telegraphed that there was the body of a man lying beside the tracks near Pallas.

Coroner Longley was notified and later a train brought the remains to the undertaking room of Ginn, Whit & Schatz. When found the pockets in the trousers and coat were turned wiong side out. No money was found in the clothing but the body was identified by means of a card from the railroad branch of the Y. M. C. A. at Chicago Junction, Ohio The card bore the name of Charlie Lenherr, was numbered 645 and countersigned by R. R. Jenkins, secretary.

Coroner Longley at once began an investigation and it developed that Lenherr has been about town several days and that he had money. Among other things he purchased a meal ticket and late yesterday afternoon purchased some neckties and stockings at the Star Clothing company. These things were found upon him.

Coroner Longley telegraphed to Secretary Jenkins of the Y. M. C. A. at Chicago Junction asking for further information regarding the dead man, but has received no reply to his message. As far as can be learned, Lenherr did not frequent the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. or if he did, he did not reveal his identity.

From the fact that he had money, while in the city and that the pockets of his clothing were turned inside out when his body was found, Lenherr may have been murdered. He may have been waylaid while walking along the railroad track, killed, his pockets rifled and his body thrown on the tracks, where it would be mangled by a passing train and thus hide the crime. When found the body was in several pieces and beyond identification other than the Y. M. C. A. card found in a pocket.

Coroner Longley is continuing his investigation and may summon a jury to review the case.

After hearing the evidence incident to the finding of the mangled body of Charlie H. Lenherr near the tracks of the Union Pacific railroad at Pallas, Saturday morning, a coroner's jury, this morning returned a verdict of death from an unknown cause. This verdict partially supports the theory that Lenherr may have been murdered and his body thrown on the tracks where train 17 leaving here at 7:52 Friday evening hit it and thus covered the crime.

So circumstantial were the facts surrounding the death, that Coroner Longley adjourned the inquest from Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, until this morning at 9 o'clock, at the store of Ginn, White & Schatz. In the mean time Sheriff Miltonberger had summoned a jury consisting of A. B. Hoagland, who acted as foreman, E. J. Vanderhof, A. Q. Kocken, Major L. Walker, Harry Dixon and Robert Dickey.

Harry Taggerty, the first witness called is a switchman, at Pallas, in the employ of the railroad company. He testified that the crew of No. 51 telegraphed Saturday morning the fact, that, there was the body of a man strewn along the track. Accompanied by H. H. Morse and R. H. Bull he walked up the track finding bits of the remains strewn over the district of half a mile. Near the trunk and legs was found the Y. M. C. A. ticket of the Chicago Junction, Ohio, railroad branch and it was noted that the pockets in the trousers were turned inside out. Nearby was found a small package containing a necktie, which Lenherr had purchased from the Star Clothing company. There was no money, watch or other valuables or trinkets visable.

The testimony of Taggerty was corroborated by both Morse and Bull.

Upon this evidence the jury returned a verdict of death from an unknown cause.

Lenherr is said to have been seen about town Friday afternoon in company with another man and he had money at that time.

In response to messages sent to R. R. Jenkins, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Chicago Junction, Coroner Longley has received two replies, one, that Lenherr's parents reside at St. Joe, Ind., and the other that their financial condition will not warrant their sending for the remains. It will be interred here.

COMMENCEMENT
AND Contest
SATURDAY NIGHT
AUG. 20 8:30

Program not lengthy; About an hour.

We will try to make it interesting by a little nonsense.

No Organ All Contestants Piano

We are not fighting the band—All the bandmen will be admitted FREE.

Graduates

Grace F. Shaner Letha B. Coyle

Chastine Johnston

Engineer Joe Schwaiger of train No. 4, which arrived here Friday evening, with the pilot of the engine spattered with blood, is confident that he did not hit a man at that place where the body of Lenherr was found.

Ben Wasson Badly Hurt

Mr. Ben Wasson met with quite an accident about 3:00 o'clock Monday afternoon. He was engaged at the Emilius Case farm near here amputating a lump or growth on a fine steer The animal had been caught and the operation commenced and as Mr. Wasson was stooped over doing the work the steer swung its head, the horn striking Mr. Wasson in the temple making a hole about one inch deep in his head. Mr. Case was standing near by and did not see the performance until Mr. Wasson had fallen to the ground unconscious. Dr. Shook was immediately summoned and Mr. Wasson was removed to Spencerville and later to Fort Wayne. The last word received was that he was some better being rational at times. His condition is very serious.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Call at Kagey's and get your Post Cards. An elegant assortment.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a Silver Medal contest in this place on August 31st., they have selected a good list of speakers for the occasion.

Little Miss Esther Carmer, daughter of J. M. Carmer, of the Fort Wayne-Auburn Auto company, and a grandaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Reasoner of this place, is confined at the family residence in Fort Wayne as a result of injuries received Friday afternoon when she was knocked from an automobile when the latter collided with a city car at the corner of Wayne and Broadway. With four other companions Miss Esther was on a pleasure trip and at the time of the accident the party was headed for Swinney park. The victim of the accident was seated on the lap of one of her companions. The force of the collision threw the child to the pavement. She received an ugly gash on the scalp and was rendered unconscious. She soon recovered and was removed to the family's home in Lakeside. Another auto passed just as the child fell to the ground, narrowly missing the little one.—Journal Gazette.

Cider Barrels.

Realizing you may want a cider barrel we got busy and obtained a good bunch of barrels that will certainly please you. Get your order in quick, either call or telephone and have us save what you want.

We are here to attend the public's wants as near as possible. Our aim is to do what is right. When you need Drugs or Sundry lines remember you'll always do better at

Dunkle's
in
ST. JOE, - - - INDIANA.

Local Briefs

Are you going to paint?

Wm. Hart and wife were Sunday guests of C. R. Price and wife.

The Gorrell family reunion is being held in Railroad Park today.

The married and single men of Spencerville will play ball Saturday of this week.

WANTED—A middle aged woman for general house work.
Mrs. Warner.

Miss Opal Koch has been on the sick list for the past week, but is slowly improving.

John Slantz and wife of South Haven, Mich., Mrs. Wm. Hull and son, Harry and Mrs. Samantha Hull of Auburn, called on St. Joe relatives Monday afternoon.

Candy and Cigars.
Home made candy and the best grade of cigars at Milliman's barber shop owned and run by
Merritt Milliman.

Miss Lileth Yeiser of Avilla, spent last week with Margaret Tustison.

Z. T. Kagey and wife of Auburn, were the guests of their son Chas. and wife the latter part of last week.

Grandma Swineford and sister, Mrs. McCrory, returned Monday from keeping house for Geo. Swineford on his farm. As we mentioned a couple of weeks ago, Mrs. Swineford was taken to the St. Joseph hospital at Wayne for an operation and she was able to return home Saturday evening feeling much improved. Mrs. Hayden Wilmot is assisting with the work now.

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST. JOE, IND.

THE HOME STORE

Let the old dress
Give way to the new.

They Are Here Now

The New Dress Goods For Fall

Women are already calling for the New Dress Fabrics. This shows wisdom on their part as the dress can be picked out and made up for early wear. The new dress goods for fall wear have arrived and we are now showing a very pleasing assortment of patterns—one from which it will not be difficult to select a suitable dress. We are especially pleased with the line and are eager to show it to you for we feel quite certain that your every dress-goods whim will find satisfaction here. Call and examine these fabrics at your earliest convenience.

FRENCH SERGE—A fine woven serge in very pleasing shades and sure to give excellent wear... 50c to $1.00

STORM SERGE—A heavier weave than above and preferred by many to the finer fabric. Price.. 50c to $1.00

DIAGONALS for Suitings—pleasing patterns in blacks, greens, reds, raspberry and old rose, priced at..... $1.00

NOVELTY SUITINGS—A very comprehensive line of low priced suitings, embodying some very choice patterns, price..... 50c

Your particular attention is directed to our showing of 50c Dress Goods. We have used particular care in selecting the patterns to be sold at this popular price and we feel sure an examination will be rewarded with just the pattern you are looking for.

Some Choice Values in Silk Petticoats

$3.48 We have on display a line of Petticoats made of taffeta silk in black and colors that we are now offering at the special price of $3.48. These petticoats have a 15-inch flounce with 8 rows of tucks. An excellent value for the money. $3.48

Get a Petticoat at This Special Price.

AUGUST

0483

L 904

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

The noblest study of mankind is weather.

Evidently the law of gravitation has not been repealed.

For 50 cents now you can buy either a melon or a dozen lemons.

There are few joy-riders back of the lawn mower or mowing machine this year.

Last year Great Britain cut its liquor bill $54,000,000, yet nobody died of thirst.

Keep cool and be cool. The mental attitude has much to do with physical condition.

Bowling has been introduced into England. It will now become popular at Newport.

Since the comet has departed people have to charge up to sun spots whatever they cannot understand.

Regarded merely as a peril, it is much easier to dodge a coming aeroplane than it is to dodge a motorcycle.

It is said that a substitute for radium has been found. Some druggists to the contrary, a substitute is not always something "just as good."

"Music an aid to dairy management!" That's an old story. Was there ever a comic opera without a variation of the merry, merry milkmaid chorus?

An airship passenger service between London and Paris is being talked of. People who expect to take that route should go to the trouble of first learning to swim.

And now they say that either a phonograph or a pretty singing milkmaid furnishing music in the stall makes a cow give more milk. The cow's artistic discernment is apparently not highly developed.

It is estimated that over 15,000,000 words were spoken during the recent session of congress. All honor should be shown the stenographers who stayed at their posts and listened to every one of them.

An expert at the National Educational association convention in Boston says that children are naughty when they are ill. Will the old saying have to be revised to read "Spare the castor oil and spoil the child?"

The northern Michigan dairyman who claims to have discovered that music sweet and low from a phonograph wooes milk from his cows, might try for ice cream by giving his devoted animals the "cold shoulder."

The dean of Norwich indignantly denies that King George ever had a morganatic wife and adds: "King George is a man who, with a wife of like disposition to himself, has been wont during his leisure to sit in his garden with his young children round him, just the same as any of us might do in our own patch of garden." Also the dean might have told us how the king's tomatoes are coming on.

The poor should be remembered this hot weather, for their sufferings are considerable. Ice often means health to the sick and pure milk life for babies, but these are luxuries for which the prisoners of poverty must look to their more fortunate brethren to supply them. There should also be generous public support of the various fresh-air enterprises which do so much toward ameliorating the condition of the poor in a large city during the heated term.

The discovery of defective armor plate on the battleships Utah and North Dakota after the ships had been commissioned has caused agitation in the navy department favorable to a plan for the inspection of the plating of every battleship in service. It is fair to assume that if two battleships could be provided with faulty plates without discovery until the ships were in active service there may be other ships with poor plates that may have escaped detection.

The predicament of two men with their wives who were held into the night off Chicago by the failure of the engine of their gasoline launch, and who were rescued only after the women had sacrificed their skirts as torches, should recommend the lashing of sweeps on the decks of such craft, so that men can help themselves in emergencies. A pair of muscular arms applied to a sweep would soon re-establish confidence after accident by giving the disabled craft motion enough to green toward shore.

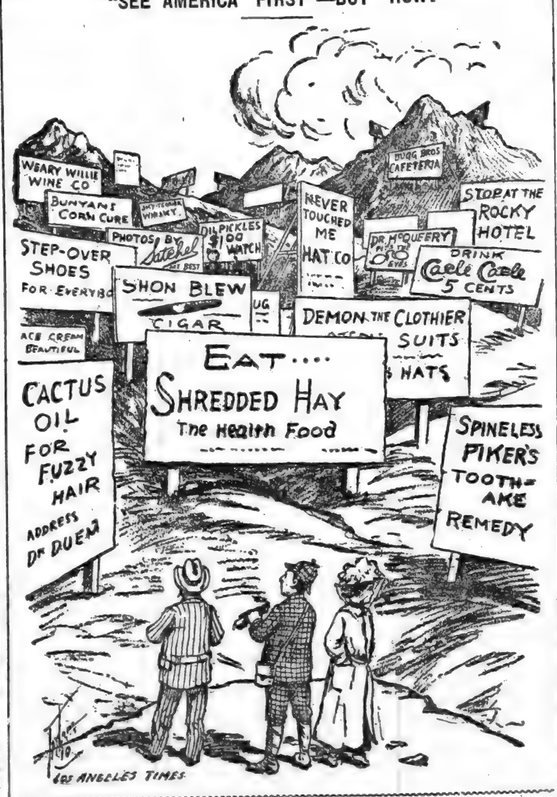
To Prevent Jars Breaking.

When canning fruit, if a silver tablespoon is placed in a glass jar before pouring in the hot fruit, it will prevent the jar from breaking. This also applies when it is desired to put hot desert in a cut glass dish.

A Sweet Sandwich.

Make angel food batter and bake it on thin sheets; cut the cake into small pieces of any desired shape, then split them and put in a layer of chopped preserved ginger and figs, in equal proportions.—Mrs. Cye Clemmons.

"SEE AMERICA FIRST"—BUT HOW?



NEW TARIFF MAKES BIG GAIN

TREASURY FIGURES SHOW ADVANCE OVER BANNER YEAR.

In First Twelve Months Act Produces $75,000,000 More Than in 1907.

Washington.—The Payne-Aldrich tariff law has produced in its first year a revenue larger by $75,000,000 than the sum collected in any twelve months in the country's history, except the banner year 1907, according to treasury department figures issued Monday.

During the first full year, ended last Saturday night, the total ordinary receipts, including customs, ordinary internal revenue, corporation tax and miscellaneous, aggregating $678,850,816, exceeded disbursements by $20,214,029. These ordinary receipts were larger by $15,000,000, approximately, than during 1907, and the 1907 receipts exceeded those of any other year of record by almost $60,000,000. Although there was a deficit of $58,734,955 in the ordinary operations of the government in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1909, there was a surplus of $[illegible] which [illegible] to $[illegible] the [illegible]

THIRD OF IOWA BABIES DEAD

Health Board Calls Conference of Physicians to Check Maladies—One Town Has Forty Ill.

Des Moines, Ia. — That one-third of the babies in Iowa under one year old have died since the hot weather set in was the alarming condition revealed by Dr. G. H. Sumner, secretary of the state board of health.

Doctor Sumner attributes the unusual death rate to four causes: Cholera infantum, infantile paralysis, poor milk and improper care. According to statistics, the first-named disease is the worst in the history of the state. No section seems to be free from it, and infants are dying by the score.

Doctor Sumner has called a special convention of physicians from all over Iowa to discuss means to prevent fatalities.

Infantile paralysis is becoming alarming in many parts of the state. There are now more than forty cases in Mason City, and a number of deaths have resulted there.

SEVEN SUFFOCATE IN FIRE

Incendiary Blaze in Emigrant Lodging House at Jamaicia, L. I., Is Fatal—Twelve Hurt.

New York.—Seven persons, two of them women, were suffocated to death, two were fatally hurt and ten others were injured less seriously when an incendiary fire destroyed an emigrant lodging house at 100 Rockaway road, Jamaica, Friday. But for the heroism of one of the occupants, who was fatally hurt while attempting to save others, the loss of life would have been greater.

Big Gain by Socialists.

New York.—A report detailing the progress of the Socialist party throughout the United States for the last three years, compiled by officers of the party here, shows a gain of more than 50 per cent. in that time.

Drown Child in Play.

Mason City, Ia.—Children in play Monday poured a lot of water down the throat of Ralph, four-year-old son of J. A. Calmar, and he only lived an hour later. The water went into his lungs and he was drowned.

SLUMP IN THE AUTO BUSINESS

Bottom Seems to Have Dropped Out Notwithstanding Boosting Efforts of Manufacturers.

New York.—Indications point to the bottom having fallen out of the automobile business. The manufacturers, it is reported in trade circles, are making strenuous efforts to keep up a show of continued prosperity, but it is also said that they are not selling their product, but are storing machines throughout the country at their various agencies to prevent the public realizing the true conditions of the market.

Several large concerns are laying off men and giving all sorts of reasons for so doing except the statement that they are overstocked. Two or three of the largest factories recently closed entirely, ostensibly for the purpose of taking inventory, but the workmen were not given any definite time at which to again report for work, and it is not expected that these factories will again be in operation this year.

A well-known automobile agent of this city said yesterday that all cars would undoubtedly be selling at from 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. less than present list prices within the next two or three months. He added:

"The trouble with the automobile business is that the farmers and people of the smaller cities and towns have not taken as kindly to the idea as was anticipated. The farmers find that the cost of keeping them in repair and operation is more than the cost of keeping horses to perform the same work, and while there was, for a time, a tendency among the farmers to invest in the machines, the demand for cars from this class of buyers has practically stopped, and I venture to say we will not again sell to the farmers to any extent until prices are materially reduced."

TWELVE KILLED IN CRASH

Passenger Train and Terminal Engine Collide at Ignatio, Cal., With Fatal Result.

San Francisco.—Twelve persons were killed in a head-on collision by a passenger train and a terminal engine of the California & Northwestern railroad near Ignatio, Cal., 30 miles from here Monday. The passenger train was carrying a delegation of Red Men on their way to attend the state delegation at Santa Rosa. The train was running at a high rate of speed when the collision occurred.

BROWNE MUST STAND TRIAL

Judge Kersten Denies Motion to Quash Indictment and Orders Case to Proceed.

Chicago.—Nee O'Neil Browne must undergo another trial on the charge of bribing Representative Charles A. White with $1,000 to vote for United States Senator Lorimer.

Declaring that the contentions of the defense, if upheld, would render the bribery law fruitless, Judge Kersten Thursday denied a motion to quash the indictment against Browne and ordered the accused to trial.

Doctor Roller's Ribs Broken.

New York.—News reached here Tuesday of the serious injury in London of Dr. B. F. Roller, the American wrestler. He broke two ribs in a contest with Gama, the East Indian wrestler.

Iowa's Corn Crop Looks Good.

Des Moines, Ia.—Prospects for Iowa's corn crop are better than the average for ten years, despite dry conditions, so the weekly bulletin of the Iowa crop bureau stated Tuesday.

BOSTON FIRE-SWEPT

PROPERTY VALUED AT $2,000,000 IS DESTROYED BY FLAMES.

CENTER OF CITY THREATENED

Assistance From Neighboring Towns Was Necessary to Control Blaze—Two Lumber Yards, Fifty Tenement Houses and Bridge Burned.

Boston.—Driven by a strong southwest gale flames destroyed property valued at $2,000,000 here Tuesday night and for a time seriously threatened to wipe out the business and manufacturing part of the city.

The flames were first discovered in the lumber yard of Blacker and Shepard and within a few minutes had spread until Dover and Albany streets were a mass of flames.

A general alarm called all the fire apparatus in the city to the scene and later a call for help was sent to Brookline, Cambridge and Somerville and all the available fire fighting apparatus in those towns was rushed to the scene of the conflagration.

Two lumber yards, fifty tenement houses and the Dover street bridge were in flames at one time. Three pieces of fire apparatus were lost by the department because of the rush of the flames. Several firemen and many policemen had narrow escapes from serious injury. Many of the tenement house dwellers in the fire zone also had narrow escapes from the rapidly spreading flames. Hundreds of pounds of dynamite were used to blow up buildings on both Dover and Albany streets to stop the progress of the conflagration, which was sweeping toward Washington street and the great shopping and business district when it was checked. While this fire was in progress another which threatened to be nearly as large raged in the wholesale district in the heart of the city, in the five-story stone building at Nos. 55-59 High street, occupied by the H. W. Johns-Manville company. The building was completely destroyed. Loss $400,000.

ITALY IS AFTER CHARLTON

Vice-Consul Declares His Government Will Not Permit Wife Slayer to Escape.

New York.—Vice-Consul Gustav di Rosa of Italy Tuesday consulted Assistant District Attorney McCarthy in Jersey City concerning the extradition to Italy of Porter Charlton to be tried for the murder of his wife. Di Rosa declared that the Italian government would send insanity experts to examine the prisoner.

"I desire to make it clear that the government which I represent is going to get Charlton," said Mr. di Rosa. "Charlton shall not escape trial in Italy if we can help it."

SAVES DAUGHTER; DROWNED

W. R. Michaelis, Publisher of Chicago Staats-Zeitung, Loses His Life in New York.

Deposit, N. Y. — W. R. Michaelis, publisher of the Chicago Staats Zeitung, was drowned at Oquaga lake, a few miles from here, and his body recovered three hours later. Mr. Michaelis was in a boat with his eight-year-old daughter, when the girl lost her hat. Reaching out for it, she fell overboard. The father jumped out after the child and held her above the water until his strength failed. Parties in boats rescued the child, but the father sank.

AMERICAN BOAT WINS CUP

Schooner Westward, Owned by New York Yachtman, Takes Gold Tropy at Cowes.

Cowes, Isle of Wight. — The American schooner Westward, owned by A. C. Cochran of New York, easily won the race for the international gold cup sailed off Ryde. Her nearest competitor, the Germania, owned by Lieut. Krupp von Bohlen Und Halbach, was five miles astern when the winner crossed the finish line. Emperor William's yacht Meteor, the Cicely and the Susana also competed.

FLYER HITS AUTO; FIVE DIE

Lives of Baltimoreans Are Crushed Out at Railroad Crossing at Cape May, N. J.

Cape May, N. J.—Five lives of Baltimoreans were crushed out Tuesday when the express train on the West Jersey and Seashore railroad from Philadelphia struck the automobile carrying Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Feidner and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Mermenthaller and their chauffeur.

Twenty-Six Go Down With Schooner.

Nassau, The Bahamas.—The schooner Emma, bound from Nassau to Inagua with laborers on board for South America, was lost near Castle island Monday during a storm and 24 men and two women, all negroes, were drowned. Five survivors got ashore.

Quarantine for Infantile Paralysis.

Seattle, Wash.—Dr. J. E. Crichton, commissioner of health, has issued an order requiring that all cases of infantile paralysis be placed under strict quarantine as soon as reported.

GORE BARES LOBBY SECRETS

AGAIN REFERS TO SHERMAN IN LAND INQUIRY.

McMurray, the Alleged Promoter, Shown to Have Operated a Campaign of Telegrams.

McAlester, Okla.—Senator T. P. Gore at the investigation of the Indian land deals Tuesday introduced and had read to the special committee telegrams in which the names of Vice-President Sherman and Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas were named. One of the telegrams read:

"With McMurray there to state our claims, with Mr. Curtis and Mr. Sherman, who understands better than anybody else what we want, and with the assistance of our president, it begins to look like we are coming into our own."

Its relation to Senator Gore's charges of having been offered $25,000 bribe to "put through" congress the $30,000,000 McMurray Indian land deal was explained by the senator.

"It merely shows the activity of the McMurray interests at Washington," said Senator Gore. "By offering this evidence, I do not wish to reflect either on Mr. Sherman or Mr. Curtis," said the senator.

"Do you mean that as an exoneration from you of Mr. Sherman?" asked Dennis Flynn, attorney for McMurray.

"It is merely to state that if the names of these men were taken in vain at one time they may have been at another," replied Mr. Gore.

McAlister, Okla.—The feature of the hearing Monday before the congressional committee which is inquiring into the McMurray contracts with the Chickasaw and Choctaw Indians and the charges of attempted bribery made by Senator Gore, was the testimony given by D. C. McCurtain, son of Governor McCurtain, who was recalled to the stand.

He testified that he had an agreement with the firm of Mansfield, McMurray and Cornish that he was to have one-fourth of the fees they received and that the share thereof coming to him was $187,500.

McCurtain said this occurred two years before McMurray offered him $25,000 to not oppose the approval of the contracts.

W. T. Holiman, a Choctaw Indian, testified he had been employed by J. F. McMurray, holder of the contracts, to go out among the Oklahoma Indians and induce them to sign the documents. At the same time, Holiman related, he was paid "a dollar a head" for securing contracts appointing McMurray to act in tax cases. In this way McMurray procured 10,000 contracts to sell land.

Questioned further, Holiman testified it was the belief of the Indians that their property was worth from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000, and the understanding was McMurray was to get ten per cent. of this.

PLEAD FOR POSTAL BANKS

Post Office Department Receive 55 Additional Requests From Postmasters and National Boards.

Washington. — Mails brought 55 additional requests to the post office department for establishment of postal banks. About half of them came from post masters, which is a larger proportion than has been shown up to date by the totals, which include 390 requests from posmasters and 923 from national banks. Among the applicants is the First National bank of Mount Olive, Ill., which asks to be designated as a depository for funds collected in that town and also at Staunton, which has no state or national bank; the First National bank of Kewanee, Ill., also is an applicant.

REWARD FOR RICE MURDERER

Friends of Cleveland Attorney Are Determined His Slayer Shall Be Captured.

Cleveland, O. — To stimulate the search for the murderer of William L. Rice, the attorney who was shot down near his home in Euclid Heights Friday night, the reward for the apprehension of his assailant was increased to $10,000.

In addition to the $5,000 reward posted Saturday by Mr. Rice's law partners, William Nelson Cromwell of New York, who accompanied Mrs. Rice to Cleveland from an eastern summer resort, offered another $5,000.

Indiana Sons of America.

Glenwood, Ind. — The state camp of the Patriotic Order Sons of America of Indiana was held here today, opening with the address of President O. Perry Everson of Crawfordsville. The report of Secretary Sam D. Symmes showed that the order was in excellent condition in the state and that five new camps were soon to be instituted. Last night there was a contest between initiatory teams from Crawfordsville, Indianapolis and Rushville.

Betrothal Story Is Denied.

New York.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia arrived in this city Tuesday and most emphatically denied the cabled reports from Italy that his daughter, Katherine, is engaged to the Duke of the Abruzzi.

$4,000 in Opium Seized.

Kansas City, Mo.—More than $4,000 worth of opium was taken from the tea store of Jim Long Tuesday by police who raided the place here. The drug was packed in a trunk ready for shipment.

MAYOR GAYNOR SHOT, IMPROVES

ATTENDING PHYSICIANS DO NOT FEAR ANY IMMEDIATE DANGER OF PATIENT.

WAS WOUNDED IN THE NECK

Chief Executive of New York City Was Shot Down by Murderous Former City Employe on Board Ship Departing for European Vacation.

New York, N. Y.—William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York City, was shot in the head and seriously wounded as he stood on the promenade deck of the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, by James G. Gallagher, a discharged and disgruntled city employe. Gallagher was almost instantly overpowered and arrested.

The shot was fired fifteen minutes before the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was due to leave her pier at Hoboken, N. J., and the mayor was receiving

God-speed from a group of friends preparatory to a vacation trip to Europe. The bullet struck him behind the right ear and ranged downward, inflicting a dangerous, though not necessarily fatal wound. Unless blood poison develops surgeons are hopeful of the mayor's recovery, although at his age—fifty-nine years—such a wound is essentially grave.

The mayor is at St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, surrounded by specialists, with members of his family gathered near, awaiting the outcome with anxiety. All early reports from the hospital were hopeful in tone and six X-ray negatives of the wound were taken to facilitate an operation for the removal of the bullet. Gallagher, the would-be assassin, is locked in a cell at Jersey City, held without bail. He expresses no remorse.

The latest report says that Mayor Gaynor is resting easily and barring the possibility of blood poisoning, his recovery from his wound seemed certain. All the members of his family save Mrs. Gaynor went home. She remained at the mayor's bedside.

Brookins Dashed to Ground.

Asbury Park, N. J.—A serious mishap to Walter Brookins in which the daring aviator was painfully, but not dangerously hurt, marred the first day of the aviation meet here. Brookins was dashed to the earth when the machine suddenly turned turtle after he had been forced to swerve the airship suddenly to avoid crashing into a crowd of spectators. Seven other persons, among whom the machine tumbled, were more or less seriously injured. One youth with a fractured skull was rushed to a hospital. Brookins was pinned under the wreckage and was only half conscious when friends reached him. An examination showed that his nose was broken and that he had been badly bruised and shaken up, but not seriously hurt. The mishap was witnessed by the large crowd gathered for the meet and was directly due to the thronging of spectators out on the field.

Election Bets Illegal.

Atlanta, Ga.—Betting on elections became illegal in Georgia when Governor Brown signed the anti-betting bill just passed by the elgislature.

John D. Paid This Fine.

Cleveland, Ohio.—John D. Rockefeller, charged with speeding an automobile, pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $3.

Actor Is High Flyer.

London, Eng.—Robert Lorraine, the actor, qualified as star aviator by making a splendid flight across the Irish sea, a distance of more than fifty miles, from Blackpool, England, to Llanduno on the coast of North Wales.

Kills Brother in Brawl.

Hamilton, Ohio.—William Ballard threw a billiard ball at his brother Leonard, and caused the latter's death according to a finding by Coroner Burnett. The tragedy occurred during a saloon fight.

AUGUST

0484

L 904

MRS. FENTON

BY

W. E. NORRIS

CHAPTER XVII.

Fred escorted his cousin to Cromwell Road on the evening of Mrs. Moore's little dinner party. They were rather late, and the remainder of the company, which consisted only of some half-dozen persons, had already assembled when they arrived. Captain Claughton was conspicuous by his absence, which was a relief to Fred for more reasons than one. In the first place he naturally did not wish to be interfered with by his rival, and in the second, he was not particularly anxious to be delivered from him through the benevolent intervention of Mrs. Fenton. Charming though his cousin was, he sometimes thought that she was just a shade wanting in refinement.

The young man was received with much cordiality by his host and hostess.

"So glad you were able to come!" the latter said. "We really seem to have seen nothing of you for ages." And then, in a lowered voice, "How very pretty your cousin is! And so—so nice altogether. Well, I think we are here now. Captain Claughton couldn't come; I dare say you have heard of his loss."

Fred shook his head. "I don't often see Claughton. What has he lost? His watch, or his heart, or any other valuable of that kind?"

Mrs. Moore laughed a little. "No, only his elder brother. At least, I didn't mean to say 'only,' but it is his elder brother. Well, it seems that the poor man was subject to the most dreadful fits, so one can only regard it as a happy release. Captain Claughton has gone down to attend the funeral, I believe. Of course, this will make a very great difference in his prospects, but we all hope he won't retire just yet."

Fred Musgrave's perceptions were not abnormally acute, but he could hardly keep appreciating the significance of these confidential remarks. They meant, of course, "You are not to suppose, young man, that you have been asked here to-night for any other reason than that we are kind to people and unwilling to show cold shoulder to those who have fallen into adversity. Ten thousand pounds, however, will not do at all, and it may save you disappointment to be told at one that we take a parental interest in Captain Claughton, who is now heir to more acres than you have sovereigns."

All this Fred quite understood, and he even thought that Mrs. Moore was somewhat needlessly explicit. Whether Susie was of the one mind with her step-mother remained to be seen. After glancing around the room and drawing up a hasty mental scale of precedence, he thought it highly probable that he would be asked to take Miss Moore to the dining-room, but this anticipation was not fulfilled, he being tolled off to a sprightly, middle-aged lady, while Miss Moore walked downstairs alone. She took the place on his left hand at the dinner-table, though, and as soon as the sprightly one would let him, he endeavored to enter into conversation with her. She answered him very much as she had done at the theater: she was just polite, and that was all. It was in vain that he attempted to interest her in matters which she had formerly seemed to find interesting; in vain he told her about the play upon which he had been at work, and which he hoped would prove the first rung of the ladder which was to lead him to fortune and renown; it was evident that she did not care to hear about that play; and what was equally evident and still more ominous was that she was absent-minded and out of spirits. Well, if she couldn't dispense with Claughton for one evening without looking so dismal about it, there was no more to be said. After a time Fred said no more, and his silence was noted with some irritation by his hostess.

But if Mrs. Moore was not best pleased with this taciturn guest, she had no such complaint of his cousin, whose loquacity left nothing to be desired. Mrs. Fenton made a speedy conquest of the General, to whom she communicated her impressions of London society with a mixture of artlessness and shrewdness which kept him bubbling over with laughter from soup to dessert; moreover, she managed to draw everybody within earshot into a discussion in which she took the principal part. There are a great many people who can accomplish that much, and some who accomplish it rather more often than could be wished; but it is only a genuine conversational artist who can do all the work and at the same time persuade others that they are taking their full share of it. Mrs. Fenton proved herself a true conversational artist that evening, and when she quitted the room with the other ladies, she left behind her four or five men who felt that, for once, they had been really brilliant.

But it is one thing to captivate men (for we are a simple, unsuspicious folk for the most part), and quite another to ingratiate yourself with members of your own sex. Mrs. Fenton, as has been said, had hitherto been tolerably successful in this more difficult undertaking; but when she tried to be kind to Susie Moore she met with a check. Susie, for reasons best known to herself, did not choose to respond to the other lady's advances. She was distant; she was reserved; she was even, if the truth must be told, a little sulky. When Mrs. Fenton began to talk about Fred and praised him up to the skies, she maintained a chilling silence. All she would say was, that she had always understood that Mr. Musgrave was very fascinating, but that she herself did not know him particularly well.

Mrs. Fenton raised her eyebrows. "Dear me!" said she. "I fancied from what he told me that you were a great friend of his."

"I don't think he can have told you that," answered Susie, flushing slightly. "For a few weeks we saw a good deal of him, because we were getting up some theatricals then and he used to come here to rehearse; but since that we have scarcely met at all. Perhaps, though, he didn't tell you so; perhaps you only fancied it."

"Oh, I won't swear that he actually told me so," returned Mrs. Fenton, laughing; "but I certainly had that impression. I'm sorry you don't like him; because I like him immensely. I don't think I ever met any one more unaffected and honest and good. He ought to hate me," she added presently, "for it is entirely owing to me that he is comparatively poor now. But he doesn't. On the contrary, he has been kindness itself to me from the very first.

Susie replied shortly that she was glad to hear it, and with that the colloquy ended; for now the gentlemen had come upstairs, and Mrs. Moore sailed across the room to ask whether Mrs. Fenton would do them all a very, very great favor, and sing something to them.

She had brought no music with her, she said, and she was not much accustomed to playing her own accompaniments, but she would do her best, and if she broke down they must excuse her.

She moved towards the piano, drawing off her gloves, and stopping on her way to address a few laughing words to the men, who had assembled in a group, as men are apt to do after dinner until they receive the expected signals from the offing which cause them to disperse. "Stick to me," she whispered, "support me! I'm going to sing, and words can't express how nervous I am. Nothing terrifies me so much as these drawing-room performances."

Some members of this contingent, accordingly, formed themselves into a semicircle in the neighborhood of the piano at which Mrs. Fenton seated herself; and, after bestowing a smile and a little grimace upon them over her shoulder, she struck the keys. Nervous she may have been; for, as everybody knows, the most experienced and accomplished artists are not always exempt from that form of suffering; but her nervousness was not apparent, nor had she the slightest occasion for feeling any. Her voice was not quite a contralto, although most people would probably have described it as such; it had a curious sort of occasional break in it, which, however, did not give the effect of a dissonance; and it was one of that rare quality which exercises a direct physical influence upon listeners.

Mrs. Moore's guests were fairly carried away by her. First she sang them two quaint, plaintive Swedish ballads, and then, as they joined in entreating her to go on, she gave them Schubert's "Adieu," which they liked even better, because they had all heard it before. It may be doubted, nevertheless, whether they had ever heard it sung quite in that way before.

Fred, who had separated himself from the cluster of men near the piano and had taken a vacant chair beside Susie, was not the least enthusiastic of her admirers. "Isn't she wonderful!" he exclaimed.

"Yes, she has an extraordinary voice," answered Susie, who had the air of paying this tribute of praise a little grudgingly, "and she seems to be very clever in managing it. I should think she was very clever in every way."

"Oh, I don't know; she is very original—very natural. In some ways she is almost a child. I think you would like her."

It so happened that Susie had formed a very strong contrary opinion. She did not, however, give utterance to it, but merely observed: "You, at all events, seem to like her very much."

"I'm delighted with her; so is everybody else, even old Bremit, the lawyer, who can't be called impulsive, and who has been wishing her dead for the last three or four months. Old Bremit has always been rather an ally of mine, so he wasn't half pleased when he heard that she was to have her father's money. He has come round now, though. He doesn't exactly say so, but I believe he thinks that such a daughter as Laura deserves any fortune."

"I suppose," remarked Susie slowly, "that there is nothing very unnatural in a father's leaving his money to his daughter."

"Of course not. If there was anything unnatural in the business it was his never taking notice of her or even mentioning her name for twelve years."

"Yes, it is unfortunate for you. Still your case isn't altogether hopeless, perhaps."

"I don't mean to make any complaint," answered Fred, rather curtly. He was puzzled and provoked by the girl's way of speaking to him, which he did not see that he had done anything to deserve.

After a few moments she said, "Your cousin is a good deal older than you are, isn't she?"

"I suppose she must be a year or two older, but she certainly doesn't look it. I shouldn't have set her down as a day more than five-and-twenty."

"I should have put her at over thirty; but then I don't admire her as much as you evidently do."

"Well, we had better not talk any more about her," said Fred, with a shade of impatience, "for it doesn't seem to be a subject upon which we are likely to agree. Let us try to find one that will please you better—Claughton and his good luck, for instance."

"It is always pleasant to think about Captain Claughton, because he himself is always pleasant," returned Susie, rather defiantly. "I don't quite understand what you mean by his good luck, though."

"Why, his brother's death, of course. Isn't it the best of good luck to be promoted from younger son to heir-apparent?"

Susie looked her neighbor full in the face, which she had not done before. "Do you know, Mr. Musgrave," said she, "I think you have become very ill-natured all of a sudden."

"Everybody," the girl continued, "does not think money the one important thing in the world."

It is not surprising that Fred should have been greatly incensed by the outraged injustice of this speech. If Susie loved Captain Claughton, no reasonable being could be angry with her on that account; if, without exactly loving Captain Claughton, she was going to marry him because her people wished it, and because she herself appreciated the advantages of ease, that also was a course of action which, by stretching a point, one might perhaps bring one's self to pardon. But hypocrisy was not pardonable. It was really a little too much that she should attempt to disguise her own feelings by boldly accuse others of them.

Fred's first remark after he had seated himself in his cousin's brougham and was being driven eastward, was: "Well, that's all over!"

Mrs. Fenton did not affect to understand him. "I am sorry," she answered, "and yet I am glad. Do you think me very unfeeling for saying that I am glad?"

"I don't understand why you should be glad."

"Don't you? Suppose you were as fond of me as I am of you—is your imagination equal to that effort?"

"I think so," answered Fred, with a rather woebegone laugh.

"Spur it a little further, then, and suppose that I have fallen in love with a man who likes me pretty well, but likes my money still better. Suppose that I have suddenly been deprived of my money, and that my lover has hastened to beat a prudent retreat. You would be sorry for me, I hope; but wouldn't you also be rather glad for my sake that things had so fallen out?"

Fred sighed. "You may be right to rejoice, but I dare say you'll excuse me if I don't join in your rejoicing," he observed presently. "Somehow or other it's no great consolation to me to know that what I wanted wouldn't be worth having if I got it."

"A day will come when that knowledge will be an immense consolation to you," returned Mrs. Fenton, hopefully. "I am not without experience; I have learned what it is to make mistakes which cannot be corrected. As for you, my dear Fred, I will risk offending you very deeply by predicting a speedy recovery for you. You see, if you had really cared a great deal for Miss Moore, you wouldn't have behaved with quite such punctilious discretion during the last few months."

Meantime Mrs. Moore was saying to her step-daughter: "Apparently I was not so very far wrong in my conjecture. It is pretty evident that Mr. Musgrave is either smitten with his cousin, or wants her to think that he is. Well, one can hardly blame him, I suppose."

"It seemed to me," answered Susie, "that it was rather his cousin who was smitten with him. She hardly took her eyes off him the whole evening."

Mrs. Moore shrugged her shoulders. "So much the better for Mr. Musgrave! I'm sure he really cares for her, poor little thing! It isn't very pretty in a man of his age to have such a keen eye to the main chance; but it's what we all come to sooner or later, and in a certain sense we are right."

(To be continued.)

A Knowing Spaniel.

Senator H. C. Hansbrough was talking at a dinner in Washington about his splendid old age pensions bill.

"We need, you know," he said, "a bill to encourage us to save. We are not all as good at saving as Hank Shuster's spaniel was. Hank Shuster lives at Devils Lake. He used to give his dog a cent a day to buy a roll with, and the sagacious animal would walk to the eating-house on the corner and make his purchase like a human being. But one morning Hank gave the dog a nickel, and for this sum the waiter at the eating-house handed forth a sausage sandwich.

"'Would you believe it? From that day on, the dog always saved his coppers till he had accumulated five, and then went to the eating-house and bought a sandwich stuffed with sausage."

Permanent Residents.

Questions are often dangerous weapons. The difficulty in which some visitors to a jail were placed by their injudicious curiosity is thus described by Tit-Bits:

The party was escorted by the chief warden. They came in time to a room where three women were sewing.

"Dear me," one of the visitors whispered, "what vicious-looking creatures! Pray, what are they here for?"

"Because they have no other home. This is our sitting-room, and they are my wife and two daughters," blandly responded the chief warden.

Setting Himself Right.

Charles Lamb was writing his eulogy on roast pig.

"Of course," he said, "I don't mean a young pig that has been in cold storage for eleven months. Heaven forbid!"

Taking it for granted, however, that persons who had read the papers were thoroughly informed as to prevailing conditions in the food supply, and that it didn't make any difference as to the others, he decided not to trespass on the domain of the muck rakers by meddling in a literary way with questions that merely concerned the public health.—Chicago Tribune.

A woman says it's easy to flatter a man, but hard to keep him flattered.

GRAND ENCAMPMENT OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

Triennial Conclave in Chicago Attended by Great Host of High Masons---Magnificent Parade and Competitive Drill---City Beautifully Decorated.

Chicago.—The triennial conclave of the grand encampment of Knights Templar of the United States, which opened here Sunday, has brought to the city a mighty throng of high Masons, not only from all parts of America, but from Great Britain as well. The culminating feature of the conclave was the parade on Tuesday, when some 50,000 sir knights marched in glittering array through handsomely decorated street, past immense reviewing stands and between solid walls of spectators who stood for hours to see the magnificent and imposing procession and to listen to its two-score bands.

The first event on the program of the conclave was, as always, divine service on Sunday. The sir knights selected Orchestra hall for this purpose and entirely filled the body of that hall to listen to a sermon on "Templarism," delivered by Rev. Dr. George H. MacAdam of Madison, Wis., in the absence of Sir Knight George C. Rafter of Cheyenne, Wyo., very eminent grand prelate of the grand encampment. The music was in charge of the grand organist of the grand commandery of Illinois, the choir consisting of several male quartets belonging to the order in this state. Monday was devoted mainly to the receiving of the grand and subordinate commanderies and escorting them to their hotels. It is estimated that fully 100,000 visitors came with the knights and that about 300,000 other excursionists have flocked to the city this week in consequence of the conclave. Of course every hotel was thronged and thousands of the visitors found quarters in private residences.

Most Eminent Sir William B. Melish, Acting Grand Commander.

On Monday evening all the local and visiting commanderies kept open house at their respective headquarters, and many of the visitors found their way to the various amusement parks and the theaters.

Parade of The Knights.

The "grand parade" of Tuesday was the largest parade of Knights Templar ever held. The preparations were elaborate and Michigan boulevard was most elaborately decorated. The sir knights formed in line of march on the boulevard south of Thirty-first street, and signal to move was given by the guns of Battery B, I. N. G., the detachment for the purpose being composed of Knights Templar all of whom are members of the battery. The same detachment fired the salute to the grand master.

Marching northward in Michigan boulevard, the parade passed, near Hubbard court, beneath an entrance arch built in the form of an ancient battlement with its towers and turrets. This was intended to represent the entrance to the city, and as the column passed under it, buglers stationed on its heights heralded the approach of each grand division.

Next the knights came abreast of the first grand stand, one-half mile in length, and this needed no decorations, for it was filled to its capacity mainly with ladies whose beautiful summer costumes made it like a vast garden. About 50,000 persons were in this immense stand, as at its center was a gorgeous throne on which sat the acting grand master, William Bromwell Melish of Cincinnati, who became head of the order on the recent death of Grand Master Henry W. Rugg of Providence, R. I. Mr. Melish will be regularly elected grand master before the close of the conclave.

Just north of the Art Institute the parade passed before another reviewing stand in which were Mayor Busse, the city council and the park commissioners.

Beautiful "Templar Way."

At Washington street the marchers turned west to State, where they entered on the "Templar Way." This stretch extended from Randolph to Van Buren street and was made beautiful by a handsome arch and massive Corinthian columns of pure white erected thirty-three feet apart on both sides of the street. Festoons of natural laurel connected the columns, and the bright red cross and the shield and coat of arms of the order were prominent in the scheme of decoration.

Moving south to Jackson boulevard, the knights again turned west, and near the federal building passed before yet another reviewing stand which accommodated Governor Deneen and his staff. Marching north on La Salle street, the parade passed beneath the grand commandery arch of pure white which spanned the street at the La Salle hotel, the headquarters of the grand commandery of Illinois.

Entrancing Scenes at Night.

The scene in the streets at night was especially beautiful, for all the arches, festoons and columns of the decorative scheme were brilliantly illuminated, and on State street, in addition to the "Templar Way," the merchants had put up decorations that transformed the great shopping district into a veritable fairy land.

Undoubtedly the most spectacular feature of the night display was the wonderful electric set piece erected in Grant park on the lake front, reproducing in colossal size the official emblem or badge of the conclave. It was 150 feet high and its 5,000 powerful electric lights of varied colors brilliantly illuminated all that part of the city.

Much of the success of the conclave must be attributed to the efforts of John D. Cleveland, grand commander of Illinois and president of the triennial executive committee. Arthur MacArthur of Troy, N. Y., is the very eminent grand generalissimo of the grand encampment, and W. Frank Pierce of San Francisco the grand captain general.

Among the most noted of the visiting masons from other lands are: The Right Hon. the Earl of Euston, pro grand master of the great priory of England and Wales; the Lord Athlumney, past great constable; Thomas Fraser, great marshal; R. Newton Crane, past great herald; F. C. Van Duser, past great standard bearer; H. J. Homer, acting grand master banner bearer; John Ferguesen, past preceptor of England and Wales, and the Right Hon. Luther B. Archibald, most eminent grand master of the great priory of Canada, and official staff.

WILLY WAS TOO LIBERAL

Oversupply of Alcoholic Stimulants Disturbed Schedule of Funeral Arrangements.

Dean Ramsay's memoirs contain an anecdote of an old woman of Strathepey. Just before her death she solemnly instructed her grandnephew: "Willy, I'm deein', and as ye'll hae the charge o' a' I have, mind now that as much whisky is to be used at my funeral as there was at my baptism."

Willy, having no record of the quantity consumed at the baptism, decided to give every mourner as much as he wished, with the result that the funeral procession, having to traverse ten miles to the churchyard on a short November day, arrived only at nightfall.

Then it was discovered that the mourners, halting at a wayside inn, had rested the coffin on a dyke and left it there when they resumed their journey. The corpse was a day late in arriving at the grave.

THE BEST OF ITS KIND

Is always advertised, in fact it only pays to advertise good things. When you see an article advertised in this paper year after year you can be absolutely certain that there is merit to it because the continued sale of any article depends upon merit and to keep on advertising one must keep on selling. All good things have imitators, but imitations are not advertised. They have no reputation to sustain, they never expect to have any permanent sale and your dealer would never sell them if he studied your interests. Sixteen years ago Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic Powder for the feet, was first sold, and through newspaper advertising and through people telling each other what a good thing it was for tired and aching feet it has now a permanent sale, and nearly 200 so-called foot powders have been put on the market with the hope of profiting by the reputation which has been built up for Allen's Foot-Ease. When you ask for an article advertised in these papers see that you get it. Avoid substitutes.

A NATURAL QUESTION.

Landlady—I cannot accommodate you. I take in only single men.

Wigson—What makes you think I'm twins?

Why She Brought It Up.

"Do you remember," she asked, "that you said once that unless I promised to be yours the sun would cease to shine?"

"I don't remember it now, but I suppose I may have said something of the kind."

"And have you forgotten that you assured me that unless I permitted you to claim me as your own the moon would fall from her place in the heavens?"

"Oh, well, what if I did say so? Why do you want to bring that up, now?"

"I merely wished to assure you that I'm sorry I didn't shut my eyes and let her fall."

Seeking Comfort.

"I've got a long way to go and I'm not used to travel," said the applicant at the railway ticket office. "I want to be just as comfortable as I can, regardless of expense."

"Parlor car?"

"No. I don't care for parlor fixin's."

"Sleeper?"

"No. I want to stay awake an' watch the scenery."

"Then what do you want?"

"Well, if it wouldn't be too much trouble, I wish you'd put me up in one of these refrigerator cars I've read so much about."

Different Values.

"There's a big difference in men."

"I judge so, by studying the various rates for which Pittsburg councilmen were bought."

No Trouble—

A Saucer,

A little Cream,

and

Post Toasties

right from the box.

Breakfast in a minute, and you have a meal as delightful as it is wholesome.

Post Toasties are crisp and flavoury—golden-brown, fluffy bits that almost melt in the mouth.

"The Memory Lingers"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., LTD.,
Battle Creek, Mich.

AUGUST

0485

L 904

The St. Joe News.

One Year - - $1.00
Six Month - - 50c
Three Months - - 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES — AN INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

Big Picnic.

Last Thursday the Union Sunday School picnic of the three churches of St. Joe, was held in the Dills grove. The day was an ideal one in every respect and the grove was a most beautiful place for such a gathering. The schools went in loads to the grove with their baskets heaped up with chicken, cake, pie and all such good things. The committee had visited the grove on Wednesday and arranged teeter-boards and swings for the amusements of the children. Ed Leighty run a stand and everything was handy for your entertainment. The ladies engaged in playing ball and other games while the men played horse shoe and croquet. At the noon hour everybody put their dinners together and enjoyed a general social time The Coburn brothers were present with their motor boat and entertained the crowd. At about 2:00 o'clock Scipio and St. Joe crossed bats in the field, north of the grove, the latter being defeated by a score of 6 to 11. At a gathering of this kind some little excitement is almost sure. While the game was going on a stray ball struck Mrs. Ira Bone on the arm and glanced and struck Mrs. Blanche Leighty on the nose, breaking the small bone. She was soon taken home and the physician called to care for her. The day was well spent and the crowd was large, and we only hope that such social gatherings could be more frequent. The owners of the grove are to be thanked for their kindness.

FRED THOMAS

FARMERS!

should remember that there is always more or less repairing to be done before the fall work comes on. Your drag may need some teeth sharpened and now would be a good time to have it done before they are needed.

All Work Guaranteed.

The Blacksmith.

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank, you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

STRUCK A RICH MINE.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., says he struck a perfect mine of health in Dr. King's New Life Pills, for they cured him of kidney and liver trouble after 12 years of suering. They are the best pills on earth for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia, Debility. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

Reasoner Reunion

The Second Annual Reunion of the Reasoner Family was held Thursday August 11, at Railroad Park, St. Joe, Indiana, where a very pleasant time was spent by all talking over the events of the past year.

Those coming from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Clint Reasoner and family of Elkhart, Mrs. S. E. Norwood of Goshen, Mr. Herman Reasoner of Columbus, Ohio, F. Blodgett and family of Antwerp, and a number from Garrett, Auburn, Butler, Newville, Fort Wayne and Spencerville, making a total attendance of 111.

After Scripture Reading and Prayer by Rev. Brock of Newville, part of the impromptu program was given. Then a hearty dinner was served consisting of the usual bountiful dainties that attend such an occasion, after which the balance of the program was rendered. Arrangements were then made to make the next reunion a still greater success.

Misses Flossie and Ruth Potter and Mr. Harry Mayfield of Zion City being guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Potter also attended and assisted in the program.

LIFE ON PANAMA CANAL

Has had one frightful drawback—malaria trouble—that has brought suffering and death to thousands. The germs cause chills, fever and ague, biliousness, lassitude, weakness and general debility. But Electric Bitters never fail to destrop them and cure malarial troubles. "Three bottles completely cured me of a very severe attack of malaria," writes Wm. A. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "and I've had good health ever since." Cure Stomach, Liver, and Kidney Troubles, and prevent Typhoid. 50c. Guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

LOCAL

Mrs. John Dove has been on the sick list for the past week, but is convalescent.

The Misses Neva and Vera Andress, Vernie Kelley and Winfield Pervines spent Sunday at Robison Park.

FOR SALE:—A 24-inch Wilson Heater stove, burned about 2 months, in good condition. Will sell cheap. Inquire at THE NEWS office.

Mr. Joe Harrod of Mansfield, Ohio, came Saturday evening and remained over Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Hannah Ulm. Mrs. Harrod has been here for sometime.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced with water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Editor ST. JOE NEWS:

Your readers will be interested in knowing that the DeKalb County Local Option League at a recent meeting unanimously reelected the officers who managed the Local Option Campaign for the "Dries" last November, and in view of the well known fact that the liquor men are trying to elect men to the Legislature who will repeal the County Option Law and bring saloons back in DeKalb County, it was decided to support for Representative men who declared in favor of the present law. As Captain L. L. Dennison is the only man who has so declared himself, the League pledge him their (non partizon) support and will use all honorable means to secure his election.

We invite the cooperation of all citizens of DeKalb County who are opposed to the return of the saloon.

Rev. D. V. Williams, President
Dr. C. S. Stewart, Secretary.

In order that its locomotive engineers may maintain a uniform rate of speed and operate their trains with the greatest possible comfort to the traveling public, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is installing speed recorders in all passenger engines used on through trains. The dial of these speed recorders is placed in the engineer's side of the cab, in plain view of the man who operates the throttle, and indicates to him the speed of the train at all times. In addition to imparting this information, the recorder registers on a paper chart the speed at which a train is operated at every point on a division, and, upon arrival at terminals, the chart is replaced and sent to the Division Superintendent so that he has before him a daily record of the speed at which trains are operated in his territory. The work of equipping the engines with speed recorders has been begun, under the supervision of Mr. J. H. Harris, general superintendent of motive power of the Baltimore and Ohio, and will be completed as quickly as possible.

J D Fetters
TRUSTEE
of Concord Township.

OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK
at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

Local Items

Read THE NEWS.

Cucumbers for canning. J. W. Sherer.

Clyde Hart called on John Bowers Thursday afternoon.

H. W. Krabill and daughter, Princess were at Auburn Saturday.

Margaret Ellen Tustison is visiting Madge Hart at Auburn this week.

When you know anything of news value, call us up by Bell 'phone No. 10

Dr. J. H. Lake and H. M. Widney made a business trip to Ft. Wayne, Friday.

W. H. Randall and wife spent last Saturday and Sunday with relatives at Ligonier.

Archie Olds of Bluffton, was the guest of his friend, Ralph Patterson over Sunday.

Mrs. John May, Mrs. J. C. Hull and F. B. Leighty and wife were at Ft. Wayne, Friday.

Miss Susie Sechler was a visitor in the home of Frank Kinsey several days last week.

Mr. S. W. Mills and family of Fort Wayne, visited in the homes of John Betz and Ed Berry for a few days.

Mr. Roscoe Sechler and lady friend, Miss Myrtle Boyl of Butler were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kinsey.

Mrs. Bell Wilmot and two children, Rose and Elva, returned home Saturday from Cleveland, where they had been visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bowen spent Sunday at Harlan the guests of the latter's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Dode Feighley.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bachtel of Waterloo spent week ago last Thursday with the latter's parents at this place Mr. and Mrs. U. R. Wiers.

In buying a cough medicine, don't be afraid to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it, and relief is sure to follow. Especially recommended for coughs, colds and whooping cough. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Wm. Smalzried, wife and two children of North Manchester and Mr. and Mrs. I. G. Kilpatrick of Pierceton, spent Saturday and Sunday with C. R. Price and wife.

Mrs. Merton Abel and two children of Branch, Mich., were guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Lake the latter part of last week. They will also visit other friends in the community.

Mrs. J. E. Sturgis and children, Mell Herrick and wife, and Wm. Randall and wife, very pleasantly spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoads. Ice cream and cake were served in the afternoon.

Mrs. S. W. Tustison, Mrs. H. C. Hathaway and two sons, Russel and Clayton, were the guests of Rev. and Mrs. Hitchner at Spencerville Tuesday.

The St. Joe ball team crossed bats with Leo Sunday, resulting in a 24 to 4 victory for St. Joe, the team from here playing errorless ball throughout the game. They were accompanied by thirty-eight St. Joe citizens.

THE BEST HOUR OF LIFE

Is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky Mt., N. C., when he was suffering intensely, as he says, "from the worst cold I ever had, I then proved to my great satisfaction what a wonderful Cold and Cough cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For after taking one bottle I was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that." Its the surest and best remedy for diseased lungs, hemorrhages, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hay Fever—any throat or lung trouble. 50c, $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

WISE'S CORNERS.

George Welch worked for F. Wertman, Tuesday.

Hiram Roller was a business caller in our vicinity, Tuesday.

Will Smith and wife spent Monday evening at Elmer Smiths'.

John Hissong and family called on Geo. Welchs', Sunday evening.

Henry Dove commenced ditching for W. L. Smith, Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Ira Smith made a business call at the home of his son W. L., Friday morning.

Several from our neighborhood attented the band concert at St. Joe, Saturday evening.

Joseph Spitler, wife and daughter Margie, were Hicksville shoppers, Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Betz of near Harlan, called on Ed Billman and wife, Sunday morning.

Frank House and son of Spencerville, began painting on Frank Wertman's house, Wednesday.

Mrs. Julia Bice has been visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Will Scott of Wabash Corners, this week.

Elias Spitler, who is living with Samuel Smith, was taken very sick last Saturday, but is much improved now.

Miss Inez Gongwer of Columbia City, Ind., is visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wertman, this week.

George Welch moved from Will Smith's house to Pigeon Roost School House, Monday. Mr. Andey Sponhour owns the building now.

Mrs. Margaret Koch, who has been staying with her sister near Antwerp for sometime, is visiting with her children, Mrs. Gertrude Smith and John Koch, this week. Her two neices, Grace and Gertrude Rogers, accompanied her.

W. G. Erick
TRUSTEE
of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY
TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK
at Store in
SPENCERVILLE, IND.

STOVES! STOVES!

HARD COAL. SOFT COAL. WOOD HEATERS. RANGES.

We have just received our full line of Stoves and Ranges and invite you to call and see our line, it's a much larger line than we have ever shown before.

It is known as the World's Standard Model Blue, made by one of the largest and most responsible stove plants in the world.

Here are only a few points of merit: Contains the largest fire pot and strongest magazines which insures positively no clogging, a 48 hour fire holder, positive acting grate, automatic circulating flue. These are only a few. Come in and let us demonstrate the balance.

Watch for Circulars Concerning Our Free Fall Exhibit and Demonstration,
SEPTEMBER 8 - 9 - 10TH.

H. V. KINSEY H. V. Kinsey & Son E. R. KINSEY

Furniture Hardware Undertaking

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37-3

You will also find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Eespecially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37-4

..Real Estate..
Insurance
NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at ..... 10:32 a. m.
No. 3 ..... 8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at ..... 6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at ..... 4:57 p. m.

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

Calls answered day or night.

Phone No. 82.

St. Joe, - Indiana.

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE,
ST. JOE, IND.

Office in Case building.

Bell Phone No. 44.

D. F. BROWN,

.....SHOE SHOP.....

My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite Kagey's Grocery. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.

St. Joe, - Ind.

S. S. Kimes
—M. D.—

Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.

Phone No. 10.
Spencerville, Ind.

Read the ads and be posted.

Band concert Saturday evening.

5% FARM LOANS 5%

SEE

Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.
Bell 347k Home 346
Office:
Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Elza Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son,

Phone No. Office 37-2. Residence 37-3

AUGUST

L 904

0486

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

SPENCERVILLE.

Dallas Kelley thrashed for Jerome Cook, last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Cook made a business trip to Hicksville, last Friday.

Miss Inez Wasson was the guest of Miss Pearl Kimes, Sunday, on the County Line.

Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. John Timmerman and children were Auburn shoppers, Monday.

Harry Enzor of Newville. visited with Mr. and Mrs. Burl Enzor, last Friday and Saturday.

Old junk and rubber brings the highest market price at J. F. Baltz. Come and see him.

Mrs. Ollie Gelhausen and son Geo., of Garrett, were visitors of the former's mother, Wednesday evening.

A few base ball players from here assisted the Scipio team against St. Joe at the union picnic of the St. Joe Sunday Schools on last Thursday. Many people from here were present at the game.

When the digestion is all right, the action of the bowels regular, there is a natural craving and relish for food. When this is lacking you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They strengthen the digestive organs, improve the appetite and regulate the bowels. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

THE NEWS $1.00 per year.

Ort Wearley has discontinued work with the Robert John's people.

FOR SALE:—A good Norman sucking colt. WM. RHOADS.

Arthur Steward and family spent Sunday with B. A. Rhoads and family.

Homer Cook, who has been working at Newville, returned home last Friday.

Harvey Kimes, Jr., and Ell Fales were at Mort Winterfields near Woodburn, Sunday.

Miss Frankie Baltz, of north of St. Joe, was a guest in the home of L. W. Steward, Sunday.

Mrs. Eckright and daughter of Auburn, were guests of D. D. Metcalf and family, last week.

Mrs. Ben Hursh returned home from the Hope hospital Thursday, where she underwent an operation.

Before buying your machine oil see Erick & Co's Eldorado Castor. Only 20c. per gallon. It's a fine one.

Clarence Steward and Robert Beame went to Valparaiso, Saturday, to visit Argyl Beams, who is attending college at that place.

Mrs. Rose Beams and Mrs. Anna Henderson were guests of Fred Hellman and family near Ft. Wayne, Saturday and Sunday.

Local Items.

Read your own NEWS.

Lutheran S. S., 89 attendance $2.35 collection.

Grandma Steward is some better at this writing.

Mrs. Dr. Carey and son Fletcher, are in town and expect to remain till after the Home Coming.

Geo. Gloyd and family, and Miss Ethel Metcalf attended the picnic at Huntertown, Saturday.

For Sale:—Six good brood sows, due to farrow by Aug. 28. JOHN C. KOCH, Spencerville, Ind., Phone 45-4.

Misses Grace and Agnes Sechler, Ralph Sechler and W. A. Sommer and wife spent Sunday with J. F. Baltz and wife.

After several weeks stay with friends Mrs. L Emanuel has gone to Auburn to visit a few days before returning home. She will visit friends at Huntertown, Ft. Wayne and Antwerp.

Lost.

Between J. Beams and Erick's store, a watch fob, last Saturday night. Finder call 23-2 and receive reward.

CHAS GRILL.

Spencerville, Indiana, August 18, 1910.

Dear Friend:

Please accept this letter as a cordial invitation to attend our Home Coming, August 25. Come and join us in having a good time. For the benefit of the Public we will conduct a sale and reduce prices on all our goods on that day. All Machinery, Implements, Hardware, Harness, Buggies, Paints, Granite Ware, Oil Stoves, Wire Fencing, and in fact anything in our line will be sold at reduced prices.

We want you to call on us. Yours truly,

BOWSER & BERRY.

The Great Home Coming.

The great home coming event which this paper has been talking about for the past two weeks is just one week distant. This event is not called great merely because some one individual will be present who has in past years possessed the title of Great, but because everybody who is present, every thing that is accomplished, every thing that is seen and every thing that is heard will be great. It will be a great treat for the old settlers to hear the thrilling stories and speeches of their old friends and comrads who have had the honor of breaking the country and building the first log cabin along the Old St. Joe river, and probably discuss for the last time scenes of childhood. It will be great for the young people to see the fantastic parade. Skinnie Obedienhotchenklothher funny band will be there. The base ball team that wins, the fellow that catches the greased pig, the fellow that climbs the greased pole, and the young or old, lean or fat man that wins in the hundred yard dash will be among the great men of the day. The committee wishes to announce that every one that enters the flour contest will be used white.

The committee has received many answers to the invitations sent out and they all say we are coming home. A great time is being provided for and every means of preparation is being pushed forward with business energy. As the committee is eager to make the day a success, they have gone to the great trouble of ordering a nice, large, cool, rainless day which the Almanac says will be delivered on the 25th. Accomodations necessary are being made. Warm meals will be served by both churches on the church lawns. Horses can be put up at the Raymond Rhoads Livery Stables or at the large barn of Archie Beams in the north part of town.

Both churches will be open for abodes of rest besides all the homes of the citizens of the town and vicinity. Short order meals can be obtained at the restraurants and sandwich foundries which will be appreciated that day.

The committee has only one restriction to announce on that day and this must be complied with. No horses will be permitted to stand or be tied on Main street. There will be plenty of livery room and hitching racks. The reasons are these: a horse and carriage would be in the crowd's way. It would hinder the performances. It would cause serious trouble in a crowd if frightened, besides that a horse might become frightened by the scent of the animals in the parade.

Make Our Store Your HEADQUARTERS Home - Coming Day, August 25. YOU are Always Welcome.

J. Beams SPENCERVILLE, IND.

The following is an exp'anation of the day's program. The forenoon will begin with a full program including the best part of the day's attractions.

In the morning beginning at 9:00 o'clock will be the speeches of the Old Settlers which will be many. Next comes the flour contest and its exciting attractions. If you want to know who the contestants are in this contest you will have to identify them before they enter because you won't know them after they come out. At 10:30, St. Joe and Spencerville will mix up in a ball game. These teams have been rival teams for years in base ball ability, and a fast game can be expected. From 11:30 to 1:00 dinner hour and concert by the Farmers Band. From 1 to 3:30 marks the period of many races, such as hundred yard dashes of the old and young, fat man and lean man, the goose chase, pig race, ect., winding up with another flour race. From 3:30 to 4:30 will be the fantastic parade which will be led by Wild Bill, the second with his bucking bronco and the famous Farmers Band. The parade will include three bands the Farmers Band, Skinnie Obedienhotchenklothher twenty pieces military band and a Sheep Skin band. Old Esq. Sourcream will be there with his grind organ and little monkey. At 5:00 to 6:30 supper after which two festivals will be given on the church lawn. $125 worth of fire works to be exhibited in the evening.

Bring your old junk and rubber to J. F. Baltz. Prices right.

YOU ARE ALWAYS WELCOME AT THE TREECE RESTAURANT

Lunch, Cigars, Confectionary, Ice Cream and Soft Drinks

Clem Treece PROPRIETOR.

AUGUST 17TH — AUGUST 27TH

Beams & Company

SPENCERVILLE, INDIANA.

The season has arrived when we wish to give you the one time of your life, in the way of cash buying, that will certainly pay you to investigate. This sale lasts 10 days only, commencing

Wednesday, Aug. 17, Continuing until Saturday, Aug. 27.

Remember that these prices are for cash or trade only.
We herewith submit for your consideration the following CASH prices.

For the Men and Boys.

HATS

$2 25 hats go at.....$1 25 to 1 65
2 00 hats go at.....$1 38
1 50 hats go at..... 1 15
Straw hats very cheap.....
Summer caps from 10c up.....

Winner Overall and Shirts

$ 75 article at.....$ 68
1 50 suit at..... 1 35
50 overall at..... 44
50 shirt at..... 43
A lot of $1.50, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Pants cheap.

DRESS SHIRTS

$1 00 shirts at.....87c
50 shirts at.....44c
These shirts are nearly all new.

SUMMER UNDERWEAR

$ 50 garments at.....43c
1 00 suits at.....81c
A few 25c garments at.....21c
Fleeced lined underwear at the same prices.

SOCKS

Mens work socks go at
10c values at.....8c or 4 for 30c
25c pair at.....21c
15c pair at.....12c or 3 pairs for 35c

SHOES.

$3 50 Oxfords at..... $2 75
4 00 dress shoes at..... 3 39
3 50 dress shoes at..... 2 78
3 00 dress shoes at..... 2 38
2 50 dress shoes at..... 2 10
2 25 dress shoes at..... 1 79
2 00 dress shoes at..... 1 60

Boys Elk Outing Shoes

Sizes 3, 3½, 4, a good $2.00 shoe for only.....$1 70

Work Shoes.

$3 00 Elkskins at..... $2 55
3 00 Water proof at..... 2 45
2 50 shoes at..... 2 10
2 25 shoes at..... 1 80
2 00 shoes at..... 1 65
2 00 black or tan..... 1 65

FANCY DISHES CONSISTING OF BERRY SETS, CAKE PLATES, SALAD, BONBON AND PLENTY OF OTHERS AT $1.00 and $1.25, Pieces 65c and 80c.

Buy your Childrens Shoes at this time and save money and be satisfied.

Our line of Groceries is of the Highest Quality.

For the Ladies.

36 in Brilliantine worth 50c. at 39c yd
50c Summer Silks.....39c yd
50c and 60c Overlace.....41c yd
25c Trimming.....19c yd
16c Dotted Swiss.....12c yd
25c novelty Crepe.....18c yd
25c Soiesette.....19c yd
10c Dress Ginghams.....8c yd
8c Apron checks.....6⅔c yd
6 and 7c Calico at.....5⅓c yd

MUSLINS.

9c Bleached Muslins.....7⅓c yd
10c " " .....8c yd
11c " " .....9c yd

UNBLEACHED MUSLINS.

10c at.....8⅓c yd
8c at.....6⅔c yd

LACE CURTAINS.

$3 25 pr. at.....$2 79
3 00 pr. at..... 2 49
1 25 pr. at..... 99
25c Dutch Collars at.....19c
25c Bow Ties at.....19c
Your choice back combs.....15c
$1 00 Jackson Corset.....79c
50 " " 39c

Black Sateen Underskirts

$1 25 at.....98c
1 00 at.....84c

Ladies Oxblood Oxfords

$3 00 pr. at.....$1 99
A few other oxfords cheap.

SHOES.

$3 00 Hand Turned Shoe.....$2 45
2 50 Vici and Gun Metal..... 2 10
2 25 Button and lace..... 1 80
All other shoes at equally reduced prices.

AUGUST

L 904

0487

STATE FARMERS' UNION CLOSES

Meeting Addressed by Fred T. Brochin of Spencer.

CONSTITUTION IS AMENDED

Executive Committee Will Thereafter Fix Prices to Be Received for Farm Products and Transact Other Business.

Indianapolis.—The second annual convention of the Indiana Society of the Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union closed a two-days' session with an open meeting at Logootee, which was addressed by Fred L. Brochin of Spencer. Just before the close of the session the following officers were elected:

President—W. W. Myers, Knox county.

Vice President—Fred Sheeks, Martin county.

Secretary-Treasurer—Stanton Johnson, Knox county.

Executive Committee—O. D. Forsythe and C. S. Agelon, Daviess county; A. W. Kato, Pike county; W. H. Brown, Spencer county; Emanuel Brown, Martin county.

Delegate to the National Convention at Charlotte, N. C.—J. E. Williams, Daviess county.

The place of the next meeting will be decided by the executive committee at a meeting which will be held later in Washington. Those who attended the secret sessions said that but little of outside interest was transacted, the time being taken up with committee reports and discussions.

The constitution of the society was amended so as to give the executive committee almost unlimited power. This committee hereafter will set the prices to be received for farm products. The discussion of the committee reports was prolonged. It was agreed to construct grain storage establishments as fast as it is possible to raise the money.

The secretary gave out the unofficial statement that the membership now was in excess of 26,000. This shows a gain of about 20,000 since the gathering a year ago. The attendance at the convention was small, there being fewer than 100 delegates present.

Improvements at Forest Reservation.

Visitors to the Indiana forest reservation, near Henryville, on the occasion of the inspection by the state board of forestry, found many improvements effected in the last few years at the experimental station. The land has been owned by the state for about seven years and was, before its purchase by the state, mere "knob" land, worth about one dollar an acre. The foresty contains 2,000 acres, irregular in shape, but roughly a mile wide and three miles long.

The most beautiful part of the reservation is that which is still filled with native growth of chestnut, oak and pine. Other parts of the grounds are used as nurseries, and the work of classifying and marking the young trees is going on. It is the desire of Charles C. Deem, state secretary, to complete a thorough survey of the land. One improvement made was building a road around the borders of the reservation. This serves the double purpose of a boundary line and a fire lane, which might well save the valuable timber from fire started beyond the limits of the reservation. Similar lanes have been cut in various parts of the reservation in order to localize any fire that might break out. The regulations as to the use of fire within the limits or smoking therein are stringent, and no hunting is allowed. The underbrush is being cleared up, and the danger of fire constantly reduced.

Slack Guest of Honor.

Former State Senator L. Ert Slack of Franklin was the guest of honor at the fifth annual picnic of the employes of the Central Insane hospital, held at Riverside park. During the course of the lawn supper Mr. Slack spoke to the 150 former employes of the hospital, giving reminiscences of the days he was an employe, during the years 1892-96.

The entertainment was in charge of Lon Wisby, retiring vice-president of the organization, in the absence of President A. E. Shirley. The date of the next annual picnic was set for the first Sunday in August, 1911, and Brookside park was the place selected. Officers for the ensuing year elected were: President, James Ahern; vice-president, John A. Barron, and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Sadie Hulsopple.

Nonresident guests at the meeting included: Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Auble, Jefferson, O.; Edward McClevand, Auburn, N. Y.; Dr. Frank Ray, Shelbyville; John Barnes, Clayton, and former Senator and Mrs. L. Ert Slack, Franklin.

Seeks to Unify Indiana Factions.

Edwin M. Lee, Republican state chairman, is arranging for the most comprehensive state-wide organization that was ever attempted in Indiana. Fifteen committees will be sent into the congressional districts for conferences with the workers and there will be "get together" meetings in every city in the state.

All the members of the old Fairbanks guard are included in the committees. It is hoped to get all the Republicans in the state in line for the state and legislative tickets.

New Order Enters Field.

Prospectuses for the National Reform League of America were issued by Dr. Winfield C. Helt, former district superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, who is the founder and secretary of the new organization. The new league, it is declared, will provide "a practical system of dealing with the drink problem" and concisely the purposes and plan of the league are stated on the title page in the following words:

"The object sought, good government and good citizenship; the first task, purification of city politics; the first problem, the drink habit; the treatment proposed, the utmost restraint of the traffic, wise laws intelligently administered and broad-minded co-operation with all other agencies working in good faith for the ultimate elimination of the drink evil from society.

Doctor Helt, after ten years in the Anti-Saloon league, retired five months ago because he declared he thought the league was attempting to accomplish the impossible.

"I am national secretary of the National Reform league," said Doctor Helt, "and for the present the working organization will center in Evansville. We are not ready to say what our organization consists of. The state of Illinois is organized, and we are preparing to form state leagues in Texas, Oklahoma and Missouri. The Illinois officers for the present will remain secret, because the secretary, a prominent Chicago man, is engaged in a local political war that might embarrass his connection with the league.

"We are not going to oppose the Anti-Saloon league. Where we have purposes in common we will work side by side if the Anti-Saloon league wishes it so. No attack will come from our side. We are endeavoring to get a business men's organization."

Supporters of Doctor Helt's new league, here and elsewhere, declare that the Anti-Saloon league has lost much of its effectiveness because it has become a religio-political organization.

The organization will proceed experimentally this summer with states as units until the whole country is covered. No national meeting is scheduled for the present. Doctor Helt will direct all organizers and organizations will be completed wherever sought by local sympathizers. The league will be maintained by voluntary subscriptions. It will not work as a secret society.

Commend Nine Trustees.

Nine out of fifteen township trustees whose books have been audited by the field examiners detailed from the office of the state board of accounts were commended for the accuracy of their records, while the advisory boards of Osolo township, Elkhart county, and Harrison township, Union county, were severely censured by the examiners for failure to perform their legal duties.

Of the six trustees whose books were found to be more or less incorrect, none is charged with a large discrepancy. The members of the present advisory board of Osolo township, Elkhart county, were negligent about keeping records, had no record for the tax levies for 1909, and no record of settlement with the trustee in 1910, according to the examiners. The advisory board of Harrison township, Union county, "met twice in 1909, but their records were very meager and did not cover the law at all," say the examiners. The minutes of one of the meetings are incorporated in the report of the examiners. The proceedings were recorded as follows:

"Advisory board special meeting, May 31, 1909, at Ben G. Tappen's, trustee of Harrison township.

"Art. I—Fixing road fund levy at 15 cents.

"Art. II—Giving trustee right to purchase school and road supplies without bids.

"Art. III—Repairing schoolhouse No. 6—William P. Kitchel, secretary."

Will Honor Memory of Gen. Coburn.

State fair week is the chief season for reunions of Indiana war veterans, and many regiments will hold meetings at Indianapolis during the exposition. Headquarters will be established for them on the grounds and the day will be given to sightseeing and visiting with old comrades. Every year the veterans pay tribute to some Indiana warrior, when they meet at the fair, and at the coming exposition this warrior will be Gen. John Coburn, not only prominent in the military affairs of Indiana during the Civil war, but also a member of the legislature which in 1851 founded the fair by passing a law creating the state board of agriculture.

Begs Democrats to Watch Every Point

Democratic State Chairman Stokes Jackson, with Charles E. Cox, candidate for the supreme bench, and W. H. Volmer for state treasurer, met with the First District Democratic committee here in the first of a series of district organization meetings to embrace the entire state. Chairman Jackson, in his talk said the Kern bribery talk of Republican newspapers was foolish.

Incorporations.

Articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the secretary of state as follows:

Phi-Psi-Chi of Indianapolis, Indianapolis; literary and social; no capital stock; incorporators, Thomas M. Quinn, Leslie Duvall, Colin V. Dunbar and Walter Spalding.

Chapin Manufacturing company, Indianapolis; capital stock, $20,000; to manufacture carburetors; directors George F. Quick, William S. Poling Daniel Rosenbaum, William Y. Chapin and Frank A. Chapin.

NEW INSTITUTIONS FOR THE INSANE

Patients May Not Be Received Before September.

COMMISSION HOLDS MEETING

Governor Marshall Declares the Institution Shall Be Opened for Reception of Patients as Soon as Possible.

Indianapolis.—Governor Marshall, in a meeting with the commission in charge of the construction of the Southeastern Hospital for the Insane at Madison, formally accepted the institution from the commission and formally commissioned the board of trustees named some time ago to take charge. The trustees are: S. B. Sweet, Indianapolis; Eph Inman, Washington; Charles Cravens, Madison, and George F. Pleasants of Vevay. The building commission will not be discharged until some minor work which it wishes to supervise has been completed. The commission members are: G. A. H. Shideler, Marion; Mr. Inman, D. D. Jacobs, Lafayette, and W. H. Lewis, Pendleton. After the trustees were commissioned they formally elected Dr. Edward Busse of Evansville superintendent.

The governor also issued a proclamation declaring that the hospital shall be opeend for the reception of patients as soon as possible, but it is not expected that patients will be received before September 1.

In his proclamation the governor added Decatur county to the southeastern hospital district as originally described by the act providing for the hospital. The district now contains the following counties, each of which will have the following number of patients to place in the institution: Monroe, 50; Brown, 13; Bartholomew, 52; Lawrence, 36; Jackson, 59; Jennings, 20; Ripley, 43; Dearborn, 61; Ohio, 5; Switzerland, 24; Jefferson, 49; Scot, 14; Clark, 62; Floyd, 68; Washington, 27; Decatur, 39. Total, 601. Of this number 528 are now in other state hospitals, chiefly in the Central hospital in this city. Fifty-eight are in county poor asylums and seven are in county jails.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Muncie.—To the constant playing of a piano is attributed the death of Mrs. Thomas Swan, age thirty years, wife of the former assistant city engineer and daughter of City Councilman James Simmons, a wealthy contractor. Mrs. Swan was an accomplished musician and not only played much at home, but recently took a position as player in a local theater, where she was required to put in several hours a day. This produced brain trouble and about a week ago she collapsed and died.

Richmond. — Ignorance was the downfall of Homer Staley, twenty years old, who attempted to pass a forged check for $6.50 on the First National bank. Staley did not know that the bank officials have duplicates of the signatures of their depositors, and, as a usual thing, are able to make identifications hastily and accurately.

Zionsville.—Mr. and Mrs. William N. Lemon, living two and a half miles west of Zionsville, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, and many relatives and friends from different parts of the state were present. Many telegrams and letters of congratulation were received from friends abroad. Mr. and Mrs. Lemon were the recipients of a large number of presents, including $104 in gold.

Indianapolis.—The Marion County Agricultural, Horticultural and Farmers' Institute association will hold its next regular meeting at the office of the Indiana Farmer on the state fair grounds. Reports of standing committees; paper by J. C. Schlosser; "Some of the Mistakes of the Average Indiana Farmer," Dr. E. H. Collins, and "Notes of Our Experiment Work on the Fair Grounds," Theodore M. Kingsbury.

Wabash.—Big Four Engineer Louis Anson and his fireman, both of this city, were thrown out and the engine overturned when a tramp threw a derail in the yards of the Michigan division at Niles, Mich. The engine struck the derail after being cut loose from the train and fell upon its side. It is thought the tramp had been ejected from the freight train.

Petersburg.—Frank Briggs, charged with first degree murder, was tried in the Pike circuit court and the jury, after being out one hour, returned a verdict finding the defendant guilty as charged and fixing his punishment at imprisonment for life. Briggs killed his best friend, Thomas Miller, at a dance at Ayrshire, this county, on the night of July 2.

South Bend.—Counterfeit United States currency notes are in circulation in northern Indiana, and secret service men have been put into the field to trace the source from which they were issued. The notes so far discovered are of $50 and $5 denominations, both having been found at Elkhart. One $50 note was accepted by J. H. McClary, night agent for the Northern Indiana railway office at Elkhart, having been presented in payment for a ticket from Elkhart to Goshen. A $5 note turned up in the office of City Treasurer Gray of Elkhart.

A NURSERY AUTO.

Oh, the joy of a glorious team!
Beating all the powers of steam,
A crack of the whip and off they go,
Through the rain and through the snow.

RABBIT TRAP IS EASILY MADE.

Good Serviceable Affair Can Be Constructed by Sinking Common Dry Goods Box in Ground.

A good serviceable rabbit trap can be made by sinking a common dry goods box in the ground to within 6 in. of its top. A hole 6 or 7 in. square is cut in each end level with the earth's surface and boxes 18 in. long, that will just fit are set in, hung on pivots, with the longest end outside, so they will lie horizontal. A rabbit may now look through the two tubes, says the American Thresherman. The bait is hung on a string from the top of the large box so that it may be seen and smelled from the outside. The rabbit naturally goes into the holes and in this trip there is nothing to awaken his suspicion. He smells the bait, squeezes along past the center of the tube, when it tilts down and the game is is shot into the pit, the tube righting itself at once for another catch. The top and sides of the large box may be covered with leaves, snow or anything to hide it. A door placed in the top will enable the trapper to take out the animals. By placing a little hay or other food in the bottom of the box the trap need not be visited oftener than once a week.

Rabbit in the Trap.

NEEDLE FLOATING ON WATER

Simplest Way is to Lay Tiny Piece of Steel on Tissue Paper—Latter Will Soon Sink.

There are several ways of making a needle float on the surface of the water. The simplest way is to place a piece of tissue paper on the water and lay the needle on it; the paper soon becomes soaked with water and sinks to the bottom, while the needle is left floating on the top.

Another method is to hang the needle in two slings made of threads, which must be carefully drawn away as soon as the needle floats.

If you magnetize a sewing needle by rubbing it on a fairly strong magnet, and float it on the water, it will make an extremely sensitive compass, and if you place two needles on the water at the same time you will see them slowly approach each other until they float side by side; that is, if they do not strike together so heavily as to cause them to sink.

Drawing Room Blizzard.

To enjoy this game best, go into the hall, or longest room in the house. Sometimes the door between two small rooms may be opened and thus give plenty of space.

Divide the players. Send half to one end, half to the other. Fasten two extra wide tapes near each end for goals. For a ball make a large one of tissue paper. Place this ball in the middle of the room, and at a given signal let each player, previously armed with a small fan, try to blow the ball over the opposite goal. The number of goals to a game must be planned beforehand, and each success is scored to the winning side.

This games makes a wonderful lot of fun, and soon a gray-haired man and woman can start as earnestly, blowing away to get the ball over the other goal as the children are.

The Philosopher of Folly.

"The reason undertakers grow rich," says the Philosopher of Folly, "is that their patrons never live to stand them up."

An East Indian Verdict.

In a case in one of our Indian courts a jury had before it evidence that could not be in any way shaken. When the concluding stage had been reached the following interchange of conversation took place between the judge and his colleagues in the administration of justice:

"Gentlemen, are you ready to give your verdict?"

"Yes."

"What is your verdict?"

"Our answer is, sir, that you can do as you like with the men that have confessed, but we acquit all the rest."

"But is it possible that you have weighed the evidence?"

"Evidence like this can always be fabricated."

"Do you find that as regards these prisoners it has been fabricated?"

"Evidence can be fabricated."

"So the evidence is untrustworthy?"

"Unless a man confesses, who can tell he is guilty?"—Bombay Gazette.

Remember, girls, the fairest flower is often the first to fade.

QUEER.

Miss Agatha Dunn sat out in the sun
And faded her pretty pink gown.
Mamma scolded well, until the tears fell
In torrents that threatened to drown.
"Your dress is a sight, I declare it is white,
But wear it you certainly must!
'Tis a poor recompense, that a child of your sense,
Is too much of a baby to trust."

Miss Agatha Dunn sat out in the sun,
In a gown that had one time been pink.
"If only I could bring it back—oh, I would!"
She cried, and proceeded to think.
Some raspberry ice, so cooling and nice,
In the freezer stood waiting for tea.
Said Miss Dunn: "Oh, I guess, if I dip in my dress,
A beautiful pink it will be."

Miss Agatha Dunn rose out of the sun,
And slipped off the gown in a trice.
She rolled it up tight—there was no one in sight—
And she soaked it in raspberry ice.
It came out quite pink, but what do you think!
When the news of it reached mamma's ear
She scolded much more than she scolded before.
Now, don't you think mothers are queer?

WAYS OF CATCHING MONKEYS

Filipino Natives Have Decidedly Interesting Method of Capturing Lazy Little Animals.

In the Philippine Islands the natives catch monkeys in a curious way.

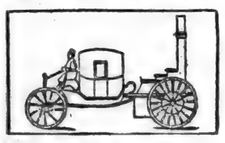
The monkeys are fond of the meat of cocoanuts, which grow as plentifully there as apples do in our country. They are lazy, though, about gnawing through the outer bark, and will only do so when exceedingly hungry. The natives take advantage of their greed and indolence by cutting a small opening through the shell, just large enough for Mr. Monkey's long, thin hand to penetrate.

When he once gets inside, he gets his hands full of delicious, dainty meat, and his hand is naturally wider in this act than when it entered. Finding his hand will not come out the monkey chatters and scolds, plainly showing his indignation at the way he has been trapped, but never thinks of loosening his hold on the cocoanut and withdrawing his hands as easily as he put it in. There he stands, an angry monkey, until the man who set the cocoanut trap comes and takes him captive.

AUTOMOBILES MADE IN 1784

Machines, Propelled by Steam, Were Seen on English Highways Over Century Ago.

Although aeroplanes may be said to be a completely new invention, the same cannot be said of the automobile. That illustrated below is considerably over a century old. The power employed was steam, and it was to be seen on the highways of



The First Automobile.

England so far back as 1784. It was at that time regarded as the wonder of the world. In appearance it was cumbersome, even when compared with that nerve-racking production of the present day, the motor-bus, but it answered its purpose very well.

Hunt the Squirrel.

A circle is formed. One runs around the outside, tags one on the back and continues running. The one touched turns and runs the other way. When the two meet they must stop and bow three times, and continuing running, each in his own direction, see who can first reach the starting point.

Clever Pompadour.

Pompadour, a large Thomas cat owned by Mrs. James Howe of Skowhegan, Me., is noted for his intelligence and sagacity, says the Boston Globe.

A short time ago he called another cat to his aid to rid the house of a large number of mice. He directed the strange cat to stand by the door leading into the shed while he (Pompadour) slowly worked a string that had a piece of cheese fastened to it, alluring the mice into the kitchen. That night 40 or 50 mice were slain by Pompadour and his assistant.

Mr. Howe lives some distance from the postoffice and usually sends his mail by the last evening train. As soon as he has his letters ready he ties them to Pompadour's neck and the cat carries them to the postoffice.

A Plain Baby.

"Johnnie," said teacher, "I hear you have a new baby up at your house. Is it a boy or a girl?"

"Neither," said Johnnie promptly. "It's just a plain baby!"

A BAD THING TO NEGLECT.

Don't neglect the kidneys when you notice lack of control over the secretions. Passages become too frequent or scanty; urine is discolored and sediment appears. No medicine for such troubles like Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly remove kidney disorders.

A. Dashem, 241 N. Grant St., Wooster, O., says: "The doctors diagnosed my case as gravel, but my agony increased under their treatment, and I soon became too weak to stand alone. I had given up all hope of living more than a few weeks at the best. I was strongly urged to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after twelve days' use, I passed two gravel stones. After that, I improved rapidly until cured."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

It Was the Other Way.

"Mr. Jones," said the senior partner in the wholesale dry goods house to the drummer who stood before him in the private office, "you have been with us for the past ten years."

"Yes, sir."

"And you ought to know the rules of the house. One of them is that no man of ours shall take a side line."

"But I have none, sir."

"But you have lately got married."

"Yes; but can you call that a side line, Mr. Jones?"

"Technically, it may not be."

"You needn't fear that having a wife is going to bring me in off a trip any sooner."

"Oh, I don't. It is the fear that having a wife at home you'll want to stay out on the road altogether!"

History Cleared Up.

The third grade was "having history." Forty youngsters were making guesses about the life and character of the Father of His Country, when the teacher propounded a question that stumped them all.

"Why did Washington cross the Delaware?"

Why, indeed? Not a child could think of anything but the answer to the famous chicken problem: "To get on the other side," and, of course, that wouldn't do. Then little Annie's hand shot into the air. Little Annie crosses the Delaware every summer herself, hence the bright idea.

"Well, Annie?"

"Because he wanted to get to Atlantic City."—Philadelphia Times.

Only One Cobb.

The morning after Judge Andrew Cobb, a one-time justice of the supreme court of Georgia, tendered his resignation, an Atlanta lawyer and a shoe drummer sat in the same seat in an outgoing train.

The lawyer bought a newspaper and looked over the headlines. Then he turned to the drummer and said:

"Well, I see Cobb has resigned."

"Gee!" said the drummer. "What Saturday Evening Post. will Detroit do now?"—Philadelphia

His Soft Answer.

And this is the sort of excuse you put up for coming home two hours late for dinner and in such a condition—that you and that disreputable Augustus Jones were out hunting mushrooms, you wretch? And where, pray, are the mushrooms?"

"Eere zay are,m' dear, in m' ves' pocket; and w'ile zay ain' so many of 'em, m' dear, we had lots of fun—Gus an' I—huntin' 'em."

Reformation.

"You say you are a reformer?"

"Yep," replied the local boss; "of the deepest dye."

"But you were not always so."

"No. The reformers reformed our town last year and I want to reform it back again."

A wise author draws his own conclusions at the beginning.

A COOL PROPOSITION

And a Sure One.

The Body Does Not Feel Heat Unpleasantly if it has Proper Food—

Grape-Nuts

People can live in a temperature which feels from ten to twenty degrees cooler than their neighbors enjoy, by regulating the diet.

The plan is to avoid meat entirely for breakfast; use a goodly allowance of fruit, either fresh or cooked. Then follow with a saucer containing about four heaping teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, treated with a little rich cream. Add to this about two slices of crisp toast with a meager amount of butter, and one cup of well-made Postum.

By this selection of food the bodily energy is preserved, while the hot, carbonaceous foods have been left out. The result is a very marked difference in the temperature of the body, and to this comfortable condition is added the certainty of ease and perfect digestion, for the food being partially predigested is quickly assimilated by the digestive machinery.

Experience and experiment in food, and its application to the human body has brought out these facts. They can be made use of and add materially to the comfort of the user.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

AUGUST

0488

L 904

60 Bushels of Wheat

per acre is not unusual in England because the farmers there know the value of fertilizers and use them liberally. You can double your crops and preserve the fertility of your soil by using

Armour's Fertilizers

Increase the Yield, Improve the Quality and Enrich the Soil. Every Harvest Proves It.

Armour Fertilizer Works, - Chicago

LIKE HOCH.

"What have you to, say to this charge of bigamy; why did you have so many wives?"

"Well, judge, I expected to weed out a few of them later."

RAW ECZEMA ON HANDS

"I had eczema on my hands for ten years. I had three good doctors but none of them did any good. I then used one box of Cuticura Ointment and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent and was completely cured. My hands were raw all over, inside and out, and the eczema was spreading all over my body and limbs. Before I had used one bottle, together with the Cuticura Ointment, my sores were nearly healed over, and by the time I had used the third bottle, I was entirely well. To any one who has any skin or blood disease I would honestly advise them to fool with nothing else, but get Cuticura and get well. My hands have never given me the least bit of trouble up to now.

"My daughter's hands this summer became perfectly raw with eczema. She could get nothing that would do them any good until she tried Cuticura. She used Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Ointment and in two weeks they were entirely cured. I have used Cuticura for other members of my family and it always proved successful. Mrs. M. E. Falin, Speers Ferry, Va., Oct. 19, 1909."

What They Did With Them.

An American who spends much of his time in England tells of a cockney who went to a dealer in dogs and thus described what he wanted. "Hi wants a kind of dog about so 'igh an' so long. Hit's a kind of gr'y'ound, an' yet it ain't a gr'y'ound, because 'is tyle is shorter nor any o' these 'ere gr'y'ounds, an' 'is nose is shorter, an' 'e ain't so slim round the body. But still 'e's a kind o' gr'y'hound. Do you keep such dogs?" "We do not," said the dog man. "We drown 'em."

Picturesque Language.

"I'm afraid fire has very poor table manners."

"Why so?"

"A young reporter says the 'greedy flames devoured everything in reach and then licked the paint off an adjoining buildings.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Not Really Famous.

"Did he ever attain real eminence?"

"I don't think so. He was never looked on as the 'hope of the white race.'"—Detroit Free Press.

Young girls ought to make the most of their birthdays, for in after years they cease to have them.

IF YOU USE BALL BLUE,
Get Red Cross Ball Blue, the best Ball Blue. Large 2 oz. package only 5 cents.

When a girl marries for a home she seldom boasts of what she gets.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

You have got to know a business before you can make a success of it.

The Wrong Sort.

An old Irish peasant was one Sunday sitting in front of his cottage puffing away furiously at his pipe.

Match after match he lighted, pulling hard at the pipe the while, until at last the ground all round his feet was strewed with struck matches.

"Come in to your dinner, Patsy," at length called out his wife.

"Faith, and Oi will in a minute, Biddy," said he. "Moike Mulrooney has been a-telling me that if Oi shmoked a bit av ghlass Oi cud see the shpots on the sun. Oi don't know whether Moike's been a-fooling me or whether Oi've got hold av the wrong kind of ghlass."—Scraps.

Casey at the Bat.

This famous poem is contained in the Coca-Cola Baseball Record Book for 1910, together with records, schedules for both leagues and other valuable baseball information compiled by authorities. This interesting book sent by the Coca-Cola Co., of Atlanta, Ga., on receipt of 2c stamp for postage. Also copy of their booklet "The Truth About Coca-Cola" which tells all about this delicious beverage and why it is so pure, wholesome and refreshing. Are you ever hot—tired—thirsty? Drink Coca-Cola—it is cooling, relieves fatigue and quenches the thirst. At soda fountains and carbonated in bottles—5c everywhere.

It Wouldn't Stretch.

The assessor was doing the very best he could, but the farmer was shrewd and wary.

"How many acres of farming land have you?" he inquired warily.

"'Bout 20, I guess," said Reuben.

"Twenty! Why, it looks to me like nearer 120. Come, now, can't you increase that a little? There are surely more than 20 acres in that tract. Suppose you stretch that a little."

"Say, feller," said the farmer, "this ain't no rubber plantation."—Harper's Monthly.

Don't Eat Soap.

Every now and then you get a faint taste of soap in something you eat. That is because the pot or skillet or saucepan has been cleaned (?) with ordinary yellow soap, and it has left a trace of the rancid fat and nauseating rosin in the vessel. If Easy Task soap is used, the cooking utensils are made absolutely clean and antiseptically sterilized. Families that use Easy Task soap seldom have a doctor's bill to pay, because it drives out disease germs with the dirt. One cake of it is worth two of other sorts.

119 Years Old When He Died.

Paddy Blake, who was born at Ballygireen, parish of Kilnasoolagh, County Clare, Ireland, 119 years ago, has died in the Corofin Union hospital. Paddy had a clear memory of events that happened a hundred years ago and was one of those who went to see Daniel O'Connell passing through Bunratty Pike on his way to Ennis for the great election of 1828.

Picturesque Language.

"I'm afraid fire has very poor table manners."

"Why so?"

"A young reporter says the 'greedy flames devoured everything in reach and then licked the paint off an adjoining buildings.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.
Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

How would it do to try the experiment of going to the erring with love, instead of law? Wouldn't it be a step nearer to paradise?

Some people need only a little hole of observation to take in all the important scandals of the age.

The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of those experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations.

It's only a "tenderfoot" farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds himself regardless of digestion and nutrition. He might almost as well eat shavings for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak" the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the organs of digestion and nutrition and brace up the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an unfailing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by its use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains neither intoxicants nor narcotics, and is as free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

At the Parting of the Ways

By Francis A. Corey

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

Lying back in her big easy chair with the red firelight playing over her jewels and laces, Mrs. Taylor Peyton was a picture of luxurious ease. Young, beautiful, fabulously rich, the prizes of life had been showered lavisly upon her. Lois Barton could not understand why her proud face wore that look of weary discontent.

This six weeks' visit with her city cousin had given to Lois, herself, her one taste of real luxury. It was all very wonderful. She felt, sometimes, like a person transported to a land of enchantment. She had enjoyed every moment. But her visit was drawing to a close. Soon, she must return to the drudgery of the school room.

A flush sprang to her cheeks, kindled by a sudden thought. She, too, could live in a beautiful house with servants at her beck and call—buy her gowns at the big shops patonized by her cousin Virginia! Fate had thrown a golden apple in her way. She need not go back to the old treadmill round, the uncongenial tasks, unless she chose to.

But—Ward Winthrop! Well, what of him? It was two years since he had left Surry without bidding her goodby. In all probability she would never see him again. The surest cure for her aching heart was to set up the image of another in the shrine so long kept sacred to him.

Meanwhile Virginia Peyton, on the other side of the dancing fire, was looking her over approvingly.

"My dear," she said, "that simple white gown is in excellent taste. A country girl shouldn't make herself too smart at city functions. I wanted you to look your best tonight. Gordon Vance will be at the reception. He is very fastidious. With men of his temperament, trifles turn the scale. I shall let him know that you return home the last of the week. I think he will come to the point before the evening is over."

"Oh, I hope not!" Lois exclaimed with a sudden revulsion of feeling.

"Of course not, you little fool! How can you think it?"

Mrs. Vandyke's parlors were filled to overflowing with fashionably dressed men and women. It was the usual crush—music, flowers, ravishing toilets. As the newcomers were making the slow round of the rooms Virginia Peyton dropped a sharp whisper into her companion's ear.

"Look! There he is! He's coming this way. This may be your last chance, remember!"

Gordon Vance paused beside them, his handsome face deeply flushed. "I was watching for you, Miss Barton," he said.

Lois' eyes drooped under his ardent gaze. She was at the parting of the ways. The momentous question must soon be answered, and the thought terrified her. There was a cowardly impulse to run away—escape from it all.

But marriage with this man meant the elimination of many bitter-sweet memories from her sore heart. Gordon Vance was cultivated, agreeable—she might love him in time. The prospect of becoming his wife would have dazzled most girls in her position. It would be madness to throw away this matrimonial prize.

"Let us find a quiet spot where we can talk," he pleaded presently. "I have something particular to say to you."

Lois gave a frightened gasp. Glancing around, as if for protection, she saw her cousin suddenly change color, stare right ahead with tense expression, then wheel about and come swiftly toward her.

"I'm faint—ill! These rooms are stifling," Virginia panted. "Please take me home, Mr. Vance. Lois, get your wraps and come quickly."

But Lois' suspicions had been aroused by this sudden indisposition. Glancing curiously toward the upper end of the long room she saw a tall, distinguished-looking man talking animatedly with their hostess. It was Ward Winthrop!

One long-drawn, startled breath, and the girl's sweet lips came together in a straight line. A dozen thronging emotions all at once resolved themselves into a fixed determination, Virginia put out a detaining hand, but she shook it off.

"I mean to know the truth," she said in a resolute voice.

"Have you no pride—no shame?" Virginia cried angrily. "After that man's shabby treatment!"

Ward Winthrop flushed, then paled, when he saw her coming. His eyes had been drawn to her face as by a magnet. Something in her expression quickly changed his cold nod of recognition into a cordial handclasp.

"You, Lois? What a surprise! I'm delighted to see you again."

He looked at her wistfully, with curious intentness. Mrs. Vandyke, conscious of something unusual in the situation, discreetly turned away. The two were left standing by themselves. Lois could hear the pounding of her own heart above the throb of the music, the babble of gay voices; but the man's eager face swam mistily before her eyes.

"Lois, dear, what is it?" he bent to whisper. "Do you feel that you made a mistake in not answering my letter two years ago?"

"Your letter?" she repeated. "I received no letter from you."

"I wrote the morning I left Surry, giving the address to which an answer was to be sent. I was called away unexpectedly. I hadn't time to come and bid you goodby. I asked you in that letter if you would marry me when I won out. I watched the mails for many days, but no answer ever came. Of course, I concluded you had taken that way to let me know my hopes were futile."

A sudden brightness went over Lois' face like a flood of spring sunshine.

"Your letter never reached me, Ward," she said softly. "I think I understand why—"

"What would you have answered if it had?" he interrupted eagerly. "That is what matters. I can ask you to marry me with a clear conscience. For I have made good! Fame and fortune are mine. I love you more than ever. Have I any chance of winning what is of greater consequence to me than anything else in the whole world?"

Lois glanced back to where Gordon Vance and Virginia were standing, and a shiver went over her. The next moment she was smiling happily into her lover's face. "Oh, Ward, you did not come too soon," she said in a sobbing whisper. "I was at the parting of the ways. I might have taken the one that led forever away from you!"

A Stag Dinner.

At a stag dinner given last year by a young woman for her husband and brother the decorations were so original as to be worth repeating here. In the center of the round table was placed a large cut glass tobacco jar filled with loose tobacco. On top of this was a little bisque doll dressed like a ballet dancer, with spreading skirts.

A circle of small playing cards was arranged to form a centerpiece, and from this radiated a row of cards to each plate, forming a wheel.

Corncob pipes were stacked at each corner of the table, and at each cover were tiny beer steins and little sample bottles of wine as souvenirs. The menu was a substantial one, such as men like. It consisted of bouillon, thick sirloin steak, with French fried potatoes, string beans, endive salad with Camembert cheese and wafers, frozen fruit pudding and black coffee. This is an easy dinner to prepare and serve even without a maid.

A BLUFFER ALWAYS.

Ella—A man is as old as he feels.

Stella—How about woman?

Ella—She is as young as she can bluff people into thinking she is.

She Burned the House.

A woman in Montana sat down the other day and thought about house cleaning—about the carpets and rugs to clean, the woodwork to wash, the bedding to wash, the curtains to wash, the portieres to wash, the stairways and the railings and the floors and the steps and the windows and everything else to be washed and cleaned—and she got so worried over the prospect that she set fire to the house. Do you blame her? If she had only known as you do that Easy Task soap will do half the work of washing and cleaning, she would have felt more cheerful. It's a nickel a cake and one woman said she would pay a dollar a cake for it if she could get it no other way.

The Nurse's Opinion.

A nurse had been called as a witness to prove the correctness of the bill of a physician.

"Let us get at the facts in the case," said the lawyer, who was doing a cross-examination stunt. "Didn't the doctor make several visits after the patient was out of danger?"

"No, sir," answered the nurse. "I considered the patient in danger as long as the doctor continued his visits."

On a Stygian Ferryboat.

Charon was ferrying a passenger across the Styx.

"Fine scenery for my toothpowder ad," cried the shade.

Thus we see the ruling passion survives.

For Red, Itching Eyelids, Cysts, Styes Falling Eyelashes and All Eyes That Need Care Try Murine Eye Salve, Aseptic Tubes—Trial Size—25c. Ask Your Druggist or Write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago.

What's become of the hookworm fake? Gone out of Stiles? When will they get into Stiles again? Eh, Dr. Stiles?

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take. Do not gripe.

I have been to feasts of arguments where the only result was a constipation of real original ideas.

YELLOW CLOTHES ARE UNSIGHTLY. Keep them white with Red Cross Ball Blue. All grocers sell large 2 oz. package, 5 cents.

A man's argument is nearly always self convincing.

An Unnecessary System.

"You ought to have a burglar alarm system in your house," said the electrical supply agent, "so that you will be awakened if a burglar raises one of the windows or opens a door at night."

"No burglar can get in here while we are peacefully sleeping," replied Mr. Newpop. "We are weaning our baby."

Low Rate Niagara Falls and Return.

Twenty-seventh annual [illegible] Aug. 22, via Nickel Plate [illegible] Special train. Tickets also good on train 4, Valparaiso and Cleveland Route. Good returning 12 days. Ask agent or write F. P. Parmin, T. P. A. Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Life is two-thirds bluff, law is three-fourths tyranny, pity is nine-tenths pretense. Be genuine and poor if you would die respected.

Don't Persecute your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal—harsh—unnecessary. Try

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, eliminate bile, and soothe the delicate membrane of the bowel. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Sick Headache and Indigestion, as millions know.

Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

A Skin of Beauty Is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S Oriental Cream and Magical Beautifier.

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 57 years, and is so harmless we taste it to be sure it is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. The distinguished Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut ton (a patient) "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the skin preparations." For sale by all Druggists and Fancy-Goods Dealers in the U. S., C. and Europe.

Ferd. T. Hopkins, Prop., 37 Great Jones St., New York

Oh! That Awful Gas

Did you hear it? How embarrassing. These stomach noises make you wish you could sink through the floor. You imagine everyone hears them. Keep a box of CASCARETS in your purse or pocket and take a part of one after eating. It will relieve the stomach of gas.

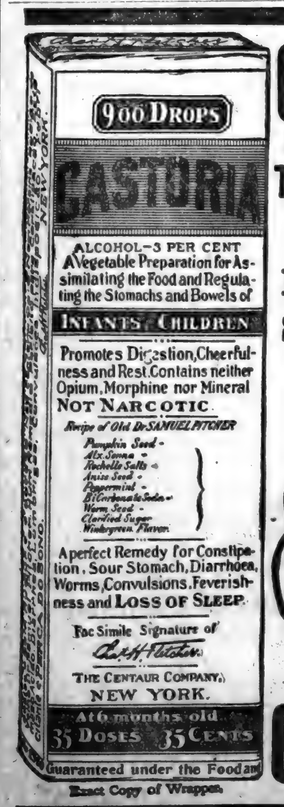
CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment. All druggists. Biggest seller in the world—million boxes a month.

STOCKERS & FEEDERS

Choice quality; reds and roans, white faces or angus bought on orders. Tens of Thousands to select from. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Correspondence Invited. Come and see for yourself.

National Live Stock Com. Co.
At either
Kansas City, Mo., St. Joseph, Mo., S. Omaha, Neb.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

MICA AXLE GREASE

Keeps the spindle bright and free from grit. Try a box. Sold by dealers everywhere.

STANDARD OIL CO.
(Incorporated)

AUGUST

L 904

U 489

DEFIANCE COUNTY FAIR

HICKSVILLE, OHIO

AUGUST 30-31, SEPTEMBER 1-2, 1910.

Three Days of Recreation, Pleasure and Profit

Wednesday is CHILDREN'S DAY. All children of 14 years and under admitted FREE.

Friday is Old Soldiers' Day and Old Soldiers, their wives, widows will be admitted free of charge

Splendid Races and other attractions have been provided for each day, while the stock and farm produce department will be found unusually fine this year.

No expense within reason is being spared, the effort being to make this year the greatest and best of the thirty-three years history of the Hicksville Fair.

HART'S FAMOUS BOY BAND

each day and evening, and Thursday the band will consist of Forty Pieces. The largest band ever playing in Hicksville.

Come everybody and have a good time.

Coburn's Corners

Edith Abel and Pluma Hamilton spent Thursday in Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Funk went to Michigan, Monday, to spend a couple of days.

Clarence Hart and wife of St. Joe, took dinner with his mother, Mrs. Alice Hart, Sunday.

Miss Edna Braybrook of Ft. Wayne, is spending a couple of weeks with her cousin, Fefn Walker.

Miss Laverty, a sister of Mrs. Vernon Wilmot, and Arthur Arnold of Cleveland, are visiting them.

Little Miss Nellie Wyatt of Auburn, is spending a couple of weeks with her cousin, Delpha Coburn.

Clifford and Fanny Milliman visited with their brother, John and family, of Blakesly, Ohio, over Sunday.

Mrs. Mercelles Gee of Kendallville, is spending a week with her father, Russell Coburn and other relatives.

Mrs. John Ulm, and Charles Gill and wife of Auburn, visited Thursday with George Howeys', east of Spencerville.

The Clover Leaf Manure Spreader is one of the handiest tools the farmers own.—See Curie.

Will Sommer and wife of near Leo, visited Sunday with Ross Abel and wife. Mrs. Sommer is a cousin of Mrs Abel.

Thayer Northrup and lady friend, Miss Lela Shilling, spent Sunday in Kendallville, the guest of Ross Andress and wife.

Mrs. Martin Abel and two daughters, Opal and Mary, of Branch, Mich., are the guests of her sister, Mrs. Cadmus Shull and family.

There were 82 present at Sunday School Sunday and a collection of $1 88. The Sunday School has not fell in attendance below 80 for several weeks.

Saxe Hadsell and wife spent over Sunday, taking in the sights of the Niagara Falls. They expect to stop off on their way home at Akron to visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shull, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton, and Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Tustison were among the guests that took dinner Sunday with O. K Shults' of Wabash Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gill of Auburn, Mrs. Josephus Shilling and daughter Lela, Mrs. William Bleeks of St. Joe, Emanuel Ulm and wife spent Wednesday with John Ulm and wife.

—If you want to know what makes Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Tustison look so happy I will tell you, it is all on account of the little granddaughter that arrived at the home of their son Earl's, the latter part of the week.

Mrs. Mose Perry is in very poor health at this writing.

Rheuben Deitrick and wife spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Goldsmith of near Hurshtown.

Clyde Hart attended the picnic at Cedar Chapel, two miles west of Spencerville. Clyde seems to have a mania for picnic this year, but we all know why.

Mrs. Walter Abel went to Fort Wayne, Sunday, to spend a couple of days with her sister at that place. They spent a pleasant afternoon together at Robison Park, Sunday.

SPENCERVILLE R. R. NO. 1.

Mrs. D. K. Horn and daughter Zona, spent last Wednesday at John Horns'.

Mrs. John Notestien and Mrs. Geo. Horn called on Mrs. D. K. Horn, Friday afternoon.

Miss Della Devilbiss of Peru, Ind., came Saturday evening to visit at Frank Horns' for a few days.

The Misses Tressa and Clara Hay, and Leila Horn were the guests of Mary Horn, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Nettlehorst and daughter Esther, were the guests of John Notestiens', a couple days last week.

John Notestiens' and Mrs. George Horn and daughter Mary, attended the picnic at Milan Center, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Baker of Butler, spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Val Hay. Clara Hay went home with them for a few weeks visit.

Be sure and take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with you when starting on your trip this summer. It cannot be obtained on board the trains or steamers. Changes of water and climate often cause sudden attacks of diarrhoea, and it is best to be prepared. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

WABASH CORNERS.

Ora White spent Friday in St. Joe the guest of his aunt, Mrs. Ella Gill.

Joe and Catherine Shull attended the picnic in the Dills grove Thursday.

Master Carl Ervin of Jackson Center is spending this week at Orange Herrick's.

Edna Perkins and gentleman friend of Ft. Wayne, spent Saturday night and Sunday with the former's parents at this place.

Abe Culbertson and wife of Concord and Nels Thomas and wife of St. Joe, were Sunday visitors at Orange Herricks, and Mr. Alva Perry and wife were Sunday evening guests.

Band Concert.
Saturday Night.
at St. Joe.

Emanuel Ulm and Geo. Wade each sold a horse last week.

Little Mary Pervines was the guest of John Smith and family Friday.

Frank Rhoads and wife were at Hamilton Lake from Friday until Sunday.

Bradley's Wheat Fertilizer is the best on the market. See Curie for particulars.

There is a post card shower for Geo. Wade of this place on Wednesday, August 24. All those wishing him a happy birthday, please send him a card, to St. Joe, Rt. 2.

Sherman Wolff and wife, Will Loux, Martha Lurch, George Pervines, wife and daughter, Waneta, spent Friday night at the home of Wm. Pervines and wife. Ice cream and cookies were served.

Charley Gill and wife of Auburn, Mrs. Elsie Bleeks of St. Joe and Mrs. Josie Shilling and daughter, Lela, spent Tuesday of last week with Emanuel Ulm and wife.

Benj. Hamilton and wife of St. Joe and daughter, Mrs. Lee Tustison of Sterling, Ill., called on Mrs. Millie Shull Friday afternoon.

Dennis Burley has the wall of his new house completed.

Bert Woodcox and family of St Joe were Sunday guests of Don Burley and wife.

STAGGERS SKEPTICS.

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or piles, staggers skeptics. But great cures prove its a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons, eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

Fairview Neighborhood

Hay's school house is being reroofed with patent galvanized shingles, this week.

Best line of Men's, Ladies and Children fine footwear in the County at Barney's.

The finishing touches were put on the John Hull residence last week, and they will soon move "out of the old house into the new."

Mrs. D. W. Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baker and children are visiting at Vermontville, Mich.

About everybody in Fairview neighborhood went visiting Sunday or entertained visitors at their homes. It somewhat reduced Sunday School attendance.

D. F. Buttermore got pretty badly shaken up by the upsetting of a load of sheaf rye. His partner in the mixup suffered a fractured arm and a broken rib or two.

Word has been received that George Bassett, a former Fairview boy, now in Kansas, had the misfortune to loose all his clothing except what he had on, by the burning of the farm home where he worked.

Last week, Mrs. J. W. Sherer was canning plums, of their own growing, and it occurred to her that they were a pretty good size; so she counted them and found that 15 filled a quart can. Hardly worth while to go to California for fine fruit, when DeKalb County is handy.

At the time of the re-dedication of Fairview church, a gentleman from Wells county, Ind., exclaimed "Fairview! certainly the place is well named; for a fairer view would be hard to find anywhere." I have always admired the beautifully rolling land of the Fairview Neighborhood, and it was a pleasure to have its beauty recognized by others. It is not only a beautiful country but a fertile one as well. I give below the yield of grains threshed by some of Fairview's good farmers: Mr. Frank Johnson 537 bushels of wheat, 346 of oats; Mr. Peter Coyle 400 bushels of wheat, 144 of rye, and 446 bushels of oats; W. H Wyatt 472 bushels of wheat and 800 bushels of oats. There are others, but I do not have the figures.

The political situation of DeKalb County would be richly humorous were it not that the election of Mr McKennan to the State legislature would make DeKalb county the laughing stock of the State. It will be remembered that Mr. McKennan was in the last legislature and voted for the repeal of the County local option law. In the local option campaign last fall Mr. McKennan espoused the "wet" side of the issue and did all that he could to place DeKalb in the "wet" column. In an article in the Fort Wayne Journal Gazette he practically read all Democrats out of the party who refused to be "tar buckets" to Steve Flemming's beer wagons. The County repudiated Mr. McKennan's ideas by nearly 1000 majority. He now aspires again to misrepresent the County in the State legislature, and though getting three candidates before the primary and lining up the "wet" contingent for himself received the nomination. Doubtless he figures that he can "line up" the "dry" democrats and corral the "wet" republicans; and that, the prohibitionists will drive to the polls in their little red partison wagon and fool away two hundred or three hundred votes on their legislature candidate and thus give him the election on an issue that gave him the "hook" last fall. Maybe it will work and maybe it wont. Here's one "dry" democrat who will see Mr. McKennan, where carat for carat, ice is worth more than diamonds, before he'll "line".

ST. JOE NEWS.

Band Concert Saturday evening.

Full line of Groceries at Barney's.

Wm. Curie was at Bryon on business Tuesday.

Merritt Sechler spent last week at Hamilton lake.

Don't forget the Silver Medal contest on August 31st.

New potatoes at Barney's. 20c a peck, 75c per bushel.

Get one of those 5 cent tablets at THE NEWS office. Our own make.

Morris Curie and family of Harlan, were Sunday guests of C. Curie and wife.

The best line of one-cent Post Cards in town can be seen at Kagey's.

M. T. Bishop and Rev. Hitchner go to Winona Saturday to attend the Bible conference.

Miss Grace Walker of Hicksville, spent a few days this week with relatives at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hettinger of Harlan were guests of C. S. Sailor and family Monday and Tuesday.

A car load of Clover Leaf Manure spreaders just arrived. See Curie immediately before fall work commences.

Robert Ulm will move to Butler within a few days where he will teach school this coming year.

Let everybody arrange to attend the Silver Medal contest given by the W. C. T. U on August 31st.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wilson and baby from Kendallville and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leysher of Mooresville, spent Sunday with C. S. Sailor and family.

If your liver is sluggish and out of tone, and you feel dull, bilious, constipated, take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets tonight before retiring and you will feel all right in the morning. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Mrs. H. G. Provines and son, James of Seneca, Mo., arrived last week for an extended visit with her parents.

Elder J. A. Brown, of the Church of Christ announces his subject for Sunday morning service, "Communion," and for the evening service, "Come Let Us Reason Together." Everybody invited.

St Joe Markets

Wheat	.95
Oats	.32
Butter, country	.25
Eggs	.19

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

ST. JOE.

Wm. Koch is numbered among the sick.

Stanley Hallabaugh is at home a sain.

The Christian Church is undergoing extensive repairs.

Miss Katie Allen of Edgerton is the guest of relatives here.

Harlan Coburn of Lansing, Mich, is at home for a few days.

In sowing wheat this fall try Bradley's Fertilizer. Curie handles it.

Uncle Henry Hull has been quite poorly the past week but is some better today.

Glen Abel and wife of Danville, Ill., are the guests of the former's parents here this week.

Mrs. Harry Milliman and children of Edon, are the guests of relatives and friends here this week.

The Nelson family reunion will be held at the Hicksville Fair Grounds today. Several relatives from here are in attendance.

Mrs. John Hebel and daughter Irene and Miss Lucile Hebel of Auburn, spent the fore part of the week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Thayer.

New full line of Gents' Furnishing Goods at Barney's.

G. M. Barney is assisting Mr. Hall of this place to invoice a stock of dry goods and general merchandise purchased at Grabill, namely the Fair Store. C. A. Patterson is also assisting in the work.

Mr. Wm. DeMaranville wishes to thank the many friends and members of the G. A. R. who sent him such beautiful cards on August 13, 1910. This will be remembered as a red letter day on his calendar.

A meeting of the field agents of the Lincoln Life Insurance Co., of Wayne was held at their office last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. W. C. Patterson, agent from this place was in attendance. He reports an excellent time and entertainment was furnished them at the Anthony hotel.

The Story Your Mirror Tells

NO VISIBLE LINE

You read and look afar with equal facility, but no one observes that you are wearing bifocals because the usual lines are absent. Wear the genuine Kryptok's awhile and you will never willingly return to old style bifocle glasses.

The Hartzog Method

of examination and adjustment insures correct comfortable glasses, backed by our Gharantee to give satisfaction. No charge for examination.

DR. J. W. HARTZOG
The Eyesight Specialist.

At Dr. Bowman office
St. Joe, Ind.,
Monday, August 22nd

Remember Date Call Early

HOME OFFICE
1213 Wells, Cor. Wells and High
Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

EXCURSIONS

FROM ST. JOE, INDIANA
TO
ATLANTIC CITY, CAPE MAY
OCEAN CITY and other
Atlantic Coast Resorts.

August 18, 1910. Round Trip $16.50

Consult B. & O. Agent for details.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad
VERY LOW FARES TO

Mountain Lake Park, Md.—July 29-Aug. 23-

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO—Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES—South Southwest, West, Northwest.

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST, Long Limits.

Consult BALTIMORE & OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stopover Privileges and Other Detailes.

THE NEWS
52 Doses for $1.00. Try it.

70 Years with Coughs

We have had nearly seventy years of experience with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. That makes us have great confidence in it for coughs, colds, bronchitis, weak throats, and weak lungs. Ask your own doctor what experience he has had with it. He knows. He can advise you wisely. Keep in close touch with your family physician. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Be well; be strong. You cannot if your bowels are constipated. The best laxative is Ayer's Pills, all vegetable. Ask your doctor if he agrees with us. Do as he says.

Grand Free Attraction
for the Farmers Picnic
ROBISON PARK
Wednesday, Aug. 24
ROLLO THE LIMIT.

He dashes down a 70 foot incline at lightning speed, turns a complete back somersault in mid air, landing upon another incline, then goes on down. AN ACTUAL FLIRT WITH DEATH.

FREE GATE! BAND CONCERT afternoon and Evening!

AUGUST

L 904

Accept This Invitation-- You'll be INTERESTED.

-LADY LAUREL.

You are cordially invited to a Laurel Reception to be held at our store from Thursday August 25th to Saturday the 27th, 1910.

J. W. Burwell & Son.

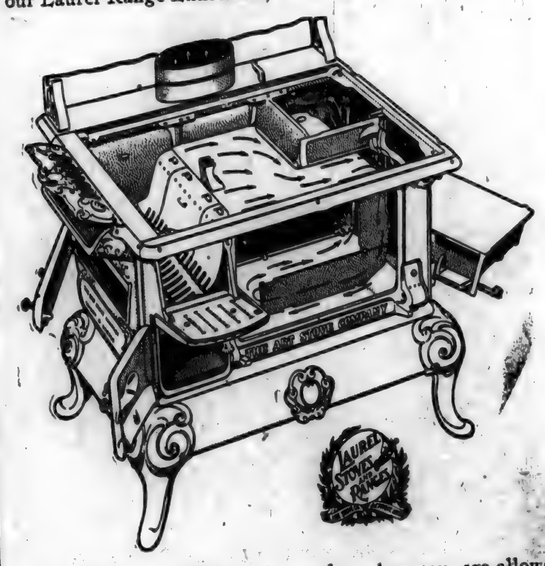
These will be gala days at our store. Everything that could possibly add to your comfort has been done. Besides making ready for your enjoyment, we have prepared a surprise for you in the form of a Laurel Range in operation.

"H'm! Nothing new in that," you say.

The picture in the center is a queer looking one, isn't it?

You never saw a stove pictured this way before—one that showed you the inside. Always pictured like the cut in the lower corner, Eh?

The point we wish to make is this: Because it is different this picture of the inside of a Laurel Range interests you; for the same reason you will be interested in our Laurel Range Exhibition, showing a Laurel Range fn operation—its different.



Not Another Range Like The Laurel.

Put your finger or a pencil on the arrows and follow them across top, down the decending flue, over and back on the oven bottom, then up the return flue and out at the smoke pipe and you will realize how the fire travels in a Laurel twin-flue Range.

Your eyes will open in wonder when you are allowed to look into the range through specially made covers containing mica. You can see how the fire is controlled by the Laurel Damper System. You will understand why a Laurel Range heats its top quicker and better; why it heats its oven as no oven was ever heated before.

You'll be convinced that a Laurel Range saves fuel. Yes, and many other things will be shown and proven to you. The "Doubting Thomas" becomes "a Believer" after witnessing a Laurel demonstration.

You are no exception to the rule, so we say YOU will be interested and glad you came.

Jot this down in your memory too: That if you purchase a Laurel Range this week, you will be presented with a five piece set of Laurel, triple coated, enameled ware, which would cost you all of $8.00, if you tried to buy it.

Again we say:

You'll be Interested.

Remember the dates are

August 25-26-27

Ask about our Special Offer.

J. W. Burwell & Son,

ST. JOE, IND.

A Letter

U. S. S. Va., N. Y., July 29, 1910.

Dear parents and all:

Well I haven't received a letter from you this week as the Va., has been at sea all week but expect to get in N. Y. today or tomorrow morning, so will write now so you can get this as soon as p ssible.

This leaves me as well as usual with the exception of a sore foot. Day before yesterday, (Wednesday) a fellow accidently dropped a grating weighing about 15 pounds from one deck down to another and it hit my foot over the instep. It got so sore that I could scarcely walk and couldn't wear my shoe but today I can wear my shoe and walk a little better.

Well we made a nice little cruise for the naval militia. Went to Bermuda Islands, taking three and one half days maneuvering around all the time. Had a fine trip going down but the sea was a little rough yesterday and some of them were a little sea sick but today the weather is fine.

Well the rumored trip to Europe is finally a c rtainty. The First Lieutenant read the itinerary a few days ago. It was as follows: Leave Boston November 1st, and arrive at Marselles, France November 17th, leave December 7th., for Lisbon, Portugal, arrive December 10th., leave January 1st., for Guantanamo, Cuba. So you see we won't visit many ports We are beginning to drill for battle practice, it is held at the southern drill ground some time in August or September, then we go to the Navy Yards at Boston. When we get to N. Y. today (for heard since we started that we get there today at 4 P. M.) I hope to get a letter or two from you folks.

When we went to ship at Norfolk it was at 4 o'clock in the morning and it was dark. We saw an animal of some kind on one of the nine inch mooring lines and so got afloat and went down to the line and the fellows were all anxious to find out what it was. We could see it had a bushy tail. Some said it was a coon, some thought it a skunk but didn't know. We found out that it was a pet coon belonging to the Minnesota and we took it aboard our ship He is still some place on the ship saw him upon the mast yesterday but haven't seen him today so maybe he is dead. Oh yes, our old mascot, the goat, ate a lot of cement and died just before we left the yards but there are cats galore, one dog besides the coon left so we have plenty yet.

It is nearly one o'clock so will close as there is hammock inspection at one, so good bye until Sunday. My love to everybody.

Your loving son and brother,
Floyd Coburn.

CONCORD.

Miss Mayme Funk is on the sick list .....Guy Strong and wife entertained to dinner Sunday, Howard Krise, wife and son Paul, Delbert Draggoo, wife and daughter Helen and E W. Johnson, wife and daughter Thelma .....Mrs. John Funk spent a few days last week in Butler.....Fred Hull wishes to thank those who so kindly remembered him on his birthday. He received ninety-three beautiful cards .....Frank Baker, wife and two daughters and Mrs. D. W Baker, left last Wednesday for a visit with relatives in Vermontville, Mich. They expect to return Saturday .... Dr. Knighswander and wife, who have spent nearly a year with their son in Oklahoma, returned to this place Friday .....Milton Carper, wife and little son, John Brown and family and Lodema Hull and two daughters, spent Sunday with Della Draggoo and family .....Rev. Brown commenced meeting in Carr's school house Monday evening .....Sherman Funk, who lives on Theo. Kline's farm, has most of the farmers in this neighborhood beaten on the oats crop. He threshed seventeen hundred bushels last week. .....Mrs. John Hissong spent Tuesday with her sister, Mrs. Will Scott.

Piano Recital

The first piano recital for the year 1910 of the Johnston School of Music, was given in the M. P. Church Tuesday evening to a packed house, by Miss Letha Blanch Coyle of northwest of St. Joe. Miss Coyle is yet a young girl of only fourteen years and successfully completed the course of study as perscribed by Mr. Johnston. The program commenced promptly at 8:00 P. M. and lasted for one hour with two intermissions. The ten numbers were all memorized and the entire audience was well pleased. The player was perfectly at home and was master of her pieces. It is certainly a credit to Miss Coyle and the teacher also, to receive as many compliments as she did from those who are judges of good music. The commencement and contest will be held Saturday night.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

Nearly every man makes a pet of some particular law.

The trouble is not that times have changed, but that you haven't.

We often think a big silly woman is sillier than a little silly woman.

If a man gets to work at 7 o'clock, it is after 9 before he is fully oiled up.

Discipline forms the excuse for a lot of nagging and other unpleasantness.

Talk about some men being poor at relating an anecdote; did you ever hear a woman try?

An easy chair will not keep a man at home unless he is otherwise disposed to stay there.

After a girl gets married, she queers the unmarried girls by looking tough when she comes downtown.

Hope is all right in its way, but if you haven't anything else, you are about at the end of your rope.

Take good care of your own business, and let others alone; if your advice is worth anything, sell it.

If you happen to know that people use too much medicine, it is not a sign you are a Christian Scientist.

A really polite and capable man can go into any town in the country, and attract attention in six months.

Man is very ungrateful: He will forget the good time he had a month ago, and say he never had one in his life.

When a man starts out by saying, "If I do say it myself," you can depend on it that he is going to praise himself.

In Outline.

"Have you prepared the speech you are going to deliver?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "I have taken several large sheets of paper and written 'laughter' and 'applause' at regular intervals. Now all I have to do is to fill in the stories or epigrams, as needed."—Washington Star.

A Fact of Interest to Her.

Stella—Know anything about the English budget?

Bella—Yes; papa says he won't buy me a lord till he knows where they are at.

McCALL PATTERNS 10¢ AND 15¢ NONE HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 236 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

WERNERT

Is headquarters for drugs of all kind. Toilet articles, Cold Cream, for the ladies toilet. Mrs. Prices Canning Compound is used extensively in the canning season and keeps it the same as when first canned. Paints, oils and Pharmacuticles.

Perscriptions carefully compounded.

SPENCERVILLE

AUGUST

L 904

0491

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 1910. NO. 34

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.
Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

The New Coats

For Ladies - Misses and Children.

Our Cloak department is already adding the new Coats, Capes and Suits for Fall and Winter wear and our St. Joe, Spencerville, Concord, Newville friends and the country surrounding these towns are most cordially solicited to come here this year for this class of apparel. We make this department one of the foremost at this season of the year by showing a comprehensive line that embraces an assortment to meet the wants of all classes of trade. If you want a cheap coat this year we have it. If you want a better one you can get it here. If you want one of the best there is we can supply you. Our stock of coats will be the largest we have ever displayed and you are invited to see them. Your car fare to Hicksville and return will be paid by us with any coats amounting to $5.00 or upward you purchase here.

THE HICKSVILLE FAIR NEXT WEEK.

We want "The News" readers to feel that this will be the "At Home" stopping place next week for fair visitors from St. Joe vicinity, and our friends are invited to make use of every accomodation which this establishment can supply.

Come to this Fair and Bring Your Friends.

The Band Concert ?

The band concerts this year have been progressing nicely until the last two nights. Some of the men on the subscription list have been failing to pay up when we would call each week for the money. When we place our name down on the list we intend to pay when the collector calls and each name on the list should do this without making us call several times for the small amount. If the collections are short this week the concerts will stop as far as we are concerned, but would like to see them continue the balance of the season. Do you realize Mr. Business Man and Mr. Citizen what a nice crowd gathers here each night to hear the band and see their friends? If the band was to quit you would notice a great change in the crowds. Think the matter over and when we call this week give your amount cheerfully.

Hardware To Move

Messrs J. W. Burwell & Son, who recently purchased the hardware store of Mr. D. J. Baker, is contemplating the moving of his hardware stock to another location where people of a town appreciate what it means to have a first class hardware store such as Mr. Burwell has here. On being asked his reasons for leaving St. Joe he said that the arbitrary attitude of the town board was intolerable to him, that he is located in such a place that he has no privileges outside the walls of the room in which his stock is situated. He said that his privilege for handling gasoline is forbidden, not being allowed inside of the building by the insurance company and not allowed to place a neat tank and house outside along the side walk because of some pecuniary reason on the part of some individual or of the town board. If this is to be the attitude of the town of St. Joe against pregressive business men then it will not be long until the town will be dead and closed with the medeival ages.

If the citizens do not awake to the situation of things and take some concerted action they will be sorry only when it is too late. We find that all wide awake and progressive towns have a business men's association to look after new business enterprises and extend privileges to induce new business to locate in their cities. Let St. Joe take notice and do something before it is too late.

A Citizen.

PYROGRAPHY

Outfits and a fine selection of white basswood patterns. Look them over and you can see what nice things you can make up for Xmas presents etc.

We are busy preparing our school supplies. A line that is good values.

You'll always do better at

Dunkle's

in

ST. JOE, - - - INDIANA.

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Ice! Ice! Ice!
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

Down Goes Ball Sign

Considerable talk was caused last Friday afternoon by the placing of a ball sign in front of the Lutheran Church, advertising a game to be played on the following Sunday. The team had been given consent to place the sign on the telephone pole as it is an excellent place for bill posting. Later in the afternoon M. T. Bishop took the sign from the pole and this raised the boys dandruff and in the evening Mr. Bishop was summoned to appear before Justice Smith. Mr. Bishop made an appeal to higher courts to settle the matter and sufficient bond was furnished and there the matter is resting. Willard Williams filed the complaint. The boys claimed to have the right of the pole while Mr. Bishop, a member of the church council, claimed they did not. It is not for us to say which is right but the court will no doubt settle it soon.

Free Fall Exhibit

The Fifth Annual Free Fall Exhibit of DeKalb County Products will be held in Auburn October 5, 6 and 7. The past exhibitions have been of great value to the farmer in two ways. First in showing him, and others, what high grade produce can be raised in DeKalb County, and second, in increasing the value of his land. A week after the first exhibit was held, a dealer in farm lands, remarked that farmers had raised the price on their lands ten dollars an acre after seeing that fine display. Each exhibit since has sent the price higher and every farmer should enter his best produce this fall and help to keep up the price. The premiums are more numerous this year than ever. Some classes have four premiums, where before only two or three were given. Not all can win prizes, but all can help to make an exhibit that will keep DeKalb County to the front as being the best county in this or any other state. Be on hand with your best produce. If you have not received a premium list call on the Secretary, Dr. C. S. Stewart, Auburn, Ind., or drop him a card.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Master John Stevenson of Toledo is the guest of Jacob Sechler and family.

Call at Kagey's and get your Post Cards. An elegant assortment.

Obituary

Rosamond N. Ulm was born in St. Joe, Ind., on October 2, 1892 and died on August 20, 1910, aged 17 years 10 months and 18 days. In early life she became a member of the Methodist Protestant Church and remained in that relation until her death. She was a dutiful, kind and affectionate child, always assisting in the care of the home. She leaves a mother, three brothers and one sister besides a host of friends and relatives to mourn their loss. Her father preceeded her to the spirit world three years. While in her youth she is mowed down like the grass, sending forth another warning note of the brevity of life and the certainty of death. The funeral was held from the home conducted by Elder J. A. Brown. Burial in Riverside Cemetery. Elza Kinsey funeral director.

Hop-To-It.

Prosecutor Hubert Hartman has been advised by Professor Sherrard, chemist at the Tri-State college at Angola, that the samples of Hop-to-it of the light and dark varieties, seized by Sheriff Thomas from the Leas pool rooms about ten days ago upon a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Charles Pommert, and submitted to him for a chemical analysis, contains from 3½ to 4½ per cent alcohol or an average of a greater per cent than the genuine lager beer. The samples of Tonica and Tempra secured at the same time were found to contain but very little alcohol and could not be termed an intoxicating beverage.

The Hop-to-it is an intoxicating liquor, according to Chemist Sherrard, and comes under the ban of the law. There has been a large quantity sold, the thirsty having done just what its name tells them to do. At one or two places it can be purchased in our city as well as in practically every town in the county. If it is an unlawful drink the officers will proceed to stop its sale but because of the wholesale traffic it is a question as to the best and most effective course to proceed.

This afternoon Sheriff Thomas and Prosecutor Hartman called upon the Auburn men and informed them of the result of the analysis and that future sales would mean prosecutions unlimited. The officers were informed that the sale would cease.—Dispatch.

Lost-Strayed-Stolen

White Silk Poodle dog on last Wednesday, weighing 7 or 8 pounds. Finder please call phone No. 76-31.

The Western fruit crop is exceedingly heavy, which will naturally make prices high on account of the difficulty that will be experienced in handling.

Local Briefs

Free tickets on range at Burwell's hardware store.

We thank all those who responded to the call, to pay up their subscription. We hope that several more will fall in line soon. How do you stand?

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Perry and children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kinsey, J. C. Hull and wife, and nephews, Chas. and Willie Quance, C. O. Benjamin and wife, and Ray Herrick and wife spent Sunday at Robison Park. Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Baker and F. M. Monroe and wife were also there.

Joe Harrod and wife of Mansfield, who has been the guest of relatives here for a couple of weeks, left last Thursday for Columbia City to visit relatives, and from there they expect to return home. THE NEWS will make regular trips each week to their home from now on.

Candy and Cigars.

Home made candy and the best grade of cigars at Milliman's barber shop owned and run by

Merritt Milliman.

Band Concert Saturday evening.

Mrs. Harry Kees is on the sick list.

A large per cent of the trouble in this world is home made.

Laney Gee and family of Blytheville, Ark., are visiting relatives in this community.

Get a ticket at Burwell's on a steel range to be given away on Saturday of this week.

C. C. Miller, wife and daughter, and B. F. Krider and wife of Churubusco, drove over Sunday and spent the day with J. W. Burwell and family, making the trip in an hour and a half in an automobile.

MRS. WARNER'S

HATS FOR AUTUMN

Exclusive styles for present early fall wear. We specially cite the very popular white, black and white, with wings, soft silk in the new persain drape. We are showing a nice line of close fitting hats for school girls.
Hoping that we may have the pleasure of showing you these advance styles on Tuesday, August 30th.

and continuing for two weeks when our mid-winter hats will be put on sale.

Come and See.

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST.JOE, IND.

THE HOME STORE

New patterns in Rugs, Carpets, Lineoleums and Lace Curtains.

The New Floor Coverings.

Fall housecleaning will soon be the order of the day and before you are busy with it why not select the new Carpet, Rug or piece of Lineoleum? The new patterns are now here and offer pleasing variety from which to choose.

NEW RUGS.

New fall patterns in room size, floral and oriental designs.

9 x 12 Axminsters at - - - - $19.00
9 x 12 Axminsters, best grade - - $22.00

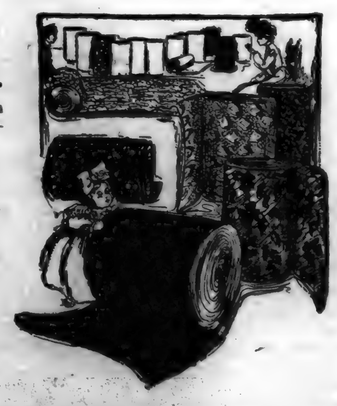
CARPETS:—Our carpet department holds an attractive display of Ingrains, Velvets, and Axminsters at prices per yard.... 25 to $1.10

LINEOLEUMS:—The high price of linseed oil has greatly increased the price of lineoleum, but since we purchased early and before the increase we are able to sell lineoleum at the same price as last year. This means a considerable saving to you.



SEE THE NEW LACE CURTAINS.

A very nifty showing of new designs offering something for almost every purpose in window decorating.

NOTTINGHAMS in very pleasing patterns.....98c to $4.00
BRUSSEL NETS, Irish Point and Coble Nets.....$4.00 to $7.00

AUGUST

0492

L 904

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

STEEL TRUST AS CAT BUYER.

A rat got tangled up in one of the dynamos which supply power for the great blast furnace mill of the United State Steel corporation at Gary, Ind., says Louisville Courier-Journal. It required several hours to separate the rat's remains from the dynamo and in the meantime the corporation was losing money at the rate of a thousand dollars a minute. Now the steel trust is advertising for cats. Advertisements have been inserted in the Gary newspapers, offering 50 cents apiece, with no limitations as to age, sex, size, pedigree or character. Fifty cents a head is a good price for cats and the officials of the steel trust are likely to have to contend with an embarrassment of offerings. When the news percolates to all the cities and small towns of Indiana there will be a rush of feline shipments to Gary and the steel trust will find itself with a surplus of cats scarcely less troublesome than the overplus of rats with which it has been contending heretofore. Hundreds of Indiana families will willingly part with all their feline possessions at a compensation of 50 cents per cat. Some thousands of small boys will explore the alleys and woodsheds until the last backyard fence is denuded.

The report from Pisa that royal engineers state that the inclination of the leaning tower at that place has increased eight inches and that the structure is likely to collapse will tend to further increase the number of those who believe that the tower was never intended to be a freak of masonry, but that it became a wonder by the yielding of its foundation on one side. As a "drawing card" for tourists the famous leaning tower has had value in addition to the historic considerations, and if it should fall there would doubtless be a demand for its reconstruction. A modern builder could give Pisa a leaning tower of greater inclination by using an anchored steel skeleton and clothing it with well fastened veneer.

A speaker at a meeting of a medical society in New Jersey declared that some of the greatest surgeons living had left sponges, forceps and other instruments in the abdominal cavities of persons operated upon, and that the practise was "inexcusable." This makes cheerful reading for the lay public, especially that portion of it that has hospital experience in prospect; but the statement of the existence of this practise is also puzzling from the fact that it must be a more or less expensive practise to the surgeons themselves to be so careless about losing good instruments.

A New York woman was fined five dollars for getting drunk in public and using the large "D" to a policeman. New York seems to be doing something to keep the cost of the necessaries of life on the Great White Way within reason.

An Englishman has paid $700 for a 600-year-old alphabet. He could have got a new one for nothing, but these Britons are so conservative!

St. Louis is howling for a barrel of free ice water at each corner. Will ice cool that concrete composition fondly thought to be water in St. Louis?

Doctor Wiley says that there's nothing especially dangerous in kissing—except the prospect of marriage, we presume.

Some one has discovered 61,000,000 germs in a malaga grape. Still, for all that, malaga grapes are pretty good eating.

An eighty-three-year-old Pennsylvania dame takes her first ride on a train. She couldn't learn any younger.

Even in hot weather some self-sacrificing, hard-working correspondent manages to sweat out a war scare.

Staten Island has seen the first sea serpent, and now the lid ought ot be put on S. I.

Two Dreadnaughts will cost $28,000,000, but that can't scare a dreadnaught.

Forty-four scrubwomen have been laid off by the city of New York. New York's economy fad knows no bounds.

Down in Pittsburg the overcoat makers have gone on a strike. This may be the psychological moment for an overcoat strike, but who'd have thought it?

Aviating and ballooning kill a man every day or two just to prove that the air is a long way from being conquered yet.

Excellent hot weather exercise is watching a tennis match.

ALFONSO HARD PRESSED

His Subjects Want Him to Have a Bully Time.

34 DEAD IN WRECK

EXCURSION AND FREIGHT TRAINS CRASH AT SAUJON FRANCE.

108 PERSONS ARE INJURED

Lives of 1,200 Persons Are Jeopardized by Open Switch—Most of Killed Were School Girls Returning From Vacation.

Paris.—An excursion train was wrecked at Saujon Sunday and 34 persons, many of them school girls, were killed and 80 others were injured, several of them fatally.

The accident came without warning and in the wild panic that followed the crash many of the passengers were trampled upon and probably fatally injured. Speeding at 60 miles an hour, the excursion train with 1,200 passengers on board, struck an open switch and before the engineer realized the peril, smashed into a side-tracked freight train.

A relief train, with all the available doctors, was rushed to the scene. The uninjured passengers aided in dragging out the dead and injured. An emergency hospital was established at the side of the track and everything possible was done to aid the victims.

Most of those on board were school girls returning from their vacations. Their frenzied efforts to aid their injured comrades only served to increase the excitement and hampered the doctors considerably in the work of rescue.

The engineer and fireman tried to jump as the crash came, but were pinned in the wreckage. The boiler exploded and many were scalded by the boiling water.

An investigation is being made to place responsibility for the wreck. It is claimed that there was no signal to warn the engineer that the switch was open.

So many were the victims that at first only those who had been seriously hurt received medical attention. As fast as they were attended they were put aboard the relief train and rushed to Bordeaux, where they were placed in hospitals.

SEEK FOR GALLAGHER'S AID

New York Police Have Theory Assailant of Mayor Gaynor Had an Accomplice.

New York.—New York police are engaging themselves with the theory that James J. Gallagher, the would-be assassin of Mayor Gaynor, had an accomplice. Gallagher denies this.

Mayor Gaynor will be taken to the Adirondacks as soon as his condition permits, but whether he will undergo an operation to remove the bullet before his trip to the mountains has not been determined.

Secretary Robert Adamson said Monday the mayor seemed stronger. Now that the patient is taking more nourishment and his sleep is better his attendants feel that he will recruit his strength rapidly. His appetite is good.

Mrs. Gunness Found Again.

Laporte, Ind. — Mrs. Belle Gunness is in Galcon, Okla., according to a letter received by Chief Mainke from a Galcon woman who says she is "positive."

Elect New Monon President.

New York.—Fairfax Harrison, vice-president of the Southern Railroad company, Tuesday was elected president of the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville railway, to succeed the late Ira G. Rawn, who was shot in his home in Chicago under mysterious circumstances a few weeks ago.

President of Chili Dead.

Berlin.—President Montt of Chili died here Tuesday. He was on the way to Bad Nauheim, having suffered with heart disease for some time.

PAUPERISM IS INDIAN PERIL

SALES OF LANDS WOULD MEAN RED MEN'S RUIN.

Cecil Lyon Tells Gore Inquiry Committee His Connection With McMurray Contracts.

Sulphur, Okla. — Witnesses testified before the Gore congressional Indian land investigating committee that if the Indian lands in Oklahoma were sold and the $30,000,000 proceeds were turned over to the Indians in cash, the state within ten years would be flooded with paupers.

It was asserted that many of the Indians who signed the McMurray contracts, allowing a ten per cent. "attorney fee" to J. F. McMurray and his associates, were financially irresponsible. They would soon squander the cash, it was declared, and within a few years the country would be confronted with the problem of how to take care of them.

Except for the appearance on the stand of Cecil A. Lyon, Republican national committeman of Texas, the witnesses were all Indians. Mr. Lyon told of his financial interest in the old tribal McMurray contracts, which provided for a ten per cent. fee, but which were disapproved by President Roosevelt in 1908.

Asked if he had been invited by McMurray to join in the deal because of his political influence and his acquaintance with Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Lyon said he supposed he was, but he also attributed the invitation to his business ability.

Many Chickasaws testified they were willing to give McMurray as high as 25 per cent. attorney's fees if he would sell the land within a year.

BROWNE TRIAL IS HALTED

Judge Kersten Orders Investigation Into Charges of Jury Tampering in Bribery Case.

Chicago.—Denouncing efforts of interested persons to influence jurymen in the Lee O'Neil Browne trial as a travesty on justice, Judge Kersten Tuesday excused an entire panel of veniremen until an investigation could be made.

His action was taken after almost two-thirds of the last panel had admitted that there had been attempts made to influence them toward a decision favorable to Browne.

Judge Kersten called each of the veniremen by name and asked if he had been approached. Nearly every one said "Yes," and Judge Kersten then dismissed the entire panel.

STEAMERS CRASH; 39 PERISH

Thirty-Two Passengers and Seven Seamen Drown When Vessels Collide in Fog.

Gibraltar.—Thirty-two of the passengers and seven of the crew of the Spanish steamship Martos were drowned in the sinking of the ship off Tarifa point at the entrance to the Straits of Gibraltar, Tuesday.

The Martos was in collision with the German steamer Elsa in a dense fog. She foundered a few minutes after being struck. The survivors were landed here.

A dense fog prevailed at the time of the collision.

Nine of the victims on the Martos were first-cabin passengers. The other 23 passengers who perished were in the steerage.

Killed in Motorcycle Crash.

Columbus, O.—Ralph E. Stitts, twenty-one years old, Tuesday collided with an Ohio electric car while riding a tandem motorcycle. He died of his injuries within a few hours. His companion was badly hurt.

Stock Soars to $10,000,000.

Jefferson City, Mo.—The Missouri, Kansas and Texas Terminal Railroad company of St. Louis Tuesday filed with the secretary of state a certificate of increase in the capital stock from $100,000 to $10,000,000.

DEFEAT ROOSEVELT

IS DENIED HONOR OF PRESIDING OVER REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

'OLD GUARD' REJECT COLONEL

Vice-President Sherman Is Chosen by Vote of 20 to 15 to Be Temporary Chairman at Saratoga on September 27.

New York.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt's name was presented for the office of temporary chairman of the Republican state convention at the meeting of the Republican state committee Tuesday, but his selection for that honor was lost by a vote of 20 to 15.

Vice-President Sherman was chosen unanimously to act as temporary presiding officer.

Let by State Chairman Woodruff and William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, the "Old Guard" encompassed the defeat of Colonel Roosevelt, whom several of the state leaders charged with attempting to dictate the fortunes of the party in the state.

After the meeting had been called to order and the time and place of the state convention had been decided, William Barnes, Jr., offered a resolution presenting the name of Vice-President Sherman for temporary chairman of the convention. Lloyd C. Griscom moved to substitute the name of Colonel Roosevelt and moved also that the vote be postponed.

After much debate the motion to postpone was defeated by a vote of 12 to 23. The resolution to make Colonel Roosevelt temporary chairman then was lost by 20 to 15, following which Vice-President Sherman was unanimously chosen for temporary presiding officer. Mr. Griscom and Henry Mack of New York not voting.

The state committee adjourned to meet September 26 at Saratoga.

Commenting upon the action of the committee in rejecting the name of Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Griscom said:

"I presented the name of the former president after consulting him. The place of the temporary chairman was obviously his, not only by virtue of his having been president of the United States, but because of the signal services rendered by him to the Republican party in New York state. Mr. Roosevelt was anxious to engage in the political campaign in this state, and his name at the head of the convention would have lent extraordinary prestige to the meeting and would have been of incalculable value to the party throughout the state.

"The action foreshadows many primary contests, as it is obvious that those voting to deny him the office of temporary chairman will have to account to the enrolled Republicans of their respective districts for their action.

"There was no question of indorsing or not indorsing the administration. If an effort is made to show that the choice of Vice-President Sherman is an indorsement, whereas the choice of Colonel Roosevelt would not have been, it must of necessity fail, as Mr. Roosevelt's views regarding the conduct of public affairs by his successor are well known."

TROOPS TO COMBAT FLAMES

Soldiers Are Rushed to National Forests in Northwest to Fight Destructive Fires.

Washington.—Forest fires in the northwest, threatening destruction to human life and to millions of dollars' worth of property, have alarmed officials of the interior department and forest service.

In response to appeals from the fire zones additional United States soldiers were Saturday rushed to assist in combating the flames.

The soldiers have been dispatched to the Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, Lewis and Clark, Mont., Wallows, Mont., and Colville, Wash., national forests; the Flathead Indian reservation, Montana, and the Glacier National park, Montana. The troops have been spread over the entire fire belt and Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, has informed the interior department and forest service officials that the assistance of the army will be given in meeting the emergency to the limit of the number of soldiers available, if necessary.

Spokane, Wash.—At Wallace, Idaho, hundreds of pounds of dynamite, hung to the limbs of trees on high points surrounding the city and exploded in the hope that the effect might produce rain to check the devastation wrought by forest fires, is said to have had a result, for rain began falling Sunday for the first time in two months. The fall has been heavy.

A dispatch from Stiles, Idaho, says the situation in the Elk City district is the worst in the history of that region. Under the high winds in the mountains for the last two days and nights the forest fires are burning with fury. The whole country in the vicinity of Elk City is ablaze.

One Dead, 35 Hurt in Wreck.

Nevada, Mo.—One man, a negro, was killed and 35 persons were injured Tuesday when the tender of Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 209 jumped the track 11 miles north of here.

Hurley Dead at Carlsbad.

Topeka, Kan.—A cablegram from Carlsbad, Austria, Tuesday announced the death of James E. Hurley, general manager of the Santa Fe railroad. Death was caused by heart disease.

FIVE INJURED IN CAR RIOTS

COLUMBUS TRACTION COMPANY SUSPEND ALL TRAFFIC.

Mayor Declares He Will Not Call for Troops—Conductor Fires Into Crowd.

Columbus, O.—Rioting was resumed in this city Sunday night and one man was fatally shot and five others injured. So fierce was the violence of the crowds that all street car traffic was abandoned during the night.

Mayor Marshall again declared that he would not call for troops. He said police would continue to ride the cars. Rioting started at Shiller park, where a band concert was being held. A mob gathering in Mohawk avenue blockaded the car tracks and stopped the cars. Jeering mobs gathered about the crews and a fight started. Motorman L. S. Duvall was struck in the head with a brick, and fell unconscious in the street. Conductor W. P. Miller and Motorman L. P. Evans of another car, were also attacked and severely bruised by sticks and rocks.

When two automobile loads of police arrived the crowd numbered about 5,000 people. Three rioters were arrested.

When John J. Gallagher, a conductor, was called "scab" by a crowd near Saint Clair avenue, he turned to a woman sitting behind him. She handed him a huge revolver which she took from a valise at her side. He then began firing into the crowd. The woman, tall and handsome, stood up and cried "Give it to them, Jack."

Just then an automobile load of police drove up. Gallagher and the woman were placed under arrest. In the woman's valise were found two more revolvers and ammunition. She said her name was Anna Gallagher, the motorman's wife.

At the police station Gallagher and his wife were released on bond, furnished by the railroad company.

Emmet Hoover was shot through the leg by a motorman, whom the crowd tried to drag off and beat.

BELGIAN EXPOSITION BURNS

100,000 People in Panic—Two Persons Are Killed and Forty Injured, Some Fatally.

Brussels.—One hundred thousand visitors were thrown into a panic by a fire that wiped out the entire Belgian exposition. Two persons are known to be dead and 40 injured, some fatally.

The flames started in the French section and had gained considerable headway before they were discovered. The instant the alarm was given, the 100,000 persons at the exposition became panic-stricken and a wild rush was made for the exits.

The people fought and struggled in a maddened attempt to get out of the place. Many of those hurt received their injuries by falling to the floor and being trampled upon by the crowd.

Brussels.—As a result of the partial destruction of the Belgian exposition by fire Sunday night, the executive committee at a meeting held Monday decided to close the fair until the ruins of the burned sections could be cleared away, when the exposition will again be opened.

It is impossible to estimate the damage caused by the fire that wiped out the fairy-like structures and caused two deaths and thirty injuries.

The losses, however, will not be so great as was at first believed, when during the excitement of the conflagration they were estimated roughly at $100,000,000.

The entire Belgian and British sections; the whole Kermesse of Brussels, the Coney Island of the exposition, with water chutes, toboggan slides and other special entertainments, and everything west of the Avenue des Nations, were destroyed, but by heroic work of the firemen and troops and the use of dynamite in blowing up buildings in the path of the flames, the fire was checked.

Practically everything in the American, Danish, Russian, Norwegian, Austrian, Japanese, Turkish and Swiss sections was saved. Only the facades and about one-third of the entire French section were burned. The British loss is heavy.

Fortunately the most valuable art treasures, which had been loaned to the exposition or acquired by it, were removed beyond the reach the flames and the pillaging criminals who attempted to take advantage of the disaster.

FOUR KILLED IN COLLISION

Passenger on Western Pacific Crashes Into Work Train at Oakland, Cal.—Twenty Injured.

San Francisco.—As the result of a collision between a Western Pacific passenger train with a work train in Oakland Friday night four persons were killed and 20 injured.

Slays Niece for Burglar.

Denison, Tex.—Mistaking his niece for a burglar when she went in the yard for a drink of water, D. L. Jackson Monday shot and killed Minnie Black, aged thirteen, at Preston Bend, near this city.

Eleven Hurt in Car Crash.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—At least eleven people were more or less injured, some quite seriously, when two cars came together head-on Monday on the gorge railroad three-quarters of a mile north of this city.

JAPAN NOW READY

LONG AWAITED ANNEXATION OF KOREA NOW BELIEVED TO BE IMMINENT.

TERMS NEARLY COMPLETED

Britain Sends Cruiser to Ceiba to Get Indemnity From Spanish Honduras —The Other Late News.

Tokio.—The long awaited annexation of Korea by Japan is about to become a reality, according to special dispatches from Seoul published by the Tokio press.

The dispatches announce that the final negotiations for the annexation were begun by Lieut. Gen. Viscount Terauchik, the Japanese resident general in Korea. The resident general then outlined the conditions upon which Japan will sign the agreement for annexation. It is believed the negotiations with the members of the Korean cabinet will be concluded in the near future and that an early conclusion of the act of annexation may be expected.

Britain Sends Warships.

New Orleans, La.—A special from Ceiba, Spanish Honduras, under date of Aug. 12, says:

The British cruiser Scylla, Captain Thosiger, dropped anchor in the harbor here today and local government officers are said to experience great trepidation over the outcome of the visit. The arrival of the Scylla is said to be due to a call from the British vice consul following alleged persistent ill-treatment of British subjects.

Captain Thosiger is reported to have made peremptory demand for indemnity for the killing of a Jamaican negro, Alexander Thurston, a British subject, for the punishment of his slayer and for the punishment of Honduran officials who are charged with ill-treating British subjects since the last visit of the Scylla when a warning was given by Captain Thosiger.

Keen Suffering in Japan.

Tokio.—The extremity of suffering and destitution among more than half a million people here is indescribable. The local relief funds are large, the resident foreigners assisting generously in the relief work and with money. Ambassador O'Brien has remained in Tokio throughout the flood. He is doing everything possible to relieve the sufferers. All the visitors at the summer resorts are safe.

Gun Is 200 Years Old

Minot, N. D.—James L. [illegible] of this city, has received a relic which has been in the family for nine generations, being handed down from father to son since 1776. The barrel of the gun was made in Jamestown, Va., about two hundred years ago. The gun at that time was a full stock flintlock affair. It was purchased by James Hyatt's great-great-grandfather in the Revolutionary war.

Drinks Gasoline for Cider.

Princeton, Ind.—Harry Milburn, forty-five years old, a farmer living near Mt. Carmel, Ill., is dying from the effects of drinking gasoline. He picked up a jug of what he thought was cider and swallowed a big swig of the contents before noticing that it was gasoline. He soon became unconscious and there is little hope of recovery held out.

Man Conquers Birds in Air.

Amiens, France.—The first aerial race between the birds of nature and of man's production took place in the course of the great aerial cross-country competition and was easily won by man. A flock of 47 carrier pigeons was released at Douai at the same instant that Le Blanc, in his Farman biplane, started from the mark on his 50-mile flight to Amiens.

Slain in Street Battle.

Hot Springs, Ark.—In a desperate street battle between two alleged horse thieves and several officers here, George Chitten, one of the thieves, was killed by a deputy sheriff and Sheriff Jake Houpt was probably faltally wounded.

Million Dollar Fire at Jersey City.

New York, N. Y.—Fire in the warehouse district of Jersey City caused damage estimated at $1,000,000. Chief Croker and five engines from New York hurried across the Hudson to aid the Jersey City firemen and dynamite was used frequently.

Promoter Is Missing.

Evansville, Ind.—J. A. Brown, promoter of the new Utopian city opposite Evansville in Kentucky, is missing and numerous creditors are seeking him. Work on the new concrete "city" is at a standstill. Much money has been spent there.

Two Hold Up Train.

Bucklin, Mo.—Two men boarded a Santa Fe passenger train at the Russell Fork bridge, two miles east of here, held up and robbed two of the passengers and escaped into the woods.

Three Children Drowned.

Marienette, Wis.—Three children, two girls and a boy, were drowned in the outlet of Lake Noquebay, about two miles south of the lake when a raft on which they were standing overturned.

AUGUST

0493

L 904

PASTEUR INSTITUTE IS BEING URGED

Commissioner Would Tax Dog Owners for Its Support.

LOCATED IN INDIANAPOLIS

Dr. William G. Wegner Believes the Treatment Should Be Free to All Persons Suffering From Rabies.

Indianapolis.—A Pasteur institute, to be located in Indianapolis under state supervision and support by owners of dogs, is being urged here by Dr. William G. Wegner, health commissioner of St. Joseph county. The doctor favors an additional fee of 25 cents on dog tax receipts, to be turned over to a fund for the establishment of a free institute for the prevention of hydrophobia. He believes the treatment should be free to all persons bitten by dogs suffering from rabies. The St. Joseph county health commissioner feels that his plan would place the cost of building and maintaining the state Pasteur institute upon the owners of dogs. He points out that many people are unable to pay the $200 required for the treatment under present conditions.

"Hydrophobia is a disease without a cure," said Doctor Wegner, "but the loss of life from a dog bite is unwarranted. The malady can be prevented and the state should provide a hospital for the giving of treatment to all who require it. The institute could be maintained in connection with the state health board laboratory at Indianapolis. If the legislature would take the matter in hand and authorize an additional tax of 25 cents for each dog, turn the money into a general fund and then build and equip the hospital, a fine institution could be provided and no hardship worked on any one."

Reports Are Delayed.

Physicians' reports of deaths that occurred in March, April and May of this year, and of births that occurred in December of last year, have just been received in the office of the secretary of the state board of health, in the collection of statistics for the report of the board for July. According to Charles A. Carter, head of the department of statistics in the office, the physicans are guilty of law violations in failing to make the reports earlier, but whatever action is taken against them will be left for the state board to determine. It was necessary to employ the long distance telephone and the telegraph to get some July statistics that the law required to be in the office of the board.

The explanation offered by the physicians and health commissioners whose reports have been delayed is that they were too busy to attend to them.

Increase of $6,778,786.

The official figures on the returns on the valuation of corporation property by the state board of tax commissioners have been completed and turned over to the state printer by the deputy auditor of state, who is ex-officio clerk to the board. The official figures show the actual total increase over last year on all eight classes of properties assessed by the board to be $6,778,786. In preparing the final figures, the figures from the first, or preliminary report, are changed so as to provide for such changes as were made by the board in hearings of appeals. Following is the valuation and increase on the properties assessed:

	Valuation.	Gain.
Steam roads	$196,941,375	$2,863,785
Electric roads	22,376,238	840,197
Telephones	11,146,322	1,050,548
Express	1,731,896	1,026,573
Telegraph	2,889,988	261,138
Sleeping car	1,030,938	158,285
Pipe lines	10,753,338	343,960
Transportation Cos.	892,400	234,000
Totals	$247,762,895	$6,778,786

Schools to Get $1,184,500.

The decision of the board of school commissioners at its meeting to increase the tax levy from 58 cents to 60 cents will affect all city property, the additional revenue being for the exclusive use of the school board, according to a statement made by County Auditor Sahm. The increase in revenue will amount to approximately $37,500, and will make the total revenue available for school purposes $1,184,500.

The increase will mean that the total tax levy for state, county and township and city purposes will be $2.21 on each $100 of taxables, instead of $2.19, as heretofore. The levy for school purposes for the year 1909 amounted to 58 cents, making the revenues paid into the school treasury $1,222,000, the schools' share of taxes collected on a total city valuation of $187,000,000.

Articles of Incorporation.

Articles of incorporation have been filed in the office of the secretary of state for the following:

The Pennville Elevator company, Pennville; capital stock, $10,000; grain dealers; directors, H. H. Bowen, Ransom Smith and Charles Artman.

The Attica Industrial company, Attica; to promote the industrial welfare of the city; capital stock, $5,000; directors, A. S. Peacock, E. D. Robinson, C. L. Green, Edgar Webb, J. R. Burlington, C. J. Jacobson and J. M. Hixon.

Report Charges Against Trustee.

Alleged excess payments on school supplies, which it is believed may provide grounds for a charge of $568.67, has been reported by Edward P. Brennan and Charles W. Sutton, field examiners in the employ of the state board of accounts, in their report on the conditions of the affairs of W. A. Lord, trustee of Center township, Rush county, from 1905 to 1908. The total amount charged against Lord, including the alleged excess paid for supplies, is $2,053.60.

The total alleged excess on supplies brought from S. D. Kiger & Co., of this city, amounts to $223, covering a large number of items. In arriving at the alleged excess, the examiners compared the price paid for the supplies with catalogue prices, the difference being the alleged excess. Following are some of the items bought from Kiger & Co., and designated by the examiners in listing the alleged excess:

Item.	Price Paid.	Alleged Excess.
2 school wagons	$360.00	$80.00
8 dozen erasers	20.00	10.40
5 clocks	30.00	6.25
3 N. A. bird and nature studies	40.00	20.00
3 pencil sharpeners	18.50	8 40
30 gallons floor oil	34.00	7.00

On eight maps bought from Scarborough & Co., the examiners found that Lord in a payment of $30 paid $15 in excess of the value of the goods. On various purchases for roads, the examiners reported an excess payment to Kiger & Co., of $88.34 on seven boiler plate sewers, and an excess of $61.64 on a similar purchase from the same concern. On other purchases from the same concern, an excess payment of $28.34 is alleged on the purchase of two sewers and some pump shafting, and an excess of $26.65 on the purchase of two sewers and a grader blade. An excess payment of $110 is alleged on the purchase of a road grader from J. D. Adams & Co. of this city. Other firms mentioned are Steel & Draper, Thornton-Levey Company, and the Globe Printing company

The shortage charged against Lord, aside from the alleged excess in prices includes the following items:

Failure to charge himself with borrowed money, $188.05; duplicate credits, $61.64; excess payments to various individuals, including teachers, $71.50; paid for supplies in the furnishing of which he was held by the examiners to be directly interested as a seller, $464.91; credit on annual settlements not authorized, $150; paid for working out road tax, $62.06; paid on alleged illegal claims for stock damaged or killed by dogs, $467; paid wife for office rent and furniture, $78.

4,194 Divorces Granted in One Year.

Records of the circuit and superior courts of Indiana show that 3,169 divorces were granted to wives in 1909, as compared to 3,136 in 1908. To husbands, 1,025 were granted in 1909 and 1,117 in 1908. There were 346 convictions for liquor law violations in 1909, as compared to 627 in 1908. Marriage licenses show an increase of 1,555 last year. The compilations of the reports of the circuit and superior courts have just been made by the bureau of statistics.

The divorce reports show the following causes alleged in the complaints for which divorces were granted: Abandonment, 1,082; adultery, 390; criminal convictions, 35; cruel treatment, 1,242; drunkenness, 425; failure to provide, 552; other causes, 124.

Thirty-one thousand four hundred and twenty civil cases were filed in 1909, as compared to 30,096 in 1908. There were 931 sheriffs' sales in 1909 and 708 in 1908.

Naturalizations in 1909 outnumbered those of 1908 by 23, there being 174 in in 1909 and 151 in 1908. But 1,987 persons declared their intentions of becoming citizens of the United States in 1909, against 5,785 in 1908. Germany was first in 1909 in number of natives naturalized and Russia and Holland were tied for second place.

The criminal statistics for 1909 are reported as follows: Number of cases filed, 7,136; number of cases dismissed, 2,008.

Tax Board on the Road.

John W. McCardle, member of the state board of tax commissioners, has gone to New York to begin an investigation into sundry transportation companies with headquarters in that city which have been reported to the board to be operating cars on railroads in this state and which have not been listed by the state board for taxation purposes.

Mr. McCardle will visit a number of cities in the east in his quest. C. C. Matson, another member of the board, is looking up some similar concerns that have headquarters in the south, and Fred L. Gemmer, the third member of the board, will next month look into concerns with headquarters in Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee. About three hundred such companies, in addition to those already assessed by the tax board, have been reported, but their combined assessment value, it is estimated, will not exceed $75,000. Forty-one transportation companies have been assessed by the board, the total valuation being $892,400.

Confer About Prosecutions.

Governor Marshall and Attorney General Bingham held a conference at Petoskey, Mich., concerning the general policy of the state in the prosecution of officials and former officials of counties and townships who were found short in their accounts by the examiners of the state board of accounts. Mr. Bingham returned from Petoskey, but gave out no statement detailing the policy to be pursued by the state in the prosecutions that are to follow. The suits will not be filed until the September term of court.

HEBREW SOCIETY IS FORMED

Organization Will Extend Death Benefits to the Poor.

WILL OBSERVE JEWISH LAW

Linath Azedeck Incorporates to Meet Requirements of Rituals in Services for Sick and Dead.

Indianapolis.—Jewish residents of Indianapolis have filed articles with the secretary of state for the incorporation of a society known as Linath Azedeck, which in the Hebrew language means "assistance to the sick."

According to the Hebrew religious law prayers are required to be said both before and after the death of a man or woman of that religion. Prayers are first said in the house and then memorial services are held in a synagogue for eight days after the burial. Ten men are required to attend prayers at the memorial services. These have to be obtained from members of the congregation, but as there has been some difficulty in obtaining the required number on account of their business pursuits, the new organization will provide them from its membership.

The organization will extend death benefits to the deserving poor. The deceased, even if he should not have been a member of the organization, will be accorded the religious rites under the auspices of the society, when his case has been called to its attention.

William Hecht, attorney, said this organization is the only one of its kind in Indiana. It has a membership at present of 125 Jewish residents and when the incorporation petition has been granted a campaign for more members will be made. The expenses of the society will be paid by assessments. Those mentioned in the articles of incorporation are Samuel Nickbarg, president; Louis Leiberman, S. Herscowitz, Nathan N. Kallad, Isadore Miroff, Louis Robinson and Harry Cohn. A meeting will be held in a few days, when further steps will be taken in perfecting the organization. Permanent officers will be elected at the Jewish New Year.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Washington. — After lingering in an unconscious state, James Buckley, fifty-eight years old, a farmer, who was assaulted while in an intoxicated condition, died, and Zed Hudson, eighteen years old, who is being held on an assault charge, now will have to answer to a first degree murder charge.

Columbus. — Hamer Williams, a farmer living near here, lost a $300 horse in a peculiar way. The horse had been foundered and Williams hitched the horse in a stream, the water of which was up to its knees. The horse was left in the water for seven days and had about recovered, but it lay down in the stream and was drowned.

Bedford.—A head-on collision occurred on a curve on the Southern Indiana railroad near Bedford between two extra freight trains. Both engines and several loaded cars were wrecked. The crews of both engines jumped and no one was injured. The responsibility for the collision has not been made public.

Peru.—Gabe Godfrey, chief of the Miami Indians, well known throughout Indiana, died after a 24-hour illness, at his home at Miami Reserve, just east of Peru. He was married three times and was the father of 19 children.

Michigan City.—Mrs. Fred Hartman was attacked by a cow at her country home, near here, and may die. She was milking and the cow was frightened by a chicken jumping from the manger.

Fort Wayne. — Edward Wedell, forty-four years old, the sole occupant of his home since his wife left him several weeks ago, sat down on his front steps, fired one bullet into his right temple and killed himself. Three years ago Wedell charged his wife with infidelity and shot her through the arm.

Laporte.—Joseph P. Anstiss for several years a resident of this city and father of William E. Anstiss, sheriff of Laporte county, while deranged, hung himself in the barn on his premises at Buchanan, Mich. He was seventy years old and for several days had been under the close surveillance of his wife.

Flouring Mill Burned.

Rochester. — The Anchor flouring mill of this city, belonging to Messrs. Viers & Wicks, was destroyed by fire. Several thousand dollars' worth of grain had been stored in the building and the damage will reach $15,000. The owners carried $6,000 insurance.

Richmond, Aug. 12.—Governor Marshall has been invited to deliver an address at the annual gathering of the Wayne County Pioneers' association, which will be held. He has expressed a willingness to accept and assured the association he will be present if he can arrange his official duties so as to provide for the date. If he attends he will be the first governor to be present on such an occasion for many years.

Dublin.—City officials have ordered that no more liquor shall be sold to Italian workmen in the construction camps near here.

After Fifteen Years

By Clarissa Mackie

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

Melvin Taylor and Adelia Scott had lived next door to each other all their lives, yet they had not spoken for 15 years.

Adelia, forty now, with a powdering of white in her brown hair, was sitting in the old grape vine swing, swaying idly to and fro. Her soft eyes were fixed on the toe of her small shoe as it lightly touched the green turf.

Overhead the April sky was cloudless; around her was growing grass and young springing flowers.

In her heart was a great yearning for happiness—a renewal of the joys that had belonged to her girlhood; the dreams, the ideals that were hers before the awakening.

From the other side of the dividing lilac hedge came the fragrance of tobacco and the sound of men's voices, growing nearer.

"Women are naturally stubborn," Melvin Taylor was saying in a disagreeable tone. "If May has quarreled with you, Walter, you might as well give her up now and be done with it—no matter how deeply you repent. What apologies you may offer however humble yourself, take my assurance she will not forgive you."

"Rubbish!" retorted Walter Stone, laughing. "May and I have had a disagreement, but I know we shall make it up—who knows when—perhaps today! As for the rest of womankind, they are all like May, I do believe—sweet and forgiving—only some clumsy brute of a man like you or me—"

"I've had my experience," interrupted Taylor brusquely. "I was engaged to marry what I believe to be the sweetest girl in the world. We quarreled a week before our wedding day—15 years ago. I wrote a note begging her to forgive me—"

Swaying Idly to and Fro.

Their voices died away as they passed beyond hearing, and Adelia still swayed to and fro in the grape vine. Now her face was white.

So Melvin Taylor had made overtures of peace and she had never known it. She, too, had written a note to him and hidden it in their true lover's postoffice—a cup-like hollow in the old apple tree that grew in the lilac hedge.

Day after day, 15 years ago, she had gone to the hollow—but there was never a letter; and her wedding day had come and gone and she had never been a bride. Invitations had been recalled, presents returned and bridal garments hidden from sight, while Adelia picked up the dull threads of every-day life and learned to meet Melvin Taylor now and then and greet him with a cold little inclination of the head.

With a sudden impulse she left the grape vine swing and sought the old apple tree. The lilac branches had grown unpruned until their smooth green stems quite hid the cup-like hollow.

Adelia stood on tiptoe and thrust her little hand into the old letter box. The hollow was empty save for a few dead and crumpled leaves and a gathering of moss. Just as she withdrew her hand her fingers were caught in a warm, strong grasp.

With a faint cry of alarm, Adelia tried to jerk her hand away, but in vain.

"Who is it?" demanded Melvin Taylor's voice from the other side of the hedge.

"Release me at once," commanded Adelia angrily.

"Oh!" There was enlightenment in his tone; but the grasp only tightened its hold.

"If you have the faintest instincts of a gentleman," began Adelia after a while.

"I haven't," returned Mr. Taylor coldly.

Adelia leaned against the rugged trunk of the old tree, her white, outstretched arm gleaming against the brown bark. Her eyes were shining like twin stars and her breath came in little gasps.

"What—what do you want?" she found courage to ask after another painful silence.

There was a moment's hesitation and then: "I placed a note in here 15 years ago," he began lamely.

"Well?"

"I never received a reply," he said gruffly, his hold on her hand tightening cruelly.

"You are hurting my hand," she said with a little cry.

"You hurt my heart 15 years ago," retorted Melvin stubbornly.

After a long silence Adelia's voice came faintly over the hedge. "I, too, placed a note there—15 years ago and—"

"And?" queried Mr. Taylor.

"I never received a reply to my note."

"The—dickens!" Mr. Taylor whistled softly. "I never got it, Adelia! Do you mean to say you never got a note from me the day after—after we quarreled."

"I never received any word from you." Adelia's voice was tremulous now, as she added: "If you will release my hand—"

He relaxed his hold reluctantly, and Adelia slipped down in a crumpled heap in the soft turf at the foot of the apple tree.

"Go, Adelia," he said gently. It is too late for me to offer you any apology for my long silence; I wrote you a letter, asking your forgiveness and I placed it here in the hollow—I believed you were hard and unforgiving when I did not receive any answer and I grew more angry with you, instead of seeking an explanation. Your little note, as well as mine, was probably taken by some marauding catbird to build his nest in the hedge. I think I shall go away now—I have been such a fool I want to seek the uttermost ends of the earth to try and forget my folly!" His voice regained its bitterness.

There was a long silence after that. "I am here, Melvin," said Adelia.

"May I come over?" he asked in a strange voice.

"Yes," she said softly, but not so softly that his eager ears did not catch the longed-for words.

Presently he was beside her, the old boyish smile on his lips, the old lovelight in his eyes, the old happiness in his face.

Adelia flushing rosily, leaned for support against the apple tree and her downcast eyes dared not meet his questioning ones.

"Will you forgive me, Adelia?" he asked holding out his arms.

"If you will forgive me, too," she said sweetly, turning a radiant face up to him.

And then she came to him, all her sorrows stilled, all her happiness restored ten-fold because of the pain she had endured.

Overhead the April sky was cloudless, underfoot the green grass was starred with dandelions; there in the shade of the beloved old apple tree, Adelia's youth came back to her, with happiness and love and all the old ideals.

High-Priced Biberon.

Ten thousand guineas were given by C. Wertheimer, at the sale of the late Baron Schroeder's collection at Christie's a few days ago, for a sixteenth century biberon of carved rock crystal mounted with enameled gold. It is made in imitation of some fabled monster which its designer may have imagined to be a sea serpent, but the body of which, lost in a series of flutings, resembles more closely that of a water fowl. The crystal neck and body is mounted with enameled gold, and is poised like a wineglass on a crystal stem, also mounted very beautifully in gold and enamel. The lid of the biberon is surmounted by a statuette in enamel of Neptune sitting astride a Triton, and in this, as in every other portion of the decoration, the work is of unsurpassable delicacy. It is thought to have come from the hands of Daniel Mignot of Augsburg, who made it for the Emperor Rudolph II.—London Graphic.

Light That Is Ideal.

For interior illumination it is of decided advantage to have the rays of the lamp directed up to the light colored ceiling and then reflected below. This makes a light which is almost ideal, but in lamps designed for street illumination this is not to be desired, for such rays are lost entirely. The members of the New York section of the Illuminating Engineering society recently had their attention called to a new device which has been invented by Dr. Clayton H. Sharp of that city, who has devised a reflector consisting of a pair of parabolic mirrors arranged to throw the rays in the direction of the street, so that all the light will be used to the best advanage. The claim is made that instead of having the streets lighted in spots, as at present, a continuous degree of illumination is provided.

Field Spiders of Maine.

Walking through the pastures of Dresden the Gossiper found many small deep holes in the earth which he supposed were those of field mice. Instead, however, he learned that they were made by great spiders with bodies beautifully marked in black and gold and half as large as hens' eggs. A bite from one of these field spiders would make a man remember.—Kennebec Journal.

TOO LATE.

Dr. Pillem—There must be something radically wrong with your system to have your hair fall out so. You will have to diet.

Skantlox—Dye it? I'm afraid, doc, there's not enough of it left to dye.

LEG A MASS OF HUMOR

"About seven years ago a small abrasion appeared on my right leg just above my ankle. It irritated me so that I began to scratch it, and it began to spread until my leg from my ankle to the knee was one solid scale like a scab. The irritation was always worse at night and would not allow me to sleep, or my wife either, and it was completely undermining our health. I lost fifty pounds in weight and was almost out of my mind with pain and chagrin as no matter where the irritation came, at work, on the street or in the presence of company, I would have to scratch it until I had the blood running down into my shoe. I simply cannot describe my suffering during those seven years. The pain, mortification, loss of sleep, both to myself and wife is simply indescribable on paper and one has to experience it to know what it is.

"I tried all kinds of doctors and remedies but I might as well have thrown my money down a sewer. They would dry up for a little while and fill me with hope only to break out again just as bad if not worse. I had given up hope of ever being cured when I was induced by my wife to give the Cuticura Remedies a trial. After taking the Cuticura Remedies for a little while I began to see a change, and after taking a dozen bottles of Cuticura Resolvent in conjunction with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, the trouble had entirely disappeared and my leg was as fine as the day I was born. Now after a lapse of six months with no signs of a recurrence I feel perfectly safe in extending to you my heartfelt thanks for the good the Cuticura Remedies have done for me. I shall always recommend them to my friends. W. H. White, 312 E. Cabot St., Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 4 and Apr. 13, 1909."

Advice.

"Doctor," called little Bingle, over his telephone, "my wife has lost her voice. What the dickens shall I do?"

"Why," said the doctor, gravely, "if I were you I'd remember the fact when Thanksgiving day comes around, and act accordingly."

Whereupon the doctor chuckled as he charged little Bingle $2 for professional services.—Harper's Weekly.

A Five-Cent Washwoman.

In Evanston, Illinois, washwomen get from $2 to $2.50 per day, and carfare to and from work. Five years ago they got $1.50 a day. Naturally wash day is an expensive day there. But now women everywhere are learning of a wash-day worker that only costs a nickel. Easy Task laundry soap does half the work all by itself, saves money, saves time, saves fuel, saves health and saves clothing. Many women say it solves the servant problem.

Nipped in the Bud.

The Minister (stopping to tea)—No, thank you, I must decline on the cucumbers.

Little Tommie—Guess you're afraid of the tummy ache, but you don't need to be, cuz when I have it mamma always rubs——" (! ! !)—Boston Herald.

Low Rate Niagara Falls and Return.

Twenty-seventh annual excursion, Aug. 22, via Nickel Plate road. Special train. Tickets also good on train 4, Valparaiso and Cleveland inclusive. Good returning 12 days. Ask agent or write F. P. Parnin, T. P. A., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A Treasure.

"Your new maid looks very discreet."

"Indeed, she is. She even knocks at all the drawers before opening them."—Pele Mele.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

He is a good time-saver that finds out the fittest opportunity for every action.—Thomas Fuller.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take. Do not gripe.

Men are always betting that their sins will not find them out.

DON'T SPOIL YOUR CLOTHES. Use Red Cross Ball Blue and keep them white as snow. All grocers, 5c a package.

Statistics are almost as unsatisfactory as facts are stubborn.

AUGUST

L 904

0494

The St. Joe News.

One Year - - $1.00
Six Month - - 50c
Three Months - - 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

LOCAL

Kinsey's have installed an oil tank and ask that you bring your cans in to be filled

Mrs. Mary Maxwell, mother of Mrs. F. A. Jenkins of near here, died at her home in Butler on Tuesday of last week. The funeral was held at Mt. Pleasant on Thursday, at 2 o'clock. Had she lived until the 29th of the month she would have been 85 years of age. She is quite well known in this vicinity.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced with water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

The Annual Yearly Meeting of the Church of Christ of DeKalb county will be in session in Railroad Park at this place next Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday. Means of entertainment are being provided by the committee. Plenty of seats, good water and shade. R. H. Crossfield, president of the Transylvania University will be the speaker of the day. Come with well filled baskets.

FRED THOMAS

FARMERS!

should remember that there is always more or less repairing to be done before the fall work comes on. Your drag may need some teeth sharpened and now would be a good time to have it done before they are needed.

All Work Guaranteed.

The Blacksmith.

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank; you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

Band concert Saturday evening.

Cucumbers for canning. J. W. Sherer.

Get your coal oil at Kinsey's

Leon Secbler, Walter Bowen and Chas Lawhead of Wayne, spent Sunday with relatives here.

Wm. Randall and wife spent Sunday at the home of Lorenzo Means and family south of Spencerville.

Range exhibit commences today at Burwell's hardware. Come in and let us show you our stoves

The Misses Mellie and Florence Berry of Jackson township, are the guests of Mrs. Marshall Stretcher, at Swayzee.

Misses Anna and Nellie Sherer of Guthrie Center, Ia., were the guests of L. D. Nelson and wife Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Baker left Friday for a several days visit with Mr. Baker's cousin, Lorenzo Reasoner and wife, at Lansing, Michigan.

Miss Blanche Burwell, who has been at LaFayette, studying to be a trained nurse, came to this place Monday evening to remain with her parents

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Stafford, Mrs. Silvers, Miss Laura Shutt, of Auburn and Miss Alda Elson of Valparaiso, were callers of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Patterson Sunday.

Mrs. John Simanton and sister, Mrs. Rugman of near Auburn, returned Monday evening from Chillicothe, O., where they were the guests of their nephew for nearly a week.

Mrs. W. H. Carrahn and daughter, Edith of Ft. Wayne, visited for a week with L. D. Nelson's, her husband joined them on Sunday. On Tuesday they took the train for Hicksville to visit her parents, Mr. Comparrett and family.

In buying a cough medicine, don't be afraid to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it, and relief is sure to follow. Especially recommended for coughs, colds and whooping cough. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

On account of the Church of Christ undergoing repairs, services last Sunday were held in the M. P. Church, both morning and evening. Elder J. A. Brown of this place and Elder Smith of Payne, Ohio, exchanged pulpits. The attendance was fairly good and they were given two excellent talks.

We are in receipt of a card from Rev. S. Heininger this week on which he stated that he had declined a unanimous call from the Grace M. P. Church of Columbus, Ohio, to be their pastor for another year. While he was pastor last year they built an $8,000 church, the Sunday School and congregation was doubled in the last six months. As Mr. Heininger's home is in Adrain, Mich., he thought it too far from home and he thought they should have a pastor who could make his home there. The first Sunday in September closes his year with them. Salary $1,000 per year. He further stated that they were in usual health.

LIFE ON PANAMA CANAL

Has had one frightful drawback—malaria trouble—that has brought suffering and death to thousands. The germs cause chills, fever and ague, biliousness, lassitude, weakness and general debility. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malarial troubles. "Three bottles completely cured me of a very severe attack of malaria," writes Wm. A. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "and I've had good health ever since." Cure Stomach, Liver, and Kidney Troubles, and prevent Typhoid. 50c. Guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

D. F. BROWN,

.....SHOE SHOP.. ...

My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite Kagey's Grocery. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.

St. Joe, - Ind.

Read THE NEWS.

Get a range ticket free for the asking at Burwell's.

When you know anything of news value, call us up by Bell 'phone No. 10

Bring that oil can to Kinsey's Hardware, they can fill it.

Mrs Esther Nelson Karn, of Fort Wayne, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. C. Patterson, over Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Nichols and daughter of LaGrange, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Patterson.

Bert Hull of Colorado Springs, Colo., arrived home Sunday for a short visit His father is about the same at this time and is still confined to his bed.

Mr. and Mrs S. W. Tustison entertained to supper last Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Lee O. Tustison of Sterling, Ill., with Mrs. H. G. Provines and little son, James of Peoria, Okla.

Frank White and wife were guests of Mrs. White's sister, Grace, at Paulding Saturday. Mrs. White remained for a few days to assist in caring for the little baby, which arrived a few days ago.

The Silver Medal Contest given by the W. C. T. U. on August 31, will be held in the Methodist Church. This promises to be a literary treat for the people of this vicinity and all should prepare to attend.

The Misses Anna and Lily Shearer of Gutherie Center, Iowa, and Mr. C. F. Davis of Allegheny, Pa., are guests in the homes of E. E. Berry and J. T. Betz. The former are neices and the latter a cousin of Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Betz.

THE NEWS is in receipt of a sack of fine, large plums, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. M. Coburn. They are the finest specimen of the luscious fruit we have ever seen and to give some idea of the size, it takes nine to fill a can. Many thanks for them.

The W. C. T. U. will meet August 27th at the home of Mrs. Jennie White. Contrary to the program this will not be a guest meeting from the fact that Mrs. Perkins, state worker, could not be present, but a good program has been arranged and all members are urged to be present.

The 37th Annual Reunion of the Indiana State Association of the Veterans of the Mexican War will be held in Senate Chamber, Capitol, Indianapolis, Sept., 6, 1910, at 10 a. m. All Mexican War Veterans and widows and families, and all ex soldiers and their families and friends are invited. The Mayor of Indianapolis and his committee will give all a royal reception—concert by the Knightstown Soldiers and Sailors Boys' Band, automobile ride about city and camp fire in evening. These reunions will be held every year as long as one Ex-Mexican soldier is left and able to call the roll. The National Association of Veterans of Mexican War will meet at same time and in the same room with them. Headquarters at Hotel English. Rates, $2.00 per day, American plan.

STRUCK A RICH MINE,

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., says he struck a perfect mine of health in Dr. King's New Life Pills, for they cured him of kidney and liver trouble after 12 years of suering. They are the best pills on earth for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia, Debility. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

..Real Estate..

Insurance

NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages..

E. E. BERRY

J D Fetters

TRUSTEE
of Concord Township.

OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK
at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

You will find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Especially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37-4.

DEFIANCE COUNTY FAIR

HICKSVILLE, OHIO

AUGUST 30-31, SEPTEMBER 1-2, 1910.

Three Days of Recreation, Pleasure and Profit

Wednesday is CHILDREN'S DAY. All children of 14 years and under admitted FREE.

Friday is Old Soldiers' Day and Old Soldiers, their wives, widows will be admitted free of charge

Splendid Races and other attractions have been provided for each day, while the stock and farm produce department will be found unusually fine this year.

No expense within reason is being spared, the effort being to make this year the greatest and best of the thirty-three years history of the Hicksville Fair.

HART'S FAMOUS BOY BAND

each day and evening, and Thursday the band will consist of Forty Pieces. The largest band ever playing in Hicksville.

Come everybody and have a good time.

It is said that the hobble skirt looks like a laundry bag upside down.

C. S. Sailor, wife and daughter Lazearn, spent Sunday with relatives at Harlan.

If you want that steel range Burwell is giving away, you must be present at 4:00 o'clock, Saturday.

Miss VanFleit of Garrett and Miss Georgie VanFleit, of Auburn, were guests in the home of W. C. and Mrs. Patterson Tuesday.

Mr. Henry Hosler and wife, Mr. Garry Bates and wife of Leo, and Mr. Yarie of Grabill, were guests in the home of H. M. Widneys', last Sunday.

Miss Anna Wilmot favored Mrs. Leighty with a fine bunch of roasting ears and slicing cucumbers last week, for which we thank her very much. We never refuse any donations.

The fellow who stops his paper because he becomes offended at some item that does not suit his fancy, always imagines he is getting even with the publisher, but he is never missed. This only happens occasionally for there are only a few people in any community who imagine a paper should contain nothing but what they approve of.

Week before last we mentioned the purchase by G. Q. Morgan of a half interest in a drug store at Edon, his partner being Harry Milliman. The Edon people will find both of these gentlemen experts in the line and having up-to-date and progressive ideas of their business. They will give Edon a drug store that the citizens can well be proud of. Their families will also contribute to the social and moral life of the town, and will be found worthy of the fullest confidence and regards.—Hicksville Tribune.

THE BEST HOUR OF LIFE

Is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky Mt., N. C., when he was suffering intensely, as he says, "from the worst cold I ever had; I then proved to my great satisfaction what a wonderful Cold and Cough cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For after taking one bottle I was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that." Its the surest and best remedy for diseased lungs, hemorrhages, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hay Fever—any throat or lung trouble. 50c, $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

W. G. Erick

TRUSTEE
of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY
TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK
at Store in
SPENCERVILLE, IND

Dr. Lake reports another case of genuine typhoid fever, that of Mrs. Jay Fetters.

S. S. Kimes

—M. D.—

Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.

Phone No. 10.
Spencerville, Ind.

DENTIST

C. R. PRICE,

ST. JOE, IND.

Office in Case building.

Bell Phone No. 44.

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

Calls answered day or night.

Phone No. 82.

St. Joe, - Indiana.

Read the ads and be posted.

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at ..... 10:32 a. m.
No. 3 ..... 8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at..... 6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at..... 4:57 p.m.

5% FARM LOANS 5%

SEE

Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.

Bell 347k Home 346

Office:
Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Elza Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son,

Phone No. Office 37-2. Residence 37-3

AUGUST

0495

L 904

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

SPENCERVILLE.

Read your own NEWS.

See the Fantastic Parade this afternoon at 4 P. M.

Robert Beams and Ort Wearley were at Harlan, Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Vallieu called on J. C. Vallieu and wife, Friday evening.

Geo. Knisley and wife of Butler, spent Sunday with J. R. Knisley and family.

Charley Boston and family visited last Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Smith.

Jerome Cook and family attended the Cook reunion, last Monday at Cedarville, and report a fine time.

Old junk and rubber brings the highest market price at J. F. Baltz. Come and see him.

Rev. and Mrs. Barton and daughter Mae, are visiting with D. D. Metcalf and family. Mr. Barton preached at the M. E. church, Sunday.

Before buying your machine oil see Erick & Co's Eldorado Castor. Only 20c. per gallon. It's a fine one.

Misses Jennie Steward and Bessie Hart and Argyl Beams have returned home from Marion and Valparaiso, where they have been attending school.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shilling entertained to dinner Sunday, the following, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shilling and daughter Lela, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Krider of Cedarville, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fry of near Hicksville, Mr. and Mrs. James Keesler and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Donat of Antwerp

Mrs. Hattie Beams received a severe cut in her head last week one day while engaged in putting a stock of paint on the shelf. She had placed a can on the stepladder and was then called to some other part of the store, upon returning to the work she moved the ladder and the can fell, striking her on the head, cutting a gash two inches long. She was soon at work again after the wound was dressed.

When the digestion is all right, the action of the bowels regular, there is a natural craving and relish for food. When this is lacking you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They strengthen the digestive organs, improve the appetite and regulate the bowels. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

THE NEWS $1.00 per year.

Lutheran S. S., 108 attendance $2.81 collection.

Everett Walker and wife visited at this place, Sunday.

Burl Enzor and wife made a business trip to Hicksville, last Thursday.

Delmer Markle's little daughters are here visiting this week, from Ft. Wayne.

Mrs. Koontz and Miss Mary Comesky were Hicksville shoppers, one day last week

Miss Letha Enzor of Newville, is here visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Burl Enzor for a few days.

Ethel Baker returned Friday from the St. Joseph hospital at Ft. Wayne and is feeling quite well again.

If you have any legal advertising to be done insist that it be run in THE NEWS. You have the right to say where such advertising should be run. We can give you a better home circulation than any other paper in the county and that is what you want. Don't forget us.

Boger Reunion.

On Thursday, August 18th., the Boger family held their Ninth Annual Family Reunion in the grove of the late William Ringwalt, in Springfield Township, Allen County, Ind. Despite the heavy downpour of rain, which continued the greater part of the forenoon, and the dark threatening clouds that overcast the sky and hid the sun for the rest of the day, a goodly number of the relatives had assembled by the noon hour at the grove. The tables were set and a bounteous basket dinner was enjoyed by all. No program was rendered, those present freely mingling and spending the time in pleasant conversations.

The officers selected for the ensuing year are as follows:-President, Scott Boger; Vice President, F. A. Boger; Secretary, Effie L. Boger; Treasurer Chas Zeis; Historians, S. L. Boger, Edna Zeimmer and F. T. Boger.

At a late hour in the afternoon, all returned to their homes expressing themselves agreeably on the out come of the day, to meet again in family reunion on their regular day, the third Thursday in August of the coming year.

Melvin Cook sold his horse last Monday, to Frank Hart of St. Joe.

Dallas Kelley made a business trip to Ft. Wayne, last Saturday.

Frank Baltz and wife visited with the former's parents, Sunday.

Bring your old junk and rubber to J. F. Baltz. Prices right.

The new cement walk in front of the M. E. parsonage is completed.

Burl Enzor and wife visited last Sunday with Harry Enzor and family at Newville.

Frank Knisley, who is working near Mark Center, spent last week with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Kelley and son, are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Kelley and family.

Lewis Beery has purchased a new automobile, which he will use for delivering fruit, etc.

Mrs. David Benson, who has been here caring for her mother, Mrs. Benj. Hursh returned home Friday morning.

Mrs. S. E. Knisley and daughters, Opal and Mable, called on Mrs. Mabel Repp, Monday. They also made a trip to St. Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Heyman returned home Saturday evening after attending the Lake reunion in Tyndall's grove.

Youthful Egotism.

Seated upon an empty store box in front of a country store sat a youth of twelve years of age. The Hookworm had begun his work in the destruction of the energetic enthusiasm of the lad and the warm dreamy days of spring had drowned out all liking for the small excitement of the "Little Red School House". With eyes squinted to protect them from the sun and with his chin resting on his folded limbs, he wondered how Sammy Hawkins could ever stand it to plow corn on puch hot days and he hoped that he could get thru the world without ever turning a clod. He had reached that youthful stage of life when one has big dreams of the future and figures how he might grow to manhood by a quick and glorious route and achieve greatness.

As he sat there humped up in his restful pose, wondering what to do next, an automobile with four young men swung round the corner and stooped at the country store to buy cigars. They lighted their cigars and drove away. He had carefully watched the proceedings of the autoparty and his squinty eyes had learned something new. He had learned to smoke. He had carefully watched how they bit off the end, how they held them as they blew out the big puffs of smoke. "An idle brain is the devil's work shop." So away he went to try the new scheme. Being inspired by what he thought to be a scene of manliness, he cunningly stole ten cents from his ma's pocketbook and told the clerk he wanted two five-centers for his "dad", which were sold to him Down along the creek seemed to be a good place where no one could see him, so he sauntered down the bank under a tree and proceeded to duplicate what he had seen in the auto party. Gazing down into the smooth surface of the water he could plainly see how seemingly manly he appeared and in his imagination he saw how much the other fellows would wish they were "him", after he learned to smoke. He had smoked clover heads, mullen leaves, corn silks, grape vines, and pieces of buggy whips rolled in bits of newspapers, but had never smoked a real cigar. The thoughts of being a sport had puffed him up like a big bull frog which sat blinking at him from the other bank. He drug out great clouds of smoke that made the mosquitoes change quarters and he wondered why he had not learned to smoke sooner. Presently he began to feel a little sad in the stomach and everything began to go around. The white clouds and the blue sky, the brown bark of the trees, the green grass, the water of the creek and the patch of turnips and tomatoes just over the fence, all commenced to revolve so rapidly that they resembled a bowl of tomato soup that his ma had made for dinner and which he now proceeded to feed to the little birds and fishes. With watery eyes and a white complexion, whiter than powder can paint, he started home, where a few barn yard melodies might be heard if the "old gent" got next.

Seven years have passed and this is what we see. Walking down street with an air of a cyclone (although far less dangerous in his ability to create any conspicious disturbances) is the same young man. He has just graduated, of course, because the school officials inability to supply teachers of enough superior intelligence to increase his great store of knowledge. With his hands in the pockets of his trousers he is shaking a bunch of his father's keys and a few pool chips which he and the rest of the sports obtained while in the city. The noise he is thus making signifies that he wishes you to know that the possibilities might be that he had some money. In the corner of his mouth is a cigar which he uses to prove to the world that he is now realy a man. As a rule he smokes cigarettes but he is going out on a special occasion today and must use a cigar because it doesn't look quite so cheap and more manly. He must look like a man at any cost, because he is going to see the sixteen year old girl of one of the prominent citizens of the village. With his hat on one side of his head, a blue meteric tail issuing from his cigar, his much sprained, warped imagination appeals to the public in this manner: Watch me for a pattern of manly perfection, see my good clothes and see how gracefully I glide along in those new oxfords and take notice how correctly I handle my cigar and blow the smoke from my mouth. Observe how near I have come to being a man without getting the swell head. I can go with more young ladies than the majority of the other toughs even if I do drink booze when I am away from home. And just think who I am and what a high family I sprang from. And on he goes thru life with indications pointing to a daily increase in the size of that noble head.

Youthful egotism is a God's blessing to any young man and the community in which he lives if the inflamation settles and enlarges the heart, but what a misfortune and calamity it is to any young man to have the inflamation settle in his head.

If your liver is sluggish and out of tone, and you feel dull, bilious, constipated, take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets tonight before retiring and you will feel all right in the morning. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

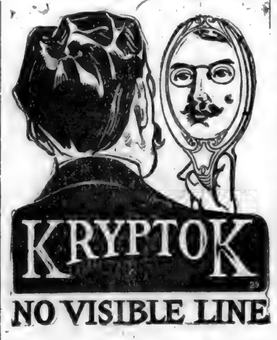
WERNERT

Is headquarters for drugs of all kind. Toilet articles, Cold Cream, for the ladies toilet. Mrs. Prices Canning Compound is used extensively in the canning season and keeps it the same as when first canned: Paints, oils and Pharmacuticles.

Perscriptions carefully compounded.

SPENCERVILLE

The Story Your Mirror Tells



KRYPTOK

NO VISIBLE LINE

You read and look afar with equal facility, but no one observes that you are wearing bifocals because the usual lines are absent. Wear the genuine Kryptok's awhile and you will never willingly return to old style bifocle glasses.

The Hartzog Method

of examination and adjustment insures correct comfortable glasses, backed by our Guarantee to give satisfaction. No charge for examination.

DR. J. W. HARTZOG

The Eyesight Specialist.

At Dr. Shook's office Spencerville, Monday, August 29nd

Remember Date Call Early

HOME OFFICE

1213 Wells, Cor. Wells and High

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

YOU ARE ALWAYS WELCOME AT THE

TREECE RESTAURANT

Lunch, Cigars, Confectionary, Ice Cream and Soft Drinks

Clem Treece

PROPRIETOR.

AUGUST 17TH

Beams & Company

AUGUST 27TH

SPENCERVILLE, INDIANA.

The season has arrived when we wish to give you the one time of your life, in the way of cash buying, that will certainly pay you to investigate. This sale lasts 10 days only, commencing

Wednesday, Aug. 17, Continuing until Saturday, Aug. 27.

Remember that these prices are for cash or trade only.

We herewith submit for your consideration the following CASH prices.

For the Men and Boys.

HATS

$2 25 hats go at.....$1 25 to 1 65
2 00 hats go at.....$1 38
1 50 hats go at.....1 15
Straw hats very cheap.....
Summer caps from 10c up.....

Winner Overall and Shirts

$ 75 article at.....$ 68
1 50 suit at.....1 35
50 overall at.....44
50 shirt at.....43
A lot of $1.50, $2 00, $2.50 and $3.00 Pants cheap.

DRESS SHIRTS

$1 00 shirts at.....87c
50 shirts at.....44c
These shirts are nearly all new.

SUMMER UNDERWEAR

$ 50 garments at.....43c
1 00 suits at.....81c
A few 25c garments at.....21c
Fleeced lined underwear at the same prices.

SOCKS

Mens work socks go at
10c values at.....8c or 4 for 30c
25c pair at.....21c
15c pair at.....12c or 3 pairs for 35c

SHOES.

$3 50 Oxfords at.....$2 75
4 00 dress shoes at.....3 39
3 50 dress shoes at.....2 78
3 00 dress shoes at.....2 38
2 50 dress shoes at.....2 10
2 25 dress shoes at.....1 79
2 00 dress shoes at.....1 60

Boys Elk Outing Shoes

Sizes 3, 3½, 4, a good $2.00 shoe for only.....$1 70

Work Shoes.

$3 00 Elkskins at.....$2 55
3 00 Water proof at.....2 45
2 50 shoes at.....2 10
2 25 shoes at.....1 80
2 00 shoes at.....1 65
2 00 black or tan.....1 65

FANCY DISHES CONSISTING OF BERRY SETS, CAKE PLATES, SALAD, BONBON AND PLENTY OF OTHERS AT $1.00 and $1.25, Pieces 65c and 80c.

Buy your

Childrens Shoes

at this time and save money and be satisfied.

Our line of Groceries is of the Highest Quality.

For the Ladies.

36 in Brilliantine worth 50c. at 39c yd
50c Summer Silks.....39c yd
50c and 60c Overlace.....41c yd
25c Trimming.....19c yd
16c Dotted Swiss.....12c yd
25c novelty Crepe.....18c yd
25c Soisette.....19c yd
10c Dress Ginghams.....8c yd
8c Apron checks.....6½c yd
6 and 7c Calico at.....5½c yd

MUSLINS.

9c Bleached Muslins.....7½c yd
10c " " .....8c yd
11c " " .....9c yd
UNBLEACHED MUSLINS.
10c at.....8½c yd
8c at.....6½c yd

LACE CURTAINS.

$3 25 pr. at.....$2 79
3 00 pr. at.....2 49
1 25 pr. at.....99
25c Dutch Collars at.....19c
25c Bow Ties at.....19c
Your choice back combs.....15c

$1 00 Jackson Corset.....79c
50 " " 39c

Black Sateen Underskirts

$1 25 at.....98c
1 00 at.....84c

Ladies Oxblood Oxfords

$3 00 pr. at.....$1 99
A few other oxfords cheap.

SHOES.

$3 00 Hand Turned Shoe.....$2 55
2 50 Vici and Gun Metal.....2 10
2 25 Button and lace.....1 80
All other shoes at equally reduced prices.

AUGUST

L 904

0496

AUNT LYDIA'S WHIM

By CAROLINE MAE BURTON

Miss Lydia Dean crunched down the path toward the Wistaria arbor, planting her cane deep in the gravel with every step, resolution in every line of her tall, gaunt form, and a queer smile hovering about her lips.

At the entrance to the arbor she paused and looked at her greatniece sitting in the checkered sunlight, purple wistaria blooms sprinkled on her golden hair and over her soft white gown.

Anne looked up with a welcoming smile and laid aside her embroidery.

"Sit here in the hickory chair, Aunt Lydia, I am so glad you felt able to come out in the garden this morning, there—I shall sit beside you! How is the horrid rheumatism?"

"Better—much better," croaked Miss Lydia, arranging her black silk skirts with careful precision. She patted the lace on her white head and then turned sharp, spectacled eyes upon her neice.

"I'm expecting company today, Anne," she announced.

Anne's blue eyes widened. "Company, Aunt Lydia? Who can it be?—You——you are not expecting any of the Howards?"

"I am," said Lydia defiantly. "One of the Howards—but you needn't see him. In fact I don't want you to meet him!"

"Him?" echoed Anne faintly.

"Why not him?" mimicked Miss Lydia with sudden fierceness. "I've got a great nephew as well as a niece, Miss! And I think quite as much of him!" The cap ribbons fluttered violently.

"I don't doubt that, Aunt Lydia, but you know very well that father and Sylvester Howard had a bitter quarrel and they never made it up afterwards. I don't wish to meet any of them. I think I better go home—I've overstayed my visit anyway." A pink flush was deepening in Anne's smooth cheek.

"You'll stay right here, Miss!" snapped Miss Lydia. "If you want to carry on your father's quarrel, very well, I admit that my step-nephew Sylvester treated your father shamefully; but Sylvester and his wife are dead these ten years past and so is your father. If you and Stephen Howard want to carry on the war—I don't care, only I shan't be disturbed!"

Anne Listened, Sitting on a Low Rustic Bench.

"I don't wish to meet Stephen Howard, Aunt Lydia," said Anne firmly.

"And I don't want you to meet each other! You can have the run of the south wing of the house and Stephen will stay in the north. You keep to the rose garden and the south lawn and Stephen can stay on the other side of the hedge. If either one of you so much as speaks to the other I'll cut you both off and leave every cent I've got to the Homeless Cat society!"

"I'm sure that's a lovely plan, Aunt Lydia, and may I have my meals sent up to my room?"

"Certainly, my dear!"

"You know I've been here four weeks, auntie, and the young man ought to have a chance to enjoy his visit. When is he coming?"

"He's coming now, I believe," exclaimed Miss Lydia, rising stiffly, and hobbling to the door. "I heard a carriage drive up—yes, it's the station, carryall! My dear—just attend to your embroidery and remember what I said about speaking to Stephen. I won't have it!"

"I don't wish to!" retorted Anne hastily.

Miss Lydia flung a wicked look over her square shoulder as she crunched up the path to the carriage drive.

Anne setting stitches with trembling fingers, heard a deep musical voice shout a word of greeting, but her pride would not permit her to peer through the vine leaves to look at the step-cousin whom she had never seen.

It was rather a queer day after that. Susan brought her luncheon out to the arbor and Anne quite enjoyed eating it there. Afterwards, she reached her room through a side door and staircase and that evening dinner was sent up to her with Aunt Lydia's love.

She could hear the distant murmur of a man's voice all the evening and then, just before bedtime, some one—of course, not Aunt Lydia—played upon the violin! Anne, the music lover, set her door ajar and listened to the exquisite strains that floated up from the parlor, and barely closed it creakingly when Aunt Lydia's thumping footsteps sounded on the stairs.

The old lady put her head into Anne's room and found the girl tucked under the covers, the moonlight streaming in from the open windows.

"Asleep, Anne Deane?" she asked softly.

"No, Aunt Lydia; come and kiss me good night," said Anne sitting up in bed.

Miss Lydia planted a dry kiss on Anne's cheek and left behind the echo of a little chuckling laugh.

"Good night, my dear!" she said, closing the door. "I hope my objectionable guest has not annoyed you by intruding on your domain?"

"No, dear Aunt Lydia," said Anne with equal sweetness. "I've had a charming time!"

The next morning Anne spent a lonely day in the rose garden. Over the high hedge she caught an occasional glimpse of Aunt Lydia's guest and a vague regret filled her heart that their father's had seen fit to quarrel. He did look so big and handsome and companionable—and Anne had never had a cousin or a brother or a sister! After all, he was only her cousin by marriage, so she didn't really have a cousin.

She saw him glancing at her from his seat under the cedars on the lawn, and hid herself in the wistaria arbor with flushed cheeks and little angry sparks in her blue eyes.

They saw each other every day; Stephen Howard took to walking near the hedge and once after Anne had taken her pretty nose from the fragrant heart of a red rose, he leaned boldly over the hedge and plucked the rose and stuck it in the lapel of his white coat.

Anne saw all this from her retreat in the arbor, and the angry sparkles in her eyes changed to something else. Miss Lydia say it too, from the sitting-room window, and gave vent to such strange gurglings that Susan flew, alarmed, to the arbor and summoned Anne to the house.

"She's in a fit of some sort, Miss," breathed Susan heavily, as she tried to keep pace with Anne's flying feet.

"Stephen Howard saw that something was amiss and he, too, hastened to the house, meeting Anne and Susan face to face in the sitting-room.

"Miss Lydia was sitting stiffly erect, glaring at them through her great spectacles. "What is the matter?" she demanded sharply. "Why are you here, Anne—Stephen?"

"Susan said you were ill, Aunt Lydia," faltered Anne, avoiding the merry gray eyes of her hated cousin.

"Susan is a fool," announced Miss Lydia; and with this imperious decree impressed upon them,, the three scattered—Anne to her rose garden, Stephen to his seat under the cedars, and Susan in high dudgeon to the kitchen where she confided to the cook that, "Miss Lydia was losing her mind it was plain to be seen—the way she kept them two young people apart!"

"After that, when Stephen Howard played the violin in the evenings, he played to Anne; and Anne knew it.

As the June days fled swiftly, Anne forgot all about the fued that had existed between her father and Stephen's parent—and she saw nothing save a pair of gray eyes from grave to tender and often merry as they met her own shy glances.

Then, one evening Anne lingered among the roses; the moon was full and the whole garden was heavy with the scent of the velvet blooms. In the sitting-room, Stephen was playing in the dusk to Miss Lydia.

At last he played the air to a song that he had whistled much of late when Anne had been in the garden: "Thine Eyes So Blue and Tender!" Anne listened, sitting on a low rustic bench, her face buried in a cluster of blush roses. She did not know when the music stopped for her heart was full of the sweetest song of all. Somebody sat down beside her, and Stephen's hand drew the roses away from her face.

"Anne—little cousin Anne——" he began softly. "I am going to defy Aunt Lydia and speak to you—shall I?"

"Yes," whispered Anne in a very small voice.

What Stephen told Anne was heard only by the roses and witnessed by a yellow moon.

After a while they went hand in hand and confronted Miss Lydia in the sitting-room.

Stephen put his arm around Anne "Aunt Lydia," he said firmly, "Anne and I love each other—and we want to get married!"

"Married!" exploded Miss Lydia. "I thought there was a fued—Anne wanted to go home when she heard you were coming and you didn't want to stay when you heard she was here! What about the family quarrel?"

"We—we buried it in the rose garden," said Anne softly. "Dear Aunt Lydia, I wish you didn't object!"

Miss Lydia's face quivered. "Object!" she quavered; "My dears—it came just as I planned! "It's the dearest wish of my heart to see the family re-united by your marriage!"

"But—I would surely have fallen in love with Anne—quarrel or no quarrel," asserted Stephen when they have been duly kissed by Miss Lydia.

"That may be—that may be," said the old lady wisely; "it may have been whim on my part to have it happen this way—

"Happen!" they exclaimed in dust, "It didn't happen, Aunt Lydia! It just had to be!"

CAP and BELLS

SUMMER GIRL HAD VISIONS.

She Was Thinking of Matrimony, While He Could Imagine Nothing but Mosquitoes.

It was not leap year, but she had visions of becoming a summer bride and she was not backward by any means.

"George," she whispered, nestling closer on the moss-grown log, "this is summer."

"What of it?" asked George, somewhat mystified.

"Well, er—what does summer bring that begins with an M?"

Now, she was thinking of matrimony, but George was not. He sat in puzzled silence for a long while and then his face brightened.

"Oh, I know what summer brings that begins with an M."

Ah, at last! Her heart throbbed with expectancy.

"I knew you would catch on, dear. Now, what is it summer brings that begins with an M?"

"Why, mosquitoes! Ha, ha!"

And the look she gave him would have frozen radium.

Always Praises.

Gyer—That fellow Merriam reminds me of a tombstone.

Myer—Because he is dead set in his ways, eh?

Gyer—No; because he always has a good word for a man when he's down.

The Scapegoat.

Limpy Bill—I had to split up twice as much wood as usual afore th' old lady would gimme a hand-out.

Blinky Bob—What's th' cause of it, Limpy?

Limpy—Th' increased cost of livin', I s'pose.

A Man of Sense.

Mrs. Naggs—My husband is a man of sense, anyway.

Mrs. Waggs—Oh, is he?

Mrs. Nagge—Yes. Every time I let him have his own way he sees afterward how he could have improved upon it.

Domestic.

Hubby—We must be economical.

Wife—Why?

Hubby—If I should die I wouldn't be able to leave you much.

Wife—That's right. Whereas, while you're alive you leave me most of the time.

HE KNEW HER.

Hix—We are in love with the same girl.

Nix—How shall we end the matter?

Hix—Suppose you propose to her.

A Sense of Superiority.

"How many times have you been arrested?" asked the court.

"A good many," replied Plodding Pete, "but only for small offenses. I never git pinched for violatin' de speed laws or failin' to blow a horn."

The Sageville Sage.

"What is the secret of happiness?" asked the young person.

"The secret of happiness," replied the sage of Sageville, "consists of being perfectly satisfied with what you haven't got!"

Can They Display the Givers?

At a class dinner fifteen graduates of a woman's college exhibited engagement rings, thus proving that a higher education is no bar against a quick start toward the matrimonial goal.

A Come-Back.

"Hello, old man!"

"Pardon me, sir; I don't know you. You have the advantage of me."

"Not at all. I know you. The disadvantage is all mine."

WIFE'S PET DOG WAS USEFUL.

In Order to Secure New Silk Dress She Gives Beast to Sister—Can Get Him Back.

"I haven't seen your pet dog for several days," said a devoted husband to his wife.

"No," she replied; "the fact is, I have given him away."

"Why, you needn't have done that. I had not particular objection to him."

"Oh, I know that! But I thought that it was not right for me to have a pet dog about the house when I have such a good, kind husband to lavish my affections upon."

The husband sank into a chair with a deep sigh.

"How much do you want, Mary?" he asked, as he drew his purse from his pocket; "it can't be a sealskin jacket, for the winter is over."

"No," she said, "it is not a sealskin jacket, darling; but I would really like a new silk dress this summer, and you know it has to be bought and made and all that."

"Now," he said, as he handed her the money, "what proof of your affections will you give me when you want another dress, since you have given away your dog?"

"Oh," she sweetly replied, "I've given the dog to my sister, and I can get him back again!"

Then We'd Hear Things.

"It's in the world of politics," said the talkative man, "that the truth of the old saying, 'Money talks,' is most frequently proven."

"Yes," replied the wise citizen, "but if hush money would only talk, what sensations we would have."—Catholic Standard and Times.

AGREED.

Fudge—Troublesh never comsh shingly. Thash my 'sperience.

Smudge—Mine, too. I'm smarried m'shelf, ol' man.

Proof at Hand.

Magistrate—What is the prisoner?

Policeman—He says he's a foreign nobleman, your honor.

Magistrate—Did you search him?

Policeman—Yes, and all I found was a pawn ticket and 3 cents.

Magistrate—Then he evidently told the truth.

Instinct.

Sick magnate (feebly)—What is that on the table there?

Secretary—That? That is the doctor's medicine case.

Sick magnate (relieved)—Thanks. I—er—thought it was a camera.

Two.

Seymour—I didn't know that Brefums had two automobiles.

Ashley—He hasn't.

Seymour—But I heard him say he had two runabouts.

Ashley—One of them is his wife's.

A Soft Snap.

"The new secretary will be a sort of assistant president."

"He'll have plenty to do."

"I don't doubt it. But, say, how'd you like to be an assistant vice-president?"

Dry Cleaned Them.

"Why is your grandpa's face bandaged?" asks the lady next door.

"He was sleeping in his big chair," explains the little girl, "and Willie turned the nozzle of the vacuum cleaner against his whiskers."

At the Opera.

Usher—Ladies, the audience wishes you to keep still during the performance.

Ladies—Heavens! Is it possible that the audience hasn't heard this old opera before?

Mutually Agreeable.

Bells—But do you think you and he are suited to each other?

Nell—Oh, perfectly! Our tastes are quite similar. I don't care very much for him, and he doesn't care very much for me.

Literary Success.

"Well, how's things?"

"Fine," replied the author. "The critics pronounced my last novel so worthless that I have six publishers bidding for my next book."

His Habit.

Miss Gushit—Harry is so particular. He waited till I consented to go out rowing with him before he proposed.

Miss Cute—Oh, any girl about here could have told you that.

COULDN'T STAND THE RACKET

Philadelphian Who Went Up Against New York's Noise Soon Hit the Trail for Home.

A prominent New York broker tells a good story on one of his older brothers. For many years their lives have run along different lines and they have grown out of touch with each other. The younger is accustomed to hurly-burly of city life, but his brother's course has been much quieter. Twenty-five years ago he received an appointment in one of the museums in Washington, and he seems to have become part of that institution. The particular section that he has in charge does not require him ever to leave town, and he has stayed right there in Washington.

Occasionally the younger brother would go down to the capital for a visit and would never leave without having repeatedly urged the older one to get out of the rut, if only once in a while and if only for a short time. He never achieved anything until a few weeks ago. Then he succeeded in getting a promise to come to New York, and the promise was kept.

The visitor was taken to see some of the sights and things that moved pretty swiftly. They traveled in taxicabs, street cars and "L" trains. The New Yorker did it without effort, but the big brother was in a state of breathlessness all the time. They turned in late and tired out.

Next morning the visitor was not up very early and when he did come down he said he was going out to the barber shop, and disappeared. For several hours nothing was seen nor heard of him, and the anxious city brother was considering sending out a police alarm when a telegraph messenger rang the bell.

The wire was from Philadelphia. "Safe, by George!" was all it said.

FISH THAT PERFORM TRICKS

Finny Tribe Would Appear to Have More Intelligence Than Is Usually Attributed to Them.

Fish have many times been taught to perform tricks, and it would appear as if they had much more intelligence than is attributed to them.

J. A. Bailey of circus fame once had two brook trout in a small aquarium in his private residence that would jump out of the water and take flies held between the forefinger and thumb, and would also ring a little bell when they required food. They would also leap over little bars of wood placed about two inches above the surface of the water.

It was a very simple matter to teach the fish these tricks. At first a little tower containing a tiny, sweet toned silver bell was fastened to the iron work of the aquarium with a piece of string attached to the tongue of the bell extending into the water where the trout were. On the loose end of the string an insect or other tempting morsel was placed, which the fish would at once seize and, pulling the cord, the bell in the tower would naturally tinkle.

After this had been repeated several days, the fish were left without food for some little time until they made the discovery that they could obtain it by pulling at the string to which the delicacies had been attached.

This they never failed to do ever afterward when they were hungry, and as that was nearly all the time, the little bell was constantly tinkling, as the fish were continually pulling the cord, and it was quite a pretty and novel sight.

A Misplaced Title.

Among obvious misnomers one London theater is not in Drury Lane, theater is not in Drury Lane, and no reason can be assigned for giving it the name of that thoroughfare. The first theater built on the present site was at one time frequently referred to as the theater in Covent garden. On February 6, 1663, Pepys notes: "I walked up and down and looked upon the outside of the new theater building in Covent garden, which will be very fine." In those days no theater existed in Covent garden, the predecessor of the present opera house having been opened in 1732.—London Chronicle.

Mild Justice.

On the bench Judge A. is very stern, but at home his wife is the disciplinarian of the family. One day, says Harper's Magazine, when the parlor was full of callers at the judge's house the door suddenly burst open, and with a whoop his two young sons burst in, riding their pet goat.

The judge was looked to by the party to give the official rebuke. He rose to the occasion.

"Boys," he said, sternly, "take that goat out of here this instant! Take it," here his gathering frown made the guests quake inwardly, "take it back to the library, where it belongs."

Why Sixty Minutes Made an Hour.

The hour is divided into 60 minutes simply because in old Babylon there existed, by the side of the decimal system of notation, another system, the sexagesimal, which counted by sixties. There is no number which has so many divisors as 60. The Babylonians divided the sun's daily journey into 24 parasangs, each parasang, or hour, being divided into 60 minutes. The parasang is about equal to a German mile, and the Babylonians compared the progress made by the sun during one hour to the progress made by a good walker during the same time.

TEN YEARS OF SUFFERING.

Restored at Last to Perfect Health by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Narcissa Waggoner, Carterville, Ill., says: "For over ten years I suffered terribly with backaches, headaches, nervous and dizzy spells. The kidney secretions were unnatural and gave me great trouble. One day I suddenly fell to the floor, where I lay for a long time unconscious. Three doctors who treated me diagnosed my case as paralysis and said they could do nothing more for me. As a last resort, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and was permanently cured. I am stronger than before in years."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Quaint Table Manners.

Jerome S. McWade, the Duluth millionaire, talked at a dinner about the delights of a backwoods vacation.

"I go to a quaint backwoods village every summer," he said, "and numberless are the quaint people I meet there.

"Old Boucher, for instance, the janitor of the village church, is most amusing with his quaint ways. I had old Boucher to lunch one day, and the cold lobster was served with a mayonnaise sauce. When my servant offered this sauce to Boucher, the old man stuck his knife in it, took up a little on the blade, tasted it, then shook his head and said:

"'Don't choose none.'"

Try This, This Summer.

The very next time you're hot, tired or thirsty, step up to a soda fountain and get a glass of Coca-Cola. It will cool you off, relieve your bodily and mental fatigue and quench your thirst delightfully. At soda fountains or carbonated in bottles—5c everywhere. Delicious, refreshing and wholesome. Send to the Coca-Cola Co., Atlanta, Ga., for their free booklet "The Truth About Coca-Cola." Tells what Coca-Cola is and why it is so delicious, refreshing and thirst-quenching. And send 2c stamp for the Coca-Cola Baseball Record Book for 1910—contains the famous poem "Casey At The Bat," records, schedules for both leagues and other valuable baseball information compiled by authorities.

A Fitting Design.

"I want an estimate on 10,000 letter heads," said the professional-looking man with the silk hat.

"Any special design?" asked the engraver.

"Yes, sir," replied the caller. "In the upper left-hand corner I want a catchy cut of Patrick Henry making his memorable speech, and in distinct letters, under the cut, his soul-inspiring words, 'Give me liberty or give me death.' You see," he added, handing a card to the engraver, "I'm a divorce lawyer, and want something fitting."—Lippincott's.

One Side Enough.

Senator William Alden Smith tells of an Irish justice of the peace out in Michigan. In a trial the evidence was all in and the plaintiff's attorney had made a long and very eloquent argument, when the lawyer acting for the defense arose.

"What are you doing?" asked the justice, as the lawyer began.

"Going to present our side of the case."

"I don't want to hear both sides argued. It has a tindency to confuse the coort."—Washingtonian.

A New Version.

Lawyers have a peculiar system of abbreviation, such words as trustees, executors being cut down to trees, exors, and admors. This practise led to an amusing slip on the part of a solicitor, who, somewhat late in life, abandoned his profession and entered the church. A few Sundays after his ordination he startled his congregation while reading the lesson by delivering one of the passages as follows: "I see men as trustees walking."

A woman may or may not try to avoid muddy crossings; it all depends upon her understanding.

Summer Comfort

There's solid satisfaction and delightful refreshment in a glass of

Iced Postum

Served with Sugar and a little Lemon.

Postum contains the natural food elements of field grains and is really a food drink that relieves fatigue and quenches the thirst.

Pure, Wholesome, Delicious

"There's a Reason"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

AUGUST

L 904

0497

OWES HER LIFE TO

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was troubled with falling and inflammation, and the doctors said I could not get well unless I had an operation. I knew I could not stand the strain of one, so I wrote to you sometime ago about my health and you told me what to do. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I am to-day a well woman."—Mrs. William Ahrens, 988 W. 21st St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any similar medicine in the country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every such suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

MISUNDERSTOOD HIM.

"My friend," said the solemn man on the railroad tran, "do you drink intoxicating liquors?"

"Sure!" cried the convivial chap. "Much obliged for the invitation. Got a flask with you?"

Another Tradition Exploded.

Two Englishmen were resting at the "Red Horse Inn" at Stratford-on-Avon. One of them discovered a print picturing a low tumbling building underneath which was printed: "The House in Which Shakespeare Was Born." Turning to his friend in mild surprise he pointed to the print. His friend exhibited equal surprise, and called a waiter, who assured them of the accuracy of the inscription.

"'Pon my word," said the observing Englishman, shaking his head dubiously, "I thought he was born in a manger!"—Success Magazine.

And They Wondered!

Judge Nicholas Longworth, who used to sit on Ohio's supreme bench, looked unnaturally grave, and a neighbor, in recognition of his facial depression, named a pet owl "Judge Longworth." It was the very next day that an excited maid broke up his wife's garden party. "Oh, madam," said she. "Madam! Judge Longworth has laid an egg."

Many a man who stops to think twice fails to act once.

Convenient For Any Meal

Post Toasties

Are always ready to serve right from the box with the addition of cream or milk.

Especially pleasing with berries or fresh fruit.

Delicious, wholesome, economical food which saves a lot of cooking in hot weather.

"The Memory Lingers"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd. Battle Creek, Mich.

MRS. FENTON

BY

W. E. NORRIS

CHAPTER XVIII.

Mrs. Fenton had not been much mistaken in assuming that she would offend her cousin when she told him that he could not have been quite so deeply in love with Miss Moore as he had fancied himself. Though he made no rejoinder at the time, he was a good deal hurt, and thought that if she had been really in sympathy with him she would not have made such a speech. In this particular instance he would, no doubt, have forgiven her more readily had he not felt that her taunt was, to say the least of it, plausible. Perhaps he had been over-punctilious, perhaps it had been absurd to expect that Susie would understand why he had avoided her for so long, perhaps—But he determined not to cheat himself with hopes for which there was absolutely no excuse; and if he was a little disappointed when he heard that the Moores had left London, that was only because even inexcusable hopes die hard. The General, is appeared, had been threatened with an attack of gout, and had therefore hurried his family off to Kissingen, whence they were to proceed to Switzerland later on.

"I suppose Claughton will have the gout, too," Fred said to himself, with a doleful laugh. "Or perhaps he will join them without a pretext; probably they won't require one of him."

If Mrs. Fenton had seemed to lack nicety of perception on the occasion just referred to, she did not again lay herself open to any such reproach. Her opinion as to the comparatively trifling nature of her cousin's malady may have remained unaltered; but she abstained from expressing it, and, indeed, she was good enough to abstain from any direct allusion to Susie Moore. What she did was to cheer the young fellow up as best she could by giving him plenty to do. She insisted upon his taking her to theaters and concerts; she affected to lean upon him a great deal, to be guided by his advice in a hundred small matters; in short, she tried to give him the idea that he was indispensable to her; and if he saw through her kindly stratagems they were not the less successful on that account. Whether he was indispensable to her or not, she became, by degrees, almost indispensable to him. His happiest hours were passed in her society; she made him forget his troubles; sometimes she made him laugh, and when she had achieved that feat she was so childishly triumphant over it that he could not but be touched and grateful.

She and he spent several afternoons in house-hunting together, for he agreed with her that her best plan would be to make London her headquarters. For the matter of that, there was no reason why she should not have a small house in the country as well, if she cared to set up two establishments.

"After all," she said, one day, "who knows whether I shall ever want a house of my own? I may be going to die, or I may be going to lose all my money—who knows?"

"Considering that you are in perfect health, and that you have Mr. Bremitt to look after your investments for you, I don't think either of those catastrophes is very probable," answered Fred, laughing.

But she was in one of her depressed moods and she did not join in his laughter. "Nothing is improbable, except happiness," she declared. "That is impossible for everybody and most improbable for me. Just now I am quite happy—at least, I should be if I could believe that things would go on like this."

"Didn't it ever occur to you that your father would leave you at least a part of his fortune when he died?" asked Fred, wonderingly.

She shook her head. "Never! I give you my word that I never bestowed a single thought upon the subject until that day when I saw the advertisement in the Sydney paper. I didn't look forward at all; I just went on from day to day and tried to forget that there was an awful future coming when I should be old and ugly and voiceless, but the present, at all events, belongs to us, and we will make the most of it. I wish you enjoyed it as much as I do."

He said he enjoyed being with her—which, indeed, was quite true—and she seemed to be pleased with his reply.

But the time very soon came when these two good friends had to part. Parliament had risen; all the fashionable people had left London, and Mrs. Fenton had engagements which necessitated her departure. Lady Clamborough, who had taken her up very strongly, had invited her to spend a few weeks in Scotland, and other ladies, thinking that she would make a useful addition to a house party, had been equally hospitable; so that there was little likelihood of her becoming her own mistress again before the middle of September. "And then," she said, "I think I will go down to some quiet little seaside place and rest awhile. If I do, will you come and see me?"

"Of course, I will," answered Fred, "but I don't much believe in your burying yourself at the seaside. You won't feel any great craving for rest when you get among all these magnificent friends of yours."

"Oh, nonsense!" she returned; "the magnificent people aren't my friends, and never will be. I don't belong to them; I only amuse them: It is you who have friends; I have only one."

And this sentiment she repeated with even more emphasis when he accompanied her to King's Cross to see her off to the North. "I shall write to you," she said, "and I shall expect you to answer me and tell me all about everything."

"I'm afraid there won't be much to tell," replied Fred.

"Oh, yes, there will, if you will write about yourself. That's all I care to hear about—only you. We have had a pleasant time together, haven't we? I wish it were not over! Perhaps it hasn't been so very pleasant to you, though."

She would no doubt have felt flattered if she could have known how much he missed her after her departure. It was quite true that he had no lack of friends, and during the remainder of the summer he had what he would formerly have called "a very jolly time of it," staying for a few days in many country houses and playing cricket a great deal. He had, besides, his comedy to finish and polish, which occupation filled up all the vacant hours. But through it all he had a perpetual dull pain at his heart and a sense of loneliness for which it may be that Susie Moore was not wholly responsible. He had determined to get over his love for Susie, and perhaps he was succeeding; but he wanted encouragement and sympathy and consolation, and nobody but his cousin could provide him with these anodynes.

Nothing is more soothing to a man who has been crossed in love than to feel that the world contains at any rate one woman who takes a tender interest in him.

Incidentally he heard that his anticipations had been verified, and that Captain Claughton had left for Germany to join the Moores. "I suppose," he remarked, in a letter to his cousin, "that we may take that as final." To which she replied by return of post that she was afraid so, but that, do what she would, she could not manage to feel as sorry about it as she ought to feel. "Do you remember," she wrote, "my telling you once that I was abominably jealous? Well, that is the shameful truth. I should have hated Miss Moore if she had been worthy of you; and perhaps that is why I hate her at all for being what she is. May she be happy with her Life Guardsman! And may you soon find out what an easy thing it is to be happy without her!"

Fred did not resent this candid aspiration as he would have done a little earlier in the year, and as time went on, his longing to see this charming cousin of his again grew stronger, and he was very glad when, in the month of September, she wrote to him from Dawlish to say that she had established herself in that remote little watering-place, and that she now claimed the fulfillment of his promise.

"Come and stay with me as long as you will and can," she entreated. "I have got a wee house with three sitting-rooms in it, one of which shall be given up to you to smoke in, or write plays in, or to go to sleep in, as you please. There is nothing whatever to do, except to sit upon the beach and watch the funny-looking people who wander about there and station themselves in the most conspicuous places with their arms around each other's waists. Anyhow, I have seen and done so much since we last met that I have a stock of conversation on hand which can be spread out over three days at least. If you begin to yawn after that, you can go away."

He did not think it at all likely that he would yawn in Laura's company, and he lost no time in obeying her summons. The weather was fine and hot, and pretty little Dawlish, with its white houses drawn up along a strip of beach flanked by red cliffs and facing the open sea, impressed him favorably on his arrival. Not less friendly and pleasant was the aspect of the modest dwelling, overgrown with climbing plants, in which Mrs. Fenton had taken up her quarters; and most pleasant of all was the warmth with which the lady welcomed her visitor. She stepped out through the bow window which opened upon the lawn, and came to meet him with outstretched hands.

"You dear boy!" she exclaimed, "so you have really come! How very, very nice of you!"

"Well—you asked me, you know," answered Fred, with a laugh.

"Oh, I asked you; but asking is one thing and obtaining is another. All day long I have been in momentary expectation of receiving a polite telegram from you: 'So sorry. Unavoidably detained. Will write and explain.'"

"I don't believe you expected anything of the sort," returned Fred. "You are fishing for compliments, Laura."

She shook her head. "No, I am not; I wanted you to come so much that I felt almost sure you wouldn't come. Do you know that you are looking much better than you did when I left London. Your eyes are clearer and you are burnt as brown as a berry. You have been cricketing a great deal, I suppose."

She scrutinized him so intently for a second or two that he reddened a little, notwithstanding his sunburning; for he was a modest young man, and possibly he may have been aware that he was also a very handsome one. "And how am I looking?" she asked presently.

Well, if she was fishing for compliments she got what she wanted this time; for it was in a tone of unmistakable truth and sincerity that Fred replied: "I think you are looking simply lovely."

The fact was that he was struck and a little startled by her beauty, which was in some sort a revelation to him. He had admired her very much in London; but there are more ways than one of admiring a person, and perhaps it was his way of adoring his cousin that had changed all of a sudden, though he thought that the change was in her. "I don't know what you have done to yourself!" he exclaimed after a pause.

"Thank you," she returned, with a slight grimace; "at my time of life it is something to be told that one is looking lovely, even though the statement has to be qualified by expressions of such extreme surprise. I assure you I haven't had recourse to art, if that is what you mean."

In London he had only eyes for Susie Moore; but now, perhaps, he was beginning to discover that there were other women besides Susie Moore in the world—which was a hopeful sign.

And while they were dining together afterwards she was glad to find that he could talk cheerfully and laugh heartily, and that he was so much interested in hearing all about the people whom she had met during the summer as to be almost inquisitive upon the subject. Particularly, he wanted to know what the men had been like, and although he refrained from asking in so many words whether any of them had made love to her, it required no great acuteness of insight to perceive that that was what he wished to discover.

"I know what you are thinking," she said at length; "you are thinking that I have fallen a prey to some fortune-hunter, or that I shall before long, unless I am looked after. Well, what if I do? What difference will it make to you, pray?"

"What difference? Well—is it likely that I should wish you to marry a fortune-hunter? To confess the truth, however, I can't think that I should be very much pleased to hear that you were going to marry anybody. You ought to be able to understand that; because, as you may remember, you told me in one of your letters that you would have hated Miss Moore if she had been what you were pleased to call worthy of me. I won't go so far as to say that I should hate a man who was really worthy of you; but—is there such a man?"

"I don't know," answered Mrs. Fenton; "modesty forbids me to fix the standard of my own worth. But I have the best reasons for believing that there is more than one man who considers himself quite good enough for me."

"Oh! you have had some offers, then, since I saw you last?"

"No less than three; two were from old men and one was from a young one. The two old men, I must say, were not attractive. The first who asked me had a title, and the second, so far as I could make out, had nothing except a shocking reputation and a splendid audacity; so I sent them both to the right-about, and they were not inconsolable. But I was sorry about the young man, who reminded me of you in some ways. He assured me that he didn't want my money, and that he loved me for myself; and though I dare say you will call me a fool for my pains, I couldn't help believing him."

"Why did you refuse him then, Laura?"

"For the good or the bad reason that I didn't love him," she answered. "It is a good reason now, perhaps; I don't know whether it was a good reason for refusing all the men out in Australia who asked me to marry them after I became a widow."

For a long time after this nothing more was said. Fred had lighted a cigar, and, with his hands clasped behind his head, was gazing at his cousin, who was gazing out to sea. At last she rose, stepped through the open window into the drawing-room, struck a few chords on the piano, and began to sing. That queer voice of hers, which was like nobody else's voice, and which had an indescribable sort of humorous pathos in it, floated out to Fred, as he sat smoking in the moonlight, and produced a curiously disturbing and exciting effect upon him. He thought a good deal more about Laura than about Susie Moore that night, although he was perfectly certain that he could never love anyone but Susie, and that his affection for Laura was only that of a somewhat puzzled and anxious brother.

(To be continued.)

Lady Paget on Tips.

Lady Arthur Paget, at the magnificent dinner given in her honor by Frederick Townsend Martin at the Plaza, talked of American extravagance. On the subject of tipping she said:

"Tips here are thrice as big as they are in England or France, and five times as big as they are in Italy. And you tip people that abroad we never think of tipping. You tip, in fact, every one in sight. If not—"

She smiled and resumed:

"A man's wife said to him:

"What about this yard-long golden hair on your dress coat?"

"'It must have come from the porter at the banquet hall last night, my dear.'

"'Ridiculous! The porter wouldn't put a long golden hair on you!'

"'Ah, but he would, though. You see I forgot to tip him for calling me a taxicab.'"

A Frosaic Remark.

"There would be fewer divorces," said Mrs. F. S. Bangs, treasurer of the New York Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, "if men and women looked on marriage in a more romantic light.

"Two business men were conversing over the luncheon of coffee and pie. The older man had just been married. He was telling his friend how happy he was. And he wound up with the ecstatic cry:

"'And, George, what puts me in the seventh heaven is that her first husband's clothes fit me like the paper on the wall.'"—Washington Star.

Proved.

Lady—I never quarreled with my other beaux.

Man—You can't prove it.

Lady—If they were here, they would not contradict me.

Man—Then I see why you didn't quarrel.—Cleveland Leader.

Silence sometimes gives consent and sometimes it gives offense.

Armour's Fertilizers

Increase the yield—Improve the quality—Enrich the soil. Every harvest proves it. Can you afford to risk your wheat? Be safe.

Armour's Fertilizers

grow the biggest crops. Ask your dealer.

Armour Fertilizer Works
Chicago

THE DOCTOR'S IDEA.

Invalid—Doctor, I must positively insist upon knowing the worst.

Dr. Wise—Well, I guess my bill will be about $85.

Making Tasks Easy.

There are lots of magazines printed for the purpose of telling women how to make their work lighter. But you can't reduce labor by reading about it. All the philosophy and theory in the world won't help you out on wash day unless you use Easy Task soap, which lives up to its name and makes washing an easy task by doing half the work. Get it at your grocer's.

The Summer Girl.

"How'd you like to be engaged to a millionaire?"

"I was engaged to one all last summer, and he seldom spent a dime. I want to be engaged to a young man who is down here for two weeks with about $300 in his roll."

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.

Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

Blest Be Nothing.

Wife—The doctor writes that in view of our poor circumstances he will not present his bill immediately.

Artist—We are lucky that our circumstances are no better; if they were, we might have to pay at once!

LOW ONE WAY COLONIST RATES WEST VIA NICKEL PLATE ROAD

August 25 to Sept. 9 and Sept. 15 to Oct. 15. Full information of Agent or write F. P. Parnin, T. P. A., Ft. Wayne, Ind. 36

More Likely.

It is said that the Nicaraguans would rather fight than eat.

But don't jump at the conclusion that this is an indication of great courage.

It may mean poor cooking.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPERS.

Use the best. That's why they buy Red Cross Ball Blue. At leading grocers 5 cents.

A business man's leisure is simply the time he doesn't know what to do with.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

A woman tells her troubles to a doctor; a man tells his to a lawyer.

Constipation Vanishes Forever

Prompt Relief--Permanent Cure

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS never fail. Purely vegetable—act surely but gently on the liver.

Stop after dinner distress—cure indigestion—improve the complexion—brighten the eyes. Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price.

Genuine must bear Signature

Breath Good

FREE Send postal for Free Package of Paxtine.

Better and more economical than liquid antiseptics FOR ALL TOILET USES.

PAXTINE TOILET ANTISEPTIC

Gives one a sweet breath; clean, white, germ-free teeth—antiseptically clean mouth and throat—purifies the breath after smoking—dispels all disagreeable perspiration and body odors—much appreciated by dainty women. A quick remedy for sore eyes and catarrh.

A little Paxtine powder dissolved in a glass of hot water makes a delightful antiseptic solution, possessing extraordinary cleansing, germicidal and healing power, and absolutely harmless. Try a Sample. 50c. a large box at druggists or by mail.

THE PAXTON TOILET CO., BOSTON, MASS.

Murder!

One gets it by highway men—Tens of thousands by Bad Bowels—No difference. Constipation and dead liver make the whole system sick—Everybody knows it—CASCARETS regulate—cure Bowel and Liver troubles by simply doing nature's work until you get well—Millions use CASCARETS, Life Saver! 882

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

STOCKERS & FEEDERS

Choice quality; reds and roans, white faces or angus bought on orders. Tens of Thousands to select from. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Correspondence Invited. Come and see for yourself.

National Live Stock Com. Co.
At either
Kansas City, Mo., St. Joseph, Mo., S. Omaha, Neb.

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere, attracts & kills all flies. Neat, clean, convenient, cheap. Lasts All Season. Made of metal; cannot spill or tip over, will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Of all dealers or sent prepaid for 25c.

HAROLD SOWERS
150 DeKalb Ave.
Brooklyn, New York

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and strengthen Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

The Rayo Lamp is a high grade lamp, sold at a low price. There are lamps that cost more, but there is no better lamp made at any price. Constructed of solid brass; nickel plated—easily kept clean; an ornament to any room in any house. There is nothing known to the art of lamp-making that can add to the value of the RAYO Lamp as a light-giving device. Every dealer everywhere. If not as yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

AUGUST

L 904

0498

Free Demonstration

of Model Ranges and Base Burners

at our Store Rooms in St. Joe, Thursday, Friday and Saturday

SEPTEMBER 8, 9, and 10th.

This demonstration of Model Stoves and Ranges is an event of particular interest to ever housewife in this vicinity and we are eager to have every woman attend. Mr. Henry, an expert from the Model factory will be here these three days and demonstrate the merits of the Model Ranges and Base Burners revealing their efficiency for all practical household purposes.

During the entire demonstration we will have

Coffee and Hot Biscuits Served to Everybody

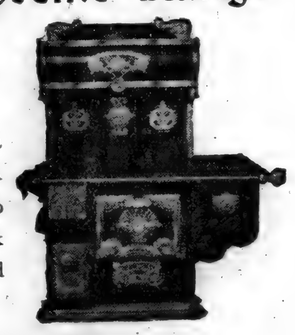
and will also give

FREE CARNATIONS TO THE LADIES

See the Model Supreme Range

in actual process of

Cooking and Baking



No better way to know whether you like a stove than to see what it can actually do. A Model Range, is built to economize in fuel, do better baking and cooking, to lessen the work of the Housewife and make life easier and happier for her—And they do

The Model Base Burner

Reasons Why It is The Greatest Stove

In this stove and in no other you have—An effective ventilating system, effective automatic circulating flues, effective double heating system, positive self feeding, no clogging in magazine, great depth to fire pot, positive acting grate, greatest heat circulating area, greatest heat radiating surface, large three-flue system, greatest fire surface to air flues, fire pot removable through front doors, a 48-hour fire holder, all nickel removable—no bolts, all nickel is first copper plated, automatic hopper lid, a friend in every user.

You can see all these improvements demonstrated at our store on any of the three days—Sept. 8, 9, and 10th. You will then be convinced that our Model Base Burner is right—because actual use proves the results.

YOUR CHOICE OF ANY PIECE OF NICKLE - PLATED
or GRANITE WARE
FREE with each stove purchased during the Demonstration.

To better show our liberality during this demonstration we are going to actually

GIVE AWAY A PERFECTION KITCHEN CABINET

on SATURDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 10, at 8:30 o'clock. We are already distributing the FREE CARDS and if you have not received one come to the store and get it. You may secure the Kitchen Cabinet if you are present on that evening.

H. V. KINSEY & SON

LOOK HERE

Farmer's

Your seed wheat should be cleaned before you sow it. We will clean it for you but we desire that you do not wait until you are just ready to seed before bringing it to be cleaned. It is hard work and requiresconsiderable care to do good work. We have a large field of customers and you may have to wait long for yours if you put this off until just ready to use it. Come early.

Keesler Milling Company,

St. Joe, Ind.

Coburn's Corners

There were 73 present at Sunday School Sunday and a collection of $2.77

Bradley's Wheat Fertilizer is the best on the market. See Curie for particulars.

Joseph Shull and Clyde Hart made a business trip to Ft. Wayne, Tuesday ....Grandma Engle visited over Sunday with her granddaughter. Gladys Hart and family....Mrs. Joseph Shull visited over Sunday with her son, Dan and family, of Rosedale, Ohio.... ....Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee and daughter Mildred, of Blytheville, Ark. spent Tuesday night with Mrs. Matie Gee, and will visit friends in Indiana for a couple weeks....Forest Dermott and wife of Newville Center, visited Wednesday with his uncle, Miller Dermott....Laura Coburn accompanied her cousin, Nella Wyatt of Auburn, home Sunday and remained for a few days visit with relatives .....J. M. Milliman was in Waterloo, Friday.... Mrs. Amelia Beaber spent a part of last week in Garrett, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Grover Ward....Mrs. Eva Monroe of Hicksville, visited with Jacob Bakers', last Thursday.... ....Mrs. Alice Hart wishes to thank her many friends for the beautiful cards sent her on her birthday. She received 53.....Gale Hadsell of Peru, is spending a couple of days with her uncle, Saxe Hadsell .....Mrs. Lizzie Shull accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Merton Abel of Branch, Mich., visited with Mr: and Mrs. David Andress of Hicksville, Friday... .Charles Snider and wife, cousins of Mrs. Will Maxwell, and Mrs. Maxwell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oberholtzer, and Ethel Soles of Auburn, spent Sunday at their home....Roy Maxwell returned from a twelve weeks term of school at TerraHaute, Friday..... ....Reuben Deitrick and wife, and Wm Maxwell and family attended the Oberholtzer reunion, Saturday, and had a fine time....Mrs. Wesley Hart is in Hicksville, taking treatment of Mrs. Dr. Welley, her condition has been very serious with not much improvement.. ....Mr. and Mrs. Walter Abel are enjoying the sights at Niagara Falls starting Monday. S. P. Hadsell and wife had a splendid time while on their trip at that place.....Earl Coburn and Ed Loomis of Hicksville, visited with Cal Coburns', Sunday.

In sowing wheat this fall try Bradley's Fertilizer. Curie handles it.

ST. JOE NEWS.

The best line of one-cent Post Cards in town can be seen at Kagey's.

J. H. Leighty of Deshler, O, spent Sunday under the parental roof.

We know people who seem to know everything except the fact that they don't know how much they don't know.

Chas. Herrick and son Darwin, of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, came home this week to visit relatives and attend the Herrick family reunion.

Be sure and take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with you when starting on your trip this summer. It cannot be obtained on board the trains or steamers. Changes of water and climate often cause sudden attacks of diarrhoea, and it is best to be prepared. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad

Excursion to

Sandusky $1.25
Cedar Point 1.50

Train leaves ST. JOE at 4:54 A. M.

SUNDAY, AUG. 28th.

Numerous Attractions.

Fairview Neighborhood

Trustee Fetters informed us that Roy Maxwell will teach the Hay's school the coming year.

Thrashing was the order of the day last week. Ed Shroder, Lankey Morr, Tell Mison, Jasper Snyder, and Ernest Johnson having had their grain hulled out since our last.

U. O. Krise sold a horse to Waterloo parties and delivered the same the fore part of the week.

Miss Lenora Sherer returned Thursday after a week's visit with friends at Ft. Wayne, Monroeville and New Haven.

Mr. Smith Buttermore and son Clarence, of Mooresville, visited the former's brother, Mr. D. F. Buttermore, last Sunday.

Mrs. A. L. Ginther of Ft. Wayne, is visiting Fairview folks, this week.

A car load of Clover Leaf Manure spreaders just arrived. See Curie immediately, before fall work commences.

The frequent and copious showers have enabled farmers to prepare a large acreage for wheat, and it looks like there will be an unusual amount sown.

Local Items

Tell it to THE NEWS.

Get one of those 5 cent tablets at THE NEWS office. Our own make.

Florence Kagey returned Monday noon from Auburn where she spent the week with relatives.

The Clover Leaf Manure Spreader is one of the handiest tools the farmers own. See Curie.

Band Concert.

STAGGERS SKEPTICS.

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or piles, staggers skeptics. But great cures prove its a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons, eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

AUGUST

0499

L 904

News Supplement

August 25, 1910.

WISE'S CORNERS.

Mrs. Wm. Moore and Mrs. Charlie Moore of Coldwater, Mich., visited with Will Smith and wife, Monday evening and Tuesday forenoon, Ira Smith called at W. L. Smith's, Tuesday.

Charlie Treece, Will Smith and Charlie Moore are assisting Elmer Smith's digging and cementing their cellar, this week.

Miss Margie Spitler called on Inez Gongwer, Monday afternoon.

The house that E. Billman bought of W. L. Smith is being moved and added to theirs, this week. Several changes are being made in our neighborhood lately.

Mrs. John Hissong and two children, and her mother, Mrs. Julia Bice, spent Sunday with friends near Wabash Corners.

John Webb, wife and daughter Frances, of Spencerville, called on their son, Herby and family, Sunday evening.

Mrs. Claudie Shutt and children were at Spencerville, Sunday afternoon, calling on several friends.

Frank Hart of St. Joe, who was moving a barn for Ira Smith, last week, lost a horse while there. Indigestion was the cause of its death.

Herby Webb bought a new wagon and harness of Will Curie of St. Joe, Friday, he intends to begin farming again.

J. D. Spitler sold a fine steer to Scott in Hicksville delivering it Friday. Willie McKinley assisted him.

Charlie Boston and son Ray, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray shires visited in the homes of Ira and Elmer Smiths', Saturday. They come to attend the Boston reunion at Robison Park, Sunday.

WABASH CORNERS.

Mrs. Bracey Moore and two daughters of Coldwater, Mich., came Thursday to be the guests of Mrs. Miranda Maurer and sons for a while.

A post card shower was given Mrs. Roy White, last Saturday, it being her twenty-seventh birthday. She received 59 fine cards for which she wishes to thank all who so kindly remembered her on her birthday. She also received a dish and an apron.

Mrs. Miranda Maurer spent Monday in Ft. Wayne.

John Ulm and family were Sunday guests of Emanuel Ulms'.

Al Ervin and family of Jackson Center, spent Sunday at Orange Herricks'.

George Simanton and family of St. Joe, were Sunday guests at Ale Simantons'.

Sam Nelson, wife and two sons, George and Hersel, spent Friday evening at Sherman Wolffs'.

Wm. Pervines returned home from Perrysville, Ohio, one evening last week, where he spent a week visiting relatives.

Gene White and wife were Sunday guests of Roy Whites'.

Lewis and Mary Pervines were Sunday guests of Joe and Catherine Shull.

Mrs. Lee Tustison of Sterling, Ill., spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Millie Shull and family.

Harry Smith worked at the tower several nights last week in Mr. Wier's place, who was on the sick list.

Mrs. Mabel Lake and son Lewis, of Spencerville, spent Friday at Charley Lakes'.

The "White" generation will hold their first reunion in the Frank Herrick grove, three-quarters of a mile northwest of St Joe, on Sept. 3rd., 1910. All relatives are requested to be present, and bring well filled baskets.

SPENCERVILLE
R. F. D. No. 1.

Mrs. John Horn has been on the sick list for the past week, but is slowly improving.

Ezra Horn made a business trip to Ft. Wayne, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Metcalf attended the Metcalf reunion in Michigan, last week.

Ezra Horn returned from his western tour, last week. He is feeling well and says he enjoyed his trip very much.

The Misses Ruth Gratz, Venus and Mary Horn were the guests of Leila Horn, Sunday afternoon.

Miss Hazel Strotert is visiting with her uncle, Mr. Dwyer and family.

Mr. Swayne and family of near Ft. Wayne, visited at B. W. Dwyers' last Friday.

Send in your news.

Mr. Dix's straw stack caught fire last Friday and was consumed. They had hard work to save the barn. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Frank Horn and family, and Miss Develbiss spent Thursday evening at John Horns'.

Mrs. D K. Horn had an operation performed on her foot, last Saturday, by Dr. Scudder Hull of Hicksville, and Dr. John Shutt of Ft. Wayne.

Miss Elva Miller spent last week with her brother, Perry and wife.

Mrs. Eck Vanzile and mother spent Thursday night with her daughter, Mrs. Schlatter of Woodburn.

Mrs. Susan Rohrbaugh of Waterloo, visited with Val Hay and family over Sunday.

Miss Elva Miller spent Tuesday afternoon with Miss Izetta McNabb.

Miss Hallie Notestien spent Sunday afternoon with the Misses Viola, Theresa and Leona Hay.

Kermit Roosevelt is in Europe again. He will find it much easier to get about quietly without his papa along.

Miss Bessie Lougenslager had as her guests at the home of Eck Vanzile, Sunday evening, Misses Leona and Theresa Hay and Jay Fales.

The Prince of Montenegro has had himself crowned king. His kingdom is about the size of Deleware at high tide.

St Joe Markets

Wheat	.92
Oats	.32
Butter, country	.27
Eggs	.20

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

Fifth Annual Commencement.

The Fifth Annual Commencement and Gold Medal Contest of the Johnston school of music, was given in the M. P Church last Saturday evening, August 20. On account of the band concert the program was with held a half hour. The program consisted of pieces played by his smallest pupils up to the 1910 graduates. Those appearing on the program were Esther Krafft, Laura Brunson, Bernice Boger Venus Horn, Charlotte Miller and Laura Coburn besides the graduates, Letha Blanche Coyle and Grace Floriana Shaner. Mr. Johnston took part in the program at three different times and his work received the usual applause. Every number on the program was well rendered and the excellent audience inspired the players so that they did their very best. It is a credit to a community to have such a system of music teaching as that of Mr. Johnston's and to have him turn out each year graduates such as these. The judges, Miss Victoria Harner and Miss Dorcas Provines, decided that Miss Coyle should receive the medal. Mr. Johnston presented diplomas to the successful students of each grade.

Miss Letha Blanche Coyle.

Miss Grace Floriana Shaner.

Does not Color the Hair

Ingredients of Ayer's Hair Vigor

Sulphur. Destroys germs that cause dandruff and falling hair. Cures rashes and eruptions of scalp.
Glycerin. Soothing, healing. Food to the hair-bulbs.
Quinin. A strong tonic, antiseptic, stimulant.
Sodium Chlorid. Cleansing, quiets irritation of scalp.
Capsicum. Increases activity of glands.
Sage. Stimulant, tonic. Domestic remedy of high merit.
Alcohol. Stimulant, antiseptic. Water. Perfume.

Show this formula to your doctor. Ask him if there is a single injurious ingredient. Ask him if he thinks Ayer's Hair Vigor, as made from this formula, is the best preparation you could use for falling hair, or for dandruff. Let him decide. He knows.

J. C. AYER COMPANY, Lowell, Mass.

LOCAL

"Did Washington swear?" inquires Harpers Weekly. Oh, presumably the general's collar button rolled under the bureau, sometimes, of course

The Misses Grace and Avis Schiler entertained a few of their friends Tuesday evening. Music, games and marshmallow toast were the features of the evening. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses. Those present were the Misses Opal Kennedy of Chicago, Mable Dunkle, Helen Patterson, Geneva Burwell and Ethel Berry, Messrs. Clarence Davis of Allegheny, James Burwell, Stanley Monroe and Merritt Seciler.

We owe it to the community in which we live to do everything we can in every way possible that will be to its advantage. Our neighbor's property means a great more to us than someone's who lives elsewhere. We should bear this in mine when buying our goods. We can afford to pay our home man a fair price for his wares rather than send our money away, knowing as we do that every dollar our own citizen makes will help in sustaining our schools and churches. It pays richly to patronize home industry.

The country newspaper is the most valuable of all advertising mediums. It is taken and read by people immediately tributary to the town in which it is printed and its relation with its readers is intimate and its influence is strong. A country paper with a small circulation is worth far more as an advertising medium than many times the same number of papers issued as a part of the circulation of a metropolitan publication. The metropolitan paper is read hurriedly by busy people, the departments that the individual is interested in are hastily scanned and the remaining mass of pages is tossed aside and never looked at. The country paper, which is smaller, and more compact is read carefully and thoroughly.

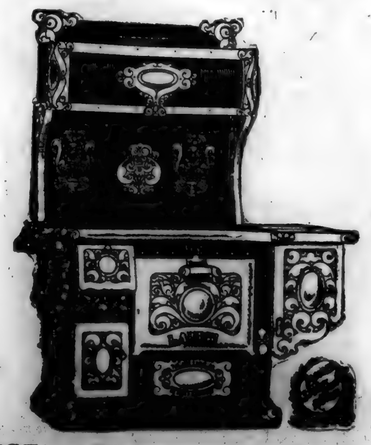
$60.00 Steel Range FREE

LAUREL STOVES AND RANGES — THE ART STOVE CO. DETROIT, MICH.

Someone Must Hold the Lucky Ticket, WHY NOT YOU?

RANGE

OPENING DAY
AUGUST 25th.
DON'T FAIL TO cOME.



EXHIBIT

CLOSING DAY
AUGUST 27th.
DON'T FAIL TO COME

THE 20TH. CENTURY STEEL LAUREL RANGE we will show you what a Fuel Saver it is, how biscuits can be baked, using only a paper smoke pipe, and how strongly it is made. This will be the most practical cooking exhibit ever made. The only real way to test a stove is to use it.

THIS SET WEAR FREE. During this reception, if you purchase one of these Ranges, you will be presented with a handsome set of Laurel Heavy, Triple Coated, First Grade Enamel Ware consisting of the following: Five quart preserving kettle; Eight quart flat bottom teakettle, made seamless with enameled cover; Extra large double roaster, made with loose tray, completely enameled, easy to clean; Six quart Berlin kettle with cover; Four quart sauce pan.

Range is to be Given Away on Saturday Afetrnoon, August 27, at 4:00 p m.

ST. JOE, J. W. BURWELL & SON INDIANA

L 904

0500

SEPTEMBER

SEPTEMBER

0501

L 904

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 1, 1910. NO. 35

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.

Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

This Is Fair Week.

This is the week that Hicksville always looks forward to with anticipation and usually back to with satisfaction. This store is ready to show you all the courtesies possible this week and you are invited to inspect this large department emporium and see the varied assortment shown in this big store. Fall merchandise is here in profusion to meet your approval and we especially invite you to visit this center of merchandising while you are here to attend the Big Fair.

The carpet and rug department is larger than ever
The shoe section is increasing its sales every day
The dress goods department is attractive just now
The domestic section is offering exceptional values
The hosiery department is up to the limit with Dependon Hosiery
The underwear section can fit the ideas and size of everyone
The notion department was never better supplied with new things
The grocery section is the busiest place in Hicksville

☛ See a sample of this stores offerings shown at Floral Hall on the Fair Ground.

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Hard Coal
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

Industrial School

(By D. J. Baker)

While at Lansing, Michigan last week, one of the many places of interest to which our friends took us, was to visit what they call the Industrial School. This is a State institution and is the same in character that we in this state call the Reform School. In Michigan they have eliminated many of the objectionable features of this school. To begin with the name has been changed from a Reform School to an Industrial School, the iron bars have been removed from the windows of all buildings and in place of a wall or high fence a neat fence has been erected that any boy could leap at a bound and the whole aspect has been changed from a prison to beautiful homes. They have at this time seven hundred and sixty Students. Notice they are called students instead of inmates, they will not tolerate the word inmate, but insist that they be called students.

On Sunday afternoon, preceding our visit on Tuesday, we attended Chapel service at this school, all the music was furnished by the boys, the choir is composed of seventy-two boys besides the Orchestra, and do not think for a minute that these little fellows could not sing, one little boy's alto voice rang out strong and clear and sweet, and I tell you it made a fellow feel like shouting Hosanna. All the boys sang the hymns while the special music was rendered by the choir. This choir is in great demand for special meetings and public gatherings in the city of Lansing. They have three hundred acres of land and in addition rent land outside, here scientific farming is taught and a large per cent of the vegetables consumed by them is cultivated and grown by their own hands, all manner of trades are taught at this school, when a boy enters this school he is given his choice of the kind of work he wishes to engage in and if he has no choice he is put at one thing after another until he shows an aptness for some particular kind of work. They have a wood workers department where all kinds of furniture is made A leather department where they make all their own shoes. A hat and cap department where they make their own caps, a laundry department where they do their own washing and ironing, using modern machinery. A knitting department where they knit all their own socks, a mending department where they mend their own clothing and darn their own socks and by the way the neatness of their work would make many good house wives ashamed of their own work, in the tailoring department they learn to cut and fit and make their own clothing, each boy has at least three suits and if he is a member of the fire department or of the Band then he has four suits.

By way of diversion I wish to say, the most popular and wealthiest tailor in Lansing learned his trade in this Institution. They do their own baking using six barrels of flour daily. They do their own cooking and the amount of food consumed at each meal is worthy of mention, the day that we were there they cooked for dinner 15 bushels of cabbage, 12 bushels of potatoes, 25 bushels of roosting ears (after they were husked.) We were unable to learn the number of pounds of fish, they have meat of some kind every day. In the printing department they publish a sixteen page paper every month called the Industrial Enterprise, it is published by and for the boys of this school. I have a copy of this paper before me and notice in the column of Local Happenings the following items. The boys had pumpkin pie one day last week with the promise of more to follow, it took 192 pies to go around. Item No. 2. During the week of the Baptist State Convention and the meeting of the Odd Fellows there were some 1500 visitors here at school the greater part of whom had never before visited the school and were glad of the opportunity to see one of the best of the states institutions. Among the ministers was one of our own boys. The boys are in school one half of the day and the other half they spend working at their trade. They have religious services twice each week. Ninety per cent of these boys are from homes where the father or mother or both were drunkards. One of the main objects of this school is to teach the boys the value and benefits of work. There is nothing derogatory about work, on the contrary it always lends a dignity and confers a self respect which can never otherwise be engendered. On his seventieth birthday Webster said, "Work has made me what I am." Gladstone when nearly ninety years old said, "I have found my greatest happiness in labor." The old German inscription on a key, "If I rest I rust," is as true of men as of iron.

Very Truly
D. J. Baker.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Band Concert Saturday evening.

Call at Kagey's and get your Post Cards. An elegant assortment.

John Cook, wife and daughter and Mr. Netestein of Ft. Wayne were the guests of S. B. Bernard and wife last week.

Herrick Family Reunion

The third annual reunion of the Herrick family was held Saturday, August 27, 1910, in Frank Herrick's grove, one-half mile northwest of St. Joe. Guests began to arrive about 8:00 o'clock and by 11:00 seventy-five was the number registered. All came with well filled baskets (one of the special features of the day) the contents of which were at once spread upon the tables arranged in order for this occasion.

The doxology was sung, thanks were offered by Rev. Horace Herrick of Kokomo, and all partook of the bounteous dinner spread before them, after which the men were treated to cigars while the ladies ate peanuts.

After the dinner hour a business meeting was held in which the President, Secretary and Treasurer were elected to serve for another year. Committees were then appointed to make arrangements for the 1911 reunion to be held in the same grove as this year. Rev. Horace Herrick was elected Historian with W. W. Stopher as his assistant.

All the business being transacted a short program was rendered at the beginning of which, the President in a very pleasing manner expressed welcome words to all present, followed by a response by the Rev. Herrick in which he referred to the past history of the Herrick family, tracing them back until ten years after the landing of the Pilgram fathers. He also stated that in 1846 there were by actual count nearly 4000 Herricks accounted for. Following this most interesting talk was a vocal duett by W. W. Stopher and Lola Reichelderfer of Harlan, after which a very interesting letter was read written by Geo. E. Herrick of Three Mile Bay, N. Y. The remainder of the program consisted of music on the piano and cornet, closing with a few remarks by Rev. Cook of Harlan.

Ice cream and lemonade was then served to which all did ample justice. By this time the sun was nearing the western horizon and friends and relatives were bidding each other adieu. The shades of night were falling fast as the last carriage departed from the grove. The same grove to be made a welcome place for all those interested in the Herrick family on August 26, 1911. The President especially deserves praise for doing his work so nobly in bringing about such a successful reunion.

Three Mile Bay, Jefferson Co., N. Y.
August 15th., 1910.

Mr. Frank Herrick and members of the Herrick family assembled at St. Joe to celebrate the third annual reunion of the Herrick family:

I regret exceedingly my inability to be present upon this happy and most interesting occasion, but I am deeply appreciative of your kind invitation to be present and participate in its festivities. Although I suppose it is true that all families had originally the same progenitor–Adam. Still some branches have multiplied more rapidly than others, hence the name we bear is a common one in all parts of this great and glorious country, especially in the east and west. And I felicitate you that upon the criminal records of the great state of New York the honored of Herrick has never been found. And although we can trace our more immediate progenitors back to the shores of Great Britian where they were honored as a family with a title of nobility, and coat of arms (an escutcheon to be worn upon their helmet, and stamped upon their carriages) it is not this fact that stimulates my pride in the family name but in the fact of their achievements in helping to raise the standard of our Christian civilization to its present position, while serving their country as Judges, Lawyers, Doctors, Legislators, Teachers, and last but not least as sturdy yeomenry in clearing away the forests, and as tillers of the soil. Also in the fact of their loyalty as a family to their country and government, to their love of freedom for themselves and their hearty accord for the rights of others, for their love of home and kindred, and their deep and abiding regard for the domestic enjoyments of home and children which constitutes the bullwork of the Nations safety.

It is pleasant and instructive for families to meet together annually to refresh their knowledge of their ancestor and relate anecdotes of their older relatives. Such reunions keep alive family traditions and history and create in each a family pride which is most beneficial and inspiring, and encourages one to see to it that nothing that she or he may do will create any stain upon the history of the family or bring its good name into disrepute. The history of our family and their traditions are inspiring and emphasize the fact that an honest man is the noblest work of God. They are a heritage of which we are all justly proud. Their influence upon the younger members will lead them to emulate the example of their ancestors, and to keep unspoted the lustre of the family name. Please accept my congratulations for the success of this the third annual reunion of the Herrick family. With very kind regards to all I am one of the older members of your family.

George E. Herrick.

P. S.

Perhaps a few words in regard to my place in the family may interest some. I am the only survivor of my father's family of five children. My father's name was Hiram Herrick, a brother of Daniel Herrick who removed with his family to Indiana when I was about ten years of age. I remember his family well. William, Aruney, Horace, Daniel, and Frank were the boys names in the order given. And there were two girls, Delian and Susan. Susan was the elder. Whether your President is my cousin Frank I do not know, but mistrust he is. I am nearing the age of seventy-seven years of life. I have always been strong and healthy until last winter when I had several severe attacks of acute indigestion and went off in weight from 200 lbs. to 140 lbs., but am now quite recovered and hope to meet with you next year but am hardly strong enough to stand the travel this year.

I have four sons all husky strong men and all well to do and best of all they are all good citizens and trustworthy honorable men. I have two daughters well married to good men and much respected in the community where they reside, I also have several grandchildren and two great grandsons and are all living within four miles and connected with my residence by telephone excepting two. My third son William, who is principal of the High school at Colton St., Lawerence County. And my second daughter Ida, who lives in the city of Watertown, seventeen mile distant from Three Mile Bay. I am living with my second wife and we are growing old together. But I am looking beyond to the heavenly home where loved ones are waiting to welcome me, of which I love to think that reunions with loved ones here are types of the blessed reunion over there. May we all be able to respond to the roll call then and answer here. G. E. H.

PYROGRAPHY

Outfits and a fine selection of white basswood patterns. Look them over and you can see what nice things you can make up for Xmas presents etc.

We are busy preparing our school supplies. A line that is good values.

You'll always do better at

Dunkle's

in

ST. JOE, - - - INDIANA.

Candy and Cigars.

Home made candy and the best grade of cigars at Milliman's barber shop owned and run by

Merritt Milliman.

Notice

That Jack Sechler wears a smile all the time now, WHY? Because he drew the celebrated Laurel Range which we gave away Saturday, Aug. 27, 1910. Here are a few more who are wearing smiles also, although they had to buy their stove.

D. P. Hindman
Wm. Malone
A. D. Perry.

Come in and let us demonstrate our stove to you. We demonstrate all the time.

J. W. BURWELL & SON.

Bradley's Wheat Fertilizer is the best on the market. See Curie for particulars.

J. D. Leighty was at Butler Monday afternoon.

The Wabash will run an excursion to Detroit on Sept. 3 4, train leaving St. Joe at 6:19 A. M. on either morning

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST. JOE, IND.

THE HOME STORE

For style you don't care
Just so they will wear.

It's a Matter of Wear

When You Are Selecting Work Shoes

All other considerations are laid aside and the only assurance you care to have about a work shoe is that it will wear. You want to feel that you are going to get full service value in return for the price you pay. This is a reasonable demand for you to make of a shoe. With respect to wear you will find that our

Wayne Made Elk Skin Shoes Give Satisfaction

$3 They are built to wear, durable, well-selected leather is used in their construction and every care is used to make a reliable work shoe. They are fashioned on comfortable lines, coupling durability with ease of wear. PRICE $3 00. $3

Other Good Values in Work Shoes Priced at $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00

SEPTEMBER

0502

L 904

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

WRITER OF FAIRY STORIES.

Let us admit, if we can do so without ruffling the feathers of the American eagle, that there are some things other nations do better than we. France, for instance, has a childlike heart, along with the more mature qualities which make for the ascendancy of that country in thrift, in science and in many fields where hard heads count for so much. And in this youthfulness, this simplicity, it is very fond of the fairy tale. Here we are growing so practical, so sordid, so unimaginative, save in our big business transactions which sometimes take away the breath in their utopian sweep and immensity, that we look upon the fairy story not only as a useless waste of time, but even worse, says Cleveland Leader. It makes children dreamers when they should be focusing their minds on money. And so the army of Gradgrinds grows all the time and fights the poor little remnant of imagination left us as bitterly as if it were a terrible foe. But in France there is a vast army of readers of fairy stories and admirers of those who write them, and only the other day "All Paris"—that is to say, its wealth, its art, its society, along with the basic everyday people—turned out to pay tribute to a woman whose only claim to recognition was authorship of charming fairy tales for real children and the grownups who still have their youth in their souls.

Men of science are generally agreed that birds are nature's great check on the excess of insects, and that they maintain the balance between plant and insect life. Ten thousand caterpillars, it has been estimated, could destroy every blade of grass on an acre of cultivated land. The insect population of a single cherry tree infested with aphides has been estimated by a prominent entomologist at no less than twelve million. The bird population of cultivated country districts has been estimated at from seven hundred to one thousand a square mile. This is small, compared with the number of insects, yet, as each bird consumes hundreds of insects every day the latter are prevented from becoming the scourge they would be but for their feathered enemies.

New Jersey has joined the states which believe that clandestine marriage should not be made easy. A new license law requires all couples, including elopers, from elsewhere, to obtain licenses before the knot can be tied. As the issuing of licenses is a matter of public record it is of course easy to get on the track of the fleeing ones. There should be no unjust restrictions upon marriage, but it is quite in accord with the better sentiment of the day that there shall be as little secrecy as possible about such affairs. The man and woman who care enough for each other to be joined in honorable wedlock have no reason to be ashamed of the proceeding.

A few days ago, in referring to a recipe for banishing that bitter taste in your mouth by taking a little nux vomica mixed with water, we amplified the prescription by adding the suggestion that all taste could be removed permanently from the mouth by using more nux vomica, says Chicago Tribune. To reassure an anxious correspondent who fears that there may be persons who wish to "remove all taste permanently" from their mouths and may adopt the suggestion as to "using more," we hasten to explain that nux vomica is a deadly poison. Avoid it, dear children, unless prescribed by some physician in good standing.

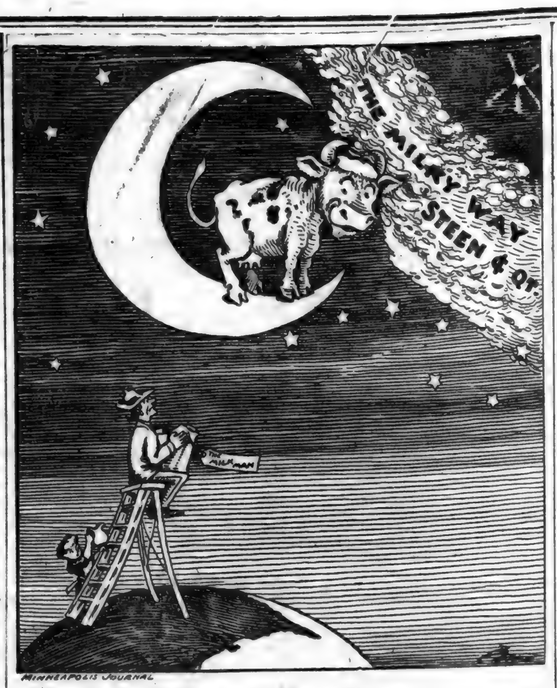
According to the Boston Globe paste jewels are more conspicuous at Newport this season than ever before. One reason why people wear their paste jewels conspicuously at Newport is that they are all prepared to show the real gems which their safety deposit boxes contain if anyone should get the idea that the paste articles are all they can afford.

Homeopathists at Los Angeles reverse themselves by lifting the ban from benzoate of soda and telling us to consume it, if we wish to. Which makes it the more necessary to label it in order that a person with a hankering for the benzoate may not be deceived by an article free from that much-disputed condiment.

Chicago is said to have the worst milk supply in the world, and if we know Chicago at all we know that she'll probably find a way to brag about even this.

"Respect your wife's parents but follow your own opinion," says a German. Sounds easy, but has he ever tried it?

Many aviators have fallen to their death on solid land, but none drop into the sea and drown.



MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL

The cow took a jump at the moon;
But we're bound to declare
She stuck in the air—
But hopes to be down again soon.

I. C. STORM BREAKS

THREE FORMER OFFICIALS OF ROAD ARE TAKEN INTO CUSTODY.

MORE ARRESTS WILL FOLLOW

Charges of Conspiracy to Defraud and of Confidence Game Placed Against Harriman, Ewing and Taylor in Car Repair Frauds.

Chicago.—The Illinois Central railway graft scandal storm broke Friday with tempestuous fury when three former high officials of that road were arrested on charges of conspiracy to cheat and defraud the road by false pretenses. More arrests are to follow and the names of others said to be implicated will probably be revealed at the trial of the men already under arrest.

Those arrested are:

Frank B. Harriman, former general manager of the Illinois Central system.

Charles L. Ewing, former general superintendent of the Illinois Central lines north of the Ohio river.

John M. Taylor, former storekeeper for the Illinois Central.

The men were taken before Municipal Judge Bruggemeyer, who released them on $20,000 bonds each.

The history of the car repair frauds, the alleged fraudulent transactions between the officials and railroad employes, and the like also will be told on the witness stand.

Harriman, as general manager of the entire system, was the next man to Ira G. Rawn, the vice-president who resigned to become president of the Monon road, and who was killed with his own revolver in his Winnetka home. Harriman resigned his position in March, the public announcement being made March 15.

C. L. Ewing resigned as general superintendent of the northern lines at Chicago soon after the first exposures were made in connection with the discovery of wholesale frauds.

Taylor resigned as general storekeeper May 1, at the time when President Harahan's office was being flooded with resignations from officers of high and low rank.

PEST IN ITALY SPREADING

Twenty Thousand People Flee From Cholera-Stricken Town—Disease of Virulent Type.

Rome.—The cholera epidemic is rapidly spreading in southern Italy, but rumors that it had also reached this city are without foundation. Not a single case has been reported here and the health officials are on the qui vive for any appearance of the malady.

According to the reports Friday the disease is of a most virulent type and accompanied by a high death rate. Thirty deaths are reported at Trani. The town is being rapidly depopulated because of the panic among the inhabitants.

The authorities are greatly concerned over the possibility of a still wider spread of the epidemic as a result of this flight of people from the disease centers.

Matt McGrath Smashes Mark.

Hartford, Conn.—At the Hibernian Athletic club games Saturday, Matt McGrath of the I. A. A. C., New York, broke the world's record for throwing the 56-pound weight for height, with a throw of 16 feet 2⅝ inches.

General Hayes is Paralyzed.

Wilmington, Del.—Brig. Gen. Hayes, U. S. N., retired, who was with Lawton when he fell in the Philippines, and who was famous as an Indian fighter, was paralyzed here Saturday. His condition is critical.

PRESENT STATUE TO FRANCE

BRONZE IMAGE OF GEORGE WASHINGTON DEDICATED.

Virginia's Gift to French Republic is Placed in Napoleon Hall at Versailles.

Versailles, France. — With appropriate ceremonies the bronze replica of Houdon's celebrated statue of George Washington was dedicated in Napoleon hall of the Chateau of Versailles in the presence of the French minister of war, General Brun; the French ambassador to the United States, M. Jusserand, and his wife, and the American ambassador, Robert Bacon, and Mrs. Bacon; the marquis de Lafayette, the members of the French mission which presented to America the statue of Rochambeau, now at Washington, and former United States Senator Nathan B. Scott of West Virginia.

General Biron, who presided, spoke of the statue as the greatest work of the greatest French sculptor of the eighteenth century. Col. James Mann, chairman of the Virginia commission, delivered the speech of presentation. State Senators Don P. Halsey and F. W. King of Virginia also made addresses on behalf of the state of Virginia.

Ambassador Jusserand, in the absence of the French minister for foreign affairs, M. Pichon, accepted the statue on behalf of the French government. He declared that the friendship of General Washington and of the American people constituted one of the glories of France. It was, therefore, singularly appropriate that this statue, "the third erected on French soil by our ancient allies, should be placed in the palace consecrated to all our glories."

CLEAR SHERMAN OF BLAME

Congressional Committee Exonerates Vice-President and Senator Curtis in Indian Land Probe.

Sulphur, Okla.—The select committee which was appointed by the house of representatives to investigate Indian land affairs and the so-called McMurray contracts and which also has been investigating the Gore bribery charges issued the following statement:

"The committee has heard and carefully considered all the testimony submitted and is unanimous in the opinion that there is and was no warrant for any person to use the names of Vice-President Sherman and Senator Charles S. Curtis in connection with any improper relations with any Indian contract whatever."

This is the opinion of the committee after hearing scores of witnesses who appeared following the testimony of Senator T. P. Gore that he had been approached by Jake L. Hamon, who, acting in the interest of J. F. McMurray, offered him (Senator Gore) $25,000 or $50,000 as a bribe to promote in congress the contracts by which McMurray was to receive a ten per cent. attorney's fee on the sale of $30,000,000 worth of Indian lands.

Child Killed by Matches.

Chicago.—As a result of chewing off the heads of matches, Clarence Benson, two years old, is dead at the family home, 6339 May street.

Held for Stage Robbery.

Globe, Ariz.—William Day was arrested at Miami, near here, Monday, accused of being one of the men who held up the Mogollon-Silver City stage two weeks ago, when Stage Driver Domingues was killed and a large quantity of silver bullion stolen.

Play With Matches; Dead.

Marshalltown, Pa.—Wayne Paris, aged eight, and Teddy Thurber, aged six, were burned to death at Liscomb, near here, Monday, as a result of playing in a hay-mow with matches.

PERISH IN FLAMES

FOREST FIRES CLAIM MANY VICTIMS—LOSE LIVES FIGHTING DEADLY FOE.

SETTLERS FLEE FOR SAFETY

More Than 50 Persons Are Known to Be Dead—About 100 Missing, 200 Injured—Loss Already Reaches $25,000,000.

Spokane, Wash.—One hundred fire fighters are reported dead in the flooded canyon near Wallace, Idaho, and five citizens were burned to death in their homes as a result of forest fires which for sixty days have terrified the Coeur d'Alene country and which spread to the town of Wallace, the metropolis of the mining district.

More than a third of Wallace is burned. The Pacific, Michigan and Coeur d'Alene hotels, two O. R. & N. depots, a big hardware warehouse and 150 to 200 residences are destroyed. The town is almost dark by day and the heavens and surrounding country a seething mass by night.

Ashes fill the air and the heat is tremendous. Telegraphic communication is cut off for a time, but the fighters believe they have the fire in the city under control.

Newport, Wash., a town of 2,000, is burning, but the loss of life is as yet unknown. Cries for help are being answered as rapidly as relief parties can be made up. All available soldiers in this part of the country are pressed into services.

Spokane, Wash.—In the Coeur d'Alene district of Idaho more than fifty persons are known to be dead, and nearly 100 are missing as a result of the forest fires.

The seriously injured, mostly fire fighters, will number, according to the statement made Monday by W. R. Weigle, forest superintendent of the Coeur d'Alenes, more than 200. Many of them have been stricken blind and others have broken limbs.

Three families of homesteaders, comprising 15 persons, are believed to have perished in La Tour creek, near Catoldo, Idaho, in the forest fires.

At many points hundreds are hemmed in by a narrowing wall of flames and it is impossible to reach them with help.

From Wallace came reports that the town of Burke is in flames and certain of destruction. The fire rangers in that territory are so exhausted that no effective battle against the flames can be made. The 300 residents of the town are in flight toward Wallace.

Forest Ranger Pulaski reports to Superintendent Weill that six of his men are dead, five having been smothered in the War Eagle tunnel, where the entire crew took refuge.

Ranger Bell reports 12 dead, three permanently blinded and 13 suffering from broken legs.

In the hills near Sand Point, Idaho, Forest Ranger Van Dycke and a crew of 65 enlisted in Spokane are reported surrounded by flames.

A woman and her daughter perished at Cabinet, Idaho.

Five and perhaps more are known to have died near Newport, Wash., in an attempt to reach the town.

All along the Great Northern and Northern Pacific tracks between Spokane and Helena numberless fires are known to be raging fiercely, but definite reports cannot be secured, as the telegraph and telephone wires are all down.

Before communication with Libby, Mont., ended it was reported that every male resident of the town was working, with 200 paid fire fighters, to divert Flower creek to the south side of the village as a protection against the flames driving up from that direction.

Helena, Mont.—Reports received here from every fire district in Montana indicate that the situation is by long odds the worst in the history of the state. Despite the large number of troops, civilians and railroad employes that have been put into the field, the flames are absolute masters of the situation, and there is only one salvation—general rain, but for which there is no prospect.

Washington.—Already the forest fires raging in the Missoula, Mont., and northern Idaho districts have consumed timber and property valued at more than $25,000,000. This, according to an official of the forest bureau Monday, is a conservative estimate. Three days more at the present rate will more than equal the total loss in the Baltimore fire in 1904. The loss there was estimated at $50,000,000.

Illinois Post Office Robbed.

Philadelphia.—The post office at Philadelphia was robbed, according to a telegram received at the office of James E. Stuart, post office inspector. John Black, the postmaster, in his message, did not state the amount of the loss.

Fleet is Home From Europe.

Norfolk, Va.—The naval practise squadron, composed of the battleships Iowa, Indiana and Massachusetts, passed in the Virginia capes Monday from an all-summer practise cruise in European waters, with naval midshipmen aboard.

Divorce Cause Double Tragedy.

Milwaukee.—Henry Wagner of Green Bay Monday killed his wife and fatally shot himself as a result of the woman's determination to secure a divorce from him.

SHIP IS HELD UP ON OCEAN

CAPTAIN OF LINER BUCKMAN SHOT TO DEATH.

Two Armed Passengers Attempt to Take Possession of Vessel—One Jumps Overboard When Arrested.

Eureka, Cal.—The Alaska Pacific Steamship company's liner Buckman was held up at sea off this port by two passengers.

Captain Wood was shot and killed by one of the men in resisting. The second man was overpowered by the engine-room crew. The passenger who shot the captain jumped overboard with a life preserver.

The Buckman was bound from Seattle to San Francisco. Early in the morning Fred Thomas, passenger, went to the captain's cabin, while an accomplice descended to the engine room. Both men were armed and they attempted to take possession of the vessel. Captain Wood refused to comply with Thomas' demands and was shot dead. Thomas ran out of the room and, seeing his plans had miscarried, strapped on a life preserver and leaped into the sea.

Meanwhile the accomplice had encountered resistance in the engine room. He was overpowered and placed in irons. The Buckman is proceeding to San Francisco in charge of First Officer Brennan. The attempt to rob the Buckman was reported to the steamer President, north-bound.

WILL NOT SUPPORT CANNON

Congressman Longworth, After Conference with Taft and Others, Makes Significant Statement.

Beverly, Mass.—The fight of the Republican party reorganization against Speaker Cannon was opened by Congressman Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, son-in-law of ex-President Roosevelt.

In a statement which he issued Thursday Mr. Longworth declares that having voted for him in caucus on four different occasions he has supported Cannon for the speakership for the last time and that when the proper time comes, namely the meeting of the Republican caucus of the assembling of the next congress he will oppose Uncle Joe to that position.

Mr. Longworth makes it clear that in his view harmony in the Republican ranks and party success depends upon Cannon's elimination.

"I am absolutely convinced," he he says," that Cannon cannot be again elected speaker."

The importance of the Longworth statement lies not only in the fact that the Ohio congressman, a long time friend and supporter of Cannon issued it, but that it was not given to the public until after a series of conferences with President Taft and other leaders that have called here and that the president was acquainted with the context of the statement in advance of its publication, and that Vice-President Sherman likewise was informed Wednesday of the contemplated move and gave it his tacit approval.

Danville, Ill.—"I have no quarrel with Longworth as to who shall be speaker of the next house, and there is no room for disagreement touching this matter between Representative Longworth and myself," said Speaker Cannon Thursday after reading a statement by Representative Longworth.

"If any Republican candidate for congress feels that his position on the Republican ticket would be strengthened by pledging that he will not support me in a Republican caucus I have no objection to his making the pledge."

CRUISER ASHORE; 18 DEAD

British Warship Bedford Goes on Rocks Off the Korean Coast—Probably Total Loss.

London.—Eighteen lives were lost when the British cruiser Bedford ran ashore on the rocks of Quelpart island, Korea, according to a report received here Monday by the admiralty. The men were members of the engine room force.

The accident occurred during full speed trials of the vessel and the cruiser was evidently badly damaged, since the deaths are stated officially to have been due to "the inrush of water." The wreck is about two miles to the west of Nearlow island, which is off the southwestern point of Quelpart island. Many sunken rocks are charted in this vicinity, and navigation in the passage between Barlow and Giffard island, its neighbor, is not recommended for this reason."

The vessel lies in such a desperate position that there is practically no possibility of saving her. The hull is full of water up to the engine room bulkhead, the water pouring in through gaping holes punched by the sunken rocks, and the officers and crew have been taken off. The sister warships, the Minotaur and Monmouth of the British squadron, which anchored near the wreck to render assistance, were obliged to put to sea owing to the heavy weather which prevails.

Watchmakers' Union Is Latest.

New York.—The newest labor organization to gain a foothold in New York is the Watchmakers' union. Up to a short time ago there were no watches made in this city, repairing only being done.

Take Fugitive in Manila.

Manila.—Curtiss Hill was arrested here Monday on the request of the California authorities. He is charged with embezzlement. Although he denies his guilt he will not oppose extradition.

FEUDIST IS KILLED

JOHN ABNER ASSASSINATED BY UNKNOWN PERSONS AT JACKSON, KY.

TOOK PART IN MANY FIGHTS

Had Been Accused of Being Employed by Judge Hargis and Others to Assassinate Dr. Cox and James Cockrell—Other News.

Jackson, Ky.—John Abner, noted feudist, who took part in the Hargis, Callahan, Deleon and Smith factional quarrels, was shot and killed by unknown parties near the river bridge in Jackson.

Abner was shot several times and death was instantaneous. Blood hounds have been called from Lexington and an effort will be made to trace the assassins.

Abner had been accused of being one of the men employed by Judge James Hargis and others to assassinate Dr. E. D. Cox, James Cockrell and James B. Marcum during the reign of feud murders eight years ago, but on each trial the jury disagreed and the charges were never pressed to conclusion.

Serious Automobile Smash-Up.

New York, N. Y.—Three persons were killed and eleven severely hurt when an automobile crashed into the side of a construction train on the Long Island railroad at the Merrick road crossing at Springfield, Queens borough. Four others were less seriously injured. Both the automobile and the construction train were wrecked. The dead are: J. Berbene, fifty years old, New York City, chauffeur; Bertha Weiss, eleven years old, New York City, niece of owner of car; Rebecca Glass, nine years old, New York City. Seriously injured: Mrs. Bella Hirsch, forty, of Far Rockaway, has concussion and a fractured skull and can hardly survive; Mrs. Frances Glass, the little victim's mother, received a fractured thigh and other lesser injuries, and her condition is critical; John Fido, a laborer on the construction train, had his breast bone crushed and will probably die; Charles Snyder, conductor of the train, leg broken.

Dies on Day He Predicted.

Springfield, O.—Predicting the time of death and then dying on that date seems to be almost a habit in the Gard family, for years one of the most prominent in Clarke county. Three months ago Warren E. Gard, then in good health, told his wife he would die Sunday, August 21. He also told neighbors the same thing. In the morning he was found dead in his chair, death being ascribed to heart trouble. The firmness of Gard's conviction was shown by the fact that in the last few weeks he arranged and closed up many of his business interests. Twenty-four years ago John Gard, a well known physician, father of Warren E., predicted the date of his death, and on the day he had named died suddenly.

Horse Runs Away and Dumps Coffin.

New York.—A sleepy old Dobbin which had drawn a west side undertaker's wagon for years in most approved funeral pace imagined a vain thing and ran away, causing a strange accident. After a wild flight of several blocks the horse and wagon plunged into the Hudson river. The doors of the wagon flew open and a casket containing a body floated down stream. The night watchman of a pier swam out in the tide and towed the casket ashore. The horse and wagon finally were brought ashore.

This Is a New One.

New York.—The American bark Winslow which arrived at New York with a cargo is the only vessel on the seas which carries a touring car slung in its davits as a piece of auxiliary apparatus. The skipper, Capt. Krum, unloads the automobile whenever he reaches port and uses it on his business trips to and from the docks.

Son Killed; Mother Drops Dead.

Rockville, Ind.—As the result of the shock caused by the death of Charles Earl, who was killed by lightning, Mrs. Ola Kemp, thirty-three years old, fell unconscious at the Parke State bank and died two hours later. Mrs. Kemp's brother recently married a sister of the youth killed. Mrs. Kemp was a widow.

British Cruiser Aground.

Tokio.—The British cruiser Bedford ran ashore on the southwest portion of Quelpart Island Sunday. The Bedford at the time of the accident was sailing with the British squadron from Wei-Hai-Wei, China, for Nagasaki, Japan.

Two Killed in Collision.

Raleigh, N. C.—Two were killed and three injured as the result of a head-on collision between a passenger train and yard engine in the yards of the Norfolk and Southern railroad here.

Sheep Shears Kill Boy.

Dillon, Mont.—While swinging by his arms from the limb of a tree Frank Harkness, aged twelve years, struck the point of a pair of sheep shears hung on a nail in the tree with blades outward, the steel piercing the boy's heart and instantly killing him.

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0503

WOULD LOWER TOP BERTH CHARGES

Says Upper Berth Are Worth Half the Price of Lower Berth.

PULLMAN COMPANY ACCUSED

Declares That An Upper Berth Is Worth Half the Price of a Lower—This Is the Second Case of Its Kind.

Indianapolis.—The state of Indiana "went after" the Pullman company before the interstate commerce commission in a complaint filed on behalf of the state by Attorney General James Bingham, the Pullman company and a large number of railroads radiating from Indiana into Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky are accused of charging the same rate for upper berths that they exact for lowers.

The complaint cites the usual disadvantages attributed to lodgment in the uppers, declares that an upper berth is worth approximately half the price of a lower and submits a long schedule of rates which it thinks should be approved and enforced.

This is the second case of the kind against the Pullman company. In the one previously brought the commission held the complaint to be justified and fixed a new schedule of prices, the uppers being fixed at a smaller price than the lowers. This decision has been attacked in the courts and the Indiana case rests on the decision of the court, which is obviously expected to be favorable to the contention of the complainants.

More Supervision Boon to Utilities.

The public utilities commission and the probable effect in Indiana of the enactment of a law creating it formed the chief topic of discussion at the first day's session of the Indiana Electric Light association at the Denison hotel. Almost without exception the men who participated in the discussion favored the creation of a commission in this state and general regret was expressed because the legislature at its last session did not pass a law creating such a commission.

The feature of the discussion was a paper on "State Supervision of Public Utilities," by Thomas C. McReynolds of Kokomo, general manager of the Kokomo, Marion & Western Traction company. Mr. McReynolds declared that state supervision of public utilities has come to stay.

"The wave of agitation," he said, "which has swept this country for the last five years or more, has left an indelible impression in the minds of the public and nothing short of the actual enactment of laws will satisfy. The phenomenal growth of public service enterprises for the last fifteen or twenty years has no parallel in the history of this or foreign countries. Wonderful opportunities have been taken advantage of for the amassing of large individual fortunes by those engaged in public service enterprises. Valuable franchise rights have been procured in many cities in a way to create suspicion, and after such rights have been acquired they were abused by many corporations and individuals.

Gompers to Speak for the Democrats.

Announcement was made at Democratic state headquarters that Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has decided to take active part in the campaign in Indiana this fall on behalf of the Democratic ticket.

About three weeks ago the Democratic state committee decided to invite Mr. Gompers to come to Indiana, but it was not known definitely at that time whether he would be able to come. Myron King, secretary of the state committee, says Mr. Gompers will speak in Indiana, but that the speaking dates have not yet been arranged between Mr. Gompers and Bert Hendren, chairman of the speakers' bureau.

State Senator William E. Springer of Elizabethtown is expected in Indianapolis at once to open the speakers' bureau headquarters for the Republican state committee. A large number of prominent men, mostly progressives, have already signified their willingness to speak for Senator Beveridge and the rest of the Republican ticket, and the main difficulty of the speakers' bureau is said to be the question of how many big speakers it would be wise to bring to Indiana and to just what places it would be best to send the different speakers.

Colored Masons Meet.

The seventh annual convention of the colored lodge. Free and Accepted Masons of Indiana, was held in South Bend. The deputy Grand High Priest Clyde Matthews is presiding in the absence of Grand High Priest Moore of Indianapolis.

Paulownia Is a Success.

B. W. Douglas, state entomologist, who has been experimenting on the statehouse grounds with a tree known as the Paulownia, a native of Japan, is ready to announce that the tree is a success in this climate, provided suitable care is exercised in its rearing. The tree was planted two years ago, and the first year was broken off by dogs. The next year it grew to considerable height, but the upper part was winter killed last winter. This year it has grown a stalk almost five feet in height.

Passes Most of Class.

After canvassing the grades of the 86 applicants in the July examination of the state board of medical registration and examination the board announced that 79 have passed and will be admitted to practise. Five applicants failed outright and the grades of two others were held pending investigation.

The successful applicants in the medical examination were as follows:

Alpheus Leroy Thurston, Indianapolis; Grover C. Pritchett, Terre Haute; Alvin R. Kerr, Indianapolis; Gustav Herman Esch, Indianapolis; Elbert Shirk Waymire, Indianapolis; William Lorne Yule, Logansport; George Beam Hunt, White Water; Daniel Edgar Lybrook, Young America; E. T. Edwards, Indianapolis; Oliver O. Alexander, Terre Haute; William Moore Thompson, Ligonier; Herbert Wellman Detrick, Union City; E. F. Magenheimer, Fort Wayne; James William Jackson, Indianapolis; Blanche Horner, Flora; James Blaine Shoemaker, Noblesville; Raymond Judson Ives, Indianapolis; George H. Hockett, Indianapolis; J. T. Kennedy, Indianapolis; Thomas B. Govan, New Salisbury; Albert B. Cleage, Indianapolis; Henry Washington Gante, Anderson; Lawrence G. Griffis, Middletown; William Jay Davis, Sinton, Tex.; Samuel Alvin Smoots, Corydon; Edward Arthur Spohm, Indianapolis; Otis Alexander Caldwell, Indianapolis; Moses Haven Baker, Stockwell; Joe Jones Wood, Franklin; Frederick Hershman, Indianapolis; Edwin E. Dougherty, Indianapolis; Ira E. Bowman, Terre Haute; Frederick E. Jackson, Indianapolis; P. H. Wood, Philadelphia, Pa.; Samuel C. Murphy, Fort Wayne; Nellie Jane Hanaway, Fort Wayne; Chauncey Marshall Gillespie, Whiting; Earl J. Cripe, Indianapolis; Mason B. Light, Broad Ripple; Virgil Gwinn McDonald, Noblesville; F. Herbert Lewis, Terre Haute; Earl Miller Shenk, Indianapolis; Onis Oliver Melton, Bedford; Roy A. Terry, Indianapolis; Oscar D. Ludwig, Indianapolis; William Arthur Millington, Lafayette; C. P. R. Cramer, Batesville; Le Everette Strong, Indianapolis; Leo Lloyd Gardner, Fort Wayne; Harold B. Cox, Indianapolis; Homer B. Shoup, Terre Haute; Guy De Forrest Baker, Georgetown; Halstead Shaw Murat, Indianapolis; Walter L. Haworth, Indianapolis; Frederic T. Sprowl, Philadelphia, Pa.; Rocco Andrew Montani, Indianapolis; Edward A. Carlson, Madison; Henry Oscar Hovelson, Indianapolis; Alfred W. Hadley, Mooresville; Charles C. Sutter, Terre Haute; Charles Edwin Woods, Lafayette; Clyde Monroe Fish, Rochester; Andrew Guffin Cooper, Scircleville; Arthur Mitchell, Hetherington; Roscoe L. Lee, Waldron; James Monroe Hancock, Indianapolis; Henry Evans Washburn, Clinton; Lawrence B. Bits, Evansville; William Kendall Adair, New Washington; William Alex. Johnson, Perrysville; John Curtis Irwin, Indianapolis; Clarence Augustus Toles, Indianapolis; Charles Raymond Elfers, Indianapolis; Cora Roy Graham, Geneva; William V. Boyle, Indianapolis; David Nelson Conner, Anderson; Archibald A. Bond, Carmel.

The Hard Maples Need More Water.

B. W. Douglass, state entomologist, has been busy for the past two weeks explaining to Indianapolis owners of hard maple trees that it is not an insect that is causing the leaves to dry upon the branches and fall off, but that the trees are suffering from lack of water. His attention has been called to little groups of caterpillars and other worms and bugs on the maples, which would not have been noticed had the trees been healthy. To all the eager inquirers Mr. Douglass has explained that the insects have had nothing, comparatively, to do with the unsatisfactory conditions of the trees.

Some time ago Mr. Douglass warned the people against expecting much of hard maple trees when planted where sidewalks, asphalt pavements and sewers were to be constructed and the owners were told that they might expect such conditions as now prevail. The hard maple, he told them, required a great deal of water and a clear land surface so that the roots could command a great deal of fresh air.

The trees that have been affected are reported chiefly from lots where the surface has been covered with concrete or asphalt and where sewers have been built. Mr. Douglass has told his inquirers to tear up the walks and pavements and tear out the sewers. Considerable help can be afforded and the life of the tree prolonged, he said, by letting the hose play about the base of the trees until the earth is saturated. Many people think, he found, that it is sufficient to sprinkle the ground about the trees as in ordinary sprinkling, but this, he said, does not wet the ground to any appreciable depth and does the trees comparatively little good.

The advice of Mr. Douglass to the people in the cities where they must have sewers and pavements is not to attempt to do much with the hard maple, but to turn to other trees that do not require so much air or so much water about the roots.

Incorporations.

Articles of incorporation were filed with the secretary of state as follows:

Steel City Building and Loan association, Gary; capital stock, $250,000; directors, Forrest L. Bartholomew, Franklin Crandall, Arthur C. Kunert, Julius Bohm, Otto C. Bormann, Forrest P. Rundell and J. McNaughton.

Buning-Larger company, Indianapolis; capital stock, $15,000; merchandise brokers; directors, John I. Buning, James M. Larger, P. A. Bunin and B. Eagle.

PROGRESSIVE WEST IS PRAISED BY ROOSEVELT

Vigorous Speech by Former President Is Climax of Great Frontier Days Celebration at Cheyenne, Wyo.---Cattle Range Men Warmly Greet Their Old Associate.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 27.—The great virile virtues of the men who have built up the west formed the theme of a speech which Theodore Roosevelt delivered here today before thousands of those same men and thir successors. He arrived in the private car Republic abou 10:30 o'clock this morning and was at once taken in charge by a reception committee and a mounted escort of a thousand cowboys and cowgirls who shouted and cavorted as the former president and one-time ranchman alighted from the train.

Mr. Roosevelt's visit and the speech he delivered later in the day formed the culmination of the annual Frontier Days celebration which had attracted to the city thousands of persons from all parts of the west and a large number of tourists from more distant sections of the country.

Colonel Roosevelt's Speech.

Out in the open air, under the blue sky, a vast crowd assembled to hear the former president speak, and it heard one of the most important speeches he has made since leaving the White House. His address was as follows:

When, at the close of my hunting trip in Africa, I reached the borders of civilization, the first invitation I accepted was this, to visit the capital of Wyoming on the day when the people of the frontier came together to commemorate their achievements; I was glad it was so, because I have a peculiar feeling for the men and women of what used to be called the "Far West," and especially for those of the cattle country. For a number of years I lived on a ranch on the Little Missouri, sharing work and play, good fortune and bad fortune, with my neighbors; working on the round-up, serving as delegate from the Little Missouri round-up district to the Montana Stockgrowers' association, and even at times acting as deputy sheriff at my end of the county. I count those years as among the most valuable of my life, because nothing breeds such community of feeling as to work with one's fellowmen at their life tasks, and to learn to know their feelings by actually sharing them. The man of the west, throughout the successive stages of western growth, has always been one of the two or three most typical figures—indeed, I am tempted to say the most typical figure—in American life, and no man can really understand our country and appreciate what it really is and what it promises unless he has the fullest and closest sympathy with the ideals and aspirations of the west. The prime reason for this is to be found in the fact the westerner is so good an American. He is an American first and foremost; for this is the great lesson, friends, that all of us need to learn and to keep, the lesson that it is unimportant whether a man lives north or south, east or west, provided he is genuinely and in good faith an American, that he feels every part of the United States as his own, and that he is honestly desirous to uphold the interests of all other Americans in whatever sections of the country they may dwell.

A hundred years ago, when men spoke of the west they meant the country between the Alleghanies and the Mississippi. Fifty years ago the white man's west took in Minnesota, Iowa and Kansas, and then skipped across to California and Oregon. The country of the great plains and the Rockies, the country in which you whom I am now addressing lead your lives and do your work, has grown up within my own lifetime. I myself saw and took part in the closing years of the pioneer period, and it was my great privilege to work side by side with the pioneers—the ranchmen, the miners, the cow-punchers, the mule-skinners, the bull whackers—who actually opened up the country. I have seen the herds and flocks of the cattlemen and sheepmen supplant the game; I have seen the fortunate movement by which the small farm has tended gradually to take the place of the great unfenced ranch. I now travel in every comfort on railways across lands which, when I first rode across them, were still the home of the Indian and the buffalo; and I find cities where one can obtain not merely comfort, but luxury, in the places where thirty years ago there was not a building beyond a log hut or a doble house. The men who did this work were engaged in the final stages of conquering the continent; and it was their privilege to do one of the great works of all time, to do their part in the performance of an epic feat in the history of the progress of mankind.

West Stands for Progress.

I have used the word progress. The west stands for growth, for progress. So must the whole American people stand. A great democracy must be progressive or it will soon cease to be either great or democratic. No nation, no state, no party, can stand still. It must either go forward or go backward; and it becomes useless if it goes backward. Therefore I greet you, men of the west, and I stand for progress as all men must stand who are progressive.

The pioneers and their immediate successors won victory only by proving that they possessed the great, masterful qualities which lie at the foundation of National greatness. There are certain well-meaning men of intellectual cultivation, but lacking mental and moral robustness, who complain continually that they find American life, and especially the life of those American communities emerging from the pioneer stage, crude and without genius or beauty. Genius is a fine thing for a nation, but character is a still finer thing, and though beauty is good, strength is an even greater good. The men who have made this great republic of the west what it is, and especially the men who have turned it into a continental commonwealth, have possessed in the highest degree the great virile virtues of strength, courage, energy, and undaunted and unwavering resolution. Their typical leaders—of whom Abraham Lincoln, though the most exceptional, was the most typical—have possessed keen intelligence, and a character not merely strong but lofty, a character exalted by the fact that great power was accompanied by a high and fine determination to use this great power for the common good, for the advancement of mankind. The pioneer days are over, save in a few places; and the more complex life of today calls for a greater variety of good qualities than were needed on the frontier. There is need at present to encourage the development of new abilities which can be brought to high perfection only by a kind of training useless in pioneer times; but these new qualities can only supplement, and never supplant, the old, homely virtues; the need for the special and distinctive pioneer virtues is as great as ever. In other words, as our civilization grows older and more complex, while it is true that we need new forms of trained ability, and need to develop men whose lives are devoted wholly to the pursuit of special objects, it is yet also true that we need a greater and not a less development of the fundamental frontier virtues. These virtues include the power of self-help, together with the power of joining with others for mutual help, and, what is especially important, the feeling of comradeship, of social goodfellowship. Any man who had the good fortune to live among the old frontier conditions must, in looking back, realize how vital was this feeling of general comradeship and social fellowship. There are good men and bad men, in the new communities just as in the old communities, and the conditions on the frontier were such that the qualities of the good and bad alike were rather more strikingly manifested than in older communities, but among the men who tried to lead hard-working, decent lives, there was a feeling of genuine democracy, which represented an approach to the American ideal which we certainly should do everything in our power to preserve. We did not try to say that men were equal when they were not equal, but we did our best to secure something like an equality of opportunity and an equality of reward for good service; and moreover, each man expected to be received, and, on the whole, was received wherever he went, on the footing that his merits warranted.

Now so far as possible these qualities and conditions that bring about these qualities should be kept in the great states which are growing out of the old frontier communities. We need to strive for the general social betterment of the people as a whole, and yet to encourage individual liberty, and set high reward on individual initiative up to the point where they become detrimental to the general welfare.

Wrong Doers and Wrong Systems.

In continually and earnestly striving for this betterment of social and economic conditions in our complex industrial civilization, we should work in the old frontier spirit of brotherly comradeship and good will. I do not mean that we should refrain from hating wrong; on the contrary, I would preach firey wrath against wrong. But I would not preach such wrath against the wrong-doer, save in those cases where his wrong-doing really is due to evil moral attributes on his part and not to a wrong or false system, of which he is almost as much the victim as the beneficiary. Sometimes a wrong represents the deliberate wickedness of the wrong-doer, in which case the remedy is to punish him, but sometimes it represents the effects of a false social system, in which case the right course is to alter what is false in the system. Both principles need to be kept in view as guides to our conduct, and it is necessary sometimes to work in accordance with one and sometimes in accordance with the other.

Before ending I wish to say a word on something which I believe should especially interest all men who live in the open country, and especially all men who during the past thirty years have lived and worked on ranches, or have done their life work in the wilder parts of our land, on the great plains or among the mountains. The phase of our national life in which the stockman, the mining prospector, were the chief characters, was not only a very important but also a very picturesque phase. Often such a phase passes without any great artist arising to commemorate it.

The old-time backwoodsman, for instance, the man of the back country who lived in the eastern forests through which the waters ran eastward to the Atlantic and westward to the Mississippi, passed away without any painter or sculptor arising who possessed at once both the keenness of vision to see what a vital and picturesque figure the backwoodsman was, and the genius adequately to present that figure. The artist who saw that picturesqueness of the backwoodsman lacked the genius adequately to commemorate it, while the artists of real ability unfortunately had their eyes turned towards Europe and lacked the robust originality which the novelist Cooper showed—to see where their chances lay to do a great work. But in our generation, for our good fortune a great artist arose who was capable of seeing and of recording the infinite picturesqueness of the life of the plains and the Rockies.

Eulogy of Remington.

Of course I speak of Frederic Remington. He was one of those Americans who by his achievements distinctly deserved well of America. He worked with pencil, with brush, with chisel, he was both a painter and a sculptor. His pictures and his few bronzes are equally good. When my own regiment, a typically western regiment recruited mainly from the men of the great plains and the mountains, was disbanded at Montauk Point, the officers and enlisted men joined in giving me Remington's "Bronze Bronco Buster," a gift which I thought peculiarly appropriate coming from such a body of men. In Remington's pictures all the most vivid and characteristic features of the western pioneer life which is just closing were set forth, and the commemorated forever the men of the plains and the mountains as they actually were. The cowboy is his favorite type, but the mining prospector, the frontier farmer, the man who guides ox-wagon or mule-team, the soldier, the Indian—all appear. Now I wish very much that these men themselves would in their turn provide a monument for the great artist the sum of whose activities represent such a feature of American achievements, and, above all, represents a commemoration of some of the most interesting figures that have ever appeared on the stage of American life. A statue should be raised to Remington by some really first class artist.

Here at Cheyenne in this gathering many hundreds of the men have come together who were themselves typical leaders in and representatives of the very life which Remington so portrayed that it will always live. I hope that these men will join together, arrange the appointment of a committee, and start to raise funds for the erection of such a statue.

REDUCE RATES ON ICE CREAM

Petition Filed Asking Reduction on Crushed Stone.

JOINT RATES DECREASED

Railroad Commission Lowers Charges on "Empties," But Does Not Require Companies to Deliver Same to Shippers.

Indianapolis.—The local express rate on ice cream was reduced about 30 per cent. in an order issued by the railroad commission of Indiana. The opinion was written by Judge John F. McClure and was the culmination of a complaint filed by the Indiana Ice Cream association against the Adams Express company and others. Ice cream was placed in a special commodity class, which was modified so as to permit shippers under certain conditions to route the traffic. Charges on "empties" were reduced from fifteen cents to five cents, but the express companies are not now required to deliver the commodity.

Joint rates were decreased to 75 per cent of the local rates. The division of the revenue is left to the express companies, but in case they are unable to agree, an appeal to the railroad commission is provided.

An appeal to Lyman Dunlap and others against the Indianapolis Southern railroad for a station at Wood's Ferry Highway was denied. Wood's Ferry Highway is a crossing on the Indianapolis Southern about two miles from stations on either side, and about seven miles from Bloomington. The station would have cost approximately $60,000. Judge McClure found that the demands were insufficient to require the railroad to undertake this expense.

A petition was filed with the railroad commission of Indiana by the Monon Crushed Stone company against the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railroad company asking a reduction on the rate of crushed stone. The petition states that the rate from Monon to Battle Ground, 24½ miles; from Monon to Lafayette, 31 3-5 miles, and from Monon to Delphi, 22 2-5 miles, is 45 cents a ton net. This rate, the petitioners assert, is arbitrary, unjust, unreasonable and excessive.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Columbus.—Andrew Hawkins, twenty-two years old, a deserter from the regular army, was arrested here and taken to Fort Benjamin Harrison, where he was turned over to the military authorities. Hawkins, who enlisted in the army at Indianapolis a few months ago, deserted in Rhode Island and went to Brown county, but later he came here and took employment in the Mooney tannery. Charles Sipes of Brown county discovered the deserter, and it was he who took him to Fort Benjamin Harrison to claim the reward.

Columbus.—John R. Shelton, seventy years old, and Mrs. Arinda Dinn, sixty-three, were married by Justice Kinney in the county clerk's office. The couple were married on the same day of the week, at the same hour, by the same justice of the peace and in the same place as were David Fisher, seventy years old, and Mrs. Eliza Roberts, sixty-three, who were married and lived together but 24 hours.

Brookville. — Charlie Wells, an aeronaut, while starting a balloon flight at the street carnival, plunged headlong 70 feet when his parachute broke loose. His partner, Arthur Williams, ran under him and broke his fall by attempting to catch him. Wells' wrist was dislocated and he was injured internally, while Williams is badly bruised and sprained. Both are experienced balloonists from Cincinnati, O.

Richmond.—The engine and tender on a west-bound local freight train were wrecked at Greens Forks and fell a distance of about fifteen feet down an embankment. The engineer and fireman saved their lives, escaping without injury, by jumping.

Evansville.—John Roth, forty-five years old, a bartender at the Imperial hotel, shot and killed his wife, Mattie Roth, forty-four years old, and then turned the gun upon himself. Both died instantly. The shooting occurred in a resort on High street, where Roth found his wife.

Kokomo.—Spurred to activity by the foul condition of Wild Cat creek, which is said to be the breeding ground for thousands of mosquitoes, and in obedience to the demand of residents near the stream, headed by Simon B. Stern, a prominent citizen, the board of works has decided to try the virtues of mosquito oil, many barrels of which will be poured into the offending stream in the hope of giving relief.

Marion.—Roscoe Philippe, seventeen years old, son of W. H. Philippe, wealthy farmer living seven miles southwest of Marion, was drowned in the Mississinewa river at the foot of Ninth street. He was swimming, when he got beyond his depth, and he sank while his horror-stricken companions looked on. A hook and ladder truck of the fire department was called and firemen succeeded in removing the body within minutes. Boys who were with Philippe did not know his name and the body lay in a morgue for two hours before it was identified.

AN ANT-INFESTED COUNTRY

Small African Insects Defy the Power of Man in Sections of Africa.

"Among the more remarkable insect inhabitants of these spots (in the Kongo-Zambesi watershed) are the formidable driver ants (Dorylus)," writes a naturalist in the British Geographical Journal. "These wonderful insects occur everywhere but are particularly common in the high plateau country and in the neighborhood of water. They are frequently to be seen marching in vast armies, several individuals abreast. Many of these are carrying food supplies and are guarded on the flanks by innumerable armed sentries. Woe betide the man who is so unlucky as to tread among them. He is immediately covered with a host of bloodthirsty enemies, who bury their mandibles in his flesh, producing the sensation of innumerable red-hot needles. The insects not infrequently invade camps and native villages and can then only be turned from their objective by a line of red hot ashes. Except for the inconvenience of being turned out of their huts, these visits are not objected to by the natives. Every living thing has to depart hurriedly or die on these occasions, with the result that much of the vermin disappears—for a time, at least.

"Another insect, nearly as warlike as the driver ants, is a species of ponera, a large black ant which has a powerful and painful sting. This insect is particularly addicted to walking on native paths, and usually does so, about four or five abreast, flanked by a few skirmishers. When alarmed the whole community has the singular power of being able to produce a peculiar rustling noise. It wages perpetual war upon the termites, and may often be seen returning from a successful foray. On these occasions the majority of the army is laden with the bodies of their victims.

"It is impossible, in describing any part of tropical Africa, to avoid some mention of the termites. The different species of these insects build very varied and remarkable mounds. Some of them are of enormous size, and have a marked influence upon the landscape. They are sometimes as much as twenty feet high, and are frequently placed at somewhat irregular intervals about thirty or forty yards apart. On the plains, on the other hand, the commonest species makes a much smaller mound.

"In some parts of the plateau in the Kongo basin country there is a species which makes a small mushroom-shaped mound, a new top being apparently added each wet season. The result of this is that an old nest looks like a pile of hats or flat, somewhat circular pudding dishes."

Worthy of Support.

Mr. Greathead—I shall run for reelection again next fall, and I presume I shall have your vote?

Citizen (dubiously)—Well—I—dunno.

"What? You don't know? Why, sir, I saved the taxpayers $500,000 this year."

"Eh? How?"

"By not stealing it, of course."—New York Weekly.

Her Ambition.

"The modern society girl," remarked the student of human nature, "is usually an accomplished actress."

"Yes," rejoined the fussy bachelor, "but the only engagement she seeks is of the matrimonial kind."

Old Friends.

"I love everything that's old; old friends, old times, old manners, old books, old wine; and I believe, Dorothy, you'll own I have been pretty fond of an old wife."—From She Stoops to Conquer," by Oliver Goldsmith, 1773.

Canadian Banks.

Canada has 29 banks, with about 3,000 branches. They are practically controlled by the Bankers' association, a legalized institution with certain definite functions.

THE MARKETS.

New York, August 21.

FLOUR—Straights	$4.40	@4.60
WHEAT—Sept.	1.05¼	@1.06
CORN—Sept.	.68½	@ .70¼
OATS—Natural White.	.39	@ .39½
BUTTER—Creamery	.24	@ .32
EGGS—	.23½	@ .24½
CHEESE	.13¾	@ .17½

CHICAGO.

CATTLE—Fancy steers	$7.65	@8.60
Medium to good	6.50	@7.50
Fat cows and heifers	3.50	@7.00
Native bulls and stags	3.15	@3.40
Fair to fancy veal calves	7.75	@8.75
Heavy calves	3.00	@4.50
HOGS—Heavy Butchers	8.35	@8.65
Mixed packing	8.00	@8.50
Light mixed	8.30	@8.60
Poor to best pigs	8.60	@9.05
SHEEP—Wethers	3.90	@4.35
Lambs	5.50	@6.75
BUTTER—Creameries	.24½	@ .29
Dairies	.25	@ .27
EGGS—	.17	@ .21
POTATOES (per bu.)	.75	@ .82
GRAIN—Wheat, Sept.	.98¼	@ .99⅛
Oats, Sept.	.34½	@ .35⅛
Corn, Sept.	.59½	@ .60⅝

TOLEDO.

CATTLE—Prime steers	$6.00	@6.50
Choice cows	3.50	@4.25
Choice heifers	4.00	@5.50
HOGS—Heavies	8.90	@9.00
Pigs	9.25	@9.35
CALVES—Choice	9.00	@9.25
SHEEP—Choice	3.50	@4.00

BUFFALO.

CATTLE—Prime steers	$7.00	@7.25
Heifers	4.00	@6.00
Cows	4.00	@5.50
Calves	6.00	@10.25
HOGS—Yorkers	9.40	@9.60
Pigs	9.05	@9.75
SHEEP—Wethers	4.00	@6.75

SEPTEMBER

0504

L 904

The St. Joe News.

One Year - - $1.00
Six Month - - 50c
Three Months - - 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

The Fairview correspondent of THE NEWS in an article published two weeks ago, says: "The political situation of DeKalb County would be richly humorous were it not that the election of Mr. McKennan to the State legislature would make DeKalb County the laughing stock of the State." Then he goes on to state some peculiar moves of Mr. McKennan in regard to the local option movement. Well, Mr. Correspondent, we can see nothing inconsistent in Mr. McKennan's attitude, it is in perfect harmony with the principles of his party. It does not require a mind of very great penetration to discover that the attitude of the Democrat party is not dangerously hostile to the liquor interests, while the Republicans are rearing a Local Option infant that they seem almost ashamed to own, especially about election time. Yes, Mr. correspondent, there are many richly humorous situations that develope at each reoccurring election; or they would be humorous, were it not that so much of misery, sorrow and tragedy ensue as a result of an inconsistent attitude toward a great evil. It perhaps sounded sweet to our correspondent when he referred to "The little red partisan wagon" of the Prohibitionists. Well, for our part we would rather be the sole occupant of that same little red wagon, knowing what it represents, than take part in that farcical brawl that is being waged between the two old parties. We don't care a tinkers malediction about the personal attitude of the candidate on this question, a good man in an immoral party is like a sound bung in a rotten barrel; he'll soon be in the swim. It is our honest conviction that this local option movement is but a clever dodge to blind the sincere but mistaken voter from taking the proper stand on this all important question. Call the Prohi a crank if you will, he is lined up not to suit the professional politician but with the only party that has the hardihood, the moral stamina, to stand for right, and which has ever refused to compromise with sin; and that can consistently invoke God's blessing in all their undertakings.

EX PROHI.

Local Items.

Read Kinsey's ad in this issue.

The Hicksville Fair, August 30 to Sept. 2, inclusive.

Bring that oil can to Kinsey's Hardware, they can fill it.

Mrs. Emily Hadsell and granddaughter Gladys, of Ft. Wayne, remained over to spend the week with Dr. Sheffers' and other friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Britton Reeder of 2½ miles north of Artic, spent Tuesday afternoon at Sherman Wolff's. Also Will Zimmerman of Ft. Wayne.

The Methodist parsonage has been undergoing some repairs this week preparatory for the moving of Rev. Corn, their new minister.

The White family will hold a reunion in the Herrick grove, northwest of town on Saturday of this week. Every person related in any way are asked to be there.

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at ..... 10:32 a. m.
No. 3 ..... 8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at..... 6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at..... 4:57 p.m.

Look Ahead A Little

It may be like this in August

And this way in September

And even like this in October but —

In November your thoughts will turn to such scenes as these.

Stove Time is Coming

In November you will need a Base Burner—perhaps a new Cooking Stove. To prepare for this we are putting in a new stock of Favorites, because we know there are no others in the market quite as good. The Favorite Base Burner is in a class by itself. Come and see it and we will show you why it will throw out more heat and consume about half as much fuel as other makes.

Don't put off the stove question till the cold days come. In Summertime prepare for Winter.

J. W. BURWELL & SON

St. Joe, Ind.

Wedded

Elza Kinsey, merchant of this place and Miss Macola People of north of St. Joe, were united in marriage at the latter's home on last Sunday. Rev. Hill performing the ceremony. On Monday they left to spend the week at Hamilton Lake. The young folks are well known in this vicinity and have the best wishes of all.

Walter Family Reunion

The seventh annual reunion of the Walter family was held at the home of Mr. Henry Walter on Saturday, August 27. Saturday morning dawned bright and beautiful making them feel that nature had done its best to make this reunion a pleasant one. The forenoon was spent in a social way, and at noon a sumptuous dinner was served under the canvas to which 48 partook. A short time after the banquet a meeting was held which was opened by prayer from Rev. Erick. This was followed by the reading of letters from absent ones, and a short program was then given. Rev. Erick gave a short talk that was much appreciated by the members of the reunion. Officers were elected as follows:

President	Mr. Geo. Walter.
Secretary	Miss Fern Walter.
Treasurer	Mr. Kate Davis

At the proper time all left for their respective homes feeling that the reunion had been a pleasant one. Place for the next reunion was set to be at the home of Mr. John Hartley.

D. F. BROWN,

.....SHOE SHOP.....

My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite Kagey's Grocery. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.

St. Joe, - Ind.

..Real Estate,

Insurance

NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

Read THE NEWS.

Band concert Saturday evening.

Mrs. Dilley is the guest of Auburn relatives.

Mrs. R. A. Smith was at Garrett over Sunday.

Simeon Wineland is very sick at this writing.

C. A. Patterson's spent Sunday with Wm. Stevick's at Huntertown.

John Stevens of Toledo, is the guest of Jacob Seehlers' and other relatives.

Sept. 10, Kinsey's give away a Kitchen Cabinet. Get a ticket.

When you know anything of news value, call us up by Bell 'phone No. 10

John May and family left yesterday for Petoskey, Mich., where they will spend a week.

The base ball game Thursday at Spencerville was a dandy in every respect resulting in a score of 7 to 8 in favor of St. Joe.

Kinsey's have installed an oil tank and ask that you bring your cans in to be filled

Wm. Curie and wife were at Chicago Junction, G. M. Barney and wife at Bowling Green, and Sol Barney and Miss Pauline were at Tiffin, Sunday, taking advantage of the Sandusky excursion.

Mrs. Frank Henderson and daughter of Michigan came Saturday to visit with her parents. Mrs. Meese has been on the sick list for the past few weeks and at times was compelled to take her bed.

Next Tuesday, Sept. 6, 4 P. M. at the Auburn Presbyterian Church, Lucile Baughman ten years old and Letha B. Coyle fifteen, will give a full piano program. At 8 P. M. a Gold Medal Contest, medal furnished by Theodore Presser of Philadelphia for this occasion. Chastine Johnston.

A birthday dinner was given Mr. Samuel George last Sunday at his home and a general good time was had. He was showered with a good supply of cards and he reports having received 18 cards from one family. It was a pleasant surprise to him.

Mrs. Alice Warner stated that as sure as Saturday night came a certain person takes the liberty of relieving them of something from their porch. Last Saturday, a week ago, her large jardinier was taken and the party is known. If it is not returned shortly trouble will be made for that person. Don't some folks have light fingers? It would be a good thing if they could get them burned.

You will find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Especially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37-4.

THE NEWS $1.00 per year.

Get your coal oil at Kinsey's

Cucumbers for canning. J. W. Sherer.

A ticket for the asking at Kinsey's on the kitchen cabinet.

James Hamilton and E. Case returned Monday evening from Lake Winona.

We thank all those who responded to the call, to pay up their subscription. We hope that several more will fall in line soon. How do you stand?

Not a minute should be lost when a child shows symptoms of croup. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Fairview Neighborhood

It is reported that E. W. Saylor will sow 30 acres of wheat this fall.

The heavy winds last Thursday blew off a good many apples and other fruit.

A good many Fairview people attended the Deciple Yearly Meeting at St. Joe Sunday.

Mrs. Alda Brown and family attended the Brown reunion at Silas Brown's last Thursday. Seventy-six persons were in attendance.

Mr. John D. Smith is on the jury trying Herman Miller for the murder of Columbus Croy at Woodburn more than a year ago. The case comes to DeKalb on a change of venue from Allen County after one or two miss fit trials elsewhere.

Fairview neighborhood is becoming quite a potato growing district. Jim Smith having out about three acres on the Peter Coyle farm and Henry and Frank Milliman about four and a half acres on their farm. They look like they might turn out spuds by the ton. A. J. Collins also has out a large patch.

In the south west field of Frank Johnson's farm lay a glacial boulder of large dimensions, which had been farmed around ever since the land had been in cultivation. Frank concluded it had lain there long enough and last Friday he placed three and one half pounds of dynamite under it with the necessary trimmings struck a match, and then "skidood." The charge threw the rock from the ground and broke it into about fifteen large pieces ranging from 100 to 400 pounds each. The combined weight being estimated at 15 tons.

A MAN OR IRON NERVE.

Indomitable will and tremendous energy are never found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills, the matchless regulators, for keen brain and strong body. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

Yearly Meeting

The Annual Yearly Meeting of the Church of Christ of DeKalb County was held at St. Joe on last Saturday afternoon and Sunday. The Sunday morning service was well attended and by the noon hour several hundred people had gathered. After the regular morning service, R. H. Crossfield, president of the Transylvania University addressed the audience. After the noon hour had been spent in the eating of the many good things prepared for this meal. The audience was called to order and a song service was conducted by Rev. Brennen of Ashley-Corunna. After communion services Rev. Cressfield addressed the congregation again. The meeting soon adjourned to meet at Corunna in 1911. Evening services were held in the Christian church and a fine audience listened to the lecture by Rev. Crossfield, on the necessity of an education in order to obtain success in this age. Showing the vast difference between the early days and the requirements of the 20th., Century. The talk was the best of its kind ever given in our city. We would like to say more but space will not permit.

THE LASH OF A FIEND

Would have been about as welcome to A. Cooper, of Oswego, N. Y., as a merciless lung-racking cough that defied all remedies for years. "It was most troublesome at night," he writes, "nothing helped me till I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which cured me completely. I never cough at night now." Millions know its matchless merit for stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, sore lungs, lagrippe, asthma, hemorrhage, croup, whooping cough, or hay fever. It relieves quickly and never fails to satisfy. A trial convinces. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. It's positively guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank; you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

CONCORD

Hattie Draggoo and daughter Helen attended the Brown reunion last Thursday at Silas Brown's.....Merritt Baker wishes to express his thanks to those who remembered him with post cards on his birthday having received fifty..... Mrs. Jay Fetters who is quite sick with typhoid fever remains about the same..... Curtis Hursey and wife and Harry Mann were Sunday guests of Jay Hart and wife of Coburntown....Mrs. John Boren and three children of Elkhart visited her mother, Mrs. James Wyatt for a week.....Dr. J. H. Lake, wife and son Harold, ate Sunday dinner with Wm. Scott and wife....Miss Bertha Read of Auburn Junction spent Thursday evening with Inez and Allie Patterson.....Walter Baker spent Sunday with Harry Sebert .....Quite a few people from here attended the grove meeting at St. Joe Sunday .....Chas. Jackson's new house is ready for papering, the carpenters having completed their work. They will soon occupy it.....Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Snyder and children Florence and Floyd returned from a visit in Allen County, Ohio, last Thursday where they went to attend a family reunion.....Mrs. Sherman Funk and children spent Sunday with her parents, James Metcalf and wife of near Norris Chapel.

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

Calls answered day or night.

Phone No. 82.

St. Joe, - Indiana.

J D Fetters

TRUSTEE

of Concord Township.

OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK
at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

DENTIST

C. R. PRICE,

ST. JOE, IND.

Office in Case building.

Bell Phone No. 44.

5% FARM LOANS 5%

SEE

Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.

Bell 347k Home 346

Office:
Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Elsa Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son.

Phone No. Office 37-2. Residence 37-2

SEPTEMBER

0505

L 904

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

SPENCERVILLE.

Read your own NEWS.

Read the ads and be posted.

Lutheran S. S., 84 attendance $2.68 collection.

Geo. Munn was at Winona, last week, several days.

Mr. W. W. Fischer started out on his work Monday morning.

Mrs. Kathryn Steward of Garrett is the guest of relatives here for a week.

Samuel Cole has purchased an automobile of Goldsmith Brothers of Harlan.

Frank House and family are the guests of their daughter at Pontiac, Michigan.

Fred Thomas is again at work in his shop after three weeks lay off caused by a light stroke of paralysis.

Friday, Sept. 2, is "Old Soldiers" day at the Hicksville fair. On that day all old soldiers, wives and widows will be admitted free of charge.

Before buying your machine oil see Erick & Co's Eldorado Castor. Only 20c. per gallon. It's a fine one.

Mm. Morr returned Friday from the Longcliff Asylum and is today as sound as ever. It is a deplorable condition to be in and we rejoice that Mr. Morr is alright again.

Your complexion as well as your temper is rendered miserable by a disordered liver. By taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets you can improve both. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Mrs. W. W. Fischer entertained to dinner Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Bert Baldier and son Herbert, Mrs. Ed Bishop and son Ronald, Mrs. Kagey of Auburn and Ethel Baker of Spencerville.

Lewis Beery was at Wayne last week and brought home with him an auto truck, of the International Harvesting Co., make. The machine is built on the plan of an auto buggy and will be a help in disposing of his fruits in season besides the comforts and pleasure afforded him.

S. S. Kimes

—M. D.—

Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.

Phone No. 10.

Spencerville, Ind.

Mr. Thorn and wife of Huntington; Mr. Borden and wife of Coburntown; Mrs. Braid Kail of Auburn; Mrs. Porter of Cedarville; Mrs. Walker of Hicksville; James Irvin of Concord; and Jennie Steward of Butler, were Thursday visitors in the home of L. W. Steward and family.

Don't waste your money buying plasters when you can get a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment for twenty-five cents. A piece of flannel dampened with this liniment is superior to any plaster for lame back, pains in the side and chest, and much cheaper. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

As a result of running horses last Saturday night, two rigs were completely wrecked the boys were thrown from the rig but not injured. Fast driving was the cause and one of them was compelled to stay over night before returning home.

Mrs. L. B. Wasson entertained a number of friends on Tuesday of last week for dinner, it being the anniversary of her sixty-first birthday. Those present were, Jenettie Howey, Gladys Howey, Dorcus Gill, Ellis Houck, Avie Clark, Clara Clark, Mrs. George Howey, Leona and Nellu High, M. A. High and grandson Kenneth Ryon, L. B. Wasson and grandaughter Mattie and Mrs. Harry Wasson. She received 98 post cards for which she is very thankful.

W. G. Erick

TRUSTEE

of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY

TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK

at Store in

SPENCERVILLE, IND

Lloyd Goldsmith was at Ft. Wayne last Friday.

J. C. Vallieu and family were Newville visitors Sunday.

Homer Cook commenced working for Martin Koch Monday.

Mrs. Bion Wade is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Beulah Vallieu.

Jerome Cook and wife took Sunday dinner with Geo. Howey and wife.

F. D. Lake and wife and Lewis Beery visited with the Swadner family of Scipio Sunday.

Mrs. Geo. Howey was the recipient of sixty beautiful post cards last week for which she is very grateful.

Archie Squires and family and Dan Rhoads and wife took dinner with Ralph Thomas and wife Thursday.

Mrs. Suwsen and son Glenwood of Chicago, spent a few days last week with her sister, Mrs. Fred Thomas and family.

Geo. Gelhausen and mother and Mrs. Mab Johns and baby of Garrett, were the guests of Maria Oberholtzer last Wednesday and Thursday.

Misses Mabel Wasson and Pearl Kimes with their gentlemen friends, Thurman Foltz and Milo Killian, visited last Sunday with Effie Smith.

Mrs. Grace Adams and sister, Lela Fales, of St. Paul, were at home for the past two weeks. They are at Hicksville at present but will return home this week.

Wm. Vallieu, wife and son Floyd, of Harlan, Vernie and Ralph Wise and Lewis Cramer of Newville, took supper with J. C. Vallieu Saturday evening and remained to enjoy the fireworks.

Mr. Israel Horn and wife entertained Saturday, Mrs. Marguerite Swineford and Mrs. Sarah McCrory, twin sisters of St. Joe and the Misses Allene and Lucile Rhodes, twin sisters of this place. It is very seldom that such meetings occur and it was a pleasant one.

"Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means that it never fails to cure diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is pleasant to take and equally valuable for children and adults. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2.

Corma Kelley visited relatives at Woodburn, Saturday.

Inez Rhoades called on Pluma Kimes, Sunday afternoon.

Harvey Kimes and family took Sunday dinner with W. M. Kimes and wife.

Stella Strong and daughter Availla, of Eaton, Ind., were Friday guests of C. M. Wearley and family.

Mrs. Gerry Braybrook and daughter Edna, and Frank and Geo. Vice were Sunday visitors at Wm. Millers'.

Misses Fern and Zenith Wearley accompanied by Mrs. Louis Shuler and two daughters of North Baltimore, returned home Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ike Kelley of Adrain, Mich., who were visiting relatives here returned to their home Friday, as they were called home on account of sickness.

Mr. and Mrs. John McComb of Huntertown, Harley Wearley and lady friend, Dora Fultmer, of Woodburn, Mr. John Miller and daughters, Fay and Millie, of Farmer's Center, were guests of C. M. Wearley and family, Thursday, and also attended the Home Coming.

A Glad Day.

Thursday was a red letter day for Spencerville, their first homecoming, when the friends of years past met to recall early events and touching scenes in years gone by. The attendance was as large as the most enthusiastic had expected, the program good so far as it could be carried out, the rain interfering with it. The evening's program including the fire works was abandoned entirely but this part of the program was given on Saturday night. A great many were there from a distance, some of whom had not been there since early childhood. Dinner was served by the churches. As there was no place to register it was impossible to get the names of the old settlers who were present. The following is a partial list that we kept in mind.

Mike Shurts, sister, Michigan
Timothy Hull, wife, Vincennes
Wm. Blair, " Butler
J. W. Dills, " Hicksville
R. G. Coburn, Coburntown
J. M. Milliman, "
Alda Develbis, Ft. Wayne
Wm. " wife, Ft. Wayne
Mrs Lorenzo Bowser " "
Andrew Hemrick wife " "
Ami Baker, " "
Jake White, Michigan
Mark Waters, Antwerp, O.
Layton Zimmerman, Likonier, Ind.
Mrs. Dan Zehner.

YOU ARE ALWAYS WELCOME AT THE

TREECE RESTAURANT

Lunch, Cigars, Confectionary, Ice Cream and Soft Drinks

Clem Treece

PROPRIETOR.

WISE'S CORNERS.

John Hissong began hauling wood Monday, that he bought of W. L. Smith.

Elzetta Wertman spent Tuesday with Ora Billman.

Mrs. Tracy Gratz visited with friends near Grabill, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Betz called on their daughter, Mrs. E. Billman, Monday evening.

Mrs. Bracy Moore of East Leroy, Mich., has been visiting in the homes of Ira, Elmer and William Smiths'.

Frank Wertman and wife spent Sunday with Charlie Stotler and family near Maysville.

Ira Smith and wife and two grandchildren, Lois and Ira Smith, and Will Smith and wife, also Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Margaret Koch, were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bartholomew near Antwerp, last Sunday.

Greeley Wearley made W. L. Smith a call, Sunday morning.

Almost all in our vicinity attended the Home Coming at Spencerville, Thursday.

DON'T BREAK DOWN.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause breakdowns. You can't overtax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters, the matchless tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sende, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. 50c. At H. L. Dunkle's.

COUNTY LINE NEWS.

Mrs. Oliver Warstler is on the sick list.

A large number from this community enjoyed the Home Coming at Spencerville, Thursday, and were rained out or in, which?

Geo. Vanzile and wife of Auburn, and John Vanzile and family of Michigan, spent Wednesday with Solomon Goldsmith and family.

Wm. Huffman, wife and daughter Lilly, of Auburn, and Mrs. Pearl Munch and children, Paul and Blanch, of Newark, Ohio, spent Wednesday with C. A. Conner and family.

David Luttman has erected a new wind engine.

Donalson Brothers are driving a new well for Christ Stuckey.

Mr. Enoch Baldwin spent Sunday with A. E. Sponhour and family.

Chas. Bishop and daughters, spent Sunday with James Bishop and family.

Joe Goldsmith and wife spent Sunday with Joel Gerig and wife of Hurshtown.

Miss Wilma Points is spending a few days with Milton Simanton and family.

Master Chas. Armstrong and sister Pearl, spent Sunday with A. E. Sponhour and family.

Chester Bowers of near St. Johns, attended Sunday school at Rehobeth Sunday morning.

Arthur Friend of Garrett, is spending a few days with his grandparents, Amos Friend and wife.

Ben Gerig, wife and family, C. A. Conner, wife and family spent Sunday with Solomon Goldsmith and family.

Clarence Sponhour and wife, and Miss Zulu Sponhour spent Sunday with Lizzy Bishop and family of Auburn.

Frank Simanton and wife of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Simanton.

Geo. McCann attended the fire works at Spencerville, Saturday evening, and in some manner his buggy was badly wrecked.

Mrs. Cora Sponhour spent Friday with Rev. M. J. Clay of Delta, Ohio. Mr. Clay is in a critical condition with appendicitis.

E. J. Armstrong, wife and son Ray, and daughter, Lilly Bishop, attended a birthday dinner at Mrs. Clarence Surface of Garrett, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Sponhour, and Mrs Chas. Garver attended the U. B. Conference at Blessfield, Mich. Rev. A. Clarke will have charge of the Hopewell class.

W. T. Wyatt and wife, R. R. Wyatt and wife, and Mrs. Esther Adams of Barberton, Ohio, attended the Reunion of the 88th. Regiment at Robison Park, Friday.

Mrs. Esther Adams of Barberton, Ohio, and Mrs. Sarah Sheets of Wadsworth, Ohio, have spent the past two weeks with W. T. Wyatt and wife. They will return home Monday.

IT SAVED HIS LEG.

"All thought I'd lose my leg," writes J. A. Swensen, of Watertown, Wis. "Ten years of eczema that fifteen doctors could not cure, had at last laid me up. Then Bucklin's Arnica Salve cured it, sound and well." Infallible for Skin Eruptions, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Boils, Fever Sores, Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Piles. 5c at H. L. Dunkle's.

Coburn's Corners

The teachers from this place are attending institute at Auburn, this week.

Arthur Wilmot and wife spent Sunday in Garrett, the guest of their son, Lee and wife.

Frankie Rhodenbaugh of St. Joe, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Anna Wilmot.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Widney and two daughters of Hicksville, took dinner Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Abel.

John Hart and wife are rejoicing of the arrival of a little daughter at their home, east of here. All are doing fine.

Fannie Milliman and Laura Coburn visited from Saturday until Tuesday in Kendallville, the guest of Sell Gee and family.

Several from this place called on Mrs. Wesley Hart at Dr. Weltey's in Hicksville, last week, and found her slowly improving.

Jacob Baker and daughter, Matie Gee and son Freddie, and Mr. and Mrs. Alvia Coburn of Hicksville, visited Sunday with Mr. Baker's daughter, Mrs. Earl Smith of North Baltimore.

Mrs. Cadmus Shull and daughter Nellie, accompanied her sister, Mrs. Merton Abel to her home at Branch, Mich., and will visit friends at that place and Walkerville, Mich., for a couple of weeks.

Romeo Headley has purchased the Mr. Worden property known better as the Mr. Andress home and has rented the Ross Abel's house across the road for a store building and has moved his goods to that place. Mr. and Mrs. Worden expects to go to Florida, this fall, they own property at that place. So Coburntown has a store and maybe will turn into a city yet.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wright of Hicksville, kept house for Walter Abels' while on their trip to Niagara Falls. They returned home Saturday evening and report a fine time. They stopped on their return trip and visited with their nephew's family, Mr. Kimes of Cleveland, and took in the sights at that place for a couple of days.

WERNERT

WALL PAPER: We are closing out our spring stock to makeroom for new fall patterns, at COST

Paints, oils and Pharmacuticles.

Perscriptions carefully compounded.

SPENCERVILLE

Frank Lothammer spent Sunday in Payne, Ohio.

Mrs. Percy Walker has been on the sick list for a few days.

Edith Abel and Gladys Hart spent Wednesday in Auburn.

Mrs. E. Wade of Michigan, is visiting friends at this place.

H. A. Coburn has been taking in the sights of Michigan, the past week.

Fay Wilmott went to Garrett to spend the week with his brother Lee.

Mrs. Rollie Moffett and daughter of Auburn, spent Friday night at Ross Abels'.

Dell Nelson and family, and Wallace Jackson and family spent a very pleasant day at Robison Park, one day last week.

Milo Walker and wife spent Sunday in Cedarville, the guests of Mrs. Walker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilks. Minnie Walker has been spending the week at that place.

ABOUT SOUTH AMERICA.

American plows, threshers and reapers cover the fields of Argentina.

Uruguay, the smallest of South American republics, is as large as Missouri.

A railroad crosses the Andes at 12,340 feet and cuts down the time between Santiago and Buenos Ayres 16 days.

Ecuador is larger than Texas. Its capital, Quito, is 1,000 feet higher than Mt. St. Bernard, and has 50,000 population.

The valley of the Amazon is as wide as from New York to Ogden, Utah. The fall of the river in 2,000 miles is not over 200 feet.

Argentine Republic is larger than the United States east of the Mississippi; 12 times larger than England. Every third man there is a foreigner. Pullman cars cross it in 24 hours.

Buenos Ayres is said to increase in population 100,000 a year. Its present population is upward of 2,000,000. It is the largest Spanish-speaking city in the world, and half again as large as Madrid.

Chile is the narrowest (in proportion to its length) country in the world. It has a coast line that would reach from New York to Salt Lake. Its width is about from New York to Philadelphia.

Rio de Janeiro has the finest harbor in the world. It is one of the oldest cities of our hemisphere. It is the largest Portuguese-speaking city in the world. There are more people in Rio Janeiro than in all Portugal.

Colombia is 10 times as large as New York state, as long from north to south as from St. Paul to New Orleans. Its coast line is equal in distance from New York to Chicago. It has produced over $600,000,000 worth of gold.

PROVERBS OF PEOPLE.

Reynard can't run forever.—Irish.

Eaten bread is soon forgotten.—Irish.

He is lifeless that is faultless.—Latin.

Whom the cap fits, let him wear it.—Latin.

Let him who is just become justified still more.—Bible.

The handsomest flower is not the sweetest.—Spanish.

No one is a fool always; every one sometimes.—French.

Riches serve a wise man, but command a fool.—French.

Nothing overcomes passion sooner than silence.—French.

Much water runs by the mills while the miller sleeps.—Danish.

The finest friendships have been formed in mutual adversity.—Latin.

ST. JOE.

St Joe Markets

Wheat	.92
Oats	.32
Butter, country	.27
Eggs	.21

Auburn Dispatch Says

J. W. Burwell & Son, who recently purchased the Baker hardware at St. Joe are threatening to leave the place because they are refused permission to keep a gasoline tank house along side the sidewalk in front of his place of business. The town board should let this firm go and should be commended for their refusal. Such obstructions are among the uncomplimentary things seen on sidewalks.

Auburn, Ind.
Aug. 26, 1910

Editor News:

I have carefully read the article in THE NEWS of August 25th., entitled "Hardware to Move". I would not censure Mr. Burwell in the least if he did move his Hardware to some point where he would recieve treatment by the town board, that would be in keeping with an up-to-date business. I would very much dread to see Mr. Burwell leave the town, while I am a resident of Auburn, I have a kindly feeling for St. Joe and desire to see it prosper but such little contemptable usage as Mr. Burwell and myself have received in the matter of that gasoline tank is too little for me. I have invested a good many dollars for the benefit of the town and I am sorry to say, that if such little narrow contemptable management of the town is to prevail I will regret that I made the investment that I have. So far as Mr. Burwell is concerned, I have just recently had occasion to visit the neighborhood where he has done business for a great number of years, and took pains to inquire as to his standing as a business man and a citizen. All spoke of him in the highest terms both as a business man and a citizen. I will be free to say that I feel the contemptable usage we received in reference to that Gasoline tank matter. If we had been obstructing the street or injuring anyone in the least I would feel different. Resp.,

O. H. Widney.

Old Veterans Day

Next Thursday St. Joe will entertain the Veterans Association. The arrangements are being made for entainment and the enjoyable feature will be the Chicken dinner in the Lutheran Church basement. You will miss a good time if you don't come.

Good Band
Good Speaking
Good Singing
Good Recitals
Good war stories
Good Fellowship

Worse than Split.

The Youth—Miss Mabel, I'd like to, once in a while, with your permission, you know, call and see you.

The High School Girl—Mr. Sorreltop, you will pardon me for saying that I do not care for the attentions of a young man who not only splits his infinitives, but tears them wide apart.

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

Not a Drop of Alcohol

What is a "tonic"? A medicine that increases the strength or tone of the whole system. What is an "alterative"? A medicine that alters or changes unhealthy action to healthy action. Name the best "tonic and alterative"? Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol. Ask your own doctor all about it. Never take a medicine doctors cannot endorse. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Without daily action of the bowels poisonous products must be absorbed. Then you have biliousness, biliousness, headache. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills for constipation.

THE BALTIMORE and OHIO RAILROAD

Very Low Fares to

Baltimore, Md.—Grand United Order of Odd Fellows Sept. 9, 10, 11.

Atlantic City—G. A. R. National Encampment, Sept. 15 to 19, inclusive.

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO—Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and Other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES—South, Southwest, West, Northwest

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST. Long Limits.

Consult BALTIMORE and OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stop-over Privileges and Other Details.

SEPTEMBER

0506
L 904

A BROAD HINT.

Jim—I suppose you love to go sleighing because of the melody of the jingling sleigh bells.

Jess—Yes, and they often lead up to the wedding bells. That's the best of it.

KEEP BABY'S SKIN CLEAR

Few parents realize how many estimable lives have been embittered and social and business success prevented by serious skin affections which so often result from the neglect of minor eruptions in infancy and childhood. With but a little care and the use of the proper emollients, baby's skin and hair may be preserved, purified and beautified, minor eruptions prevented from becoming chronic and torturing, disfiguring rashes, itchings, irritations and chafings dispelled.

To this end, nothing is so pure, so sweet, so speedily effective as the constant use of Cuticura Soap, assisted, when necessary, by Cuticura Ointment. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole proprietors, Boston, for their free 32-page Cuticura Book, telling all about the care and treatment of the skin.

On Some Ministers.

The worst o' these here shepherds is, my boy, that they regiarly turns the heads of all the young ladies about here. Lord bless their little hearts, they think it's all right, and don't know no better; but they're the victims o' gammon, Samivel, they're the victims o' gammon. Nothin' else, and wot aggragates me, Samivel, is to see 'em awastin' all their time and labor in making clothes for copper-colored people as don't want 'em and taking no notice of flesh-colored Christians as do. If I'd my way, Samivel, I'd just stick some o' these here lazy shepherds behind a heavy wheel-barrow, and run 'em up and down a 14-inch plank all day. That 'ud shake the nonsense out of 'em, if anythin' would.—Mr. Weller, Quoted by Charles Dickens.

Where Millions Are Entombed.

The catacombs at Rome were the burial places of the early Christians. They are about 580 miles in extent and are said to have contained 6,000,000 bodies. During the persecutions of the Christians under Nero and other Roman emperors the catacombs were used for hiding places. Under Diocletian the catacombs were crowded with those for whom there was no safety in the face of the day. The art of the catacombs is unique and most interesting. Simple designs are etched in the slabs which seal the tombs. Now and then are small chapels where paintings are to be found. All are Bible illustrations, so that the catacombs may be said to be a pictorial Bible in effect.—The Christian Herald.

Women Save Money.

Women are natural money-savers, no matter how much is said about what they spend for dresses and hats. They always know how to make a dollar go the farthest. That's why thoughtful women discover that by using Easy Task soap in their laundry work they save fuel and time and trouble and health and more than that, they save the clothes that are washed. Easy Task has no rosin in it to stay in the clothes and hold the dirt with it and rot the fabric.

Real Modesty.

"An actor should be modest, and most actors are," said James K. Hackett at a luncheon in Pittsburg. "But I know a young actor who, at the beginning of his career, carried modesty almost too far.

"This young man inserted in all the dramatic papers a want advertisement that said:

"'Engagement wanted—small part, such as dead body or outside shouts preferred.'"

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.

Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

Rockefeller's Hard Shot.

John D. Rockefeller tried a game of golf on the links near Augusta. On a rather difficult shot Mr. Rockefeller struck too low with his iron, and as the dust flew up he asked his caddy:

"What have I hit?"

The boy laughed and answered:

"Jaw-jah, boss."

LOW RATES ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., AND RETURN VIA NICKEL PLATE ROAD. NATIONAL ENCAMPMENT G. A. R.

Tickets on sale Sept. 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19. Good returning Sept. 29. Privilege of extension. Ask Agent or write F. P. Parnin, T. P. A., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Answering for Him.

Physician—And would you like to be a doctor, Jack?

Mother (while Jack is still hesitating)—No, no! The dear boy couldn't kill a fly.—Punch.

HOW LOVING-CUP ORIGINATED

Interesting Story Telling How Powerful King of Ancient Taught Ignorant Lesson.

The so-called "loving-cup" is common nowadays and we see it everywhere. But many years ago there were no such things as these queer three-handled affairs, and the following story tells how they first happened to be made:

Once upon a time, centuries before as there lived a great and powerful king who was extremely fond of hunting. He was one day in a huge forest pursuing a stag, but it was so fleet and clever that it eluded him and his band of followers, and led them entirely out of their way. After wandering about in a hopeless fashion they finally came upon a little hut and the king himself dismounted and rapped smartly upon the door.

A young girl answered his knock and soon showed the men the right path. The king was about to go when he saw a well near the house and at the sight of the clear water immediately felt thirsty, and going back, asked the girl for a drink. Without hesitation she went into the house and came out with an earthen jug filled with the well water. But, instead of offering his royal majesty the handle, as most people would, she held that herself and handed him the cup the wrong way.

The king said nothing, thanked the girl, and he and his band soon found their way out of the woods.

But when he reached his palace, he determined to reward the girl for giving him the water and at the same time to teach her a lesson in politeness.

Sending to his jeweler, he bade him make a silver cup with two handles and deliver it to the young girl without a word from whence it came.

Perhaps a month after this the king again hunted in that same forest, sought the little hut, and asked the girl for another drink of water.

This time she entered the house and came out with a beautiful silver cup full of sparkling water.

"Now," thought the king, "she has certainly learned a lesson." But never was he more mistaken, for the poor, ignorant girl took a handle in each hand and for the second time offered her liege lord nothing but the side of the cup.

The king rode away deeply perplexed. He was still resolved to teach the girl the polite way to hand a cup without directly rebuking her, and many were the hours he spent in cudgeling his brains for some way in which to do it. At last a bright idea struck him, and he sent for his jeweler a second time.

"Make me," said he to the man, "a silver cup, heavily chased, and with my royal crest and put three handles on it."

The jeweler much surprised (for remember no such thing had ever been heard of up to this time), did as he was told, and soon the mug was finished. As before, the king had it privately sent to the girl who lived in the little hut.

One day not long after this for the third time he rode into that forest, and taking the now well known path soon reached the cottage. Dismounting he knocked at the door and asked humbly for a drink of clear water.

The girl immediately came out with the beautiful three-handled cup and taking two of the handles in her hands she offered him the third.

So the king rode away, well pleased with his strategy, and reaching home, ordered three-handled cups to be made in every sort of ware, and they became so popular that we now have them in all our shops and stores.

POPULAR GAME OF "CUTTING"

Always Finds Favor With Boys and Girls—Simple Prizes Given to Winners.

A game of "cutting" always finds favor with boys and girls. Provide each person with an old magazine, a pair of scissors, a small cup of home-made paste and a brush made by folding a piece of paper many times and then finely slashing one end. Besides these things give to each player several sheets of plain paper a little larger than a magazine page. Each person is to cut out any picture or parts of pictures he chooses and mount them on the plain paper to make new pictures. After half an hour all of the pictures should be placed where they may be seen. Simple prizes should be given to those making the prettiest, the most comical or the most original sheets.

BETTY'S CAKE-WALK.

When Betty saw a cake-walk,
She laughed at all the fun,
And thought it was the strangest thing
She'd seen beneath the sun.
The bowing and the dipping
She taught her dolls next day,
Though it was quite ridiculous
To walk that silly way.

When Betty takes a cake-walk
There's something at the end;
She doesn't learn to scrape and bow,
And turn and twist and bend.
But onward like a soldier
She marches to the fore;
The end of Betty's cake-walk
Is at the pantry door.

"Oh dear! It's raining hard," said Puss.
"I feel it on my nose.
We need our rubber over-shoes,
And I'd like some rubber hose'"
"I'd love to have the over-shoes,"
Said little Fluffy Toes.
"But excuse me dear if I observe,
We do not need the hose!"

INTERESTING FACTS OF TOPS

Whip-Top Is Very Old, It Having Been Used In Remote Time by Grecian Boys.

Many tops are of modern invention, but the Whip-top is very old, it having been used in remote time by the Grecian boys. It was well known in Humming Top.

England as early at least as the fourteenth century, when its form was the same as it is now.

Today boys play with the Humming-top. This is hollow, having at its crown a peg, round which is wound a string; this being pulled through a kind of fork, gives motion to the top and sets it spinning—the fork and the string being left in the spinner's hand. In spinning the top, care should be taken to wind the string firmly and evenly on the peg, and when it is pulled out, neither too much nor too little force should be used, and a firm and steady hand should be employed, while the top should be held in a perpendicular position. The string should be drawn with a steadily increasing force, or the top will not hum properly.

Peg Top.

There are various kinds of peg-tops, and they also vary in shape, some being much rounder than others. Those are the best which are shaped like a pear. There is also great variety as regards the shape and size of the peg, which in some tops is short and thick, in others long and tapering. Again, tops are made of different kinds of wood, some being made of deal, others of elm, some of yew-tree and others of boxwood. These last are the Boxers so highly prized. Some of the very best tops are made of lignum-vitae, with long, handsome pegs.

MOUSE TRAP IS VERY USEFUL

Easily Made by Placing Piece of Stout Paper Over Top of Earthenware Jar.

If you have no cat and find the mice in your house getting altogether too bold for comfort, or if you would like to keep some mice for pets, a home-made trap will catch them.

Over the top of an earthenware jar fasten a piece of writing paper, tightly binding it with a string or elastic band. In the center of the paper cut a cross. Set the jar in the closet, and suspend by a string a piece of cheese over the center of the jar, and lean something against the jar so that the mice can reach the top. If there are any mice in the closet the bait will attract them, but just as soon as the first mouse reaches the center of the paper he will drop into the jar and the paper will fly back into place again, ready for the next comer. A trap arranged in the same manner can be used for the capture of field and harvest mice, which make odd and amusing pets.

A barrel covered with stiff brown paper can be used for common rats, but they will gnaw out unless the barrel be partly filled with water.

The Usual Crop.

"Are you trying to raise anything on your suburban place?"

"Yes; a mortgage."

Wits and Wireless

By M. J. Phillips

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

"I am going to marry Nellie Armstrong," announced Harry Leclair.

He looked just as his name sounds: he was handsome, with a very distinguished profile, large dark eyes and a well set up figure. But his fingers were much stained with nicotine from too many cigarettes. He dressed gracefully, devoting considerable time to his clothes—principally because he did nothing else.

"Are you?" queried Paul Schmitz, quietly and unbelievingly.

Schmitz was a civil engineer, whose rugged face, capable hands, rough clothing and high-laced boots indicated considerable familiarity with hard work and hard knocks. "Does she know it yet, Harry?"

Leclair, being a consummate egoist with no sense of humor, never knew he was being laughed at, and now he looked at Schmitz suspiciously. But the big man who was striding along beside him was very grave.

"Well, no," confessed Leclair, satisfied with his scrutiny. "But I'm going to ask her—maybe tonight. You see, I've had my fling, and I'm ready to settle down. I'm twenty-five; it's time for me to be getting a home of my own. And Nellie is the girl I've decided on."

The Reply Was Brief.

"You'll live with your mother, same as ever, I take it?" said Schmitz, bluntly.

Again Leclair shot him a distrustful glance. "Ye-es, I suppose so," he admitted, reluctantly. "Mother'd be in that big house all alone. Or else—"

"You'd live with your wife's folks," finished Schmitz.

"That question can be easily settled after we're married," replied Leclair, stiffly.

Schmitz always had exasperated him. They had grown up together and the "square-head," as he had privately termed Schmitz, refused to treat him with deference. Schmitz would not be dazzled by the fact that his old playmate was the village Beau Brummel—"Handsome Harry," his friends called him. To Schmitz he was still a worthless, lazy youngster, content to drift along, living on his mother's slender income.

"Anyway, I thought I'd let you know," Leclair said, with the slightest possible accent on the personal pronoun. He knew that Schmitz was interested—deeply so—in Nellie Armstrong. But in the calm sureness of better looks and more polished manners he had never given the engineer serious thought as a rival.

And yet his heart misgave him when he turned in at his own gate. How embarrassing his position would be had he overestimated his facinations! Or suppose Schmitz, warned by his foolish boastfulness, were to propose first!

"You told Paul you were going to ask Nellie to marry you?" echoed his mother, fretfully, as they sat down to supper. She had once been handsome, but bitter discontent had marred her features. "Why, Harry, I think you'd have better sense! You know how friendly they've been ever since the three of you were children!"

"But it was only friendliness," urged the youth. "He hasn't been near her home for a week!"

"He's always talking with her over the wireless," retorted the mother, her fretfulness increasing. "First he built that machine in his own house; then he rigged one up for Fred Armstrong, and taught him how to work it. Next, of course, Nellie learned it. They talk with it every evening. You'll let that girl and all her money slip through your fingers, as you've let every other chance slip, you lazy good-for-nothing."

"Hush!" commanded her son, with a frown. "Let them talk over the wireless! I'll end all that. Tonight he'll be a mile away, and I'll be there, beside her. Do you see?"

He spoke so confidently that Mrs. Leclair unwillingly was mollified.

Leclair dressed himself that evening with a good deal of care. But he hurried as much as possible, for he had been impressed in spite of himself by his mother's prophecy. The sun was just setting when he left his own home and turned toward the Armstrong residence.

His fears of Schmitz had been in vain, after all, he decided. When he passed the engineer's home, the fellow was sitting on the porch, enjoying an evening smoke. From a tall flagpole on the lawn to another pole on the highest point of the house the wireless antennae were strung. "If he hopes to gain any advantage over me with that rigging," thought Leclair, triumphant and contemptuous, "he's badly fooled." He dwadled comfortably along the way. When the wireless rigging at the Armstrong place came in sight, he smiled almost pityingly.

"Nellie is in the wireless room," said Mrs. Armstrong when Leclair inquired for her.

He knew the way to it, and passed into the house, up the broad stairs to the second story and thence up another stairway to the attic.

The big room, cut into queer sloping angles by the roof and lighted by dormer windows, was an attractive apartment. Especially was it attractive when graced by the presence of Nellie Armstrong. She was standing, a slender, girlish figure in white, at the wireless instrument which took up one end of the attic. The receiving apparatus was strapped over her fair hair. So intently was she listening to a message that she seemed not to notice Leclair's coming.

Presently she reached forward and began opening the key. Obedient to the trained pressure, the big spark leaped back and forth between the poles, snapping and crackling as it did so.

The reply was brief. When it was finished, the girl, with a gesture indescribably joyous and light-hearted, removed the receiver and turned to Leclair. The young man had never seen her more beautiful, and his heart beat quickly as he started forward, in tune to her mood. Her cheeks were flushed, her lips parted with a smile, and her eyes shone like stars.

Unconsciously she gave him both her hands and Leclair's brain swam with an intoxicating sense of victory. The proposal which he had secretly feared was going to be easy, after all. She was making it easy.

"Oh, Harry," she said, giving his hands a little shake, "I'm so happy! And you've always been a friend, so you shall be the first to know!"

Leclair's brain steadied suddenly as though he had been drenched with a bucket of water; his bounding heart sank forebodingly. He looked at her searchingly. "What is it?" he managed to ask at last, with dry lips.

The girl had noticed that a change had come into his manner, but she was too engrossed in what the wireless had told to see its true significance. Her head dropped shyly, and the color in her cheeks deepened.

"Paul has asked me to marry him," she said softly. "And I told him yes. Wasn't it clever of him to—to ask by wireless? Why, you aren't going?" as Leclair turned away. "Wait; Paul is coming right over."

"I can't" said Leclair, lifelessly "I just dropped in for a minute to say good-by. I'm leaving town tomorrow."

Chamberlain's Resemblance to Pitt.

One of Sir Benjamin Stone's more frequent sitters has been Mr. Chamberlain, who, once speaking of his own portrait, said: "It has been remarked that I bear a resemblance to Pitt. I am afraid that my testimony to this resemblance would have little value. But if it could be alleged that any likeness existed between that great statesman, not bodily or mentally, but in his aspirations in his desire to be of use to his country, then I should be proud indeed." Perhaps the last photograph ever taken of Mr. Chamberlain was that by Sir Benjamin at the notable fetes in Birmingham to celebrate the great statesman's seventieth birthday. At the house of commons Mr. Chamberlain was ever ready to help his colleague, and on one occasion volunteered to go and hunt up the reluctant Michael Davitt and bring him to the spot for the purpose.—Strand Magazine.

Ancient Rug Weavers.

More than three thousand years ago, as tiles and marbles from Nineveh show, splendid fabrics were being produced for the adornment of the palaces of the kings of Assyria, and every oriental rug becomes a magic carpet when one realizes how through the long days of the long centuries these simple people have been weaving in with the colors of the jewel and the rainbow the sunshine of their own lives. How much of romance and happiness, how much of tears and sighing, have gone to the tying of the myriad knots or followed the flying shuttle on its journey to and fro!—New York Press.

Gives Motor Boat Instruction.

A school devoted exclusively to the study of motor boats has been started at New York.

TERRIBLE CASE OF GRAVEL

Baker City, Ore., Man Suffered 25 Years.

Charles Kurs, 1618 Center St., Baker City, Ore., says: "For 25 years I suffered agony from gravel. So intense was the pain when the stones were passing, that I had to lie on my back and brace my feet, often being forced to scream. On one occasion two stones became lodged and I could not pass the urine for two days. I spent hundreds of dollars without relief. At last I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They are the only remedy that wards off these attacks."

Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box.

Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

HEARD IN A GROCERY STORY.

"I just had a fall on your sidewalk."

"I am very sorry, my dear sir."

"Well, I wish you would sell your sugar straight and put your sand on the sidewalk."

Selfish Youth.

"Youth is apt to be selfish," said Mrs. Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, the distinguished novelist, at a Matuchen picnic.

"Woman in her youth," she went on, "is especially apt to be selfish. I'll never forget the story of the young man from Boston who stood in the center of Boston common in a downpour of torrential rain.

"As he stood there, soaked to the skin, a little boy in a mackintosh accosted him.

"'Excuse me, sir,' said the boy, 'but are you the gentleman who is waiting for Miss Endicott?'

"'Yes,' the young man answered.

"'Well,' said the boy, 'she asked me to tell you she'd be here just as soon as it clears up.'"

Mrs. Wiggin's Idea of London.

During the recent visit of Mrs. Wiggin, the American author, in London, an interviewer called on her. With pencil poised, the interviewer asked:

"And what do you think of London, Mrs. Wiggin?"

"You remind me," answered the author cheerfully, "of the young lady who sat beside Dr. Gibbon at dinner. She turned to him after the soup.

"'Do, dear Dr. Gibbon,' she said, 'tell me about the decline and fall of the Roman empire.'"

Hard to Convince.

Little Tommy (eldest of the family, at dinner)—Mamma, why don't you help me before Ethel?

Mamma—Ladies must always come first.

Tommy (triumphantly)—Then why was I born before Ethel?—Tit-Bits.

An Operatic Expletive.

"Bifferton is awfully gone on grand opera, isn't he?"

"I should say he is! Why, he even swears by Gadski!"

Cut Out Breakfast Cooking

Easy to start the day cool and comfortable if

Post Toasties

are in the pantry ready to serve right from the package. No cooking required; just add some cream and a little sugar.

Especially pleasing these summer mornings with berries or fresh fruit.

One can feel cool in hot weather on proper food.

"The Memory Lingers"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd. Battle Creek, Mich.

SEPTEMBER

0507

L 904

MUNYON'S PAW-PAW LIVER PILLS

I want any person who suffers with biliousness, constipation, indigestion or any liver or blood ailment, to try my Paw-Paw Liver Pills. I guarantee they will purify the blood and put the liver and stomach into a healthful condition and will positively cure biliousness and constipation, or I will refund your money. — Munyon's Homeopathic Home Remedy Co., 53rd and Jefferson Sts., Phila., Pa.

A Skin of Beauty Is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S Oriental Cream and Magical Beautifier.

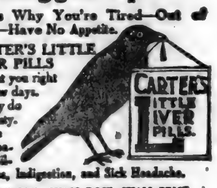
PURIFIES as well as BEAUTIFIES the skin. No other cosmetic will do it. Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 69 yrs. and is so harmless we taste it to be sure it is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut-ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the skin preparations." For sale by all druggists and Fancy-Goods Dealers in the U.S., Canada and Europe.

Ferd. T. Hopkins, Prop., 37 Great Jones St., New York

Your Liver is Clogged up

That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts—Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days. They do their duty. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, and Sick Headache.



SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

GAVE SIS AWAY.

Her Little Brother—Say, are you goin' ter marry my sister Bess?

Her Suitor—Why, er—er—er don't know.

Her Little Brother—Well, you are. I heard her tell pop she was goin' ter land you tonight.

Better Than a Drug.

"The late Senator Platt," said an Albany legislator, "had a cynical wit. Talking about a politician who had changed his party, he once said to me:

"'Circumstances alter everything—political views, religion, even health.

"'Why, I've got a friend who is afflicted with insomnia in its worst form, and yet every morning that man sleeps as sweet and sound as a new-born babe when his wife crawls over him to start the fire.'"

A Specialist.

"I don't see you on the messenger force any more, Jimmy," said the lad with the envelope in his hand.

"No; I've got a good job with a dog-fancier," replied Jimmy, as he puffed a cigarette.

"Wid a dog-fancier? What do ye do—feed the dogs?"

"Naw! When a lady comes in and buys a pet dog I teach 'er how to whistle."

I have come to see that cleverness, success, attainment, count for little; that goodness, or character, is the important factor in life.—Romanes.

Right food is a basis
For right living.
"There's only one disease,"
Says an eminent writer—
"Wrong living
"And but one cure—
"Right living."
Right food is supplied by

Grape-Nuts

It contains the vital
Body and brain-building
Elements of wheat and barley—
Most important of which is
The Potassium Phosphate,
Grown in the grain
For rebuilding tissues
Broken down by daily use.
Folks who use Grape-Nuts
Know this—they feel it.
"There's a Reason"
Read "The Road to Wellville,"
Found in packages.

MRS. FENTON

BY

W. E. NORRIS

CHAPTER XIX.

Human nature being what it is, one hardly ventures to blame the scepticism of those who deny that any man can feel a fraternal affection for a woman of his own age who is not his sister. Mrs. Fenton ought, no doubt, to have provided herself with a chaperon before inviting her cousin to stay with her; and when she laughingly asked him whether he thought that she had compromised herself by what she had done, he answered that perhaps it would be as well not to mention it to her friends.

She said she would be careful to abstain from doing so. "Meanwhile," she added, "as nobody knows us here, and as nobody need ever know that you have been here, we will make the most of our time and enjoy ourselves. I don't think we should have enjoyed ourselves very much in the company of a third person."

He didn't think so either, and was far from regretting the absence of such an incumbrance. Of his cousin's company he had just as much as he chose to ask for and no more. She breakfasted in her own room; she scrupulously avoiding thrusting herself upon him at any hour of the day; she did not suggest that they should make excursions in the neighborhood, nor did she attempt to provide amusements for him. Only she was always at hand when he looked for her, and always delighted to do anything that he proposed.

"You are spoiling me, Laura," he said to her one evening when they were sitting in the garden after dinner as usual; "you give way to me in everything; you make me say what I should like, and then you do it as if you had only been waiting for orders. That is all wrong, you know."

"My motives are purely selfish," she answered; "it pleases me to please you. Besides, there are some people who are born to be spoiled, and I think you are one of them. I dare say it won't do you much harm."

"I am not so sure of that," returned the young man, shaking his head. "Thus far I have been tolerably modest, because there has been nobody to interfere with me; but I shouldn't wonder if you were to find me rather overbearing and tyrannical when you come up to London again. I shan't like being told that you are engaged when I want you to give up an afternoon to me. By the way, when are you coming back to London?"

"I don't know; I haven't thought much about it yet. When will you be there?"

"Oh, I shall be there to-morrow evening, I'm sorry to say. I shan't stay more than a day or two, because I have a few weeks of shooting in prospect at different places; but I suppose before the end of next month I shall have pretty well settled down for the winter."

"To-morrow evening!" exclaimed Mrs. Fenton, in a voice of consternation; "you are going to desert me already, then! Well, I won't beg you to stay. Of course it has been dull for you; but you have been very good about it and haven't even looked bored the whole time, and——"

"You know very well that I have never felt so," interrupted Fred.

"Haven't you? Well, your looks pretty generally reflect your feelings, I must confess. Anyhow, I'm not ungrateful— though I'm sorry. And now, as this is to be our last evening, may I dictate the program, for once? That will give me an opportunity of judging whether you are spoiled yet or not."

Fred, of course, replied that she might dictate anything she liked, and no undue advantage was taken of his complaisance, for it seemed that she only wanted to go out in a boat.

"You needn't take the oars if you would rather sit in the stern and smoke," she added; "I'm quite accustomed to rowing."

But he said that he, too, had had some little experience of that kind, and that, if she didn't mind his taking it easy, he thought he could manage to combine smoking and sculling. Ten minutes later they were out upon the sea, which was almost as calm as a lake.

"I love to be on the sea," said Mrs. Fenton. "If I am ever so short a distance from shore I feel as if I had got out of the world away from all the cruel people, and the malignant people, and the wearisome people whom one calls one's fellow-creatures."

"But I thought you rather liked the society of your fellow-creatures," Fred remarked.

"Oh, they are indispensable, of course; one can't remain in the world and take no notice of them. But some of them have treated me badly, and some I am afraid of; and I often think how delightful it would be to escape altogether from this world with—shall I say, with one of them?"

Fred rested on his oars, pitched away his cigar, and sighed.

"I should think it very delightful, indeed, if you were the one," he said.

"I'm afraid you wouldn't. I have tired you in a week, you see; and I knew I should, though I have tried hard not to be tiresome."

Fred protested warmly against so false an accusation. Did she suppose, he asked, that he liked leaving her? Did she suppose that he would enjoy going up to London to meet Mr. Brefit, who wanted to see him about some matters of business? All he could say was that nothing would give him greater personal satisfaction than to stay where he was and throw up every engagement that he had made for the next month.

"Throw them up, then," she returned; "that is easily done."

But when he opened his lips to reply, she held up her hand and stopped him.

"Don't be ridiculous," she said, laughing; "you can't throw up all your engagements; and if you could I wouldn't let you. I am selfish, I own, but I am not quite so selfish as that. Only I shall miss you dreadfully, and I don't know when I shall see you again, or whether I shall ever see you again in this way; and so——"

She did not finish her sentence. Her voice seemed to fail her suddenly; and when he bent forward to look at her he saw that there were tears in her eyes. This discovery—or possibly another discovery, which he might have made before if he had not been a little dull of apprehension—completely upset his mental balance, and left him at the mercy of the impulses and emotions of the moment. He took her hand, which she had allowed to fall listlessly upon her knee, and she did not withdraw it from his grasp.

"Laura!" he exclaimed, "I love you! We needn't part any more unless you wish it."

CHAPTER XX.

There is no doubt that if Fred Musgrave had been asked five minutes before whether he was in love with his cousin he would have replied in the negative; yet his heart beat fast while he waited for her answer, and he drew a breath of relief when the answer came, though in truth he had known quite well what it would be. The old saying that love begets love may not be as absurd as it appears to be upon the face of it. That is does not always do so is obvious, but under certain conditions it is by no means unlikely to produce that effect, and that these conditions existed in the present case Mrs. Fenton was well aware. She confessed as much, indeed, after an interval, during which the usual incoherent vows had been exchanged.

"This has been all my doing from beginning to end, Fred," said she. "When you came here you were very sorry for yourself, and because I consoled you a little you liked me. Then, at this last moment, you became sorry for me—and that finished you. It is no use making generous offers which you wouldn't accept to-night; but I promise you—and I want you to believe it, because it is the truth—that if to-morrow morning, or at any future time, you should wish to draw back, you may do so, and you shall not hear one syllable of reproach from me."

However, when the next morning came, Fred had no such wish. If eight hours of sleep, and the more dispassionate view of things which naturally resulted therefrom affected him in any way, it was only in so far as it brought a somewhat important circumstance to his recollection.

"Has it struck you, Laura," he took the earliest opportunity of asking his betrothed, "that by marrying you I shall get my uncle's money after all?"

"Why, of course it has, you goose!" she answered. "That's just the glorious part of it. You don't know how miserable that money has often made me! Rejoiced though I was to be delivered from the bondage of poverty, it has never really made me quite happy, because I have always felt that I was robbing you."

She was radiant. Her spirits fairly overpowered her and found vent in some exhibitions of childishness which he thought very charming. There was no use in telling her that all his friends would certainly set him down as a fortune-hunter. "Let them!" she returned; "who cares? Come now; you are not going to tell me that you care what they say, I hope. If you do, I shall think that you can't care very much about me. Am I so hideous that nobody would marry me except for the sake of my income?"

What could he do but asseverate that he did love her, and would always love her? He was doubtless sincere; yet it would have been plain enough to any on-looker that he did not care for her as she cared for him, and it is probable that Mrs. Fenton, whose perceptions were exceedingly keen, did not deceive herself upon that point. Nevertheless, she was wildly happy, and her high spirits did not desert her until it appeared that, in spite of what had taken place, Fred still meant to go up to London that afternoon. Her distress at this announcement was out of all proportion to its cause. She implored him not to leave her, she declared that if he went away now she was sure he would never come back again; and when he laughed at her, pointing out what nonsense this was, and that a man must keep his business appointments, and that his absence would not extend over more than three days at the outside, she was only partially reassured.

"But what about those shooting parties?" she asked, apprehensively. "You don't want to give them up, do you?"

"I certainly do want to give them up," he answered, "and I certainly will. If I'm not back here the day after to-morrow, I shall be back on the following day for certain."

"I shall believe that when I see you," she sighed. "Nothing is certain; all sorts of dreadful things may happen at any moment."

It was agreed between them that they should be married as soon as possible—perhaps in the month of November—and then they would go abroad for the winter, and on their return they would see about providing themselves with a permanent home.

Mrs. Fenton insisted upon accompanying him to the station; it may be that up to the last moment she had some faint hope that he would relent, but she knew that she must not be silly or exacting; and he, for his part, having no acquaintance with the anguish of nervousness, had never thought of abandoning his journey. He would have been better pleased if she would have allowed him to say good-by to her in her own house, where, of course, good-by could be said in a more agreeable and emphatic fashion than upon a public platform; still, he was willing to indulge her; and so, when the train had come in and he had jumped into a smoking-carriage, he contented himself with squeezing her hand and bestowing an eloquent look upon her.

As Mrs. Fenton made her way slowly homewards she said to herself that there was really nothing to cry about. Only by some extraordinary and most improbable stroke of ill-fortune could she now be deprived of what, until yesterday, had seemed to her to be almost hopelessly out of her reach. Luck, which for so many years had been against her, appeared at last to have definitely taken her side—according to the doctrine of averages, some months at least ought to elapse before it turned round again.

Despondency with her never lasted long. She went and sat upon the beach and threw pebbles into the sea and forgot certain catastrophes upon the possible occurrence of which she had allowed her mind to dwell for a while. She began, instead, to build castles in the air, which is a far more sensible thing to do.

It was evening when she rose and strolled toward her temporary abode. In order to reach it she had to cross a board walk, where a German band was playing, and where the attractive beings whom she had described in her letter to Fred were pacing to and fro in large numbers. She contemplated them with friendly and lenient eyes; for amongst them were many lovers—or, at any rate, potential lovers—and she felt that she was bound to them by the tie of a common humanity.

But these sentiments of abstract benevolence were replaced by an emotion of a keener and very different kind, when her eyes suddenly encountered those of a solitary individual who formed one of the throng. This was a swarthy, vulgar-looking little man, whose age might have been anything between 40 and 50. He stared very hard at Mrs. Fenton, who, for a moment, returned his stare and then passed on. Her face expressed neither recognition nor perturbation; but the color had left her cheeks, and, after crossing the road, she quickened her pace considerably. When she reached the little iron gate which gave access to her garden she glanced for one second over her shoulder. It was as she had thought: the man in the check suit had followed her, and from a distance of some fifty yards or so was watching her movements. He now turned away and retraced his steps.

Mrs. Fenton had led a life of some peril and adventure, and, like others whose experience has been of that nature, she seldom lost her presence of mind in an emergency. The moment that she entered the house she rang for her maid, and gave orders that her things were to be packed up forthwith.

"I find that I shall have to go to Paris to-morrow," she said. "We will leave this place by the night mail. Tell somebody to take this check to the house-agent's at once, and to wait for a receipt. I shall not want to occupy the house during the remainder of the term."

She issued her behests in a somewhat peremptory tone, but with no appearance of agitation or alarm. Yet she was in truth very much agitated and not a little frightened. "There is no doubt about his having recognized me," she was thinking. "He will come here in the morning, and he will know that I have run away from him. Well—it looks as if I couldn't be destined to suffer shipwreck in this way, anyhow."

Nevertheless her nerves were in a state of agonizing tension for the next few hours and not until she was being whirled toward London in the express did she breathe freely once more.

(To be continued.)

Germany's Drink Bill.

One of the well-known German newspapers has lately published an interesting statement which presents authoritative figures concerning the amount of liquor consumed by the German people. The writer takes for his basis the returns for the five years from 1904 to 1908. The final deductions show that the amount spent annually on the consumption of alcoholic drink by the German people would amply cover twice the cost of the imperial army and navy.

The average annual consumption per head of pure alcohol, according to the writer, is 3.86 litres (nearly 3½ quarts); that of beer, 116.6 litres (about 25⅝ gallons). It costs one individual annually a little over 2 marks (75 cents) for alcohol and 35 marks ($8.75) for beer. This gives a total yearly outlay of 2,437,000,000 marks ($621,000,000) for a population of 64,000,000.

The writer then takes up the annual per capita consumption of wine, also on the basis of the previous estimates. This, he writes, is 5.82 litres (about 1¼ gallons), with one mark about the average price of a litre; thus, the total adds another 372,500,000 marks ($93,125,000) to the whole expenditure.

The entire annual cost of alcoholic liquors consumed in Germany, therefore, amounts to some 3,000,000,000 marks ($750,000,000). This sum, the writer points out, is more than twice the combined cost of the army and navy, more than four times the cost of workmen's insurance, and about five times as much as the total outlay for public elementary education.

Poorly Paid German Workers.

The toy makers of Sonneberg are among the worst paid workpeople in Germany. It often happens that the earnings of a Sonneberg workman and his family, working sixteen hours a day, do not exceed $2.40 a week. About three years ago there was an exhibition of home industries in Berlin, where articles from Sonneberg were displayed, the making of which was paid for at the rate of 4 cents an hour.

Numerous instances are on record of children after school hours working six hours at a stretch coloring and polishing the heads of dolls for a pittance of 1½ cents an hour.

Excellent Definition.

"Bjornstjerne Bjornson, in his hotel fronting the Tuileries gardens, received a few friends up to the last in Paris," said the continental agent of a typewriter firm.

"I had the honor to be among those friends and I never wearied of the great Norseman's wit and wisdom.

"The last thing he said to me, in cautioning me not to give an important provencal agency to an easy-going man of the world, was this:

"'Beware the easy-going man. An easy-going man, you know, is one who makes the path of life very rough and difficult for somebody else.'"

When Servants Were Slaves.

It hasn't been so many years since servants were practically slaves; they were bound out for a term of years and never could hope to better their conditions. The world is advancing, however, and now servants, especially those who do washing and housecleaning, are better treated. Easy Task laundry soap, that does half the work itself, and which cleans pots and pans and painted work like magic, is responsible for much of this emancipation. Only 5 cents a cake, too.

Bores Barred.

A reporter asked Mr. Roosevelt at the Outlook office how he got through so much work and at the same time saw so many people. "I shun bores," was the reply. "I don't waste a minute of my time on bores. Do you perceive that I have only just one chair in this room? You see, my hunting experiences have shown me that great bores are always of small caliber."

LOW ONE WAY COLONIST RATES WEST VIA NICKEL PLATE ROAD

August 25 to Sept. 9 and Sept. 15 to Oct. 15. Full information of Agent or write F. P. Parnin, T. P. A., Ft. Wayne, Ind. 36

Thinking of Curtain Lectures.

Mrs. Peck—I see the Maine Agricultural college proposes to establish lectures especially for country pastors.

Mr. Peck—What's the matter, ain't none of the parsons up there married?

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Grief has a much louder voice than joy.

If you wish beautiful, clear, white clothes use Red Cross Ball Blue. Large 2 oz. package, 5 cents.

Isn't it shocking when you hear a nice man complain of anything.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The crop that never fails year after year is trouble.

Woman's inhumanity to man makes countless divorce lawyers happy.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Do not gripe.

And some people never appreciate a rose until they encounter the thorn.

ARE YOUR CLOTHES FADED? Use Red Cross Ball Blue and make them white again. Large 2 oz. package, 5 cents.

It is easier to raise a disturbance than a mortgage.

Hot Sun—Dusty Roads

By the time you reach town and light you'll be hot and tired and your throat dry with dust and dirt. Hunt up a soda fountain and treat yourself to A Glass or a Bottle of

Coca-Cola

Just as cooling as the bottom step in the spring house. You'll find it relieves fatigue too, and washes away all the dust and thirst as nothing else will. It touches the spot.

Delicious - Refreshing - Wholesome

5c Everywhere

Our Free Booklet

"The Truth About Coca-Cola" tells all about Coca-Cola—what it is and why it is so delicious, wholesome and beneficial. It gives analyses made by scientists and chemists from coast to coast, proving its purity and wholesomeness. Your name and address on a postal will bring you this interesting booklet.

The Coca-Cola Co., Atlanta, Ga. 1-P

Wherever you see an arrow think of Coca-Cola

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful 'Cascarets' for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to 'Cascarets' for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies but without avail, and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year." James McGuire, 108 Mercer St., Jersey City, N. J.

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. 919

TRY MURINE EYE REMEDY

For Red, Weak, Weary, Watery Eyes and GRANULATED EYELIDS

Murine Doesn't Smart—Soothes Eye Pain

Druggists Sell Murine Eye Remedy, Liquid, 25c, 50c, $1.00
Murine Eye Salve, in Aseptic Tubes, 25c, $1.00
EYE BOOKS AND ADVICE FREE BY MAIL

Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

STOCKERS & FEEDERS

Choice quality; steers and cows, white faces or angus bought on orders. Tens of Thousands to select from. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Correspondence Invited. Come and see for yourself.

National Live Stock Com. Co. At either

Kansas City, Mo., St. Joseph, Mo., S. Omaha, Neb.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 35–1910.

Patriotism

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism can withstand hunger but not dyspepsia. The confirmed dyspeptic "is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils." The man who goes to the front for his country with a weak stomach will be a weak soldier and a fault finder.

A sound stomach makes for good citizenship as well as for health and happiness.

Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are promptly and permanently cured by the use of

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY. It builds up the body with sound flesh and solid muscle.

The dealer who offers a substitute for the "Discovery" is only seeking to make the little more profit realized on the sale of less meritorious preparations.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 31 stamps for the cloth bound. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

WESTERN CANADA'S 1910 CROPS

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Wheat Yield in Many Districts Will Be From 25 to 35 Bushels Per Acre

Land sales and homestead entries increasing. No cessation in numbers going from United States. Wonderful opportunities remain for those who intend making Canada their home. New districts being opened up for settlement. Many farmers will net, this year, $10 to $15 per acre from their wheat crop. All the advantages of old settled countries are there. Good schools, churches, splendid markets, excellent railway facilities. See the grain exhibit at the different State and some of the County fairs.

Letters similar to the following are received every day, testifying to satisfactory conditions; other districts are as favorably spoken of:

THEY SENT FOR THEIR SON.

Maidstone, Sask., Canada, Aug. 8th, 1910.

"My parents came here from Cedar Falls, Iowa, four years ago, and were so well pleased with this country they sent to Coeur d'Alene for me. I have taken up a homestead near them, and am perfectly satisfied to stop here." Leonard Douglas.

WANTS SETTLER'S RATE FOR HIS STOCK.

Stettler, Alberta, July 23rd, 1910.

"Well I got up here from Forest City, Iowa, last Spring in good shape with the stock and everything. Now, I have got two boys back in Iowa yet, and I am going back there now soon to get them and another car up here this fall. What I would like to know is, if there is any chance to get a cheap rate back again, and when we return to Canada I will call at your office for our certificates.

Yours truly, H. A. Wit.

WILL MAKE HIS HOME IN CANADA.

Brainard, Minn., Aug. 1st, 1910.

"I am going to Canada a week from today and intend to make my home there. My husband has been there six weeks and is well pleased with the country; so he wants me to come as soon as possible. He filed on a claim near Landis, Sask., and by his description of it it must be a pretty place.

My brother-in-law, Mr. Frank J. Zimmer, lives there and it was through him that we decided to locate in Canada." Yours truly, Mrs. Richard Henry Ebinger.

TAKES HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW'S WORD FOR IT.

Taylors Falls, Minn., Aug. 7, 1910.

"I shall go to Camrose this Fall with my cattle and household goods. I got a poor crop here this year and my brother-in-law, Axel Nordstrom in Camrose, wants me to come there. He formerly lived in Wilson, North Dakota. I am going to buy or take homestead when I get there, but I do not want to travel two times there, for I take my brother-in-law's word about the country, and want to get your best rates. Yours truly, Peter L. Nelson.

WANTS TO RETURN TO CANADA.

Vesta, Minn., July 26th, 1910.

"I went to Canada nine years ago and took up a quarter section of railroad land and a homestead, but my boys have never taken up any land yet, so still hold the railroad land. I had to come back to the states on account of my health. Please let me know at once if I can get the cheap rates to Portage, Alberta." Yours truly, Geo. Fashewitz, Vesta, Minn.

Send for literature and ask the local Canadian Government Agents for Excursion Rates, best districts in which to locate, and when to go.

W. H. ROGERS, 3d Floor, Traction Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
H. M. WILLIAMS, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio

MICA AXLE GREASE

Keeps the spindle bright and free from grit. Try a box. Sold by dealers everywhere.

STANDARD OIL CO. (Incorporated)

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0508

Free Demonstration

of Model Ranges and Base Burners

at our Store Rooms in St. Joe, Thursday, Friday and Saturday

SEPTEMBER 8, 9, and 10th.

This demonstration of Model Stoves and Ranges is an event of particular interest to ever housewife in this vicinity and we are eager to have every woman attend. Mr. Henry, an expert from the Model factory will be here these three days and demonstrate the merits of the Model Ranges and Base Burners revealing their efficiency for all practical household purposes.

During the entire demonstration we will have

Coffee and Hot Biscuits Served to Everybody

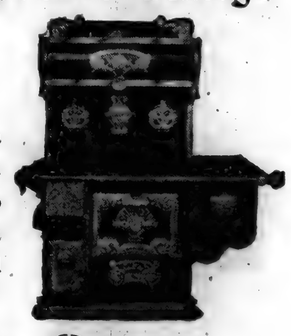
and will also give

FREE CARNATIONS TO THE LADIES

See the Model Supreme Range

in actual process of

Cooking and Baking



No better way to know whether you like a stove than to see what it can actually do. A Model Range, is built to economize in fuel, do better baking and cooking, to lessen the work of the Housewife and make life easier and happier for her—And they do

The Model Base Burner

Reasons Why It is The Greatest Stove

In this stove and in no other you have—An effective ventilating system, effective automatic circulating flues, effective double heating system, positive self feeding, no clogging in magazine, great depth to fire pot, positive acting grate, greatest heat circulating area, greatest heat radiating surface, large three-flue system, greatest fire surface to air flues, fire pot removable through front doors, a 48-hour fire holder, all nickel removable—no bolts, all nickel is first copper plated, automatic hopper lid, a friend in every user.

You can see all these improvements demonstrated at our store on any of the three days—Sept. 8, 9, and 10th. You will then be convinced that our Model Base Burner is right—because actual use proves the results.

YOUR CHOICE OF ANY PIECE OF NICKLE - PLATED
or GRANITE WARE
FREE with each stove purchased during the Demonstration.

To better show our liberality during this demonstration we are going to actually

GIVE AWAY A PERFECTION KITCHEN CABINET

on SATURDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 10, at 8:30 o'clock. We are already distributing the FREE CARDS and if you have not received one come to the store and get it. You may secure the Kitchen Cabinet if you are present on that evening.

H. V. KINSEY & SON

Local Briefs

Mrs. L. M. Gee and Mrs. M. D. Gee, visited with Mrs. Frank Kinsey last week.

The Clover Leaf Manure Spreader is one of the handiest tools the farmers own. See Curie.

Miss Maud Baker of Auburn visited Blanche Woodcox Sunday.

The best line of one-cent Post Cards in town can be seen at Kagey's.

Mrs. Mack Leighty and mother Mrs. Yarnell, were at Winona several days last week.

Little Miss Madonna Kinsey is visiting with her aunt, Miss Mabel Kinsey at Ft. Wayne this week.

Tell it to The News.

C. A. Woodcox was at Garrett Monday.

LOST:—A bracelet on the streets of St. Joe, last Saturday night belonging to Pauline Barney. Finder please return same to her.

Mr. and Mrs. John Calbeck of Ligonier and Martin Davis and wife of Spencerville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Friday evening.

In sowing wheat this fall try Bradley's Fertilizer. Curie handles it.

The W. H. and F. M. Society will meet with Mrs. C. A. Patterson, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 3. A good attendance is desired as this is election of officers.

Miss Gladys Cook of Hicksville, spent last Thursday and Friday with Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Price.

Get your ticket at Kinsey's on the Kitchen Cabinet.

Mrs. Peter Bishop and Mrs. Zimmerman of Auburn and the latter's son and daughter of Denver, Colo., were guests of M. T. Bishop's one day last week.

A car load of Clover Leaf Manure spreaders just arrived. See Curie immediately before fall work commences.

Harry Kees is sporting a new oil wagon.

Mrs. A. Warner and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway were at Ft. Wayne Monday.

Arthur Woodcox and wife of Helmer, were the guests of St. Joe relatives the first of the week. Mr. Woodcox has disposed of his farm and will move to Auburn soon.

The Laurel range exhibit as advertised by J. W. Burwell & Son, to close last Saturday, was a great success. A special agent of the company demonstrated the stoves and on the last day a range was given away. Mr. Harlow Sechler being the lucky one.

The live stock department of the Hicksville Fair, Aug. 30 to Sept. 2, almost sure to exceed all other years. Entries already indicate an unusually fine display and interest. This department will be truly educational this year.

Transfers of real estate for the weeks ending August 6 and 13, 1910. Concord Township—L. A. Kees to L. J. & V. E. Coburn, out lot in St. Joe, in sec 16, $400.00 C. Z. Hadsell et al, to C. S. Hadsell, S½NE¼ sec 22, $1 00. C. S. Hadsell to I. S. Hadsell, S½NE¼ sec 22, $1.00. Town of St. Joe—M. Tustison to F. H. Bishop, lot 6, blo. 9, Leighty's Add. $1 00.

Hicksville will entertain the Defiance County Sunday School Convention this year which will be held the latter part of September in the Methodist Church of that city. Being close to the Indiana line the committee in charge extend to all those in DeKalb and Allen County a hearty invitation to attend this convention. Hicksville is planning for a great convention and speakers of a national reputation and practical ideas have been secured to make the principal addresses. Exact date will be published next week.

Miller Reunion

On Thursday, August 25, the Geo. and Elmer Miller family held their fifth annual reunion in the grove of Will Miller south east of Spencerville. The forenoon was spent in visiting and greeting old friends. Then a hearty dinner was served of the good which God giveth us, after which a well rendered program was given. The officers selected for the coming year dicided to meet in the same grove the fourth Thursday in August 1911.

WABASH CORNERS.

Miss Jennie Stutt of Auburn was the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Millie Shull and family at this place Tuesday night and Wednesday.....Emanuel Ulm spent Wednesday afternoon in Fort Wayne.....Jake White of Beulah, Mich., was the guest of Fred Jenkins and wife last Tuesday, he came to attend the White reunion on Sept. 3.....Sam Nelson and son Geo. spent Wednesday in Bryan.....Geo. Monroe, wife and twins Claron and Clara of Hicksville, ate supper at Sherman Wolff's Thursday night.....Winfield Pervines spent Sunday at Robison Park.....Marie Topper and Will Alwood of Butler were Sunday guests at Sherman Rickett's.....May Daily is at home again after attending a three month term of school at Angola.....Wm. Pervines and daughter were at Auburn Friday afternoon.....The White reunion is next Saturday, all relatives are requested to be present and come with well filled baskets.....Miss Pearl Braithwaite returned to her home in Ft. Wayne Sunday after nearly a two weeks visit with her grandma Maurer.....Mr. Geo. Wade received 24 nice cards last week for which he desires to thank all who so kindly remembered him.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is today the best known medicine in use for the relief and cure of bowel complaints. It cures griping, diarrhoea, dysentery, and should be taken at the first unnatural looseness of the bowels. It is equally valuable for children and adults. It always cures. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

THE BEST

Flour

We do not claim to make the best flour in the world but we do say there is no better flour made than is produced at St. Joe. If you have never tried OUR DAILY BREAD FLOUR bring a grist of wheat and try it.

We clean seed wheat.

We crack corn for chicken feed.

We grind chop to please.

We want to see you.

Keesler Milling Company,

St. Joe, Ind.

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0509

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 8, 1910. NO. 36

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.

Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

"Menz Ease" Shoes

These shoes are rightly named for every man who puts on a pair at once realizes he has some "Ease" in walking which he had not dreamed of in an every day work shoe. These shoes are made of guaranteed Elk-skin and so shaped to fit the lines of the foot to perfection. Every pair is a guaranteed shoe and are as near waterproof as a leather shoe can be made. Try a pair of our "Menz Ease." You will not regret it. Its the only natural way of curing corns, bunions, etc and the best method of preventing any such deformities on the feet. These shoes sell at

$3.00 and $4.00

NEW SILKS

Our showing cannot help but please those who want something really pretty for fall wear. Taffetas in Plaids and Persian effects and Tussahs in the lighter materials make a handsome outlay for your selection.

Prices of Taffetas are - - $1.00 yard
Prices of Tussahs are - - 50 c. yard

Housewives Attention

There is no one thing that pleases a good housewife more when serving meals as that of having good bread to place before her guests. To insure having large creamy—white, flaky loaves of bread at all times when baking try a cake of the celebrated HERSH YEAST. For sale by all grocers.

To the People of St. Joe.

On Thursday, Sept. 8th., the DeKalb County Veterans Association will hold their annual reunion in St. Joe. Let us all unite in extending to them a cordial welcome and do everything we can to make their meeting a pleasant one.

Let us, each and all show our respect and patriotism by decorating our homes and business places with Flags and Bunting. We will on that day have visitors from all parts of the county and surrounding towns and may they return to their homes with pleasant memories of their meeting in St. Joe.

Annual Meeting

The Annual Meeting of the Christian Churches of Hicksville, Milford, Farmer and Delaware townships, will be held on the Hicksville fair grounds on next Sunday, Sept. 11. Rev. Ashley S. Johnson, of Kimberlin Heights, Tennessee, will be the speaker. Bring your baskets filled and stay for the day. Hot coffee will be furnished free. Plenty of stalls for the horses. All welcome.

ST. JOE.

Mrs Isaac Meese accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Frank Henderson to Michigan Monday for a short visit. Mr. Meese drove through.

WE ARE READY

with our line of school supplies to supply the boys and girls with good values in tablets, pencils, pens, pen holders, ink, school bags, composition books, etc. A good motto is to learn children to buy careful and get the best they can for their money. Send them to Drug Store, our special aim is to please children.

--About School Books--

A great aggravation has been to obtain them but this store means to do things and we got the goods. All books adopted by this county are on sale now for CASH only is our terms on school books or an order from Trustee is also acceptable.

You'll always do better at

Dunkle's

in

ST. JOE, - - - INDIANA.

The Hicksville fair attracted the usual large crowd from this vicinity last week.

The best line of one-cent Post Cards in town can be seen at Kagey's.

Born to Norman Wyatt and wife, a baby girl on Tuesday night of last week.

The Clover Leaf Manure Spreader is one of the handiest tools the farmers own. See Curie.

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Strong, of west of St. Joe, entertained Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Rinehart of Fairfield township, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Steward of Spencerville and Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Nelson of near Concord.

Send in your news.

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on

J. C. HULL, City Barber.

Silver Medal Contest

The W. C. T. U. of this place gave a Silver Medal Contest in the M. P. Church last Wednesday evening and a good sized audience appreciated the evening's entertainment. The seven contestants were young people from St. Joe as follows:—Violet Kinsey, Marie Leighty, Gray Woodcox, Helen Bowman, Paul Perry, Lucile Gee and Leon Kees. The program was interspersed with music by a male quartette and solos by the Misses Pauline Barney and Mary Scholes. Rev. Burt and Hitchner of Spencerville and Elder Brown of this place acted as judges and upon deciding where the medal should go, they saw fit to award it to Leon Kees and Helen Bowman second. The young folks are to be congratulated upon the splendid effort put forth and as it is only possible for one to obtain the prize, they should not feel discouraged. Such meetings should be held more often.

New Pastor

Last Sunday commenced the new conference year for the M. P. Circuit at this place. with their new pastor, Rev. E. C. Corn. Rev. and Mrs. Corn moved into the parsonage on Friday of last week and are now ready to meet the people. The services Sunday evening were well attended and the audience was well pleased with the sermon. Mr. and Mrs. Corn are young people and their active services will aid greatly to the interest of the church.

Moved

Livery and Feed Barn to the Frank White barn. Your patronage will be appreciated. Phone 81.

MASON & GEORGE, prop.

BandConcerts

The Weekly Band Concerts closed last Saturday night on account of the lack of finance. For a few weeks the collection has fallen short and it is high time that the concerts be stopped before a great debt is hanging to us. Should anyone desire the list we have they can call at our office and make a copy of same.

Don't work yourself to death when a Cloter Leaf Manure Spreader will do your work better. Curie can show you.

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Hard Coal
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

Sechler Reunion

The Sechler family reunion was held Saturday, Sept. 3, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kinsey of this place. Fourty-four being present. The forenoon was spent in visiting. At the noon hour all were seated at the tables loaded with good things to eat, of which all enjoyed. After the noon hour came the program and election of officers were as follows: President, Jacob Sechler; Vice-president, Mrs. Emma Baltz; Secretary, Flossie Sechler; Treasurer, Wm. Sechler; Chairman, Frank Baltz. The memoriam of James Sechler was as follows:

On the swift wing of time has gone another year, and we are left to ponder over the past for the future is folded in shades of night, our busy thoughts arise to range afar the fields of earth and wonder through the skies. But let us look into the future with fond hope, and as we have assembled here today in kindred ties, may this day be one more strong link of friendship which will unite us in love and good will, and, as we greet each other with smiles of good cheer let us hold in memory dear the one whose spirit the death angel carried away, the spirit of James Sechler, who endured many hardships here on earth, living here when all around was forest only to be cleared away and made into beautiful homes for us to enjoy. The separation makes us sad, for only memory is left. The death angel having taken him to the reunion beyond, where the death angel has been weaving a chain with immortal spirits for years and will not cease until the chain is complete. Leaves have their time to fall and flowers to wither at the north winds call, and stars to set, but all, thou hast all seasons for thine own, Oh death. When we are made to drink from the fountain of death we cannot understand why, but, by faith we take His blessed word and follow at his call and God who made the heavens and earth can see and know it all Our hearts are made sad from the seperation of loved ones, their places can never be filled and as their forms are hidden from our view, memory approaches, holding up her magic glass, pointing out familiar faces which across the surface pass. They are not dead, they have only gone before waiting to greet us on the other shore, and may we so live in this world of care that we will meet them in the relm so fair.

Ye editor and wife were royally entertained at the pleasant home of Editor and Mrs. S. B. Dustman of New Haven, Labor Day.

Call at Kagey's and get your Post Cards. An elegant assortment.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Old Soldiers Day

Decorate with your flags.

Tell it to THE NEWS.

Uncle Henry Hull is feeling quite well again, being able to sit up a little.

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST. JOE, IND.

Now comes the one grand sale event of the season. Read carefully the particulars as given below.

ADVANCE SALE OF LADIES COATS

A sale that ought to appeal to every woman. Think of it! Do you realize that we are putting on a sale of Ladies' Coats just when you are beginning to feel the need of them? Cool mornings and evenings are the advance signs of approaching frosty days with chilling winds of autumn and early winter, and here we are offering high grade coat values at sale prices just when you most need them. Did you ever hear of anything like it before?

Sale will begin Saturday, September 10th.

Here are a few of the many Coat Bargains that will be offered.

Misses Coats-Extra good values selling many places for twice the money. A coat any Miss would be proud to wear. Made of novelty striped cloaking, military style, jewel buttons and velvet trimmings. The tailoring of this coat is above criticism. An excellent value for price asked $5.00

Ladies' Coats-A pleasing showing in beautiful styles, made of all wool kerseys and broadcloths. Several strictly tailor made, others cleverly trimmed with braid. These are all good values and will go quickly when women once see what they are getting for the low price asked. $10

Ladies' Coats-These are coats that readily sell for $18.00. Everyone a supeeior value of all wool kersey pleasingly trimmed with braid. Any lady looking for a coat in which the style, fit and workmanship is beyond criticism should examine this value carefully. Sale price $10.75

Ladies' Coats--These are unquestionably the best values ever offered at a sale price. Made of fine all wool broadcloth. Has the coat shaped effect, is lined throughout and faced with yarn-dyed satin. Will retail for $25. During Sale we offer this excellent coat value for only 13.75

Could You Ask for Anything More Liberal?

This is no scheme to move a lot of trash, but a genuine offering of seasonable bargains—something every woman and young lady will need from now until next spring. These coats should move mighty sudden—and remember, there'll be no more when these are gone.

Don't Miss This Coat-Buying Opportunity

SEPTEMBER

0510

L 904

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

THE DANGEROUS HOUSE FLY.

The city department of public health gives a timely and needed warning to those leaving the city for their vacations to avoid places where there are many flies. Those who follow this advice will avoid places which are uncleanly, which allow food and garbage to be so exposed as to attract and feed the flies, says the Philiadelphia Press. They will avoid places where stables and dwellings are in near vicinity, as the exposed manure is the choice breeding place of thousands and even millions of flies. In other words, to avoid disease-conveying flies avoid places where they permit flies to breed and feed. Formerly the conditions which multiply flies and the flies themselves were considered objectionable but endurable. Now the patient toleration of flies is known to be a heedless trifling with the health and life of human beings. Disease germs are for the most part innocuous to man, until through some convenient medium they are conveyed to his system. This purveyor of disease is the fly. His guilt has been proved to a demonstration. His capacity for carrying on his feet from foul and putrescent sources the bacteria of disease has been recorded by gelatin plates on which he has been made to alight and have proven his guilt.

The raisin growers of Fresno county, California, are trying to promote the consumption of raisins by establishing "raisin day," on which all patriots who believe in patronizing home enterprise and consuming home productions are expected to indulge in raisin cakes and puddings, raisin bread, etc. The boys and girls will fall in line for this, and as they are the best consumers of things sweet, it would seem to be good policy to awaken the enthusiasm of young eaters. Parents are now busy striving to get enough of things more staple than raisins, which would be adopted generally if they could be made to take the place of meat, eggs and other products. Moreover, it is suspected that if all were to do as the raisin growers desire there would be a boom in the price as a result of the boom in the demand.

Smokers who are going to France should know that, now the French duties on tobacco and cigars have been increased, travelers entering France are allowed to bring into the country free of duty only ten cigars, 20 cigarettes, or 1¾ ounces of tobacco, and this must be on their person, or in their hand luggage examined at the frontier. The customs officials are fully entitled to confiscate or tax any quantity of tobacco or cigars however small which may be found in the heavy luggage of passengers sent under seal to a terminal station (St. Lazare or Gare du Nord) and examined there, and just now they are very strict.

The British commercial attache at Yokohama reports that there has been a sudden development at Tokyo and Yokohama in the use of solid rubber tires for jinrikishas, and the adoption of the new tire promises to become general in Japan. The utilization of rubber and its products for every conceivable purpose is so rapidly swelling the demand that there will have to be a corresponding augmentation of the annual crop or prices will bound to prohibitory heights. The world will shower wealth on the inventor who produces an artificial rubber that will give service approaching that of the genuine article.

Misfortune seems to follow the Zeppelin concern. Hard upon the recent disasters to several of the flying machines come the explosions in the works at Friedrichshafen, resulting in serious damage to property and the death of one man and the injury of a number of others. Still, German determination is of the boldfast order, and it is quite likely that there will be persistent effort toward perfecting the Zeppelin principle to the point where present perils will be minimized.

A man and his wife are demanding $150,000 because they were ejected from a New York hotel. People who have so often been told when applying for accommodations at New York hotels that there were no rooms left will extend sympathy to the ejected pair.

The city of Cleveland has just celebrated its one hundred and fourteenth birthday. People who remember when there wasn't anything but a schoolhouse and a grocery store there are becoming scarce.

A movement is on foot at Atlantic City to prohibit people from maintaining poultry yards inside the city limits. We have always been inclined to believe that cities were not intended for the purpose of stock raising.

THE UNHAPPY FARMER.

MULFORD IS VICTOR

PILOT OF LOZIER DRIVES AT ELGIN MOST SPECTACULAR AUTO RACE.

ONLY FOUR CROSS THE TAPE

Livingstone Is Second, Greiner Third—Winner Averages 62.5 Miles an Hour, Comes Close to Vanderbilt Cup Contest Time.

Elgin, Ill.—Ralph Mulford, driving a Lozier car, won the Elgin national trophy in a race of 305.03 Miles Saturday at an average speed of 62.5 miles an hour before a crowd of 100,000 people. His driving was of the spectacular kind and when he finished he was cheered for fully five minutes.

Thirty-six times the blond driver circuited the rough course of country roads—a course of eight miles 2,499 feet, or, roughly, eight and one-half miles—with but a single stop.

The remarkable feature of Mulford's run lies in the fact that he approached within three-tenths of a mile the maximum average in the classic Vanderbilt cup event of a year ago. That such a run could be made on country roads, with practically no preparation and for a much greater distance than that of the Vanderbilt cup race, is looked upon by experts as little short of marvelous.

Close behind the victorious Lozier was "Al" Livingstone, driver of a National, who broke another record in that his achievement was that of one man and one car in two successive races run at more than a mile a minute, in the first of which he was victor, and totaling more than 500 miles.

Livingstone's record as second at the goal was 60.2 miles an hour for the entire run of 305.03 miles.

The third man, another driver of a National, was A. W. Greiner. His average time was 54.4 miles an hour, reduced far below those of the other two winners because of numerous stops for repairs and gasoline.

In addition to the numerous unexpected obstacles that were met in full view of the great throng of motor fans, demanding cool handling of cars and quick work on the part of the pilots, Livingstone was menaced by a danger of which none save his mechanician and himself was aware. He entered the race in a machine which carried two big cracks in its frame.

Only four machines crossed the tape before the judges' stand the required number of times. All of the others, except two—either machines or men—met with accidents that threw them out of the running before the entire distance had been covered.

PERJURY IN BROWNE CASE?

Special Grand Jury Is Ordered by Judge Brentano—Witness Tells of Orgy.

Chicago.—Judge Theodore Brentano Friday ordered a special grand jury impaneled on August 30 to undertake an investigation into charges of wholesale perjury in the trial of Lee O'Neil Browne, accused of giving a bribe for the election of Senator Lorimer.

There are two matters to be investigated, one of which is wholesale perjury by the defense in the Browne trial, and the other matter, said to be an important one, State's Attorney Wayman will not divulge.

Bread and Milk for Seven Years.

Kewanee, Ill.—For seven years no food except bread and milk had passed the lips of William Schmidt, a pioneer of Henry county, who died Tuesday seventy-three years old. He was active until a few weeks ago.

Hangs Himself After Arrest.

New York.—Because Patrick Gaffney, a sober, industrious mechanic of fifty, could not master his humiliation over what he felt was a false arrest, he hanged himself Tuesday in his home in the Bronx.

RENEW RIOTING AT COLUMBUS

MOB OF 2,000 BATTLE WITH POLICE AND MILITIA.

Deputy Sheriff Probably Fatally Wounded, Four Other Persons Hurt—Fifty Rioters Arrested.

Columbus, O. — A mob of 2,000 people battled with the police and militia Monday night when street car rioting broke out with fresh fury.

Struck down by the clubs of policemen, four were seriously injured, one, a deputy sheriff, mistaken for a rioter, may die. A chauffeur for a police automobile was struck unconscious with a brick. Four rioters were arrested and locked in the city prison.

The rioting started with the wrecking of a Leonard avenue car by dynamite at East Twentieth street. Following the explosion a large mob gathered about the car and assaulted the nonunion crew with a volley of bricks and stones. Though the car had been thrown from the track, the windows shattered and the door splintered, neither the motorman or conductor were injured. They stuck to the car amid the shower of missiles until Chief Carter arrived with an automobile load of police.

BIG CUT IN EXPRESS RATES

Illinois Railroad Commission Demands That Charges Be Reduced and Made Uniform.

Springfield, Ill.—Sweeping reductions in express rates within the state of Illinois were made here Saturday by the Illinois railroad and warehouse commission. Existing tariffs were slashed in two in many instances and on small packages the reduction is in excess of 50 per cent.

The promulgation of "express tariff No. 1" by the commission brings the fight of the state against the express companies to a crisis. The reduction is made effective October 15, and the companies are preparing for a finish fight. They dispute the authority of the commission to regulate their business within the state and assert that either they will ignore the new tariff schedule or go into court and get an injunction restraining the commission from carrying its order into effect.

In a lengthy statement which the commission hands down with its tariff schedule the business methods of the express companies are severely arraigned. The existing rates are declared to be unreasonable and exorbitant as well as discriminatory in character.

Unlike the reductions which have been made in some states of a flat rate of 10 or 20 per cent., the Illinois commission has prepared a complete graduated tariff schedule, based on the weight of packages and on the distance they are carried within the state.

GOTCH RETIRES FROM MAT

After Taking Part in 331 Matches Wrestler Announces He Is Done With the Game.

Kansas City, Mo. — After taking part in 331 wrestling matches, not counting many minor affairs, and of this number losing only seven, five of them being handicap matches in which he failed to throw his men as many times as bargained for, Frank Gotch announces that he has been seen for the last time on the mat.

Oldest "Eli" Is Ninety-One.

Brockton, Mass.—Jona White, the oldest Yale graduate in the world, is living here at the age of ninety-one years. Mr. White, who is one of the oldest barristers in the state, graduated from Yale in the class of 1844.

Noted Engineer Is Dead.

Montclair, N. J.—Charles Talbot Porter, an engineer and inventor of international reputation, died Tuesday at his home here, after a brief illness. He was eighty-five years old.

RAIL CHIEF KILLS

DISCHARGED EMPLOYE FIRES AT OFFICIAL WHO IN TURN KILLS HIM.

FIVE BULLETS MISS MARK

Victim of Attack Ends Life of Would-Be Assassin, Who Was Dismissed for Firing on Man at Duluth, Minn.

St. Paul, Minn.—Alfred G. Ray, chief special agent of the Great Northern railway, Tuesday shot and killed Charles P. Welsh, a former subordinate in the Great Northern office building at St. Paul after Welsh had fired five shots at Ray.

Welsh was about 45 years old and had been dismissed by Ray about two months ago for shooting a man at Duluth. Since that time Welsh had been expressing vindictive feelings to Ray.

Welsh met Special Officer John Lane of the Great Northern railway at the headquarters building and began to revile Ray, saying he would "get" him.

Lane told Welsh to keep quiet, as he would not allow Welsh to speak disrespectfully of his superior officer, whereupon Welsh turned his wrathful utterances against Lane, saying he would "get" Lane also.

Before Ray appeared at his office Welsh walked in and inquired of Chief Clerk Hess if there was any mail. On being told there was nothing for him, Welsh said he would return in a day or two. Shortly afterward Ray entered his office and Welsh returned. As soon as he opened the door he drew a revolver from his pocket and began to fire at Ray. At the fifth shot Ray succeeded in getting his weapon into action and with one shot killed Welsh.

DEATH THREAT IN I. C. CASE

Director of Ostermann Company Testifies to Intimidation to Prevent Car Fraud Narrative.

Chicago.—Hearing of the case against Frank B. Harriman, Charles L. Ewing and John M. Taylor, former Illinois Central officials charged with defrauding the company through car repairs, was resumed in Judge Bruggemeyer's court Monday.

Theophile Reuther, formerly a director of the Ostermann Manufacturing company, the first witness, testified that Henry C. Ostermann, president of the Ostermann company, had threatened to kill him if he (Reuther) told the story of the defrauding of the Illinois Central out of $1,000,000 through car repairs.

Reuther told of Ostermann's alleged attack upon him in the offices of the company when he threatened to disclose the gigantic steal.

Thefts of valuable records, confessions, letters, reports and other proofs of frauds, together with copies of important documents, came to light in the graft war as a rival to the $1,500,000 car-repair swindle.

Documents containing evidence against the men higher up in the huge fraud disappeared from the Illinois Central offices two months ago simultaneously with the discharge of an employe in the railroad's secret-service department.

Rev. F. G. Bingley, an evangelist, who preaches to the women of the levee, turned the bulk of the missing papers over to Murry Nelson, Jr., chief counsel for the Illinois Central, Monday.

"My boys, Paul, eleven years old, and Cecil, nine years old, found the papers floating in the river," said the evangelist.

DYNAMITE TWO STREET CARS

Strike Sympathizers at Columbus Wreck Two Coaches and Injure Several Persons.

Columbus, O.—Exploding dynamite wrecked two street cars here Tuesday night. One car was blown from the tracks at Long and Garfield avenues and the conductor and motorman were severely injured.

Dynamite also wrecked a West Broad street car, injured a woman passenger and knocked unconscious a pedestrian. The car, south-bound, was crossing Sandusky street when it was lifted from the tracks by a terrific explosion beneath its front trucks. The wheels were shattered, the floor ripped up and windows broken.

Cholera in Germany.

Berlin.—Fifteen cases of cholera, or suspected cholera, have been discovered in different sections of this city and the suburb of Spandau. In Berlin proper there has been one death and nine suspected cases have been isolated. In Spandau there has been one death, another case has been definitely diagnosed as cholera and three other sufferers are under observation as suspected cholera victims.

Palace of Salt Is Burned.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—Salt Palace, a structure built on salt, and one of the scenic features of Salt Lake, was destroyed by fire Monday entailing a loss of $25,000. Defective wiring was the cause of the blaze.

Freight Into the Hudson.

Albany, N. Y.—A freight train, south bound, on the New York Central railroad, Monday plunged into the Hudson river at Castleton, nine miles south of here, killing Engineer Timothy Banker.

COOK AFTER POLE RECORDS

EXPLORER AGAIN MAKING DASH FOR FROZEN NORTH.

Goes in Search of Papers and Instruments Which He Says Will Exonerate Him.

Copenhagen, Denmark.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, discredited in the eyes of the world by the findings of the University of Copenhagen in regard to the explorer's claim of having reached the north pole, again is on his way to the top of the world.

From Goodhayn, Greenland, there came a letter which establishes apparently beyond doubt that the Brooklyn surgeon is making his way northward in the effort to find records and instruments he is said to have left in the frozen north.

By these records and instruments Doctor Cook hopes to establish his contention that he was at the north pole a year ahead of Commander Robert E. Peary.

It is stated in the letter that the Brooklyn man has expressed himself as confident of being able to convince the world he is entitled to full credit as the original discoverer of the pole and to force the scientists at the University of Copenhagen to reverse their adverse decision.

In this respect the writer of the letter asserts that among the residents of Greenland there exists the belief that every claim made by Doctor Cook in connection with his dash northward is based upon fact and that the explorer will be enabled so to prove.

An American steamer bound southward recently dropped anchor in Goodhaven harbor, says the letter, and from the captain and crew was obtained further confirmation of the report that Doctor Cook had started a second dash northward with the object of obtaining the proof which he expects will set him right before the world.

TAFT PLEADS FOR HARMONY

In Campaign Letter He Applauds Work of Congress and Tells Plan of Fixing Tariff.

New York. — President Taft's keynote letter addressed to William B. McKinley of Illinois, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, and was given out by the New York headquarters of the committee.

In it the president defends the Payne tariff law, but acknowledges that there are parts of it which may be amenable to change.

His plan for getting at the inequalities of the law is investigation by the tariff commission, and then revision by individual schedules. He thinks that by this means the statute may be adjusted properly without causing uneasiness in the business world.

"It seems to me," says Mr. Taft, "that all Republicans—conservative, progressive and radical—may well abide the situation with respect to the tariff until evidence now being accumulated shall justify changes in the rates."

The letter is a straight from the shoulder defense of his administration and of the congress that aided him in the formation of the laws recently passed. These are termed the most progressive legislation in history.

Mr. Taft pleads for harmony in the Republican party and urges all factions to drop their differences and get together for defense against the common enemy. If this is not done, he says, the only alternative is Democratic success in the congressional campaign this fall, and he points to the difficulties which would be attendant upon an administration handicapped by an opposing legislative branch in its efforts to further redeem the pledges of its platform.

The president admits there are other promises to keep, but at the same time he asserts that the party has gone far for good under his guidance.

He outlines the economies which have been practised during his administration and in this connection declares that the present tariff, in conjunction with other economies, has turned a deficit of $58,000,000 into a surplus of $26,000,000 in a little over a year's time.

Col. Roosevelt Is Snubbed.

Milwaukee.—"In view of the unscholarly and unfair position that Mr. Roosevelt has taken in the discussion of the movement for which I have spent all my spare time and energy, it is impossible for me to accept the intended honor." This is a portion of a letter of Mayor Emil Seidel, Socialist, to Frank Cannon, chairman of the Milwaukee Press club reception committee, in which the mayor declines to serve on the reception committee on the occasion of the visit of Colonel Roosevelt, who will be the guest of the Press club next week.

Man Blown High But Lives.

Greeley, Col.—Blown 30 feet into the air by a heavy charge of dynamite which he supposed had failed to ignite, S. L. Hoffman, an engineer employed on an irrigation project, escaped Tuesday with only a few minor injuries.

Rich Tobacco Man Dead.

Redlands, Cal.—George S. Meyers, multimillionaire tobacco merchant of St. Louis, died here Tuesday after an illness of several years. The body will be taken to St. Louis.

CURTISS OVER LAKE

ESTABLISHES NEW MARK IN HIS AERIAL OVER SEA TRIP.

MILE A MINUTE PART OF WAY

Soars From Cleveland to Cedar Point, Sixty Miles, in Seventy-eight Minutes—More Than 100,000 People Witnessed Event.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Glenn H. Curtiss of Hammondsport, N. Y., established a new record for over-water flights by traveling over Lake Erie from Euclid Beach, nine miles east of this city, to Cedar Point, Ohio, approximately sixty miles distant. The announced time consumed in the passage was one hour and eighteen minutes. The aviator's own estimate of the time was one hour and nineteen minutes. His average time was forty-five miles, although one stretch of twenty miles was covered at a rate of a mile a minute. Curtiss used the eight-cylinder 50-horsepower biplane of his own construction in which he made his recent flight down the Hudson river from Albany to New York.

It was shortly after 12 o'clock when the biplane was taken from the hangar to the aerodrome. At 1:30 p. m., after it had been ascertained that the twelve-mile breeze from the northeast prevailed in Cleveland and Cedar Point alike, the motor was started. At 1:06 p. m., with the cheers of 40,000 people who gathered at the starting point ringing in his ears the aviator swept over the lake.

After reaching a height of 200 feet the machine turned to the west. At 1:13 p. m., it had passed Cleveland harbor where 100,000 people had grouped along the lake front and three minutes later had faded into the mist. At 2:18 it was sighted at Cedar Point. Five minutes later it glided on to the beach in front of the Breakers hotel.

A crowd of 10,000 people gathered on the beach, went wild when Curtiss landed. It rushed the aviator, lifted him from the machine and carried him on its shoulders to his hotel.

Man Fell Twenty Stories.

New York.—Crowds in Park Row, one of the city's busiest streets, stopped horrified at the sight of a man's body falling through the air from the roof of the twenty-six story Park Row building. The body crashed into the skylight of the six-story building adjoining and became jammed in the machinery of the elevator. It was hardly recognizable and some difficulty was anticipated in identifying it. It was not known whether the man fell accidentally or deliberately jumped to his death.

Maine May Come Sailing Home.

Beverly, Mass.—If plans which President Taft regards favorable are adopted, the battleship Maine, sunk in Havana harbor twelve years ago, which since then has concealed the secret of the disaster which overwhelmed her, may be sailing homeward on or before Christmas, bearing a long-delayed verdict to the nation. John F. O'Rourke of New York submitted the plans to the president. The plan provides for raising the Maine by means of pneumatic caissons and steel cables. The ship will be preserved entact.

Interurban and Freight Train Crash.

Indianapolis, Ind.—In a crash between an Indiana Union Traction company limited car and a cut of Big Four freight cars one mile northeast of Lawrence, five persons were painfully bruised and the interurban car wes demolished. R. H. Sullivan, Anderson, motorman, jumped and saved himself from probable death. The car was crowded with passengers, and, although the escape from death is considered remarkable, it is believed none of the injuries will prove serious.

Rev. Chapman Weds in Providence.

Warsaw, Ind.—Miss Mabel Cornelia Moulton has been married to Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, the noted evangelist of New York, in Providence, R. I., Miss Moulton's home. Miss Moulton met Dr. Chapman last February while they were here. The marriage is notable because of the prominence of the parties. Dr. Chapman has just completed a world tour.

Salt Palace Burns.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—Salt palace, a structure built of salt and one of the scenic features of Salt Lake, was destroyed by fire, entailing an uninsured loss of $25,000. Defective wiring was the cause of the blaze.

To Meet at Oklahoma City.

Denver, Colo.—The Spanish-American veterans have voted to meet next year at Oklahoma City. Louisville, whose delegation made a hard fight for the meeting, was rejected.

Oldest Telegraph Operator Is Dead.

Wilmington, Del.—Isaac W. Hallam, probably the oldest telegraph operator in the country in point of continuous service, died here, aged eighty-one years. He was an employe of the Western Union Telegraph company for fifty-two years.

Girl of Eleven a Bride.

Pine, La.—Ruth Harding of Bogalusa, La., is one of the youngest brides on record. She is eleven years old, it is stated, and was married here to William Breland, aged nineteen.

SEPTEMBER

L 904

LABOR PROBLEMS ARE TOPIC FOR ROOSEVELT

He Tells Big Labor Day Audience at Fargo His Views on Trades Unions, Legislation for Wage-Earners and Other Allied Matters.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 5.—After spending the night in Fargo, Col. Theodore Roosevelt appeared today before a big audience of union laborers and other citizens of all classes and delivered a Labor Day address that was very pleasing to his hearers. Following is the text of his speech:

Today—on Labor Day—I speak in one sense especially to those personally and vitally interested in the labor struggle; and yet I speak of this primarily as one aspect of the larger social struggle growing out of the attempts to readjust social conditions and make them more equitable.

The nineteenth century was distinctly one of economic triumphs—triumphs in the domain of production, including transportation and the mechanics of exchange. The marvelous progress made in these respects multiplied man's productive power to an almost inconceivable degree. In the matter of the production of wealth, as much progress was made during the nineteenth century as during all previous periods since history dawned; that is, the changes brought in a single century through machinery and steam have been greater than the sum total of the changes of the preceding thousands of years; and these very changes and this material progress have thrust upon us social and political problems of the first magnitude. The triumph of the physical sciences in the nineteenth century represented progress primarily in the material elements of civilization. The most pressing problems that confront the present century are not concerned with the material production of wealth, but with its distribution. The demands of progress now deal not so much with the material as with the moral and ethical factors of civilization. Our basic problem is to see that the marvelously augmented powers of production bequeathed to us by the nineteenth century shall in the twentieth be made to administer to the needs of the many rather than be exploited for the profit of the few.

The American wage-earner faces this larger social problem in a dual capacity; first, as a citizen of the Republic charged with the full duty of citizenship; and next as a wage-earner—as a wage-worker—who, together with his fellow-workers, is vitally concerned in the question of wages and general conditions of employment, which affect not only his well-being and that of his wife and children, but the opportunities of all workers for a higher development.

Must Depend on Our Own Efforts.

It is true of wage-workers, as of all other citizens, that most of their progress must depend upon their own initiative and their own efforts. Nevertheless, there are three different factors in this progress. There is, first, the share which the man's own individual qualities must determine. This is the most important of all, for nothing can supply the place of individual capacity. Yet there are two other factors also of prime importance; namely, what can be done by the wage-workers in co-operation with one another; and what can be done by government—that is, by the instrument through which all the people work collectively. Wages and other most important conditions of employment must remain largely outside of government control; must be left for adjustment by free contract between employers and wage-earners. But to attempt to leave this merely to individual action means the absolute destruction of individualism; for where the individual is so weak that he, perforce, has to accept whatever a strongly organized body chooses to give him, his individual liberty becomes a mere sham and mockery. It is indispensably necessary, in order to preserve to the largest degree our system of individualism, that there should be effective and organized collective action. The wage-earners must act jointly, through the process of collective bargaining, in great industrial enterprises. Only thus can they be put upon a plane of economic equality with their corporate employers. Only thus is freedom of contract made a real thing and not a mere legal fiction. There are occasional occupations where this is not necessary; but, speaking broadly, it is necessary throughout the great world of organized industry. I believe this practise of collective bargaining, effective only through such organizations as the trades unions, to have been one of the most potent factors in the past century in promoting the progress of the wage-earners and in securing larger social progress for humanity. I believe in the principle of organized labor and in the practise of collective bargaining, not merely as a desirable thing for the wage-earners, but as something which has been demonstrated to be essential in the long run to their permanent progress.

This does not mean that I unequivocally indorse any or all practises that labor organizations may happen to adopt, or any or all principles that they may choose to enunciate. Labor organizations have the weaknesses and defects common to all other forms of human organizations. Sometimes they act very well, and sometimes they act very badly; and I am for them when they act well, and I am against them when they act badly. I believe that their existence is a necessity; I believe that their aims and purposes are generally good; and I believe that all of them have occasionally made mistakes, and that some of them have been guilty of wrong-doing. Just in so far as they are strong and effective they tempt designing men who seek to control them for their own interests, and stimulate the desires of ambitious leaders who may be clever, crooked men, or who may be honest but visionary and foolish. In other words, in treating of labor unions, as in treating of corporations, or of humanity generally, we will do well to remember Abraham Lincoln's saying that "there is a deal of human nature in mankind." Whether in a man or in an organized body of men, the power to do good means that such power may be twisted into evil; and in proportion as the power grows, so it becomes steadily more important that it should be handled aright. Just in proportion as in its proper function power is important to social progress, so in its improper function it becomes fraught with social disaster.

Wise Course For Original Labor.

Outside critics should appreciate the necessity of organized labor, and understand and sympathize with what is good in it, instead of condemning it indiscriminately. On the other hand, those within its ranks should fearlessly analyze the criticisms directed against it and ruthlessly eliminate from the practises of its organization those things which justify such criticism and attack. This is the path, not only of right, but of wisdom and safety. Public opinion in the United States is daily becoming more alert and more intelligent and more forceful; and no organization whether trades union or corporation, whether industrial or non-industrial, can endure or permanently amount to a social force if it does not harmonize with a wise and enlightened public opinion. Hitherto we Americans have been over-occupied with material things, and have neglected to watch the play of the social forces about us. But now we are awakening from that indifference; and every form of organization representing an important economic, political, or social force must undergo a closer scrutiny than ever before.

I think that the next quarter of a century will be important politically in many ways; and in none more so than in the labor movement. Not only are the benefits of labor organization more clearly understood than ever before, but any shortcoming or vice displayed in connection therewith is also more clearly understood and more quickly resented. The public is growing more and more to understand that, in a contest between employer and employee—a corporation and a trades union—not only the interests of the contestants, but the interests of the third party—the public—must be considered. Anything like levity in provoking a strike, on the one hand or on the other, is certain more and more to be resented by the public. Strikes are sometimes necessary and proper; sometimes they represent the only way in which, after all other methods have been exhausted, it is possible for the laboring man to stand for his rights; but it must be clearly understood that a strike is a matter of last resort. Our social organization is too complex for us to fall quickly to condemn those who, with levity or in a spirit of wanton brutality, bring about far-reaching and disastrous interference with its normal processes. The public sympathizes cordially with any movement for a good standard of living and for moderate hours of employment. (I personally, for instance, cordially believe in an eight-hour day, and in one day in seven for complete rest.) Where men and women are worked under harsh and intolerable conditions, and can secure no relief without a strike, or, indeed, where the strike is clearly undertaken for things which are vitally necessary—and then only as a last resort—the public sympathy will favor the wage-workers; but it will not favor them unless such conditions as these are fulfilled. Therefore it is becoming more than ever important that the labor movement should combine steady, far-seeing leadership with discipline and control in its ranks. Dishonest leadership is a curse anywhere in American life, and nowhere is it a greater curse than in the labor movement. If there is one lesson which I would rather teach to my fellow-Americans than any other; it is to hound down the dishonest man—no matter what his condition—and to brush aside with impatient contempt the creature who only denounces dishonesty when it is found in some special social stratum. There are dishonest capitalists, dishonest labor leaders, dishonest lawyers, and dishonest business men; dishonest men of great wealth and dishonest poor men; and the man who is a genuine reformer will decline to single out any one type for exclusive denunciation, but will fearlessly attack the dishonest man as such, whenever and wherever he is to be found.

Worthy Leaders Available.

For many years I have been more or less closely associated with representative leaders of labor unions. Some of these men are among my close friends, whom I respect and admire as heartily as I do any men in America. There are some of them to whom I go as freely for assistance and guidance, for aid and help, in making up my mind how to deal with our social problems, as I go to the leaders of any business or profession. I cannot pay too high a tribute to the worth and integrity of these men—to their sincerity and good judgment as leaders. But no movement—no leadership—however earnest and honest, can endure unless the rank and file live up to their duties, and search for such leadership, and support it when they find it. If the best men in a labor union leave its management and control to men of a poorer type, the effect will be just as disastrous as when good citizens in a city follow the same course as regards city government. The stay-at-home man in a union is just as much responsible for the sins of omission and commission of his organization as the stay-at-home man in a city is for the civic conditions under which he suffers and about which he complains.

All that can properly be done should be done by all of us to help upward the standard of living and to improve the ability of the average man to reach that standard. There are still in the United States great masses of skilled and unorganized labor, whose conditions of work and living are harsh and pitiable. It is a shocking indictment of our industrial condition to be told in a matter-of-course way in a government report that thousands of workers in this country are compelled to toil everyday in the week, without one day rest, for a wage of $45 a month. Such a condition is bad for them, and, in the end, bad for all of us. Our commercial development should be heartily encouraged; but it must not be allowed to commercialize our morals.

It is not merely the duty of the wage-earner, but it is also the duty of the general public, to see that he has safe and healthy conditions under which to carry on his work. No worker should be compelled, as a condition of earning his daily bread, to risk his life and limb, or be deprived of his health, or have to work under dangerous and bad surroundings. Society owes the worker this because it owes as much to itself. He should not be compelled to make this a matter of contract; he ought not to be left to fight alone for decent conditions in this respect. His protection in the place where he works should be guaranteed by the law of the land. In other words, he should be protected during his working hours against greed and carelessness on the part of unscrupulous and thoughtless employers, just as outside of those working hours both he and his employer are protected in their lives and property against the murderer and thief.

Far Behind Other Nations.

This opens a vitally important field of legislation to the National government and to the state alike. It is humiliating to think how far we of this country are behind most of the other countries in such matters. Practically all civilized countries have, for more than a decade, prohibited by the strictest regulations the poisonous meat industry; yet we had not done anything at all until very recently to protect the laborers against this horrible danger. The National government made an investigation a year ago into this industry, which showed a condition of things unspeakably shocking and revolting. Legislation to prevent these abuses was introduced in congress, which was not passed. Since then the companies in fault have ostentatiously announced that they have done away with the objectionable conditions. I hope so; but whether they have or not, a law should be passed in stringent form to prevent any possible backsliding.

So it is in the matter of injuries to employees. In what is called "employer's liability" legislation other industrial countries have accepted the principle that the industry must bear the monetary burden of its human sacrifices, and that the employee who is injured shall have a fixed and definite sum. The United States still proceeds on an outworn and curiously improper principle, in accordance with which it has too often been held by the courts that the frightful burden of the accident shall be borne in its entirety by the very person least able to bear it. Fortunately, in a number of states—in Wisconsin and in New York, for instance—these defects in our industrial life are either being remedied or else are being made a subject of intelligent study with a view to their remedy. In New York a bill embodying moderate compensation for accidents has already been passed. Other states will undoubtedly follow in the same path. The Federal government has, so far as its own employees are concerned, been the first to recognize and put into shape this principle. However, this pioneer law was not made comprehensive enough; it does not cover all the employees of the Federal government that ought to come within its provisions, and the amount paid for permanent disability or death is entirely inadequate. Nevertheless, it was a great step in advance to have this principle of workingmen's compensation accepted and embodied in the Federal statutes, and the recent action of congress in providing for a commission to study and report upon the subject gives promise that the same principle will soon be applied to private firms that come within the jurisdiction of the Federal government.

Federation Planks Approved.

Women and children should, beyond all question, be protected; and in their cases there can be no question that the states should act. They should be particular objects of our solicitude; and they should be guarded in an effective fashion against the demands of a too greedy commercialism. On my recent trip in the neighborhoods of Scranton and Wilkesbarre every one I spoke to agreed as to the immense improvement that had been wrought by the effective enforcement of the laws prohibiting children under the age of fourteen years from working, and prohibiting women from working more than ten hours a day. Personally, I think ten hours too long; but, be this as it may, ten hours a day was a great advance.

Among the planks in the platform of the American Federation of Labor there are some to which I very strongly subscribe. They are:

1. Free schools; free text-books; and compulsory education.
2. A work-day of not more than eight hours.
3. Release from employment one day in seven.
4. The abolition of the sweat-shop system.
5. Sanitary inspection of factory, workshop, mine, and home.
6. Liability of employers for injury to body or loss of life.

(I regard the demand in this form as inadequate. What we need is an automatically fixed compensation for all injuries received by the employee in the course of his duty, this being infinitely better for the employee and more just to the employer. The only sufferers will be lawyers of that undesirable class which exists chiefly by carrying on lawsuits of this nature.)

7. The passage and enforcement of rigid anti-child labor laws which will cover every portion of this country.
8. Suitable and plentiful playgrounds for children in all the cities.

Inasmuch as preevntion is always best, especial attention should be paid to the prevention of industrial accidents by passing laws requiring the use of safety devices. At present the loss of life and limb among the industrial workers of the United States is simply appalling, and every year equals in magnitude the killed and wounded in a fair-sized war. Most of these casualties are preventable; and our legislative policy should be shaped accordingly. It would be a good idea to establish in every city a museum of safety devices, from which the workers could get drawings of them and information as to how they could be obtained and used.

The matter of compensation for injuries to employees is, perhaps, more immediately vital than any other. The report of the commission which has begun to look into this matter on behalf of the New York legislature is well worth reading. The bill presented by the Federation of Labor in Wisconsin on this subject seems excellent. In all dangerous trades the employer should be forced to share the burden of the accident, so that the shock may be borne by the community as a whole. This would be a measure of justice in itself, and would do away with a fruitful source of antagonism between employer and employed.

Our ideal should be a rate of wages sufficiently high to enable workmen to live in a manner conformable to American ideals and standards, to educate their children, and to provide for sickness and old age; the abolition of child labor; safety device legislation to prevent industrial accidents; and automatic compensation for losses caused by these industrial accidents.

Have Faith In Yourself.

There is a tremendous power in the habit of expectancy, the conviction that we shall realize our ambition, that our dreams shall come true. There is no uplifting habit like that attitude of expecting that our heart yearnings will be matched with realities; that things are going to turn out well and not ill; that we are going to succeed; that no matter what may or may not happen, we are going to be happy, says Success.

There is nothing else so helpful as the carrying of this optimistic, expectant attitude—the attitude which always looks for and expects the best, the highest, the happiest—and never allowing oneself to get into the pessimistic, discouraged mood.

Believe with all your heart that you will do what you were made to do. Never for an instant harbor a doubt of this. Drive it out of your mind if it seeks entrance. Entertain only the friendly thoughts or ideals of the thing you are bound to achieve. Reject all thought enemies, all discouraging moods—everything which would even suggest failure or unhappiness.

All Satisfied.

Slap—What became of your son, the one who never could get up in the morning?

Thud—Oh, he's got a job delivering milk.

Slap—Well, how about the one who never could get any sleep?

Thud—Oh, he's all right now; he's a policeman.

Slap—What about the one who never was able to make any money? Is he better off now?

Thud—Why, yes—he started to make some, but they wouldn't let him finish it, and now he's where he doesn't need any.

MUCH TYPHOID IN STATE AT PRESENT

Thorntown Has More Than Thirty Cases.

OPEN VAULTS ARE BLAMED

Cause More Fever Than Infected Water, Says Health Officer in Urging Sewers—Analysis Often Fail.

Indianapolis.—Thirty cases of typhoid fever have baffled the health officials of Thorntown; there are at least thirty cases at Newcastle and epidemics are threatened in various other parts of the state. The department of foods and drugs of the state board of health has sent out 97 containers for water, issued on request, as means of shipping water samples to the department for analysis. But three containers are in the office and there are 25 requests for containers on file, received from various parts of Indiana.

"The trouble is, persons who attribute typhoid fever to the condition of the water used for drinking purposes are frequently mistaken," said H. E. Barnard, state food and drug commissioner. "The real trouble more frequently lies in the proximity of surface vaults to seats of infection.

"We have made repeated analyses of water in the laboratory to fix the cause of typhoid epidemics, and in many cases we have failed to find anything wrong. Personal inspections have revealed the cause of the disease, and the up-ground vault is, in many instances, held responsible.

"In congested centers the dangers of the surface vault to the health of the community cannot be estimated. Many cities have excellent sewer systems, for which they have paid immense amounts of money, but the people do not use them. There are 17,000 vaults in Indianapolis, and probable 16,000 are within the reach of a sewer. Greensburg has 400 or 500 open vaults with one of the best sewer systems in the state. The city was bonded for $90,000 a few years ago to establish the sewers, but the people so far have not recognized the fact that it was constructed to be used. Some one ought to write a tract on 'The Value of a Utilized Sewer.'

"Every city should have an ordinance against surface vaults. When called upon to investigate a seat of typhoid infection we find a number of vaults and order them cleaned up. This, however, is only temporizing. The results are not permanent."

Insurance Tax Collections.

Cyrus W. Neal, insurance deputy in the office of the auditor of state, reported that a total of $188,913.87 had been collected in semi-annual taxes from foreign insurance companies operating in the state for the first six months of this year. Under the law the tax is three per cent. of gross premiums collected less all losses. The total was divided among the following classes of companies: Fire companies of other states, $47,463.54; fire companies of foreign countries, $6,969.88; life companies of other states, $118,226.32; casualty companies of other states, $16,254.13.

The collections for the half year are the greatest for the first half of any year in the history of the insurance department in the auditor's office. The increase over the corresponding period for 1909 was $4,784.67. The collection for the last half of 1909 was greater than the 1910 collection for the six months reported by $4,199.08. The collection for the second half of any year, however, are always greater than those for the first half.

The largest individual tax paid was by the Prudential Life Insurance company whose tax was $26,552.77.

Board Certifies Reports.

The state board of accounts has certified reports of field examiners in the cases of Andrew Steersteder and Samuel D. Breeden, township trustees of Harrison county, the former of Spencer township and the latter of Scott township, Steersteder was found to have overpaid his teachers $74.26 in allowing them pay for attending a meeting of a county association of teachers. Breeden was charged with illegal payments amounting to $43.13, with credits with which he failed to credit himself amounting to $9.08, making a balance alleged to be due the township of $34.34.

The board has prepared to turn over to the state printer the new uniform county appropriation ordinance form, which will be used by county councils in the regular meeting in September. The new form contains a total of 186 items, but of these, approximately seventy-five are items which will apply to Marion county only.

Auxiliary Drill Pleases.

An informal reception was given the visiting delegates to the state convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Ladies' auxiliary by the local committee. More than three hundred visitors attended the event. A feature of the evening was the remarkable work of the Marion county drill team of the Ladies' auxiliary, captained by Mrs. Jennie Ford. The work of the team was applauded, many of the maneuvers showed the result of careful training.

Will Not Spend Money for Roads.

Because the state board of accounts recently gave Albert Sahm, county auditor, a legal opinion to the effect that the action of the county council in appropriating from the general fund $30,000 for the improvement of trunk highways, was illegal, the board of county commissioners will not spend any of the money so appropriated, but will ask the council at the September session to appropriate for road improvements all money raised by the road levy. This would make it necessary that the building and the repair of bridges be paid from the general fund. In the past the council has been spending a part of the free gravel road fund for bridge purposes, and because in the judgment of the council there was not sufficient balance in the road fund to make needed improvements the appropriation from the general fund was resorted to.

The road levy of .0365 will raise approximately $80,000, and this amount, it is believed, will be ample to take care of the work contemplated under the $30,000 appropriation from the general fund and also look after the ordinary road work of the year 1911. Last year from the $80,000 in the road fund only $41,000 was set aside for work on gravel roads, the rest being spent for new bridges, repair of bridges and miscellaneous items connected with roads.

The council also will be asked to appropriate about $20,000, according to Commissioner Kervan, for the enlargement of the Marion county asylum for the insane at Julietta. The hospital is overcrowded at present, as there are 12 beds in each ward, while the board of state charities has declared the air space is sufficient for only eight. In addition to this congestion at the hospital, there are 16 insane patients at the jail.

Re-Elects Old Officers.

All the former officers of the Indiana State League of Postmasters were re-elected as follows:

President—John L. Jackson, St. Paul.

Vice-president—M. A. Perry, Centerpoint.

Secretary—E. A. Bush, Reynolds.

Treasurer—Mrs. Mary A. Morgan, Camby.

The convention closed its two-day session at Indianapolis, electing delegates to represent the state league at the annual meeting of the national league held in Chattanooga this year. The delegates are: President Jackson, Secretary Bush, Mrs Morgan, F. W. Kritz and H. M. Eaton.

No definite date for the next annual convention was set, but as there seems to be a certainty of the national convention coming to Indianapolis in 1911 it was decided to hold the state meeting on the day before the opening of the national meeting in this city. The five delegates were instructed to work for Indianapolis as the seat of the convention in 1911 and plans were informally discussed to that end.

Assistant Postmaster John E. Shideler was the principal speaker of the day and told the delegates how to settle the postmaster's troubles with the public.

Greathouse Named for Aley's Place.

Following formal notification by Robert J. Aley, state superintendent of public instruction, that he has accepted the presidency of the University of Maine, the Democratic state committee in session at the Denison hotel, elected Charles A. Greathouse of Indianapolis to fill the vacancy on the state ticket in the present campaign, Doctor Aley having been nominated to succeed himself.

It was the prevailing belief among Democratic politicians around the Denison that Governor Marshall will appoint Mr. Greathouse to fill Doctor Aley's unexpired term of approximately four months. Doctor Aley will not enter upon his new duties until December 1, and it is expected that Governor Marshall will not appoint a sucsor until after the November election. He will be asked to appoint Mr. Greathouse and will do so, the party leaders believe, especially if Mr. Greathouse wins at the polls.

Mrs. Johnson-Crothers Dies.

Mrs. Mary Freeman Johnson-Crothers, mother of Superintendent Richard O. Johnson of the State School for the Deaf, and of Mrs. Charles M. Cooper, died at her daughter's, with whom she made her home. She had been an invalid for nearly two years. She was born in Lewisville, Henry county, January 7, 1832.

She was a woman of literary attainments, an occasional writer of verse, and was one of the first to suggest the annual offering in floral decoration of soldiers' graves, this suggestion having been made in a poem published in the Indianapolis Journal in 1868.

Tax Collections Show Gain.

The official report of Cyrus W. Neal, head of the insurance department of the office of the auditor of state, shows the taxes collected for the first half of 1910 exceed the taxes collected for the first half of 1909 by $4,785.27. The total collections for the six months ending June 30, 1910, were $188,914.47, and the total collections for the six months ending June 30, 1909, were $184,129.20.

Mother and Daughter Ill.

Miss Ruth Dehority, daughter of W. A. Dehority, state examiner for the state board of accounts, is seriously ill at the home of Henry Carroll in Hartford City. The exact nature of the illness is not known, but Miss Dehority has a high fever. A nurse was sent from Indianapolis to attend her, and Dr. W. H. Hoppenrath of Elwood, the family physician, also was sent to Hartford City by Mr. Dehority. Mrs. Dehority is seriously ill at their home, 2459 Ashland avenue.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WELL?

The kidney secretions tell if disease is lurking in the system. Too frequent or scanty urination, discolored urine, lack of control at night indicate that the kidneys are disordered. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

S. E. Vaughan, 601 E. South St., Iola, Kan., says: "Diabetes had set in and I expected to live but a short time. Kidney secretions were milky white and back pains were terrible. I was so dizzy my wife had to lead me. After trying everything else, I began with Doan's Kidney Pills and was soon helped. Continued use cured me."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

NOTHING DOING.

Tramp—Help me, kind sir. I have seen better days dan dis—

Mr. Jinks—So have I. This weather is awful.

All the Difference.

The professor was delivering an eloquent address on cruelty to animals, and, to illustrate how a little judicious forethought would eliminate to a great extent the sufferings that even small insects are subject to, said:

"As I was coming through the hall tonight I saw a bald-headed gentleman very harshly treat a little innocent house-fly which had alighted on his head.

"Now, if there was any justification for such bad temper, I would be quite justified in indulging in it at the present moment, for a fly has just alighted on the back of my head. I can't see it, but I can feel it.

"Possibly some of you can see it now; it is on the top of my head. Now it is coming down my brow; now it is coming on to my— G-r-r-eat pyramids of Egypt, it's a—wasp!"

The Stylish Fisherman.

One of the guests of a fashionable summer resort in West Virginia got himself up in his best fishing togs and started along a certain mountain stream.

Meeting a native, he asked: "Here, my good man! Kindly tell me whether it would be worth my while to try fishing in this vicinity."

The native regarded him scornfully. "The fishin' ain't good," he finally said. "but I ain't informed as to how you values your time."—Lippincott's.

There Are Reasons

Why so many people have ready-at-hand a package of

Post Toasties

The DISTINCTIVE FLAVOUR delights the palate.

The quick, easy serving right from the package—requiring only the addition of cream or good milk is an important consideration when breakfast must be ready "on time."

The sweet, crisp food is universally liked by children, and is a great help to Mothers who must give to the youngsters something wholesome that they relish.

The economical feature appeals to everyone—particularly those who wish to keep living expenses within a limit.

Post Toasties are especially pleasing served with fresh sliced peaches.

"The Memory Lingers"

Postum Cereal Co., Ltd.
Battle Creek, Mich.

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0512

The St. Joe News.

One Year - - $1.00
Six Month - - 50c
Three Months - - 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

Local Items.

Bring that oil can to Kinsey's Hardware, they can fill it.

Mr. Bert Bowman returned to his work at Chicago Tuesday after a few days visit with his family here.

Frank Walker of Rockford, Ill., is the guest of relatives here this week. Mr. Walker will be remembered by the older people as he used to be located here in the harness making business.

Former Congressman J. D. Leighty and wife, of St. Joe, spent yesterday afternoon with their son, Mr. John R. Leighty, of Kansas City. The latter is connected with the Missouri Pacific railroad and is on his way to New York city on business for that company.—Monday's Journal.

The receipts of all kinds of live stock at the Chicago stock yards for the year 1909 were 1,544,997 less than in 1908, although the total valuation increased over $9,000,000. The receipts of hogs at thirteen principal markets in the United States were 5,586,312 less in 1909 than in 1908. The total number of cattle in the country has declined 2,000,000 in the last three years and hogs 7,000,000. Doesn't this explain the high cost of living to your entire satisfaction? This not only holds good in the lack of meat production but in all farm products and then too the increase of population cuts quite a figure.

When you know anything of news value, call us up by Bell 'phone No. 10.

Sept. 10, Kinsey's give away a Kitchen Cabinet. Get a ticket.

Miss Geneva Burwell left Saturday for Collins, Ind., where she will teach school, this year.

Hersh Yeast is Avilla made and O. K'd, and has been the baker's delight for years. Ask your grocer for it

The Misses Aletha and Mamie White visited Saturday night with their cousin, Mrs. Ida Woodcox and family.

Kinsey's have installed an oil tank and ask that you bring your cans in to be filled

Not a minute should be lost when a child shows symptoms of croup. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Transfers of real estate for the weeks ending August 20 and 27. Concord township—G. W. Kimes to C. C. Smith. 32 ac. in E½SE¼ sec 26, and W½NE¼ and E½E½NW¼ and N½NE¼N E¼ sec 35, $1.00. C. C. Smith to G. W. Kimes 32 ac in E½SE¼ sec 26, and W½ NE¼ and N½NE¼NE¼ and E½E½NW¼ sec 25, $1.00.

WANTED—COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE requires the services of a representative in St. Joe to look after subscription renewals and to extend circulation by special methods which have proved unusually successful. Salary and commission. Previous experience desirable but not essential. Whole time or spare time. Address, with reference, H. C. Campbell, Cosmopolitan Magazine, 1789 Broadway, New York City.

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at .....10:32 a. m.
No. 3 .....8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at.....6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at.....4:57 p.m.

D. F. BROWN,

.....SHOE SHOP.....

My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite Kagey's Grocery. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.

St. Joe, - Ind.

You will find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Especially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37-4.

FOR SEPTEMBER.

Now softened suns a mellow luster shed,
The laden orchards glow with tempting red;
On hazel boughs the clusters hang embrowned,
And with the hunting horn the fields resound.

—Old September Poem.

Well we should say so, and the mellow horn of Mr. Morgan will awake the morn, bidding us garner for the bins and cribs in which we labor for his royal nibs. The summer ended and the blower on, the respite over and the money gone, and Rockefeller as we drill along, bowing and hoping we are well and strong.

The seaside sojourner will quit the shore, and the summer girl will line up three or four conquests in puppy love she has around, and choose the one that is to go undrowned. The which selection from the litter born of summer madness she will then suborn with things sufficient to unlock its eyes, and hurry homeward with the gasping prize.

The busted tourist will return from France with hotel stickers stuck upon his pants, and tarred and postalcarded by his friends, will reap the penalty of what he sends. They'll waltz him up and down upon a rail, and alternately turn him head and tail, or howsoever they may best enjoy the views in Venice or the site of Troy.

The festive calf will blithely sniff and snort, and deftly tip up where the hair is short, and in the quiet even after-glow the quail will pipe his dulcet picolo. The bold insurgent will insurge the more, and fill the planet with his dreadful roar, and each one betting he will not be last, the autumn candidates will gallop past.

The new progressive and the Democrat, the uninsurging that are standing pat, and in the midst of them, unfaint of heart, our Mr. Bryan on the water cart. A maze of issues, and a mass of men, and lo, a gallus busting now and then, and not especially alarmed by it, the trusts desisting till the swarm has lit.

The man from Elba trying to come back,
And the poor consumer in his cul-de-sac
Unknowing if the quaking earth portends
Death or the near approach, perhaps, of friends.

But howsoever and be it as may, the dread mosquito will have had its day, and joining Satan in its spectral growth, have made it real hell there for them both. The while the earthly remnant of it swings upon the window screen, and drying clings to that post which, though wanting mortal fire, it still holds with its face against the wire.

The sad first day of school will come to pass,
And the barefoot boy will hide out in the grass,
And by the time we've caught these malcontents,
The Crippen chase will look like thirty cents.

Milady Fashion in her hobble skirt will stride the pavement with the men alert to set her right side up again in case she should in time turn turtle any place. It does beat thunder what the women wear, and how they stick on other people's hair, constrict their middles and constrain their toes and what importance they attach to clothes. But bless us, are they after all to blame, or had they been in these things quite the same if Mother Eve's first thought, as we suppose, had not been necessarily of clothes? Was it to be expected in her case that with a man somewhere upon the place she ever thought of anything at all but gowns, slipovers, or perhaps a shawl?

But anyhow, the crawfish will have holed
And the pumpkin shown the faintest trace of gold,
The sassafras will don a redder dress,
And the gods will crowd around the cider press.

Or prohibition or whatever will, here is a fountain that shall serve us still, a place of resting and a steal away out of the desert and the heat of day. A place of quiet and the shade of palms, of irrigation and the soothing balms that no reformer till the poles embrace shall ever capture for a bathing place.

The hosts of labor will parade the street, which will remind us of a happy feat in arbitration from the olden days when Julius Caesar was a sort of craze. It is related of that ancient time that sweet September in the Roman clime was hot as blazes, and the union file could only march about a half a mile.

It wasn't anything at all, they say, to watch the mighty pageant get away, the music playing and the flags displayed, and see it suddenly duck for the shade. The gasping drummer with his sounding drum, the bronzed mechanics who perhaps had come a dozen squares, and in the frantic rout, age and apprentice with its tongue stick out.....

The faint impression the procession made on Roman capital for long dismayed the union leaders, when the serried ranks at times not even passed the Roman banks And so it was when mighty Caesar came, and having found the populace aflame, he shoved September from the seventh place along to ninth, which has remained the case. He merely interchanged it with July, but when he asked them how was that for high, they fairly inundated him with smiles, and have since been doing about twenty miles.

The autumn equinox will come around,
And Roosevelt, by that time eastward bound,
Will aid it in the making of such storms
As they may find necessary to a few reforms.

And then the sun will turn still softer yet,
And the bold October, having duly set
His planes, and carefully put on his brake,
Will see what sort of landing he can make.

A MAN OR IRON NERVE.

Indomitable will and tremendous energy are never found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills, the matchless regulators, for keen brain and strong body. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

Too Much for Him.

They numbered four. They absolutely exuded prosperity. The things which they ordered were such as to fill with envy the breast of the man at the next table, engaged in consuming the most modest dish disclosed by the bill of fare.

The four were conversing—languid, plutocratic conversation. After a while it turned to the question of money. Evidently they wanted to do something. How much money had they? One of the four took out his pocketbook and counted up a roll of bills.

"Oh, I have a hundred and forty," he said, carelessly.

The second and third members of the party went through their pockets.

"I have two hundred and fifteen," remarked one.

"And I have three hundred," said the other.

The fourth waved his hand—grandly.

"Never mind, you fellows," he said. "I'll lend you all you want."

Tenderly, waiters bore the man at the next table out into the cold air. He will recover.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank; you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

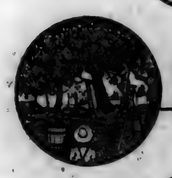
There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

Look Ahead A Little

It may be like this in August

And this way in September



And even like this in October but —

In November your thoughts will turn to such scenes as these.

Stove Time is Coming

In November you will need a Base Burner—perhaps a new Cooking Stove. To prepare for this we are putting in a new stock of Favorites, because we know there are no others in the market quite as good. The Favorite Base Burner is in a class by itself. Come and see it and we will show you why it will throw out more heat and consume about half as much fuel as other makes.

Don't put off the stove question till the cold days come." In Summertime prepare for Winter.

J. W. BURWELL & SON

St. Joe, Ind.

J D Fetters

TRUSTEE
of Concord Township.

OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK
at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

DENTIST

C. R. PRICE.

ST. JOE, IND.

Office in Case building.

Bell Phone No. 44.

5% FARM LOANS 5%

SEE

Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.

Bell 347k Home 346

Office:

Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

The Original Humbug.

Two English boys, being friends of Darwin, thought one day that they would play a joke on him. They caught a butterfly, a grasshopper, a beetle and centipede, and out of these creatures they made a strange composite insect. They took the centipede's body, the butterfly's wings, the grasshopper's legs and the beetle's head, and they glued them together carefully. Then, with their new bug in a box, they knocked at Darwin's door.

"We caught this bug in a field," they said; "can you tell us what kind of a bug it is, sir?"

Darwin looked at the bug and then he looked at the boys. He smiled slightly.

"Did it hum when you caught it?" he asked.

"Yes," they answered, nudging one another.

"Then," said Darwin, "it is a humbug."

IT SAVED HIS LEG.

"All thought I'd lose my leg," writes J. A. Swensen, of Watertown, Wis. "Ten years of eczema that fifteen doctors could not cure, had at last laid me up. Then Bucklin's Arnica Salve cured it, sound and well." Infallible for Skin Eruptions, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Boils, Fever Sores, Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Piles. 5c at H. L. Dunkle's.

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

Calls answered day or night.

Phone No. 89.

St. Joe, - Indiana.

Real Estate.

Insurance

NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Elza Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son,

Phone No. Office 37-2. Residence 37-3

SEPTEMBER

0513

L 904

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

SPENCERVILLE.

Read your own NEWS.

Read the ads and be posted.

Lutheran S. S., 60 attendance $1.77 collection.

J. F. Baltz made a business trip to Ft. Wayne, last week.

Mr. Frank Baltz was working on his farm last week, getting ready to move.

Mrs. Charley Treece, who has been on the sick list, is a little better at this writing.

Before buying your machine oil see Erick & Co's Eldorado Castor. Only 20c. per gallon. It's a fine one.

Mrs. George Howey and Mrs. Clara Clark and daughter Avis, also Lena and Nellie Kelley spent last Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Jerome Cook and family.

Your complexion as well as your temper is rendered miserable by a disordered liver. By taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets you can improve both. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

The ball game between Auburn and the local team of this place, on last Saturday, was an exciting game. Auburn had a strong lineup and Spencerville had the best men in their lineup. Spencerville started things rolling by smashing out three hits and scoring three runs, and the games was in no stage dangerous to the locals. The game stood 11 to 6 in favor of the home team.

S. S. Kimes

—M. D.—

Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.

Phone No. 10.

Spencerville, Ind.

Maude Kline is visiting relatives at Auburn.

George Henderson and family spent Sunday at Robison Park.

Jerome Cook made a business trip to Grabill, last Wednesday.

C. E. Chapman and wife spent Sunday afternoon with D. C. Butler.

Mrs. Henry Murray called on Mrs. Chas. Chapman, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Daniel Oberholtzer made a business trip to Ft. Wayne, last Thursday.

Mrs. Samuel Zeis of Harlan, spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Issac Grill.

F. D. Lake and family spent Sunday with his parents, Chas. Lakes', west of town.

David Shook and family of Richland Center, visited Dr. Shooks', Saturday and Sunday.

Ralph and Vernie Wise of Newville, spent Saturday and Sunday with their sister, Mrs. Vallieu.

Ett Walker, wife and daughter Grace, of Hicksville, called on J. W. Beams', Sunday afternoon.

Don't waste your money buying plasters when you can get a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment for twenty-five cents. A piece of flannel dampened with this liniment is superior to any plaster for lame back, pains in the side and chest, and much cheaper. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Mrs. J. F. Baltz wishes to thank her friends and relatives for the beautiful cards she received on her 61st. birthday.

Miss Pauline Moffett has been visiting relatives near Spencerville for a few days, and attended the Sechler reunion.

Guy Fales, Corma Kelley and Lewis Treece played ball with the St. Joe ball team against Woodburn at the Bull Rapids picnic, Monday.

A HIT!

Our Hardware Bargains Are All HOME RUNS

Come in and we'll coach you around the bases with pleasure

Tools, Fertilizers, Stoves, Kitchen Ware

EVERYTHING YOU NEED

J. BEAMS

Robert Beams left Monday morning to attend school at Butler, taking the fourth year work

Dean Metcalf and family of Milwaukee, came Sunday for a visit with his parents, D. D. Metcalf and wife of the County Line.

Mrs. Blon Wade and Mrs. Beulah Vallieu and children called on Mrs. B. Koontz, Saturday evening.

Mr. DeWitt Britton of North Baltimore, Ohio, visited in the home of Clinton Wearley for a few days last week.

Miss Mason of Bluffton and Mr Frank Hickman of Ft. Wayne, attended the Epworth League Rally here last Sunday.

Peter Steward and wife and Arminta Steward took in the Detroit excursion on Saturday while on Sunday several others went. Edwin Berry and wife of St. Joe joined them on their trip.

Will Moore and wife, Frank Pervines and wife, and John Goldsmith and wife were entertained to Sunday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Brown. Ice cream and cake were also served in the afternoon by the hostess.

THE LASH OF A FIEND

Would have been about as welcome to A. Cooper, of Oswego, N. Y., as a merciless lung-racking cough that defied all remedies for years. "It was most troublesome at night," he writes, "nothing helped me till I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which cured me completely. I never cough at night now." Millions know its matchless merit for stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, sore lungs, lagrippe, asthma, hemorrhage, croup, whooping cough, or hay fever. It relieves quickly and never fails to satisfy. A trial convinces. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. It's positively guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

A Good Position

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R. R. and Wireless officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Cincinnati, O., or Philadelphia, Pa.

It May Be Pneumonia

"A hard chill, pain through the chest, difficult breathing. Then fever, with great prostration." If this should be your experience, send for your doctor. You may have pneumonia! If your doctor cannot come at once, give Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. When he comes, tell him exactly what you have done. Then do as he says. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J.C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Keep the bowels in good condition. One of Ayer's Pills at bedtime will cause an increased flow of bile, and produce a gentle laxative effect the day following.

Mrs. Henry Beams called on Frank Beams', Saturday evening.

The M. E. Sunday School attended the Cedarville picnic, Saturday.

F. L. Beams and family spent Sunday with his parents, Henry Beams'.

Gerwood Roller and family of Harlan, were seen on our streets, Sunday.

William Miller and family of Harlan, spent Sunday with J. C. Vallieu and family.

Martin Davis visited his daughter, Mrs. Cramer at Ft. Wayne, Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Wares of Wayne is the guest of L. W. Steward and family for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Pearl Helbert and wife of Robison Chapel, spent Sunday afternoon in the Steward home.

Lewis Lake, son of F. D. Lake underwent an operation, Sunday morning, he is improving slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gloyd and family who were visiting at Lacarne, O., and Tiffin, Ohio, returned home Saturday.

Lewis Vallieu and family of Fort Wayne, and William Vallieu and wife of Harlan, spent Tuesday evening with J. C. Vallieu and family.

Last Sunday, grandma Tripp accidently fell in the home of Stephen Silberg, and as a result her hip was broken. She is quite an aged lady.

"Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means that it never fails to cure diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is pleasant to take and equally valuable for children and adults. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

YOU ARE ALWAYS WELCOME AT THE

TREECE RESTAURANT

Lunch, Cigars, Confectionary, Ice Cream and Soft Drinks

Clem Treece

PROPRIETOR.

SPENCERVILLE
R. F. D. No. 1.

Miss Minnie Fredric spent Saturday evening with Miss Ruth Hay.

Mr. and Mrs. Christwell's daughter, which is a trained nurse of Toledo, is spending a few weeks with her parents.

Mr. Dwyer and family spent Sunday with Mr. Swain and family of near Ft. Wayne.

Geo. Mason and wife spent Sunday with Val Hay and family.

Rev. Barton, wife and daughter, are spending a few weeks with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Metcalf.

Mrs. John McNabb and father, Mr. Elias Spitler attended the picnic at Cedarville Saturday.

Mrs. Notestien and daughter, Hallie and Mrs. Geo. Horn and daughter, Mary, called on Grace McNabb Friday.

Miss Mary Notestien, who has been working at Ft. Wayne, is spending a few days with her parents.

John McNabb and wife and Perry Miller and wife, visited with Philip Chaney's Sunday night.

Eck Vanzile and family, spent Thursday at the Hicksville Fair.

Quite a number from this vicinity attended the Methodist Day at the park Thursday.

Rev. Byrt and son took dinner with Val Hay and family Tuesday.

Val Hay made a business trip to Auburn and Waterloo Saturday.

Misses Theresa and Ruth Hay and Gladys Paff, spent Friday afternoon with Venus Horn.

Abe Mason and Tom Wann are on the sick list.

Ted Paff visited with John Bair and family Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mason, Hiram Mason and wife, Samuel McClure and wife and Mr. Gype of Auburn, were entertained at the home of John Mason and wife Sunday.

Spencerville High School.

The Spencerville High School was organized in the year 1905, having to the present time a three years course. In the five years of its existence the school has shown a rapid growth, both in increasing numbers and in its educational efficiency. The only and sure proof any educational institution has of proving its future efficiency is its finish products—namely its graduates. The following are a few who have taken the fourth year and graduated in other schools—Argyl Beams took first honor at the Butler High School, Clarence Steward took second honor at the Harlan High School, another scholar whose name is requested to be witheld took first honor at Harlan. Edward Carnes has made an excellent showing in the California schools as stated by California newspaper. Other names might be mentioned but this article is not intended to innumerate our great achievements but it is merely to show the patrons of Spencer township what this school is worth, not only in dollars and cents, but in its nearness to your homes. Trustee Erick has worked hard to put in a four years course and has succeeded. The basement will be fitted and furnished for a laboratory and the upper rooms will be rearranged for the necessary equipments. Two teachers have been hired by Trustee Erick namely Miss O'Brien and Mr. Ort Wearley.

Just a few words to the patrons of Spencer Township: If you, the patrons, do not know the value of your four year course which has been so hard to get, then it can be honestly said that you have something yet to learn about school matters. Sending children away from home to school looks wise and big, especially, to the student and afterwards to the parents when they view their pocketbook And that is not all. Very often when students go abroad they return with a different kind of an education than they were sent to get, and who return home to disappoint their parents. The school officials will tell you that they can not give you a school equal to that of our universities etc., with small means but they will tell you that they can give you a school which will be better for any student than the far away school. Let it be said that the author of this article is a student himself and knows what he is talking about. Parents if you wish to put your children in school in a city then move to that city but if you wish to stay on the farm put your children in home schools. It is better to graduate out of a small school with a character back of it than to obtain the wisdom and knowledge of Solomon in a foreign school without a character. These remarks may be radical and pessimistic in sound but it is far better to be radical and sure in life in being a pessimist than to be a blind optimist. Many students make good in foreign schools and many do not.

The County Superintendent and other higher school officials who are in a position to know whereof they speak, can see no reason why this should not be made a commissioned school this year, if, the patrons are ready to assist in preparing the school to be such.

This can not be done without financial support, and it is to the interest of every citizen of the township, whether you have children to educate or not, to take an active part in this matter and help to raise the standing of our schools, for by their schools are committees judged. The time is now here when this should be done. A number of fourth year pupils have asked to be transfered here from the surrounding townships and there is surely a fine prospect for a full school this year. Then why put off commissioning longer? Why wait another year and then look back to a wasted year with regret? Now is the accepted time. The classes will all be full. All that is necessary is that the patrons take hold and push and if each one does his part there will be nothing left to regret.

The school building is now undergoing the changes necessary and everything will soon be ready for the opening of school which will be Sept. 19th., 1910.

DON'T BREAK DOWN.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause breakdowns. You can't overtax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters, the matchless tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sende, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. 50c. At H. L. Dunkle's.

W. G. Erick

TRUSTEE

of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY

TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK

at Store in

SPENCERVILLE, IND

WERNERT

WALL PAPER: We are closing out our spring stock to make room for new fall patterns, at COST

Paints, oils and Pharmacuticles.

Perscriptions carefully compounded.

SPENCERVILLE

EVES AT WINDSOR.

The Tipping Habit Makes Stay of Royal Guests Expensive.

While King Manuel of Portugal had a "perfectly ripping" time during his stay in London it was, from a financial point of view, an expensive experience. It's no joke for a King to visit anywhere, let alone at a palace like Windsor, where every royal guest is supposed—indeed, expected—to leave a princely trail of presents behind him at the close of his stay. There is not only a lump sum handed over for distribution among the lower servants, but also the diamond pins, jeweled cigarette cases and watches presented to every one who ministers to the safety and luxury of the visitor.

King Manuel seems to have done all that was expected of him in this respect, though he will not, of course, rank with certain sovereigns who have left a record for generosity at the castle. Windsor has its traditions of munificence, and royal servants can tell one another the status of the late Shah, Napoleon III., the German Emperor and all the rest of the visitors there by the amount of their tips.

Napoleon III. left a great impression of generosity, but even he is outranked by Emperor Nicholas of Russia, who excelled all royal guests in his munificence. When he left the castle he handed over $10,000 in tips to the servants, and he left nearly half as much again to be distributed among various charities.

Another very expensive affair for the King of Portugal was becoming a Knight of the Garter. He had to purchase all his insignia, of course, with the exception of the ribbon and the actual garter. The star of the order is the most costly item, and he had to spend on this not less than $10,000. The star that was worn by the Earl of Beaconsfield was sold after his death for $60,000, and there are several knights of the order to-day who carry a small fortune on their breasts when wearing their robes and insignia.

The collar of the order is another large expense, and then there are the disbursements that have to be made to the various officials of the Garter. Every one who can pretend even remotely to have taken share in the investiture seems to look upon the new knight as his prey and bills for fees set out in true commercial fashion soon pour in upon him.

The Hinter.

"If there is one thing I hate," said the determined young business woman as she sat down to lunch in a down town restaurant, "it's the hinter. If someone wants to borrow an umbrella or some money from you let her say so right out, not come shambling into your office, take away all your valuable time beating around the bush and droping fool hints on the way. I don't take a hint. I'm not dense, but I want to discourage the habit. I think it shows cowardice.

"Take the man who wants to come to see you. Why can't he say, 'May I call?' No, he hasn't the courage of his convictions, but he has to hem and haw, look sheepish and hint for dear life. I won't have a man like that in my house. Same thing with girls. Don't you hate the kind that suggests to a man that a taxi is so comfortable and she does loathe the street cars, or the one who asks him if he's seen the lovely display at a certain candy store or the 'cute' little boxes they send with Thorley's flowers. It would be safer for her if she kept off the subject, for the chief fun in doing things lies in planning them, and nothing is so maddening as to have others make the suggestions. The hinter only makes herself unpopular, and the sooner she knows it the better. Keep quiet or say right out what you want.

"Now, don't hint that you'd like an oyster cocktal, because you won't get one if you do. Sing out like a little woman—have one? Good!"

Prohibition Column.

Local Option vs Prohibition

There has been much said about the advantages of Local Option vs. Prohibition as being the quickest way to get rid of the legalized liquor traffic. Many good meaning people think that the best way to get rid of the saloons is to begin to educate the people by voting the saloon out of a local territory, thus showing the moral sentiment of the community, that it is against the public sale of liquors in that territory. While the Local Option plan is to prevent the sale of liquor in a local way, the Prohibition plan is to make it impossible for it to be secured to be drank in the same local territory. To illustrate what we mean we will look at conditions in St. Joe, it reported that just last Saturday night men were seen on the streets in an intoxicated condition, some were seen carrying baskets of bottles of beer along the streets. On Sunday small boys were seen drinking from beer bottles along the banks of the river, now this is local option. The people [that is a majority] says we must not have a saloon to disgrace our town, but the minority says we will have the booze if we want it. Now if we do not want the saloon we do not want the drunkard making liquors drank in our town, but as long as the government is in the liquor business for the revenue there is derived from it, and the same government makes the laws which control our commerce just that long we will be under obligation to suffer humiliation along this line. Now our government is the majority of the voters, who elect men to assemble in our legislative halls and enact the laws which shall rule all alike. Someone says Prohibition can't prohibit, it does, let us see. Have we a saloon in St. Joe? No, because the law says if the majority of the people say they do not want a saloon, then there shall be no saloon, that is prohibition: now let us go a step farther, and the same people who voted to keep the saloon out of St Joe or any local territory, or extend to the State or even to the United States, and say at the ballot box that we will not tolerate the existence of the saloon neither the manufacture of liquors for beverage purposes then the same law will be prohibitive in a state or national sense the same as it is in a local way.

The courts have decided that our Local Option law is not a prohibitive law, it only regulates the liquor business the same as our license laws is a regulator of the saloon business. Local Option is a very elastic law, it prohibits the saloon in one locality and likewise prohibits prohibition in another locality. It is protective as well as prohibitive. It protects the people who do not want the saloon in their midst, it also protects the saloon against the temperance people where the temperance vote is in the minority. There is a just reason why this glorious law should be left alone, which it has by both leading political parties in this state. It is the teeter-board on which the temperance people can play with the saloon element on friendly terms and have lots of fun; the saloon up, the temperance people down, the temperance side up and the saloon down. What jolly fun. Why do we want to adopt prohibition where we won't have any liquor traffic to teeter with.

THE BALTIMORE and OHIO RAILROAD

Very Low Fares to

Baltimore, Md.—Grand United Order of Odd Fellows Sept. 9, 10, 11.

Atlantic City—G. A. R. National Encampment, Sept. 15 to 19, inclusive.

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO—Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and Other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES—South, Southwest, West, Northwest

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST. Long Limits.

Consult BALTIMORE and OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stop-over Privileges and Other Details.

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0514

MUNYON'S RHEUMATISM CURE

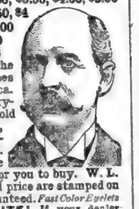
Has cured thousands and it can cure you. Relieves from the first. All Druggists 25c

W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES

HAND-SEWED PROCESS

MEN'S $2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $5.00
WOMEN'S $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4
BOYS' $2.00, $2.50 & $3.00

THE STANDARD FOR 30 YEARS



They are absolutely the most popular and best shoes for the price in America. They are the leaders everywhere because they hold their shape, fit better, look better and wear longer than other makes. They are certainly the most economical shoes for you to buy. W. L. Douglas name and retail price are stamped on the bottom—value guaranteed. Fast Color Eyelets

TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE! If your dealer cannot supply you write for Mail Order Catalog.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

TRY MURINE EYE REMEDY

For Red, Weak, Weary, Watery Eyes and GRANULATED EYELIDS

Murine Doesn't Smart—Soothes Eye Pain

Druggists Sell Murine Eye Remedy, Liquid, 25c, 50c, $1.00
Murine Eye Salve, in Aseptic Tubes, 25c, $1.00
EYE BOOKS AND ADVICE FREE BY MAIL

Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

OF COURSE.

The Friend—Your new patent medicine seems to have gained a great reputation for curing people. To what do you attribute its great curative powers?

The Boss—To extensive and judicious advertising.

Why He Was Sorry.

To impress on young children just what should and what should not be done and why, is among the most trying problems of parents, as evidenced by the recent experience of a West Philadelphia mother. Last Sunday she asked her small son, aged eight, to carry a chair for her from the dining room to the parlor. He started off willingly, but in the hall he tripped and fell. Amid the crash could be heard the boy giving vent to utterances that would have done credit to a pirate of ancient days. The mother was taken by surprise and was greatly shocked. She gave the boy a long and serious talk on the subject of profanity. This apparently did not make the right impression for when she concluded the boy added to her discomfiture by exclaiming, "I am sorry I swore, mamma, but I forgot it was Sunday."

Points of View.

Venus was rising from the sea.

"What a vision!" cried the men on the beach.

"What a horrid bathing suit!" echoed the women, enviously.—Chicago News.

LACK OF MONEY

Was a Godsend in This Case.

It is not always that a lack of money is a benefit.

A lady of Green Forest, Ark., owes her health to the fact that she could not pay in advance the fee demanded by a specialist to treat her for stomach trouble. In telling of her case she says:

"I had been treated by four different physicians during 10 years of stomach trouble. Lately I called on another who told me he could not cure me; that I had neuralgia of the stomach. Then I went to a specialist who told me I had catarrh of the stomach and said he could cure me in four months but would have to have his money down. I could not raise the necessary sum and in my extremity I was led to quit coffee and try Postum.

"So I stopped coffee and gave Postum a thorough trial and the results have been magical. I now sleep well at night, something I had not done for a long time; the pain in my stomach is gone and I am a different woman.

"I dreaded to quit coffee, because every time I had tried to stop it I suffered from severe headaches, so I continued to drink it although I had reason to believe it was injurious to me and was the cause of my stomach trouble and extreme nervousness. But when I had Postum to shift to it was different.

"To my surprise I did not miss coffee when I began to drink Postum.

"Coffee had been steadily and surely killing me and I didn't fully realize what was doing it until I quit and changed to Postum."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

"INTERESTS" FLAYED BY COL. ROOSEVELT

Vigorous Address on Personal and National Liberty Delivered by the Former President at the Dedication of John Brown Park at Osawatomie, Kan.

Osawatomie, Kan., Aug. 31.—Theodore Roosevelt was the chief figure today in the second and last day of the dedication ceremonies of John Brown park, which is a part of the site on which was fought the battle of Osawatomie on Aug. 30, 1856. He took the opportunity to deliver a stirring address on the necessity of destroying the control of the special interests, and was cheered to the echo by a great crowd of hearers.

Preliminary exercises were held yesterday, and the program was resumed at 10:30 this morning with a concert by the Thirteenth Regiment band, followed by a drill by troops of the Kansas National guard and the regular army. Meanwhile Col. Roosevelt's train had arrived and all the thousands of people assembled here went to the station to greet him.

After dinner all gathered in the new park, where there was a parade by the soldiery, the Grand Army Woman's Relief corps and civic societies and another band concert. Then, after a vocal solo by Miss Elizabeth Uhls and an invocation, the president of the board of trustees, Cora M. Deputy, formally presented the park to the state on behalf of the Woman's Relief corps of Kansas, which bought the ground. Governor Stubbs responded gracefully for the state, and then the chairman, J. B. Remington, introduced the distinguished orator of the day, former President Roosevelt.

Oration by Colonel Roosevelt.

Col. Roosevelt stood silent and smiling until the storm of applause had died down, and then spoke as follows:

There have been two great crises in our country's history; first when it was formed, and then again when it was perpetuated. The formative period included not merely the Revolutionary war, but the creation and adoption of the Constitution under it. Then came sixty years during which we spread across the continent—years of vital growth, but of growth without rather than growth within. Then came the time of stress and strain which culminated in the Civil war, the period of terrible struggle upon the issue of which depended the justification of all that we had done earlier, and which marked the second great period of growth and development within. The name of John Brown will be forever associated with this second period of the Nation's history; and Kansas was the theater upon which the first act of the second of our great National life dramas was played. It was the result of the struggle in Kansas which determined that our country should be in deed as well as in name devoted to both union and freedom, that the great experiment of democratic government on a National scale should succeed and not fail. It was a heroic struggle; and, as is inevitable with all such struggles, it had also a dark and terrible side. Very much was done of good, and much also of evil; and, as was inevitable in such a period of revolution, often the same man did both good and evil. For our great good fortune as a Nation, we, the people of the United States as a whole, can now afford to forget the evil, or at least to remember it without bitterness, and to fix our eyes with pride on the good that was accomplished. Even in ordinary times there are very few of us who do not see the problems of life as through a glass, darkly; and when the glass is clouded by the murk of furious popular passion, the vision of the best and the bravest is dimmed. Looking back, we are all of us now able to do justice to the valor and the disinterestedness and the love of the right as to each it was given to see the right, shown both by the men of the north and the men of the south in that contest which was finally decided by the attitude of the west. We can admire the heroic valor, the sincerity, the self-devotion shown alike by the men who wore the blue and the men who wore the gray; and our sadness that such men should have had to fight one another is tempered by the glad knowledge that ever hereafter their descendants shall be found fighting side by side, struggling in peace as well as in war for the uplift of their common country, all alike resolute to raise to the highest pitch of honor and usefulness the Nation to which they all belong. As for the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic, they deserve honor and recognition such as is paid to no other citizens of the Republic; for to them the Republic owes its all, for to them it owes its very existence.

Application of the Lesson.

I do not speak of this struggle of the past merely from the historic standpoint. Our interest is primarily in the application today of the lessons taught by the contest of half a century ago. It is of little use for us to pay lip loyalty to the mighty men of the past unless we sincerely endeavor to apply to the problems of the present precisely the qualities which in other crises enabled the men of that day to meet those crises. It is half melancholy and half amusing to see the way in which well-meaning people gather to do honor to the men who, in company with John Brown, and under the lead of Abraham Lincoln, faced and solved the great problems of the nineteenth century, while at the same time these same good people nervously shrink from or frantically denounce those who are trying to meet the problems of the twentieth in the spirit which was accountable for the successful solution of the problems of Lincoln's time.

Of that generation of men, to whom we owe so much, the man to whom we owe the most is, of course, Lincoln. Part of our debt to him is because he forecast our present struggle and saw the way out. He said:

"I hold that while man exists it is his duty to improve not only his own condition, but to assist in ameliorating mankind." And again, "Labor is prior to and independent of capital; capital is only the fruit of labor, and could never have existed but for labor. Labor is the superior of capital and deserves much the higher consideration. Capital has its rights which are as worthy of protection as any other rights. . . Nor should this lead to a war upon the owners of property. Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; is a positive good in the world. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example showing that his own shall be safe from violence when built." It seems to me that in these words Lincoln took substantially the attitude that we ought to take; he showed the proper sense of proportion in his relative estimates of capital and labor, of human rights and property rights. Above all, in this speech, as in many others, he taught a lesson in wise kindliness and charity; an indispensable lesson to us of today. But this wise kindliness and charity never weakened his arm or numbed his heart. We cannot afford weakly to blind ourselves to the actual conflict which faces us today. The issue is joined, and we must fight or fail.

Equality of Opportunity.

In every wise struggle for human betterment one of the main objects, and often the only object, has been to achieve in larger measure equality of opportunity. In the struggle for this great end, nations rise from barbarism to civilization, and through it peoples press forward from one stage of enlightenment to the next. One of the chief factors in progress is the destruction of special privilege. The essence of any struggle for healthy liberty has always been and must always be to take from some one man or class of men the right to enjoy power, or wealth, or position, or immunity, which has not been earned by service to his or their fellows.

At many stages in the advance of humanity this conflict between the men who possess more than they have earned and the men who have earned more than they possess is the central condition of progress. In our day it appears as the struggle of free men to gain and hold the right of self-government as against the special interests, who twist the methods of free government into machinery for defeating the popular will. At every stage and under all circumstances the essence of the struggle is to equalize opportunity, destroy privilege, and give to the life and citizenship of every individual the highest possible value both to himself and to the commonwealth.

Practical equality of opportunity for all citizens, when we achieve it, will have two great results. First, every man will have a fair chance to make of himself all that in him lies, to reach the highest point to which his capacities, unassisted by special privilege of his own and unhampered by the special privileges of others, can carry him, and to get for himself and his family substantially what he has earned. Second, equality of opportunity means that the commonwealth will get from every citizen the highest service of which he is capable. No man who carries the burden of the special privileges of another can give to the commonwealth that service to which it is fairly entitled.

I stand for the square deal. But when I say that I am for the square deal I mean not merely that I stand for fair play under the present rules of the game, but that I stand for having those rules changed so as to work for a more substantial equality of opportunity, and of reward for equally good service.

This means that our governments, National and State, must be freed from the sinister influence or control of special interests. Exactly as the special interests of cotton and slavery threatened our political integrity before the Civil war, so now the great special business interests too often control and corrupt the men and methods of government for their own profit. We must drive the special interests out of politics. That is one of our tasks today. Every special interest is entitled to justice—full, fair, and complete—but not one is entitled to a vote in congress, a voice on the bench, or to representation in any public office. The Constitution guarantees protection to property, and we must make that promise good. But it does not give the right of suffrage to any corporation.

Property Should Be the Servant.

The true friend of property, the true conservative, is he who insists that property shall be the servant and not the master of the commonwealth; who insists that the creature of man's making shall be the servant and not the master of the man who made it. The citizen of the United States must effectively control the mighty commercial forces which they have themselves called into being.

There can be no effective control of corporations while their political activity remains. To put an end to it will be neither a short nor an easy task, but it can be done.

We must have complete and effective publicity of corporate affairs, so that the people may know beyond peradventure whether the corporations obey the law and whether their management entitles them to the confidence of the public. It is necessary that laws should be passed to prohibit the use of corporate funds directly or indirectly for political purposes; it is still more necessary that such laws should be thoroughly enforced. Corporate expenditures for political purposes, and especially such expenditures by public service corporations, have supplied one of the principal sources of corruption in our political affairs.

It has become entirely clear that we must have government supervision of the capitalization not only of public service corporations, including particularly railways, but of all corporations doing an inter-state business. I do not wish to see the Nation forced into ownership of the railways if it can possibly be avoided, and the only alternative is thoroughgoing and effective regulation, which shall be based on a full knowledge of all the facts, including a physical valuation of the property. This physical valuation is not needed, or at least is very rarely needed, for fixing rates; but it is needed as the basis of honest capitalization.

We have come to recognize that franchises should never be granted except for a limited time, and never without proper provision for compensation to the public. It is my personal belief that the same kind and degree of control and supervision which should be exercised over public service corporations should be extended also to combinations which control necessaries of life, such as meat, oil, and coal, or which deal in them on an important scale.

I believe that the officers, and especially the directors, of corporations, should be held personally responsible when any corporation breaks the law.

Dealing With Combinations.

Combinations in industry are the result of an imperative economic law which cannot be repealed by political legislation. The effort at prohibiting all combination has substantially failed. The way out lies not in attempting to prevent such combinations, but in completely controlling them in the interest of the public welfare. For that purpose the Federal Bureau of Corporations is an agency of the first importance. Its power and therefore its efficiency, as well as that of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, should be largely increased. We have a right to expect from the Bureau of Corporations and from the Inter-State Commerce Commission a very high grade of public service. We should be as sure of the proper conduct of inter-state railways and the proper management of inter-state business as we are now sure of the conduct and management of the National banks, and we should have as effective supervision in one case as in the other. The Hepburn act, and the amendment to that act in the shape in which it finally passed congress at the last session, represent a long step in advance and we must go yet further.

There is a widespread belief among our people that, under the methods of making tariffs which have hitherto obtained, the special interests are too influential. Probably this is true of both the big interests and the little interests. These methods have put a premium on selfishness, and naturally the selfish big interests have gotten more than the selfish small interests. The duty of congress is to provide a method by which the interest of the whole people shall be all that receives consideration. To this end there must be an expert tariff commission, wholly removed from the possibility of political pressure or of improper business influence. Such a commission can find out the real difference between cost of production, which is mainly the difference of labor cost here and abroad. As fast as its recommendations are made, I believe in revising one schedule at a time. A general revision of the tariff almost inevitably leads to log-rolling, and the subordination of the general public interest to local and special interests.

The absence of effective state, and especially National, restraint upon unfair money-getting has tended to create a small class of enormously wealthy and economically powerful men, whose chief object is to hold and increase their power. The prime need is to change the conditions which enable these men to accumulate power which it is not for the general welfare that they should hold or exercise. We grudge no man a fortune which represents his own power and sagacity, when exercised with entire regard to the welfare of his fellows. But the fortune must be honorably obtained and well used. It is not even enough that it should have been gained without doing damage to the community. We should permit it to be gained only so long as the gaining represents benefit to the community. This, I know, implies a policy of a far more active governmental interference with social and economic conditions in this country than we have yet had, but I think we have got to face the fact that such an increase in governmental control is now necessary.

Income and Inheritance Taxes.

No man should receive a dollar unless that dollar has been fairly earned. Every dollar received should represent a dollar's worth of service rendered. The really big fortune, the swollen fortune, by the mere fact of its size, acquires qualities which differentiate it in kind as well as in degree from what is possessed by men of relatively small means. Therefore I believe in a graduated income tax on big fortunes, and in another tax which is far more easily collected and far more effective—a graduated inheritance tax on big fortunes, properly safeguarded against evasion, and increasing rapidly in amount with the size of the estate.

The people of the United States suffer from periodical financial panics to a degree substantially unknown among the other nations which approach us in financial strength. There is no reason we should suffer what they escape. It is of profound importance that our financial system should be promptly investigated, and so thoroughly and effectively revised as to make it certain that hereafter our currency will no longer fail at critical times to meet our needs.

It is hardly necessary for me to repeat that I believe in an efficient army and a navy large enough to secure for us abroad that respect which is the surest guarantee of peace. Justice and fair dealing among nations rest on principles identical with those which control justice and fair dealing among the individuals of which nations are composed; with the vital exception that each nation must do its own partin international police work. National friendships, like those between men, must be founded on respect as well as on liking, on forbearance as well as upon trust. In all this it is peculiarly the duty of the United States to set a good example.

Of conservation I shall speak more at length elsewhere. Conservation means development as much as it does protection. I recognize the right and the duty of this generation to develop and use the natural resources of our land, but I do not recognize the right to waste them, or to rob, by wasteful use, the generations that come after us. The natural resources must be used for the benefit of all our people and not monopolized for the benefit of the few. That is one of the fundamental reasons why the special interests must be driven out of politics. Of all the questions which can come before this Nation, short of the actual preservation of its existence in a great war, there is none which compares in importance with the great central task of leaving this land even a better land for our descendants than it is for us, and training them into a better race to inhabit the land and pass it on. Conservation is a great moral issue, for it involves the patriotic duty of insuring the safety and continuance of the Nation. Let me add that the health and vitality of our people are at least as well worth conserving as their forests, waters, lands, and minerals, and that in this great work the National government must bear a most important part.

I have spoken elsewhere also of the great task which lies before the farmers of the country to get for themselves and for their wives and children not only the benefits of better farming, but also those of better business methods and better conditions of life on the farm. The burden of this great task will fall, as it should, mainly upon the great organizations of the farmers themselves. I am glad it will, for I believe they are well able to handle it. In particular, there are strong reasons why the departments of agriculture of the various states, the United States department of agriculture, and the agricultural colleges and experiment stations should extend their work to cover all phases of life on the farm, instead of limiting themselves, as they have far too often limited themselves in the past, solely to the question of the production of crops.

Human Welfare Comes First.

Nothing is more true than that excess of every kind is followed by reaction; a fact which should be pondered by reformer and reactionary alike. We are face to face with new conceptions of the relations of property to human welfare, chiefly because certain advocates of the rights of property as against the rights of men have been pushing their claims too far. The man who wrongly holds that every human right is secondary to his profit must now give way to the advocate of human welfare, who rightly maintains that every man holds his property subject to the general right of the community to regulate its use to whatever degree the public welfare may require it. But I think we may go still further. The right to regulate the use of wealth in the public interest is universally admitted. Let us admit also the right to regulate the terms and conditions of labor, which is the chief element of wealth, directly in the interest of the common good. The fundamental thing to do for every man is to give him the chance to reach a place in which he will make the greatest possible contribution to the public welfare. No man can be a good citizen unless he has a wage more than sufficient to cover the bare cost of living, and hours of labor short enough so that after his day's work is done he will have time and energy to bear his share in the management of the community, to help in carrying the general load. We keep countless men from being good citizens by the conditions of life with which we surround them. We need comprehensive workmen's compensation acts, both state and National laws to regulate child labor and the work of women, and especially we need in our common schools not merely education in book-learning but also practical training for daily life and work. We need to enforce better sanitary conditions for our workers, and to extend the use of safety appliances in industry and commerce both within and between the states. Also, friends, in the interest of the workingmen himself we need to set our faces like flint against mob violence just as against corporate greed; against violence and injustice and lawlessness by wage-workers just as much as against lawless cunning and greed and selfish arrogance of employers.

National efficiency has many factors. It is a necessary result of the principle of conservation widely applied. In the end it will determine our failure or success as a Nation. National efficiency has to do not only with natural resources and with men. It is equally concerned with institutions. The state must be made efficient for the work which concerns only the people of the state; and the Nation for that which concerns all the people. There must remain no neutral ground to serve as a refuge for lawbreakers, and especially for lawbreakers of great wealth, who can hire the culpine legal cunning which will teach them how to avoid both jurisdictions. It is a misfortune when the National legislature fails to do its duty in providing a National remedy, so that the only National activity is the purely negative activity of the judiciary in forbidding the state to exercise power in the premises.

Calls for Broad Nationalism.

I do not ask for over-centralization, but I do ask that we work in a spirit of broad and far-reaching Nationalism when we work for what concerns our people as a whole. We are all Americans. Our common interests are as broad as the continent. I speak to you here in Kansas exactly as I would speak in New York or Georgia, for the most vital problems are those which affect us all alike. The National government belongs to the whole American people, and where the whole American people are interested, that interest can be guarded effectively only by the National government. The betterment which we seek must be accomplished, I believe, mainly through the National government.

The American people are right in demanding that new Nationalism without which we cannot hope to deal with new problems. The new Nationalism puts the National need before sectional or personal advantage. It is impatient of the utter confusion that results from local legislatures attempting to treat National issues as local issues. It is still more impatient of the impotence which springs from the over-division of government powers, the impotence which makes it possible for local selfishness or for local cunning, hired by wealthy special interests, to bring National activities to a deadlock. This new Nationalism regards the executive power as the steward of the public welfare. It demands of the judiciary that it shall be interested primarily in human welfare rather than in property, just as it demands that the representative body shall represent all the people, rather than any one class or section of the people.

I believe in shaping the ends of government to protect property as well as human welfare. Normally, and in the long run, the ends are the same, but whenever the alternative must be faced I am for men and not for property. I am far from underestimating the importance of dividends, but I rank dividends below human character. I know well that the reformers must not bring upon the people economic ruin, or the reforms themselves will go down in the ruin. But we must be ready to face temporary disaster, whether or not brought on by those who will war against us to the knife. Those who oppose all reform will do well to remember that ruin in its worst form is inevitable if our National life brings us nothing better than swollen fortunes for the few and the triumph in both politics and business of a sordid and selfish materialism.

Honesty in Public Servants.

If our political institutions were perfect, they would absolutely prevent the political domination of money in any part of our affairs. We need to make our political representatives more quickly and sensitively responsive to the people whose servants they are. More direct action by the people in their own affairs under proper safeguards is vitally necessary. The direct primary is a step in this direction if it is associated with a corrupt practises act effective to prevent the advantage of the man willing recklessly and unscrupulously to spend money over his more honest competitor. It is particularly important that all moneys received or expended for campaign purposes should be publicly accounted for not only after election but before election as well. Political action must be made simpler, easier, and freer from confusion for every citizen. I believe that the prompt removal of unfaithful or incompetent public servants should be made easy and sure in whatever way experience shall show to be most expedient in any given class of cases.

One of the fundamental necessities in a representative government such as ours is to make certain that the men to whom the people delegate their power shall serve the people by whom they are elected, and not the special interests. I believe that every National officer, elected or appointed, should be forbidden to perform any service or receive any compensation directly or indirectly from inter-state corporations; and a similar provision could not fail to be useful within the states.

The object of government is the welfare of the people. The material progress and prosperity of a nation are desirable chiefly so far as they lead to the moral and material welfare of all good citizens. Just in proportion as the average man and woman are honest, capable of sound judgment and high ideals, active in public affairs—but first of all sound in their home life, and the father and mother of healthy children—just so far and no farther we may count our civilization a success.

We must have—I believe we have already—a genuine and permanent moral awakening, without which no wisdom of legislation or administration really means anything; and, on the other hand, we must try to secure the social and economic legislation without which any improvement due to purely moral agitation is necessarily evanescent. What we need is good citizens. Good citizenship means progress; and therefore all good citizens should stand for progress, and must be progressive.

Had Cause to Rejoice.

"Alas!" sighed the poet, "the world does not understand me."

"Well, cheer up," rejoined the practical person. "That is something to be thankful for, I'm sure."

FASTIDIOUS.

"Lady, can youse give me a little gasoline?"

"Fer the land's sake! You don't drink gasoline, do you?"

"No, lady. I wants ter clean me gloves wit it."

Mrs. Henderson's Waist.

Mrs. Henderson isn't going to wear that pretty white waist of hers again, because it came from the wash all streaked and spotted by the rosin that was in the common yellow soap.

If Mrs. Henderson will have it washed again with Easy Task soap, which has no rosin in it to streak and rot the fabrics, ten to one it will look like new. Easy Task does wonders for the clothes and for the women who work. Costs no more than poor soaps.

While in Soak.

Howell—I see that the paper says that the treasury department announces that by washing paper money it will last twice as long.

Powell—Yes, but what is a poor devil to do while his money is at the laundry?

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.

Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

How many of us have cravings that never will be stilled, though we do not talk about them.—Dr. Robertson Nicoll.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The favorite family laxative.

Some men are self-made and some others are wife-made.

DO YOUR CLOTHES LOOK YELLOW? If so, use Red Cross Ball Blue. It will make them white as snow. 2 oz. package 5 cents.

A fool can always find another fool to admire him.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter." — Mrs. Chas. Barclay, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

The Wretchedness of Constipation

Can quickly be overcome by

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Purely vegetable—act surely and gently on the liver. Cure Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, and Indigestion. They do their duty.

Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0515

MRS. FE

BY

W. E. NO

CHAPTER XXI.

Mr. Bremit was overjoyed to hear the news which Fred lost no time in communicating to him. "My dear fellow," said he, "you are going to do such a thoroughly sensible, desirable, and altogether satisfactory thing that the chances were fully a hundred to one against your ever doing it."

"I certainly didn't look at it in that way," answered Fred; "but I suppose I shall never be able to persuade you or anybody else that I didn't."

Mr. Bremit laughed. "If you have been able to persuade her," said he, "you needn't much mind about me or anybody else. As a matter of fact, I don't find the least difficulty in believing that you have fallen in love with Mrs. Fenton. She is a woman quite out of the ordinary run," added this connoisseur impressively.

If a tendency to do rather extraordinary things proved a woman to be out of the ordinary run of her sex, Mrs. Fenton undoubtedly merited the lawyer's encomium; and so Fred thought when, on reaching home, he found a letter from her, dated "Grand Hotel, Paris."

"I wonder," she wrote, "whether you will be very much astonished to hear that I have deserted Dawlish. Most likely you will be, because you are a man, and you are very sensible, and you understand how any place could become unbearable and uninhabitable simply because a single individual had left it. Well, I was ashamed to follow you to London; and besides, what could we have done in London at this time of year? So, as I had never seen Paris, and as I hoped that perhaps it might amuse you a little to show all the sights to such an unsophisticated savage, I came straight here without drawing breath. And I won't go anywhere or see anything until you come. Because you will come, won't you, Fred? After all, Paris isn't much farther away from you than Devonshire. I will try not to be dreadfully disappointed if you say you can't manage it; but I confess that I shall be rather unhappy and a little frightened until I get your answer.

"Ever your loving Laura."

Fred could do no less than dispatch a reassuring telegram to her, and follow it in person as speedily as might be.

He found his cousin luxuriously installed in a gilded and mirrored saloon at the Grand Hotel, and the delight with which she welcomed him could not have been greater if they had been parted for months.

"Now I have got you!" she exclaimed, "and I am going to keep you. That is, unless you get tired of me. Will you soon get tired of me, do you think? Not quite so soon here, perhaps, as you would have done at Dawlish? You shall not be tied to my apron-string, you know. You shall play about and amuse yourself as much as you like."

He made the only answer that could be made; and indeed she had no reason during the fortnight that followed to complain of any lack of attention or devotion on his part. They visited some of the sights of Paris (but only a few of them, because, notwithstanding his protestations, she knew that he could not really be so abnormal as to enjoy sight-seeing); they made excursions to Versailles and Saint-Germain, and even as far as to Fontainebleau; they patronized nearly all of the theaters in turn, and, as she declared fifty times a day, she was perfectly happy.

Fred said he was perfectly happy, too; and perhaps he was. At any rate, he was loyal enough to turn his back instantly upon any passing doubts that may have suggested themselves to him. What was quite undeniable was that Laura was charming company. Possibly she may have exerted herself to be charming; but if so, the exertion was not apparent. Her gayety seemed to be quite spontaneous; her remarks were always original and sometimes witty; she noticed everything and everybody; and her talent for mimicry was a never-failing source of merriment to her companion. Nothing delighted her more than to make him laugh.

Her own spirits were, as they always had been, liable to sudden fluctuations. Sometimes, too—though this did not often occur—she could not help giving utterance to them, as when, one day, she said to him abruptly: "This is far too good to last—it can't last! You are perfect now; but you won't always be perfect; you wouldn't be human if you were."

"I am quite sure I shall always think you so," he answered, smiling.

"Ah, but I'm not—I'm horribly imperfect. I've lived through a whole lifetime, and I've done all sorts of things that can't be undone, Fred, suppose you were to find out some day that I had—that I had—well, that I had flirted a good deal in years gone by, for instance?"

"Oh," he replied, at once, "that is no more than we have all done. I think much the best plan is to let bygones be bygones. Shall we agree to let the dead past bury its dead?"

She jumped eagerly at this suggestion; although no one knew better than she did what it implied. True lovers are seldom so sensible or so magnanimous; and when she said, with perfect truth, "At any rate, I never loved any one in my life but you, Fred," she was painfully aware that it was not in his power to make a corresponding declaration.

She stopped at a jeweler's window and was gazing in rapt ecstasy at a diamond necklace, just as an elderly Englishman who happened to be passing by caught sight of the couple, stared at them for a moment, and then accosted them with much cordiality. General Moore said he was delighted to see them both, and they tried, not very successfully, to look as if they were delighted to see him.

"We are on our way home," the General explained, "and I have been smoking over my cigar for half an hour or so, receiving monosyllabic replies from time to time, but he made no allusion to the one subject about which Fred was consumed with curiosity to hear, and at length the latter was constrained to inquire carelessly, "Have you seen anything of Claughton this autumn?"

"Yes," answered the General, knocking the ash off his cigar; "oh, yes; he was at Kissingen while we were there. Good fellow, Claughton, very good fellow—I don't know a better." And then he sighed.

That is scarcely the tone in which a man speaks of his prospective son-in-law, and it seemed certain that Captain Claughton had either changed his mind or had been refused. Fred's curiosity was greater than ever; but he did not venture to put any further questions. Besides, he was a little ashamed of himself for being so inquisitive and anxious; Susie and her fate were no longer any concern of his.

Shortly afterwards his host suggested that they should join the ladies. Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Fenton had their heads together and were deeply interested in examining a pile of fashion-plates. The General naturally strolled up to them, and thus Fred could hardly choose but approach Susie, who was seated at the window, gazing down at the passing carriages and pedestrians in the Place Vendome. He stood rather awkwardly beside her for a moment or two, saying nothing, when she opened the conversation by praising Mrs. Fenton's beauty and amiability.

"I thought you didn't admire her at all," Fred returned, somewhat curtly; "you certainly told me in London that you didn't."

"Yes," answered the girl, after a moment of hesitation, "I remember. You told me that I knew nothing about her, which was quite true. I am sorry I spoke against her; I don't know why I did it."

"Oh, excuse me," said Fred, who was nervous and irritable, and had lost control of himself; "I think you do know. I think you were disgusted with her because you were disgusted with me; and you were disgusted with me because your opinion was that I wanted to marry my cousin in order to get hold of the money which I had always expected to be mine some day."

He had no further opportunity to talk, for now Mrs. Fenton came to wish Susie good-night. It was time to go home, she said, and of course it was his duty to accompany her.

"What was Miss Moore saying to you, Fred?" she asked, as soon as they had left the hotel. "Was she telling you why she had refused Captain Claughton?"

"No," answered Fred; "we didn't mention Claughton's name. Has she refused him?"

"So it appears. Mrs. Moore is in great distress about it. She thinks Captain Claughton has been badly treated, and she can't make out why Miss Susie wouldn't have him."

"She didn't care for him, I presume," said Fred, shortly.

"Then she ought not to have allowed him to follow them to Kissingen. How funny it is that these demure little girls, who look as if butter wouldn't melt in their mouths, are almost always the worst flirts of all!"

"She has a better opinion of you than you have of her," remarked Fred; "she said nothing but what was kind to say about you."

"Probably she had sense enough to know that anything she might say about me to you would come round to my ears. The truth is that she doesn't like me, and I don't like her."

"Why not?" Fred inquired. But to this rather superfluous query he obtained no answer.

"Mrs. Moore," Laura resumed, after a time, "really means to be friendly. She was kind enough to give me some good advice. Amongst other things she said she was sure I shouldn't mind her telling me that it wasn't quite correct for you to be living in the same hotel with me."

"Did you request her to mind her own business?" asked Fred, who was ready to pick a quarrel with anybody.

"No; I thanked her and begged her not to mention that she had seen us before, and then I observed, as one good turn deserved another I would take the liberty of recommending her not to do her hair on the top of her head. I said I made the gray hairs at the back of the neck too conspicuous."

"H'm! you seem to have been at least as amiable as she was."

By this time ther had reached the threshold of Mrs. Fenton's apartments. With her hand on the lock she made a half-turn so as to face him, and said: "Ah, Fred, I hate these people, and it's no use to pretend that I don't. Yet they are not bad sort of people in their way; I dare say I should love them if I knew you didn't."

With that she dismissed him to his reflections, which, as may be imagined, were not of a very cheerful or self-congratulatory nature.

(To be continued.)

DROPPING FROM THE CLOUDS.

Aeronaut Describes How It Feels to Descend With a Parachute.

How it feels to drop from the clouds by a parachute is thrillingly described in Popular Mechanics by Capt. Spencer, famous Australian aeronaut. He says: "Glancing up at your parachute to see if the cords are disentangled you grasp your trapeze rope with one hand, your cutaway line with the other, cross your legs around your trapeze bar, collect your thoughts and open your knife. At once the wind rushes past you, the trapeze seems not to hold your weight, you fall as if dazed, unprepared, from a high stage into the water at the baths. You look overhead to see the parachute open, and the parachute cloth is dropping in a heap to reach you, as it were, but before it does your weight tells and you feel the cords straight, the wind rushes under the cloth of your canopy, you have a few anxious moments while it slowly unfolds like a huge umbrella, and with a slight tug as if a horse were running away with your fishing line you are supported like a bird in air, and you experience a feeling of satisfaction and safety. Down you go to terra firma like a bird in outstretched wings, and if it is a calm day your descent is almost vertical at the rate of eight to ten feet a second. When nearing the ground the earth seems to rush up to meet you, and what at a height of 1,000 feet seemed a small box in an allotment turns out now to be a good-sized house. You reach the ground as if in a free drop from a height of about four feet."

Sidelights on the Maine Situation.

There is no disposition on the part of the intelligent and law-abiding citizens of Maine to surrender the prohibitory policy or relax its enforcement on this account. The state is defending, by her attorney general, the sheriffs of Maine in the suit brought by the wholesale liquor dealers under the Federal statute. Prohibition is the settled policy of the intelligent citizenship of Maine. After half a century of experience the people believe in prohibition as sane in method and right in principle and therefore capable of securing valuable results for the general well-being and betterment of the whole people. Business and professional men of all political faiths as well as men and women organized for distinctly moral and religious progress are more universally in accord with the prohibitory policy than ever before in the history of the state.

The sense of the absolute righteousness of the policy laying hold of the consciences of the fathers and mothers has sustained the law through its hard experiences. A native faith in the ultimate triumph of a right policy, because it is right, accounts for the persistence of prohibition in Maine. And this faith is one of the grandest moral assets of the state or nation. It was this faith to which Lincoln appealed in the nation's crisis when on Feb. 27, 1860, in Cooper Union, he closed his immortal address with these words, "Let us have faith that right makes might and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it."—National Magazine.

Stanley's Estimate of Leaders.

In his recently published autobiography Sir Henry M. Stanley says: "The civil war only developed two first rank men, and those were Grant and Lee, but in the second rank there were many who might possibly, with opportunities, have rivaled the first two. I believe if it were put to the vote of a military class as to which was the greater of the two greatest captains of the war the vote would be cast for Robert E. Lee. Nevertheless there was something in Grant which, though not so showy as the strategy and dash of Lee, makes me cast my vote for Grant."

When jealousy flies out of the window it usually takes love along if for no other reason than to keep from getting lonesome.

A woman's idea of an easy mark is from a dollar to 98 cents.

NO CHANCE TO GO WRONG

Statement of Beauty Doctor May Have Been True, but It was Not Gallant.

William F. Oldham, bishop of Singapore, talked at a dinner, on his last visit to New York, about missionary work.

"A certain type of man," he said, "goes about declaring that we dominant races civilize the savage out of existence—that we do them harm instead of good.

"Well, as a matter of fact, if these cavaliers knew what I know about some tribes, they would speak less confidently. Some tribes are so debased that to do them anything but good would hardly be possible. They are, in fact, just like the ugly woman who visited the beauty doctor.

"This woman was ugly in every feature, but her nose was particularly ugly. That, no doubt, was why she desired the beauty doctor to begin on it.

"'I am willing,' she said 'to pay you liberally, doctor, but I demand in return substantial results. We will start with my nose. Can you guarantee to make it ideally beautiful?'

"The doctor, after looking attentively at the woman's nose, replied:

"'Well, madam, I can't say as to ideal beauty, but a nose like yours I couldn't help improving if I hit with a mallet.'"

IN AGONY WITH ECZEMA

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with itching and bleeding eczema, until I was cured by the Cuticura Remedies, and I am so grateful I want the world to know, for what helped me will help others. My body and face were covered with sores. One day it would seem to be better, and then break out again with the most terrible pain and itching. I have been sick several times, but never in my life did I experience such awful suffering as with this eczema. I had made up my mind that death was near at hand, and I longed for that time when I would be at rest. I had tried many different doctors and medicines without success, and my mother brought me the Cuticura Remedies, insisting that I try them. I began to feel better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap, and one application of Cuticura Ointment.

"I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and have taken four bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, and consider myself well. This was nine years ago and I have had no return of the trouble since. Any person having any doubt about this wonderful cure by the Cuticura Remedies can write to my address. Mrs. Alfie Etson, 93 Inn Road, Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 16, 1909."

Little, but Oh, My!

Senator Smoot of Utah tells a story on the late E. H. Harriman, which sounds somewhat familiar. He says that when the Salt Lake cut-off was completed Mr. Harriman took a large party of big railroad men out to it.

They had their pictures taken at the right spot scenically. Mr. Harriman stood at one end of the group. When the pictures were printed and the photographer brought them around the railroad men examined them.

"Why," shouted one of the guests, "where's Mr. Harriman?"

"Do you mean that little chap that stood at the end?" asked the photographer. "Why, I cut him off."

Husbands and Housecleaning.

The reason a man wants to get as far away from home as he can during housecleaning is that everything looks so desperate and it seems as if the work never would be done. If you would use Easy Task soap the work would be over in less time and would be done more thoroughly. Easy Task isn't like the yellow soaps that leave a lot of grease and rosin behind them; it makes everything sweet and clean; and it runs the roaches away. Confidentially, it is sure death to the "critters" that like to nest in the bedsteads.

Surprised.

"I have succeeded in tracing my ancestry back through ten generations."

"Without coming to a menagerie?"

Clear white clothes are a sign that the housekeeper uses Red Cross Ball Blue. Large 2 oz. package, 5 cents.

A man knows but little if he tells the missus all he knows.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle

It's always a case of the survival of the fittest. Are you it?

900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral
NOT NARCOTIC
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed -
Alx. Senna -
Rochelle Salts -
Anise Seed -
Peppermint -
Bi Carbonate Soda -
Worm Seed -
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY,
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES 35 CENTS
Guaranteed under the Foodam
Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

WESTERN CANADA'S
1910 CROPS
160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE
Wheat Yield In Many Districts Will Be From 25 to 35 Bushels Per Acre

Land sales and homestead entries increasing. No cessation in numbers going from United States. Wonderful opportunities remain for those who intend making Canada their home. New districts being opened up for settlement. Many farmers will net, this year, $10 to $15 per acre from their wheat crop. All the advantages of old settled countries are there. Good schools, churches, splendid markets, excellent railway facilities. See the grain exhibit at the different State and some of the County fairs.

Letters similar to the following are received every day, testifying to satisfactory conditions; other districts are as favorably spoken of:

THEY SENT FOR THEIR SON.
Maidstone, Sask., Canada, Aug. 8th, 1910.
"My parents came here from Cedar Falls, Iowa, four years ago, and were so well pleased with this country they sent to Coeur d'Alene for me. I have taken up a homestead near them, and am perfectly satisfied to stop here." Leonard Douglas.

WANTS SETTLER'S RATE FOR HIS STOCK.
Stettler, Alberta, July 21st, 1910.
"Well I got up here from Forest City, Iowa, last Spring in good shape with the stock and everything. Now, I have got two boys back in Iowa yet, and I am going back there now soon to get them and another car up here this fall. What I would like to know is, if there is any chance to get a cheap rate back again, and when we return to Canada I will call at your office for our certificates."
Yours truly, H. A. Wix.

WILL MAKE HIS HOME IN CANADA.
Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 1st, 1910.
"I am going to Canada a week from today and intend to make my home there. My husband has been there six weeks and is well pleased with the country, so he wants me to come as soon as possible. He died on a claim near Landis, Sask., and by his description of it it must be a pretty place.
My brother-in-law, Mr. Frank J. Zimmer, lives there and it was through him that we decided to locate in Canada." Yours truly,
Mrs. Richard Henry Ebinger.

TAKES HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW'S WORD FOR IT.
Taylors Falls, Minn., Aug. 7, 1910.
"I shall go to Camrose this Fall with my cattle and household goods. I got a poor crop here this year and my brother-in-law, Axel Nordstrom in Camrose, wants me to come there. He formerly lived in Wilton, North Dakota. I am going to buy or take homestead when I get there, but I do not want to try all two times there, for I take my brother-in-law's word about the country, and want to get your low rate." Yours truly
Peter A. Nelson.

WANTS TO RETURN TO CANADA.
Vesta, Minn., July 30th, 1910.
"I went to Canada nine years ago and took up a quarter section of railroad land and a homestead, but my boys have never taken up any land yet. I still hold the railroad land. I had to come back to the states on account of my health. Please let me know at once if I can get the cheap rates to Ponoka, Alberta." Yours truly,
Geo. Paskewitz.
Vesta, Minn.

Send for literature and ask the local Canadian Government Agents for Excursion Rates, best districts in which to locate, and when to go.

W. H. ROGERS, 3d Floor, Traction Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
H. M. WILLIAMS, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio

The Rayo Lamp is a high grade lamp, sold at a low price. There are lamps that cost more, but there is no better lamp made at any price. Constructed of solid brass; nickel plated—easily kept clean; an ornament to any room in any house. There is nothing known to the art of lamp-making that can add to the value of the RAYO Lamp as a light-giving device. Every dealer everywhere. If not at yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

The difference remember this—
it may save your life. Cathartics, bird shot and cannon ball pills—tea spoon doses of cathartic medicines all depend on irritation of the bowels until they sweat enough to move. Cascarets strengthen the bowel muscles so they creep and crawl naturally. This means a cure and only through Cascarets can you get it quickly and naturally. 220
Cascarets—10c box—week's treatment. All druggists. Biggest seller in the world—million boxes a month.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

FREE Send postal for Free Package of Paxtine.
Better and more economical than liquid antiseptics
FOR ALL TOILET USES.
PAXTINE
TOILET ANTISEPTIC
Gives one a sweet breath; clean, white, germ-free teeth—antiseptically clean mouth and throat—purifies the breath after smoking—dispels all disagreeable perspiration and body odors—much appreciated by dainty women. A quick remedy for sore eyes and catarrh.
A little Paxtine powder dissolved in a glass of hot water makes a delightful antiseptic solution, possessing extraordinary cleansing, germicidal and healing power, and absolutely harmless. Try a Sample. 50c. a large box at druggists or by mail.
THE PAXTON TOILET CO., BOSTON, MASS.

Facts for Weak Women
Nine-tenths of all the sickness of women is due to some derangement or disease of the organs distinctly feminine. Such sickness can be cured—is cured every day by
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription
It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.
It acts directly on the organs affected and is at the same time a general restorative tonic for the whole system. It cures female complaint right in the privacy of home. It makes unnecessary the disagreeable questioning, examinations and local treatment so universally insisted upon by doctors, and so abhorrent to every modest woman.
We shall not particularize here as to the symptoms of those peculiar affections incident to women, but those wanting full information as to their symptoms and means of positive cure are referred to the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser—1008 pages, newly revised and up-to-date Edition, sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, or, in cloth binding for 31 stamps.
Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Readers of this paper desiring to buy anything advertised in its columns should insist upon having what they ask for, refusing all substitutes or imitations.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES
Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

SEPTEMBER

0516

L 904

BARNEY'S BARGAINS

We are quoting prices here in our store that will make a great saving to you. Every pair of shoes mentioned here will be sold at some price. See our front window for prices

All Mens, Boys, Women and Misses slippers at remarkable low figures.

1 small lot slippers, sizes 10 to 2, pair 50c

Don't overlook the fact that we still have a great many dry goods on our shelves. Look here before making that purchase.

Lot ladies gauze at half price.

Nobby line of shirts and ties.

FRUIT JARS GALORE

Mason jars

Half gallon, per dozen	$ 70
Quarts	50
Pints	45

Economy Jars

Quarts, per dozen	1 00
Pints	85

SOL BARNEY.

Fairview Neighborhood

Sunday School at Fairview, next Sunday at 2 P. M. Preaching by the new minister at 3:00. Everybody come.

School commences next Monday a week. Roy Maxwell at Hay's, C. C. Krise at Hopewell, and Clarence Woodcox at Saylor's. All good ones.

W. D Johnston and J. W. Sherer are at Cold Springs, after the finny people.

The printer made me say last week that pieces of the big boulter 15 in number weighed from 100 to 400 lbs. Should have been 100 to 4000. The first of last week, Mr. Johnson tried to remove them and found he could not draw the larger ones until he still further broke them up, using 2 lbs. of dynamite at a blast. He used in all 15 pounds, and it sounded like an artillery duel was in progress.

Miss Vaneda Wolford, recently of Kansas, was visiting friends in this neighborhood, last week.

Fairview neighborhood must have some gilt edge butter makers; some of them receiving 30 cts. a pound. To get this the by products butter, milk and hair must be eliminated and the finished product delivered to the consumer.

There is a large amount of ground ready for wheat sowing as soon as the "sign is right."

I think corn will be more than an average crop if frost stays off until it matures. Upon the black lands it is immense.

While we have been having delightful rains for the past eight weeks and our fields never were greener, some parts of this state and Ohio have had almost contiouous draught, and pastures are brown and bare. A lady from Adams County visiting Fairview a month ago, could hardly keep from talking about our beautiful fields and lawns. No doubt we had more rain, and then our soil will stand more draught than most kinds.

I notice that "Ex Prohi" (why the Ex?) goes for the Fairview Correspondent for his remarks about Mr. McKennan sometime ago. It not being "Ex Prohib's" funeral I hardly see why he should don the crape and butt in with the mourners! I never charged Mr. McKennan with inconsistency. The inconsistent ones are the "dry" Democrats who are content to be tails to the brewer's kites, and vote for those who will do their bidding, just because their names are on the Democratic ticket; and also those who are so enamored with their "little red wagon" that they are willing to vote exactly as they know the brewers figure they will do. However, far be it from me to wish to deprive him from riding by his "lonesome", or otherwise in the afore said diminutive, incarnadined vehicle of transportation. Some people have that sort of mentality and can't help it. When boys they played mumblepeg alone in the wood shed, because they couldn't be pitcher, catcher, umpire and captain of the team. As men they don't care a tinker's damnative (maledictien) for the personal attitude of candidates, upon the liquor question, except those of their party. His metaphorical bung hole and barrel illustration, as our Uncle Joe would say, reduced to its last analysis is this: the democratic and republican parties are corrupt and their candidates are corrupt; the prohibition party is pure, and its candidates are the quintessence of purity, patriotism and righteousness. Maybe so; but at least the halos upon their brows have never been mistaken for a world on fire! While the avanced thought of the age is trying to speed the day when personal character and fitness shall be the only passports to official preferment, "Ex prohib" appeals to partisonship on the ragged edge of insanity, and enferentially at least, thanks God he is not as other men are. He's not original in this; there were others.

M. P. CHURCH ANNOUCEMENTS

Prayer meeting on Thursday evening at 7:30. Sunday School Sunday morning at 9:00 o'clock followed by the regular preaching services also at Fairview in the afternoon. All are extended a cordial invitation.

Rev. E. C. Corn,
Pastor.

COBURNTOWN.

Willis Magginis of Newville, will preach at the Corners, Sunday. Come out and hear him.....Mr. and Mrs. B. Hamilton of St. Joe; O. K. Shull and family of Wabash Corners; Mrs. G. Provines and son James, Mrs. L. O Tustison, and Mrs. Northrup and son Thayer, spent Sunday at Will Hamiltons'.....Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Freeburn, Mr. and Mrs. Will Maxwell and son Willard, Mr and Mrs. Trostle and Miss Eva Ridgway spent Sunday at Frank Tustisons'. The occasion was the celebration of Mrs Tustison's, Mr. Freeburn's and Miss Ridgway's birthdays, and a surprise on Mrs. Tustison. They reported a pleasant time....Mr. Nelson Scholes is confined to his bed and is a pretty sick man. His daughter, Emma Abel is helping to care for him .....W. F. Hart of Sullivan, Ohio, is visiting relatives of this place.....After spending a few weeks with her sisters, Mrs. Vernon and Bell Wilmot, Miss Anna Laverty and her nephews returned to their homes in Cleveland, Ohio.....Lee Wilmott of Garrett, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs Arthur Wilmot. Elma Wilmot accompanied him home for a few days visit.....Miss Ada Bair of Angola has been the guest of Clara Shull, the past week.....Clyde Hart and family took dinner Sunday with W. M. Barom near Newville..... Ross Abel moved to Auburn, Monday, preparatory to teaching school at that place. Mr. and Mrs Harlow Ulm expects to live on his place and take care of his stock this winter.....Donald Kimes is sick with typhoid fever.... Gladys Nelson, Ray Wyatt and lady friend, Miss Lola Hood of Auburn, spent Sunday with Wilmot Coburns'.....George Milliman and family of St. Joe, spent Sunday with his father, J. M. Milliman.....Salome Wilks of Cedarville, called on his sister, Mrs. Milo Walker, Sunday afternoon.....Vernon Franks and family of Auburn, visited Sunday with Mrs. Franks's father, Mr. Jacob Baker.....Mrs. Wesley Hart has returned from Hicksville, but is still taking treatment of Mrs. Weltey.....Mrs. Effie Schoolmaster and two children, who have been spending the past two months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Wesley Hart, and other friends, has returned to her home in Fremont, Mich. She has been caring for her mother most of the time and they regret to see her go.....Alva Coburn of near Hicksville, and his father, Russel Coburn, took Sunday dinner with Jacob Bakers'.

LUTHERAN CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Prayer meeting Thursday evening. Sunday School, Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. C. E. in the evening followed by the regular preaching service. You are cordially invited to attend these services.

Rev. Hitchner, Pastor.

Auburn Dispatch.

EDITOR NEWS:—

I noticed in your paper an article printed in the above named paper with reference to an article printed in your paper of the week before relative to Mr. J. W. Burwell & Son's moving of their hardware. I would like to make a little reply to the Dispatch's interest taken in the welfare (?) of St. Joe. The Dispatch advises the town board to let this firm go, this sounds very important and looks very much like house cleaning. Well if the Dispatch wants to aid in house cleaning let it begin at home.

Generaly speaking the physical appearance of St. Joe is about as commendable as that of Auburn. People coming into Auburn do not have to use a magnifying glass to find many more objectionable features than exist in St. Joe.

Mr. Burwell has not asked any unreasonable favors, neither does he want to place any obstructions in the way of any persons, he only asked permission to set a very neat little tank house at the back end of his store room on a side street which is not much for any other purpose than a place to tie the farmers teams when they come to town.

Mr. O. H. Widney, a gentleman of much business ability has spent a great deal of money to make St. Joe an enterprising little town, and he would not do a single act to injure the appearance of our beautiful little village, when he secures such enterprising business men as he does, the Dispatch grows jealous and would advise every town out side of Auburn to clean out all their enterprises and hold out covetous hands to these enterprises to come and locate in Auburn. Should Mr. Burwell leave St. Joe then the Dispatch extend hearty greetings to the citizens of St. Joe to just drive over to Auburn and do your trading. You St. Joeites do not need to look at a few salt barrels, wire fencing, corn plows, coal bins, lumber piles, or anything that might be distasteful to you in St. Joe, in Auburn we have many other attractions that you can treat your eyes to that will not be so objectionable to you as to happen to look down some side street you never use at home and see a neat little tank house. Thank you Mr Dispatch but people that live in glass houses ought not to throw stones.

A Citizen.

The most useful tool on the farm is a Clover Leaf Manure Spreader. Curie is selling lots of them.

CONCORD

James Johnson and wife went to Marion, Ind., Monday for a week's visit with Mrs. Louise Wilson and family .....Lloyd and Ruth Draggoo, Walter Baker, Mary Scott, Inez and Allie Patterson, John Draggoo and wife, Asa Ervin and Bessie Dailey attended the Hicksville fair, Thursday.....Miss Inez Patterson went to Auburn Junction, Tuesday, to be the guest of Bertha Reed for a few days.....Lodema Hull and daughters, Goldie and Marie, spent Tuesday with her mother, Mrs. Draggoo.....E. W. Johnson, wife and daughter Thelma, spent Sunday afternoon in St. Joe the guests of Dr. Bowman and wife, also Ira Bone and wife.....Sadie Draggoo, Laura Baker, Artus Coyle and Floyd Maurer spent Sunday in Detroit, Mich.....Mrs Elias Kline and son Vernon, and Mrs. Melinda Shilling and son Howard, were at Auburn, Saturday.

More wheat can be raised by using Bradley's Fertilizer. See Wm. Curie.

I. O. O. F. Meeting.

The lodge of St. Joe will have a meeting in Railroad Park next Sunday to which everyone is asked to attend. Bring your baskets well filled with good things to eat. In the afternoon Newton Shilling, Fred Thomas, Elder Brown and any member of the lodge, will speak on lodge work. A good sociable time will be had so be there all day.

Knisely Reunion.

The Second Annual Reunion of the Knisely family was held Thursday, Sept. 1, at the residence of Daniel Knisely, Sr., near Spencerville. The meeting was called to order by the president, David Knisely, and opened by a song, and prayer by Daniel Knisely, Sr. The following officers were elected as follows:—President, David Knisely, Harlan, Ind; 1st. Vice President, S. S. Knisely, Sandusky, O.; 2nd. Vice President, A. F. Knisely, Toledo, O.; Secretary, Florence Hemrick, Spencerville, Ind.; Assistant Secretary, Effie Smith, Spencerville, Ind.; Treasurer, Daniel Knisely, Spencerville, Ind.; Committee on Arrangement, Arlo Knisely, Toledo, O; Geo. Andrews, Jr. Monticello, Ind.; Daniel Knisely, Quincy, Mich.; Henry Barshney, Prattville, Mich; A. U. Knisely, Barbertown, O. There were seventy eight present to enjoy the day. They were:—George Andrews and wife, Sr. George Andrews and wife, Jr., Joseph Thompson and family, Monticello, Ind.; Nolan Farnsworth and family, Edgertown, O.; Mrs. Alma Smith and son, Hicksville, O.; William Hemrick and family, Spencerville, Ind.; Daniel Knisely, Sr., and family, Spencerville, Ind.; John Knisely and sister, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Daniel Knisely, Prairie Depot, O.; Arlo Knisely and son, Toledo, O.; David Knisely and family, Harlan, Ind.; Oliver Knisely and family, Harlan, Ind.; Joseph Knisely and family, Spencerville, Ind., John Knisely and family, Mark Center, O. Sylvester Knisely and family, Sandusky, O.; Daniel Knisely and family, Quincy, Mich; Jane Phillips and family and Pearl Connor and family, Hicksville, O.; Misses Effie and Clara and Warren Smith, Spencerville, Ind. Mrs. Rachel Kohr and daughter and family, Freemont, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barshney, Prattville, Mich.; Miss Bessie Iseman; South Bend, Ind.; James McKinley and wife, Spencerville, Ind.

WISE'S CORNERS.

Will Smith and wife made John Koch and family a business call, Monday afternoon.....William Fales and son Guy, commenced remodeling and adding to W. L. Smith's house Tuesday. Wednesday, James Souls moved the kitchen back to make way for digging the cellar.....Tuesday, Geo. Welch worked for Samuel Markle on the farm, east of Spencerville .....Frank Wertman was at Grabill, Wednesday getting cider made..... John Hissong was at St. Joe on business, Tuesday afternoon....Will Mills from Maysville, is moving several buildings for Henry Walter, this week....Henry Dove commenced working for W. L. Smith, Wednesday morning....Willie McKinley and his mother spent Saturday afternoon at Joseph Spitlers'.....Bracy Bartholomew and Charlie Stevick were at Will Smith's, Saturday afternoon, cleaning seed wheat.....Frank Wertman sowed a field of wheat, Saturday, which was the first that was sown in our vicinity....Mrs. Julia Bice is working for her grandchild, Mrs. Ray Squiers, this week.....Charlie Moore and son of Hicksville, Ohio, commenced the concrete work on W. L. Smith's house, Monday.

WABASH CORNERS.

Aletha and Mamie White of Hamilton, were the guests of their aunt, Mrs. Angelia Wolff and husband Friday.....Mrs. M. A. Pervines returned to her home at this place Friday, after an extended visit with relatives at Perrysville, Ohio.....Ralph White of Auburn ate supper with Sherman Wolff and wife Saturday evening.....O. K. Shull attended the Teachers Institute at Auburn last week.....Emma Tustison, Ale Simanton, wife and two grandsons, Coral and Ferm Simanton, spent Sunday in Detroit.....Foster Gee and Alice Carper, ate supper at Wm. Pervines's Sunday evening.....Arthur Hanes of Auburn and Winfield and Pearl Pervines, ate dinner Sunday at Sherman Wolff's.....Geo. Pervines and family spent Sunday at John Smith's.....Wm. Pervines, wife and daughter, Mary, spent Sunday with Frank Pervines and wife.

Christian Church

Preaching services both morning and evening. Rev. J. A. Brown,
Pastor.

Remember Our Demonstration is

NOW ON

Everybody WELCOME!

Don't Forget to secure a ticket on Kitchen Cabinet

H. V. Kinsey & Son,

Furniture Hardware Undertaking

Office Phone No. 37-3 Residence No. 37-3

This is the time of the year to get your flour supply for the year, bring in your wheat and get your flour.

Stack it in a dry place It improves as it gets older.

Keep it dry and it never spoils.

It always adds new life to sift your flour before baking.

Keesler Milling Company,

St. Joe, Ind.

Local Items

Cucumbers for canning. J. W. Sherer.

Get your coal oil at Kinsey's

County Supt. Coe of Auburn was in town Tuesday afternoon.

The G. A. R Hall has changed hands, it now being owned by the I. O. O. F. of this place.

New car of Bradley's Fertilizer at Curie's. Try it this year.

Frank Bishop of Garrett was at home Tuesday.

Mrs. Frank Steward of Garrett, visited with Perry Miller and wife last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin White visited with John Gill and wife Saturday night.

A ticket for the asking at Kinsey's on the kitchen cabinet.

Mrs Wm. Koch is the guest of her son Roy and family at Boyne City, Michigan.

Try a package of Hersh Yeast. It is one of the very best products of its kind on the market today.

Mrs. Chas. Lake and children of Ft. Wayne visited the fore part of the week with Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Lake.

I wish to thank those who so kindly remembered me on my birthday, having received 31 cards. S. M. George.

Aaron Thomas returned home Monday from Artic, where he has been engaged with the Gloy threshing outfit.

Wm. Rahe of Ft. Wayne spent Sunday and Monday with H. L. Dunkle's. Miss Vera Johnson of Hicksville was also there.

J. M. Milliman, Geo. Milliman and son Merritt, were at Wayne Monday.

J. C. Hull and wife were at Detroit Sunday and Monday, the guests of their son Merritt, who is working at his trade in the Griswold Hotel.

J. B. White's entertained the folowing to dinner Sunday: Mart White wife and two daughters Aletha and Mamie of Hamilton, John Gill and wife and Charles Woodcox and family.

John Stevens of Geneva, Ohio, returned to his home Tuesday morning after making an extended visit with relatives at this place. He was accompanied by his cousins Ralph and Flossie Sechler for a short visit.

St. Joe and Woodburn White Sox will play ball here today at 10 and 2:30 o'clock. St. Joe defeated this same team Monday and a good time is promised. The boys are playing all week day ball and should have a good attendance.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway and daughter Olive and Mrs. Deama Curie and little daughter Thelma, are visiting relatives in Lapaz, Tegarden, Plymouth and South Bend. They are expected home Friday and a nepnew, Adam Munimy of Lapaz, Ind., will accompany them for a short visit.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is today the best known medicine in use for the relief and cure of bowel complaints. It cures griping, diarrhoea, dysentery, and should be taken at the first unnatural looseness of the bowels. It is equally valuable for children and adults. It always cures. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Excursion to

Chicago $2.00

Train leaves ST. JOE at 3:00 A. M.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 11st.

Numerous Attractions.

SEPTEMBER

L 904

U517

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 15, 1910. NO. 37

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.
Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

Free to Coat Purchasers

Our cloak section is preparing for the largest seasons business in its history and the values we offer for this fall will attract buyers within a radius of many miles. In order to make it worth your while and not to add any expense to you in getting here to make your selection we will pay your rail road fare here and return with any coat you buy. We want to demonstrate to you our ability to offer you coats and capes in all the new fall and winter styles for Ladies and Misses such as will appeal to you as being worth the price you pay, without having a big fictitious price tag attached. You are most cordially invited to inspect this growing department of ready-to-wear goods, which is larger and more varied than ever before.

A Coat Leader

A black all wool broadcloth, full length, semi-fitted, all seams finished, buttons of extra quality all sizes large and small Leader Price..... $6.50

Capes for Ladies

Black, Military and plain styles neatly trimmed full length, and wide sweep, extra quality of chiffon kersey..... $6.50 and $8.50

Coats at all Prices

We have our range of Ladies Coat prices this year from $4.50 to $25.00 and there's such an endless variety that it will be impossible for us here to describe them all. You must see them to appreciate the big variety we show.

Baby Coats

We show a line superior this season to any we have ever offered and that means a big line to select from in all the new Possum, Crushed plush Bear Skin, and cloth novelties, from..... $2.00 to $6.00

Baby Hoods

Hoods to match the coats have been bought as much as possible this season to make complete outfits for childrens wear. The styles are really specimens of creative genius. Prices .. .. 25c to $1.25

Girls-Misses Coats

This store we believe is in a position to fit any girl and please her at the same time with the selection of coats we show for the young ladies. Bring the girls here for winter coats. We can please them.

Local Briefs

Burwell's have a fine line of Hard Coal Burners and Ranges.

Bert Hull returned home last Thursday, stopping off at Chicago a few days.

Harmon Miller, L. D. Jackson and clerk, B. & O. officials, were in town, Thursday.

Don't forget that Burwell's have the Favorite Hard Coal Burners.

Mrs. W. S. Berry of near Concord, is on the sick list but is some better at this writing.

W. E. Baxter and wife were at Butler, Sunday the guest of his parents. Mrs. Baxter is in very poor health.

Watch for circulars concerning Burwell's Free Range Demonstration at which Hot Biscuits and Coffee will be served Free to all.

The Grabill Review comes to us somewhat larger than usual and is now a 6 column sheet. The paper is a neat publication and speaks well for Mr. Gerig, who is at the head. We like to see our Bro. editors prosper.

The Clover Leaf Manure Spreader is one of the handiest tools the farmers own. See Curie.

In one week our schools will open, A good start is a battle-half won. The busy season, harvest feasts, reunions and fairs will be past. The golden opportunity meets you at a most opportune time. You have had a rest from your labors and been refreshed by pleasant associations, and now feel ready for duty. You are impressed that life requires a fitness to get the most out of it, and your aspirations lead you in seeking for that which will mete out to you a full recompense of reward for endeavors put forth. Our schools have wisely and carefully considered you and your desires and have made special provisions to meet these demands, and cordially invite you thither. You will find here good society, pleasant associations, and a most hospitable people. Come and see us, learn our school advantages and know they are not excelled by any town of its size in the State.

WE ARE READY

with our line of school supplies to supply the boys and girls with good values in tablets, pencils, pens, pen holders, ink, school bags, composition books, etc. A good motto is to learn children to buy careful and get the best they can for their money. Send them to Drug Store, our special aim is to please children.

--About School Books--

A great aggravation has been to obtain them but this store means to do things and we got the goods. All books adopted by this county are on sale now for CASH only is our terms on school books or an order from Trustee is also acceptable.

You'll always do better at

Dunkle's

in

ST. JOE, - - - INDIANA.

FOR SALE:—A good cook stove. C. S. SAILOR, St. Joe, Ind.

Dr. J. H. Lake and family are at Chicago, this week. The doctor is attending a course of lectures.

The Martha's of the Church of Christ will hold their monthly sale of baked goods on next Saturday at Barney's store. Don't forget the date.

Clyde Hart, of St. Joe, candidate for surveyor on the republican ticket, was calling on voters here last week. He is distinctively the young men's candidate, bright, jolly, capable and has his peculiar faculty of making friends with all. The young men of the county ought to roll up their sleeves and give him a boost. He is in every way worthy of their support and they have an opportunity to show their appreciation and strength when a clean young man is placed on the ticket. He will make good.—Waterloo Press.

Send in your news.

We thank all those who responded to the call, to pay up their subscription. We hope that several more will fall in line soon. How do you stand?

Kinsey's have installed an oil tank and ask that you bring your cans in to be filled

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on
J. C. HULL, City Barber.

An Aged Pioneer Dead.

Death has again claimed a pioneer of DeKalb County in the person of Nelson Scholes, who lived two miles east of St. Joe. He passed away Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

He was born in Belmont County, Ohio, on Nov. 15th., 1819, and died Sept. 10th., 1910 Aged 90 years, 9 months, 25 days. In 1847 he was married to Mary Wiltison, three children were born to this union; one of which is still living, John Scholes of South Dakota.

In 1850 his wife died leaving the one son. In 1852 he married Mary Swaidner, to this union was born six children, five of whom are still living; Frank of St Joe; Eld. Joe N. Scholes of Bellaire, Ohio; Emma Abel, Florence Tustison and Ida Williams of St. Joe. On Nov. 15th., 1852, he moved to the farm where he died, having lived continuously in the one place for fifty-eight years. In 1860 he confessed his faith in Christ under the preaching of Elder Lockhart and was buried with his Lord in baptism by L. L. Carpenter. And rose to walk in newness of life.

He lived a quiet, peaceful life, consistent with his profession his daily walk spoke more than words; his friends were coextensive with his acquaintance, to know him was to be his friend. His life was a better sermon than a preacher can give.

He leaves a wife, three sons, three daughters, nineteen grandchildren, and seven great grandchildren, besides a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. But their loss is his eternal gain. He rests in peace.

Funeral services were conducted at the residence by J. A. Brown assisted by F. A. Thomas, after which he was laid to rest in the cemetery near his home, where he awaits the trumpet call. Elza Kinsey, funeral director.

CARD OF THANKS.

We express our heartfelt thanks to those who assisted us during the sickness and death of our dear husband and father. THE FAMILY.

Don't work yourself to death when a Clover Leaf Manure Spreader will do your work better. Curie can show you.

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Hard Coal
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

L. L. C.

"The horologe of time summons us together once again."

On Wednesday evening, September 7th., at the pleasant home of Mrs. D. F. Benninghoff occured the inauguration of the new offices of the Ladies Literary Club. The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers in red and green, the club colors. The new president, Mrs. C. A. Patterson greeted the club members in which she spoke of various ways in which the club work could be made beneficial to all in the coming year. The new Secretary, Mrs. J. H. Lake, Treasurer, Mrs. C. F. Kaney, and Critic, Mrs. Henninghoff, also greeted the members and enjoined them to cooperate with them and thus help to make the club year a successful one.

The report of the mid-summer meeting was read and approved; followed by roll call which was responded to by vacation echoes. A round table in which all members took part brought out many good thoughts. The club then adjourned to meet in one week at the home of the Vice President, Mrs. Belle Barney at which time the study of American history and its geographic conditions, by Ellen Churchill Semple, will be taken up. After a very pleasant social hour the hostess served delicious ice cream and cake. The out of town guests were: Mrs. O. H. Widney of Auburn, and Mrs. Eva Elson of Valparaiso.

Moved

Livery and Feed Barn to the Frank White barn. Your patronage will be appreciated. Phone 81.

MASON & GEORGE, prop.

Obituary

Henry Hull, the subject of this sketch, was born in Knox County, Ohio, March 24, 1834 and departed this life September 11, 1910, aged 76 years 5 months and 17 days. He came to Indiana in the year 1850 settling in this, DeKalb County. On the 29th day of December 1859 he was united in marriage to Sarah A. daughter of Samuel and Johanna Widney. To this union three sons were born, Joseph A. and Clarence H., who reside near St. Joe and Delbert L. who lives at Colorado Springs, Colorado.

In 1864 in response to his country's call, he left his home and wife and one son and marched to the front in defence of his Country. He enlisted in Co. B. 13th Indiana Infantry, and served until the war closed. His life as a Soldier and Citizen has ever been above reproach, and while human vision is not permited to look beyond the narrow and dark confines of this life, yet in recalling the fact that generosity, honesty and uprightness, characterized his every act in all his dealings with his fellow men, we can safely rest, with abiding faith in the conviction that beyond that veil and in that other and unknown world, under the application of the Eternal Justice that rules within the Kingdom of the Almighty, his freed soul will stand fearless amid the scenes of its creation, ready and prepared to render an account for the deeds done in the body. His wife loses a devoted husband, his children a loving father and the community a good and respected citizen.

The funeral services were held in the Lutheran Church, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Hitchner officiating. Elza Kinsey funeral director.

M. P. CHURCH ANNOUCEMENTS

Sunday School 9:00 promptly. Evening service begins with song service at 7:00 o'clock.

Solo "Plains of Peace."
Mrs. E. C. Corn.

Sermon "Sonship." Text, 1 John 3: 2.

Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:00. Teacher's meeting 7:45.

CONCORD

Sunday School at 9:00. Preaching at 10:00. Text, Matt. 5: 13.

Rev. E. C. Corn,
Pastor.

May Wed.

James Malcahey, 26, iron moulder of New York, and Bessie Elliot, 24, of Butler.

LOCAL ITEMS.

The opera house rink will open Saturday night. Come.

Arrangements have been made to have the Crescent Concert Company here Oct. 1st. They come under the management of the Coburntown Band and their previous appearances bespeak for them a liberal patronage. More detailed announcements next week.

Everybody is invited to inspect Burwell's line of Hardware.

The Chicago excursion Sunday morning was patronized by the Mesdames H. V. Kinsey, Claude Mason, Blanch Leighty, Mae Openlander, Wm. Leighty, Jennie White, Dr. J. H. Lake and family, Alvy Perry and son Paul, Frank Hart, W. G. Erick, Bert Fisher, Henry Carnes, Murray Erick and F. B. Leighty and wife. Mrs. Kinsey and Mrs. Mason were enroute to Elgin, Ill., where they expect to visit a couple of weeks with Chas. Cochran and family.

Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST.JOE, IND.

THE HOME STORE

SWEATER COATS.

The Sweater Coat has come to stay. It is a sensible, serviceable garment that deserves the recognition of everyone. These cool, damp evenings and chilly mornings call for an outer garment that contains warmth but is not too bulky. The sweater coat answers and serves this purpose admirably. Recognizing the growing popularity of this garment we have assembled a large assortment of sweaters for Ladies, Misses, Men, Boys and Children. We want you to see this showing for you will find them

Just The Thing for Autumn Wear

Ladies - Misses

For the Ladies and Misses we have a large variety of styles in all sizes—a pleasing assortment in cardinal, white and gray—delightful fancy weaves in all wool and worsted. Some with shawl collars, single or double breasted, others in military style. Every garment absolutely new and priced

—AT—

$2.25, $2.50, $3.50

Misses' Sweaters.....$1.50 to $2.00

For Men and Boys

Sweaters for the men folks made of all wool, heavy ribbed and fancy weaves. Very nifty sweaters in oxford, tan, green and navy, some pleasingly trimmed, others more plain and made of durable material. We also have a fine showing of children's sweaters in white, red and blue. The men's are priced at

50c $1.00 up to $3.50

Boys' and Child's.....50c to $1.50

The New Outings are Now In.

A large and pleasing variety of patterns and colorings priced most liberally from the Start at 8, 10, and 12 cents.

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0518

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

GROWING COUNTRIES.

The census department of Canada estimates the present population of the Dominion to be 7,350,000. The distribution by sections is: Maritime provinces, 1,037,112; Quebec, 2,088,461; Ontario, 2,619,025; Western provinces, 1,371,164; unorganized territories, 58,309. It is not surprising that Canada, with her many resources and her healthful climate and varied opportunities for industrial wealth-seekers, should grow all the time, says the Mexican Herald. A sturdy race which increases by the excess of births over deaths is continually being reinforced by immigration, and that of the best kind. The consuming power of the population of Canada is very large, and accounts for the heavy importations of foreign goods and the excellent support given to home industries. Argentina, with about a million less population than Canada, is rapidly increasing in wealth. It is interesting to see that the influx of immigrants into this country from Spain continues, just as it does in the case of Cuba and Argentina. The ancient Iberian motherland still breeds a sturdy race which send its sons to former colonies.

It used to be "King Cotton." Then corn came into active rivalry for supremacy. And now it looks as though rubber might be the great staple of commerce. There has been an enormous increase in the production of rubber and in importations into the United States. This is due to the rapidly augmenting demand, with rubber as an essential for automobile, bicycle and carriage tires and for other purposes. Word comes from Sumatra, which has been the source of supply for tobacco of a certain grade, that the planters are giving up the "weed" and are converting their estates into rubber farms. It is not believed, however, that tobacco growing in Connecticut, Kentucky and other American states will be supplanted by rubber production.

This is the day of the auto, the airship and the wireless telegraph. But some of the old-time slow coaches still come into play. A wealthy summer resident of Newport who went in his automobile to visit another gentleman found himself with his touring car stuck in soft sand from which it could not be moved unaided. An obliging farmer of the neighborhood hitched up his ox team and drew the machine out of the predicament into which the vehicle had plunged. Could irony further go? Still, the auto is a good and useful invention and has come to stay, although occasionally, in the case of a breakdown, it stays too long in one place.

A new compass which may supersede the compass now in general use is under test on the scout cruiser Birmingham. It is a combination of the conventional compass with the gyroscope, and is said to eliminate all varieties of deviation of the needle. It can also be placed in the interior of a ship, where it is safe from the missiles of an enemy. A compass of this kind would be extremely valuable in naval service, but it would be far more valuable to commerce, as the influences which affect the compass on modern steel ships are puzzling, and sufficient in some instances to cause wrecks through deviations from proper courses.

The census officials expect to add the names of 60 cities in the United States to the list of those having a population of 25,000 or over which was compiled in 1900. Perhaps there will be even more than 60. The invention of machinery for the farm is one of the factors that have contributed to the rise of the cities.

A New York girl who is heiress to a fortune amounting to $6,000,000 is compelled to work for the purpose of getting enough money to pay her board, because the lawyers are busy trying to divide the estate among themselves. The case affords a strong argument in favor of the "give while you live" theory.

Fair Parisiennes have adopted the hobble skirt style of bathing suit. It is absolutely impossible for them to swim when hobbled, but they probably don't mind that. If they wished to go into the water they would probably do so in their bathrooms.

Now that we get the true story of the life of the fly by the aid of the microscope we see that it merits nothing else so little as kind treatment.

Shirtwaists for men will not do. It has been decreed that men must wear coats. Old Grimes is dead, but his soul is marching on.

New York will make policemen out of farmer boys and Kansas is going to find it still harder to harvest its crops.

COOL FOR THE DELICATE MEMBER OF THE HOUSEHOLD.

ONE DIES IN WRECK

PASSENGER TRAIN ON ILLINOIS CENTRAL IS DITCHED NEAR GALENA, ILL.

ENGINEER SCALDED TO DEATH

Every Coach Except Diner Leaves Rails—Wild Panic Among Passengers Ensues—Fifteen Persons Are Injured, Three Probably Fatally.

Galena, Ill.—Illinois Central passenger train No. 5, which left Chicago at 2:30 o'clock Monday morning, went into the ditch at a point between Council Hill and Scales Mound, 16 miles east of here, killing Engineer Frank Tucker of Freeport, Ill., and injuring 15 passengers, three probably fatally.

The accident occurred on a sharp curve and all cars except one left the track and fell over on their sides.

Tucker was caught on the gangway between the tender and the locomotive when the engine plunged through the open rail and turned over. He was pinioned by a steel plate that held him suspended by the feet until he was scalded to death by steam escaping from a broken pipe.

In the first confusion it was reported that four passengers had been buried under one car and a mail clerk killed when the car was smashed. All were later accounted for.

Every car but the last, which was a diner, left the track. The train turned over, throwing many passengers across the cars. A wild panic ensued.

Screams and moans were heard above the loud hiss of the steam escaping from the engine and passengers in terror fought their way across the berth and seat sides to doors and windows.

Several passengers in the diner narrowly escaped serious injury when china and glassware was scattered over the car. Flying glass in other cars added to the scenes of terror.

Train No. 5, the fast mail, the popular Illinois Central train for western Iowa and South Dakota points, carries three sleeping cars, one chair car, and a through coach to Sioux City.

The train was said to be a few minutes late and was making up time when the accident occurred.

The heavy steel back of the mail coach broke the shock and prevented a much worse disaster. Doctors from here were rushed out and relief and a wrecking train from Dubuque was sent to the place of disaster with doctors and nurses. The injured were taken to Dubuque hospitals.

BURROWS PROBABLY BEATEN

Early Returns Show Congressman Townsend Nominated for U. S. Senator in Michigan.

Detroit, Mich.—Incomplete returns show that it is practically a certainty that United States Senator Burrows has been defeated for renomination at the Republican primaries Tuesday by Congressman Charles E. Townsend of Jackson.

Chase S. Osborn has been nominated for governor by a large majority.

Ousts Pastor Girl Accused.

Plattsburg, Mo.—Rev. Clyde Gow, formerly pastor of a Lincoln county Methodist Episcopal church, South, was Tuesday dismissed from the church on charges made against him by Miss Elizabeth Gleason, a school teacher, who died two years ago as the result of an operation.

92 Degrees in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia. — Philadelphia sweltered at 92 degrees, the hottest September day in 13 years. Many prostrations reported.

SENSATION IN I. C. HEARING

LETTER FROM HENRY C. OSTERMANN IS INTRODUCED.

Warns His Chief Clerk Against Giving Out Information Regarding Billing Methods.

Chicago.—During the preliminary hearing of the three former officials of the Illinois Central railroad charged with car repair frauds, a letter written by Henry C. Ostermann to Clarence H. Polley, formerly chief clerk of the Ostermann Manufacturing company, was introduced and caused a decided sensation.

Attorney Walter L. Fisher introduced the letter by showing it to Polley and asking him if he recognized the signature. Polley said that it was Ostermann's and that he received the letter and saw it first when he was in Sierra Madre, Cal.

It warned Polley against giving any information to the Illinois Central in regard to the billing methods of the Ostermann Manufacturing company and the West Pullman company. The letter in part follows:

"I have learned that you intend to return to Chicago for the purpose of giving the I. C. information as to our methods of billing at the West Pullman plant. I take this opportunity to advise you that you want to hold your tongue, as they are making every effort to get statements, 'stopping at nothing,' from former and present employes, giving every inducement to get them to make statements. I wish to advise you that up to the present time no one of us have given them any information whatever, and should you be approached by any one I wish you would advise me. Kindly let me hear from you by return mail without fail."

Evidence that Illinois Central railroad officials demanded stock in the Ostermann Manufacturing company from Henry C. Ostermann himself was given by Polley.

The witness admitted that at the order of Ostermann he had gone to Memphis, Tenn., to go over the books of the Memphis Car company with a bookkeeper of the Memphis company named Prieback. He declared also that the Memphis company was a branch of the Ostermann company and that the same average for computing labor costs was used by both companies.

BILBAO IN STATE OF SIEGE

Strike Situation Becomes Alarming—Martial Law Is Proclaimed—Strikers in Ugly Mood.

Bilbao, Spain.—The strike situation is alarming. The funds of the men have been exhausted and the strikers are in an ugly mood.

Collisions with the police, gendarmes and nonunionists are constantly occurring.

Many factories are being closed and the work in the harbor has been wholly suspended. Dock employes who are on strike have issued an appeal to their foreign colleagues asking the latter to refuse to handle merchandise intended for shipment here.

The government declared Bilbao in a state of siege. This action was taken after consideration at Madrid of the rioting that has taken place there as a result of the strike.

A cordon of soldiers has been thrown about the city to prevent the entry of strikers from other districts.

Drilling Foreigners Arrested.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Armed with rifles and organized as a military company, thirty-two Poles were drilling in a vacant field back of Eldora Park, near Monongahela, Monday, when a deputy gamewarden swooped down and captured them.

Killed in Baseball Game.

Saginaw, Mich.—Edward Ballard, twenty years old, was killed in a baseball game at Wisner Monday. A foul tip hit him over the heart while he was playing as catcher.

GAVE WIFE POISON

PROSECUTION REVIEWING CASE SAYS EVIDENCES OF OPERATION WERE FOUND.

TYPIST ESCAPES AS SLAYER

Crown Decides That She Had No Guilty Knowledge of Woman's Death and Lessens Allegation—Large Crowd at Trial.

London.—The prosecution made the announcement, when the trial of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, who is accused of murdering his wife, Belle Elmore, opened here Tuesday, that there were evidences that the woman had been subjected to an operation and that large quantities of a most deadly poison had been found in the body of the slain actress.

Ethel Clare Leneve, the doctor's typist, who accompanied him in his flight to Canada after the disappearance of his wife, and who has been held on the same charge, also was brought to the bar, but the crown stated that it had been decided to confine the allegations against the girl to that of an accessory after the fact.

This relieves Miss Leneve of any fore-knowledge of the crime and is in line with the belief of her family and friends that she did not share Crippen's confidence up to the time that his wife dropped out of sight and was said by him to have died in California.

Interest in the Crippen case, which was intense during the search for the doctor, by no means has worn out, as was shown by the crowd which gathered in the vicinity of the Bow street police court when the trial was opened.

Travers Humphreys appeared for the public prosecutor's office, while Solicitor Arthur Newton represented Crippen. Mr. Humphrey made a long opening address, in which he reviewed the case from the time that suspicion was aroused against the husband by the unsatisfactory explanation which he offered for the disappearance of his actress wife to his return to London and the arraignment of the doctor and Miss Leneve on the joint charge of murder.

In the course of his remarks the prosecutor definitely stated that the physicians who made the post-mortem examination of the mutilated parts unearthed in the cellar of the Crippen home in Hilldrop-Crescent, Camden road, N., had discovered the presence of large quantities of hyoscin, a colorless liquid poison, and also detected evidences that an operation had been performed.

It had been known that the authorities had been working on the theory that Belle Elmore, or, properly speaking, Cora Crippen, had been in the hands of one having at least a rude knowledge of surgery, and, further, that she had been poisoned. The official announcement of these alleged discoveries, however, have not been made before.

COMPLETES OVER-WATER TRIP

Curtiss Beats Fast Mail Train in Sixty-Mile Fight Against Adverse Winds.

Cleveland.—Another chapter in the conquest of the air was written by Glenn H. Curtiss and his Hudson flyer, when he flew from Cedar Point to Euclid Beach, circled about above a huge crowd for perhaps three minutes and landed gracefully, all in one hour and forty-one minutes.

The aviator insists he traveled 70 miles in his flight to Cedar Point and a like distance on his return, though the geological survey office here figures the flight at 64 miles and a slight fraction.

At all events, Curtiss established a record for a distance flight entirely over water—two records in fact, for each of the flights was longer than any other flight entirely over water.

The biplane battled with a stiff gale for 30 miles, the speed being retarded till only an average of 40 miles an hour was possible. At that the machine outdistanced a Lake Shore train aboard which were Mrs. Curtiss and Aviators Ely and Mars.

VERMONT GOES REPUBLICAN

Usual Majority of 30,000 Cut Almost in Half—Democrats Make Good Gains.

Burlington, Vt.—The Republicans won the state election in Vermont Tuesday, but the customary plurality of 30,000 is cut almost in half. The Democratic vote shows a substantial gain, while that of the Republicans has shrunk some twenty per cent. Rainy weather, the absence of local issues and absence of unanimity regarding the Republican candidate for governor are given as the causes. The governor-elect is Dr. John A. Mead of Rutland. Congressmen Foster and Plumly are re-elected.

Engine Hits Two Trains.

Massilon, O.—A runaway locomotive on the Wheeling & Lake Erie Tuesday, crashed into a passenger train at Ran Junction, seven miles south of here, killing the engineer of the passenger train, not one of the 100 passengers being seriously hurt.

Keene Is Improving.

Lexington, Ky.—James R. Keene, the famous turf man and financier, who was stricken with pneumonia here on Sunday last was Tuesday reported to be much improved.

STONE KILLS TRAIN ROBBER

ENGINEER IS SHOT IN LEG BY BANDIT.

Attempt Is Made to Hold Up Colorado Midland Express—Two Men in Custody.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Engineer Frank Stewart of the west-bound Colorado Midland train No. 3 killed an unidentified bandit with a rock when he attempted to hold up and rob the train early Friday four miles west of Divide. Stewart was shot in the leg by the would-be robber.

Sterling and Charles Martin, two young men who were found near the scene of the holdup, are held for investigation. Sterling Martin was slightly wounded in the head by a bullet.

The highwayman crawled over the tender as the train slowed up at a siding to meet the east-bound train. As he stopped the train Stewart turned to see his fireman, Paul Bachman, standing with his hands above his head and heard the robber say: "Put up your hands or I'll blow your head off."

The robber then forced both men to leave the engine and marched them before him to the express car.

According to Stewart, the robber ordered them to tell the express messenger that they were in peril of their lives; that the train had been held up and that the robber was determined to have the money in the express car. Stewart says that the robber fired several shots at the passengers who looked out to see what was happening.

"When we got to the express car," said Stewart, "my fireman dashed under the car and crawled to the other side. The robber leaned under the car to shoot at him and when he took his eyes off me I struck him with all my strength with a rock I had picked up as I jumped from the tender.

"As I did so he whirled and shot at me, the bullet striking me in the leg. I guess my blow finished him, for he never moved after the rock hit him. I must have fainted then, for the next I knew the conductor and express messenger and a group of excited passengers, were standing about me."

When the remainder of the train crew heard shots they seized weapons and rushed to the head of the train, firing as they came.

Shortly after the hold-up Sheriff Von Puhl and a posse searched the surrounding country and discovered the Martin brothers.

200-MILE RACE TO AITKEN

Wins Big Event at Indianapolis Auto Meet—Hearne First in Free-for-All.

Indianapolis.—Aitken, in a National, won the 200-mile race, two laps ahead of the field. His time was 2:47:54.74.

Dawson's time in the last 200-mile race for the Cobe trophy at the speedway in July was 2:43:20.13. Dawson dropped out because of a broken coupling. Livingston in a National was second; Barndollar, in a McFarlan, was third, and Greiner, in a National, fourth. Twelve cars started.

Eddie Hearne, driving a big German Benz car of 120 horse-power, ran away from a field of eight starters in the 50-mile free-for-all open race, finishing in front of his nearest competitor, Harroun, in a Marmon, by more than half a lap. Al. Livingston, in a National, finished third, and DePalma, in a 200 horse-power Fiat, fourth. The time was 38:02.85, a fraction of a minute short of the national speedway record of 37:55.53, set by DePalma on the Los Angeles track.

GIVE CANCER CURE TO WORLD

Doctor Gillman Demonstrates New System at Frisco Hospital—Physicians Are Convinced.

San Francisco. — Dr. P. K. Gillman, surgeon in chief of the Philippine general hospital at Manila, whose newly discovered treatment of cancer is said to have worked remarkable cures, has given a demonstration of his system at the Southern Pacific hospital here. He operated on two patients in the presence of several local physicians, some of whom afterward expressed their confidence in the efficiency of the treatment.

POSTAL CLERKS ARE PRAISED

Assistant Postmaster General Declares Co-Operation of Employes Saves $11,000,000 This Year.

Saratoga, N. Y. — Through the energy and co-operation of post office employes throughout the country a saving of $11,000,000 became possible in the post office department this year, according to a statement made by P. V. DeGraw, fourth assistant postmaster general, in an address before the United National Association of Post Office Clerks, which began its eleventh annual convention here.

Cotton Prices in Slump.

New York.—Following nearly six months of almost constantly advancing prices there was a sharp decline in the cotton market Tuesday with September contracts breaking to 13.40, or $2.25 per bale below the closing figures last week.

Chile's President Is Dead.

Santiago, Chile. — Vice-President Elias Fernandes Albano, acting president of Chile, since the death of President Montt, died suddenly Tuesday from an attack of heart failure.

SOCIOLOGIST KILLED

FRANK NICHOLS FOUND TO BE A WEALTHY MAN.

DIES IN FALL FROM LADDER

Was At Work As A Painter In Colorado—Owned Chicago Real Estate and Stock in Various Railroads—Other News of Interest.

Sterling, Colo.—That Frank Nichols of Momence, Ill., a member of a crew of painters at work on the Burlington roundhouse here was not the humble craftsman he pretended to be but a wealthy man studying social problems, came to light today in a search of the man's effects after he had been killed by a fall from a ladder on which he was at work.

Among his possessions were deeds to valuable Chicago real estate, mining property in the Dakotas and stock in various railroads aggregating over $100,000 in value.

Nichols had been a member of the painting crew for several months. The body will be sent to relatives in Momence, Ill.

TROLLEY WRECK IN OHIO

Motorman of Limited Forgot His Orders with Serious Results.

Sandusky, Ohio.—Twenty-six persons were injured, nine seriously, when an eastbound limited and a westbound local collided headon on the Lake Shore Electric railway near Allen's Corners, two miles east of Norwalk. The seriously injured are: Frank Hawkins, Norwalk; Mrs. O. B. Mahon, Chicago Junction; J. K. Martin and E. C. Jackson, Fremont; Louis Krouse, Havana, O.; Lavina Miller, Toledo; George H. Kerruish and Leonard Knable, Cleveland, and August Jacobs, Beach Park.

The cars came together on a curve at full speed. J. N. Bebee, Norwalk, motorman on the limited, takes upon himself all the blame. "It's my fault," he said to L. K. Burge, superintendent of the Lake Shore Electric. "I should have waited for the local at Allen's, but I forgot all about the order."

Post's Injunction Fails.

St. Louis, Mo.—The opinion of Judge McPherson, who denied the application of C. W. Post of Battle Creek, Mich., for an injunction to restrain the American Federation of Labor officials and Bucks Stove and Range company of this city from entering into a closed shop agreement, was filed in the United States circuit court here. Judge McPherson decided the case in chambers at his home in Red Oak, Iowa. The court says every employer of labor has the right to determine for himself whether his business shall be operated as a closed shop or as an open shop, adding: "Whether it is for the better to have a closed shop or open shop men differ."

Mormons to Abandon Utah.

Galveston, Texas.—Hamilton Smith, a priest of the Mormon church, who has participated in the close of a sale of 50,000 acres of land to the Mormons in the state of Coahuila, Mexico, is authority for the statement that President Diaz has assured the church that polygamy and all other practices of the church will be permitted without interference in Mexico. Dr. Smith also states that his people will abandon Utah in the not far distant future and settle in Mexico, where they will not be prosecuted for their religion and its practices. The Mormons already own 65,000 acres of land and have a well-established colony in Mexico adjoining the 50,000 acres just acquired.

Painter Hunt Dies in London.

London, Eng. — William Holman Hunt, the painter who, with Rossetti and Millais, founded the pre-Raphaelite movement, died here. He was born in London in 1827 and exhibited his first picture at the Royal Academy in 1846. The artist had been in feeble health for some time and death was not unexpected.

Two Killed; Five Will Die.

Kalispell, Mont.—Two persons were killed, fifteen seriously injured, five perhaps fatally, and twenty others suffered minor injuries in the wreck of an east-bound Burlington train on the Great Northern at Coram, 30 miles east of Kalispell. The train was en route from Seattle to Kansas City.

Floods Rage In Japan.

Tokio.—Floods threaten the cities of Osaka and Kobe, on the Island of Hondo. The river banks are collapsing and much damage is probable. High water is doing serious damage in the northern part of the main island also.

Rob Paymaster of $15,000.

Hudson, N. Y.—Ambushed robbers attacked Paymaster Dent Fowler of the Atlas Brick company just north of this city, shot and killed his negro driver, George Ragsdale, beat Fowler into insensibility and escaped with $15,000. Fowler may die.

Oldest Mail Clerk Is Dead.

Louisville. — Fred J. Knorr, age eighty-two years, a Union veteran, and believed to be the oldest mail clerk in the United States, died at his home here.

SEPTEMBER

U519
L904

REPORT OF CRUELTY STIRS DIRECTORS

Investigation Began at State Orphans' Home.

MISTREATMENT IS ALLEGED

Complaint Was Made That One of the Boys, About Fourteen Years Old, Had Been Punished Severely.

Indianapolis.—The board of directors of the Indiana Orphans' Home, at Hadley, began an investigation into the alleged mistreatment of one of the wards of the home, and expects to continue the work. Complaint was made that one of the boys, about fourteen years old, had been punished severely for some alleged misdemeanor. The complaint was made to the Indianapolis Humane society and the baords of directors.

C. L. Dietz, a humane officer, visited the home, but said he did not see the boy or learn enough particulars to make a report. Felix T. McWhirter, a member of the board of directors, said the alleged conditions had been called to the attention of the board, but as yet nothing definite had been learned. He could not tell the name of the boy who is alleged to have been punished, for what he was punished, or who was responsible for the alleged mistreatment. He said Superintendent Sumner W. Haynes employed others to help in the work and management of 2the wards, and he understood it was one of these employees who administered the punishment. He said if the board found conditions to be bad they would correct them immediately.

Company K Survivors Meet.

The annual reunion of survivors of Company K, Eleventh Indiana infantry, embracing the "squad" that enlisted from the vicinity of McCordsville and Oaklandon, who, after the Civil war, kept alive the comradeship by annual meetings, was held in a grove adjacent to Cheeryvale, where so many children and adults have enjoyed outings this summer through the generosity of Indianapolis people. Few of the old boys were able to respond, owing to the infirmities of years, but those who reported included John G. Halse, eighty-one years old; John S. White, seventy-one; John H. Bolander, sixty-five; Daniel Pickle, seventy-one; James W. Perry, sixty-seven; George W. Fleming, sixty-seven; Andrew J. Appel, seventy-two, and James H. Hinds, sixty-seven. Special guests included Will C. Phipps and Peter Bolander, sixty-nine and seventy years old, respectively; G. B. Thompson, seventy-one, of the Eleventh, and Capt. Joseph Balsley, seventy-five, of the Twenty-seventh Indiana infantry.

These, with their immediate families, and the families of the members of Company K who have died since the war, together with relatives and friends, made a goodly crowd, nearly 200 people. The housewives of the McCordsville and Oaklandon neighborhoods are famous for their cookery, and the dinner was a revelation to the people in the city who depend on the grocery or the cafe for subsistence. There was no formal program. The hours were passed in reminiscent talks, varied by recitations by Captain Balsley and Mrs. Fawcett. Mr. Hinds is secretary of the association, which proposes to continue the annual assemblies as long as there is a descendant left to keep alive the memories of other days. The reunion, next year, will be held with friends in the vicinity of Broad Ripple.

Attendance of Teachers Is Not Large.

Attendance at the county institutes now being held throughout the state is not so large as the school authorities would like to see it, as shown by reports made at the office of the state superintendent of public instruction. Hot weather, the absence of teachers on vacation trips, and the fact that a number of young teachers are attending normal schools in an effort to qualify for higher classification, are said to be responsible for the light attendance.

Teachers are classified as Class A, Class B and Class C, determined by the average grades made on examination for license, and on the number of weeks of professional training they have had. Before a teacher may enter any classification and be eligible to employment in the common schools, he must have had twelve weeks of professional training. A large number of new teachers are added in every county each year, and many of these are now taking their professional training.

Articles of Incorporation.

Articles of incorporation have been filed in the office of the secretary of state for the following:

The International Steel and Iron Construction company, Evansville; capital stock, $100,000; manufacturers and contractors; directors, O. J. Oehlkuch, Henry Bohnsack, F. O. Weber and H. F. Decker.

The Century Catalog company, Indianapolis; capital stock, $25,000; publishers; directors, A. J. Cohen, Edward Mason and R. P. Finney.

Dispute Over a Body.

The state anatomical board is threatened with a suit by the undertaking firm of Killian & McCloskey of Logansport, as a result of the recent delivery to the Indiana university school of medicine of the body of Mrs. Anna Fullgraft of Hammond, who was an inmate of the insane hospital at Longcliff. According to a dispatch from Logansport, the undertakers have been in the habit of receiving $15 for services on bodies turned over to the anatomical board, and a check for $10 sent from the medical college has been returned with a demand for $15 or the body. The order to the express company when the body was sent to Indianapolis was to collect $15, the undertakers say. The express company, however, as is usual in such a shipment, delivered it immediately to the college, leaving arrangement for payment to the college and the undertakers. The rough box in which the body was shipped was sent back by the college.

Dr. John E. Morris, secretary of the anatomical board, says that he has not received any word in regard to the attitude of the undertakers. The body, he says, was delivered to the medical college and the services of the undertakers paid for, as is usual, with a check for $10.

War History Teaching.

Members of the educational committee of the Indiana Woman's Relief Corps, an auxiliary of the Indiana G. A. R., declared in a meeting at the statehouse that the school histories adopted by the state board of education for use in all the public schools of the state do not do justice to the cause of the Union in the Civil war, and that the pupils in the schools need instruction of a special sort to make up for the defect. This instruction the relief corps is planning to give by special lectures to the pupils and by special exercises of patriotic nature held under the auspices of the organization.

Preparation for the work for the ensuing school year, which will begin all over the state within the next two weeks, was the purpose of the meeting. Plans were laid down for visits to the schools by members of the committee and by assistants to be selected from the corps membership. An outline of lectures to be given and of exercises to be followed was considered, although the plans were not completed in all details. Preparations were made to present flags to the schools with proper dedicatory ceremonies. The committee hopes to have its helpers visit every school in the state during the school year.

Report Twisted Records.

In four reports just made public by the state board of accounts of affairs in two townships and two school cities, no money is charged back, although the records and accounts were found somewhat badly twisted, due to failure to conform to the law. In the case of Quirin Vanderheide, trustee of Laughry township, Ripley county, it was found, it was said, that the township advisory board had failed to make appropriations for either 1909 or 1910. There were several overpayments, due to errors, and these were corrected by the examiners. Sundry irregularities were found, it was reported, in the case of P. R. Peters, trustee of Washington township, of the same county. Vouchers had not been filed with the annual report to the county auditor in this case.

The records of the school city of Angola were found lacking in numerous details, but the financial affairs were found to have been attended to properly, as concerns receipts and disbursements. A like condition was found in the case of the school city of Wheatland, Jasper county.

Overtax Exhibit Space.

The inflow of entries to the state fair is expected to begin easing up and Secretary Charles Downing will begin to figure on totals with a view to providing more room in several departments. Enough show horses have been listed for the light harness and saddle class to make it certain that a temporary barn or tent will have to be provided for at least 100 animals that cannot be sheltered in the brick barn. There will be seventy-six exhibitors in the poultry department, showing about 3,000 birds, which will fill the poultry house to overflowing. Additional shelter will also be necessary for sheep. J. Crouch & Son of Lafayette, Ind., will send to the fair all of the draft horses they have imported from Europe this summer, and Sterling R. Holt of Indianapolis will show sixty imported draft and light harness horses. Lawrence Jones of Louisville, Ky., has asked for fourteen stalls. Enough Shetland ponies are coming from two exhibitors to the fair to fill one section of fifty stalls, with two ponies to the stall. Dan Patch, the headliner of the state fair's horse division, is also a factor in the barn difficulties which beset Mr. Downing. Dan Patch, who is to hold daily receptions to his admirers, requires something out of common in the way of a stall.

Urges Fight for Frat Law Appeal.

Indianapolis.—Sentiment favoring the repeal by the Indiana legislature of the law against high school fraternities, passed in 1907, was expressed by Russel Strain of Newcastle at the annual banquet of Kappa Alpha Phi. In speaking on the topic, "Kappa Alpha Phi—The Past," he remarked that the growth of the fraternity has been stunted by the enactment and that before it could attain full growth an attempt must be made to lay the present law "on the shelf."

HIS HIDEOUS HEIRLOOM

By STACY E. BAKER

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

Miss Harriet Herlien was eccentric, and her eccentricity led her to extremes when, at her death, she willed a time-worn and hideous bureau to her favorite nephew—and nothing else.

Marvin Chapman debated long on whether to favor the relic of an artless manufacturer with resting room, or relegate it to a second-hand emporium. In the end love and a certain respect for the old lady won; the bureau was installed in the otherwise up-to-date apartments of the young man.

Miss Harriet Herlien had been a highly esteemed woman, aggressive in word and action. She had a shrewd mind, calculating, keen.

Chapman, who had not seen his aunt for a number of years, remembered her as a sharp-eyed old lady, silver-haired and always garbed in black.

The bureau amused the friends of the young artist, and laughing congratulations were given Chapman on having secured so handsome an antique. He volunteered no explanations. The bureau became a permanent fixture in his rooms.

Chpaman was an artist of much talent, but, as yet, little success. He managed, by rigid economy, to live within his all-to-small income, and keep up appearances. Meanwhile, the spotlight of publicity was gradually coming closer.

The youth had always believed that his aunt was a woman of vast wealth and that he was to inherit all of her fortune. Believing this, he had made no effort to husband his own little money. Now he realized his mistake—this leaning on possibilities—for his dream was farther away from him than ever—and he had imagined it most tangible, and of bound-to-come-true construction.

But, after all, even if the little country studio, far away from the stress and clamor of the town, were eliminated, and the constant production of "pot boilers" was always to be a necessity, the heart of the dream was still left to him. The heart of the dream, the radiant center around which all these thoughts and visions of the future revolved, was—Annette Leya!

The young artist had known the girl for years. They had been fellow students in Paris, and her dark eyes, studded beneath perfect brows, had made their strong appeal to him long before he had become acquainted with her. Above and beyond her perfect figure, her rare poise; above and beyond all these, the magnetism of her personality had claimed him, and he knew in his heart that there never could be any other.

In the End Love and a Certain Respect for the Old Lady Won.

The youth had been a keen boy, fresh from the country in those days, and what the girl could have found in him was a mystery. To be sure, the aquiline nose, the firm, frank eyes and the fighting jaw told of victories to come; but, as a general rule, young girls are not able to judge of such things.

Both Chapman and the girl were now back in New York, and the friendship had long since ripened to an engagement and a full understanding. Annette's career as an artist was in the same state as that of her sweetheart.

"I think it is rather quaint," complimented Miss Leya, upon her first glimpse of the monstrosity. Nevertheless, her enthusiasm broke to no line frenzy. Polite fabrications came to the girl with difficulty. Her perfect lips and her rather serious profile were consistently above trivial word vagaries.

Several months after the installation of the heirloom Chapman received a caller.

"My name is Cummings," introduced the elderly person, having calmly helped himself to a chair. He removed an ancient tile and mopped the shining dome of his head with a gaudy handkerchief. "You have never met me, sir, but your late aunt—a most estimable woman—insisted that I call on you when in the city. We were friends," he finished simply.

The keen eyes of the caller roamed about the room, resting at last upon a little door leading to a chamber. Just visible from where he sat was the freak gift that had descended to Chapman.

The artist noted the curious glance of the visitor. "That bureau," he laughed, "was my inheritance. Aunt Harriet willed it to me. If I had followed first impressions the thing wouldn't be here now, but—well, Aunt was a good old soul, and she certainly must have thought something of the old affair or I wouldn't have been inflicted with it. Her sentiments are mine. I shall stand by that ancient chest of drawers until grim death relieves me of its guardianship."

"I wouldn't mind owning it myself," confessed Cummings. "I'll give you twice what the thing cost—just to own it for a keepsake, you know."

"It is not for sale," answered Chapman.

"I will give," said the old man, sticking to the subject, "just $100 for the clap-trap. Better take it."

"It is not for sale," reiterated Chapman, patiently. "Can't you understand, sir? It is not for sale."

"One thousand dollars," exclaimed the old man, "and not a cent more, by jing! No, sir, not a cent more!"

"You had better see a doctor," suggested Chapman.

"That bureau isn't worth a cent to anyone but me. It is old, dilapidated and hideous."

Cummings had already started for the door. "I see we can't do business," he called back to the surprised Chapman. "Good-by."

The painter stared after his eccentric visitor. "Crazy," he ejaculated. "Mad as a March hare! Some old lover of aunt's, probably, and he wanted that—er—thing as a keepsake. Jove! who would have supposed romance existed in such a frame?"

Nevertheless, and despite his firm and indignant refusal of Cummings's offer, Chapman had been tempted. One thousand dollars meant a lot to him.

Annette laughed when he told her. "Why, boy," she said, softly, "you don't know yourself as well as I know you." One slim hand rested on his arm. "Your visitor couldn't have bought that bureau for $50,000, I know.'

A week later Chapman received this letter:

"Dear Mr. Chapman:

"In calling upon you recently I did so acting in the capacity of your late aunt's legal adviser, and as the administrator of her estate. The legacy of the bureau was a test. If you kept it an allotted time and refused to dispose of it for even such a ridiculously large sum as I offered you it would prove your love for her and the rest of the estate was to come to you.

"You have won, and in the face of great temptation. Congratulations.

"The property amounts to over $100,000. Call upon me as soon as possible for more explicit information. Very truly,

"C. C. Cummings.'

"It pays," said Annette Leya, who was present at the opening of the letter, "to cherish heirlooms."

He Was Too Enthusiastic.

Hank Dobbs was noted as an "honest" horse trader. He would not lie about a horse. He would merely suppress the truth. Incidentally he always beat the customer who dealt with him. The way he could slur over the defects and buzz about the virtues of an animal amounted to genius.

Once Hank was trying to sell a neighbor a horse that had an eye which was nearly sightless. The neighbor knew Hank would not lie outright to him, so he questioned the horse trader as to the various points of the brute.

"How about his eyesight? Can he see out of both eyes?"

"Sure," said Hank, "he's got good eyes.' Here he leaned forward, his eyes fairly scintillating with suppressed honesty. "One eye is particularly good!"

Hank's enthusiasm for the truth had carried him too far. The deal was off.

As a Refrigerator.

Jerome S. McWade, on the Cunard pier in New York, was talking about last month's long and terrible heat wave.

"The heat wave," he said, "caused comic as well as tragic happenings. For instance:

"Late on a hot afternoon a guard at the Metropolitan museum, entering the hall of sculptures, was amazed to see a fat, red-faced man seated on the knee of a marble Venus.

"The guard could hardly believe his eyes. He advanced hurriedly. Yes, it was true. The fat man sat on the Venus' white lap, his arms were around her neck, and his head lay on her shoulder.

"'Say, what are you doin' there?' the scandalized guard demanded.

"'It's all—hic—all ri', guard,' replied the fat man. 'I'm just coolin' off a bit—hic—thash all.'"

Death Rate Among German Babies.

The figures of the present infant mortality alarm Germany, where the fact that there is a notable increase is evident from the statistics just published. Out of 2,000,000 persons born alive last year in the empire 351,000 died under the age of one year, a record exceeding 17 per cent.

The highest mortality by kingdoms is Bavaria, 23 per cent; the lowest, 16.3 per cent, is in Prussia. As compared with the British Isles the infant mortality in Germany is very high. In the former the general percentage is 10.8, the rate of mortality varying from 11.8 per cent in England and Wales, where it is highest, to 9.1 per cent in Ireland, where it is lowest. —America.

INDEPENDENCE ON THE FARM

SPLENDID RESULTS FOLLOW FARMING IN THE CANADIAN WEST.

Americans In Canada Not Asked to Forget That They Were Born Americans.

Farm produce today is remunerative, and this helps to make farm life agreeable. Those who are studying the economics of the day tell us that the strength of the nation lies in the cultivation of the soil. Farming is no longer a hand-to-mouth existence. It means independence, often affluence, but certainly independence.

Calling at a farm house, near one of the numerous thriving towns of Alberta, in Western Canada, the writer was given a definition of "independence" that was accepted as quite original. The broad acres of the farmer's land had a crop—and a splendid one, too, by the way—ripening for the reapers' work. The evenness of the crop, covering field after field, attracted attention, as did also the neatness of the surroundings, the well-built substantial story-and-a-half log house, and the well-rounded sides of the cattle. His broken English—he was a French Canadian—was easily understandable and pleasant to listen to. He had come there from Montreal a year ago, had paid $20 an acre for the 320-acre farm, with the little improvement it had. He had never farmed before, yet his crop was excellent, giving evidence as to the quality of the soil, and the good judgment that had been used in its preparation. And brains count in farming as well as "braw." Asked how he liked it there, he straightened his broad shoulders, and with hand outstretched towards the waving fields of grain, this young French Canadian, model of symmetrical build, replied: "Be gosh, yes, we like him—the farmin'—well, don't we, Jeannette?" as he smilingly turned to the young wife standing near. She had accompanied him from Montreal to his far-west home, to assist him by her wifely help and companionship, in making a new home in this new land. "Yes, we come here wan year ago, and we never farm before. Near Montreal, me father, he kep de gris' mill, an' de cardin' mill, an' be gosh! he run de cheese factor' too. He work, an' me work, an' us work tarn har', be gosh! Us work for de farmer; well 'den, sometin' go not always w'at you call

RANG THE BELL, ALL RIGHT

Intimates of Yield of Wheat in Western Canada for 1910 More Than One Hundred Million Bushels.

de' right, an' de farmer he say de' mean t'ing, be gosh! and tell us go to—well, anyway he tarn mad. Now," and then he waved his hand again towards the fields, "I 'ave no bodder, no cardin' mill, no gris' mill, no cheese factor'. I am now de farmer man an' when me want to, me can say to de oder fellow! you go——! Well, we like him—the farmin'." And that was a good definition of independence.

Throughout a trip of several hundred miles in the agricultural district of Western Canada, the writer found the farmers in excellent spirits, an optimistic feeling being prevalent everywhere. It will be interesting to the thousands on the American side of the line to know that their relatives and friends are doing well there, that they have made their home in a country that stands up so splendidly under what has been trying conditions in most of the northwestern part of the farming districts of the continent. With the exception of some portions of Southern Alberta, and also a portion of Manitoba and Southern Saskatchewan the grain crops could be described as fair, good and excellent. The same drought that affected North and South Dakota, Montana, Minnesota, Wisconsin and other of the northern central states extended over into a portion of Canada just mentioned. But in these portions the crops for the past four or five years were splendid and the yields good.

The great province of Saskatchewan has suffered less from drought in proportion to her area under cultivation than either of the other provinces. On the other hand, instead of the drought being confined very largely to the south of the main line of the C. P. R. it is to be found in patches right through the center of northern Saskatchewan also. In spite of this, however, Saskatchewan has a splendid crop. A careful checking of the averages of yield, with the acreages in the different districts, gives an average yield of 15½ bushels to the acre.

In Southern Alberta one-fifth of the winter wheat will not be cut, or has been re-sown to feed. There are individual crops which will run as high as 45 bushels on acres of 500 and 1,000 acres, but there are others which will drop as low as 15. A safe average for winter wheat will be 19 bushels. The sample is exceptionally fine, excepting in a few cases where it has been wrinkled by extreme heat.

The northern section of Alberta has been naturally anxious to impress the world with the fact that it has not suffered from drought, and this is quite true. Wheat crops run from 20 to 30 bushels to an acre, but in a report such as this it is really only possible to deal with the province as a whole and while the estimate may seem very low to the people of Alberta, it is fair to the province throughout.

When the very light rainfall and other eccentricities of the past season are taken into account, it seems nothing short of a miracle that the Canadian West should have produced 102 million bushels of wheat, which is less than 18 million bushels short of the crop of 1909. It is for the West generally a paying crop and perhaps the best advertisement the country has ever had, as it shows that no matter how dry the year, with thorough tillage, good seed and proper methods of conserving the moisture, a crop can always be produced.

As some evidence of the feeling of the farmers, are submitted letters written by farmers but a few days ago, and they offer the best proof that can be given.

Maidstone, Sask., Aug. 4, '10.

I came to Maidstone from Menominee, Wis., four years ago, with my parents and two brothers. We all located homesteads at that time and now have our patents. The soil is a rich black loam as good as I have ever seen. We have had good crops each year and in 1909 they were exceedingly good. Wheat yielding from 22 to 40 bushels per acre and oats from 40 to 80. We are well pleased with the country and do not care to return to our native state. I certainly believe that Saskatchewan is just the place for a hustler to get a start and make himself a home. Wages here for farm labor range from $35 to $45 per month.

Lee Dow.

Tofield, Alberta, July 10, 1910.

I am a native of Texas, the largest and one of the very best states of the Union. I have been here three years and have not one desire to return to the States to live. There is no place I know of that offers such splendid inducements for capital, brain and brawn. I would like to say to all who are not satisfied where you are, make a trip to Western Canada; if you do not like it you will feel well repaid for your trip. Take this from one who's on the ground. We enjoy splendid government, laws, school, railway facilities, health, and last, but not least, an ideal climate, and this from a Texan.

O. L. Pughs.

James Normur of Porter, Wisconsin, after visiting Dauphin, Manitoba, says: "I have been in Wisconsin 25 years, coming out from Norway. Never have I seen better land and the crops in East Dauphin are better than I have ever seen, especially the oats. There is more straw and it has heavier heads than ours in Wisconsin.

"This is just the kind of land we are looking for. We are all used to mixed farming and the land we have seen is finely adapted to that sort of work. Cattle, hogs, horses and grain will be my products, and for the live stock, prospects could not be better. I have never seen such cattle as are raised here on the wild prairie grasses and the vetch that stands three or four feet high in the groves and on the open prairie.

Sir Wilfred Laurier Talks to Americans.

Sir Wilfred Laurier, Premier of Canada, is now making a tour of Western Canada and in the course of his tour he has visited many of the districts in which Americans have settled. He expresses himself as highly pleased with them. At Craig, Saskatchewan, the American settlers joined with the others in an address of welcome. In replying Sir Wilfred said in part:

"I understand that many of you have come from the great Republic to the south of us—a land which is akin to us by blood and tradition. I hope that in coming from a free country you realize that you come also to another free country, and that although you came from a republic you have come to what is a crowned democracy. The King, our sovereign, has perhaps not so many powers as the President of the United States, but whether we are on the one side of the line or the other, we are all brothers by blood, by kinship, by ties of relationship. In coming here as you have come and becoming naturalized citizens of this country no one desires you to forget the land of your ancestors. It would be a poor man who would not always have in his heart a fond affection for the land which he came from. The two greatest countries today are certainly the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the Republic of the United States. Let them be united together and the peace of the world will be forever assured.

"I hope that in coming here as you have, you have found liberty, justice and equality of rights. In this country, as in your own, you know nothing of separation of creed and race, for you are all Canadians here. And if I may express a wish it is that you would become as good Canadians as you have been good Americans and that you may yet remain good Americans. We do not want you to forget what you have been; but we want you to look more to the future than to the past. Let me, before we part, tender you the sincere expression of my warmest gratitude for your reception."

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0520

The St. Joe News.

One Year - - $1.00
Six Month - - 50c
Three Months - - 25c

FRED B LEIGHTY
PUBLISHER.

MRS. LEIGHTY, Associate Editor

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES
IN EVERY TOWN
THE CONCERN OF ALL

Entered at the Post Office in St. Joe as second-class mail matter.

The Fairview Correspondent, in a highly seasoned pyrotechnical display of superfluous adjectives, attempts to humiliate Ex Prohi and all his ken. He, in the beginning of his article, says, "Why the Ex?" Well, that is a fair question and deserves a fair answer. We have had instilled into our mind somehow, somewhere, that when one votes any ticket, he indorses the entire platform of that party, or its principles, and that no man, no matter what his personal views on any question of policy may be, is himself powerless to go farther than his party's platform pledges itself to do toward effecting any reform measure. The citizen should be greater than any political or religious organization, and when anything is proposed by that party; which party by the way formerly represented his views, but now advocates something just as bad as that evil institution it proposes to destroy, we believe the proper thing to do, is to divorce ourselves from that party, form an alliance with one that more nearly represents our convictions. Anything like "Partisanship on the ragged edge of insanity," about this, Mr. Correspondent? Who ever heard of a "Demo" or "Rep", being insanely partisan? It seems to us that someone else, bears a closer resemblance to that Biblical character that stood in the market place and blowed his "bazoo", thus incurring the displeasure of Him who sees, as none other can see. The Correspondent does not wish to deprive us of our solitary ride, how very kind of him. Perhaps we should be ashamed of ourself, for being such a contrary cuss. We will admit we have just that sort of mentality he so pathetically describes. But looking backward over the pages of history we find that old Noah was built that way, Christopher Columbus was "nutty", Fulton had "Bats in his belfry", Martin Luther had the audacity to have a mind of his own, Henry Clay was a political fool viewed from the standpoint of the "stand pat" professional demagogue of today. It does make us a little ashamed, we admit, to be classed with such an unpractical "rummy" set as these. Still, it's funny, isn't it, that somehow their names happen to adorn history's pages, and that every little tow head is fond of the phrase "I'd rather be right than president?" How, Mr. Correspondent, in a government operated on the principle that ours is operated, can one know whether a man is fitted to pilot this grand old ship of state, unless he has the courage of his convictions, to stand by the principle that license is sin, and line up with those who prefer principle to political preferment? The good man theory is an ephemeral dream that can never be realized, unless, perchance, the entire constitution of our government be changed, and a new form of government be instituted. The attitude of Mr. McKennan shows what Democracy stands for. The method of the Local Option league shows that it is a sort of side show of the Republican party that said party has to handle with care, like perishable fruit. The halo about the brow of the "Prohi" may not look very bright to those who wear the license goggles of the old parties, but the day will come when Prohibition is an established principle in our land, that these same scoffers will fairly tumble over each other to proclaim loudly to the world how "Betsey and me killed the bear."

Ex Prohi.

D. F. BROWN,

.....SHOE SHOP.. ...

My shoe shop is permanently located on the corner opposite Kagey's Grocery. Look for the sign. Work done while you wait.

St. Joe, - Ind.

You will find me here with a full line Roofing and Spouting of all kinds

Eespecially with The Galvanized Shingles of all sizes as I have sold a nice lot of them for the spring trade. Get prices of me before you buy elsewhere. All work guaranteed first class and prices right. Repairs made promptly.

FRANK KINSEY.

Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37-4.

WABASH CORNERS.

Winfield Pervines drove to Fort Wayne, Thursday.

Emanuel Ulm and wife were Sunday guests at Holl Jacksons' near Butler.

Milt Carper and family, of west of Mt. Hope, were Sunday guests of Mart Hulls'.

Roy White, wife and two sons, Ora and Earl, were Sunday guests of Gene Whites'.

Sherman Rickett is digging a new cellar, and expects to build a new kitchen soon.

Simon Bradley and family of Illinois are here visiting the former's cousins, the Rickett brothers.

Miss May Daily began her school in Allen county, Monday. As this is her first term we wish her success.

Orange Herrick and wife were the guests of Mart White and family, and Henry Gall and family of Hamilton from Thursday until Saturday.

Tell Elson and wife, of north of Concord, and Adam Christoffel, wife and little granddaughter of Detroit, were Sunday guests at Ale Simantons'.

Not a minute should be lost when a child shows symptoms of croup. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Milton Wolff and wife, Charley Walters, wife and three daughters, Violet, Elgie and Ruby, and three sons, Gorm, Garry and Raymond, all of near Edon, Ohio; and Mitch Hanes and wife of Auburn, all ate dinner Sunday at Sherman Wolffs'. and Wm Pervines, wife and daughter Pearl, were Sunday afternoon guests. The afternoon was spent in visiting, singing and music on the organ and violin.

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at ..... 10:32 a. m.
No. 3 ..... 8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at..... 6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at..... 4:57 p.m

CONCORD

Dell Draggoo's are moving back in their own house.

Ruth Draggoo spent last week with her sister, Mrs. John Brown.

Miss Bertha Read visited Saturday and Sunday with Inez Patterson.

Miss Hazel Bills is visiting her sister Mrs. Norman Wyatt of this place.

Miss Loretta Funk went to Fort Wayne last week where she has employment.

James Wyatt and wife and D. E. Poorman and wife spent Sunday at Robison Park.

Mr. John Draggoo and wife were visitors at the home of Thomas Wann on the County Line Sunday.

Mr. Geo. Johnson and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hull of Cedarville.

Chas. Jackson, wife and daughter Mabel visited with Mr. and Mrs. Timmerman at Cedarville Sunday.

Howard Krise is building an addition to his house. Sadie Draggoo is assisting Mrs. Krise with her work.

Dr. and Mrs. Neighswander came Saturday from a visit in Ohio. They expect to begin house keeping again.

Post-Mortem Values.

"A man may have a cur dog he doesn't consider worth a dose of rat poison," said Uncle Henry Butterworth, "but let his neighbor kill that cur and in less than five minutes the owner will be saying, 'I wouldn't have taken $50 for that dog.'"—Kansas City Times.

Local Items.

Bring that oil can to Kinsey's Hardware, they can fill it.

Mrs. Monroe is at Chestertown, Ind., the guest of her brother, who is very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Simpson of Camden, Mich., and Mrs. Anna Simpson of Hicksville, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Tustison on last Wednesday.

Hersh Yeast is Avilla made and O. K'd, and has been the baker's delight for years. Ask your grocer for it

Margaret Ellen Tustison spent Monday and Tuesday in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Hitchner at Spencerville.

When you know anything of news value, call us up by Bell 'phone No. 10.

Through the late ruling of the Post-Office Department, the rural mail carriers are permitted to execute pension vouchers for soldiers living on their routes. This will make it much more convenient for the veterans, as some of them are not prepared to go to a notary public, while the rural carriers can fill out the vouchers at the mail boxes.

WANTED—COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE requires the services of a representative in St. Joe to look after subscription renewals and to extend circulation by special methods which have proved unusually successful. Salary and commission. Previous experience desirable but not essential. Whole time or spare time. Address, with reference, H. C. Campbell, Cosmopolitan Magazine, 1789 Broadway, New York City.

Money Coming to You.

Put $100 in this bank, at the end of one year you will have that $100 and also $4.00 coming to you as interest.

At the end of the second year, you will still have $100 in the bank; you have had $4.00 interest and have $4.00 more coming to you.

There will be money coming to you as long as savings are in the bank.

Grabill STATE Bank

A MAN OR IRON NERVE.

Indomitable will and tremendous energy are never found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills, the matchless regulators, for keen brain and strong body. 25c at H. L. Dunkle's.

Rep. McKennan's Political Position in the Coming Campaign.

Since the L. L. Denison statement through the Waterloo Press as to his position on the Local Option question, I have been asked by a number of people what my position was on that question, in answer I will say that the Democrat party framed their platform which is the promise of the party to the people. The people nominated me on the strength of that platform, and if elected I will be found standing on that platform through my whole term of office, I stand for the success of the Democratic party in the coming election, and to stand for what the party pledges is the only way to success, I want the people to cast their votes for me with a full knowledge of my position.

We have a fight before us and it is necessary for the voters to go to the polls with a full knowledge of what is before them, the talk is that the republican party is all shot to pieces on account of the Payne Tariff law, but the democrats of Indiana must not rely on the supposed republican troubles this year, for they have a way of getting together at the last minute and getting every thing in line.

The democrats should go to work to win the victory which can be done if they will stand together, all small matters should be laid aside, and the most important taken up and explained to the people, we should have party organization in every county, in every township, and in every precinct. Organization is what the party needs, and it can be secured only by personal work and general activity of precinct committee's, County Committee's and the undivided support of every democrat paper in the county.

Had it not been for the fact that the democrat party has always stood for freedom, and apposed repression and despotism, its mistakes would have long since proved fatal, the party has always been a refuge for the liberal element.

The democratic platform adheres to the desires of the people, now since your candidates have been nominated on the strength of the promise of the party through the platform, no democrat should attempt to influence such candidate to hedge, but should support the candidate that if elected will stand for and redeem the platform pledge.

Governor Marshall in his state convention speech, stated that every democrat should join hands in support of the democrat platform, and it should be his message to the next general assembly, for if the democrats of Indiana, will dare to be democrats this year, and stand for the platform promise, victory will be ours.

As Jefferson said, the platform is the promise of the party to the people, and it is the duty of Legislators to redeem that pledge, and to declare for and maintain our natural rights, and take none of them from us.

There is but two issues before the people in this campaign all other matters are thrown aside, those issues are John W. Kern and Beveridge, if the legislature is democratic it insures the election of Kern to the U. S. Senate, if it is republican it elects Beveridge, if we fail this time, it may keep us out for the next ten or twelve years, you can't afford to waver.

This I think answers all questions as to my position in the coming campaign.

Candidate for Representative.
E. M. McKennan.

J. H. Lake M. D.

has permanently located in the O. H. Widney property on 4th street, opposite opera house and invites you to call on him.

Calls answered day or night.

Phone No. 82.

St. Joe, - Indiana.

J D Fetters

TRUSTEE

of Concord Township.

OFFICE DAY:
THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK at his farm residence One mile
EAST OF CONCORD.

DENTIST

C. R. PRICE,

ST. JOE, IND.

Office in Case building.

Bell Phone No. 44.

5% FARM LOANS 5%

SEE

Charles O. Borst
Auburn, Ind.

Our system comprises the system of R. Dexter Tefft, Ralston & Ernest and Hartman & Borst.

I will answer free of charge any question relating to the Title of any parcel of land in DeKalb County.

Call us by Phone.

Bell 347k Home 346

Office:

Corner Main and Ninth Streets.

Look Ahead A Little

It may be like this in August

And this way in September

And even like this in October but —

In November your thoughts will turn to such scenes as these.

Stove Time is Coming

In November you will need a Base Burner—perhaps a new Cooking Stove. To prepare for this we are putting in a new stock of Favorites, because we know there are no others in the market quite as good. The Favorite Base Burner is in a class by itself. Come and see it and we will show you why it will throw out more heat and consume about half as much fuel as other makes.

Don't put off the stove question till the cold days come." In Summertime prepare for Winter.

J. W. BURWELL & SON

St. Joe, Ind.

..Real Estate.

Insurance

NOTARY PUBLIC

Money to loan on farm Mortgages.

E. E. BERRY

WHEN DEATH COMES

Friends and loved ones desire that the last services be conducted in the best way possible. The embalming and funeral need careful attention. Elias Kinsey, a licensed embalmer, takes charge of all funerals. Satisfaction guaranteed. Calls answered day or night

H. V. Kinsey & Son,

Phone No. Office 37-2. Residence 37-3

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0521

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A Department of the ST. JOE NEWS for the Spencerville People.

WISE'S CORNERS.

Ora Billman spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. Alice Spitler.

Will and Walt Miller are both busy hauling gravel and tile, this week.

Tom Hood of Harlan, made several business calls in our neighborhood, Tuesday.

Frank Wertman and Ed Billsman were at Spencerville on business, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Smith were callers at their son, Will Smiths', Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Daisy Markle made the correspondent a very pleasant call, Saturday afternoon.

The correspondent is almost to busy to write many items, but will try to do her best to let "Our Corner" be heard from each week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Smith, and Elmer Smith and family also Mr. Charlie Moore and son Ralph, of Hicksville, spent Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Smith.

Your complexion as well as your temper is rendered miserable by a disordered liver. By taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets you can improve both. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

Frank Wertman received the sad news, last week, that his daughter Helen, of Mansfield, Ohio, (who was here on a visit a few weeks ago) was very ill. Mr. and Mrs. Wertman left Sunday afternoon to visit her. Mr. and Mrs. Billman are doing their work during their absense.

S. S. Kimes

—M. D.—

Having located in the Hursh building, is now ready to answer all calls, day or night. He invites you to call at the office and is ready to extend you every courtesy in keeping with the profession.

Phone No. 10.

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. No. 1.

Miss Clara Hay returned home from Butler, Sunday.

Milt Chaney and wife of Spencerville, called on Phil Chaneys', Sunday afternoon.

Miss Venus Horn spent Sunday afternoon with Leila Horn.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horn and Mr. E. L. Dilley attended church at Harlan, Sunday.

John Notestine and family spent Sunday evening at George Horns'.

Miss Mary Horn was the guest of Hallie Notestine, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Hilgemann of Ft. Wayne, spent several days last week visiting with John Horn and family.

Don't waste your money buying plasters when you can get a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment for twenty-five cents. A piece of flannel dampened with this liniment is superior to any plaster for lame back, pains in the side and chest, and much cheaper. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2.

The Misses Olive Beerbower, Violet and Mary Tyndall spent Sunday with LeAnna Wearley.

John Stafford of near Newville Center, spent Sunday with D. M. Kelleys'.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kimes called on Harvie Kimes and family, Sunday evening.

Mrs. Jane Weirs of Ft. Wayne, is visiting relatives here.

Frank Rhoads and family of Concord; Inez Rhoads of St. Joe, and Wm. Lake and family spent Sunday with Wm. Rhoads and family.

A HIT!

Our Hardware Bargains Are All

HOME RUNS

Come in and we'll coach you around the bases with pleasure

Tools, Fertilizers, Stoves, Kitchen Ware

EVERYTHING YOU NEED

J. BEAMS

Read your own NEWS.

Tom Farners' spent Sunday in Spencerville.

Will Omo and wife spent Sunday with Will Millers'.

Joseph Zies and family spent Sunday with Wall Millers'.

Miss Florence Miller spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Eva Mills.

Ora Enzor and Howard Benninghoff spent Sunday with Burl Enzors'.

Before buying your machine oil see Erick & Co's Eldorado Castor. Only 20c. per gallon. It's a fine one.

Mrs. Will Tyndall and children spent Sunday with J. A. Provines and wife in Spencerville.

THE LASH OF A FIEND

Would have been about as welcome to A. Cooper, of Oswego, N. Y., as a merciless lung-racking cough that defied all remedies for years. "It was most troublesome at night," he writes, "nothing helped me till I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which cured me completely. I never cough at night now." Millions know its matchless merit for stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, sore lungs, lagrippe, asthma, hemorrhage, croup, whooping cough, or hay fever. It relieves quickly and never fails to satisfy. A trial convinces. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. It's positively guaranteed by H. L. Dunkle.

Base Ball.

The ball game between St. Joe and Spencerville at St. Joe on last Thursday was won by the visitors to the score of 8 to 1. The game would probably been a shut out for St. Joe had not Hursh and Beams threw away the ball in the sixth inning. St. Joe was not in form while Esq. Allen of the opposite team was in good trim. Hull finished the game for the visitors.

A Good Position

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R. R and Wireless officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Cincinnati, O., or Philadelphia, Pa.

Does not Color the Hair

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Stops Falling Hair — An Elegant Dressing

Destroys Dandruff — Makes Hair Grow

Ingredients: Sulphur. Glycerin. Quinia. Sodium Chlorid. Capsicum. Sage. Alcohol. Water. Perfume.

A safe preparation made from this formula is harmless, yet possesses positive merit. A hair food, a hair tonic, a hair dressing. Consult your doctor about these hair problems.

J. C. AYER COMPANY, Lowell, Mass.

Settlement Notice.

All persons owing us please call at our store and make satisfactory settlement not later than October 1st.

BEAMS & Co.

SPENCERVILLE.

Read the ads and be posted.

Mary A. Shutt is sick with lagrippe.

Lutheran S. S., 60 attendance $1.77 collection.

Miss Alda Elson of Auburn, spent Sunday with Iva Zehner.

Eb Chapman and wife are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby girl.

The dam at this place is undergoing a job of repairing by Murray Bros.

Argyl Beams commenced his first term of school, Monday. He is teaching the Grabill school.

Mr. Reuben Cook of Cedarville, is visiting with his son, Jerome Cook and family, for a few days.

Chas. Chapman and wife have moved in with her parents, David Butlers', owing to her poor health. Mr. Chapman is away from home most all the time.

W. W. Fisher, one of our most estimable teachers will teach at Huntertown, he is principal of the Huntertown school. We regret very much to loose Mr. Fisher, he has always given perfect satisfaction in his school work here. Our loss will be Huntertown's gain.

"Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means that it never fails to cure diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is pleasant to take and equally valuable for children and adults. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

YOU ARE ALWAYS WELCOME AT THE

TREECE RESTAURANT

Lunch, Cigars, Confectionary, Ice Cream and Soft Drinks

Clem Treece

PROPRIETOR.

DON'T BREAK DOWN,

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause breakdowns. You can't overtax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters, the matchless tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sende, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. 50c. At H. L. Dunkle's.

Lucy Fairfield has been quite poorly for sometime.

Fern Metcalf of Moores, Ind., is the guest of D. D. Metcalfs', this week.

Robert Beams is attending school at Butler, and Miss Vera Silberg at Garrett.

Clarence Steward will leave for Bloomington, this week, where he expects to attend school.

Mr. Frank Silberg, who has been traveling for the Robert Johns Co., at Chicago, Ill., has returned home.

Emilius Chapman made a very nice catch last week, in the river, it being a pickerel measuring 2 feet in length, and weighing 10½ pounds. The monster was caught by hook and line.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Steward of this place, entertained last Sunday the following people to a fine dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Ex-Recorder Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. B. Chaney and daughter Ada, of this place, and Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Nelson of near Concord.

The Spencer township schools will open next Monday with the following corps of teachers: Miss O'Brien, Ort Wearley, High School; Zona Horn, Grammar; George Beams, Intermediate; Jennie Steward, Primary.

The young ladies class of the Lutheran Sunday School were royally entertained by their teacher, Mrs. Henry Beams at her home to six o'clock dinner, Saturday evening. All reported a fine time which consisted of music and speaking.

SECRETS OF RUSSIAN COURT.

Nicholas' Mother Resents His Treatment of Younger Brother.

Writing in McClure's of the estrangement that has arisen between the emperor and the dowager empress of Russia, David Soskice says:

"Thus Maria Feodrovna gradually transferred her maternal affections from Nicholas II to her younger son, Michael. Her favor toward Michael and her grudge toward Nicholas were perhaps augmented by the exceedingly haughty manner in which Nicholas is wont to treat his brother Michael. Though Nicholas II is a narrow autocrat in heart and creed, and though he is not conspicuous for special gifts of intellect or appearance, or for personal charm, he is in many ways superior to his brother, who is actually dull witted and spiteful. The exalted position of Nicholas fills his brother's heart with a jealousy he is not always able to conceal. Michael frequently criticises the emperor's policy toward the members of the court, declaring that, were he in power, he would quickly apply such stringent measures as would stamp out the revolution forever. This kind of talk agreeably tickles the extreme reactionaries at the court, who know very well that in case of the death of Nicholas II the heir presumptive being still an infant, Michael would become the regent. During his regency, who knows but what the infant heir presumptive might fall ill and die, from diphtheria or some other childish ailment?

"So there is a party at the court that would be highly contented to see Michael in the place of his brother Nicholas. The reigning empress knows this very well, and constantly trembles for the life of her little son. As a result of this has developed a veritable mania of persecution. Her fears were aroused first over three years ago, by a sudden seizure of her son, which really seemed to be of a suspicious nature. During the last eighteen months she has suffered from several nervous breakdowns due to this constantly increasing fear.

"Such is the position of affairs at the court. Who can tell what might have been had Azeff continued in his dual role of terrorist and agent provocateur?"

WOMAN WINS HONOR.

Swedish Author Secures the Nobel Prize of $40,000 in Literature.

The great honor of securing the Nobel prize in the domain of literature has this year been awarded to a woman, Selma Lagerlof, the distinguished Scandinavian author. When it is known that this prize is a cash gift of $40,000 and that it is open to international competition the honor becomes the more pronounced. The work which won the prize for Mrs. Lagerlof is "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils," which has been read by hundreds of thousands in Sweden.

The Nobel prizes, for there are five of them, were founded by Alfred B. Nobel, the inventor of dynamite and a distinguished Swedish scientist. He died in 1896, leaving a fortune, estimated at $9,000,000, for the creation of a fund, the interest of which should yearly be distributed to those who had contributed most during that period to "the good of humanity." One prize is awarded in the domain of physics, a second in chemistry, a third in medicine or physiology, a fourth in literature, to the person who has provided the most excellent work of an idealistic tendency, and a fifth to the person who has contributed most to the abolition of war and the promotion of international peace.

These prizes are awarded by Swedish bodies on December 10 of each year—the date of Mr. Nobel's death. The first awards were made in 1901. The only American who ever received one of those prizes was ex-President Roosevelt, whose efforts in bringing to an end the Russo-Japanese war gained him the peace award in 1906. In literature Rudyard Kipling won the prize in 1907. Mrs. Lagerlof is the only woman under this head to secure the honor; but a woman, Baroness von Suttner, secured the peace prize in 1905, her work dealing with war having so impressed the Czar of Russia as to lead him to call the international peace congress at The Hague.

Bonbons Evict Microbes.

Chocolate creams, each one of which is guaranteed to contain at least 10,000 carefully isolated lactic acid or massoi bacilli in the highest state of activity, have recently been placed on sale in London stores. They are a British bacteriologist's solution of the problem set by Prof. Metchnikoff, of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, who urged the imbibing of sour milk or lactic acid for the arresting of old age, but who omitted to say how the nauseating effects of this substance upon delicate subjects could be avoided.

The blue massoi bacillus is not only the foe of the red bacillus—collus communic, or putrefaction microbe—but its undisputed master. The blue army of bacilli, it is urged, have no sooner been liberated in the human system by the swallowing of a bonbon than they begin immediately to declare war on the red army of putrefaction microbes, until at the end of a few weeks at most, by the swallowing of three bonbons daily, the "reds" have been routed.

"To what do you attribute your unvarying success?"

"To being picked early for the village fool. Nobody ever tried to get me to indorse a note or go into a scheme."

WERNERT

WALL PAPER: We are closing out our spring stock to make room for new fall patterns, at COST

Paints, oils and Pharmacuticles.

Perscriptions carefully compounded.

SPENCERVILLE

FALL and WINTER MILLINERY

We invite the ladies to call and inspect our new line of Millinery. Our display is complete and will be sold at the lowest possible prices.

Cora B. Hart

SPENCERVILLE

BRICK YARD.

We have just burned a fine kiln of brick and are guaranteed. Fine red color. Prices as low as the lowest. Your patronage is solicited.

Gehrig Bros., Grabill, Ind

Bell Phone 31-22 — Home Phone 57

THE BALTIMORE and OHIO RAILROAD

Very Low Fares to

Baltimore, Md.—Grand United Order of Odd Fellows Sept. 9, 10, 11.

Atlantic City—G. A. R. National Encampment, Sept. 15 to 19, inclusive.

SUMMER TOURIST FARES TO—Boston, New York City, Atlantic City and Other New Jersey Resorts, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va.

HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION FARES—South, Southwest, West, Northwest

TOURIST ROUND TRIP FARES WEST. Long Limits.

Consult BALTIMORE and OHIO AGENT for Liberal Stopover Privileges and Other Details.

Kimes--Hay.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vol Hay, three miles south of Spencerville, Sunday evening at six o'clock occured the marriage of their daughter Viola, to Mr. Charles Kimes. The Rev. Chas. Hyrt of Spencerville, officiating in the presence of thirty-eight guests. Immediately after congratulations had been extended a wedding supper was served. Those present were:—Mr. and Mrs. Elery Kimes, the groom's parents of Ft. Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. William Slaughter of Woodburn; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hursh and son of Grabill; Mrs. Cathern Hursh of Grabill; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Baker of Butler; Miss Bessie Loudenslager of Toledo; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Steward, Con Davis and Jennie Steward, Deloss Steward, Ada Fales, Clarence Gloyd, Laura Coburn, Fern Wearley, Mr. Eck Vanzile, wife and son Clifford, the Misses Venus, Leila and Mary Horn, Hallie Notestine, Izetta McNabb, Mr. and Mrs. John Mason, the Misses Leona, Theresa, Clara and Ruth Hay.

The most useful tool on the farm is a Clover Leaf Manure Spreader. Curie is selling lots of them.

W. G. Erick

TRUSTEE

of Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY

TUESDAY OF EACH WEEK

at Store in

SPENCERVILLE, IND

QUEER ENGLISH VILLAGES.

One Built of Old Railway Coaches—Skiddaw Has but One Resident.

The English village is very dear to the hearts of poets and painters, and thousands of them are certainly charming. A few, however, are more amusing than anything else, as, for instance, one which consists entirely of old railway carriages, even the chapel being composed of four-horse trucks. Another village, with a population of 1,100 and taxed at the valuation of $8,000, has neither school, church nor other public building, the only thing of the sort being a letter box on a pillar.

Villages with but a single inhabitant are not unknown, one of them being Skiddaw, in Cumberland. The single villager complains bitterly because he cannot vote—there being no overseer to prepare a voters' list, and no church or other public building on which to publish one, as the law requires. The lonely ratepayer in a Northumberland village has declined to contribute money to maintain the roads, remarking that the one he has is quite good enough for its use.

In the Isle of Ely is a little parish with about a dozen inhabitants that has no rates, as there are no roads or public institutions of any kind, and consequently no expenses. Kempton, near Bradford, can probably lay successful claim to the distinction of being the longest village in the world, as it straggles along the road for a distance of seven miles. Sometimes a village will entirely disappear, having been built either on the edge of the crumbling cliffs that make part of the coast line, or over an ancient mine. One of the latter class is in Shropshire, and each year one or more of the cottages tumble as the earth sinks beneath it.

A truly thoughtful friend never exaggerates any of our faults.

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0522

THE PINK PEARL

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

Angela, having lived in a rose-colored atmosphere all her life, could not understand why Edwin should not give her a pink pearl for an engagement ring.

"But, dearest," her mother argued, "Edwin is a poor man!"

"No man is too poor to buy the right kind of ring for the girl he is going to marry."

Angela's mother, who had worked in a factory when she was young, and had known what it was not to have any rings at all, shook her head.

"You can't understand, darling; you never have been poor."

"If I were poor," said Angela, "I would live in a cottage with roses around it, and bake cakes for Edwin."

At that Angela's mother sighed, for she knew that poverty is not a thing of roses and of sweet cakes, but of a struggle for dry bread without any butter on it.

"I have sometimes wished," she began, and stopped.

"What?" Angela demanded.

"That you had fallen in love with a rich man," her mother sighed, "you have always had everything you wanted—and it won't be easy for you to go without."

"You think I am just a child," Angela raged, with her blue eyes flashing, "and so does Edwin—I—I think you are dreadful—"

And she sobbed as if her heart would break.

Of course, she got the pink pearl, for her mother spoke to Edwin tactfully. "Angela loved pearls," she said, "and I have some unset ones which I can sell to you cheaply—they won't cost any more than any other ring."

Edwin protested. In his heart he felt that he wanted to buy a little circlet of turquoises, which would

"If I were Poor," Said Angela, "I Would Live in a Cottage With Roses Around It."

match Angela's eyes. He could have afforded such a ring, and he would not have had the bargain-counter feeling which oppressed him when he accepted the offer of his future mother-in-law.

He gave Angela the pink pearl and she was happy. He did not tell her where he had bought it. Her mother had asked him not to tell.

"Angela is such a baby," she had said, "and it might spoil her pleasure."

That Edwin's pleasure was spoiled did not trouble her. She thought only of her daughter, whose wishes had never been denied.

The incident of the pink pearl was one of many others. Angela's mother put her money at the disposal of the young people. She was diplomatic, and when Edwin suggested the buying of a cottage she offered the land for the site, she furnished it and finished it until all of its simplicity was lost. She chose an exclusive neighborhood, and when the young couple moved in they found themselves the center of a wealthy circle of neighbors.

And in the midst of the luxury Angela pined. She grew pale and thin and languid, until her mother and Edwin were alarmed.

"She must go away," the mother told the young husband, but Edwin shook his head.

"What Angela needs," he said, "is to feel that she means something in the world. There are so many idle, unhappy women—and somehow I believe that Angela is more of a woman than we will let her be. We coddle her, and wrap her up in cotton wool because we love her, but she is a woman with all a woman's right to make a home. Should we keep on making a baby of her?"

"But what," the mother demanded, "can we do?"

"Let us try an experiment," Edwin said. "Let her think you have lost your money, that we must all go away from here to the old farm, and I will come back and forth on the train—we will see how she stands real life."

"But she is such a baby—"

"She is a woman," Edwin insisted. "Now and then she lets me see deep into her heart, and I know, but we never let her have a chance."

Angela's mother agreed, reluctantly. "You tell her," she said at last.

Angela bore the shock bravely. "Poor mother," she said, "it will be hard for you," and at once she began to treat the elder lady with a tenderness which was surprising and comforting.

It was wonderful to see how she took up her burdens. Work seemed to agree with her. Instead of growing faded and thin she waxed plump and rosy. She planted a garden and watched with enthusiasm the growth of her lettuce and radishes and onions. She baked cakes and put up pots of jam and served a delectable fish chowder to Edwin when he came home late on chilly nights.

"I didn't think she had it in her," Angela's mother told her son-in-law as late one autumn day they watched the little wife baking pancakes in the warm cozy kitchen. She had on a red house gown, with a blue linen apron that almost covered her up. Her curls were gathered into a topknot with a black bow and she was flushed and smiling.

"I sometimes think," Edwin mused, "that she has just reverted to type. You used to love to get supper for her father, didn't you, when you were poor and lived in this cottage?"

"Indeed I did," responded Angela's mother. "That recipe for chowder is the one I used, and he used to smack his lips over it."

"And behind you is a race of good housekeepers, and yet you expected Angela to live like an idle princess—and as long as she felt she had your money back of her she had no incentive—but now—you see—"

"Yes, I see," the mother agreed.

But the climax came when, one day, the pink pearl ring disappeared from Angela's finger.

"Where's your ring?" Edwin demanded.

"Oh," Angela blushed, "oh, I—I don't think I can tell you just now, Edwin.

But the secret was out when one day she led him to her dressing room. It had been refurnished in pale pink and white swiss, and in one corner there was a crib with rosebuds embroidered on the cover. And in another corner was a very low white rocking chair with a pink cushion.

"I shall call it my 'pink pearl room,'" Angela stated, "I was just hateful to make you buy such an expensive thing for me, Edwin—perhaps if I hadn't always demanded so much for myself you wouldn't have to work so hard now—for us."

Her husband folded her in his arms. "Dearest, dear," he said, brokenly.

"Your mother didn't lose her money," Edwin explained, "but I wanted you to come to your hearthstone heritage as a housewife, and you couldn't when you were having things showered on you."

"Well, we won't go back to the city," Angela decided with a shake of her curls; "it is ever so much nicer here—and I couldn't leave my garden and my chicks—and besides," she hid her face against his shoulder, "the country will be the best place to bring up the baby in—won't it, Edwin?"

In the months that followed Angela's mother had to have her way about spending. She bought everything from a silver porringer to a golden rattle.

But Edwin bought back the pink pearl ring. "I want you to wear it because it is like you," he said to Angela, ardently, "a thing all rosy and sunshine, and of perfect beauty."

Logbook of the Monitor.

The original logbook of the famous Monitor, covering the period of her engagement with the Confederate ironclad Merrimac, in Hampton roads, on March 9, 1862, has been given to the navy department to be preserved among its historic records. The restoration of the log to the department was due to Capt. Louis Stodder of the United States revenue cutter service, now living in Brooklyn, N. Y., and an officer on the Monitor during her entire service.

For years he has treasured the log among his most valuable possessions, but as old age advanced he desired to see it placed where its preservation might be assured. Hence it was that he forwarded it to the library of the navy department.

Golden Mirrors.

It is now possible, by the Cowper-Cowles process, to provide glass mirrors coated with a film of gold for the reflectors of automobiles. Hitherto only glaring white reflectors have been employed with lens mirror projectors, and it is said that the gold mirrors not only afford a more agreeable light, but one which possesses greater penetrating power in fogs. Another improvement in automobiles is the substitution of horns that emit harmonious sounds, instead of the shrieks, groans and grunts of the ordinary apparatus used for warning pedestrians to look out for their lives.

People study political economy to make a better nation? What? Just the same as they study law? To help the skinners of humanity pull its skin in a constitutional way, eh?

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT

MOTORCYCLE IS HOME-MADE

Frame of Machine Shown in Illustration Is Made From Gas Pipe and Pipe Fittings.

The frame of this motorcycle is double throughout and made from three-quarter and one inch gas pipe and pipe fittings. A piece of round iron was inserted in the pipes at each bend to make sure of a rigid frame. No threads were cut on the pipe and the tees used for the cross ties were reamed out, slipped over the pipes and fastened with a pin, writes J. O. Turner in Popular Mechanics.

The construction of the forks make them very strong and springs were attached as shown. The wheels and engine were taken from an old and very light runabout. The belt wheel attached to the rear wheel is made from band iron and attached with lugs to the rim. This belt wheel is peened with a hammer in the center to make the crown. A double-ply two-inch flat leather belt is used to drive the machine. The rear wheel is fitted with a hatchet sprocket, so the engine may be started by peddling. The complete motorcycle weighs 310 pounds, has a 70-inch wheel base, 26-inch wheels and a four-horsepower engine.

Home-Made Motorcycle.

CLEVER TRICK VERY AMUSING

Produces Great Deal of Merriment and Needs No Apparatus—Looks Like Jumping Jack.

This is a genuine bit of fun that demands no apparatus, and every one can do it. Place yourself by the side of a mirrored wardrobe, as in the illustration, in such a way that half your body is concealed, the other half projecting from the wardrobe. As for the person standing on the other side, at a certain distance it will appear to them that they behold you entirely, the illusion being caused by one-half being reflected, says Magical Experiments.

A Good Trick.

When you lift your leg, the appearance given by means of the mirror is that of a person who lifts both feet from the ground at once and holds them in the air—a rather startling apparition. You will look like a toy jumping jack which is operated by a string, and the more you move your leg and arm the funnier you will look.

Johnny Knew.

The class was reciting and little Johnny Fellows was the last one on the line. Teacher started with the head and asked what was the feminine of "hero."

Number one shook his head. It passed to Two. She missed it; so did Three. As it came nearer and nearer to Johnny he became excited and waved his hand frantically.

"Well, Johnny," said the teacher at last, "everybody has missed. Now can you tell me the feminine or hero?"

"Shero!" shouted Johnny exultantly.

In the Kindergarten.

Ernest had been absent for several days. His teacher asked the "circle" if any one could tell why Ernest did not come to school. One little hand went up and its owner said:

"Please, teacher, he's sick—he's got the chicken coops."

Another girl was absent.

"Can anyone tell me why Marie is away?" asked this same teacher. Patsy gave the reason as he piped out:

"Marie's got an illustrated tooth."

A Misplaced Title.

Among obvious misnomers one London theater is not in Drury Lane, theater is not in Drury Lane, and no reason can be assigned for giving it the name of that thoroughfare. The first theater built on the present site was at one time frequently referred to as the theater in Covent garden. On February 6, 1663, Pepys notes: "I walked up and down and looked upon the outside of the new theater building in Covent garden. 'Tis will be very fine." In those days no theater existed in Covent garden, the predecessor of the present opera house having been opened in 1732.—London Chronicle.

At the First Try.

"What do you think of my doughnuts, George?"

"Dear, you are a wonder!"

"Do you think so really, darling?"

"I certainly do! Scientists have been trying for years to produce artificial rubber and here you do it the first crack out of the box!"

THE WATERMELON.

We'll eat our watermelons
(What is there on earth better?)
In the shadow of the house
During this hot weather.

Select a big dark green one,
And cut it full lengthwise;
Hear it pop, so red and ripe!
Cut the slices full-length size!

See the black seeds shining,
As in juicy red they're framed.
If anything is better
I have never heard it named.

BEAR THAT LIKES PUDDINGS

Young Canadian Black Cub in New York Zoological Gardens Becoming Very Haughty.

In the New York Zoological Gardens there is a young Canadian black bear that has become very haughty of late. Part of his biography has just been published. It appears that when the bear was a cub he was a farm, pet, was as domesticated as a dog and wandered untethered about the yard and all over the farm. The sort of life he led and some of the stunts he did are entertainingly written in "The Frolics of My Black Bear Cub," by Mrs. E. H. Baynes in the March St. Nicholas. The article is illustratted by photographs which show also a tame prairie wolf and a deer, playfellows and domesticated companions of the cub Jimmie. We quote one of the "frolics":

Jimmy's favorite chum and playfellow was Romulus, a young prairie wolf. The fact that they were such good friends was due largely to Jimmy's good nature, for certainly Romulus teased him in every possible way. Even in the matter of food, Jimmy was disposed to be generous, and he seldom resented the attempts of Romulus, or of Actaeon, the deer, to take from him his bread and apples. There was, however, one particular kind of food which he insisted on having his full share of, and that was plum pudding. He would eat it at any time of the day or night, whether he was hungry or not, and if there was any limit to the amount he would eat, no one ever discovered it. No matter how much was given to him he never seemed to consider the quantity sufficient to warrant his sharing it with his playfellows, and if either of these attempted to force him to divide with him the result was a fight. Not that Jimmy was really vicious, but he gave his companions to understand that on the subject of plum pudding his opinion was law. One day, after romping in the snow all the morning, Jimmy presented himself at the kitchen window, and several slices of bread were passed out to him. The cub took them in his mouth, let them fall to the ground and continued to peer into the room.

Tongue Twisters.

A London paper recently offered a series of prizes for the best tongue twisting sentences. The following were the prize winners:

The bleak breeze blighted the bright broom blossoms.

Two toads totally tired tried to trot to Tedbury.

Strict, strong Stephen Stringer snared slickly six sickly snakes.

Susan shineth shoes and socks; socks and shoes shine Susan. She ceaseth shining shoes and socks, for shoes and socks shock Susan.

A haddock, a haddock, a black-spotted haddock; a black spot on the black back of a black-spotted haddock.

Wanted Some of the Credit.

Freedom of the will is a doctrine which children can understand and appreciate. The little girl in this story was not willing to have all her naughty ingenuity ascribed to supernatural sources.

"It was Satan," said a mother to one of her children, "who put it into your head to pull Elsie's hair."

"Perhaps it was," said the little girl, "but kicking her shins was my own idea."

A New Kind of Chicken.

Jessie was told by her mother that it was nicer to say "limb" instead of "leg." This seemed to make a great impression on her and she was very particular to always use the more elegant word.

One day she came running into her mother's room and cried: "Oh, mother, Teddy Brown's brother has just come down from the country and brought with him a dozen Limbhorn chickens.'"

PREPARES PROGRAM FOR CONFERENCE

Laporte Minister Announces Order of Business.

MANY ANNIVERSARY SESSIONS

At the Opening Session R. N. Smith, President of the Men's Fraternal Bible Class Will Deliver the Address of Welcome.

Laporte.—Rev. G. F. Craig, pastor of the First M. E. church, this city, which will entertain the northwest Indiana Methodist conference September 27 to October 3, has made public the program which he has arranged for this event. More than 200 Methodist ministers will be in attendance at the conference and besides many will be accompanied by their wives and lay delegates. The conference will open on the evening of September 27, when Attorney R. N. Smith, president of the men't fraternal Bible class, will deliver the addresses of welcome. Following the response from a member of the conference, Rev. J. Wilson Smith will deliver the conference sermon.

There will be a conference session. Bishop David H. Moore of Cincinnati, O., will preside and holy communion will be celebrated. The Epworth league anniversary meeting will be held. Dr. Edwin A. Schell, president of Iowa Wesleyan university, will deliver the address. The Woman's Foreign Missionary society will observe its anniversary, Dr. Frederick D. Leete of Detroit delivering the sermon. The foreign Missionary society will celebrate its anniversary, at which Dr. A. B. Leonard, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, will speak.

There will be a missionary sermon by Rev. E. C. Wareing and addresses by Dr. Franklin Hamilton, chancellor of American university, Washington, D. C., and Frederick D. Leete of Detroit. Bishop David Moore will lecture on "What An American Saw of the First Battle of the Russo-Japanese War."

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Jeffersonville.—Jacob Reithle, who lives five miles north of here, reported to Chief of Police Wall that he was attacked on his way home, chloroformed by two white men and robbed of $500. According to Reithle's story he had drawn the money from a bank in Louisville and was taking it home to make part payment on a farm he had purchased.

South Bend.—The annual meeting of the St. Joseph conference of the United Brethren church, began in South Bend, the sessions being held in the recently completed church. Bishop William M. Bell of California is conducting the conference. An important event in connection with the conference will be the dedication next Sunday of the local church, which is one of the finest ever erected by members of the United Brethren faith.

Anderson.—R. C. Taylor, for the last five years master mechanic of motor power with the Indiana Union Traction company, handed in his resignation. Mr. Taylor has been a great factor in bringing the road to its present efficiency, and it is understood that he has several tempting offers from various parts of the country. The name of Mr. Taylor's successor has not yet been given out.

Richmond.—Walter T. Carpenter, nearly 100 years old, died. He formerly was superintendent of Earlham college and was well known among American friends. His official connection with Earlham college covered a period of thirty-five years. Mr. Carpenter also had charge for a time of work among the freedmen, with headquarters at Nashville, Tenn., and Little Rock, Ark.

Greencastle.—A threshing outfit belonging to George Reberger, a commissioner of Clay county, and Grant Atkinson of Brazil went through an overhead bride on the Vandalia railroad, two miles east of Harmony, a small station near this city, and Atkinson suffered injuries from which he will probably die. The bridge is on the old National road and stands on solid rock buttresses forty feet above the tracks.

Richmond.—The fortieth biennial convention of the Lutheran synod of Ohio, Indiana and other states, which has been in session here, adjourned.

Newcastle.—Roy Jones, an insane man, who was taken by the police, was returned to his home in Hontpelier.

South Bend.—Workmen excavating a road at the edge of Navarre Place, a fashionable residence section of South Bend, uncovered an old Indian Burial ground. So far a dozen skeletons have been unearthed.

Warsaw.—Dr. C. C. Dubois, city health commissioner, and Miss Betty Reed, daughter of Will Reed, proprietor of the Hays hotel, will be married October 1.

Fort Wayne.—A membership gain of more than 100 was disclosed in the reports of the Allen county W. C. T. U. at the annual meeting of the organization.

Columbus.—Charles F. Remy, who addressed the old settlers at the Hope home-coming, announced there that he is a candidate for grand outer guard of the grand lodge of the Knights of Pythias of Indiana.

A MARVELOUS RECOVERY.

How a Chronic Invalid Regained Perfect Health.

Mrs. Ray Trusner, 30 West Third St., New Albany, Ind., says: "Kidney disease had rendered me a chronic invalid. I lay in bed unable to move hand or foot. My right limb was swollen to twice normal size. I looked the picture of death and my case puzzled the doctors. The kidney secretions were highly colored and scalded terribly. Marked improvement followed the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. In six weeks I was a well woman. My friends and relatives marvel at my recovery."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

The secrets the average woman can keep are those of her toilet.

RED CROSS BALL BLUE

Should be in every home. Ask your grocer for it. Large 2 oz. package only 5 cents.

The man whose bluff is not sometimes called never existed.

A Woman's Backbone.

History records many instances where a woman has shown that she possessed clear grit—commonly called backbone. She must have, to be able to half kill herself over a washtub every week. Women are learning now, however, that if they use Easy Task soap in the laundry it means half the work done while they rest, their clothes are cleaner and sweeter, their hands are not red and ugly, their flannels do not shrink and their linens do not rot.

Telling a Lie.

Mrs. Jollyboy—Where on earth have you been?

Mr. J.—I cannot tell a lie; I've been at my office.

Mrs. J.—That's where we differ. I can tell a lie—when I hear one.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Source of Revelation.

Twenty-seven new, crisp $1 bills, says Harper's Weekly, weigh as much as a $20 gold piece. Wouldn't have thought it, and have no means of proving the assertion, but if so it is probably owing in some way to the recent activity of the inspectors of weights and measures.

Right at Home.

New Arrival—Do you recognize the profession, my good man?

St. Peter—Profession? What profession, sir?

New Arrival (resentfully)—Why, didn't you ever hear of me? I am one of the handiest harpist that ever broke into vaudeville.—Puck.

A Shipping Error.

The young Duchess of Westminster, wife of the richest peer in England, recently gave birth to her third child, a daughter. Thus there is no heir to the immense Grosvenor fortune, Earl Grosvenor, the Duchess' second child, having died at the age of four.

Apropos of all this, a rather cruel story is being told in Newport about Lady Ursula Grosvenor, the 8-year-old daughter of the young duchess.

A friend, the story goes, called at Eaton Hall, and as she sat in the drawing-room, little Lady Ursula entered.

"Oh, good afternoon," she said gravely. "Mamma can't see any one today. She's upstairs with the new baby. They sent her, you know, a girl when she'd ordered a boy, and she's so upset that she's quite ill."

"NO FRILLS"

Just Sensible Food Cured Him.

Sometimes a good, healthy commercial traveler suffers from poorly selected food and is lucky if he learns that Grape-Nuts food will put him right.

A Cincinnati traveler says: "About a year ago my stomach got in a bad way. I had a headache most of the time and suffered misery. For several months I ran down until I lost about 10 pounds in weight and finally had to give up a good position and go home. Any food that I might use seemed to nauseate me.

"My wife, hardly knowing what to do, one day brought home a package of Grape-Nuts food and coaxed me to try it. I told her it was no use but finally to humor her I tried a little, and they just struck my taste. It was the first food I had eaten in nearly a year that did not cause any suffering.

"Well, to make a long story short, I began to improve and stuck to Grape-Nuts. I went up from 135 pounds in December to 194 pounds the following October.

"My brain is clear, blood all right and appetite too much for any man's pocketbook. In fact, I am thoroughly made over, and owe it all to Grape-Nuts. I talk so much about what Grape-Nuts will do that some of the men on the road have nicknamed me "Grape-Nuts," but I stand today a healthy, rosy-cheeked man—a pretty good example of what the right kind of food will do.

"You can publish this if you want to. It is a true statement without any frills."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

SEPTEMBER

0523

L 904

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brookfield, Mo.—"Two years ago I was unable to do any kind of work and only weighed 118 pounds. My trouble dates back to the time that women may expect nature to bring on them the Change of Life.

I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me feel much better, and I have continued its use. I am very grateful to you for the good health I am now enjoying."—Mrs. SARAH LOUSIGNONT, 414 S. Livingston Street, Brookfield, Mo.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

TRY MURINE EYE REMEDY
For Red, Weak, Weary, Watery Eyes and
GRANULATED EYELIDS
Murine Doesn't Smart—Soothes Eye Pain
Druggists Sell Murine Eye Remedy, Liquid, 25c, 50c, $1.00
Murine Eye Salve, in Aseptic Tubes, 25c, $1.00
EYE BOOKS AND ADVICE FREE BY MAIL
Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

A fool man appreciates the nonsense of a pretty woman more than he does the sense of a homely one.

WANTED.—Paper box die maker, cutters and printing press feeders and men to learn trade. Linley Carton Co., Gas City, Ind.

Scandal.

Mrs. Simmonds glanced at the scare headline: "Bank Robbed! Police at Sea!" and laid down the sheet.

"Naow, look at that, Ez!" she ejaculated, repeating the headline aloud. "Here's a big city bank broke into by burglars, and th 'city police force all off fishin' somewhere! What a scandal!"—Judge.

Even the Children.

Ex-Governor Pennypacker, condemning in his witty way the American divorce evil, told, at a Philadelphia luncheon, an appropriate story.

"Even our children," he said, "are becoming infected. A Kensington school teacher, examining a little girl in grammar, said:

"'What is the future of "I love?"'

"'A divorce,' the child answered promptly."

Opportunity of Suffragist.

Baroness Aletta Korff tells in one of the magazines how the women of Finland came to vote. The fact is that women had to show that they could meet an emergency before the vote came to them. They have not had many opportunities to take the initiative in the world's history and they have not always responded when the opportunity came, but when a crisis, such as that in 1904, when the strike and the revolutionary outbreak in Russia took place at the same time, occurred, they proved they could make peace by doing it. Not until England and the United States find the women helping them to bear some great trouble will they give them the right to vote.

This Is a Good Breakfast!

Instead of preparing a hot meal, have some fruit;

Post Toasties

with cream;

A soft boiled egg;
Slice of crisp toast;
A cup of Postum.

Such a breakfast is pretty sure to win you.

"The Memory Lingers"

Postum Cereal Co., Ltd.
Battle Creek, Mich.

MRS. FENTON

BY

W. E. NORRIS

CHAPTER XXII.

The Moores remained two days longer in Paris, during which time they had several meetings with their friends at the Grand Hotel; and on the evening of the second day Mrs. Fenton returned their civility by inviting them to dine with her.

The Moores came, and were made welcome, and departed after an interchange of polite speeches and promises of speedy reunion in London. Mrs. Fenton said no more about them after they had gone; but she thought about them day and night, and the thought deprived her of all her happiness. She had been pleased to accuse Susie of being a flirt; but that was not her real opinion of the girl. She knew perfectly well why Captain Claughton had been rejected, and, what was far worse, she was sure that Fred knew, too. Love, which in some respects may deserve to be called blind, is only too clear-sighted in others; Mrs. Fenton was at all times an exceptionally observant person, and, even if she had not been so, it would have been no difficult task to her to read so transparent a character as that of her cousin. From the outset, indeed, she had been under no illusion as regarded the nature of his affection for her. He had been touched by her sympathy, by her kindness, by her evident love for him; to some extent also his senses had been affected by the influence of feminine beauty and moonlight; but with the first sight of Susie Moore, and the first suspicion that Susie might have cared for him all along, notwithstanding her apparent encouragement of Captain Claughton, all these feelings had been swept away. Everything proved it—his scrupulously honorable conduct; his determination to remain true to the woman whom he had asked to me his wife; the exaggerated precautions which he took to avoid being left for a moment alone with Susie; above all, his desperate and most unsuccessful efforts at merriment.

Perhaps under the circumstances, a proud or a magnanimous woman would at once have released the young man from his engagement; but Mrs. Fenton's life had been such that pride was scarcely possible to her, and, as for magnanimity, there are more ways than one of displaying that virtue. However, Mrs. Fenton kept all her reflections to herself and tried to behave as though nothing had happened. This being an impossibility, she wisely abandoned the attempt before long, and one afternoon, when Fred, with a somewhat gloomy and abstracted air, was sitting beside her in the Champs Elysees, she said quietly: "I have telegraphed to Albemarle street to tell them that they may expect me to-morrow. Enough is as good as a feast, and I think we have had about enough of Paris, now."

He assented readily. His readiness to assent to anything that she chose to suggest was not a very hopeful sign; but at least he was anxious to please her, and she might be excused for thinking that so docile a fiance might be easily converted into a devoted husband.

They traveled to London on the following day, and immediately on their arrival there became very busy. They were to be married in about a month; so that there was plenty to be done and not too much time to do it in. Congratulations and gifts began to pour in upon them. Sir James Le Breton came up from the country to express his hearty approval of the alliance.

Mr. Breffit was quite horrified when Mrs. Fenton coolly informed him that she intended to hand over every sixpence of her money to her husband on her wedding-day, and that she would be obliged to him if he would prepare such documents as might be needful for that purpose. He said he had never heard of such a thing in his life; he assured her that to act as she proposed would be most unusual, and, he would venture to add, undesirable; Fred also declared that he could not and would not accept the money. Nevertheless, she carried her point. To Mr. Breffit she simply said that he might spare himself the trouble of talking, because she had made up her mind, and he ought to know that argument is thrown away upon a woman who has made up her mind; but with Fred she was somewhat more explicit.

"I have given myself to you," she said; "surely it is no great thing that I should give you my money into the bargain. And after all, what difference will it make whether you or I sign checks to pay the butcher and baker?"

"I don't think it right," he answered. "Just now it may seem as if it made no difference, but one can't tell what may happen in the future, and——"

"That's just it," she interrupted. "Nothing is so dreadful as to be impossible, and if we were to quarrel, or if you were to tire of me, Fred, or—or think worse of me than you do now, I would rather not feel that I was independent of you; I would rather that you had the power of making what arrangements you pleased than I."

"You are very generous, Laura," said the young man.

"I love you," she answered, simply.

He was touched and a little ashamed, without quite knowing why. "If we ever quarrel," he said, "it shall not be my fault; but I don't think we are at all likely to quarrel, Laura."

And during the remainder of the time that he spent with her he was both more affectionate and more demonstrative than he had latterly been; so that when he went away she was in excellent spirits.

Mrs. Fenton hoped that when once she should be married to her cousin all would be well. "Miracles," says a well-known writer, "do not happen." One hardly likes to be so dogmatic as that; still one may be bold enough to affirm that if, in the case of a man, love ever follows marriage instead of preceding it, the phenomenon must be regarded as very little short of miraculous. Mrs. Fenton probably knew that as well as anybody; yet, like other people, she may have had a vague idea that miracles do happen—sometimes. In any case, she felt unusually sanguine that afternoon, and gave herself up to the construction of castles in the air, wherein of course Fred Musgrave's figure was a prominent one.

While she was thus pleasantly employed, the waiter opened the door and announced, "Mr. Dodd."

Mrs. Fenton half-started out of her chair and then sank back again, the color slowly ebbing away from her cheeks and lips.

Mr. Dodd entered, holding his hat under his arm. He was the same man whom she had caught a glimpse of at Dawlish.

He said: "Well, Letitia, I hope I find you pretty fit. It is a good many years since we last met; but upon my word and honor you don't look a day older."

Mrs. Fenton did not rise, but said in a low voice, "What do you want?"

"We'll come to that presently, my dear," answered Mr. Dodd, taking a chair. "It would be most interesting to me to hear how you come to be living in a small London hotel under the name of Mrs. Fenton."

"That is my name," answered Mrs. Fenton.

"Is it indeed? Well, you ought to know; but if anybody asked me, I should have said that your name was Letitia Watson."

"Then you would have added one more to the many thousand of lies that you have told in your life."

"I observe with pleasure, Letitia, that time has not impaired the natural sweetness of your temper. Do you remember announcing from the platform of a music-hall in New Orleans that you hadn't been paid for six weeks?"

"I remember it perfectly; you richly deserved it."

"I think not, Letitia; I think that in your calmer moments you must have seen the very shabbiness of rounding upon a liberal employer in that public way. I always made it a rule to pay my artistes as long as I had money enough to do so; when the cash box was empty, how could I pay them? But we need not revive bygone unpleasantnesses. We parted at Otago upon pretty good terms, if I remember rightly, notwithstanding the occasional little tiffs that we had had."

"That is to say that, after having cheated me of my pay for several months, you were good enough to cancel the remainder of my engagement and cry quits."

"Just so. I have often thought since that I was foolishly generous; because, although your voice was never worth much, you certainly had the trick of attracting audiences. If you knew how often I have missed you and wished to have you back again, you would be touched, Letitia. However, I never expected to see you again, and it was with the greatest surprise and pleasure that I recognized you—and noticed that you recognized me—a short time ago at Dawlish. It seems to me that you were ill-advised in running away; still, all things considered, I don't much wonder at your having yielded to panic. Personation, my dear, is a dangerous game, a very dangerous game, and when I found out what you were up to, I made every allowance for your rather rude behavior."

"How did you find it out?" asked Mrs. Fenton, hoarsely.

"By the simple and straightforward methods to which my nature inclines me. The local newspaper informed me of the name which you state is your own; I called at your house and was told that you had departed suddenly for Paris, without even leaving an address for letters to be forwarded to. However, I obtained your present address and learned, on inquiring here, that you were expected to be in London about this time. Furthermore I ascertained, that you were a lady of considerable wealth, and that you had succeeded to the handsome fortune of your late father, the Dean of I forget what college at Oxford. This surprised me; because, as you are aware, I had had the privilege of being well acquainted with your father in Canada, and from what I knew of him it did not seem to me likely that he could been made a Dean or that he could have had a very large fortune to leave. You were not profoundly attached to him—indeed, I must confess that he didn't treat you very well—so you won't mind my saying that a more drunken and disreputable old reprobate than Jack Watson I have never met in any quarter of the globe."

"My father sold me to you," said Mrs. Fenton. "Probably you had the best of the bargain; what is certain is that I derived no profit from it. I have never been a bad woman; I have only been a most unhappy and unfortunate one. Of course it was wrong to personate a woman who is dead; yet things have fallen out so curiously that nobody would have been the worse for it if you had not appeared at this last moment to ruin me."

"Not to ruin you, Letitia; nothing. I assure you, could have been further from my wish or intention when I looked you up than that. I only claim a share—a very small share—in your good luck. I always did full justice to your talents, Letitia; but I certainly should have thought that such a stroke of business as this was a trifle above you. How on earth did you manage it?"

She sighed. "It was less difficult than it appears," she answered; "everything conspired in my favor. After I left you in New Zealand I fell in with a certain Fenton, who was struck with my voice and got me to sing for him at concerts. He was a decent sort of man in those days, and he introduced me to his wife, with whom I became intimate and who told me her story. Her father, she said, was the Dean of St. Cyprian's at Oxford, and she had run away with her music-master, because she was unhappy at home, and because she had an idea that she would be able to make her fortune as an opera-singer. She was a silly sort of woman, but she was a lady and she was kind to me and I liked being with her. I don't know what her voice may have been like when she was a girl—Fenton always declared it was magnificent, so far as it went—but at the time when I knew her she had almost lost it. She was in bad health, and was disappointed and peevish and thoroughly tired of her husband, who was also pretty well tired of her. On the other hand, he took a great fancy to me."

Mr. Dodd grinned. "I can well believe it, Letitia. And so, I suppose, Mrs. Fenton died, and you stepped into her shoes?"

"Yes; she died at Wellington, where I had gone with them, and where we managed to scrape together just enough to live upon by means of concerts and music lessons. Very soon after her death I married Mr. Fenton, and as we were not fortunate in New Zealand we made a move to Sydney. However, we did no better there, and after he died I struggled on, the Government House people took me up and I made a little money. Of course questions were occasionally put to me, and for the sake of convenience I told some of the ladies in strict confidence that I was the daughter of Dean Musgrave. Then one morning I saw the advertisement that executors had put into the papers, and it flashed across me that the great opportunity of my life had come. I sailed for England at once, and my claim was admitted as soon as I showed myself. I only had to face one person who had ever seen Laura—the Master of All Saints, a kind-hearted old fellow about whom she had often spoken to me. It was a great risk, but I came out of it triumphantly. You know what a capital mimic I am. Well, I imitated Laura's way of speaking, and a shrugged my shoulders after a fashion that she had, and I sang to him exactly in her voice. After that he was ready to swear to me."

(To be continued.)

THE LION'S ROAR.

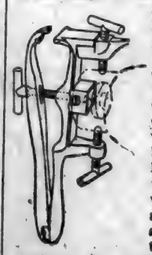
An Appalling Sound That Brings Terror to the Traveler.

Once in the lion country you learn the real reason why he is termed the king of beasts. He looks it. Besides, there is the terror he casts over all the brute creation about him. And as for terror, there is one feature of life in East Africa that the traveler never forgets—the lion's roaring. To me no other sound in nature is more awe inspiring, more appalling, especially if heard at really close range or among hills, where the echo resounds in its rolling double bass. Contrary to the common idea, lions do not confine their thunderous calls to the night only. Frequently in open daylight one may be startled by a sudden outburst. They are a noisy lot, too. At night I have heard a band keep up the dire chorus for hours at a time, a blood curdling concert that brings to mind every tale, fanciful or true, of their daring, of their fierce rapacity and might. It seems, still further, to have an added dreadfulness when one is lying within the frail walls of a tent, with only its canvas between one and the formidable musician.

Listen now! There goes one booming in the distance, a roaring obligato that breaks into from six to a dozen calls. From the first to the fourth the volume easily increases; then it dies down. At very close quarters one hears the roar melt gradually into a purr, itself diminishing to a growling, discontented mumble that lasts for about half a minute, or there is the other sound, equally menacing—a soft and suggestive crunching noise, as though the beast had already settled to a grewsome meal. The lion's voice is mighty, as mighty as his strength. Forget his habits, his love of carrion and his daylight turn of cowardice and you have the impression of a king of beasts—a real royalty along the brute creation.—Everybody's Magazine.

A Combination Vise.

An extremely handy appliance has been designed by a Missouri man in the shape of the combination vise shown in the illustration. Equipped with one of these a motorist or driver of a carriage or wagon can make repairs on the road which would otherwise be impossible. For regular tool wagons or repair vehicles such as are used by public service corporations, the vise is almost indispensable. The vise is fitted in back with hub engaging clamps and interlocking elements. It is light enough to be easily carried about, yet strong enough for any ordinary purpose. When the need of using it arises it can be clamped on the hub of the wagon wheel by screwing up the clamps, a nut on the inside of the vise taking the place of the nut on the wheel hub, which latter nut must first be removed. By means of these three interlocking elements, the vise can be so firmly fixed that any ordinary work can be performed upon it.



The Reason.

First Strap Hanger (in a whisper)—Why did you give that woman your seat? She isn't bundle laden, tired or pretty, or even polite.

Second S. H.—Well—er—you—see she is my wife.—Harvard Lampoon.

A person who uses his brain has an excellent excuse for keeping his face closed

Try to Come Back.

Not long ago Lord Kinnaird, who is always actively interested in religious work, paid a surprise visit to a mission school in the east end of London and told a class of boys the story of Samson. Introducing his narrative, his lordship added:

"He was strong, became weak, and then regained his strength, enabling him to destroy his enemies. Now, boys, if I had an enemy, what would you advise me to do?"

A little boy, after meditating on the secret of that great giant's strength, shot up his hand and exclaimed: "Get a bottle of 'air restorer."

HOW A DOCTOR CURED SCALP DISEASE

"When I was ten or twelve years old I had a scalp disease, something like scald head, though it wasn't that. I suffered for several months, and most of my hair came out. Finally they had a doctor to see me and he recommended the Cuticura Remedies. They cured me in a few weeks. I have used the Cuticura Remedies, also, for a breaking out on my hands and was benefited a great deal. I haven't had any more trouble with the scalp disease. Miss Jessie F. Buchanan, R. F. D. 3, Hamilton, Ga., Jan. 7, 1909."

Kept with Barnum's Circus.

P. T. Barnum, the famous circus man, once wrote: "I have had the Cuticura Remedies among the contents of my medicine chest with my shows for the last three seasons, and I can cheerfully certify that they were very effective in every case which called for their use."

Where Size Counts.

Edna thoughtfully considered a cow that was calmly grazing in a meadow across the way. "Mamma, how old is that cow," she finally inquired. "She is four years old," answered Edna's mother. Edna considered the answer and from time to time appeared to be comparing herself with the cow. "Well," was her parting comment on the question, "I'm five and that cow is big enough to be fifty."

How It Was Named.

Nottingham lace was so called because it originally was made by the semi-savage people who lived in the caves in the district now known as Nottingham, in England. By keeping the work between them and the dark mouth of the cave the women could work the pattern easily. Nottingham, or any other lace, even the finest and flimiest, can be washed safely and quickly with Easy Task soap, which is a natural, scientific cleanser and leaves the lace in the best condition. Easy Task costs but five cents a cake at your grocer's.

A Busy Life.

Sub-Editor—A dispatch from the penitentiary says the convicts have struck and refuse to work unless they can have pie twice a day.

Great Editor (busily)—Counsel moderation and arbitration.—New York Weekly.

DR. MARTEL'S FEMALE PILLS.

Seventeen Years the Standard.

Prescribed and recommended for Women's Ailments. A scientifically prepared remedy of proven worth. The result from their use is quick and permanent. For sale at all Drug Stores.

And the only way to impress some people is to suppress them.

ALL UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPERS Use Red Cross Ball Blue. It makes clothes clean and sweet as when new. All grocers.

A girl will tell how a man made love to her when she did to him.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The busy man wonders how the loafer manages to live.

Munyon's Witch Hazel Soap

is more soothing than Cold Cream; more healing than any lotion, liniment or salve; more beautifying than any cosmetic.

Cures dandruff and stops hair from falling out.

W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES
HAND-SEWED PROCESS
MEN'S $2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $5.00
WOMEN'S $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4
BOYS' $2.00, $2.50 & $3.00
THE STANDARD FOR 30 YEARS
They are absolutely the most popular and best shoes for the price in America. They are the leaders everywhere because they hold their shape, fit better, look better and wear longer than other makes. They are certainly the most economical shoes for you to buy. W. L. Douglas name and retail price are stamped on the bottom—value guaranteed. Fast Color Eyelets.
TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE! If your dealer cannot supply you write for Mail Order Catalog.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

The Army of Constipation
Is Growing Smaller Every Day.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible—they not only give relief—they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.
Genuine must bear Signature
Brent Good

A Skin of Beauty Is a Joy Forever.
DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S Oriental Cream and Magical Beautifier.

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 62 yrs. and is so harmless we taste it to be sure it is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut-ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the skin preparations." For sale by all druggists and Fancy-Goods Dealers in the U. S., Canada and Europes.
Ferd. T. Hopkins, Prop., 37 Great Jones St., New York

PILES

"I have suffered with piles for thirty-six years. One year ago last April I began taking Cascarets for constipation. In the course of a week I noticed the piles began to disappear and at the end of six weeks they did not trouble me at all. Cascarets have done wonders for me. I am entirely cured and feel like a new man." George Kryder, Napoleon, O.

Pleasant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. 930

MONEY, RICHES in the earth; gold, silver, lost treasures located. New and MARVELOUS HERMITS WONDER. $1.50 with secret instructions, short time only. Carried without detection. Order one today. Money back if not satisfied. H. & W. AGENCY, Lock Box 165, St. Elmo, Illinois.

WANTED LADY REPRESENTATIVES. By large Perfumery and Toilet Requisite House. In every locality. Best proposition yet offered. High class advertised line. Add. Turner, Wood & Co., Louisville, Ky.

ATTENTION HORSE OWNERS—Be your own veterinary, our thirty prescriptions enable you to successfully treat all known diseases. Investigate. Germaine Co., 124 Clifford Street, Detroit, Michigan.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

W. N. U., FT. WAYNE, NO. 37–1910.

WESTERN CANADA'S 1910 CROPS

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Wheat Yield In Many Districts Will Be From 25 to 35 Bushels Per Acre

Land sales and homestead entries increasing. No cessation in numbers going from United States. Wonderful opportunities remain for those who intend making Canada their home. New districts being opened up for settlement. Many farmers will net, this year, $10 to $15 per acre from their wheat crop. All the advantages of old settled countries are there. Good schools, churches, splendid markets, excellent railway facilities. See the grain exhibit at the different State and some of the County fairs.

Letters similar to the following are received every day, testifying to satisfactory conditions; other districts are as favorably spoken of:

THEY SENT FOR THEIR SON.
Maidstone, Sask., Canada, Aug. 5th, 1910.
"My parents came here from Cedar Falls, Iowa, four years ago, and were so well pleased with the country they sent to Coeur d'Alene for me. I have taken up a homestead near them, and am perfectly satisfied to stop here."
Leonard Douglas.

WANTS SETTLER'S RATE FOR HIS STOCK.
Stettler, Alberta, July 21st, 1910.
"Well I got up here from Forest City, Iowa, last Spring in good shape with the stock and everything. Now, I have got two boys back in Iowa yet, and I am going back there now soon to get them and another car up here this fall. What I would like to know is, if there is any chance to get a cheap rate back again, and when we return to Canada I will call at your office for our certificates."
Yours truly, H. A. Wit.

WILL MAKE HIS HOME IN CANADA.
Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 1st, 1910.
"I am going to Canada a week from today and intend to make my home there. My husband has been there six weeks and is well pleased with the country, so he wants me to come as soon as possible. He filed on a claim near Leadin, Sask., and by his description of it it must be a pretty place.
My brother-in-law, Mr. Frank J. Simmer, lives there and it was through him that we decided to locate in Canada."
Yours truly,
Mrs. Richard Henry Ehinger.

TAKES HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW'S WORD FOR IT.
Taylors Falls, Minn., Aug. 7, 1910.
"I shall go to Camrose this Fall with my cattle and household goods. I got a poor crop here this year and my brother-in-law, Axel Nordstrom in Camrose, wants me to come there. He formerly lived in Wilson, North Dakota. I am going to buy or take homestead when I get there, but I do not want to travel two times there, for I take my brother-in-law's word about the country, and want to get your low rate."
Yours truly
Peter A. Nelson.

WANTS TO RETURN TO CANADA.
Vesta, Minn., July 26th, 1910.
"I went to Canada nine years ago and took up a quarter section of railroad land and a homestead yet my boys have never taken up any land yet. I still hold the railroad land. I had to come back to the states on account of my health. Please let me know at once if I can get the cheap rates to Prince Albertas."
Yours truly,
Geo. Paskewitz,
Vesta, Minn.

Send for literature and ask the local Canadian Government Agents for Excursion Rates, best districts in which to locate, and when to go.

W. H. ROGERS, 3d Floor, Traction Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
H. M. WILLIAMS, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio

MICA AXLE GREASE
Keeps the spindle bright and free from grit. Try a box.
Sold by dealers everywhere.
STANDARD OIL CO.
(Incorporated)

SEPTEMBER

0524
L 904

Soldiers' Reunion.

The annual meeting of the DeKalb County Veterans Association was held at this place last Thursday. The attendance was good despite the heavy rain on Thursday morning. The morning was opened proper by music by the Coburntown Farmer's Band. As the old soldiers gathered they registered and were given badges and a short session was held in the opera house. The ladies of the Lutheran church served the meals in the basement, and at the request of old soldiers a chicken pie dinner was served which was relished by all. The afternoon session was opened by a male quartett, prayer by Rev. Hitchner, and Elder J. A. Brown spoke the words of welcome and was responded to by F. W. Willis of Waterloo. F. N. Beidler led the singing, Marching Through Georgia. A very unusual thing occured on the program, that of singing by Reed-Beidler-Willis, old soldiers, and a hearty applause followed each number. Miss Helen Garber of Butler, took an active part in the program by a recitation, which was heartily received. A number of the soldiers were called upon to give a few army experiences, and it was the most interesting part of the program, showing the trying circumstances with which they had to contend with. The principal address was delivered by W.M. Polhemeter of Wolcottville. The report of the committees decided on Butler as the next place of holding the reunion. The arrangements for entertaining the crowd were complete and all had a very fine time. Old veterans to the number of 65 had registered representing different towns as follows:—Auburn, St. Joe, Harlan, Huntertown, Spencerville, Hicksville, Butler, Leo, Waterloo, Edgerton, Antwerp, Ohio; Meridian, Michigan.

The members of the association present at this meeting were as follows:—

	Co.	Regt.		P. O.
Frank N. Beidler	A	88	I. V. I.	Waterloo, Ind.
Chas. R. Reed	C	88	"	" "
J. D Leighty Lieut Ex	C	11	"	St. Joe, Ind.
C. W. Widney				" "
Chas. W. Freeburn	C	101	"	" "
James Draggoo	A	1	" H Art	Auburn Ind
Benj. Hamilton	A	13	"	St. Joe, Ind.
John Y. Davis	A	100	"	" "
Edward White	H	88	"	" "
Mahlon Baker	I	174	O. V. I.	" "
O. H. Widney	H	88	I. V. I.	Auburn, Ind.
A. P. Murphy				Harlan, Ind.
E. Hollopeter	E	11	"	Huntertown, Ind.
Wm. H. Davis	B	2	Penn L. Art'y	Spencerville
Wm. Monroe	D	155	I. V. I.	Hicksville, O,
Samuel George	H	3	"	St. Joe. Ind.
Henry Abel	F	44	"	" "
Amos Hilkey	D	88	"	" "
Joseph Spitler	C	111	O. V. I.	Spencerville
Elijah Imhoff	11	88	I. V. I.	Butler, Ind.
Joseph Koler	C	35	"	St. Joe, Ind.
Harry Meek	A	142	"	St. Joe, Ind.
John Koons	F	3	Mich. City	Auburn, Ind.
M. Rupert		23	Ind. Battery	Spencerville
Elmer Wyatt	H	88	I. V. I.	Butler, Ind.
B. Schwartz	A	44	Ill.	Leo, Ind.
Wm. D. Maranville	A	32	N. Y.	St. Joe, Ind.
John Miller	K	46	I. V. I.	Butler, Ind.
Jesse Lake	E	29	O. V. I.	" "
Peter Countryman	F	44	I. V. I.	Hicksville, O.
Wm. Provines	F	71	O. V. I.	Spencerville
Amos Fell	C	96	"	Butler, Ind.
Wm. Rolu	I	94	"	Edgerton, O.
Thomas Wade	D	9	I. V. I.	Meridian, Mich.
F. W. Willis	K	44	"	Waterloo, Ind
J. W. Chapel	A	2	Wis. Infty	" "
F. C. Waterman	A	2	" "	" "
J. M. Young	B	17	O. V. I.	Butler, Ind.
Geo. DeLong	H	88	I. V. I.	St. Joe, Ind.
Elwood Ward	H	29	"	Maysville, Ind.
Gabriel Miller	G	53	"	Butler, Ind.
D. W. Weitz	H	3	Ohio Cav.	" "
Isaac Dohner	H	88	I. V. I.	Edgerton, O.
J. D. Cummins	D	88	"	Harlan, Ind.
Geo. Wade	A	44	"	Spencerville
W. B. Graham	A	100	"	Acmene, O.
James Stonebraker	D	74	"	" "
D. H. Richey	H	100	O. V. I.
Levi W. Treesh	A	142	I. V. I.	Corunna, Ind.
J. W. Deitrick	B	129	"
F. Buchanan	H	30	"	St. Joe, Ind.
D. H. Lewis	F	129	"	" "
Israel Horn	C	35	"	Spencerville Ind.
G. W. Sparks	A	101	O. V. I.	Waterloo, Ind.
A. H. Blaker	C	100	Penn.	Butler, Ind.
W. M. Abel	C	129	I. V. I.	St. Joe, Ind.
J. A. Provines	H	30	"	Spencerville Ind.
James A. Keeler	B	155	"	Antwerp, O.
John W. Beams	E	55	"	Spencerville Ind.
J. M. Milliman	F	44	"	Butler, Ind.
Martin Kesler	D	44	"	Spencerville Ind.

SCHOOL DAYS ARE HERe

The adult notices failing sights by means of comparison.

THE CHILD

as a matter of fact lacks the standard of comparison. It does not know whether its sight is perfect or imperfect. It's up to you, Father or Mother, to have your children's eyes examined. Bring them in before School days begins.

There's no charge for examination. If glasses are needed we give the little folks special attention and extra examination when necessary.

J. W. HARTZOG
EYE SIGHT SPECIALIST

Will be at Dr. H. W. Bowman's Office
On Monday, Sept. 19
REMEMBER DATE. CALL EARLY.
HOME OFFICE
1213 Wells St., Cor. Wells and High
Ft. Wayne, Ind.

MRS. WARNER'S
FALL and WINTER MILLINERY
Bell Shapes
as well as other large and small models. The limitless extent of the style—variety make it impossible to describe the many innovations now shown, but all the leading vileas find expression in our present exhibit.

Special Sale of Plumes
French Plumes, black or white. Wings and fancy feathers, also the very popular feather bands in all the new shades.

Fairview Neighborhood

Art Coyle has sold his motor cycle.

Chastine Johnston has purchased an automobile.

W. H. Wyatt purchased a fine colt of Geo. Kinsey, last week. Price $100.

Miss Helen Bowman was the guest of Lenora Sherer, last week, and Miss Bernice Perry will spend part of this week, with her.

D. W. Baker threshed Monday of this week, and got 226 bushels of wheat from eight acres.

Never have I seen such favorable condition of the soil for seeding wheat as at present.

The frost last Friday night did no damage. There will be plenty of "galler punkins" for pies.

Rev. E. C. Corn preached his first sermon at Fairview, last Sunday, at 3 P. M., to a fair sized and appreciative audience. It was considered an excellent sermon.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Widney, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Houser and Samuel and Charles Widney attended church services at Fairview, Sunday afternoon.

W. D. Johnston, last Saturday, sold six of those pigs which I mentioned some time ago. They were 6 months and 4 days old, and if the bunch had weighed two pounds more they would have averaged 228 lbs. each. How's that for altitudinous?

F. C. Melton was so unfortunate as to lose 15 head of his fine Leghorn chickens, last week, by a weasel that got among them. The first night it killed six and he set several steel traps. It got into one of them, but not until it had killed nine more. Some of them were grown hens.

I give some more yields of grain by Fairview farmers: Lankey Morr, 394 bushels of wheat, 325 bushels of oats; Jasper Snyder, 500 bushels of wheat and an estimate of 500 bushels of oats; Tell Elson, 328 bushels of wheat, 892 bushels oats. Mr. Snyder will sow 30 acres to wheat.

Fairview neighborhood was thrown into a fever of excitement last Saturday afternoon by a negro tramp breaking into the residence of E. W. Saylor. It appears that about 2 p. m. he showed up at Mr. Shroyer's, and Mrs. Shroyer not having any bread baked could not give him the hand out he asked for. He then started toward the Saylor home, and Mrs. Shroyer called up Mrs. Saylor and informed her that he had headed that way. Mrs. Saylor closed and locked the doors, and kept hidden. He came to the house knocked at both the front and rear doors and there being no response, he peered into the windows and come to the conclusion no one was at home. He then went to the woodhouse, got an axe and pried up the window until the fastenings gave way and he scrambled into the kitchen. Mrs. Saylor unlocked the front door and ran from the house screaming; the negro after her. Her outcries were heard by Roy Kinsey who was at work painting on the Saylor school house nearby, who ran to her assistance. This frightened the negro who ran into a nearby corn field. Marshal George Bleeks was summoned and also the Sheriff, and were soon on the grounds with a large posse of men who attempted to effect his capture but were unsuccessful. He was seen by some of the searching party who took a long-range shot at him without effect. It certainly was a bold and villionous demonstration in broad day light and on a well traveled highway.

IT SAVED HIS LEG.

"All thought I'd lose my leg," writes J. A. Swensen, of Watertown, Wis. "Ten years of eczema that fifteen doctors could not cure, had at last laid me up. Then Bucklin's Arnica Salve cured it, sound and well." Infallible for Skin Eruptions, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Boils, Fever Sores, Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Piles. 5c at H. L. Dunkle's.

Didn't Like the Music.

A little boy, listening to the weird skirl of the bagpipes of a street performer, once said to his father:

"Father, why does the piper keep on the move all the time he plays?"

"I can't say," the father answered, "unless it is to prevent any one getting the range with a brick."

Coburn's Corners

Tell it to THE NEWS.

Frank Mediert of Angola, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Romeo Headley.

Nick Funk and wife attended the Paulding fair, a couple of days last week.

Rev. Joseph Scholes of Bellaire, Ohio, attended his father's funeral, Monday.

Laney Gee of Arkansas, has purchased the old home farm of his mother.

Several from this place attended the Annual Meeting at Hicksville, Sunday.

Mr. Joseph Shull and Mrs. Percy Walker have been on the sick list, the past week.

Helen Place entertained several of her little friends at her home, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gee and Mrs Laney Gee spent Friday night with Matie Gee and father.

Eber Brown returned home Saturday from a two month stay with friends in Bethel, Ind.

John Hamilton, wife and son Corral, and wife of Butler, attended the funeral of Mr. Scholes, Monday.

Pluma Hamilton accompanied her sisters-in-law, Mrs. L. O. Tustison and Mrs. O. K. Shull, to Ft. Wayne, Saturday.

Little Miss Grace Milliman has been the guest of her sister, Hattie Furgeson of Auburn, for a couple of weeks.

Mrs. Fred Hart received the sad news Monday of the death of a sister at Hesperia, Mich. She started for that place, Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Grant Adams and two daughters, of Richmond, Ind, visited from Saturday until Monday with her sister, Mrs. J. A. Brown and family.

Walter Abel received a message last Wednesday from Elmwood, Neb., announcing the death of his brother-in-law, Rev. Cyrus Alton of that place.

Circumstances alter cases. Willis Maginnis could not talk at the Corners, Sunday, but expects to be with us next Sunday. Come and hear a good talk.

Jacob Baker and daughter, Matie Gee and son Fred, accepted an invitation to dinner Sunday at the home of Charles Thayer and wife near Newville Center.

Burt Milliman of Ft. Wayne, came home Monday with a badly burned face caused by an accident from the engine which he is firing in a saw mill at that place.

Will Erick, our hustling trustee, has purchased an addition to the school lot of Cadmus Shull. Something very needful and will be appreciated by the scholars. The school this winter promises to be a large one.

Local Items

Rink Saturday night.

More wheat can be raised by using Bradley's Fertilizer. See Wm. Curie.

Miss Gladys Paff of Long Beach, Cal., was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benninghoff, Sunday.

Get your coal oil at Kinsey's

Mrs. H. C. Hathaway and children left Wednesday morning for Huntington to visit Mrs. Daisy Thorn a few days.

Mr. Dale Widney, who has been in the north-west for the past year, returned home yesterday morning

Rolla Wiers, who is working for the Pennsylvania Company at Ft. Wayne, spent last Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Wiers at this place,

New car of Bradley's Fertilizer at Curie's. Try it this year.

A school boy's composition on "The Editor," ran as follows: "The editor is one of the happiest beggars in the worth. He can go to the circus in the afternoon and evening without paying a farthing, also inquests and hangings. He has free tickets to the theaters, gets wedding cake (?) sent to him and sometimes gets licked, but not often, as he can take it back in the next issue, which he generally does. While other folks have to go to bed early, the editor can sit up every night and see all that is going on."

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is today the best known medicine in use for the relief and cure of bowel complaints. It cures griping, diarrhoea, dysentery, and should be taken at the first unnatural looseness of the bowels. It is equally valuable for children and adults. It always cures. Sold by H. L. Dunkle, St. Joe; W. L. Wernert, Spencerville.

On last Thursday evening, Mr. J. H. Reinoehl was very pleasantly surprised, it being his fourty-first birthday. It was so cleverly planned by his wife that it was a complete surprise in every respect. He was presented with a beautiful oak center table, several choice books and many beautiful birthday cards. Dainty refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake, grapes and crystalized popcorn were served by the hostess. The guests numbered fifty-four. All returned home at a late hour wishing Mr. Reinoehl many happy returns of the day.

Week ago last Wednesday evening about 8:00 o'clock as I was silently reading, I heard someone in our front yard. Next morning upon investigating I found that I had been relieved of some flowers and plants. And on Thursday evening about the same time, I again was reading as before, when I again heard someone in front of the porch. This time I surprised the thief by quickly and quietly appearing on the porch, only to get a square view of the person. So the thief was positively identified. I think the thief did not get the collection of plants she was after the night before, so made the second call only to get caught at it. Now this has formerly been a common occurence. As at one time, thief took pot, plant and all. That was worth $2.00. I cannot understand why they steal from me, as I always have been very liberal with flowers and slips, and have given away many dollars worth in my life time. However, (with a very few exceptions) I always buy my plants. Now I will not tolerate this kind of work any longer, as the next time I see anyone sneaking around my plants at night, I will have their names published, so everybody will know them. MRS. W. R. WIERS.

This is the time of the year to get your flour supply for the year, bring in your wheat and get your flour.

Stack it in a dry place It improves as it gets older.

Keep it dry and it never spoils.

It always adds new life to sift your flour before baking.

Keesler Milling Company,
St. Joe, Ind.

ST. JOE.

Rink Saturday night.

Miss Emma Hadsell of Ft. Wayne, is the guest of Dr. Sheffer and wife this week.

As a result of the soldiers meeting last Thursday, the Ladies Aid Society of the Lutheran Church served over 300 meals.

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Bradley and son of Danville, Ill., James Rickett and family, Sherman Rickett and wife were entertained Sunday at the home of Thomas Rickett and wife of this place.

Mrs. Peter Kosht returned home last Friday from a week's visit with her brother, D. R. Krabill and family of Boyne City, Mich. She reports a most enjoyable time. She ordered THE NEWS sent to him at 524 West Michigan Avenue.

See Burwell's before buying Stoves and save money.

Next Sunday is Rally Day at the Lutheran Church and a treat is in store for you. Two little ladies from a nearby city will take active part in the program. The sermon will be directed along the same line as the rally service. Everyone will be made welcome.

A birthday dinner was given Mrs. Frank Tustison Sunday the 4th. At nearly the noon hour about twelve of her relatives and friends gathered with well filled baskets, and to say that the lady was surprised is putting it mild. The day was spent in a social way and each departed wishing Mrs. Anna many more such happy birthdays. She received seventy-four beautiful cards which she appreciates very much, and desires to thank all who remembered her.

The executive committee of the Defiance County Sunday School Association and the Superintendents of the Hicksville Sunday Schools are extending to all the schools of this part of DeKalb County an invitation to attend their Annual County Sunday School Convention which will be held in the Methodist Church of Hicksville Wednesday and Thursday September 28th and 29th. Dr. Joseph Clark of Columbus, Ohio, is to be one of the principal speakers and others of a national reputation will be present and have a place on the program. Hicksville is waiting to extend a cordial welcome to those interested in Sunday School work to this convention which it is aimed to make the best ever held in Defiance County.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We wish to announce that Chas. O. Benjamin was the lucky one to receive the Kitchen Cabinet. Our demonstration closed with a bountiful success, in closing up 12 sales on Hard Coal, Base Burners and Ranges. Come in at any time, it is a pleasure for us to show this one line of stoves, MODEL.

We Thank you All.

H. V. Kinsey & Son,
Furniture Hardware Undertaking
Office Phone No. 37-2 Residence No. 37-3

SEPTEMBER

L 904

0525

ADVERTISERS!
THE NEWS is enjoying the largest list of readers in it's history and your AD should appear in each issue.

ST. JOE NEWS.

SUBSCRIBERS!
YOU can assist in making this paper better by sending in items and by seeing that your subscription is paid up.

VOL. XXIV. ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 22, 1910. NO. 38

THE HART-HOOD-WIDNEY CO.

Hicksville, O Department Store. Phone 24

FALL SUITS at REDUCED PRICES

During the balance of September we want to get you better acquainted with our Tailored Suit department and in order to do this we are offering a reduction from regular price of

Ten Per Cent

Our suit department shows the largest variety we have ever offered and if you need a suit here's an excellent chance to secure one at less than the ruling price.

$10 00 suit at ....$ 9 00	$15 00 suit at $13 50	$18 00 suits at $16 20
12 50 suit at 11 25	16 50 suit at . .. 14 85	20 00 suits at 18 00

Your railroad fare will be refunded on any suit you buy.

ROOM SIZE RUGS.

Our rug department is a growing one and the selections being offered are the newest to be had in the markets. We are making a special leader this fall of the best quality of axminster rug 9 x 12 size, in floral, oriental or combination styles at low price

Twenty Dollars

Remember this is not the second quality, but the best quality at this price. We buy them in bale lots which enables us to sell them at this very low price. We have rugs to fit nearly

Any Size Rooms.

He Paid for His Run

Marshal Bleeks made an attempt to arrest Clarence Malone last Sunday evening for drunkeness and when they were about to enter office of the Justice, Clarence made his escape. On Monday morning he started off with Frank Scholes and his gang of men to work south-west of Hamilton on a bridge. The marshal goes to Auburn and the deputy sheriff accompanied him to the Mersher bridge where he was working. Clarence was taken to Auburn and fined it costing him in all $18.05. He was released on Tuesday by a man of this place. It was rather an expensive run after all and the town board have made up their mind that it is high time to stop the business of having so many drunks on the streets.

A Big Feed

The ladies of the M. P. church will give a 10 cent supper in the NEWS office, Saturday evening. Everything that's good. Come.

Local Items

Rink Saturday night.

Crescent Concert Company Saturday eve, Oct. 1st.

Miss Ethel Miller of Waterloo, is the guest of relatives here this week.

More wheat can be raised by using Bradley's Fertilizer. See Wm. Curie.

Mrs. J. F. Walker of South Bend, came Tuesday to visit relatives for a short time in this vicinity.

Miss Helen Patterson left Monday evening for Bloomington, where she will enter Indiana University.

Crescent Concert Company, Saturday eve, Oct. 1st.

J. W. Burwell and wife were at Columbia City several days settling the estate of the latter's mother.

New car of Bradley's Fertilizer at Curie's. Try it this year.

Card of Thanks

We desire to thank the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father. And by their loving kindness have made our sorrow somewhat easier to bear.

SARAH A. HULL AND FAMILY.

THE GOOD SHEPHERD

looked after his sheep. Did it pay Him? Just ask any good farmer that cares for his own flock and he will tell you it pays. At this season sheep should be fat, smooth and healthy. If they are not fat and look forlorn and dumpish, then they have Stomach Worms. Be quick ask us and we will tell you. We have the Genuine Stock Tonic Salt that is sure death to worms.

Here is the Facts:

You feed each sheep one pound and if you are not satisfied we will refund you every cent-cheerfully

Don't delay—get them ready for breeding this fall.

You'll always do better at

Dunkle's

in

ST. JOE, - - - INDIANA.

Lecture Course

St. Joe will have a lecture course this year again. The course in mind is an excellent one and will be supported by the business men of the town. In all there will be five numbers and as soon as the dates have been received from the Lyceum, we will make special announcements. It is the desire of St. Joe that the course be supported by everyone who can possibly attend.

A Big Sale

The Hart-Hood-Widney Co., of Hicksville, were the successful bidders last week to furnish the carpet for the U. B. Church of that place which is being remodeled and refurnished. The carpet is an extra quality of Wilton Velvet of a new design and is the largest sale of its kind ever made by any firm in Hicksville. The main auditorium as well as class rooms are being covered and the bill amounted to above five hundred dollars.

M. P. CHURCH ANNOUCEMENTS

Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:00 followed by teachers meeting at 7:45. Choir practice at parsonage Friday evening at 7:00. Sunday School Sunday morning at 9:00. Regular preaching services at 10:00. Special music. Subject of sermon, "Duty."

FAIRVIEW

Sunday School at 2:00 followed by regular preaching services at 3:00.

Rev. E. C. Corn,
Pastor.

ST. JOE.

Rink Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mulcahey, of Butler, spent Sunday with Chloe Rhodenbaugh.

FOR SALE:—A good cook stove. C. S. SAILOR, St. Joe, Ind.

WABASH

Wabash Time Table.

Trains leave the St. Joe Station as follows:

WEST BOUND.

No. 11 due at .....10:32 a. m.
No. 3 .....8:30 p. m.

EAST BOUND.

No. 2 due at.....6:19 a. m.
No. 6 due at..... 4:57 p.m.

At $3.50 per ton a good coal
Hard Coal
Plaster and Lime.
W. E. Baxter, Prop.
Phone No. 49-12 and 67-2.

St Joe Markets

Wheat	.92
Oats	.30
Butter, country	.27
Eggs	.22

Local Items.

Milt Krise is firing on the B. & O.

Kraut cabbage for sale. Call phone 67-21.

Mrs. Pearl White visited relatives at Auburn one day last week.

Franc Rhodenbaugh spent last week with her grand-parents at Leo.

The opera house rink will open Saturday night. Come.

Mrs. H. W. Krabill and two children were Hicksville shoppers last Saturday.

Marion Bailey and wife of Leo were Sunday guests of David Poper and family.

Hot Coffee and Biscuits at Burwell's Friday and Saturday. Free to all.

H. L. Dunkle and son Coy, S. W. Tuetison and F. B. Leighty, were at Auburn Thursday afternoon on business.

The Clover Leaf Manure Spreader is one of the handiest tools the farmers own. See Curie.

Mrs. Curtis Washler returned Saturday evening from VanWert, where she had been the guest of relatives and attended the fair.

Mr. John Riblett, of Gibson City, Ill., is visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Bishop this week. He is a cousin of Mrs. Bishop.

Don't work yourself to death when a Clover Leaf Manure Spreader will do your work better. Curie can show you.

D. F. Benninghoff and wife attended the State Fair and will make visits at Columbus and Toledo, Ohio before returning. They are making the trip in their auto.

A traveling sign painter made St. Joe a visit last Saturday and he certainly was a busy man all day. No one need ask where certain stores are located if they can read.

Don't miss seeing a Baxter Range in operation at Burwell's Friday and Saturday.

The railroads have not treated the thrifty town of St. Joe in this county with the consideration due. In the first place the B. & O. station is too far east of the town to accomodate the public not to say anything about the lack of accomodation in train service. Hon. J. D. Leighty, one of the public spirited citizens of the place, made a commendable effort recently to bring about more favorable conditions and deeded grounds to the B. & O. for depot purposes on one of the principle streets but thus far they hold the property and refuse to move the station or build a new one which is very much needed. The Wabash R. R. surely made a grave mistake in running their road a mile west of town. In spite of these drawbacks St. Joe is a lively town.—Waterloo Press.

Mr. D. J. Baker made a business trip to Ft. Wayne Monday.

Free Range Demonstration at Burwell's Friday and Saturday.

Harlow Ulm has moved on the Ross Abel farm for the winter to care for the stock.

S. S. Widney and Frank Sechler and wife spent the first of the week near Harlan.

Don't miss seeing a Baxter Range in operation at Burwell's Friday and Saturday.

Miss Inez Maggilus and Mr. W. D Maggilus, were callers at the C. A. Patterson home on last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Baker, spent Thursday and Friday at Montpelier, O., visiting friends and attending the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wineland and son, Jay, of Elkhart, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Wineland and Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Baker, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Hendricks.

Marvin Poper furnished us a fine cluster of strawberries Monday. They are of the second crop and are much larger that the first. Mr. Poper stated that the berries were a very early variety and consequently were shoots that came up and the extreme hot weather caused them to bear and they anticipate as large a yield as the first. The berries are of a deep red and very sweet. It is something new to pick strawberries this time of the year.

Should a man marry before the age of thirty-five to save himself from becoming a sort of social pariah? "Men who do not marry deteriorate rapidly after they have reached the age of from thirty-five to forty," is the opinion expressed by a married woman. "There seems to be a natural law in operation, she said, "which ordains that if a man does not marry in the early thirties he breaks down socially and becomes only fit for the club smoking room, the music hall and dog fights. I know a large number of my husband's men friends and of course have friends of my own. Many of them are married and they are charming people, who seem to understand. But several of them are bachelors. Now the bachelors below the age of thirty-five are quite endurable, but those who exceed those years are not. They are mentally relaxed, and their manners have lost their edge. They are awkward, ill at ease in the society of women and they have begun to assume that every girl is trying to marry them."—Garrett Clipper.

The editor in conversation with a bachelor friend, finds one bachelor who takes exceptions to the above statement made by a married woman, "What business is it of hers", he says, "that bachelors over thirty-five are unendurable?" "Married women should not be too much interested in other men; "Only those old maids that expect to be coy, and are looking for husbands, ever see a disposition on the part of the bachelor to be anxious to marry them."

Mrs. G. M. Barney and daughter, Pauline, were Bryan visitors from Saturday until Tuesday of this week.

The Misses Grace Sechler, Ethel Berry and J. C. Hull and wife, spent Sunday with Mrs. Lulu Foote, east of Harlan.

Mr. Herbert Kimmel, Principal of the Auburn High School, was the guest of Miss Helen Patterson Saturday afternoon and evening.

Miss Ada Bunker and mother of Butler, Miss Carnegie of Toronto, Canada and the editor and wife, were entertained to Sunday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Randall.

Hot coffee and biscuits at Burwell's, Friday and Saturday. Free to all.

The W. C. T. U. of this place wish to announce that the county convention will be held at Auburn on Friday September 23, in the Lutheran Church both afternoon and evening. The evening session will be devoted to the gold medal contest in which St. Joe will participate. A full attendance is desired.

C. B. Leighty and wife spent Sunday with C. A. Rhoads and wife.

Hot coffee and biscuits at Burwell's, Friday and Saturday. Free to all.

I. S. Corn, of Franklin, Ind., spent Tuesday and Wednesday with his brother, Rev. C. E. Corn and wife.

INSURANCE.

Life, Accident, Sickness.

Also Fire and Tornado for town or farm property.

For rates phone No. 46-2 or call on
J. C. HULL, City Barber.

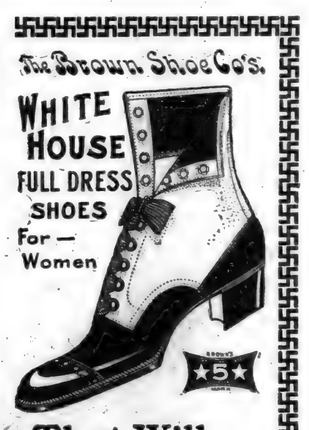
Patterson's
DEPARTMENT STORE-ST. JOE, IND.

THE HOME STORE

WOMEN'S FOOTWEAR

For the Fall and Winter Season

The new fall shoes have all the feminine characteristics which we know appeal so strongly to woman's discriminating taste. Many touches of daintiness make the new footwear so distractingly pretty that it will be a conspicuous part of the costume this season. We have used considerable care to have



A Showing of Ladies' Shoes That Will Dress The Feet Smartly and Well

The Usona Shoe—A shoe of durable material-not heavy and clumsy but built for service and yet designed along dressy lines. Priced from.....$2.00 to $2.50

White House Shoe—A popular ladies' shoe designed on sensible lasts that insure foot comfort and made of material suitable for cool weather wear.....
Prices.....$2.50 to $3.00

The Capitol Shoe—A shoe that carries the style and quality of the best lasts and leathers, embracing all that could be desired in a ladies' dress shoe.....
Prices.....$3.00 to $3.50

You'll Find "The Home Store" the right place to have your shoe wants looked after.

SEPTEMBER

0526

L 904

The St. Joe News

ST. JOE, INDIANA.

FRED B. LEIGHTY, - - Publisher.

WAR MADE IMPOSSIBLE.

If all the "advanced" ideas were adopted it would seem that war would soon be made impossible. Many schemes have been exploited in the shape of skillfully written newspaper or magazine articles, but the building of big warships continues. The latest claimant for attention at Washington is an individual who has conceived the brilliant plan of having ships carry a reel of barbed wire at the stern, so arranged that an end can be thrown overboard while the vessel steams swiftly around the enemy until the latter's propellers are so tangled up that they cannot turn. Then, says the inventor, "all the fleet need is to sail away and leave its enemy's men to starve and its ships to rust." But the naval authorities have filed away this most impressive suggestion along with that of the man who a few years ago wanted the government to adopt a projectile filled with a gas that would anaesthetize all on board an enemy's ship, so that capture would be easy. The day of the inventor is not yet past. Nor that of the crank.

When the summer vacation season opens the rush of Americans to Europe taxes the capacity of the outgoing steamships. Long before the end of the summer vacation season the pressure of the returning tide of travel is felt. People who desire to journey in comfort and who neglect to engage their passage a long time ahead find themselves at the present juncture obliged to pay extreme prices or wait. A special from Berlin tells of a wealthy New Yorker who wanted to come home and applied for first-class accommodations on the Hamburg American line. The cheapest price at which he could procure a cabin suite, he found, was $2,000. The North German Lloyd boats are similarly crowded, both companies being "booked up" for several weeks. It pays the ocean traveler to be forehanded.

The house fly is frequently expounded upon as the most dangerous disease purveyor of summertime, says Chicago Journal. Let us not forget that the rat is also a dangerous marauder, and a menace to public health. San Francisco employs 30 rat trappers, who average more than 8,000 rats a month captured, and unknown armies of the pests poisoned in the sewers. Chicago should take measures to rid herself of the rat plague which not only facilitates the distribution of disease but causes an annual loss of thousands of dollars by its sharp teeth and inordinate appetite.

A dispatch from Honolulu says that doctors have succeeded in isolating the germ of leprosy, that they are now trying to develop a serum, and that this means ultimately the cure for the disease. Unfortunately this is not the first time that we have been told we are on the eve of the discovery of a cure for leprosy. But it is 46 years since Hansen discovered the bacillus of leprosy.

They are laughing at a man in east New York who, waking suddenly, shot off his big toe thinking his foot was the face of a burglar. Chicago, which brags of its size in everything but feet, has the incident already noted for its comic almanac of next year.

Don Jaime, the Spanish pretender, announces that he will not resort to violence for the purpose of securing the throne. We predict that he will fail if he attempts to coax Alfonso to give it up.

A St. Louis astronomer has discovered a sun spot 50,000 miles wide and a Massachusetts astronomer has found a new comet. Nevertheless we expect things to move along the earth about as usual.

If anything can revive the Shakespenean drama the rendering of "As You Like It" in Esperanto will do it. Even if it were dead it would rise up and kick.

It may be true that the average American eats 82 pounds of sugar a year, but he does not act the part when the umpire makes a bad decision.

Being chauffeur to an aeroplane is exhilarating, but for a fat man who is fond of his meals and his fireside fishing is better.

A Chicago man has a fiddle that has been played for 400 years. It does not state how many men it has driven to drink.

It would seem that about the only [illegible] for an aeroplane to get into print is to break in.

"NOBODY KNOWS HOW DRY I AM!"

NO QUORUM PRESENT

BALLINGER VERDICT WILL NOT BE KNOWN UNTIL DECEMBER 3.

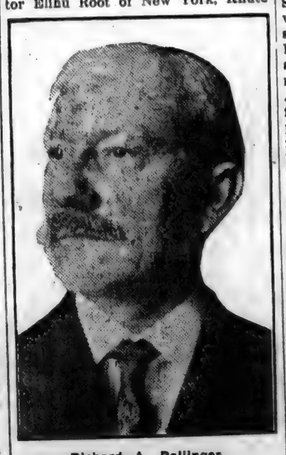
ONLY SIX MEMBERS ON HAND

Congressional Inquiry Committee Meet at Chicago But Adjourn to Assemble at Washington—Only Republicans Put in an Appearance.

Chicago.—Not until next December will Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, learn the verdict arrived at by the congressional investigating committee.

Six members of the committee met in Chicago Tuesday to take action on the majority report, but after deliberating several hours, without a quorum present, an adjournment was taken until December

The members present were: Senator Elihu Root of New York, Knute



Richard A. Ballinger.

Nelson of Minnesota, George Sutherland of Utah, Representatives M. E. Olmstead of Pennsylvania, S. W. McCall of Massachusetts and Edwin Denby of Michigan, all Republicans.

Senator Flint of California, appointed by Vice-President Sherman to serve on the committee, is still abroad, and in his absence the other six prepared a statement in which they declare that the majority resolution adopted at Minneapolis declaring Secretary Ballinger guilty of the charges made against him was "irrational."

Senator Nelson declared that he might call another meeting of the committee before congress convenes, and said that in the event of Senator Flint arriving prior to that time, he, together with the six who attended the meeting here, would constitute a quorum.

He further declared that a quorum of the committee is empowered to proceed with the case, and prepare a report to be submitted to congress.

Great Army of Hunters.

Albany.—More than 128,000 hunters' licenses have been issued in New York state for the fall shooting. The deer shooting season opens on September 16, while partridge and other game birds may be hunted after October 1.

Keene Goes to His Stock Farm.

Lexington, Ky.—James R. Keene, who has been ill of pneumonia here, had so far recovered Tuesday as to be able to go to "Castleton," his stock farm, a few miles from this city.

BROWNE FOUND NOT GUILTY

ILLINOIS LEGISLATOR FREED OF BRIBERY CHARGE.

Jury Out Over 21 Hours and Verdict Is Greeted With Cheers—Emotion Overcomes Defendant.

Chicago.—The jury in the second trial of Lee O'Neil Browne, leader of the minority in the Illinois legislature, charged with bribing Representative Charles A. White to vote for Senator Lorimer, returned a verdict of not guilty in the criminal court Friday. In the first trial of Browne the jury disagreed.

The speedy verdict was a surprise to the many who had watched the progress of the second trial and had feared that a repetition of the tedious deliberations of the first jury would close the case. The verdict was returned before Judge Kersten after the jury had deliberated a little over twenty-one hours.

As the words "not guilty" fell from the clerk's lips a cheer went up. Scenes of confusion followed. It was with difficulty that the bailiffs restrained the crowd. It was then that Browne jumped from his chair, seized Attorney Erbstein around the neck and they embraced each other. A moment later Browne was torn from his counsel by his friends. They pushed him around the room in almost a frenzy to offer their congratulations. Browne then tried to reach the jury box to thank the jurors.

"I thank—" he began, but he did not finish, his emotions overcoming him. Tears ran down his face.

HOW THE BALL CLUBS STAND

Games Won and Lost and the Per Cent Average of the Various Nines.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Clubs.	W.	L.	P.C.	Clubs.	W.	L.	P.C.
Chicago	94	55	.631	Cinc'nati	64	85	.404
Pittsburg	75	50	.600	St. Louis	49	75	.395
New York	70	53	.569	Brooklyn	49	78	.386
Phild'lia	68	61	.530	Boston	45	84	.349

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Phild'lia	88	40	.687	Wash'ton	59	73	.451
New York	74	56	.583	Cleveland	56	71	.441
Boston	73	54	.575	Chicago	53	77	.394
Detroit	73	56	.566	St. Louis	39	89	.310

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Min'ap'is	97	53	.653	Kan. City	76	72	.513
Toledo	91	57	.548	Mil'aukee	69	80	.463
Columb'a	79	68	.538	Ind'ap'is	69	80	.398
St. Paul	76	73	.510	Louisville	54	92	.378

WESTERN LEAGUE.

Sio'x City	82	49	.655	Omaha	69	71	.493
Denver	88	55	.611	St. Joseph	63	73	.443
Lincoln	81	60	.594	D. Moines	60	83	.420
Wichita	76	66	.535	Topeka	55	104	.366

THREE "I" LEAGUE.

Spr'g'fld	94	43	.662	Bl'm'g'n	59	70	.463
R. Island	76	54	.585	Davenp't	54	76	.427
Peoria	69	61	.530	Dubuque	56	75	.427
Waterloo	67	62	.515	Danville	52	73	.400

Fowler Indorsed for Senator.

Trenton, N. J.—Returns indicate that Congressman Charles N. Fowler of the Fifth district was Tuesday indorsed for the United States senate to succeed Senator Kean, with ex-Governor Stokes a close second, and ex-Governor Murphy third. Considerably less than half of the normal vote was polled. Woodrow Wilson is probably the Democratic nomine for governor and State Banking Commissioner Lewis is insured the Republican nomination.

Dog Bites Twenty-Three Persons.

New York.—The police of Bath Beach station, Brooklyn, are holding a yellow dog supposed to be mad, which after being stoned by boys Tuesday turned upon them and everybody in sight and is said to have bitten 23.

Springfield, Ill., Has 51,678.

Washington.—The population of Springfield, Ill., is 51,678 as compared with 34,159 in 1900 and 24,963 in 1890, according to figures issued from the census bureau Tuesday.

G. O. P. LOSES MAINE

DEMOCRATS SWEEP STATE AND ELECT COL. F. W. PLAISTED GOVERNOR.

PROBABLY WIN LEGISLATURE

Four Republican Congressmen Are Defeated—State Issues Are Given as Cause for Change of Political Complexion of State.

Augusta, Me.—Col. Frederick W. Plaisted, mayor of this city, was elected governor at the election held in this state Monday. The Democrats have probably elected four congressmen and it is likely that they will have a majority in the state legislature.

That state issues, notably the drastic enforcement of the prihibitory law by the party in power, have been chiefly responsible for the election of Plaisted is freely admitted on both sides and this result is not much of a surprise to close observers, but that the political complexion of Maine representation in congress should be changed is regarded as the verdict of the voters on the questions which are uppermost in the Insurgent west.

Should the legislature prove to be Democratic it is altogether likely that the question of maintaining the prohibitory law will be submitted to the people and of course a Democrat will succeed Eugene Hale in the United States senate.

Returns from the state received on Tuesday from all but twenty-one towns in the state give Plaisted (Dem.), for governor, a plurality over Fernald (Rep.) of 8,551 votes.

Hinds and Guernsey, Republicans, and McGillicuddy and Gould, Democrats, are elected to congress.

Returns from all but two small representative classes give the Democrats 21 out of the 31 state senators and 86 out of the 151 representatives.

Phoenix, Ariz.—Conservative estimates show that the Democrats have elected a majority of delegates to the Constitutional convention and that the initiative and referendum has carried overwhelmingly.

STEAMER SINKS IN THE LAKE

Big Car Ferry Pere Marquette Goes Down Off Ludington—Twenty-nine Perish.

Milwaukee.—Twenty-nine lives were lost in Lake Michigan when the Pere Marquette's car ferry, No. 18, sank from unknown cause twenty miles off Sheboygan, Wis., Friday.

It is declared one of the worst marine disasters in the history of Lake Michigan navigation. The boat was valued at $400,000, and the cargo, which included thirty-two loaded cars, estimated to be worth $150,000.

At the sacrifice of two of her own seamen, and after terrible hours of struggle the steel car ferry Pere Marquette No. 17, which went to the assistance of No. 18, reached this port with three dead, and twenty-nine survivors of the crew of her sister ship.

Twelve of the rescued were in one of the ship's boats, the remainder were clinging to the wreckage or floating about buffeted by the debris.

The catastrophe occurred approximately thirty miles off from Port Washington. No. 17, bound from Milwaukee for Ludington, reached the wreck just as the No. 18 sunk out of sight. Several miles away a lone boat was floundering in the surge and swell of the waves, and on all sides were the shrieks and screams of the poor wretches soaked through and through with the almost ice-cold water and gripped by the strong winds.

The Pere Marquette No. 20, out from Ludington bound for Milwaukee and manned by a crew most of whom come from the same city as those on the sunken vessel, was the third craft to reach there. Just prior to its arrival the fishing tug Tesler, out from Port Washington, had picked up six dead, among them Capt. Kilty, which were transferred to the No. 17 and taken back to Ludington.

In marine circles it is believed that the string of twenty-eight cars became loose as the ferry was buffeted about and that the water rolled into the vessel's stern, which is wide open. This seems plausible in view of the fact that the sea was rolling from the north, the most dangerous on Lake Michigan, while the steamer was heading southwest by south.

STEAL SHIPMENT OF GOLD

Lead Substituted in Strong Box in Transit on Steamer—Was Valued at $57,000.

Tacoma, Wash.—Gold bullion worth $57,500, part of a $170,000 shipment from the Washington-Alaska Bank of Fairbanks, Alaska, to the Dexter Horton National bank of Seattle, was stolen and lead substituted in the strong box that contained it while the consignment was in transit between Dawson, Yukon territory, and the United States assay office here.

Admits Making Bogus Coin.

Utica, N. Y.—Confessing that he has coined many thousands of spurious five-cent pieces, a man giving his name as George Corrigon of Columbus, O., was lodged in jail here Tuesday. He was arrested at Cooperstown.

Boston & Maine Head Quits.

Boston.—Lucius Tuttle, president of the Boston & Maine railroad, Tuesday resigned the presidency, and President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford was elected to fill out Mr. Tuttle's unexpired term.

BEEF PACKERS ARE INDICTED

TEN IN THE TOILS OF THE FEDERAL GRAND JURY.

Five Presidents of Packing Companies Charged With Having Violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

Chicago. — Ten men, five of them presidents of the most extensive packing companies in the world and all of them directors of the National Packing company, which has been the special object of recent governmental investigation, were indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of having violated the Sherman anti-trust act.

Three indictments, the first one containing five counts and the others one each, were returned before Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who empaneled the grand jury two months ago.

The maximum penalty for each violation of the Sherman act is a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for one year, or both.

The indictments charge that all of the defendants have engaged in a combination in restraint of interstate trade in fresh meats, that they have engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of trade and that they have monopolized the trade in fresh meats by unlawful means.

The indictments cover 125 pages of typewritten matter. They go into every angle of the packing industry in this country and contain the allegation that 85 per cent. of the fresh meat consumed in the eastern, western and middle southern states comes directly from the companies controlled by the defendants. The proportion of each concern in this trade is given as follows: Swift group of houses, 47 per cent.; Armour group, 40 per cent.; Morris group, 13 per cent.

Chicago.—Seven of the Chicago meat packers indicted by the federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy in restraint of trade appeared before Judge Landis Tuesday and gave bonds in the sum of $30,000 each. By their prompt appearance they escaped arrest on bench warrants which Judge Landis had ordered issued.

The first packer to put in an appearance was J. Ogden Armour. He was followed by Arthur Meeker, Edward Tilden, Edward H. Morris, Louis H. Heyman, Edward F. and Charles H. Swift.

Francis A. Fowler, also indicted, was reported ill by his counsel, who promised to bring him in as soon as he was able to come. Representations were made that Louis F. Swift and Thomas J. Connors will give the required bonds on their return from Europe, which will be within a few days.

The judge did not require the personal appearance of the packers in court. The indicted men were represented by Levy Mayer, John S. Miller and George T. Buckingham.

The court stipulated that each packer be held under bond of $10,000 on each count of the indictment, thus making the total bond of each defendant $30,000, and the aggregate of the bonds of the ten packers $300,000.

Attorney Miller pleaded with Judge Landis for a reduction of the bond to $5,000 on each count, as was the case when the packers were indicted five years ago.

GIRL ON HORSE 350 MILES

Acting Secretary of War Oliver and Daughter Conclude Long Endurance Horseback Ride.

